The author of this essay first sets up, under the heading of "implications," two of the most highly doubtful assumptions or generalizations that I have ever seen and then proceeds to set them forth as "revolutionary facts." The author next maintains that U.M.T. would ". . . subject the total citizenry to close order drill and military discipline. . . ." I should like to point out that in the recent war when the ranks of our armed forces were swollen by conscripts and volunteers, their total strength was then only about twelve million. Does the author wish to assert that the "total citizenry" of our nation is only twelve million in number? I was under the impression that it was closer to one hundred and thirty million. The statement, therefore, is a gross exaggeration, yet the opponents of U.M.T. would like for us to believe it would.

But to cite an example for the cause of U.M.T., I should like to point out that for two centuries Rome maintained peace with a strong army. What are two decades when compared to two centuries? And I dare say that Rome gave to Western Civilization a great deal more than Napoleon's France. But I am quite willing to admit that the cases of Rome or of Napoleonic France have nothing to do with the circumstances of today. The problems of our age are not the same as those of Napoleon's era. As I said before, History does not emphatically prove anything.

The next section of the essay concerns itself with proving that a small but efficient, army is all that is needed "to meet our international commitments." Finland, too, had a small, but efficient army, but she did not last long against the armed might of Russia.

I am persuaded that General Eisenhower is more of an authority on the merits and demerits of the use of U. M. T. in this "Atomic Age" than is the author of the essay; consequently, when the former comes out in favor of it, I place more confidence in the validity of his conclusions than in those of the author of this anti-UMT essay.

As to what the connection between U. M. T. and [illegible] confess that I am at a loss to fathom, because I cannot conceive any other nation would be so potentially large army [illegible] possession of our country more than she would fear the atomic bomb. It seems reasonable to me that the fear of the bomb would be the greater. Note the word "potential". U. M. T. is not have as its purpose the creation of a large "standing army" but a large "reserve" army. To be sure some of the weapons of war known today will be outmoded by inventions of the future, but there are some fundamental elements of warfare that always have been and always will be the same. Armies will always be necessary to take and retain positions and to occupy and hold them once they have been taken. The idea that the atomic bomb has outmoded and made obsolete the army as an instrument of war (and there is such a thing as a defensive war waged for the protection of one's homeland) is nothing short of [illegible]

In conclusion, it is my sincere hope that the Rip Van Winkle opponents of U. M. T. will wake up to the exegencies of the present world situation before it is too late. I am firmly convinced that a strong army is the best insurance a nation can have of future peace. Nor does such imply lack of faith in the U. N. It merely implies that there are some wise enough to recognize the demands of the occasion. Our nation is today the only one of the Great Powers which does not already have universal military training. Alas that so many of our good citizens persist in being like ostriches with their heads in the sand. Wishing will not make peace a reality.

Of Students In Quandaries

Green Preferred on Mermaids

By Sergei Burgess

The results to the poll begun in the last column were quite good. Fifty-one people were queried (Do you prefer green hair on coeds or mermaids?) and their answers have been tabulated. To wit: mermaids won practically hands-down, with thirty-nine votes. Coeds came in third, inasmuch as seven people refused to answer. The petite femmes only got five votes. As to the "If coeds, why?" part, four people said, "It'd improve their looks." Foo Giduz gave no answer as to his reasons for preferring green hair on coeds.

Best wrestling match seen this quarter, to change the subject slightly, was at roughly 1:30 a.m. on Saturday morning when Dave Collins, well-known man-about-town and night-owl, pinned his opponent in fifteen seconds flat, and brother, I do mean flat. Facts were that Dave held a slight advantage—about twelve pounds worth of advantage, to be specific.

Dave, incidentally, is the guy who's my opponent in a ping-pong tournament rivaling the Kramer-Riggs matches of recent fame. He and I are playing 65 games to determine the champion of the Three A.M. ping pong association. Currently the series is tied up at 20 games per. The Sergei Burgess Investigators report to me that I'm a favorite by 3'll get you 2. Unofficial rumor around the Rendezvous has Dave with 6-5. I'm betting both ways to make sure. If you haven't witnessed any of these games you're missing something. Maybe it isn't such good ping-pong, but almost everybody has one heck of a good time. Drop down some evening, get a coke, and watch us beat each other.

Best movie of the week promises to be "Billy the Kid's Fighting Pals," at the Village Saturday. Besides starring Bob "Shoot 'em again" Steele, youll be permitted to watch Miss Horse Opera of 1907, Louise Curry, as well as Al "Fuzzy" St. John and Carlton Young. Just think; all that for one thin quarter, and you get a penny back too.

While speaking of movies, we think of "Body and Soul." It's the typical fight movie—you know, kid rises from the slums to become champ; crooks talk him into throwing the crucial fight the girl who loves him will leave him if he loses, and somebody'll get him if he wins. So they waltz around for fourteen rounds with the challenger winning by a walk-away, until finally the hero gets a vision and comes back to knock the other jerk for a loop. Aside from the fact that this is darned near impossible, it's also too much to stand. A fight like that would seem even more crooked than a really thrown one. A marvelous dialogue, James Wong Howe's superb photography, and Lilli Palmer do much, however, to salvage the film from being a total loss.

And switching from indoor sport to another we find basketball filling out our roster tonight. I'm speaking of the Carolina-State game of recent notice Mr. Heft, the referee, was one of the high spots of the game. It was impossibility to understand what he said, but it was sure wonderful to watch, even if he did call a couple o' pretty raw ones.

How many of you read the article in Collier's recently about Coach Case of State, a little thing called "Each Game He Dies," explaining in detail how much he worries during the the course of one of the Wolfpack's track meets. He certainly appeared worried Saturday night when Dickey hit the hardwood after Fred Swartzburg fell on him. About a minute after Dickey went down, Case came leisurely sauntering out, hands in pockets, nonchalantly surveying the crowd. He certainly seemed interested in his star player.

Next week's question: what's your favorite drink?

Write Away

What Type Police Force Do We Have

Dear Sir:

Last week two men on a motorcycle, traveling at a speed of about fifteen miles per hour, were struck by a car. This is no catastrophe in itself. However, when the operator of the car takes the stupid and supercilious attitude, "I didn't see you" and thinks this clears him of all blame, time has come to look again at campus cowboys. A man having a license to operate a motor vehicle should certainly be able to see a motorcycle and two men (living now only because they were traveling slow). Of course, if he was telling the truth, and did not see the machine and two men, the question arises should he be allowed to operate a motor vehicle? On the other hand, it has never been ascertained that he has a driver's license.

After a patrolman was almost dragged one hundreds yards to

(See WRITE AWAY, page, 4)

Coeds Speak Out

All the Men Are Greek Gods

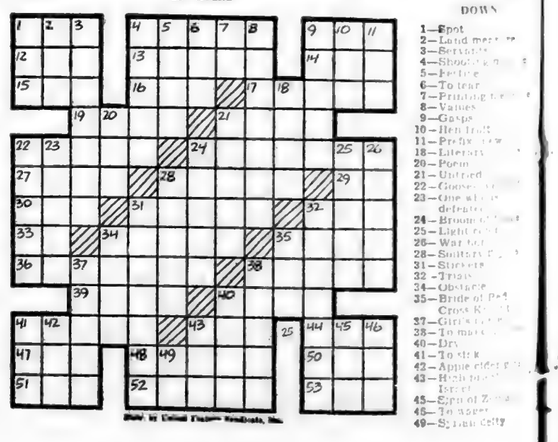
By Elaine Patton

The problem of the Carolina Coeds was not to find a Greek God on the campus but to decide which one of the Greek Gods was the most superior to Freddie Folger, elected by Duke University students for that dubious honor. The coeds were faced with the news that Freddie Folger had been so crowned by the Duke Coeds with a laurel wreath and a spotlight at the annual Pan Hel dance. Naturally, as the coeds faced the problem, the famous "Choo-Choo" automatically rushed in upon their thoughts. But what about Mike Rubish—with the football physique, and Nemo for whom high school-ites still swoon. . ."But who," someone asked, "thinks Greek Gods are limited to the field of athletic herds—have you seen Chuck Morrell with the curly blond hair, and what about Bill Cameron with his devil-may-care air and Johnny Moore with all the finesse and cultural background or of Jimmy Ziglar, the perfect gentleman—."

"But if this is to be a publicity stunt how can we expect to pull it without any of the publication people as candidates—now take Joyful Joyner who is the life of every party, Gene Blake who, unable to spare so many fraternity pins finds safety pins a fair substitute with which to "pin" fair coeds, and Bill Buchan who not only has the most delightful personality but is one of the best writers."

"That's only the beginning" groaned the miserable coeds "every time we cross the campus we see hundreds of men—them Greek Gods—some of whom we don't even know."

In desperation the coeds pulled their hair and stomped their fraternity pins. It is hopeless they decided. There is only one alternative so the coeds decided to take a stand and let it be known that all of our men are Greek Gods—hundreds of them and we cannot therefore crown one with the honor which belongs to all Carolina Gentleman. We are glad too, to know, that the poor Duke girls have a Greek God on the campus.



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Female horse
6—Come to terms
9—Enclosure
12—Native metal
13—Profits
14—To mature
15—A number
16—Matterhorn
17—Dance
19—Jot
21—Man (coll.)
22—Sword
24—Struggles with 27—Part in play
28—Appears
29—Pronoun
30—Fool
31—Postures
32—Unit
33—Compass point
34—Drawing room
35—To stimulate
36—Space over door
38—Finished
39—Guns (slang)
40—Wings
41—Slight burn
43—Age
44—Priest's robe
47—Fruit drink
48—Rekindled
50—Confederate general
51—Billy talk
52—To skid
53—Drunk

DOWN

1—Spot
2—Land measure
3—Senseless
4—Shoot[illegible]
5—Fertile
6—To tear
7—Printing [illegible]
8—Values
9—Gasps
10—Hen fruit
11—Profit [illegible]
18—Literary
20—Poem
21—Untried
22—Goose[illegible]
23—One who is defeated
24—Broom[illegible]
25—Light [illegible]
26—War [illegible]
28—Soldiers [illegible]
31—Sincere
32—Train
34—Obstacle
35—Bride of Pe[illegible] Cross K[illegible]
37—Girl's [illegible]
38—To make
40—Dry
41—To stick
42—Apple cider [illegible]
43—High [illegible] Israel
45—Sign of Z[illegible]
46—To wager
49—S[illegible] deity

Dolphins Drown Duke, 61-14; Cagers Outlast 'Cats 52-46

Records Fall as Twining, Relay Freestylers Set New Loop Marks

By Bill Kellam

State College swimming coach Willis Casey, the brother of the local assistant mentor—Ralph, and several of his better aquatic performers journeyed the cold and damp 29 miles from West Raleigh to Bowman Gray pool last night and, after viewing the chlorine-soaked carnage, they probably ended up wishing that they'd stayed home. For, much to the delight of several hundred fans, Carolina's seemingly jet-propelled blue Dolphins showed nothing but prey to Duke's scrappy but outclassed Devilfish as they stomped the Endowmenter tankers 61-14.

In taking their 36th consecutive conference victory and 7th straight of this season, the Dolphins set two Southern conference, five dual meet, one university, and two pool records.

Dick Twining continued his pleasing meetly habit of setting a new loop mark in some event—this time the 220-freestyle, and the veteran freestyle relay quartet of co-captains Jesse Greenbaum and Mike Morrow, Dick Twining, and anchorman Floyd Drew stroked out a new conference record in the 400-relay.

After an easy victory by the Dolphins medley relay trio, which set a new dual meet record, dashing Dick Twining gave the numerous crowd that jammed the poolside stands something to cheer about when he almost lapped the field in the 220 to lower the old mark by one-tenth of a second.

Best For Last

Apparently Jamerson had been saving his best treat for the last for the Pale Blue and White tankers wound up the evenings' festivities by clipping over four seconds off the previous conference record in the 400 freestyle relay. Unofficially, three of the speedy quartet—Morrow, Twining, and Drew, lowered the loop record of 54.5 seconds in the 100 while the other member—Greenbaum—tied it.

The most impressive portion of the meet came earlier in the evening when Norm Sper, the Tar Heel springboard perfectionist, and John Conner, the chunky Duke diving sensation, staged a tight battle for the night's diving honors.

Sper finally topped the yearling ace, with 115.2 points to Conner's 107.3, but the outcome would have been much closer if the Dukester hadn't slipped during an early dive and nearly brained himself on the board.

Ronnie Basescu, the eventual victor, Bob Hutton, and Duke's captain, Bill Adams, stroked out a hard fought 440 in the night's closest finish. Hutton started the

(See TANKERS, page 4)

Distance Races May Be Feature Of Indoor Meet

By Morty Schaap

(This is the fifth in a series of articles analyzing the various events in the Indoor track meet.)

The top attraction in any track meet is the mile and two-mile events and this should be the case in the Sixth Annual Southern Invitation track meet in Woollen gym on Saturday night.

The record in the mile was set by Browning Ross, now of Villanova, in 1946 when he was timed in 4:24.4. The two-mile record holder is Jack Milne who flashed across the finish last year in 9:45.5. Both these marks may go by the boards. This is especially true of the two-mile.

Battle Looms

In the mile run Bob Palmer of Maryland and Milne will probably battle it out Palmer won the Maryland mile last week in 4:25.4 and Milne was clocked in 4:14.5 in the Evening Star mile in Washington early in January. Other men who can better 4:25 include George Troxel of Virginia, Julian MacKenzie and Sam Magill of Carolina, Jim Oberholtzer and Dick Hall of Navy, Forrest Ross, brother of the record holder, from Tennessee and Carolina's Jimmy Miller if he is able to run.

In the two-mile most of these boys will make an appearance again or some of them will forego the shorter distance to concentrate on the 20-lap race. Other men who cannot be counted out of the distance picture are Lou Schneider and Jim Bruce of Tennessee, Jim Umbarger and Pete White of Maryland, Herb Middleton of VPI, Bill Liddel of VMI, Dave Dubow of State, Ollie Kendrick of Duke and Dick Raab of Navy.

Edge of Seats

All in all these two events should be top notchers and are always guaranteed to keep fans on the edge of their seats.

Last year in the mile run Alvin Smith running for Carolina came up with a terrific kick in the last 220-yards to nose out Oberholtzer of Navy and John Corridan of Georgia Tech.

Sigma Chi, Blackballs Take Mural Cage Titles; Boxing Finals Today

Two rip-snorting championship contests rang down the curtain on the 1948 intramural basketball tournament. In the fraternity division, Sigma Chi's rugged No. 1 quintet came from behind on the main court in Woollen gym to top the previously undefeated Beta No. 1 five, 33-29. Later in the evening, the skyscraping Blackballs ran off with the dormitory title by handing the Grads a 42-30 shellacking.

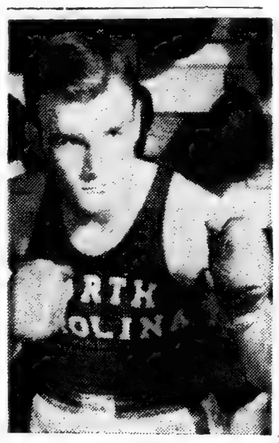
In the frat title tilt, the Sigma Chis trailed throughout most of the contest but pulled ahead in the last few minutes of the game to edge the Beta quint. The victors' bobbing offensive was paced by a trio of Roberts—namely MacDonald with 10 points, Brannon with eight, and Langley with seven counters. Gridder Ken Powell with 11 and Paul Von Bramer with eight points paced the losers.

Blackballs Triumph

The taller Blackballs, paced by Art Weiner and Bob Warren, had a comparatively easy time downing the Grads by a 12 point margin. Weiner played a major role in the winners' domination of both backboards and also tossed in 13 points. Warren hit for 11. Lanky Bill Edmondson's 16 markers paced the vanquished while Kenny Black played a nice floor game and also looped in 6 points.

SOCCER RESULTS

4 Chi Psi	St. Anthony 3 (overtime)
3 Phi Delt 3	TEP 2 2
5 Sigma Chi 1	TEP 1 1
2 Zeta 1	Sig Chi 2 0
3 Phi Gam 3	Chi Phi 1 2
10 ATO 2	TEP 3 1
3 Sig Nu 2	Lamb Chi 1 0
4 Lewis	Emerson 1
4 Aycock	Graham 2



Soccer Schedule

4:00—Field 1: Beta 3 vs. Phi Delt 2; Field 2: Aycock vs. Everett; Field 3: Sig Chi 1 vs. Phi Kap Sig; Field 4: DKE 1 vs. Phi Delt 3; Field 5: ATO 2 vs. Phi Gam 1.

4:40—Field 1: Phi Delt 1 vs. Zeta 1; Field 2: Phi Gam 3 vs. Sig Nu 2; Field 3: Lamb Chi 2 vs. Sig Nu 1; Field 4: Steele vs. Law School.

Ticket Notice

Vernon Crook of the business office of the Athletic association announced that there will still be some tickets left for the games and that students may obtain them by paying seventy-five cents and surrendering coupon 21. General admission is $1.50.

ED McGEE
. . . Potent Puncher

McGee Wins Title In Carolina AAU

Ed McGee, the boxer without a boxing team, hung up his fourth championship of the year in the finals of the Carolinas Golden Gloves at Charlotte which ended last Monday night.

McGee, who walked off with the light-heavyweight crown, also captured the coveted Tresco Johnson sportmanship trophy. By winning a title in this regional meet, he becomes eligible for a trip to New York to meet other Eastern regional champs in Madison Square Garden on March 1-3.

Hard-punching Paul Mollitt of the Second Marine division was the third victim of the tourney for the ex-paratrooper star from Hamlet.

He pounded out a 1:15 kayo over Walter Lisle of Greenville, S. C. and then easily decisioned William Godfrey also of Greenville. It was his display of sportmanship in this fight when it was very evident that he could have applied the finishing blow at any time that earned the special award for the Tar Heel mittman.

These two awards brought his total to eight for the season. He racked up both his weight championship and another sportsmanship award in the Durham tournament. Last week he copped the Outstanding Boxer and the Most Popular Boxer awards in scoring two kayos to gain the light-heavyweight title in the Raleigh tournament. He won another title in Dunn by forfeit.

Climaxing two weeks of Intramural boxing activity, championship bouts in all weight classes of both the fraternity and dormitory divisions are scheduled for this afternoon starting at four o'clock in the ring on the main floor of Woollen gym.

One of the best crowd-pleasers thus far in the intramural program, the boxing tourney has continued to draw large crowds of blood-thirsty spectators.

As is customary, bleachers have been set up to accommodate the students interested in the manly art of self-defense and Mural director Walter Rabb invites the student body to attend the championship tilts.

15 Titles Decided

In all, 15 individual titles will be decided; eight in the fraternity division and seven in the smaller dormitory section. Some of the best fights of the current season are expected as the contenders slug it out for top honors.

For some of the top boxing entertainment on the campus this year the mural program, even better than last year, according to Coach Rabb, will present a rugged, exciting show.

Today's Murals

BOXING FINALS

Dormitory

4:00 R. Benson (Town) vs. T. Hearn (Emerson) 135; 4:06 D. Snow (Whitehead) vs. J. McCauley (Town) 155; 4:18 W. Kirk (Mangum) vs. F. Cahoon (Lewis) 175; 4:24 J. Ross (Emerson) vs. R. Hansen (Emerson) HW; 4:30 C. DiChiara (Emerson) vs. J. Stewart (Seiler Five) 145.

Fraternity

4:36 M. Wilson (Zeta) vs. G. Berger (TEP) 120; 4:42 T. Gregory (Zeta) vs. R. Sheeley (Phi Delt) 127; 4:48 G. Boren (Zeta) vs. J. Wilkins (Phi Delt) 135; 4:54 S. Murischion (SAE) vs. R. Kirby (KA) 145; 5:00 D. Fleming (Phi Gam) vs. H. Bristol (Kap Sig) 155; 5:06 C. Kipp (Sig Chi) vs. S. Langley (Sig Chi) 165; 5:12 S Folger (Kap Sig) vs. T. Stratford (Phi Gam) 175; 5:18 N. Galinkin (TEP) vs. H. Weinstein (TEP) HW.

REHDER'S
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

Battery Candidates Reuested to Report To Bunn Hearn Today

The first official call for baseball candidates was issued by Coach Bunn Hearn yesterday with the request for all pitchers and catchers to report to the Tin Can in gym clothes this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Drills for batterymen will continue indoors until the weather permits outdoor sessions, the veteran mentor indicated. Candidates for the other positions will be called out whenever the outdoor practice finally does get under way.

The schedule for this year's club is still being prepared and will probably be released in another week or 10 days. As for the field, Coach Hearn declared, "We expect Emerson to be all fixed up long before our first game. But that depends on the weather too."

Sixteen lettermen are among those slated to report for 1948 duty. Included on the list are four batterymen, eight infielders, and four outfielders.

Trackmen Take Last Heavy Drills Before Big Games Saturday

Coach Dale Ranson sent the Carolina runners through their last heavy workout yesterday before the Indoor games here Saturday. Time trials were held in the hurdles and the sprints and the squad will taper off to be in top shape for the carnival.

Jimmy Miller, one of Carolina's top distance runners is listed as a doubtful starter in the meet because of a severe sinus condition. Bob Black, freshman middle distance runner, is also down with a heavy cold, but is is expected that he will be ready.

With nineteen teams entered in the college division the Tar Heels will have a rough row to hoe before they are able to retain the team title they annexed last year. Navy and Maryland, both coming South with full squads, will prove to be the tough opposition. Maryland is favored to cop the team laurels on the basis of their fine showing in the College Park meet last weekend.

Whid Powell's
COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM
GRILLED TARHELLIAS
CAROLINAS—25c
hamburger, lettuce and tomato
Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

Paxton, Thorne Local Headliners In Impressive Win; Carson Gets 13

By Dick Jenrette and Larry Fox

Charlotte, Feb. 24—North Carolina's basketball team which had been having trouble of late in finding itself, stumbled upon its old winning form for the first 28 minutes of the ball game here tonight and then outlasted a fighting Davidson college five to exact a 52-46 victory.

It was the Tar Heels' 11th conference win of the season and the Chapel Hill lads had the scoring punch in the early parts of the contest that had brought them ten straight wins before their current three game loop losing streak got underway.

Big Bob Paxton and little Taylor Thorne were the big guns for the victors not only by virtue of the scoring column, but by the splendid job they turned in on the backboards which they coupled with a brilliant floor game.

Paxton High

Paxton also was the fair-haired boy in the scoring department, tallying six field goals and four foul tosses for a 16 point total. That was the high for both teams.

The estimated crowd of some 2,800 on lookers saw Davidson take an early lead in the game on a free throw by Cheek which Nearman promptly matched. Cheek then switched to the field goal outlook to put the Wildcats out in front again, a deficit that King Cole overcame immediately thereafter. Paxton and Cobb next traded field goals to keep the books at the balanced point, but after four minutes of play, Mr. Rebound drove in and under for two points and the Tar Heels were never again headed.

Davidson did succeed in tying the score up once more after 11 minutes of play, but the Scottmen were able to cope with this situation and rallied to push to a 23-16 lead at the 15-minute mark.

The home team hit three straight field goals at this point, but Thorne and Paxton hit for two one handers and the visitors left the court leading 27-22.

Second Half

In the second half the game seesawed back and forth in the first five minutes with the Tar Heels striding forward to a 37-28 lead. At this point they really began to rool though, displaying some of their finest play of the season with a speedy whole court attack that had shades of potent State College.

Carson dribbled the length of the floor for one basket and then took a long pass to score another. Paxton joined the big parade by driving in for two point to make the count 43-28 after six minutes. Here, Whit Cobb broke the magic spell with a layup score, but Nearman started the machine back up with two free shots and Carson added a follow-up for a 49-30 lead at the eight minute mark.

At this point the Tar Heel attack deteriorated suddenly, and for the rest of the ball game the Carolina team was forced to resort to holding action as Davidson struck back with Wildcat fury. The locals scored 16 points

(See PHANTOMS, page 4)

Taming the Cats!

Carolina (52)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Paxton, f	6	4	2	16	1
Carson, f	6	1	3	13	0
Scholbe	1	1	1	3	0
Nearman, c	2	3	1	7	1
Dillon	1	1	1	3	0
Cole, g	4	0	1	8	0
Nyimicz	0	0	0	0	0
Thorne, g	1	0	2	2	0
Totals	21	10	11	52	2
Davidson (46)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Cobb, f	5	1	2	11	0
Williams, f	4	1	3	9	0
Cheek, c	2	2	4	6	1
Ashmore, g	5	2	0	12	0
Iverson	1	0	1	2	1
Maner, g	0	2	0	2	0
Poole	2	0	0	4	0
Totals	19	8	10	46	2

Officials: Williams and Hussy
Halftime score: Carolina 27, Davidson 22

QUALITY FURNISHINGS
at
E. A. Brown Furniture Co.
Next to City Hall
Phone 6586

DOES YOUR RADIO SOUND GOOD?
—see—
D. W. ANDERSON
—at—
LLOYD ELECTRIC COMPANY
Carrboro, N. C.
—for—
Fine Radio Repairing

Town Girls Top Chi O For Cage Title

The Town team copped the coed basketball championship last night by coming from behind in the final period to edge out the fast-breaking Chi Omega sextet, 29-26.

Chi Omega, with the end of the end of the four year Pi Phi reign of cage supremacy in view, was unable to maintain their two-point half-time lead largely dut to the fact that they missed 15 charity shots.

With the half-time score standing at 14-16, the Town girls, paced by hot shots Nancy Allen, Carolyn Guthrie, and Letsy Pearson grabbed the lead and stayed ahead by garnering 15 points, while holding the Chi O's down to ten.

High scorer for the evening was Chi O's K. D. Durham, who basketed 11 points. She was closely followed by Town girl Nancy Allen, with ten and teammate Barbara Ann Covington with nine markers.

THE SHACK
120 W. Rosemary
"Just a Whisper Off Franklin St."
Serving:
BEER
SANDWICHES
EGGS — PICKLES
Walk a Block and Save a Dime

Quick Service
DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham

"EXCAPE FROM YESTERDAY"
with
Jean Gabin–Annabella
in French-English Titles
VILLAGE TODAY

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

1942 NEW MOON HOUSE TRAILER—22 feet. Sleeps four. 211 Swain Hall, Trailer Court. (1-1802-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1940 DODGE 4-DOOR SEDAN. HAS new motor. Caston Motor Co., Phone F-3891. (ch 1x1)

1948 FOUR DOOR FORD, 500 MILES. Radio and heater. Steve Parrott, phone 9021. (1-1809-1)

LOST 12

LIBERAL REWARD FOR FINDER OF diamond lost from ring Saturday afternoon. Call 9896. (1-C1806-1)

SATURDAY NITE IN CAROLINA Theater, Franklin Street or upper quad area. Jules Jurgensen, pink gold wrist watch, brown leather strap. Call L. Jenkins, 411 Manley. Reward. (1-1805-1)

RIDES WANTED 18

AUTOMOBILE RIDE TO WASHINGton, D. C., wanted for this Friday; as early after noon time as possible; share expenses, driving. Larry Kent, telephone F-3371 afternoon. (1-2000-1)

WANTED TO RENT 24B

APARTMENT FOR STUDENT AND wife to occupy around September 15 Reply Box 111 Everett. (1-1804-1)

DOUBLE ROOM OR SMALL APARTment for married couple. Phone Sam Whitehall, DTH Sports office, phone F-3371, or address letter P.O. Drawer 1080. (1-2000-1)

APARTMENT FOR STUDENT AND wife to occupy about June 10, 1948. Write Box 106 Everett Dorm. (1-1803-1)

Record Success Story!

RCA Victor's rising star of the keyboard —Larry Green— scores another hit . . . "GONNA GET A GIRL"

Larry Green

CAMEL is the cigarette for me!

WITHIN the past few months, Larry Green has climbed right up with the top bands of the land! If you ask Larry how he did it, he'll light up a Camel and say: "Experience is the best teacher in the band business – and in cigarettes. I know from experience that sweet music suits my band, just as I learned from experience that Camels suit my 'T-Zone' to a 'T'!"

Try Camels! Discover for yourself why, with smokers who have tried and compared, Camels are the "choice of experience"!

And here's another great record—

More people are smoking CAMELS than ever before!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Committee Will Select Advisers

Coeds Will Be Named As Advisors to Next Year Women Students

A special committee to choose women's student advisers for 1948-49 will meet tomorrow afternoon, Helen Bouldin, chairman of orientation for women, announced yesterday. Lists of highly recommended coeds have been submitted to this selection committee by dormitory hostesses, assistant hostesses, and last year's student advisers.

In explaining what characteristics these girls, who will advise new coeds at Chapel Hill next year on the many phases of University life, will be judged by in the committee's choices, Miss Bouldin enumerated: personality, reliability, and an understanding of Carolina life and traditions."

Besides Miss Bouldin, the other members of the committee are Jo Benton, chairman of the 1947 advisers; Patricia Lane, chairman of Women's Orientation for 1947; Emily Von Borries, vice-president of the YWCA; Joan Butler, junior representative from the Coed Senate; Miss Kathryn Cook, associate director of the Placement Bureau; Mrs. Betty Rose Dowden, director of the YWCA; Miss Audrey Branch, personnel adviser to women; and Mrs. Berlette C. Swain, assistant adviser.

Lodge To Address Philosophy Club

Professor R. C. Lodge, Professor Emeritus of logic and the history of philosophy, University of Manitoba, Canada, will speak to the Philosophy club at its meeting tomorrow night, from 8 until 10 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge 3 of Graham Memorial. The subject of his lecture will be "Balanced Philosophy."

Presently visiting Professor of Philosophy here, Professor Lodge is directing a seminar in ethics and teaching philosophy 122, a course in the philosophies of Plato and Aristotle.

A recognized authority on the philosophy of Plato, Professor Lodge's numerous works are well known in the fields of ethics and philosophy of education. Of special interest to those interested in philosophy are his most widely publicized works: "Plato's Theory of Education." "Plato's Theory of Ethics" and "Philosophy of Education."

-Write Away-

(Continued from page 2)

the scene of the accident, he tried to smooth it over as though he was the one who had to pay the damage. He made no attempt to see either operator's permit to drive. He wanted to forget about it and keep down the court record. In cities that have a police FORCE, it is up to the citizens to keep affairs of this nature from the courts.

The patrolman should have given both operators tickets for reckless driving and let the judge make the decisions as to who was at fault. The ordinary patrolman is not qualified to act as a judge. It is very evident when there is an accident that some one has violated some law.

I would like to know if there isn't some way these two gripes can be remedied. Perhaps a little more instruction in handling accidents will improve the efficiency of the Police force. Along the same line, a more efficient Police force may stop some of these campus cowboys from "not seeing," or, perhaps more appropriate, trying to beat the other guy to a turn or force him to stop.

Gilbert L. McGill

Campus Calendar

3:00 p. m.—Coalition club, Grail room.
4:00 p. m.—Dancing class, Roland Parker lounge.
4:00 p. m. Statistics Seminar, 319 Phillips hall, Speaker: D. N. Nanda, "The Application of Roots of a Determinantal Equation."
4:30 p. m.—Legislature SP caucus, Roland Parker lounge.
5:00 p. m.—Chi Delta Phi, Grail room.
6:30 p. m.—Recorded dinner music, main lounge of Graham Memorial.
7:00 p. m.—Carolina-Fayetteville club, Horace Williams lounge.
7:00 p. m.—CICA meeting, Y building
7:30 p. m.—Chess club, main lounge of Graham Memorial.
7:30 p. m.—Pi Kappa Phi smoker, Roland Parker lounge.
7:30 p. m.—Carolina Conservatives, Roland Parker No. 3.
7:30 p. m.—Southern Conference for Human Welfare, Grail room.
8:00 p. m.—Physics Colloquium. "Some Measurements on the Electrical Character of Thunderstorms." by Mr. James Parker, 250 Phillips hall.
8:30 p. m.—"Thirty-Three by Air," WHHT, WRAL.
9:00 p. m.—Di Senate, Di hall, New West.

Forensic Squad Leaves Today For National Debate Tourney

Four students will leave by plane for New Orleans today to represent the University at the National Centennial forensic championships to be held at Tulane university, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

It will be the first time Carolina has been represented in these contests which will draw students from all section of the country and South America.

Subject of the debates in New Orleans will be "Resolved. That a world federal government should be established."

Carolina debaters will be Charlie Long, Thomasville; Merle Stevens, Forest City, Dick Mottsman, Hendersonville, and Herbert Mitchell, Asheville.

The representatives were selected after making what Debate Council President Earl Fitzgerald, of Ruffin, called "an excellent showing against topflight competition" in a series of preliminary tryouts.

Other Speakers

Also making the trip will be two orators, Thomas Shelton, Atlanta, Ga., and James Spence, Lillington, who will compete in the oratorical contest; and two extemporaneous speakers, Blanton Miller, Boone, and Richard Bowen, Athens, Ga., who will participate in the contest for five-minute talks with only 30 seconds preparation.

Debate Council President Fitzgerald will accompany the group as manager.

$3,000 SOIL INVESTMENT BRINGS $75,000 RETURN

Pittsburgh —(UP)— Gray-haired Jimmy Lynch believes the reason he's worth $75,000 today is because he was flat broke 10 years ago.

If he hadn't been penniless, Lynch claims, he never would have borrowed money and bought 65 acres of bottom land, from which he hoped to make a few dollars by selling the top soil to property owners. Underneath the top soil Lynch discovered one of the best seams of coal for strip mining in Western Pennsylvania.

Lynch bought the top soil land for $3,000. Engineers found the hidden vein held 600,000 to 1,000,000 tons of coal, and estimated the mine could be worked for four years, with a $75,000 return to Lynch.

-Tankers-

(Continued from page 3)

aquatic marathon like a sprinter and surprisingly maintained the fast pace for most of the race but it was Basescu's driving finish that nosed out Adams, which won the event. Hutton finished a fairly close third.

300-yard Medley Relay—1 North Carolina (Thomas, Breeden, Morrow). Time: 3:04.2.

220-free style—1 Twining (UNC); 2. Pell (UNC); 3. Burger (D) Time: 2:17.2. New Conference record.

50 free style—1 Drew (UNC); 2. Greenbaum (UNC); 3 Bronson (D). Time: 24:5.

Diving—1 Sper (UNC); 2. Connor (D); 3. Erle. (115.2 points).

100 free style—1 Osborne (UNC); 2. Pritchard (UNC); 3. Bronson (D). Time: 55.1.

150-yard backstroke—1 Bippart (UNC); 2. Andrews (D); 3 Burrell (D). Time: 1:44.7.

200 breaststroke—1. Ousley (UNC); 2. Cook (UNC); 3. Coughlin (D). Time: 2:31.3.

440 freestyle—1 Basescu (UNC); 2 Adams (D) 3. Hutton (UNC). Time: 5:17.5.

400-yard relay—1. North Carolina (Greenbaum, Morrow, Drew, Twining). Time 3:35.8 (New Conference record.)

-Phantoms-

(Continued from page 3)

in the closing 12 minutes to three for the Tar Heels with the winners finally being saved by the bell.

Fast Game

The game was a fast played one with a minimum of fouls being called. The free throw shooting by both teams was especially good as the Tar Heels hit eight for ten while Davidson was dropping ten for 12.

Coach Tom Scott said following the game that it was the best he had seen his team play in a long time. The Tar Heels returned home after the game and will begin preparations tomorrow for their return match with Duke Saturday in Durham.

Local Fraternity Will Distribute Convocation Talk

James Nance, president of the local chapter of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, announced yesterday that the printing of Dr. Hardin Craig's 154th University day convocation address has been completed, and that the copies will be mailed as early as possible.

The fraternity voted three weeks ago to sponsor the publication and distribution of the address, "Crisis and Responsibility," which was delivered by Dr. Craig last October 10. Nance said that the fraternity decided to sponsor the publication for three reasons: "to identify itself with the basic doctrine of Americanism as expounded by Dr. Craig, to manifest to the general public that there is a healthy respect for basic democratic philosophy at the University and that Chapel Hill is not the nest of radicalism as is generally believed, and to underwrite something which will be of benefit to all who read it."

Jim Reed, a member of the fraternity who is employed by a local printshop, took charge of the printing of the address. Jack Burney and McNeer Dillon, Jr., were named as a committee to arrange for the distribution of the copies of the address.

Lady Jailbreaker Is Given Pardon To Wed Veteran

Columbus, —(UP)— Playing Cupid is not exactly in line with the regular duties of a sheriff. In Columbus, Georgia, Sheriff E. F. Howell has tried it and he likes it.

Howell has released pretty 18-year-old Dorothy Collins from his jail on one condition that she get married right away to her war-veteran sweetheart, Glenn Hurtson of Columbus.

Miss Collins slipped out of the Clay Mount Training school for girls near Woodshaven, Del. earlier this week with Dorothy Simpson, another girl from the institution.

The sheriff listened sympathetically to the story after picking up the girls on request of training school officials.

Howell called in Hurtson for a fatherly conference and gave the happy couple his blessings. Then he telephoned the Delaware school, and it has sent a matron for the other girl. Dorothy says that she came along to make certain the bride-to-be got to her destination without harm.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

WRITTEN AND FILMED FROM LIFE!

JAMES STEWART
Call NORTHSIDE 777
RICHARD CONTE
LEE J. COBB
HELEN WALKER
Directed by HENRY HATHAWAY
Produced by OTTO LANG
20th CENTURY-FOX
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

A SOLID FOUNDATION FOR CAMPUS WEAR

A Roblee loafer for leisure moments off or on campus

895 up

White Buckskin Shoes
by Roblee

LACOCK'S SHOE STORE

FEATURING:
THE NEW ROYAL PORTABLE TYPEWRITER
Ab's Intimate Bookshop

LI'L ABNER By AL CAPP

The way to a man's heart—a meal—at HARRY'S

U.S. Probes Steel; Wallace Offers Foreign Policy

SITTING in a room in Bellvue Hospital, New York City, where he is undergoing a checkup is Mayor William O'Dwyer. He will take a complete 7-day examination and will then go to California for a vacation when he leaves the hospital. His Honor was ordered to take a rest after it was discovered he had a heart condition. (International)

By Joan Marble
United Press Radio Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 24 — Uncle Sam has launched a full-dress investigation into last week's boost in steel prices.

President Truman ordered the inquiry today, while cruising the Caribbean aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburgh.

Three separate government outfits have swung into action. Actually the F. B. I. and Justice Department were already at work, trying to find out if there was any conspiracy among steel men to boost prices $5 a ton—a conspiracy which might violate the anti-trust laws.

Question Executives

Attorney General Tom Clark reveals that FBI agents questioned executives of 16 leading steel companies in their offices this morning. Their disclosures will be turned over to the Anti-trust division of the Justice Department.

Other agencies which will study the price rise are the Commerce Department and the President's council of economic advisers. Both will look into the effects of the steel increase on the cost of living.

Newsmen aboard the Williamsburg were told the President is deeply concerned about the hike in steel. Government economists point out that the $5 increase on semi-finished steel products will push up the prices of many cost-of-living items, and may also touch off another round of wage increase demands.

Wallace on Policy

The most famous opponent of the government's foreign policy went up to Capitol Hill today—to offer brand new foreign policy.

Henry Wallace told the House Foreign Affairs committee the United States should develop an entirely new approach toward Russia.

The first thing the country should do, he said, is elect a new president — preferably Henry Wallace. This new president would sit down with Russian Premier Stalin and work out an understanding for world peace.

Wallace said he's positive both the Russian system and the American system can exist together in the same world. He's sure the Russians would become more friendly to us, if we convince them we have no imperialist plans.

"Blueprint for War"

Wallace called the Marshall plan "a "blueprint for another war." He said it would not lead to the recovery of Europe, but would just allow Wall Street to take over in Western Europe.

Wallace seemed in unusually good humor today when he appeared before the Foreign Affairs committee.

He strode into the jam-packed hearing room—his hair mussed and his tie askew. Every seat was full. There were crowds standing around the sides of the chamber.

It's customary when men as newsworthy as Wallace testify, for the newsreel and radio men to turn out in force. But today the committee banned all newsreel cameras, on the ground that the cameras and the klieg lights create too much confusion.

A BATCH of letters covers the desk of Sen. Edward M. Rowe, Cambridge, Mass., expressing opposition to the Nolen-Mills bill which calls for stray cats and dogs to be turned over for vivisection if they are not claimed in six days. Rowe, chairman of the Joint Legislature Committee on Legal Affairs, said the volume of mail was the greatest ever received on a single bill in his state. (International)

-Quarterly-

(Continued from page 1)

by Marshall, but they did select essential committee chairmen from those present.

The committees are: Jonathan Marshall, chairman, executive committee; Fred Wright, vice-chairman; Priscilla Moore, secretary; Sally Woodhull, finance committee; Julia Ross, production and cost and perspectus committee; and Harry Snowden, organizational and administrative committee.

Members of the committees and committee meetings are to be held within the next few days, it was announced, and a meeting of all interested persons will be called in the immediate future.

Recent studies by dairy scientists proves that ice cream is more palatable and nourishing if consumed while fresh. Our ice cream is made fresh daily from locally produced milk and cream.

Call for DAIRYLAND ICE CREAM for the best in a year-round, health building dessert.

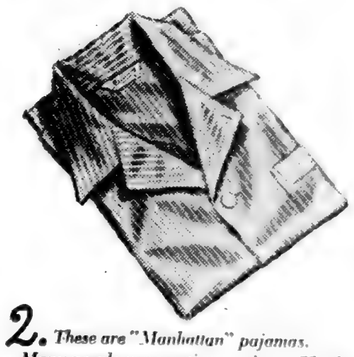
FARMER'S DAIRY COOPERATIVE, Inc.

the wonderfully effective

Elmo special formula cream

big $2 jar... only $1 plus tax

This half-price offer is intended to acquaint more ladies with the amazing effectiveness of Elmo Special Formula Cream. Helps soften and smooth away lines and wrinkles like magic, especially on the throat and under-chin. Get a number of jars while you can get them at this amazingly low price!



SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

Elmo SALES CORPORATION • PHILA. PA.

Two things every college man should know!

1. This is a poet. Is naturally granted poetic license. But not in passing exams, where it would help. Would have fared better in 18th century. Today horrible fate awaits as radio jingle writer.

2. These are "Manhattan" pajamas. Many people wax poetic over them. They're tailored for real bedtime comfort . . . plenty of arm and leg room to eliminate binding and creeping. See the exclusive "Manhattan" patterns today.

CAMPUS FAVORITE—
Manhattan
THE MANHATTAN SHIRT COMPANY
Copr. 1948, The Manhattan Shirt Co.

Librarian (Periodical Dept)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Cloudy and warmer with scattered rain or drizzle.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Champagne
Rayburn Protests Revolt
Traffic In The Village

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 110

Jim Godwin Nominated Vice President By Campus Party

Tom Kerr Is Endorsed By Student Party For Tarnation Editorship

Editorial Aide Seeks Humor Mag On Campus Lines

By Donald MacDonald

Tom Kerr, present assistant editor of referendum happy Tarnation, was announced yesterday as Student party candidate for the position of next year's humor mag editor.

Kerr (rhymes with Tar) was unofficial editor of the latest issue of the victorious humor magazine which hit the campus shortly before last week's referendum. According to Editor Tookie Hodgson, who was confined to the infirmary because of an automobile accident, it was Kerr who handled the last minute lay-out and organization which brought the magazine out on time.

Top-Notch Humor Mag

The candidate's name will appear on the campus-wide ballots in the April elections. "If elected," Kerr said yesterday, "I will continue the present policy of Tarnation, at the same time seeking to discover the general campus ideas of college humor. When this is done, the campus will be given a really top-notch humor magazine."

The SP nominee is a freshman who hails from Pasadena, California. His experiences in the publications field began when he was elected editor of his school newspaper for both his junior and senior years in high school. He later worked for six months on the staff of a national magazine in New York city.

Kerr's nomination came at the regular Monday night session of the Student party in Graham Memorial.

Major Undecided

The rising sophomore is undecided about his major course of study, although his interests lie in publications. He will probably seek a degree in either English or journalism.

As yet, no other candidate has announced for the magazine editorship.

Society Editor Jane Mears Is Elected By Senate to Edit Coed's Handbook

Jane Mears, Daily Tar Heel society editor, was elected by an overwhelming majority of the Coed Senate to the position of editor for Woman's Handbook at the Senate meeting Tuesday night.

Miss Mears, who was highly recommended by DTH Managing Editor Ed Joyner for the position, has done desk work on the Daily Tar Heel for two years and is the DTH's first society editor. Previous to her entrance to Carolina she was assistant editor of the "Chaser," newspaper at Chevy Chase junior college, in Chevy Chase, Maryland.

Upon notification of her election to the position Jane said, "Nothing makes me happier than to receive this honor and I will direct my talents and experience toward doing something concrete for those who will soon share our life at Carolina."

Following the election, the Senate passed a bill abolishing the point system which has limited the number of activities in which a coed might participate. It was pointed out that the point system might prevent the most qualified candidate from holding the most appropriate office and lessens the interest of coeds in student government.

The floor was opened for discussion of the two bills being considered by Legislature, the first of which is to place supreme power in the hands of Legislature by giving it power to revise all Senate action except social rules while the second bill is to do away with the Senate altogether. It was pointed out that the Senate is the one organizational force which keeps the coeds together and the Legislature is not sufficiently representative of all the women students. Therefore, all coeds are urged to attend the Legislature meeting tonight.

A bill stating that coeds must have approval of Dean Carmichael's office before visiting fraternity houses or attending fraternity parties is to be considered at the next Senate meeting, according to a statement made by Barbara Cashion at the close of the meeting.

WET DOG

Carmichael Receives Member-at-Large Nomination from University Party

Billy Carmichael III, Sally Woodhull, Dick Gordon and John Stump are the University party candidates for the Publications board, party officials announced yesterday.

Carmichael, junior member of the board, will seek the post as member-at-large.

Besides being co-sports editor of the DTH, Carmichael is co-sports editor of the Yack and feature writer for the Carolina Magazine. He is a member of the Student Entertainment committee and has served on the GM Board of Directors.

A rising Senior from Chapel Hill, Carmichael is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. He was president of Sound and Fury last year and has played Jayvee basketball.

Sally Woodhull from Allentown, Pa., and Dick Gordon from Merion Station, Pa., will seek the two Senior positions on the board.

Woodhull is a transfer from Woman's College where she was make-up and news editor of the Carolinian. She was also a member of the Square Circle, honorary math society.

Since entering Carolina, she has been a reporter for the DTH, advertising layout manager for the Carolina Magazine, chairman of the YWCA Publicity committee, a member of the "Y" cabinet, and the "Y" Junior council. She is a member of Chi Delta Phi honorary Literary society and is secretary of the Pi Beta Phi pledge class.

Dick Gordon is present business manager of the Yack. He served as advertising manager for the Yack last year and has been a member of the Student Legislature.

A member of Delta Psi, Gordon assisted in drawing up the Interfraternity council coed agreement. He was also a member of the Freshman Orientation committee.

John Stump, aspirant for the junior post on the Publications board, is a reporter and night editor for the DTH.

He entered Carolina last fall and has served on the Elections board and the Infraternity council and is a member of the Yack staff. Last summer he was a member of the Clarksburg Exponent business staff.

Candidate Was In Legislature, On Men's Council

By John Stump

Jim Godwin, rising senior from Tillman, South Carolina, has been nominated for vice-president of the student body by the Campus party.

The third man to declare for the vice-presidency, Godwin goes into the campaign with service in each of the three branches of student government.

Following his transfer from State college to go into the Marine program here, he spent three years in the service. He returned to the campus in 1946.

At State, Godwin held the position of secretary of the student body. Previous to that, he served as vice-president of the sophomore class, secretary of forestry and as a member of the student council.

Since coming to Carolina, Godwin has been on the Men's Honor council, and has served in the Student Legislature. He earned his varsity football letter here at the University and is vice-president of the Monogram club.

When informed of Godwin's nomination, Student body president Tom Eller commented "There can be no doubt of his qualification for the office." A member of Phi Delta Theta, Godwin's accomplishments have caused him to be included in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Godwin promised yesterday that "If elected, I shall devote an honest effort to do my best to fill the requirements of the office."

Godwin's nomination came at a meetin gof the party held Tuesday evening. It was by acclamation.

The meeting was addressed by ex-party chairman Jess Dedmond, who is running for president of the student body with a joint CP-UP nomination. Dedmond reported on the recommendations coming out of the discussions on student affairs held at the Natural Bridge Y conference last week.

Dedmond urged the group to study carefully the suggestions of the conference and pointed out that it will be the duty of the political parties to take a stand on many of the findings which were made.

Committee Passes Anti-Lynching Bill

Washington, Feb. 25 —(UP)— A Republican dominated House committee has approved a strong anti-lynching bill, a measure President Truman called for in his famous Civil Rights message.

The bill, as approved by the committee, sets up Federal penalties for lynch mobs and for local officials who fail to stop them. GOP leaders expect the measure to be approved by a full committee tomorrow and it may reach the House floor in record time.

With Republican support as well as pressure from the White House, Southern Democrats feel that they can't stop it in the House and they realize that even a Senate filibuster will be tough.

Meanwhile, House Democrats have released a list of 74 members who say that the President is threatening to split the party with his Civil Rights proposals.

Republicans are giving their all-out support as it fulfills one of their 1944 election pledges. In addition, it angers the Southern Democrats and widens the gulf between President Truman and the solid South.

House To Accept Johnson's Award

Charlotte, Feb. 25 —(UP— Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall is scheduled to arrive in Charlotte tomorrow to speak at a Brotherhood Week meeting.

At the meeting, the Carolina Israelite publication will formally name Ambassador Herschel V. Johnson of the United Nations General Assembly as the Carolinian who has done most toward American Brotherhood during 1947.

The award will be accepted for Johnson by Robert B. House, Chancellor of the University of North Carolina.

Johnson, a Charlottean, is unable to attend the program. Doctor Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, originally was slated to fill in for Johnson but he has been called to Lake Success for a UN conference.

The Carolina Israelite gold medal award is made annually.

Another feature speaker at the program will be former North Carolina Governor J. Melville Broughton of Raleigh.

New Religious Group Formed To Continue Duties of CRIL

By Margaret Gaston

A new group, the Council of Student Religious Organizations, has replaced the Council for Religion in Life. At an organizational meeting Tuesday night the new council elected its officers and approved a constitutional charter.

The new organization differs chiefly from CRIL in that its membership is restricted to representatives of groups whose primary concern is the religious life of the University. CRIL had included such other organizations as the International Relations club.

Harmon is Prexy

Elected to head the council was Paul Harmon, president, Joan Schlosburg, secretary, and Gray Sanders, treasurer. Claude shotts, secretary of the YMCA, will serve as advisor.

Groups represented in t he new Council are the Baptist Student union, Canterbury club, Hillel foundation, Lutheran Student Association, Pilgrim fellowship, Presbyterian Student groups, Wesley foundation, YMCA, YWCA, and the Christian Science organization.

Pastors to Advise

The Council will include one student from each of the member organizations, and the student shall be an officer or a member well acquainted with the policies and activities of the organization which he represents. The student pastors and other group advisors will participate in the work of the Council in an advisory capacity.

In the last meeting of the CRIL Mr. Shotts was authorized to appoint a committee to consider the future of the Council for Religion in Life. Vivian Parks, president of the Baptist Student Union, reported for the committee in the meeting last night by presenting the constitutional charter, which was accepted with few changes.

According to t he charter the purpose of the Council is to serve the religious life on campus in the following manner: (1) To coordinate the activities of the various member organizations, (2) To serve as a medium for the exchange of information about the work of the member organizations, (3) To study the campus in order to determine the areas of religious need not being met by the current programs, (4) To recommend activities, events, and services that will contribute to the religious life on the campus.

Broad in Scope

Mr. Shotts has this to say about the dissolving of the CRIL "CRIL was so broad in its scope and representation that it ceased to have a function as a council. It tended to become a competitive organization and tried to define its functions independent of its constituent member organizations."

Each representative has been asked to make synopsis of activities of the group he represents.

The council will meet in the next two weeks.

Cherry Comments On Civil Rights

Raleigh, Feb. 25 —(UP)— Governor Cherry has returned to his office from a trip to Washington to confer with other Southern governors about regional schools.

However, the meeting which drew most of the headlines was the meeting with Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island. McGrath is chairman of the Democratic National committee.

In Cherry's opinion there is nothing in President Truman's Civil Rights program to cause undue alarm. He says there is no point in stirring up trouble and says he thinks the biggest accomplishment of' the meeting was that it gave a lot of people a chance to blow off steam.

As Cherry puts it, some of the points in the bill will not affect North Carolina at all. As to the so-called Negro problem he says North Carolina has always gotten along pretty well with a minority race and there is nothing in the Civil Rights bill to worry about.

Watchman's "Wink" Lands Him In Jail

Houston, Tex., Feb. 25—(UP)— The wink that landed him in jail, a 56-year-old night watchman explained today, was entirely an occupational accident.

The man was arrested after the target of the eye-click, a young woman, told police he started "following me around" six months ago.

"It's the way daylight affects my eyes after working all night," he told police. "Daylight makes my eyes blink."

A Houston city ordinance makes it unlawful "to stare at an make what is commonly called goo goo eyes at a female."

The watchman will face the judge tomorrow.

NATURAL BRIDGE PHOTOS

Photographs of the students who participated in the Natural Bridge Y conference last weekend are on display in the YM and YWCA offices, and additional copies may be ordered there.

Tri-Delt Award Open to Students

Applications are now being accepted for the Delta Delta Delta scholarship, which has again been made available to women students in colleges where there are chapters of the sorority.

The applicants may or may not be fraternity members, but they must be well-qualified students working toward degrees. They must show promise of becoming valuable citizens in their future communities. The Delta Delta Delta committee on awards shall be the sole judge of the respective merits of the aplicants.

The successful candidates will be notified by May 15. The awards will be sent to them at the time of enrollment in the next term of school.

Application blanks may be secured from Audrey Branch, personnel adviser to women, in 104-C South Building. Completed applications must reach the committee by March 31.

FAITHFUL TO THE END

Pascoag, R. I. —(UP)— Mrs. Emily Pullen, 90, died in her isolated, snowbound home. Her 72-year-old handyman, George Daly, worked for 48 hours shoveling a 1,000-yard path so he could carry word of her death to the outside.

UP LEGISLATORS MEETING

The University party legislators will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

Discrimination Bill

By Gordon Huffines

The Phi Assembly defeated a proposal to admit a limited number of Negroes to the University on an experimental basis Tuesday night by an 8-8 tie. The refusal of Acting Speaker Pete Gerns to cast his vote to break the tie automatically defeated the bill.

Declaring that segregation in North Carolina schools is detrimental to advancement and free the admission of Negroes to the University to determine the feasibility of a non-segregated school system."

Representative Graham Jones, introducing the measure to the assembly, asserted that the present non-segregation policy of the South is inviting outside interference in the form of federal legislation to solve racial problems. Maintaining that the University should lead the way in liberal reform, Jones stated that, "Science has proved that racial determinism, and all that it implies, is a false doctrine."

Other supporters of the measure stressed the fact that the bill advocated equal educational opportunities for the Negro rather than equal social opportunities. These members maintained that admitting Negro students to the University would advance the educational status of the Negro and would be an ideal experiment to determine whether or not the two races could work together in an "educational atmosphere."

In an attempt to defeat the measure, the opposition bloc proposed an amendment to the effect that the Phi should support the Negro regional institutions now being considered by Southern governors. A clause favoring state appropriations for the improvement of Negro primary and elementary schools in North Carolina was also added to the amendment, but the measure was defeated by representatives who charged that the proposed amendment was avoiding the real issue.

Opposing the non-segregation experiment, representative David Sharpe stated that the plan (See DISCRIMINATION, page 4)

Man Who Stole Two Quarters Given New Trial By State Supreme Court

Raleigh, Feb. 25—(UP)—The State Supreme Court has reversed the conviction of a man who was sentenced to five to seven years for the theft of two quarters.

Edward Minton was sentenced by Judge Clawson L. Williams after trial in Edgecombe county. He was convicted of stealing two quarters from the coastal lunch in Tarboro.

The reversal was rendered by the Supreme Court on the ruling that the conviction had been made on circumstanial evidence. Associate Justice Sam Ervin said it was insufficient to sustain a conviction unless the facts shown point out unerringly to the defendants guilt. He said the facts in the case would not stand the test.

A new trial was also granted D. O. B. Choate of Sparta who was charged with performing an illegal operation in Swain county. Harvey Grant was also granted a new trial by the Court. Grant was convicted with manslaughter in the death of his brother-in-law Ray Woods.

Justice Winborne said that the lower court's verdict that Grant's plea of self defense would not stand unless they were satisfied he had retreated to the wall before shooting Woods.

'Plight Of Venus'

Taking Venus as his example and model of art through the years since classicism, John V. Allcott, head of the University Art department, has evolved a compact and eye-opening explanation of the rise of modern abstract art which he described in one short hour to an audience, composed chiefly of his colleagues, in Hill hall last night.

"The Plight of Venus," as described by Professor Allcott, is the inability or the lack of inclination on the part of everyone other than artists or students of art to see that modern art is not dishonoring Venus or any other subject by painting or sculpturing in abstract.

"This manner of expression is still strange to most of us, and we are apt to be hostile to it—even as our fathers were hostile to the art of their time," Professor Allcott said. "And so, because of this hostility, there is a Plight of Venus.

"But if we remember that reality as sensed by our time is different than in former times, and that artists are driven to apprehend reality, to give it form, beauty and direction, then we will approach humbly and inquisitively the work of our artists. And little by little, or with sudden joyous bounds, we will come to share the thought currents and ideas of our day. We will see that artists are still concerned with honoring Venus, and we will understand Venus more soberly and deeply than ever before. If this comes to be, then there will be no Plight of Venus."

With the aid of tiny drawings, mostly his own, and some photographs made into slides for a screen, Professor Allcott traced in vivid manner the transition from classicism, to realism, to impressionism, expressionism and abstract, giving a running commentary on the thought behind each movement.

Professor Allcott has been invited to give this same lecture at the Museum of Modern Art in New York in April.

New WNC Group To Meet Tonight

President Bud Regan of the Western North Carolina club announced that the club will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Roland Parker Lounge at Graham Memorial. Regan said the club was reorganized at a meeting two weeks ago and is now functioning with a new staff of officers.

"All new members will be welcomed at Thursday's meeting," said Nell Evans, new membership committee chairman.

George Simpson was appointed to head the program committee while John Brady was reaffirmed as chairman of the entertainment committee. Johnny Orr took over the reins of the dance committee.

Ragland Medicius has been placed at the head of transportation section. The club maintains a service for persons wishing to obtain rides and persons wishing to obtain riders to and from the vicinity of Asheville. "Any person wishing to use our service is requested to contact me as early in the week as possible," said Medicius on accepting the position.

The publicity committee is headed by Carroll R. Melton.

Joy For Those Who See

Champagne In The Lady's Face

By Charles Craven

The topic which we are about to dwell on for a few moments is a delicate one. A written survey of it, no matter how brief, requires a literary skill that will identify the author as being one who is enveloped by an aura of equanimity, one who is experienced and sophisticated — not frustrated. All this lest the contempt of campus womanhood be poured upon him for being a callow cad.

As to our fitting the qualifications required to undertake this study, all we can say is that the project will be given our most sincere effort with the hope that it will be fully objective.

First, a question: Why do the fellows burst forth with almost ecstatic yelps of approval and encouragement when the male lead in the movie dashes a glass of champagne in the lovely face of the wench, or drives his fist into her tender jaw, laying her flat on the deck—for no purpose but to leave her there?

These boisterous outbursts of applause manifesting great satisfaction at the assault and battery of womanhood must stem from case histories of maltreatment by alluring but deadly feminine hands. (Allow us a little more than just a slight digression here to point out that this discussion is not directed at those fortunate young men of money and high social calibre who have been so eloquently described in Write Away as being "slick with the women. Ha, Ha!" Rather it is for that mass of unconquerable rogues who usually inhabit such places as ordinary dorms and the quonset area and are without hope or anything. God bless'em the peepul.)

Now where were we? Oh yes—rough treatment by soft hands. One could believe that the haughtiness of Carolina coeds is merely the impersonal attitude of a superior breed. We admit to one thing. They are lovely—at least the one who can afford the haughty class. Once in a while you'll find one whose personality has not become dulled by affectation caused by beauty consciousness. Such rare young animals with damp parted lips and warm, vibrant contours are as lovely to look at as a Grand Canyon sunset and a lot more promising. But men swarm around her and she finally concludes, "I am gorgeous. Men are my pawns. They will go to any lengths to get a breath of my sunlit hair."

The smug and complacent feeling felt generally by the coeds come through no fault of their own, boys. They are engulfed in a blinding whirl of excitement a week after they arrive in Chapel Hill and walk around in a haze of male adoration that lasts until they are once more tossed back into the melting pot.

On the main drag the other day a guy said, "Ah! The old man gets war rich on three or four tobacco crops, buys daughter a fur coat and sends her to Carolina. Tells her to get a husband, or it'll be back to the farm. Daughter proceds to run roughshod over the hungry male population until she finds what she wants."

The worthy who uttered that had just come out of a phone booth where he'd called every floor of every woman's dorm on the campus. After he'd gone through the names he knew, he started calling strangers. No avail! The guy went to a movie and cheered when the babe got a face full of wine and a coldly turned heel.

The situation is like the weather. It can't be changed. As long as the male population is in the greater number the condition will remain. But the men shouldn't fret. It's only for four years. Then a man can get himself a nice little college educated girl who has come down to earth. However, he must be certain that her diploma didn't turn her into a Grenadine Etching or an Amber. What a fiery chase that always turns out to be!

Our only suggestion is that various nearby hospitals always seem to have an appreciative fold of nurses. And the young things pining away in adjacent female academies show a daring curiosity for Carolina gentlemen.

It would be useless here to suggest letting the coed population of UNC cool en masse. That is, every man evacuate the Hill on week-ends. Some guy would sneak back into town. Helpless against irresistible charm. He would be that one found by the farmer's daughter. That one man would give them victory.

Here's a hopeless note to end on. This Alphonse summed it up in the following manner: "Women for the most part do not love us. They do not choose a man because they love him, but because it pleases them to be loved by him. They love love of all things in the world, but there are very few men whom they love personally."—Alphonse Karr.

Mudville Mutterings

Traffic Trouble in the Village

By Dan Sapp

More traffic difficulties in the Village these days. On Jackson Circle the problem is one way traffic which they don't have. Circle residents have been complaining about this ever since last fall, but nothing has been done yet. If you've ever driven around the Circle and met another car face on and no room to pass you have seen the necessity. It doesn't appear that it would be too costly to put up one way traffic signs at either end of the street. The village council has been working on this for several months and according to one of the new representatives it is still being considered. The council doesn't have the final say on action of this kind. It can only recommend and request—something which it has been doing through committees for some time. It seems rather short-sighted to wait until a serious accident happens to put up a couple of simple signs that would remove the danger.

The coop meeting of last week isn't exactly news at this point but one point that was brought up is the need for help in the store. If you have any spare time go down and give them a hand, you don't have to have 10 years experience and you'll be helping yourself in the long run.

Another item we've heard batted around lately is a community center for the Village. Since we're all fairly young and fun-loving, a lot of folks think we need a place to get together and become acquainted, have dances, parties, etc. There isn't any place nearer than the campus for a function of this kind and it isn't always convenient for people who don't have cars and do have children to go on campus in the evenings. Several outdoor picnics last summer proved that these get-togethers are a lot of fun, but why wait until summer? Because we don't have a community center? So, let's get one.

International Relations Club

Statement of Income and Expense

For the Year Ended June 30, 1947

INCOME
Initiation Fees	$ 16.00
Dues	91.75
Gifts	75.00
TOTAL INCOME		$ 182.75
EXPENSE
Auditing & Bookkeeping	$ 10.00
Supplies	2.59
Postage, Telephone & Telegrams	4.10
Travel	23.61
Printing	34.90
Miscellaneous	9.24
Publicity	8.50
Entertainment	36.08
Speaker's Expense	41.00
TOTAL EXPENSE		$ 170.02
NET PROFIT		$ 12.73

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association. | Complete Leased Wire of United Press | Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser
NIGHT EDITOR: Charlie Gibson
SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears
ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden
ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow
SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison
EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman NIGHT SPORTS: Morty Schaap

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

"It's hard to choose between the royalists and the rebels. It's a question of whether you prefer American officers or Russian officers."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Rayburn Protests Revolt

By Drew Pearson

Washington.—Texas' shiny-pated Sam Rayburn, Democratic ex-speaker, nearly staged a rebellion within a rebellion when he got wind of Southern plans for a "Rump Caucus" to protest the President's Civil-Rights Program.

What made Sam most sore was an attempt to wean the Texas delegation away from him and sign it over as a body to the Rebels. Leader of the Rebels was Rep. Gossett of Wichita Falls, who championed the cause of the National Association of Manufacturers when it came to killing the OPA. Gossett was trying to pledge the Texas delegation in advance to the Southern stand against Civil Rights, when Rayburn suddenly discovered what he was up to.

Quickly calling Texas Congressmen to his office, Rayburn reminded them that it was long-standing practice for the delegation never to commit itself as a group. If any individuals wished to sign the resolution against Civil Rights, they should do it on ther own, he argued.

Wright Patman, Paul Kilday, and J. M. Combs sided with Rayburn, and urged the Congressmen to have more consideration of their leader. Combs warned that the question is an explosive one, involving human rights, and made an appeal for tolerance.

But Gossett wouldn't budge, and later took a leading part in the Rebel conference. He was joined by Olin Teague, Tom Pickett, Lindley Beckworth, and W. R. Poage, plus representatives of ten other Southern states.

Working behind the scenes for two weeks, a "steering committee" headed by Mississippi's William Colmer had been drafting Anti-Civil Rights resolutions and tearing them up again. Finally they settled upon a comparatively mild one, submitted by J. Bayard Clark of North Carolina. This was circulated among the delegations for signatures, paving the way for the final meeting.

At this meeting the voice of Mississippi's rootin' tootin' John Rankin, as usual, was the loudest. He took off with a deafening roar, well seasoned with fire-and-brimstone.

"Next thing you know," Rankin bellows, "Congress will be flooded with Niggers."

At first, Rankin opposed group action, repeatedly calling attention to his long personal fight for Southern principles. When he saw that a group resolution would be adopted in spite of him, he raised a howl for stronger language.

"Frankly, I think it isn't strong enough," he barked after Gossett read Clark's resolution which by then had been adopted by the steering committee.

In the end, only one slight change was made in Clark's resolution.

Note—During the closed-door session, no one suggested bolting the Democratic party and entering a Southern candidate for president, though one Alabama congressman did suggest that Governor Jim Folsom, already an avowed candidate, could poll more votes than Truman.

Some Army commanders still don't seem to realize that the war's over. For instance, General MacArthur still operates an airtight censorship. It's impossible for an American newsman to visit Japan and write what he wants about MacArthur's rule of the Japanese.

And at Fort Riley, Kansas, the other day, Gen. I. D. White at first seemed to think that wartime censorship still prevailed.

General White was queried by long-distance telephone about the court-martial of Lieut. Vernon Brooks, Lubbock, Texas, who was acquitted of being drunk and wrongfully striking an enlisted man.

"You can't publish that," remonstrated General White.

"Sorry, but we intend to publish it."

"By whose authority?" challenged the General.

"By the authority of the Constitution of the United States, General, which says that the American people have a right to know about courts-martial and the treatment of enlisted men."

General White then said he would look into the matter and see what could be made public. Later, he produced the facts—namely

(See PEARSON, page 3)

Write Away

Definitions On Love Differ

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

What is love? Thousands of songs are written about it; numberless books are published each year on this popular subject; millions of young people spend years searching for this high adventure labelled love; old people spend hours recounting the pleasurous sensations produced by an intangible something called love.

It is a subject in which the majority of the population of the world delights. Having found tangible evidence of the results and works of love, people are constantly in search of a tangible definition. Yet no one person has evolved a definition with which even a small majority agrees.

Love is that emotion which everyone feels and has experienced in his own life, but he is unable to express verbally the exact sensation which is the result of an undefinable emotion.

Love is recognizable and has been divided and subdivided into various pidgeon-holes as friendship, companionship, family love, love for God, love of art, etc.

Old sayings such as "the whole world loves a lover" or "in spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of fancier things" are perennially quoted. These everyone understands because each, in his own way, has experienced this mystery of love.

Love can cause people to do things that no other power on earth can do. It has wrought wars and peace and welded together people the world over. Love is the common interest—there is no language or racial or religious barrier.

Even a day has been set aside for love. Saint Valentine's Day is the "Day of Lovers." The day on which boys and girls exchange coy, comic, romantic or brashy jingles about February 14th's being "fair and fine" and "won't you be my Valentine?"

In spring an eager boy can be seen kissing a blushing girl, telling her (as he tells every young lady he dates) how much he loves her. When soft balmy air and sweet-scented flowers fill a young person's blood with a disturbing "arousing" sensation, love seems to play havoc with lessons and classes. Eyes gradually wander out through the windows of the classroom and lazy sleepiness overtakes the person in the afternoons; but, when twilight falls and the twinkling stars seem to dance and flirt with the moon, the young people are awakened by Lady Love's beckoning them to an evening of sensuous pleasures.

Yet all the feelings, descriptions, books, songs, and thoughts cannot answer fuly the question: what is love? Well, can you?

Name Withheld by Request

Wrong Policy

Gentlemen:

During this quarter I have become more and more dissatisfied with the present policies of the DTH. The strong partisanship of the paper concerning the recent magazine referendum, culminating in the statement on today's editorial page, "The Daily Tar Heel favors this fifth alternative," has antagonized me to the point of finally stating my opinion.

I protest that the DTH [illegible] longer filling the purpose which it was created. To me the DTH should be, and was once to be, an organ of the student body, written by, for and to students. It is paid for by student appropriations, published by student journalists, and read by campus readers expressing opinions of the students. Unfortunately, this is now true only in theory.

Under its present leadership the DTH has become incorrigibly partisan on each successive campus issue. The magazine referendum is only one example. Instead of presenting factual and unbiased alternative possibilities, the DTH presents "opinions." Instead of publishing an editorial page which represents opinions of the student body the DTH presents its own opinion, i. e. "The DTH favors. The DTH supports." The DTH is not primarily a commercial newspaper. It is not under the necessity of deciding upon an editorial policy which will attract the most subscribers. The subscribers are ready and willing. And as a college newspaper, the DTH should permit the students to formulate their own points of view. To do other than this is to do an injustice to those who, at least in spirit, "own" the newspaper.

Do not misunderstand me. Signed expressions of opinion by various members of the student body are invaluable additions to the paper. But statements which represent the DTH as a whole, and thus, theoretically, the entire student body, should have no place in a college paper.

If the DTH today supports the "fifth alternative" why should it not support William Dodd in favor of John Jones in tomorrow's student elections. An influential organ of propaganda to be bargained for by future ambitious students is a real danger and I believe the DTH is laying the ground work for just such a possibility. Non-partisanship should not be limited to politics, but should encircle all issues on which the student body forms an opinion. The DTH should present issues—not opinions or decisions.

I am sure that there are other students who feel as I do. There must be other students who have regarded with growing irritation the tendency of the DTH to "take sides," students who feel that the DTH is no longer the voice of the students, but rather the voice of a few.

Irvine N. Smith

Carolina Carousel

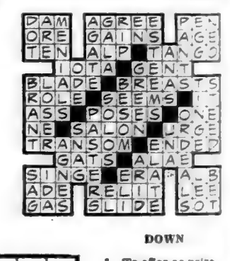
ADA Talks FPG for VP

By R. Foo Giduz

Delegates returning from last weekend's national ADA convention told of wide interest in their projected draft Frank Graham-for-Vice-President movement. . . Though ADA decided not to endorse anyone for presidential candidacies until after party conventions, Dr. Frank's name figured prominently in their discussions several times, and a number of newspapers picked it up. . .Where next from Indonesia?

Monogram club's action on placard cheerleading stunts for next fall's football will be the greatest boost to lagging UNC spirit since Kay Kyser and the Carolina Cheerios left. . .And remember who instigated and is generally overseeing this plan: That's Norman SPER—pronounced like CHEER! . . .Not satisfied alone with having skipped a Natchelbridge hotel bill last weekend crafty Julia Ross surged to greater heights of questionable monetary practices on Monday. . .Phi Donnie Mac Donald loses $50 in cheques. . .Finds same in Jolly Julia's chambers! . . ."Yuks" for that.

The week's most vivid protest against UMT: "Fiery-thatched" Ben Rouzie wearing GI olive-drab Army pants—died a rich cuh-rimson!. . ."Southern Comfort," DTH's air-cooled station waggin is cleared to run again if they can ever get it in running condition. . .Man. editor Joyner Triply paid $13.30 in costs to Judge Henry Whitfield on Tuesday, for having '47 license plates on it. . .



Hear ye, hear ye, all ye Greek God Carolina Gentlemen: Carousel, the "scrap-metal-scarecrow" kid, indeed endorses green hair for coeds as our d-ior of the perfect anti-climax to the New Look. . .And thus be enhanced the ever-increasing Athenian beauty of our coeducational 'Greek Goddesses.". . .note cynister cynicism Sergei!

MOUNTAIN AIDS SCIENCE

MOUNT WASHINGTON, N. H. (UP)—Mile-high Mount Washington has become a favorite laboratory for modern scientist. Its rugged weather, as attested by the 600 ice storms that have lashed its summit during the past four years, is considered ideal for testing aeronautical devices.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Wicked
4—Slow-moving person
9—Skill
12—Small fish
13—Piebald horse
14—To go to right
15—Hideout
16—To amuse
18—Fork prong
20—To dine
21—Gleam
23—Place of learning
27—Place to skate
28—Nether regions
29—Avenue (abbr.)
30—A number
31——— Gras
32—Monkey
33—Letter of Hebrew alphabet
34—Satisfies
35—Small brown bird
36—Built
38—Most unpleasant
39—Drunk
40—Row
41—Copied
45—Secret agent
48—Brew
49—Pass rope through cleat
50—Digit
51—Strife
52—Beer mug
53—To stitch

DOWN

1—To offer as prize
2—Drink
3—Part of tooth
4—Exhausted
5—Baseball team
6—Insect
7—Adherent of
8—Siren of the Rhine
9—Marble
10—Portuguese coin
11—Number
17—Hindu cymbals
19—Writing fluid
21—To feel one's way
22—Ship
23—Felt concern
24—Unequal things
25—Yawns
26—Occasion
28—To feel malice
31—Materials
32—Halts
34—Man from Glasgow
35—Triumphed
37—Chemical salt
38—To pull apart
40—Son of Jacob
41—Animal's foot
42—Wing
43—To soak
44—Born
46—Author of "The Raven"
47—Kind of tree

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Exam Is Now Ready For College Juniors

An examination to select college juniors for entrance into one of the special training programs held at the Bureau of Standards and elsewhere and designed to select government technicians in the fields of engineering, mathematics, chemistry, metallurgy, physics and meteorology is being made available to eligible persons from now until March 9.

The salary for the positions open starts at $2,394 per year. Further information, contained in detailed form in circular 4-34-1 (1948), may be obtained by writing the Civil Service commission at Washington 25, D. C.

LI'L ABNER — By AL CAPP

You don't have to study Law — To be our Mouthpiece — HARRY'S

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael III

The Ailing Attitude

THOUGH IT MAY BE CONTRARY to the popular opinion, the fact seems evident that it takes more than just ability to make an athlete outstanding, the other necessary qualification boiling down to a simple one word—attitude. Now, this seems like a very profound comment to make but it has come time to discuss attitudes as they affect the Tar Heel sporting picture.

It seems that athletics have andvanced to the point where competition is at a height and the difference between a creditable performer and a champion can be this little margin of attitude. A boxer must want to fight besides being a good puncher just as a football star must want to play football besides being able to run and pass. The champion is a blending of the two; a carefully pruned performer mentally and physically.

With this background in mind one advances to the recent words of a Tar Heel athletic coach who has a lot to say about the attitudes of Carolina athletic stars and would-be stars. Now this mentor whose name is not as important as his ideas may be, supports the theory that Tar Heel sporting teams could produce to a higher degree of winning efficiency if the attitudes of local competitors would improve to a level suitable to the demands of the coaches.

The Suitable Level

THE SUITABLE LEVEL can be defined by this coach as the cooperation of the performers in the matters especially concerning training and conditioning, and time devoted to the sport. The nonobservance of training rules etc. says he, keeps a lot of the boys from reaching the peak of their ability and thereby producing their best for themselves, the coach and the school. Another point raised by the apparently dissatisfied tutor was the fact that many boys were not showing enough of the old school try that made greats like Frank Merriwell the athletic genii that they were. On top of that, some of the University's better athletes aren't even out for their respective sports, finding their time spent elsewhere.

Of course, this little talk has a very impressionable tone to it. The reasoning sounds good, but close investigation can find some of the answers to what seem to be very puzzling questions.

One of the major answers comes from the fact that athletics in college today are becoming more and more specialized and therefore demand more and more from the individual performers. There was the day when a school could sport three, four or more three monogramers and even an occasional four letterman. Today the majority of sports at the University demand anywhere from six months up devotion to duty from the students who take part in the sport. Though some will deny it, a varsity sport has reached the point of more work than play, which according to the old saying, makes Johnny a dull boy.

Add to this the fact that many of the athletes in the school today are veterans who left the school during the war and have now reached the age where the prime objective is to complete their school in the least possible time regardless of the sacrifice they must make in the recreational line.

The Veteran View

AMONG THESE VETERANS, a little more mature than the average prewar student, one doesn't locate as much of the old school try that you can find in boys fresh out of prep school and high school. These boys along with their non-veteran colleagues discover that Carolina has increased in degree of academic difficulty. There are fewer easy courses in the college than there used to be, and it is relatively hard to do one's accounting while pounding the hardwoods for Coach Tom Scott.

Add to this the fact that today athletic schedules are including trips of great distance from the little town of Chapel Hill which means the missing of precious classroom time that must be made up together with completing the regular assignments in the course. And added to this the fact that athletes to play must maintain a higher scholastic average than the average student does to stay in school.

Thus, the varsity competitor is under terrific strain at all times from the speciality of the sport, the large amount of time it requires, and the effect of a heavy academic load. The athlete must therefore govern himself physically and mentally to the capacity at which he feels he can best complete his college career. Sometimes in this consideration, his athletic performance must suffer.

One can agree with the coach in question on one score and that is that some varsity performers do not live up to their training rules. Still here, the athlete himself is the big suffere as is his team. Only he can be the guide of what he will contribute. The game is still played by the players and for the players, and thus, it will be played as they wish to play it on the level they wish to play.

Exam Schedule Forces Matmen Out of Tourney

Carolina's wrestling crew, state champions by virtue of victories over State college, Duke, and Davidson, will not be present as a team at the annual Southern conference tournament to be held this year at Washington and Lee the second week in March.

The locals will not defend their Conference crown won last year because the tournament is scheduled too close to final exams and most of the squad feels that it cannot make the trip which would take them out of three days of school.

However, two Carolina men may be represented in the contest. They are freshman Phil Kemp and 165-pounder Oscar Gupton. Both of these men are definite threats to the titles in the 145 and 165-pound classes.

In six matches Kemp won four and lost two. Two of his victories came by way of pins while the other two were results of decisions. In the same number of contests Gupton captured four victories. tied one match and lost one. Three of his conquests were made on decisions.

With Carolina almost definitely out of the running, Washington and Lee is rated a top chance to cop the Conference crown. Victors over all their opponents, the Generals set the Tar Heels, 21-3, in a meet that was closer that the score would indicate.

As a team the local crew amassed 98 and one-half points in six dual meets, while holding their opponents to 73 and one-half. The individual to cop high-scoring honors was team captain Bill Kemp, who wrestled in only five matches, but won four of them on falls and the other on a decision. He was the only undefeated member of the squad.

Forty Batterymen Report for Drills

Some 40 diamond hopefuls responded to Coach Bunn Hearn's initial baseball workout held indoors in the Tin Can yesterday for all candidates for pitching and catching positions.

The group was comprised of 10 catchers and over 30 hurlers. Included were four veteran members of last year's mound staff, Vinnie DiLorenzo, Frank Robinson, Tommy Andrew, and Ray Blair. DiLorenzo is a southpaw, the others are righthanders.

Also among those seeking spots with the 1948 Tar Heel hill corps are four former jayvee hurlers, Dean Cassell, George Whitted, Lefty Sharpe, and Dave Lineberger. Another pitching aspirant is Buster Stevenson, utility infielder with last year's club.

The backstop hopefuls also included several familiar faces. Sid Varney, on the 1947 varsity squad until the start of spring grid drills; Emmett Cheek, a hard-hitting outfielder; and jayvee receiver Buck Davis were among those reporting for duty. Several former American Legion players are also expected to figure high in the catching competition.

Should warm weather prevail next week, Coach Hearn has hopes of moving the baseball sessions outdoors, at which time the call will go out for infielders and outfielders. The outdoor drills will be staged on the far end of Emerson field until the completion of work on and around Emerson diamond.

CARDS BUY LANG

St. Louis, Feb. 25—(UP)—The St. Louis Cardinals have bought Third Baseman Don Lang from Columbus of the American Association.

Lang hit .346 in 142 games with Columbus last season. The 30-year-old right handed batting infielder slapped 28 doubles, 12 triples and 11 homers.

Emerson, Zetes Capture Mural Boxing Titles

CARL RHUBACK, Maryland, (left) will be the man to beat in the high and low hurdles Saturday night. ROGER NEIGHBORGALL, (Duke), will defend his 880-yard crown as well as run on the mile relay team. JACK MOODY, Carolina, (Inset) will be out to add the Indoor high jump title to his Conference laurels. All of these men and 448 more will be in the field for the Sixth Annual Southern Invitation Track meet in Woollen gym.

Big Sprint Field To Take Part In Saturday's Track Carnival

By Morty Schaap

Saturday's Sixth Annual Southern Invitation track meet in Woollen gym will definately produce a new champion in the 60-yard dash as last year's winner Doug Fowlkes is not entered.

The leading contender for the sprint honors is Sterling Wingo, a Freshman from VPI. This lad was clocked in 6.2 seconds for the 60-yard in the Maryland meet last Saturday, winning over a field of good runners. Second place went to Jim Murray of Navy and third to Jim McGowan of Maryland. All these lads will compete Saturday but will be pressed for honors by quite a few top notch dash men.

One of the favorites will be Walter Galliford of Virginia who did some running for Carolina in V-12. Ed Goode of Emory and Henry College, who last year won the 100-yard dash in the Milligan college relays at 9.8, may be in the running. Others to reckon with are Brandon Davis and Bill Rowe of Duke, Al Landau of State and possibly Ted Shultz and Dave Willis of Carolina. Navy may have a sneaker in the picture in the form of footballer Dick Ambrogi.

Another event that is wide open is the broad jump and although he will have just completed his basketball playing the night before, Doug Ausbon of Duke must be conceded the edge. Last year's champion and meet record holded was Fowlkes of Georgia Tech, but since the Engineers are not entering a team anything might happen. Little is known of many other of the jumpers in the meet as there has been no competition in this event during the indoor season.

Carolina will count on Len Briley and Laddie Terrell to carry their weight forward enough to give the Tar Heels some points.

Other jumpers that are much in the picture in this event are Bill Harper and Bob Taylor of Florida, Tom Bradberry of Georgia, Jack Crandall of Maryland, Jim Murphy of Navy, Tom Mooney of State, Jack Brewer of Randolph Macon, Orin McGill of South Carolina, John Russeck of Roanoke, Ed. McLear of VPI, Bill Pauley of Virginia and Mac Brown of Virginia.

White Phantoms Seek 20th Win at Duke; Davidson Win Seen as Tonic to Cagers

Carolina's White Phantoms will be gunning for their 20th victory of the season when they battle Duke's Blue Devils in the season finale for both clubs in Durham tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Coach Tom Scott's charges marked up win no. 19 Tuesday night in Charlotte with a 52-46 decision over Davidson, and the improved showing that the Phantoms put on gave their supporters good reason to believe that Carolina will be able to get the coveted 20th win against Duke tomorrow. Duke also was impressive in its last start, ekeing out a 49-48win over Wake Forest. The Blue Devils must beat Carolina in order to qualify for the Southern conference tourney which begins next Thursday.

For portions of the Davidson game this week, the Phantoms played what was probably their best ball of the season, but a few letdowns marred an otherwise great performance. With just 12 minutes remaining in that game, Carolina led by a 49-30 score over the highly-regarded Wildcats, who were rated as favorites by several Charlotte sports writers. Davidson then staged a stirring rally against the tiring Carolinians to cut the lead to six points at the final whistle. But before this rally the Phantoms had amazed the 2,800 fans in attendance by unleashing a fast-breaking attack which completley split the Davidson defense.

Coach Scott remarked after the game that the team's play was "the best in a long time." Proof of this statement is found in the fact that Carolina marked up 22 points in just eight minutes in the first part of the second half.

Bob Paxton and Coy Carson were the scoring leaders, with 16 and 13 respectively. Paxton also gave Carolina a big rebound advantage and Carson's smart offensive maneuvers won the praise of all in attendance.

Carolina now has an 11-3 conference record and 19-5 for the entire season. This mark assured them of a berth in the loop tourney. Other schools who have definite posts clinched in the tourney are State and George Washington.

There is somewhat of a mad jumble for the other five positions in the playoff meet, and these five won't be selected until the conference's tournament selection committee meets on Sunday. Duke, Wake Forest, Davidson, South Carolina, William and Mary, Maryland, and Virginia Tech all have a chance for the five position that are still vacant.

The selection of the eight teams which will participate in the tournament is based not only on the conference won-lost record of the teams, but also the relative strength and the difficulty of the schedules that the clubs play.

Track Meet Tickets On Sale at Woollen

There are still some tickets left for the Indoor track meet on Saturday night. Students may obtain tickets for seventy-five cents plus cupon 21. General admission is $1.50. Tickets are good for both the afternoon and evening events.

Today is the last opportunity for students to obtain tickets for the Duke-Carolina basketball game at Duke on Friday night. The ducats are on sale at the Athletic office and the price is $1.50. No passbooks are needed.

LOCKER ROOM TO CLOSE

The men's locker room in Woollen gym will be closed to students Saturday after 12 o'clock noon. This is so that the various track teams may have facilities to dress for the meet.

Dormitory Winners Take Four Wins; Fraternity Victors Capture Three

The fraternity and dormitory beak busters finally came to the end of the trail yesterday afternoon when Emerson field house and Zeta Psi fraternity captured the mural ring championships.

T. A. Hearn, 1947 wrestling captain, opened festivities by pounding out a decision over Dick Benson of Town. Hearn fought in the colors of Emerson. The next bout saw D. Snow of Whitehead outlast J. McCauley of Town to annex the 155-pound crown.

In the 145-pound division Cookie DiChiara, Emerson beat out Stewart of Seiler Five.

The Dorm 165-pound class saw two jayvee football players square off, and the win went to Dick Bunting of Emerson, when Doc Parker of Stacy came up with an injured shoulder.

Kirk of Mangum outpointed Cahoon of Lewis for the light-heavyweight honors. Two footballers ended the Dormitory division fighting. when Roscoe Hansen took a decision from Jack Ross. Both boys represented Emerson.

Greek Warfare

The fraternity lads took over the ring next and the winner of the 120 pound class was Marvin Wilson, Zeta who took the nod from C. Berger of TEP. In the 127 pound class T. Gregory of Zeta outsped R. Shealey of the Phi Delts to make it two in a row for the winners. It was six minutes later when the Zetes made it three straight when Borden outpunched Wilkens of the Phi Delts.

The string ended there. as Stan Nurischion of SAE took the 145 pound crown by smashing out a win over R. Kirby of the KA's. In the 155 pound division Fleming of Phi Gam took a close call from Bristol of Kappa Sigma.

In the 165 pound class two Sigma Chis were scheduled to mix it up, but Langley forfeited to hi fraternity brother, Kipp. The 175 pound class was won by forfeit too, as Tommy Stratford of Phi Gam was injured, and the title went to Folger of Kappa Sigma.

The battle of the unlimited class was another family affair. This time it was staged by TEP, and the winner for the second straight year was Norm Galinkin, as his power proved too much for Harvey Weinstein to cope with.

Mural Results

SOCCER RESULTS

3	Beta 3	Phi Delt 2	1
6	Everett	Aycock	1
3	Sigma Chi	Phi Kap	0
4	DKE 1	Phi Delt 3	1
5	Zeta 1	Phi Delt 1	2
5	Phi Gam 3	Sig Nu 2	3
2	Lam Chi 2	Sig Nu 1	1
3	Steele	Law School	1

Today's Murals

SOCCER

4:00—Field 1: Zeta 1 vs. Phi Gam 3; Field 2: Beta 3 vs. ATO 1; Field 3: DKE - vs. Lamda Chi 2; Field 4: Phi Gam 1 vs. Chi Psi; Field 5: Lewis vs. Everett.

Wildcats Take Bid To Tourney

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 25 (UP)—The University of Kentucky Wildcats have accepted a bid to play in the NCAA basketball tournament.

The Wildcats, who have won 26 out of 28 games so far this season, will be taking part in tournament play for the fifth straight year. However, Kentucky usually plays in the National Invitational Tournament instead of the NCAA.

Salt Lake City, Feb 25—(UP)—Lanky Jack Kramer is steadily pulling away from Bobby Riggs in their cross country pro tennis tour.

Kramer now holds a six match edge over Riggs after winning last night 7-5, 6-3. It was Kramer's 21st win as against 15 for Riggs. They meet again tonight in Denver.

TRACK SQUAD MEETING

There will be a meeting of all members of the Track Squad this afternoon at 4:30 in 304 Woollen. Movies of previous indoor meets will be shown and the squad will be given a final briefing for the Indoor meet Saturday.

Dolphins Leave For Georgia Tonight; Face Georgia Tech and Emory College

There was no respite from practice for Carolina's Blue Dolphins yesterday afternoon following their Tuesday night victory over Duke for only one more day remains before the Blue and White mermen will depart for a two-day march through Georgia.

The local tankers emerged unscathed from their chlorine capers against the Tobaccomen and should be in good physical condition for their Peach State foray. The Dolphins will faceEmory University and Georgia Tech during the trip.

Coaches Jamerson and Casey will leave Raleigh by rail tonight with some 17 natators. Jamerson will direct the Carolina forces during the Tech meet on Friday but he will return to Chapel Hill immediately after the aquatic attraction where he'll serve as head announcer on the public address system for the Invitational Track games on Saturday.

The traveling squad will include Jim Thomas, Dan Breeden, Mike Morrow, Dick Twining, Allison Pell, Floyd Drew, Jesse Greenbaum, Norm Sper, Mac Erle, Steve Osborne, Bill Pritchard, John Bippart, Bob Hutton, Ike Norwood, Norm Basescu, Bob Ousley, and Jerry Cook. Manager Jack Sharpe will also be in attendance.

John Bippart also came in for a verbal pat on the back from the Carolina coach. His excellent time in the 150 backstroke will give the Dolphins more depth in this vital event. He will come in handy during the weekend's heavy schedule.

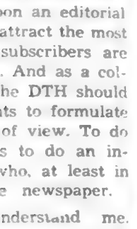
According to Jamerson, the time turned in by the freestyle relay quartet would have won the NCAA relay crown in both 1946 and 1947 but this year's improved national performances have lowered the mark. Tuesday night's speedy time was probably the best ever turned in by a Southern collegiate team.

Phone 8666
Dr. William Kohn
OPTOMETRIST
Over Carolina Coffee Shop
Office hours
9:00-1:00 Sat.
9:00-5:00 Tues. & Thurs.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

PRESCRIPTIONS
Filled Promptly
ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY
—at—
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

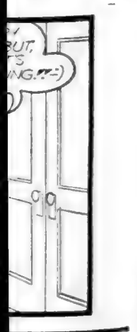
CHAPEL HILL CLEANERS
104 Franklin St.
Phone F-2466
BETTER CLEANING & PRESSING



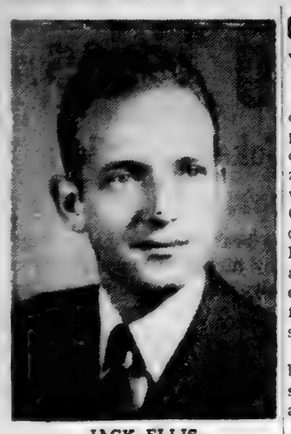
Carolina Sport Shop

PRESENTS
Record Listening
My Old Flame—
—CHARLIE BARNETT
Sugar Beat—
—ELLIOT LAWRENCE
Rye Whiskey—
—TEX RITTER
MOZART'S Don Giovanni (complete)
Carolina Sport Shop

"Even when we are in each other's arms .... there are a thousand miles between us!"
CAROLINA
TODAY AND FRIDAY



SHE SOUGHT THE MAN HER SISTER LOVED...
Not since 'Scarlett O'Hara' has there been a woman like this... ...bold, cunning, smouldering... gloriously alive in the arms of another woman's man! The fiercest romantic adventure you have ever experienced!
MGM presents with pride
'GREEN DOLPHIN STREET'
STARRING
Lana Turner
VAN HEFLIN · DONNA REED · RICHARD HART
FRANK MORGAN · EDMUND GWENN
DAME MAY WHITTY
REGINALD OWEN
GLADYS COOPER
at our REGULAR POPULAR PRICES!
From ELIZABETH GOUDGE'S $200,000 PRIZE WINNING NOVEL!



PREVIOUS PUZZLE

DOWN
1—To offer as prize
2—Drink
3—Part of tooth
4—Exhausted
5—Baseball team
6—Insect
7—Adherent of
8—Siren of the Rhine
9—Marble
10—Portuguese coin
11—Number
17—Hindu cymbals
19—Writing fluid
21—To feel one's way
22—Ship
23—Felt concern
24—Unequal things
25—Yawns
26—Occasion
28—To feel malice
31—Materials
32—Hairs
34—Man from Glasgow
37—Triumphed
39—Chemical salt
43—To pull apart
45—Son of Jacob
46—Animal's foot
48—Wing
49—To soak
51—Born
53—Author of "The Raven"
57—Kind of tree

By AL CAPP

JACK ELLIS

Ellis Will Give Recital Tonight

Jack Ellis of Sherman, Texas, graduate assistant in the music department, will give a recital in Hill hall tonight at 8:30.

The program will include a sonata by Haydn, Rhapsody, by Brahms, Pasquini's Partite Diverse di Follia, and Chopin's Polonaise and Barcarolle.

Ellis, student of William S. Newman, graduated from the University in 1947. While a student here, he was president of Sound and Fury and the YMCA.

He has done solo work with the Men's Glee club, and in 1944 he received the leadership award of Algernon Sidney Sullivan.

Ellis is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Chi, and Phi Mu Alpha, national honorary music fraternity. He served as lieutenant (j. g.) in the Naval Reserve for three years.

PHI ETA SIGMA

All members of Phi Eta Sigma who were initiated in December are requested to call at 206 South to receive their certificates of membership.

Carter to Head Young Democrats

Lester G. Carter, Jr., member of the Law school, was elected president of the Young Democrats club which held its organizational meeting in the Rendezvous room yesterday afternoon. Other officers chosen were "Sandy" Harris, secretary-treasurer, Rivers Johnson, vice-president; and Bob Perdue, publicity director. Term of office was specified as the remainder of the school year.

Next meeting of the YDC will be Tuesday. The location and the speaker for the meeting will be announced at a later date.

–Discrimination–

(Continued from page 1)

would not work at the University because of traditional Southern race prejudice and the social problems that would arise if the Negro were admitted.

Other representatives warned the assembly that real progress comes about through slow changes based on sound measures. Representative Ernest House asserted that the Negro must be prepared for higher education through improved elementary schools, and told the assembly that the only advancements in the "age of man" have come about gradually—not through quick changes.

Charging that the non-segregation issue was being used as a national political football to secure minority votes, that equality cannot be legislated, and that race prejudice would prevent the Negro from developing leadership qualities through holding student offices at the University, the opposition bloc succeeded in bringing about the automatic defeat of the bill on a roll call vote.

Horseshoeing was introduced into England from Normandy in 1066 by William the Conqueror.

–Pearson –

(Continued from page 3)

that Lieutenant Brooks at 3 a. m. on Feb. 8 had struck Pvt. James R. Snowball of Fort Wayne, Ind., who at that time was in civilian clothes. Lieutenant Brooks was acquitted on the plea that he thought Private Snowball was taking Army property and also because of the Lieutenant's own ten-year record in the Army. No enlisted men were present at the court-martial.

Note—General White, having been challenged by this column regarding the Public's right to know the facts, then proceeded to scoop this column by rushing to all other newspapers with news of the court-martial.

Campus Calendar

3:00 p. m.—Ways and Means committee, Grail room.
4:00 p. m.—Publications Union board, Roland Parker lounge No. 1.
4:00 p. m.—Campus party, Roland Parker lounge No. 2.
5:00 p. m.—World Federalists, Grail room.
6:30 p. m.—Recorded dinner music main lounge of Graham Memorial.
7:00 p. m.—Freshman Friendship council, Y. M. C. A.
7:30 p. m.—Student Republican club, Roland Parker lounge No. 1.
7:30 p. m.—Western North Carolina club, Roland Parker lounge No. 2.
8:00 p. m.—Catholic Round table, Grail room.
8:00 p. m.—Philosophy club, Roland Parker lounge No. 2.
8:30 p. m.—"N. C. Viewpoint," WHHT, WRAL.
8:30 p. m.—Jack Ellis, pianist, Hill hall.
8:30 p. m.—Jubilee singers from St. Joseph Methodist church, Memorial hall.

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

1942 NEW MOON HOUSE TRAILER—22 feet. Sleeps four. 211 Swain Hall, Trailer Court. (1-1802-1)

CAMERA—ARGUS C3. PRACTICALLY brand new. Flash gun, case, coated f 3.5 lens. Joe Morgan, 247 A Jackson Circle. (1-1807-1)

MAGIC CHIEF GAS STOVE 736 E Franklin phone 7551. (1-1811-1)

NEW 5 ROOM BRICK VENEER House, close in, all modern conveniences. Phone 4921 for appointment (1-1813-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1940 DODGE 4-DOOR SEDAN. HAS new motor. Caston Motor Co., Phone F-3891. (ch 1x1)

1948 FOUR DOOR FORD, 500 MILES. Radio and heater. Steve Parrott, phone 9021. (1-1809-1)

LOST 12

BLACK COCKER SPANIEL, FULL grown, answers to "Blackie". Reward. Joe Morgan 247—A Jackson Circle. (1-1808-1)

SATURDAY NITE IN CAROLINA Theater, Franklin Street or upper quad area. Jules Jurgensen, pink gold wrist watch, brown leather strap. Call L. Jenkins, 411 Manley. Reward. (1-1805-1)

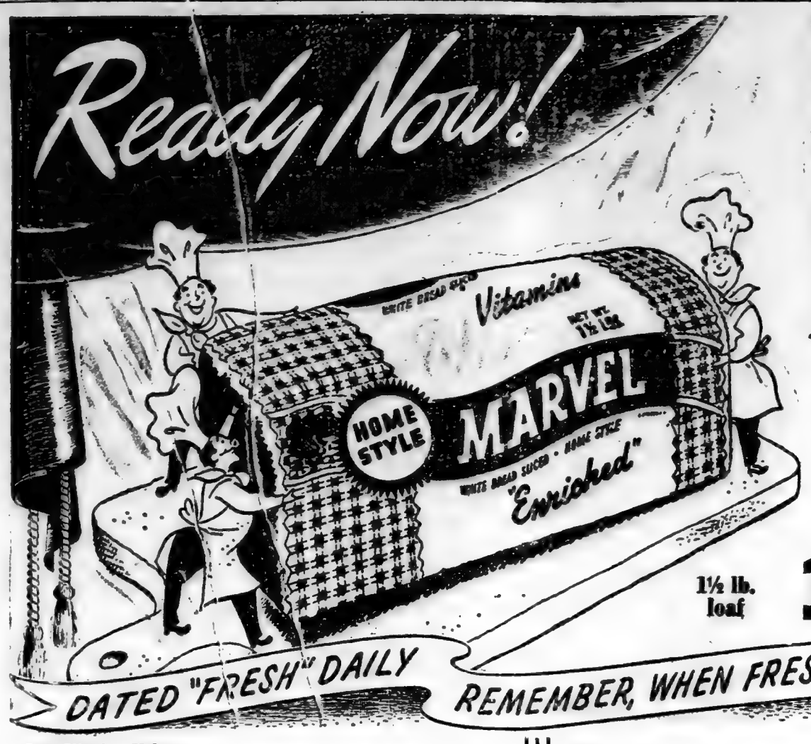
TAKEN BY MISTAKE 20

WILL THE PERSON WHO ACCIDENTly traded his grey gaberdine coat Saturday night for one labelled Blakely, Winchester, Indiana, please contact Barnes, phone 3666. (1-1810-1)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 122 West Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGBURN Furniture Co., Phone 5841. (ch 1x1)



WANTED TO RENT 24B

APARTMENT FOR STUDENT AND wife to occupy around September 15 Reply Box 111 Everett. (1-1804-1)

APARTMENT FOR STUDENT AND wife to occupy about June 10, 1948. Write Box 106 Everett Dorm. (1-1803-1)

NOW PLAYING
VILLAGE

The big new loaf you've been looking for the fine flavor you've been longing for

MARVEL

Enriched Home Style
WHITE BREAD

1½ lb. loaf 18c

with MORE SUGAR...
MORE MILK...
MORE SHORTENING...

A&P SUPER MARKETS

DATED "FRESH" DAILY REMEMBER, WHEN FRESHNESS FADES, FLAVOR FADES

Zona Sliced or Halves
PEACHES Yellow Cling . . . . . No. 2½ Can 25c
Packer's Label Grapefruit or ORANGE JUICE . . 3 No. 2 Cans 25c
DelMonte Dried
PRUNES . . . . . 1-Lb. Pkg. 29c
Campbell's
TOMATO SOUP . . 2 10½-Oz. Cans 21c
Ann Page—With Tomato Sauce
BEANS . . . . . 2 16-Oz. Cans 25c
Nabisco Shredded
WHEAT . . . . . 2 Pkgs. 35c
Sultana Small Sifted
PEAS . . . . . 2 No. 2 Cans 29c
Mott's or Red Cheek
APPLE JUICE . . . . Qt. Bot. 15c
A&P Whole Peeled or Halves Unpeeled
APRICOTS . . . . . No. 2½ Cans 29c

Packer's Label Standard
PEAS . . . . . 3 No. 2 Can 29c
Mild American
CHEESE . . . . . Lb. 55c
Ann Page Spaghetti or
MACARONI . . . . 3 8-Oz. Pkgs. 25c
Libby's or Sultana Fruit
COCKTAIL . . . . . No. 1 Can 24c
Ann Page Salad
DRESSING . . . . . Pt. Jar 33c
Nectar
TEA BAGS . . . . . 50c Pkg. 41c
Ann Page Peach
PRESERVES . . . . . 1-Lb. Jar 23c
Kelloggs
CORN FLAKES . . . . 8-Oz. Pkg. 14c
Sunnyfield Flour for
PANCAKES . . . . . 20-Oz. Pkg. 13c

Other Baked Goods

Enriched Marvel
SANDWICH BREAD . . . . . 18-Oz. Loaf 15c
Jane Parker
HOTCROSS BUNS . . . . . Pkg. 25c
Jane Parker Caramel
TOFFEE BAR . . . . . 12-Oz. Pkg. 27c
Jane Parker Plain or Marble
POUND CAKE . . . . . Each 27c
Jane Parker Plain or Sugared
DOUGHNUTS . . . . . 1-Doz. Pkg. 19c

MILD & MELLOW
8 O'CLOCK COFFEE
1-Lb. Bag 40c · 3 Lb. Bag $1.15
Rich & Full Bodied
RED CIRCLE . . 1-Lb. Pkg. 43c
Vigorous & Winey
BOKAR 1-Lb. Bag 45c · 3 Lb. Bag $1.2[illegible]

Red Bliss
POTATOES, 5 lbs. 37c
CARROTS, 2 bunches 25c
WHITE POTATOES, 10 lbs. 53c
LETTUCE, head 10c
Red Emperor
GRAPES, 2 lbs. 25c
Large Size
GRAPEFRUIT, 4 for 19c
New Green
CABBAGE, 2 lbs 7c
Rome Beauty
APPLES, 3 lbs. 25c
Large Stalk
CELERY 13c
GREEN BEANS, 1 lb. 23c
COCOANUTS, 2 lbs 19c
EGG PLANT, 1 lb. 23c
Turnip and Mustard
GREENS, 2 lbs. 29c
MUSHROOMS, pt. 35c
Spanish Jumbo
ONIONS, 1 lb. 10c
GREEN PEPPERS, 1 lb. 35c
YELLOW SQUASH, 1 lb. 23c

La Choy
CHINESE STYLE FOODS
Bean Sprouts .... 2 No. 2 Cans 25c
Chinese Dinners ..... 18-oz. Can 49c
Chop Suey ..... No. 2 Can 35c
Chow Mein Noodles 4-oz. Pkg. 18c
CHOP SUEY MIX VEGETABLES
No. 2½ Can 27c

Sunnyfield
RICE
12-Oz. Pkg. 15c

Cake Flour ..... Pkg. 41c
Nabisco Oreo
Sandwich ..... 4-oz. Pkg. 15c
20 Mule Team
Borax ..... 1-lb. Pkg. 17c
20 Mule Team
Boraxo ..... 8-oz. Can 19c
Peanut Patch
Peanut Butter 12-oz. Jar 25c
Kitchen Charm
Wax Paper ..... 125 Ft. Roll 17c
Morton's Salt, 2 26-oz. Pkg. 17c

A&P Super Markets

SHORTENING SWIFT JEWEL 1-Lb. Can 34c · 4-Lb. Can $1.33
FLOUR SUNNYFIELD SELF RISING . . . . 5-Lb. Bag 41c · 10-Lb. Bag 80c
RED BAND FLOUR Self Rising ..... 10 Lb. Bag 1.03
MARGERINE Golden Maid . . . . . 1-Lb. Pkg. 35c
dexo A&P's Own Vegetable Shortening . . . . 1-Lb. Can 41c · 3-Lb. Can $1.17
BUTTER SUNNYFIELD CREAMERY IN QTR. LB. PRINTS . . . . . 1-Lb Pkg. 89c
SUGAR Fine Granulated . . . . 5-Lb. Bag 45c · 10 Lb. Bag 89c
SPAGHETTI Ann Page Prepared . . . . 2 [illegible] 23c

Hormel's Dairy Brand
SLICED BACON, lb. 59c
Super Right
CHUCK ROAST, Bone In, lb. 57c
Rib or Loin End
PORK ROAST, lb. 45c
Porterhouse, T-Bone, Club, Pinbone and Sirloin
SUPER RIGHT STEAKS, lb. 79c
PICNIC HAMS, lb. 49c
SHORT RIBS OF BEEF, lb. 33c
END CUT PORK CHOPS, lb. 47c
FAT BACK, lb. 25c
RIB SIDE, lb. 45c
FRYERS, Table Dressed, lb. 65c
HENS, Table Dressed, lb. 55c
FILLET OF HADDOCK, lb. 49c
FILLET OF PERCH, lb. 42c
H & G WHITING, lb. 20c
LARGE SHRIMP, lb. 79c
SELECT OYSTERS, pint 89c
STANDARD OYSTERS, pint 79c

Palmolive Soap Bar 10c
Super Suds Lb. Pkg. 36c
Palmolive Soap 2 Bath Bars 36c
Lifebuoy Soap Bar 10c
Octagon Cleanser Pkg. 7c
Octagon Powder Sm. Pkg. 8c

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Partly cloudy but continued Warm.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Diving Sombrero
Candidate Orientation
Discrimination or Segregation

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 111

Legislature Autonomy, IFC Court, Impeachment Amendments Passed

GOVERNOR R. GREGG CHERRY of North Carolina is shown standing directly behind Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath (at desk) with Governor Benjamin T. Laney of Arkansas (left), and at Cherry's right Governor Preston Lane, Jr., of Maryland and Governor J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina (holding paper). The governors declared their opposition to the administration's anti-discrimination legislation to McGrath, and warned that the Solid South is no longer "in the bag" after McGrath refused to have the legislation withdrawn. (International)

Cherry Says He Does Not Seek Loophole In Feud With President on Civil Rights

Raleigh, Feb. 26—(UP)—Governor R. Gregg Cherry stated today that he is not looking for a loophole so that North Carolina Democrats can sidestep President Truman's Civil Rights program.

Cherry's comment was made in connection with the proposal of Governor William Tuck of Virginia that Virginia legislators okay ommission from the election ballot of names of candidates for presidential electors who would cast their votes exactly as directed by state party leaders. The voter could cast his ballot only for electors—and a party convention or committee could dictate how the electors would vote.

The governor said he does not know whether he would set the pattern for the Southern states in answer to President Truman's plan. He says it might prove to be a loophole other states could use in opposing the Civil Rights program.

He added, "I'm not looking for a loophole. I'm trying to take care of North Carolina's problems and keep the state together."

It would take a special session of the state legislature to follow the pattern under consideration in the neighboring state of Virginia, he said indicating that he is no more favorably inclined than before to a special session of the North Carolina General Assembly.

No Quizes

A letter reminding all faculty members about the University regulation against giving hour quizzes during the week of March 8-12 was sent out by Chancellor Robert B. House this week.

South building officials said that this reminder is being made due to several complaints from students that some professors gave hour exams during the last week of scheduled classes last quarter, a practice that is forbidden by University rule.

Annual Concert Tour Will Begin Tonight

The Men's Glee club, under the direction of Paul Young, left yesterday enroute to Fayetteville, where they will begin their annual concert tour.

The club will present the concert in Wilmington tonight and in Raeford tomorrow. On Tuesday they will sing in High Point.

They will return to the campus for the annual spring concert on Friday.

Of the 165 members of the Glee club, approximately 100 are on the present series of tours.

Douglass, Perreaux Here For IRC Meet

By Dan Wallace

Dr. Paul F. Douglass, nationally known educator and president of American university in Washington, D. C., and Mme. M. Perreaux, secretary-general of the Paris office of the Carnegie Endowment for World Peace will be the chief dignitaries present at the International Relations clubs regional conference here this week-end.

Dr. Douglass will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in Hill hall on "America's Role in Human Survival" and Mme. Perreaux will act in the role of official observer over the conference proceedings.

Four States Represented

Attending this conference will be 150 delegates from colleges and universities of four states. Twenty schools from North Carolina will be represented, among which are WCUNC of Greensboro, N. C. State college of Raleigh, Wake Forest college and Davidson college. The seven schools from Tennessee include University of Chattanooga, and Vanderbilt university of Nashville. Virginia will be represented by fifteen schools among them being Randolph-Macon college of Ashland, Mary Washington college of Fredericksburg, Washington and Lee of Lexington, and William and Mary of Williamsburg. And from Georgia will be Morris Brown college of Atlanta.

"Peace or Pieces"

The theme of the conference is "Peace or Pieces" and six seminars will be conducted to illustrate this. The seminars are listed as follows: Near Eastern Nationalism, European Recovery Plan, United Nations, Declining Imperialism in the Far East, Occupation and the Peace Treaties, and The Political Conditions of Europe.

DR. PAUL F. DOUGLASS

Yack Snapshots Are Still Needed

"Are drinking and partying the only activities of the Carolina gentlemen and Miss Carolina Coed when they're not in classes?" Bill Duncan, the occupant of the hard Yack chair known as the office of picture coordinator, asked yesterday.

The usually genial Duncan was plainly a little discouraged with the snapshots turned in to the yearbook office. In fact, his survey of the aggregation of photos was only worrying him.

"You know," he declared, "there are many things on this campus which belong in the Yack. I don't mean just the Bell tower and the library and the list of accomplishments after a senior's name; I mean all of the little things that make college days a memorable time in our life.

"We want those things in the Yack. Of course, these party scenes are fine, but we want the other things. Sports pictures, the game and the crowd, Y court shots, pictures of friends that will be the key to a lot of happy memories after Carolina days and friends are behind us."

He commented that he had been trying all winter to get the pictures which he knows exist on the campus brought into the Yack's GM office where they could be used in the Yack and returned undamaged to the owner.

At last reports there were ten pages of the big book waiting on snapshots to fill them, and Duncan and a good sized staff waiting to do the filling.

"Any student who has a photograph at all pertinent to the campus is again urged," Duncan said "to turn that snapshot in—for a better Yack and one that is as representative as possible of all that Carolina is."

Methodists Lead UNC Enrollment

A survey compiled by the Central Records office of enrollment statistics for the fall qurater show that there really should be no cause for rivalry between here and Duke university, for one out of every four University students are of the Methodist faith.

The total of 1870 Methodists was closely followed by 1705 who registered a preference for the Baptist church, the statistics show. Coming third are the Presbyterians, 1220 strong, to make up the three major religious denominations represented in the University's last quarter enrollment of 7,528.

The numerically minor groups were the Episcopalians, 875; Christian-Disciples, 152; the Protestants 337; Catholics, 291; Jews, 245; and the Lutherans, 137.

The fifth largest category in the break-down were the 378 students who either indicated "no religious preference" on the registration cards, or else did not bother to fill out the forms.

Other faiths at the school included 47 Congregational-Christians, 32 Christian Scientists, 44 Reformists, 57 Moravians, and 30 members of the Greek Orthodox church.

Among those students listing the more esoteric denominations were three Adventists, four Pentecostal Holiness members, four representatives of the Associated Reformed Presbyterian church, three United Presbyterians, nine members of the Church of Christ, two of the Russian Orthodox, three Universalists, three Mormons, four members of the United church, two Mohammedans, two Hindus, and one Anglican.

Quarterly Bill Is Recommitted By Legislature

By Chuck Hauser

The coed members of the Student Legislature definitely were not "sitting and knitting" last night, but were up in arms over the constitutional amendment which would give the Legislature power to review all legislation passed by the Coed Senate "if it deemed such action necessary."

Their protests were all in vain, however, as the bill to amend the constitution passed along with amendments to constitutionally legalize the court of the Interfraternity council and to give the Legislature the power of impeachment of student government officials.

Quarterly Deferred

The bill to establish a literary quarterly at the University was recommitted at the recommendation of the Finance committee, while a bill to amend the constitution to delete the section categorizing offenses against the student body was defeated, in spite of the efforts of Legislator Ernie House, who stated, "This would be a law taking the place of the Campus Code, which is part of our tradition, and has worked beautifully. For that reason, I recommend that this section be deleted from the constitution."

Under new business on the agenda, the law-making body heard Speaker pro tem Miles Smith present a measure to establish a committee to study the possibilities of setting up a campus post office.

Law, Med Courts

From the special committee set up to look into the judicial provisions of the constitution under the leadership of Basil Sherrill came a proposed constitutional amendment to put into that document provisions for honor courts for the Law and Medical schools.

Also from the committee came recommendations and a bill to amend the constitution to abolish the appellate jurisdiction of the Student council. The amendment provides for the council to hear political and constitutional cases, and to be composed of nine members, at least two of which must be coeds, to be appointed by the president of the student body subject to a two-thirds vote of approval by the Student Legislature.

Chicago University Forum

CCUN State Director Lincoln Kan was extended the privilege of the floor to present a bill to the Legislature providing for at least two delegates to be financially backed on a trip to Chicago to attend the University of Chicago Forum intercollegiate convention on the United Nations.

Parliamentarian Pete Gerns introduced an amendment bill to move the inauguration date for student government officials up from the third Tuesday in April until the third Tuesday in May.

(See LEGISLATURE, page 4)

NC Students Supporting Wallace To Open Convention Tomorrow

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE HENRY WALLACE, who will be discussed at the North Carolina Tar Heel Students for Wallace assembly at the University this weekend, is shown in a happy pose with Senator Glen H. Taylor, who bolted the Democratic party to join the Progressives and aim for their vice-presidential nomination. (International)

Third Party Fans From 25 Colleges To Assemble Here

By Gordon Huffines

The state-wide Tar Heel students for Wallace assembly will convene here tomorrow with a full program of panel discussions and speeches scheduled for the first day. Delegates from more than 25 North Carolina colleges are expected to attend the two-day conference sponsored by the local Wallace club.

The assembly will be officially opened Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Presbyterian Church with Leonard Nel[illegible] executive secretary of the [illegible] Students for Wallace camp[illegible] featured as the principal speaker. Nelson will discuss the nation-wide activities of college students in the Wallace campaign.

Saturday's program will be concluded with an address by James W. Wise, national vice-chairman of the Progressive Citizens of America, at a public rally scheduled for 8 o'clock. A movie, "Time to Act," will also be shown to Wallacites at the "Win with Wallace" meeting.

Student speakers Arthanial Harris, Livingston college; Samuel Grant, North Carolina college; and Doris Friedland of the University will be featured at tomorrow's opening session which will be presided over by Bill Richardson, president of the local Wallace club.

"The Techniques of Practical Politice" will be the theme of panel discussions to be held at 3 o'clock. Led by Mike Ross of the CIO furniture workers, Mary Price, chairman of the North Carolina Progressive party, and Tinsley Spraggins, professor at St. Augustine college, the discussions will be held on methods of organizing Wallace clubs, getting Progressive party petitions signed, and organizing a North Carolina Students for Wallace club.

Outstanding American Poet Robert Frost To Give Public Lecture Wednesday Night

Robert Frost, distinguished American poet and three-time winner of the Pulitzer prize, will give a public lecture in Hill hall next Wednesday evening at 8:30 under the sponsorship of the English department.

According to Dr. Lyman Cotten of the department, Frost never announces the subject of his talks but usually speaks on poetry— his own and others—and its relation to the world today. Well received by the student body, Frost spoke on the campus last year and also in 1943.

He will arrive here Wednesday and probably will remain through the weekend, staying at the home of Dr. Clifford P. Lyons, head of the English department, with whon he is personally acquainted. In addition to his main speech, he will talk informally to several English classes during his stay here.

Called by critics "the most characteristically New England of all the poets," Frost is now 73 years old, and has been retired from active public life since his resignation from the Amherst English department in 1938.

Frost was born in San Francisco, but lived in New England most of his early life. His poetry received no recognition until he moved to England in 1911, where his first two volumes were published, and were warmly received by English critics. He returned to this country in 1915 and has become increasingly popular.

Di in Favor of Loose Restrictions For University Student Elections

The Dialectic Senate favored loose restrictions on candidates for University student elections Wednesday in a meeting which spotlighted nomination qualifications for executive posts in campus publications and student government.

A bill demanding prerequisite service in offices that would further understanding of duties, technicalities, and responsibilities involved was introduced by Charlie Gibson. The discussion which followed led to the overall conclusion that since not enough students were interested in active participation in student government at present, encouragement and not restriction should be extended to anyone aspiring to hold any office, with one exception.

The exception came when the first article in the bill of the evening was passed to the effect that no person should be eligible for the specialized job of publications editorship without first working on the staff of the publications concerned at least two quarters.

Two amendments to this measure were presented by John Severe and John Van Hacke. Severe maintained that one quarter here would be adequate if the candidate-to-be had previous experience at another university. Van Hecke's amendment insisted that one year of work in the journalistic field anywhere should qualify any approved University student for any editorship here.

In spite of this opposition, the article did warrant Di approval in a 13-4 vote before the argument turned to student government posts.

After reaching its decision in two hours, the Dialectic Senate adjourned with an announcement by Speaker Pro Tempore John Zucker that the Senate will meet next week in executive session to elect its officers for the forthcoming quarter and to consider several applications for membership. All Senators are urged to plan ahead to attend this important business session next week.

SQUARE DANCE TONITE

Wesley foundation will entertain all other Chapel Hill church student groups in a mountaineer styled square dance in the Recreation Center beside the Methodist church tonight. Partygoers are asked to "dress for the occasion"—that is, in blue jeans and plaid shirts. Plans for the dance have been completed by the Wesley foundation recreation committee headed by Ed Buckner. All students are invited.

Carolina Chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon Slated for Installation Tomorrow

Beta chapter of the Pi Mu Epsilon, fraternity for national mathematics recognition, will be chartered here tomorrow as the conclusion of a two-day program.

Installing officers for the occasion will be Professor Tomlinson Fort, director-general of Pi Mu Epsilon Inc., head of the Mathematics department at the University of Georgia, and well-known educator and mathematician. The ceremony will take place at 6:15 in the faculty dining room of the Carolina Inn.

The two-day program, which begins at 3:30 this afternoon, will consist of speeches by Oscar K. Rice, Ph.D; Nathan Rosen, Sc.D.; Wayne A. Bowers, Ph.D.; Robert J. Wherry, Ph.D.; Herbert E. Robbins, Ph.D.; Charles L. Marks; John W. Lashley, Jr., Ph.D.; Tomlinson Fort, Ph.D.; Robert B. House, A.M., LL.D., chancellor of the University; and Archibald Henderson, Ph.D., Kenan professor and head of the Department of Mathematics here.

All speeches with the exception of those given at the installation ceremony will be made at 206 Phillips hall.

Officers chosen for the Carolina chapter are Nat Macon, president; Peggy Snow, secretary; Fred Wright, Jr., corresponding secretary; and Archibald Henderson, faculty advisor. The local group consists of 16 charter members and 22 initiates.

Cast of New Musical Comedy, 'Sweep It Clean,' Is Chosen

Cast for the new musical "Sweep It Clean" was announced yesterday by Director Marty Jacobs. The political comedy, already in rehearsal for its April 19 and 20 debut, contains much of the top talent from both the Playmaker and Music departments.

Jim Geiger, seen this year in "Saint Joan" and "Enemy of the People", will portray the corruptible Senator Dodder. Pat Palmer, in tune with her performances in "The Importance of Being Ernest" and "Fashion" portrays the voluptous Gee Gee. Romantic leads of Pat and Sally will be played by Sam Greene, songster of the Mikado and Hilda Frances Lawrence.

Other major roles are handled by Edsel Hughes, Gloria Gunn, Sidney Schertzer, Forrest Covington, Claude (Slats) Rayburn, Sue Shanker, Jim Byrd and Carl Harrell.

The chorous contains Bob McDonald and Sig Swain as Rotary members, David Orr and Bill Cameron as Councilmen, and Charles Morrel, Anne Tucker, Frank Echols, Violet La Rue, George Upchurch, Nell Griffin, Simmons Jones, Edna Dooley and John Moore as the great voting public.

Technical positions are under the charge of Betty Young, stage manager of "Saint Joan". Sets will be designed by Jim Riley, recognized for his Laboratory Theatre work. Lighting will be under the supervision of Jim Byrd, noted for the effective lighting of "Saint Joan", and properties will be handled by Mildred Howard and Elizabeth Dawson.

Seniors Plan Concert, Dance As Final Year Nears Finish

"Eat, drink, and be merry for tomorrow we graduate" would seem to be the motto of Carolina's seniors today as their steering committee works up an extensive program of social functions for the group now finishing.

Second in a series of big events will be a concert to be delivered by the Jimmie Lunceford orchestra on Sunday, March 7. $1.25 has been set as the price of admission for the affair, which will be held in Memorial hall.

The tickets were distributed to members of the steering committee, a group consisting of representatives from each dormitory, fraternity, and town district, and any member of the committee who was not at the meeting has been requested by class treasurer Ben Beale to contact her at the Tri-Delt house for tickets.

According to German club president Bill Tate, the concert will be underwritten by the German club. "We plan to give seniors the first chance at tickets," he said yesterday, "but after the first few days, they will go on sale to the campus at large."

Each member of th[illegible] is expected to d[illegible] tickets to his or her[illegible] this week after whic[illegible] go on general sale in t[illegible] Y court and at other centrally located campus points.

The Raleigh announcer, Sam Beard, will MC the concert. 'Sour Grapes Sam" who is at present doing the "Breakfast with Beard" show for WPTF accepted the invitation late yesterday afternoon.

Meanwhile an effort is being made by Tate and others to secure a name band for the annual junior-senior dance to be held later this spring. At last reports, hopes were high that a really 'top-flight' orchestra could be obtained.

Mills-Stones

You Tell Me Your Dream and I'll Tell Lucy's

By Barron Mills

The Kinstonian who entered the gubernatorial race yesterday by plunking down his $150 fee may not be a big worry for the other candidates, but according to my line of reasoning he's a sure winner.

You see Mr. William Franklin Stanley, the 40-year-old ex-mayor of Kinston, entered the field on a dream. All of his previous dreams have come true. Now we are not the type that believes in superstition and every dream we hear, but this one is different. This is a dream that came to Mr. Stanley while he was napping at the Carolina Inn here.

Carolina Inn is the place where Lucy, my girl friend of two years ago, was staying on the German club weekend when she had her dream. I'm glad that she didn't dream that she could be governor; it was bad enough to convince her she could not wow every man in Chapel Hill. But she did.

What I didn't know was the two girls she was rooming with at the Inn had very set ideas about what they required of the males in their presence. Now as I look back on the situation I figure that this is what happened:

Lucy and the two other young gals had a regular hen session and then Lucy got tired of their yapping and decided to get some shut-eye before the dance. While she slept, the girl from Birmingham related her techniques for wowing the menfolks. It seems that she always got her Jim to realize her preciousness by making him wait for her at least 45 minutes after he arrived to pick her up.

The New England lassie said that the way she made the life of the party was by wearing sophisticated clothes and by using her irrestible charm. But that is neither here or there. I certainly didn't believe that they, and a dream, would corrupt poor little Lucy.

Now I had taken Lucy to many a dance before this happened, none afterwards, but never had I seen such doing as that youngster did that evening.

I didn't mind waiting for her 55 minutes because I talked about tulip bulbs that are shipped from the Netherlands with a retired garter manufacturer, so when sweet Lucy got off that elevator, the retired garter and I did not even arise. I didn't recognize her.

She stood over at the elevator for fully ten minutes—I guess she was awaiting my approach, but how could I approach if I didn't even recognize her.

I was awakened to the fact that it was Lucy by a loud voice, 'Mr. Mills."

I jumped straight out of the chair, returned the greeting with a loud "Lucy," and ran over to the damsel to examine her transformation.

She looked like hell. Her usually dangling blond curls were piled on top of a usually intelligent head. Her eyebrows had been picked cleaner than a turkey on Thanksgiving eve and replaced by a charcoal line. Her usually dainty evening dress (which I remember her wearing on a previous occasion) had been mutilated. The straps had been cut entirely off and even the top several inches to make the dress "more sophisticated."

I probably could have stood her all right during the dance since I didn't have to look at her face. Her soft touch in my arms felt the same, but she insisted that we should not dance our usual "Sandhills Shuffle." She wanted to try some new-fangled dancing that nobody had ever seen before. I guess she got what she had coming to her, because that new dance began the rush. It must have been an ecstatic masterpiece.

It began a run on her dancing. It seemed like everyone in the gym danced with her at least twice—except me when I got cut in the first time I left. There wasn't any need in my staying around. Lucy could walk the short distance back to the Carolina Gym, so I went back to the dorm and turned in after a hectic evening.

Personally, I believe in all dreams which occur in the Carolina Inn. But I would be more than willing to be Mr. Stanley's campaign manager.

Orientation for Candidates

Only a glance at any one of the front pages of this publication for the past few days is enough to convince even the most dubious of individuals that the political salvos have already begun to sound.

Party meetings, a renewed interest in the state of the campus and, in general, the political activity is a spring tonic to create interest in all campus life

As we heard one young lady express it just yesterday, "Does everything begin to become interesting during the spring. Why, there are so many things going on that I don't have time for everything I would like to attend and take an active part in."

The answer to such a question is in the affirmative. It is generally conceded that the spring, around this University at least, is the prime of the year. Everything is in the pink. The organizations have become much closer-knit groups. The leadership has lost its frantic feeling at the mention of duties to be performed and is only now beginning to feel secure and able to take things in its stride. This is the unfortunate part of college career. It takes too long for the campus to get running smoothly.

A possible solution was offered last year by Student Body President Dewey Dorsett and other student government officers when they proposed that the incumbent officers and nominees for student government positions begin an orientation process.

Last year it was proposed that a week be set aside as a period of concentrated orientation of the particular duties of each position. Possibly the week of orientation could be inaugurated with a banquet and end with a dance or some social event. Some type of informality is necessary for closer relationship and thus a greater concept of the duties.

In addition to such a week of orientation it is necessary for a student to see the officer who holds the position to which the student seeks election. Now, during the period that the budget committee is considering the budget of organizations for next year, would be an opportune time for potential candidates for the secretary-treasurer of the student body to get an insight into the duties.

If student government would organize a training week for potential officers, chances are that next year student government will take on added zest at the beginning of the year rather than waiting until the close of the officers' term.

Discrimination or Segregation?

The Daily Tar Heel is guilty of an evil which it has fought. On several occasions, we have deplored the fact that persons, in mentioning separate educational facilities for the Negroes of the South, use "discrimination" rather than "segregation."

Too often these words have been used interchangeably, something which cannot be done with accuracy. It is true that in some sections of the South, (some localities in North Carolina could be accused of this) the Negro schools are not of equal standing with the white schools. In cases such as this, it is discrimination. If both white and Negro schools are equal in equipment, instruction and facilities, then there is no need to confuse the two words.

Yesterday the staff member who wrote the headline on the Phi Assembly defeating a proposal to admit a limited number of Negroes to the University on an experimental basis used "discrimination" in the headline when that word was not even mentioned in the body of the article.

So the word is still used interchangeably and "segregation" will continue to be used synonymously with "discrimination" until we see to it that the two school systems are equal.

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

"There are four stages in modern warfare—psychological, biological, atomic, and gastronomic."

Write Away

Rope and Diving Sombrero

Senor Editor

For much time now I am your University and never am I making big complaint. I am eating the food in your Lenoir and I am smiling. I am standing in line at your Teatros and I am standing in line at your Ptomaine's and never once am I making with the face of a sour boar. I am listening to the CPU, Di, Phi, UVA, CC, BVD, UMT, and pretty soon you know I am thinking maybe I like this place a leetle. I am laughing out loud for all the complaints that the hombres make with the Mag, Senor Hodgson's Damnation, El Politicos and the weather. But today I am thinking maybe I too write into the Tar Heel with the typewriter I borrow from a friend.

I am big athletic supporter so when the White Spirits and the followers of Senor Snavely make with the big sports I go down to the Wooden Jimnasium or the Keenan Solarium to watch and cheer the gringos like Diable for to win. I think I do right because many times when I make the cheer the team she win. Other night I go with my good friend for to see the swimming meat. I live in lower rectangle with my friends. For to go to Jimnasium I and my friend make the walk on the road of dirt by the new brick lavatories where the students they will live soon I think.

The window Upstairs she is broken that day and the rain she is coming in. I am thinking one of the holes on the road is only a couple feet of deep and if I make the fall I am climbing out pronto for my friend I know he will help me. Madre No! The holes they are not a couple of feet of deep. They are maybe two yard and a feet and maybe more, maybe. The road she got many such holes and I think but for my friend who know this before and bring a rope and diving sombrero I be in this hole still. My friend he tell me if I make the walk many times on road of dirt soon I become Blue Salmon for Senor Jamerson. I do not know this senor but I do not think I like so hard work for to be Salmon.

I think maybe I whip around the cactus but Senor Editor it is not alone for myself that I worry. Maybe some of the Cow-eds and the others do not have friends with a rope and diving sombrero and they drown maybe. Is then no one left for to make the cheers. Why for they do not make the Big-Fit on the road of dirt? Is cheaper than to hire my friend who charges two pesos for the hour and sometimes loses the rope.

Guillermo Payeff

Just Here

Architecture Notes; Let There Be Lux; Free Conclusions

By Larry Berry

Maybe I am one of the few persons who admire the architecture on the Carolina campus, but to me it symbolizes the progress made at the University and reflects the trends of architectural change over the years. Also we get an idea of how large the human foot should be from the various stairways in and on the buildings.

When the library was built, the architects seem to have thought it fit for a man to have a long foot to enable him to slide down gracefully, while when Old East was constructed people were expected to do something of a light fantastic. The crux of this matter is that when we are approaching buildings on the campus, especially at night, we run into a problem for each building.

No looking forward to sapping the University power supply to excess, or to running the career of some campus Don Juan, but to taking a load off our eyes, I would like to see a slightly better illumination of some of the more heavily traveled portions of our campus. The only well-lighted portion of same (excluding the sporadic ones who believe that spirits conquer the dark) is the porch of Graham Memorial, which has no steps to bother one. I am not proposing flood lights to lend a San Quentin aspect to the area, but merely adequate lighting for the preservation of our limbs for the future.

Last Sunday night I attended one of the finest concerts I have heard given by a small symphony orchestra. Congratulations are in order for Mr. Slocum and his fellow-musicians who gave the campus an all-star concert. The pity of the performance was the audi-

(See JUST HERE, page 4)

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Marshall Lacks Foresight

By Drew Pearson

Washington — Having known and liked George Marshall ever since he was an Army colonel, I don't relish criticizing him in his difficult role of Secretary of State

However, it seems to me Marshall's greatest fault has been the failure to apply to peace a lesson he must have learned long ago in war—namely that victory goes to the side which takes the offensive.

This axiom is just as true for the diplomat as it is for the soldier. No Secretary of State can be static and be successful. He cannot wait for trouble to edge up on him. He has to go out and meet his diplomatic problems before they become too tough to unravel. In dipiomacy as in war, he has to pick the most advantageous battlefield.

This is the chief reason why the Palestinian problem has become so dangerous.

Always difficult, Secretary Mrashall has made it more so by a policy of delay. While precious minutes have ticked by, tempers flared and the Palestinian problem became more insoluble, George Marshall has done little except complain to his Undersecretary, Bob Lovett, that Lovett got him into an awful mess.

And while the Secretary of State stood almost pathetic in his paralysis, his cabinet colleague, James Forrestal, and his own Near Eastern experts were almost openly flaunting the official U. S. policy on Palestine.

The effect on the Arabs of this open opposition was quite simple. It lit bonfires under Arab hopes —thereby making Marshall's problem all the more difficult.

The last time war upset the peace of the Western Hemisphere was about twenty years ago when Bolivia threatened to invade Paraguay. Frank B. Kellogg was then Secretary of State—not a polished diplomat, but one who believed in heading off trouble before he had to meet it head on.

At the first sign of Paraguyan-Bolivian belligerency, Kellogg summoned the leading Latin-American statesmen to Washington, enlisted the prestige of Charles Evans Hughes and rolled up such solid public opinion against war that hostilities were stopped. In fact, Kellogg's shirtsleeve diplomacy held off war for two solid years, and the only thing that defeated him was a $20,000,000 munitions loan to the Bolivian Army by the banking firm of the very same James Forrestal who now champions the Arabs.

Another Secretary of State who believed in heading off diplomatic trouble before it got started was Henry L. Stimson. When Russia and China began making faces over the Chinese Eastern Railroad in 1930, Stimson summoned the entire diplomatic corps, wrote strong diplomatic notes, made those notes public, and vigorously mobilized world opinion against war.

The two armies were demobilized.

Again when the Japanese Army staged its famous Manchurian incident in 1931, Stimson saw this isolated skirmish for what it really was—the beginning of the Jap conquest of China.

And for two years, using diplomatic pressure, public opinion and the feeble power of the League of Nations, he kept the Japs at bay. If he had had any kind of support from the isolationist President then in the then in the White House—Herbert Hoover—he might have succeeded.

Unfortunately, George Marshall, even when Chief of Staff, did not seem to realize that ability to look ahead is the measure of true statesmanship.

Wartime secrecy obscured many of the vital decisions in which Marshall was involved, but here are two of them.

Early in 1940, Roosevelt was urged to send England and France a quantity of old American rifles, some left over from World War I, some even from the Spanish-American War. The British had dangerously depleted their arsenals and Churchill was frantic. He told Roosevelt the British Army would have to resist with bare hands and bottle.

But while the U. S. Army admitted these old rifles were of no value to us, General Marshall, then Chief of Staff, opposed sending them to France and England. He maintained that Congress wouldn't like it. Roosevelt, however, overruled him. The rifles were shipped.

One year earlier, the Chief of Staff had shown similar lack of foresight when it came to aviation planning. And at one h[our] White House session it fell to [the] lot of a civilian to argue the g[en]erals into a big air progra[m].

The civilian was the late Herman Oliphant, then General Counsel of the Treasury Department. The military men present were General Marshall, Gen. Hap Arnold, head of the Air Corps, and Adm. Harold Stark, Chief of Naval Operations.

The meeting was early [in] At it Oliphant argued [that] there was certain to be war in Europe; (2) that when [that] the job of the United [States] would be to give its [friends in] Western Europe not a handful [of] planes, but a minimum of [50,000] planes; and (3) the United States must immediately launch a program of 50,000 new airplanes.

General Marshall, however, was opposed. He thought the idea of 50,000 planes was preposterous. So did General Arnold. And the significant thing is that the 1939 Army budget, prepared for 1940 by the General Staff which Marshall headed, provided for only six flying fortresses. This is a matter of record which any Doubting Thomas can check for himself.

In other words, the Chief of Staff simply lacked the ability to look ahead and see what air power would mean in the impending war.

Roosevelt and Henry Morgenthau, however, overruled the generals and backed up Oliphant. That White House meeting in 1939 was how the 50,000-airplane program began.

Getting back to diplomacy there are quite a few moves which a Secretary of State could have made to head off trouble in Palestine—in fact, still can make. Tomorrow this column will discuss some of them.

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

—Latest inspiration of the Graham Memorial Travel Agency is working with Carolina Trailways to run a special bus direct from the campus to New York City and return. . .This bus would leave March 17 or 18; return on the 24th; and the cost would be LESS than normal round trip fare!.

This Changing World

'Stay Away From Politics'

By Bill Robertson

In the middle of the last century the reactionary political and military leaders in European countries took a great deal of interest in what was going on in their educational institutions. They frequently gave orders about how things should be run. In one such case the Governor-General of a province sent the students attending a university under his jurisdiction a letter from which we quote the following:

You gentlemen may dance, play cards, flirt with other men's wives, frequent women . . . but stay away from politics or I will throw you out of the university.

It is a general characteristic of reactionaries (that is, those groups which have power which would be threatened by democratic political movements) to do everything they can to suppress the expression of democratic thought and action. Here in the state of North Carolina powerful economic and political groups have taken a serious interest in our higher educational institutions. In particular, they have besome the openly secret censors of liberal thoughts on this campus. They sit on the board of trustees and attempt to suppress the democratic ideas that honest students have developed. They attempt to frighten and silence members of the faculty who dare to instill these ideas.

But in spite of such tactics it is obvious that a healthy, democratic spirit is growing among the students. This is particularly true because so many of us are veterans, and have therefore tended to fight against the general "ivory tower" set-up which was so much stronger in pre-war years. (A set-up about which the reactionaries did not complain).

We students are seeking the answer to pressing practical problems like the housing shortage, high prices, the lack of opportunities for secure jobs, the threat of another depression, and the ravings of Bullitt and Earle about an all-out atomic war.

Under these circumstances it is quite natural that increasing numbers of us "suit the action to the word"; that we are becoming militantly progressive; that we are organizing; that we are taking a serious interest in politics and beginning to establish contact with like-minded students on other campusses; that we are joining a broad people's movement under the leadership of Henry A. Wallace in order to fight against those who are responsible for the present sorry state of affairs.

Such is the explanation of the activities of liberal and progressive students taking place on our campus this week-end. These activities will constitute to the warmongers and the race-baiters and, in the words of a great fighter against slavery,—"we shall be heard."

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Cliff
5—Period of time
8—Father
12—Heckled (slang)
13—To steal
14—Chilled
15—Root edge
16—He walked from fiery furnace
18—In stripe out
20—Paradise
21—At no time
23—Slip of tongue
27—To permit
29—Vow
31—Edible nut
32—Beetle
34—Stadiums
35—Spice
37—Part of church
39—To stain
40—To slip by furtively
42—Peas and beans
44—To heap
46—Little arrows
49—Romantic persons
53—To plunder
54—Wine
55—High card
56—Moon goddess
57—Sweetsop
58—Owing
59—River in Belgium

DOWN

1—Western Indian
2—Loud noise
3—Benefit
4—Water birds
5—Axe
6—Man's name
7—In bed
8—Light sailing boat
9—Aviator
10—Fastener
11—Fuse
17—One of the U. S. (abbr.)
19—Cry of Bacchants
22—To deserve
24—Huge and unwieldy
25—To kill
26—Comfort
27—Smaller
28—Dash
30—To possess
33—Samovars
35—To peruse
38—Brief view
41—Family
43—Onrush
45—Heavy metal
47—Sound
48—Heavenly body
49—Resort
50—Cooking utensil
51—Native metal
52—To observe

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

NIGHT EDITOR: Charlie Gibson — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Charlie Gibson — NIGHT SPORTS: Bob Goldwater

Phantoms Play Final Contest On Schedule Against Duke In Durham Tonight

Blue Devils in Need Of Victory to Gain SC Tourney Berth

By Dick Jenrette

Carolina and Duke, the perennial rivals in all sports, meet for the second time this season in spacious Duke indoor stadium tonight at 8 o'clock in a Southern conference tilt that will determine the Blue Devils' chances of making the loop tournament. The game is the last regularly scheduled contest for both teams.

For Duke, the game will either make or break its hopes for making the tournament next week. Coach Gerry Garard's cagers haven't missed the annual classic since it was transferred from Atlanta to Raleigh and thence to Durham, but this season the Dukes have only a 7-6 won-lost mark within the loop. A win over Carolina would assure them of a berth, but defeat would mean virtual elimination from further consideration.

Determined Devils

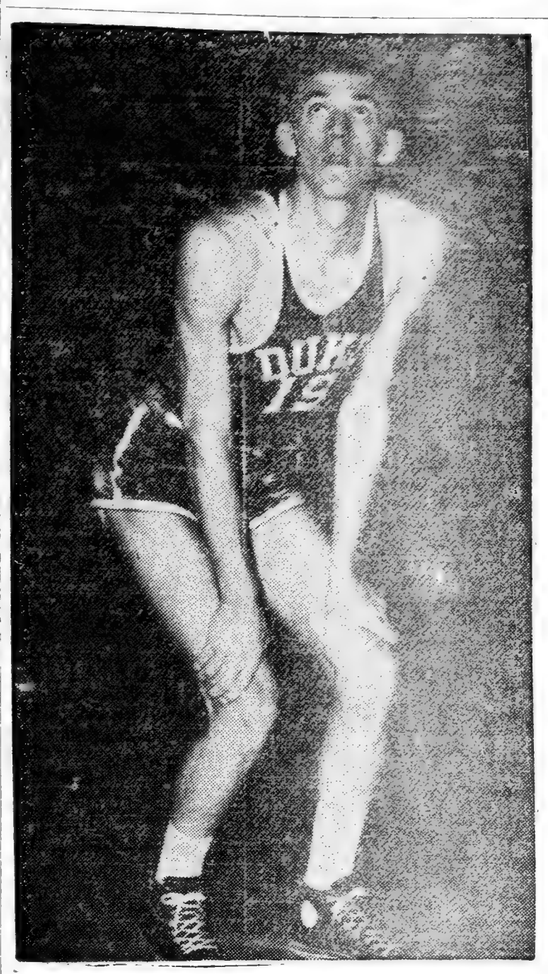
Thus the Devils can be expected to come up one of their most determined games of the season. Proof that Duke will put up a spirited fight against Carolina is indicated by their miraculous 49-48 victory over Wake Forest this week. The Durham school had to score four points in the last minute of play in order to cop that one. Coach Gerard will have his boys fired with that same spirit tonight, and the Phantoms will have to be at their best to win.

Carolina was victorious over Duke, 48-42, in the first meeting between the two clubs this year. Nevertheless, the Devils managed to hold the lead for much of the game. And since that time Duke has shown improvement, holding State to a one-point victory in one of its games.

Rated Tossup

Most experts rate tonight's fray as a tossup. Carolina has by far the superior won-lost record, boasting 19 wins and five losses for the year. Yet the Phantoms are minus two of their key men that figured prominently in that record—Bill Miller and Norm Kohler, and in recent games they have only a 7-5 record. Carolina won its first 12 games this year.

The Blue Devil fans take hope in the fact that their team was able to edge out Wake Forest on the Deacon's court while Carolina lost to Wake by 53-47 in Wake Forest. Also they point with pride to their fine showing against State in the first meeting, overlooking the return contest in which the Wolfpack routed the Dukes.



Coach Tom Scott's Carolina club will be out to take win No. 20 in the season finale. A 52-46 triumph over a tough Davidson team in Charlotte this week provided them with their 19th win, and if the Phantoms display the same form they showed in that outing, they should be able to take the Devils' measure tonight.

Very Good at Times

On occasions during the Davidson encounter, the Phantoms looked as good as any Carolina team in a number of years, including the great 1945-46 outfit. For the first eight minutes of the second half they tallied 22 points, great scoring for any team. However, the team appeared a bit tired from this sudden rampage, and Davidson rallied in the last 12 minutes to con-

(See PHANTOMS, page 4)

Mermen In Atlanta, Face Tech Today

ANXIOUSLY AWAITING TONIGHT'S tipoff time of 8 o'clock as shown above by his ready-for-jump pose, is big Ben Collins, lanky Duke pivotman. The six-foot, five-inch center is one of his team's leading scorers and is rated as one of the top players at that position in the conference.

Complete Scoring Totals Give Frat Boxing Crown to Sigma Chi

Although the Zetes registered three first places in the recently completed boxing tournament, Sigma Chi walked off with the team trophy in the fraternity division because of the mural department's scoring system which favors organizations that enter large teams.

The Zetes received ten place points for their effort, but that only brought them up to fourth place in the overall standings. The best Sigma Chi could get was one first and a second place for three place points, but they finished with a division-leading total of 123 points.

The Phi Gams also scored a first and a second to come in next with 99.28 markers. Phi Delt didn't gain any place credits, but still finished third with 89.34. The Zetes came in next with 78.48, and were followed by the TEP leatherslingers who notched 71.92. TEP scored one first and two seconds for seven place counters.

Emerson Sweep

There was no question of Emerson's victory in the dorm division. They took four firsts for 10 points and counted a total of 130. Mangum, Seiler Five, Stacy, and Town tied for second with equal totals of four place and 24 overall points. The first two organizations counted one first place each while the latter two each notched a pair of runner-up spots.

Among the ream of facts and figures released yesterday by the intramural department were the complete results of the swimming tournament. They show that eight dormitory and independent organizations entered 30 individuals, while 13 fraternities entered 156 men.

New Records

This year the distances were measured in yards instead of meters as had been done in the past and, as a result, the winning times in each event constituted a new intramural record. Times in the finals were the only ones recorded this year, but in the next tournament, speeds in the semi-finals will count toward new standards.

Soccer Results

Zeta Psi 1	Phi Gam 3
Beta 3	ATO 1
Lewis 3	Everett 2
Phi Gam 1	Chi Psi 1

CAGE SCORES

Richmond 64	Maryland 62
Holy Cross 67	Dartmouth 56
Princeton 71	Harvard 55
CCNY 75	Brooklyn 55

REHDER'S
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

Dolphins Favored To Gain Revenge For 1947 Defeat

Carolina's undefeated Blue Dolphins shoved off from Raleigh early last night for Atlanta, determined, during their two day sojourn in the Peach State capital, to wreck more havoc on Georgia Tech's and Emory university's current unbeaten aquatic records in the two meets than Sherman did to the city back in the intersectional disturbance of the 1860's.

The weekend's capers will decide the collegiate championship of the South for the three teams are among the only swimming aggregations representing institutions of higher learning below the Mason-Dixon line that still sport unblemished records. The locals are favored to cop both tilts despite the heavy action in a short time.

Seek Revenge

The Dolphins will be churning the waters of the Engineer's pool with special vigor tonight for by wrecking the Rambling Techs, they'll gain revenge for last year's 41-34 setback at the hands of the Jawya boys. That tear inducing topping by the Techs was the Dolphins' first home and Southern loss since 1940, so a victory will be all the more sweet.

Not only will the Pale Blue mermen be seeking their eighth consecutive victory of the year and eleventh since their last defeat, but several of the locals will be out to prove their individual supremacy in several events.

The big feature of the night will be a battle between ace endurance man Dick Twining and fresh-water marathoner Johnny Hiles of the hosts. The two will lock fins in both the 220 and 440 freestyles and the victor will probably be crowned as the unofficial distance man of the South.

Backstroke Duel

Another outstanding individual dual will find Ed Flowers of Tech and young Jim Thomas and one-man-team Norm Sper splashing it out in the 150-yard backstroke. Flowers is undefeated thus far this year and a good scrap should be on tap.

Tech is nowhere near as strong as they were last year for several weeks ago they had trouble subduing Duke, 38-37. Despite the fact that they used several subs in the lineup, the Engineers were pressed to emerge victorious as well as dripping from the Duke pool.

Emory on Saturday

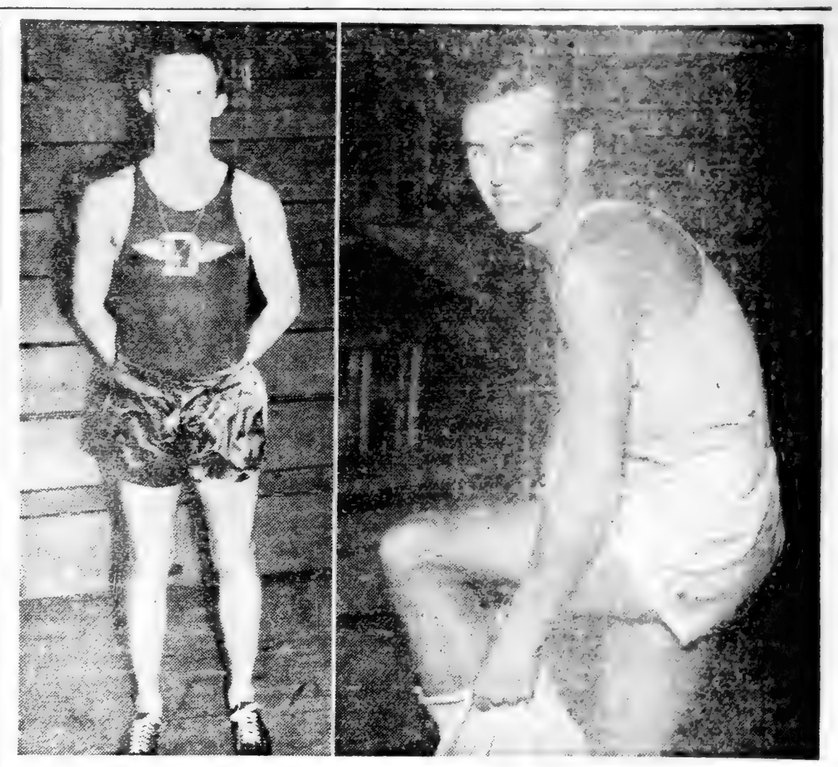
On Saturday afternoon the Dolphins, minus Coach Dick Jamerson who'll have returned to Chapel Hill to announce the track meet, will journey to the city's outskirts to face Emory univeristy's mermen.

Another individual battle, featuring Bob Ousley and Jerry Cook against No. 2 Southern breaststroker Joe Bank, will be the meet's big noise.

Tourney Bids Out—But Not State—Yet

New York, Feb. 26 —(UP)— Three of the nation's top basketball aggregations, Western Kentucky, Texas, and St. Louis, have accepted bids to compete in the National Invitational basketball tournament to be held in Madison Square Garden beginning March 11 and winding up on the 17th. This year's tourney will be the 11th of the series.

Western Kentucky sports the best overall record of the three, having chalked up 24 victories while suffering only one setback. St. Louis' Billikens have emerged victorious from 19 out of 21 games—both losses dealt by the Oklahoma Aggies. The Longhorns of Texas hold an 18-4 won-and-loss slate.



(State's high-scoring Wolfpack are still waiting for their exepected invitation. Athletic Director J. L. VonGlahn maintains that he expects the bid to arrive in the next few days)

Diamond Sessions Move to Emerson

The sun was out yesterday and so was the Carolina baseball practice. Taking advantage of the warm weather, Coach Bunn Hearn, assistants Walt Rabb and Henry House, and 40-odd diamond hopefuls moved their drills from the Tin Can to a field that for want of a better name can go by the title of Southwest Emerson.

As was the case on Wednsday, the first day of official practice, yesterday's session was composed of pitchers and catchers. Several other returning veterans from the 1947 team—infielders and outfielders both—also turned out to limber up prior to the call for all baseball candidates to report.

Such a summons will be made for Monday afternoon, at which time the coaching staff expects to greet a good many hopefuls for all positions. The group will report to Emerson if the good weather prevails, otherwise a short meeting will be held in the Tin Can.

TWO OF THE many outstanding performers set to appear in the Southern Invitational indoor games here tomorrow night are shown above. On the left is Loren Young, Duke's star middle-distance runner. Well known to Carolina track fans is Jack Milne, right, mile and two-mile ace and the 1947 NCAA cross-country champion.

Pole Vaulters Seek Heights In Indoor Meet's 'Top' Event

By Morty Schapp

(This is the last in a series of articles analyzing the various events in the Indoor games.)

As the old saying goes, save the best for the last, so it is with the pole vault. Vaulting is one of the events in a track meet that requires the most skill in a competitor. A good pole vaulter must have the speed of a sprinter, the lift of a high jumper, the stamina of a distance man and the coordination of a discus thrower.

Tomorrow night's Sixth Annual Southern Invitation meet to be held in Woollen gym will find the pole vaulters going into battle at 6:45 and the field boasts several potential fine vaulters. The winner last year, Carolina's Norm McLeod, has graduated and to take his place Coach Ranson will send Rusty Russell and Hank Hickman into action. Hickman was not in competition last year but in 1946 he tied for fifth place in the IC4A.

The probable winner, or the man to beat in this event, is Martin Korek of Tennessee. Korek won the Philadelphia Inquirer event in 1946 and has done better than 13 feet on numerous occasions. Duke also boasts some top jumpers in John Colvin, Bob Bowles and Ed Jackson.

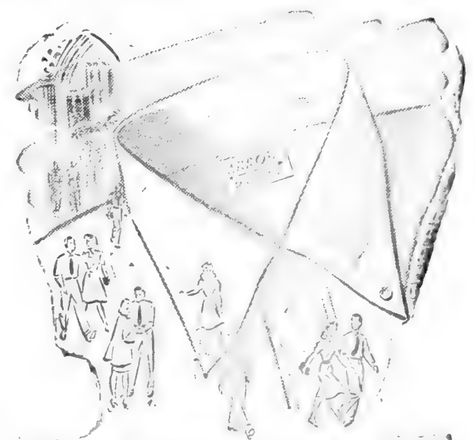
Track Meet Tickets

There are still a few tickets available for the Indoor track meet to be reeled of here Saturday night, but they are being sold rapidly. Students may obtain tickets for seventy-five cents plus coupon 21. General admission is $1.50. The tickets are good for both the afternoon and evening events.

QUALITY FURNISHINGS
at
E. A. Brown Furniture Co.
Next to City Hall
Phone 6586

HOW GOOD A SPORTS FAN are You?

- How do hot dogs affect the pay of baseball players?
- Who'll grab Jack Kramer's amateur tennis crown?
- Who is the superman who threatens U. S. Olympic track laurels?
- What does a "king-size" doorway have to do with basketball scores?
- Name the "Big 4" threatening golfer Bobby Locke!
- Who won the bitter battle for our top college football star?



Brush up on all the answers. Read Bill Fay's new, lively sports feature exclusively in Collier's every week. Keep ahead of the headlines with the brilliant young maker of scoops. Happy cramming with

Bill Fay

NOW EVERY WEEK IN Collier's

Get your copy each Friday at your college book store or

The ORIENTAL
Chinese-American Restaurant
116 E. Parrish Street
Durham, N. C.

ARROW GORDON OXFORDS BACK IN CAMPUS STYLE PICTURE!

N. Y., Jan., 1948... Cluett, Peabody & Co., Inc., makers of Arrow products, announce the return of their fine Gordon oxford cloth shirts for college men.

1. FENWAY—Arrow's new oxford shirt with a button-down collar which comes in white, stripes, and solid colors.
2. DOVER—The classic of the button-downs with a medium point roll collar.
3. SUSSEX—Smartest of the wide-spread stay collars.
4. DOUBLER—The shirt that doubles for dress and sports. A regular length collar.
5. BROCKLY—Another fine oxford in medium point collars.

See your Arrow dealer now and place your order for your favorite style in Gordon oxford.

ARROW SHIRTS and TIES
UNDERWEAR • HANDKERCHIEFS • SPORTS SHIRTS

TRIPLE
MEAL VALUES
for Lunch and Dinner

1. AA-1 SIRLOIN STEAK $1.10
   Slaw, Lettuce, Potatoes
   Bread & Butter
2. CHOICE HAM STEAK PLATE 85c
   Sweet Potatoes, Pineapple,
   Bread & Butter, Drink
3. CHOPPED SIRLOIN STEAK PLATE 85c
   Vegetables, Bread & Butter, Drink

Danziger's
Old World Coffee House

GO TRAILWAYS
TO GREENSBORO, ASHEVILLE and CHARLOTTE
Leave Chapel Hill: 2:05 AM, 4:10 AM, 8:10 AM, 11.05 AM, 2:10 PM, 5:05 PM, 6:30 PM, 9:45 PM
CHAPEL HILL BUS STATION
Phone 4281
Carolina TRAILWAYS
Trailmasters

Lana's magnificent as Marianne... who stole the man her sister loved... it's M-G-M's great picturization of the prize-winning novel!
GREEN DOLPHIN STREET
LANA TURNER
VAN HEFLIN
DONNA REED
RICHARD HART
FRANK MORGAN • EDMUND GWENN
DAME MAY WHITTY • REGINALD OWEN
GLADYS COOPER
Directed by VICTOR SAVILLE
Produced by CAREY WILSON
A METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PICTURE
TODAY
CAROLINA

Varsity

AMONG the arrivals on the liner Argentina in New York is Norma Raymond, 25, an American singer. She is wearing the low-cut dress that caused a near-riot when she wore it in the streets of Buenos Aires, Argentina. Police there took Miss Raymond into protective custody when she sought refuge in a store to avoid a mob of "shocked" Latin Americans.
(International)

-Just Here-

(Continued from page 2)

ence. While we might have been said to be enthusiastic, we were too few in number.

I have heard a few reasons explaining this small attendance, which range from the idea prevalent that the place would have been too packed to warrant the trouble to go, to the assertion that symphonies just are not worth the time when a good bull session is in progess.

This lack of enthusiasm is a regular feature of most of our campus happenings, except the Playmakers to some extent, and the football game, which are overcrowded, plus a few other obvious exceptions. (During the past week the Division of Humanities offered an interesting and informative lecture on "The Plight of Venus," or in other words, a layman's history of the schools of art and artistic interpretation. Again the performance was unaccompanied by the student body.)

It took me a couple of years to realize that these various concerts, lectures, etc. on campus were for the benefit of students, and not just a way for some screwballs to peddle their ideas. I am just passing my conclusions on to you for free.

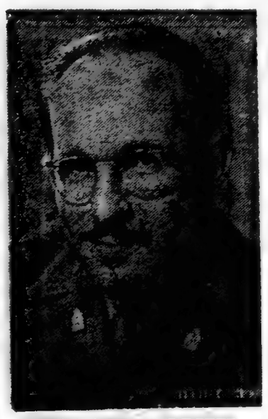
SENIOR CLASS INVITATIONS

The Order of the Grail Invitation committee is taking orders for senior class invitations during the next nine days. Members of the Grail will be in the Y this morning at 9 o'clock. There is no financial transaction—invitations are to be paid for when they are delivered on or about May 4.

JUDGES HAVE FIELD DAY

Albuquerque, N. M. —(UP)—A district court here was crammed with judges, both past and present. Three judges were hearing cases, while three former district judges were listening to the proceedings.

AGAIN TOGETHER! AGAIN TERRIFIC!
HUMPHREY BOGART
LAUREN BACALL
WARNER BROS. HIT!
DARK PASSAGE
with BRUCE BENNETT · AGNES MOOREHEAD · TOM D'ANDREA
TODAY
VILLAGE



Rabbi Decter To Speak Tonight

Just Returned From Mission To D. P. Camps

Rabbi Aaron Decter, who has just returned from a mission in the D. P. Camps in Germany and Austria on behalf of the World Jewish congress and the Labor Zionist Relief committee, will be the guest speaker at services tonight in Roland Parker lounge at 7:30.

The rabbi, who is now at Temple Tiferath Israel, one of the larger conservative synagogues in Boston, was previously Senior Jewish Chaplain in the Allied liberated countries, and served more than two years overseas in England, France Belgium, Holland, Germany and several other countries.

He also visited Jewish communities in Greece, Italy and the Middle East. During his travels he spent five weeks in Palestine as the guest of the Yishuv, and while there he served in liason with Jewish communal leaders of Europe and military authorities. and cooperated in activities of the Jewish brigade. He was also the first chaplain to consult with Berl Locker and Lishu Dobkin, the

RABBI AARON DECTER

DP's whom our troops liberated.

Rabbi Decter is an honored graduate of Yeshiva university, and the Jewish Theological seminary of America. He received his doctorate from Dropsie college. Former literary editor of the Jewish Record, a Canadian Jewish monthly, the rabbi has been active in the leadership of community councils and in the movement for adult and youth education.

-Legislature-

(Continued from page 1)

creating a "Lame Duck" term of office which would last for over a month.

Rubish, Sherrill In

Mike Rubish (SP) and Ralph Sherrill (CP) were sworn into the Legislature by Speaker Jack Folger. Both men were approved by the body last week, but were not present to be duly inducted.

The Student Legislature autonomy over the Coed Senate amendment was the measure that took up most of the body's time last night, however, before it adjourned at 9:25.

After Ways and Means committee member Basil Sherrill explained the bill, Legislator Ernie House requested the privilege of the floor for Speaker of the Coed Senate Barbara Cashion.

Direct Representation

"The Coed Senate has direct representation from every women's dormitory and from the coeds in town," Cashion stated, "and the girls in the Senate can certainly pass legislation concerning them better than the Legislature can.

"Many of you think we have no functions up there at all," the Senate speaker went on to say, explaining that the Senate handles coed orientation, extensive social rules, and a student government quiz given to all girls. "And that is something the men don't do and could never do," she charged.

Coeds Protest

All the coeds were not against the measure, however. Legislators Edie Knight and Jo Farris both gave the amendment support.

A rhetorical question by Knight, "Isn't this to bring the Coed Senate into its proper place in student government?" was followed by Farris, "I think that the Coed Senate is one of the smaller branches of student government and should come under the jurisdiction of the Legislature. I am supporting the amendment."

But an amendment to the bill was defeated by a large majority. The change, proposed by Miles Smith, was designed to bring Senate social legislation under Legislature supervision, whereas social rules were left up to the Senate under the original bill.

Campus Calendar

10:00 a. m.—5:00 p. m.—International Relations Club Regional Conference, Alumni building.
3:30 p. m.—Inauguration of U. N. C. chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon. (National Mathematics Fraternity).
5:00 p. m.Anti-Umti committee, Grail room.
6:00 p. m.—Student supper and study group Presbyterian church.
6:30 p. m.—Recorded dinner music, main lounge of Graham Memorial.
7:30 p. m.—Hillel foundation, speaker: Rabbi Dectar, Roland Parker lounge.
8:00 p. m.—Co-op board of directors, 196 Daniels road.
8:00 p. m.—International Relations club presents Dr. Paul F. Douglass, President, American university, Gerrard hall.

SUB-ZERO COLD AND SNOW NO OBSTACLE TO STORK

Attica, Ind. —(UP)— When little Karen Karlson grows older, her parents will have an interesting story to tell her about the night she was born.

It was five degrees below zero and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Karlson were speeding over snow-covered roads in an automobile to get to the maternity ward at a Crawfordsville hospital.

They didn't make it in time. The little girl was born in the car nine miles out of town.

Doctors said neither the mother nor the child was any worse for the experience.

KATSOFF ENTERTAINS

The philosophy faculty and students enjoyed an informal Brunswick stew at Dr. L. O. Katsoff's home Sunday afternoon. About 35 graduate and undergraduate students came.

Ridgeway's
OPTICIANS
Complete Eyeglass Service
Prompt attention to al mail orders
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
Raleigh N. C.

Jerry the Tailor
OVER
N. C. CAFETERIA

Whid Powell's
COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM
GRILLED TARHELLIAS
CAROLINAS—25c
hamburger, lettuce and tomato
Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

Fraternity Work a Specialty
Charles Valentine's Cabinet Shop
FURNITURE
REPAIRED
REFINISHED
UPHOLSTERED
MADE-TO-ORDER
PHONE 9367 — PITTSBORO RD

Buy Your Easter gifts for infants and small children
At
THE BABY SHOP
under Ledbetter-Pickard
Nursery Pictures—Toys—Wearing Apparel

THE PALMS RESTURANT
The Home of Sizzling Steaks
Private Dinning Halls Open Every Day
6 A.M. to 9:30 P.M.
N. O. Reeves Proprietor
305 E. Chapel Hill Street
DURHAM, N. C.

MAIN LOAN OFFICE
Durham's newest and best pawn shop
Larger Loans on Anything of Value
We appreciate your business
LOCATED 400 W. MAIN ST. AT FIVE POINTS

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

1942 NEW MOON HOUSE TRAILER—22 feet. Sleeps four. 211 Swain Hall, Trailer Court. (1-1802-1)

MAGIC CHIEF GAS STOVE. 736 E. Franklin phone 7551. (1-1811-1)

NEW 5 ROOM BRICK VENEER House, close in, all modern conveniences. Phone 4921 for appointment. (1-1813-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1940 DODGE 4-DOOR SEDAN. HAS new motor. Caston Motor Co., Phone F-3891. (ch 1x1)

BLACK TUDOR MODEL-A SEDAN, new motor, tires, clutch, brakes, radiator, upholstery. Can be seen by contacting Jesse R. Langston, Tr. Ct. 61, Pittsboro Rd. (1-1818-1)

HELP WANTED 8

VOLUNTEERS TO CARRY E. CALDwell's books to the library so that he may study in peace and quiet and that his education might not be impeded. Box J. (1-1814-1)

LOST 12

ONE BLACK WALLET CONTAINING four dollars and 1 gold ring initialed Pi Beta Phi. Return to Jean Marie Lester, McIver Dorm. (1-1818-1)

TAKEN BY MISTAKE 20

WILL THE PERSON WHO ACCIDENTly traded his grey gaberdine coat Saturday night for one labelled Blakely, Whinchester, Indiana, please contact Barnes, phone 3663. (1-1810-1)

WANTED TO RENT 24B

APARTMENT FOR STUDENT AND wife to occupy around September 15 Reply Box 111 Everett. (1-1804-1)

APARTMENT FOR STUDENT AND wife to occupy about June 10, 1948. Write Box 106 Everett Dorm. (1-1803-1)

APARTMENT FOR STUDENT AND wife to occupy about June 7. Reply Box 201, Graham. Have Auto. (1-1812-1)

LI'L ABNER By AL CAPP

Extra curricular-nite courses in Beerology—at HARRY'S

-Phantoms-

(Continued from page 3)

siderably detract from Carolina's good play during portions of the game.

Davidson beat Duke, 44-43, earlier in the season on this same Charlotte court.

Coy Carson, who displayed some nifty offensive work against Davidson which netted him 13 points, is expected to open at one of the forward posts for Carolina along with Captain Bob Paxton. Nemo Nearman will be center, and King Cole and Taylor Thorne will handle the guard posts. Top ranking reserves are John Dillon, Roger Scholbe, Fred Swartzberg, Dan Nyimicz and Rip Ryan.

Duke Starters

Coach Gerard is expected to call on Corren (Ceep) Youmans, the hero in the win over Wake Forest, and Captain Doug Ausbon as forwards. Ben Collins, who stands 6-5, will open at center. Tommy Hughes, the scrappy floor leader, and Bill Martin will hold down guard.

The Blue Devils will be out to break a Carolina jinx over Duke cage teams. Carolina has been victorious in the last four meetings of the two schools. In 1945-46 the Phantoms won the last game between the teams, in 1946-47 they scored two more wins, and this year they added another [illegible] South on the Carolina [illegible]

the ledger in the Carolina should able experience since the South
tourney will also Duke gym.

The probable
Carolina For. Duke
Carson
Paxton

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Considerable cloudiness, windy and continued warm with scattered light showers.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIAL
Education for Voters
Of Time and the Volga
Psychoanalysis Use Com...

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 112

Indoor Games Set For Woollen Today

Carolina to Defend 1947 Team Honors In Annual Classic

By Morty Schaap

Today's the day for track fans to rise and shine as all roads led to Chapel Hill yesterday with some 500 athletes, representing 19 colleges and 18 high schools, arrived in town for the Sixth Annual Southern Invitation indoor games to be held in Woollen gym this afternoon and evening.

Carolina will defend its team honors, and three lads will try to hold the crowns that they gathered last year. Roger Neighbergall will be out to rack up the 880-yard run again for Duke, Ed Matthews of Maryland will try and make it two years in a row in the 440, and Bob Seligman of Carolina will try to take the shot put again this year.

The teams that arrived for the meet are Carolina, Wake Forest, Duke, State, Navy, Maryland, Roanoke, VPI, VMI, Randolph Macon, Emory-Henry, Washington and Lee, South Carolina, Florida, Davidson, Virginia, Shippensburg Teachers College, Tennessee, and Georgia, in the college division. They have brought a total of 229 athletes to compete in the various events.

Begins At 1:30

The first varsity attraction will be the finals in the shot-put, set for the Tin Can at 1:30. Jim O'Leary of Duke will be the favorite to dethrone Seligman. Other leaders will be Norm Messerole of Tennessee, Jim Byler of State, and George Hills of Flordia.

The high jump will see the field try to beat Jack Moody of Carolina, who is the holder of the Southern conference record. Outstanding contenders in this event are George Pickett of State, Bill Crandell of Maryland, Phil Brannon of Navy, and John Colvin of Duke.

The 60-yard dash will see Sterling Wingo of VPI as the top man on the form sheet with Walt Galliford of Virginia, Jim Murray of Navy, Jim McGowan of Maryland, and Ed Goode of Emory-Henry as the chief threats.

The 70-yard low hurdles will see a group of runners composed of Bill and Dan Mohler of Virginia, Mario Salvenelli and Carl Rhuback of Maryland, Dean Osterout of Navy, Hunter Heggie, Jack Moody, Bob Morrow and Ted Shultz of Carolina all vie for the top spot left vacated by Chunk Simmons.

(See NEIGHBORGALL, page 3)

Foreman And Wise To Address Wallace Public Rally Tonight

By Gordon Huffines

Dr. Clark H. Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, will share the speaker's platform with James W. Wise at the Tar Heel Students for Wallace public rally scheduled for 8 o'clock tonight in the Alumni building. The two-day Wallace convention will open today with delegates from more than 25 North Carolina colleges in attendance.

Foreman, who is a resident of Highlands, North Carolina, was formerly a social sciences professor at Black Mountain college. He is now serving as a member of the National Steering committee for the Wallace campaign and as national vice-chairman of the Progressive Citizens of America.

It was announced yesterday that a speech, written for the Tar Heel convention by Henry Wallace, will be delivered at the "Win with Wallace" rally by Sam Hirsch, assistant Playmaker business manager. Glenn Taylor, who has recently announced his candidacy for the third party vice-presidential nomination, has also sent a message to the Wallace assembly.

Wise, other featured speaker on tonight's program, became prominent in the news recently as campaign manager for Leo Isacson, Wallace backed American Labor party candidate who was elected to Congress from New York's 24th Congressional district this month.

Marge Frantz, member of the local Wallace club, stated today that Leonard Nelson, who will address the opening session of the Wallace assembly at 1 o'clock this afternoon, organized a Students for Wallace club at Duke last night. A large delegation from Duke is expected to attend the state-wide conference here.

The assembly will open this morning at 10 o'clock with delegates registering at the Presbyterian church. Keynoter Bill Richardson, president of the local Wallace club, will preside over this afternoon's session featuring Leonard Nelson and student speakers from North Carolina colleges.

A free movie, "Time to Act", will be shown at tonight's rally.

THE WALLACE BUTTON displayed on the lapel of Senator Glen H. Taylor will be seen in profusion on campus this weekend, as the Tar Heel Students for Wallace convention meets here beginning today. Taylor (D-Idaho) is in the running for the vice-presidential post on the Henry Wallace-Progressive party ticket.
(International Soundphoto)

Wallace Convention Will End With Program of Folk Ballads

The final session of the Tar Heel Students for Wallace assembly will feature a folk music concert by balladeer Pete Seeger Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Alumni building, fourth floor. Seeger's two hour concert, which will be open to the public, will offer a variety of American ballads and folk songs.

Born in New York, Seeger became interested in folk music when he attended a folk festival in Asheville in 1935. For the past 10 years the balladeer has been touring the country learning new songs and picking up new ways of playing his five-string banjo. His collection now includes hundreds of ballads, blues, hymns, and spirituals. One of his latest is "Gideon's Army", referring to Wallace's new party.

Directs Singers

Since his discharge from the army, Seeger has been director of People's Songs, a ballad-making and folk-singing organization which is comprised of members throughout the United States and Canada interested in American folk music. Through the medium of "Hootenannies" (a kind of singing jam session) this organization has introduced folk songs to audiences all over the country.

Seeger, now completing a nation-wide tour, has done much to popularize American folk music through his recorded "Talking Union" and albums such as "America's Favorite Songs."

WF Meet Condemns Preventive Warfare

Dean Mathews announced at the meeting of the World Federalists held last Thursday that their weekly radio program, previously heard over station WDUK Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, will now be broadcast on the same day at 12:15.

Topic for the discussion period of the meeting was concerning a preventive war with Russia. The value of peace, the cost of war, and the reaction of other nations against war were brought out as reasons opposed to a preventive war with Russia. It was concluded that this type of war offers no solution to our present day problems with Russia.

DRESSED IN HIS NEW CIVVIES," General and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower are shown as they left their home at Fort Myer, Virginia. It was his first appearance out of uniform since the war. The recently retired Army Chief of Staff will take over his duties as President of Columbia University in New York during the early part of June.
(International)

Mistaken Identity

"A case of mistaken identity," the Raleigh News and Observer explained yesterday after it had had a Washington, North Carolina Democrat speaking here at the Wallace for President convention.

As the facts were unraveled, it appeared that there are two Leonard Nelsons in the state; one is a staunch Democrat from Washington, the other Executive secretary of the national Students for Wallace organization and a resident of Miami, Florida.

It is, of course, the Floridian who is scheduled to address the rally here.

Explanation for the error was found to be the Wallacite Nelson's statement that he attended State college. However, when the News and Observer checked the college records to get information for their story, it found that the Washington man was the only Leonard Nelson listed on the State books.

After both Nelsons had called the newspaper office, the erroneous story was corrected with an apology for any embarrasment caused.

Meeting Set Tuesday To Choose Delegates

An important meeting for the presidents or official representatives of all campus organizations who wish to sponsor the State Student Legislature will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge no. 1. The purpose of this meeting is to choose seven delegates for the Executive Council meeting of the Student Legislature.

The Executive council meeting will be held March 6 in the Senate chamber of the state capitol building in Raleigh. It will make plans for the April meeting of the Student Legislature in the capital city. Delegates from all colleges and universities in the state will be present.

CONGREGATIONAL SERVICES

The Congregational Christian church, 211 Cameron Avenue, is holding evening worship services each Sunday in Lent. The Reverend Bernard V. Munger is preaching a series of sermons from the Fourth Gospel.

China Receiving American Planes

Washington, Feb. 27—(UP)—Government officials tonight disclosed a long-secret agreement under which the United States committed itself to provide China with a first-line air force of more than 1,000 planes, including heavy bombers and fighters.

The government spokesmen said that more than 900 warplanes already have been delivered to the Nanking government under the program. The rest—including flying fortresses, fighters and a few transport planes—will be turned over to the Chinese later.

In addition to the planes, $178,000,000 worth of air force equipment, including such things as spare parts also will be shipped to China.

The building up of China's air force by the United States had been a top secret until tonight. The wraps were taken off at the moment Republican leaders are seeking increased military aid to China.

250 Students Are Debating In Louisiana

More than 250 students from 43 North American colleges are participating in the Tulane university forensic centennial, according to a wire received yesterday from Earl Fitzgerald, Debate council president.

Fitzgerald headed a contingent of four University debaters, two orators and two extemporaneous speakers who flew to New Orleans Wednesday to take part in the three-day long tournament.

400 Debates

In the oratory and extemporaneous speaking preliminaries held Thursday the Carolina delegates failed to place in the field of nine selected for the final round, Fitzgerald said. The round of 400 debates began Thursday night, he added, but no results will be announced until the finals today.

Four antique silver trophy cups are to be awarded to the winning teams tonight.

Participants Listed

Members of the Carolina group participating in the tournament are: Debaters—Charlie Long, Thomasville; Merle Stevens, Forest City; Dick Mottsman, Hendersonville; and Herbert Mitchell, Asheville. Orators: Thomas Shelton, Atlanta, Georgia; James Spence, Lillington. Extemporaneous: Blanton Miller, Boone; and Richard Bowen, Athens, Georgia.

On the trip to New Orleans, bad weather grounded the Carolina delegation's plane in Mobile, Alabama, and the remainder of the journey was made by speical bus.

Czech Reds Warn Western Powers

Prague, Feb. 27—(UP)—The new Communist government in Czechoslovakia, less than 24 hours old, already has warned the Western Powers to keep their noses out of Czechoslovakia.

In a formal statement, Premier Gottwald condemned Britain, France and the United States for calling the new Czech regime a dictatorship in disguise. He said the Western Powers have no right to interfere with or criticize the affairs of Czechoslovakia.

The new government was installed this morning. Shortly after swearing in ceremonies, the government warned foreign correspondents to watch their copy, that it wouldn't tolerate what it called distorted and false news reports being sent abroad. It also threatened what it called "proper punishment."

In the face of the new events in Prague, President Benes and his wife left the capital today for their summer home. The president's car was accompanied by a police escort.

'Adequate World Organization' Is Asked For By Paul Douglass

FIREMEN POUR WATER into one of the rooms of the $35,000 house in which six member of a prominent broker's family died when fire destroyed their Cambridge, Mass., home. The dead were: H. Alan Gregg, Jr., 40; his wife, Ann, 39, and their children, Susan, 9; H. Alan III, 8; Peter, 3, and Thomas, 10 months. Several persons, including a Catholic priest, who tried to rescue the Greggs, were injured.
(International)

"The only way the United Nations can be made to work is by day-by-day insistence of the outraged average citizen who know that war is not inevitable but can be made unnecessary and obsolete by adequate world organization," Dr. Paul F. Douglass, nationally known educator and president of American university, Washington, D. C., said here last night.

President Douglass spoke at the opening session of the International Relations club's regional conference being held at the University yesterday and today. The sessions drew 150 delegates from colleges and universities of North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia.

To Buy Time

Dr. Douglass said the United States has "embarked on a policy to buy time with American dollars until we are the most invincible nation in the world at which time we could strike impunitable blows all over the globe. The purpose is military power and economic impenetration.

"Our discretionary spending power has multiplied three times in the last eight years. We are also the best educated people in the world, the average American having had two years of high school.

Indebted, Involved, Dangerous

"But we are also the most indebted, the most involved, and the most dangerous people in the world."

President Douglass said, "The fate of the United Nations is going to be decided in the Near East this spring, and, in my opinion, we will have 100,000 troops in Palestine by May."

Another problem lies in the fact that the present era will be determined by who controls China, and the only possible way the United States can do this is to make the United Nations work, he said.

"Outraged"

"The American people should be outraged," Dr. Douglass concluded, "at some of the statistics in our national expenditures. The president's budget proposes $500,000,000 for European aid, $660,000,000 for atomic energy and $550,000,000 for military research. "But not one nickle has been approprited for research in finding techniques and methods for peace!" he said.

"We do not contribute as much to the UN as the California wine industry spent on advertising last year or one half what we spend propagating fish. The amount for specialized agencies is less than one third the appropriation for the weather bureau. It is evident that distortion of monetary values is indicative of our confusion."

This morning's session, which will conclude the conference, will feature seminars on current international topics.

Mme M. Perreaux, secretary-general of the Paris office of the Carnegie endowment for world peace which sponsors the regional conferences of student International Relations clubs, is attending the sessions here as an official observer.

N. C. Symphony Facilities To Be Used In New Student Entertainment Series

The coming birth of a new Student Entertainment series is in embryo stages today after entertainment committee approval of a plan to coordinate the committee with the North Carolina Symphony society.

Fathered by student body president Tom Eller, the cooperative plan will attempt to bring a higher quality of entertainment at a reduced price to the Carolina campus.

The plan specifies that the N. C. Symphony will submit a list of possible programs to be used in the entertainment series and will be responsible for contracting the agencies. The only stipulation required by the organization is that the committee sponsor the Symphony in the entertainment series. The Symphony's appearance will provide favorable publicity for that organization, and the committee will in turn be able to book entertainment at a saving.

Old Group Out

With announcement of the new plan, Eller also stated that Chancellor R. B. House has abolished the faculty committee on student entertainment in favor of a constitutional committee on the order of the Publications board. Prior to this move the faculty committee had power of final decision on student entertainment. The committee in accordance with the constitution will be composed of a chairman and three student members appointed by the student body president and approved by the student legislature. Its three faculty members will be selected by student members of the comittee.

The new plan calls for two representatives from the N. C. Symphony to meet with the student entertainment committee and submit a list of possible programs for the entertainment series. Selections from this list will be made either by the committee or by submitting the list to the student body for a vote.

Cooperative Bodies

The committee will meet a minimum of three times a quarter, and cooperate with the director of Graham Memorial, the Dean of Men, and representatives of the N. C. Symphony society.

Regarding the reimbursement of season ticket holders, the committee has agreed to insert a legal notice in the "Daily Tar Heel" three times, and to set March 10 as the deadline for returning the tickets.

In Thursday's meeting the committee voted on a list of faculty

(See SYMPHONY, page 4)

'Case Dismissed'

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 27—(UP)—It's every man for himself here on Aurora's leap year day, the first in eight years. Today was the day when unmarried women took over all important city jobs, put on police uniforms, grabbed clubs and went out to grab a husband.

Any bachelor was subject to arrest on sight, and there are some 300 bachelors in Aurora. If he could not produce a marriage certificate, he was as good as in the hoosegow.

The girls got one big surprise, however.

Up before unmarried police magistrate Irene Youngman, came 43-year-old Wilbur Esser, a banker.

"Not guilty," he said.

"Why do you make such a plea?" the magistrate asked.

The banker pulled a diamond ring from his pocket and said, "I'm perfectly willing to get married, and if you will put out your left hand, I'll put the ring on your finger and we'll be married today."

That was Miss Youngmen's big chance. The chips were down, but she looked at the defendant and said, "Case dismissed."

AS 1,100 TEACHERS stay away from their classes in Minneapolis, Minn., these children enjoy a game of cards in front of a closed school building. The city-wide strike was called by the teachers to support their demands for higher pay and to force the Board of Education to abandon its plan to cut the school year by two weeks.
(International Soundphoto)

Finland May Be Next To Play Russian Tag

Helsinki, Feb. 27 —(UP)—Political sources here indicated today that Finland may be the next European nation to play diplomatic tag with Russia.

The government announced that a friendship and mutual-aid pact between Russia and Finland has been proposed by Josef Stalin.

The Finnish president is said to have received a letter from Stalin saying Finland is the only neighbor of Russia which hasn't signed a treaty with the Soviet Union. The letter is quoted as proposing a new pact of what it calls "friendship and defense."

Education for Voters

Again in the spring elections of this year, voters will be given constitutional amendments on which to pass judgment. This will entail a lot of work on the part of student government. officials who must explain to the students what the amendments accomplish and it requires something more than work to get the student body to read the explanation of the amendments.

From all indications it seems that the number of constitutional amendments will be at least equal the seven of last year. Thursday evening, the student Legislature, in short order, and with hardly any heated discussion, passed three of the four bills that would amend sections of our constitution.

One of the amendments, which surprised us tremendously because it has been the subject of many a heated discussion since last spring, is a provision that would clarify the position of the Interfraternity council and their jurisdiction over cases involving the Coed Visiting agreement. The amendment as proposed is intended to empower the Interfraternity Court with full jurisdiction over cases that involve the fraternity and violations of the Visiting Agreement. In effect, the bill will make the constitution adhere strictly to the present practices of the trial system.

The Coed Senate was given a kind you've-got-too-much-power signal by Legislators when they passed a proposal which calls for approval of all coed legislation which is not dealing with social rules. The one stipulation here is a phrase "when it is deemed necessary." As has been pointed out, this new amendment, if passed, may never be used.

Before the Legislature goes "hog-wild" over Constitutional revisions and goes through the constitution word for word, hunting for various ailments in sentence structure and connotation, we would ask it to slow down and remember that a voter does not have a complete explanation of the revision on the ballot, and therefore, it is going to have to serve as informer.

Take last year, the only example we have of what happens to the amendments. There were seven amendments to be voted on. Three of these amendments were considered major items by the Legislature and those persons who were familiar with student government. The other items to be amended were only procedual. Two of these major items were defeated at the polls.

Informed observers suggested at the time that the reason that the measures were defeated was solely because the students did not know what they were voting for, and therefore, cast their vote against them.

If the Legislature is really sincere in its desires for change then it should begin educating the campus on a large-scale basis.

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

"Zis is ze last . . . . time ze government gets any friendly criticism from ME."

The Brassy Taste

Ot Time and the Volga

By Bob Sain

Old Tom Wolfe is dead now and for his sake maybe it is a good thing. And then again, maybe not.

Lately novelist Tom, Asheville-born and seeker after fame, fortunate and love, is getting called "progressive"; some are saying now that he went along with Marx insofar as he realized that his "creative problems. . . were historically conditioned."

While reading Wolfe I never figured that this intensely individualistic writer could have any truck with proletariat. Remember how he tagged aliens—or, at least, newcomers to this country—with the title "the federated half-breeds of the world"? Remember his vicious portraits of New York Jews—notably one Mr. Jack? Remember how he thought he was eternally damned because he was thrown into a jail cell with a Negro?—although he admitted parenthetically that it wasn't so much that he didn't like the Negro, it was just that it wasn't dignified.

I've always liked Wolfe and maybe it's indicative of a retarded mentality not to shrug and say, "But I've outgrown him to an extent." (Everyone is supposed to outgrow Wolfe.)

I've liked him but I've never been able to line him up with the hammer and sickle.

But that doesn't mean that it can't be done.

One John Howard Lawson, writing in the sometimes-lamented Marxist publication, Mainstream, admitted that Wolfe wasn't a Marxist while insisting that he finally "came to realize that the creative problems with which he grappled, the frustrations that inhibited his development as an artist, were historically conditioned, and that he must understand American culture as a process of growth and conflict in order to solve the conflicts in his own creative life."

Lawson quoted the final words words of Wolfe's "Credo" in "You Can't Go Home Again":

"I believe that we are lost here in America and that we shall be found. And this belief, which mounts now to the catharsis of knowledge and conviction, is for me—and I think for all of us—not only our own hope, but America's everlasting, living dream. I think the life which we have fashioned in America, and which has fashioned us—the forms we made, the cells that grew, the honeycomb that was created—was self-destructive in its nature, and must be destroyed. I think these forms are dying and must die. . .

"I think the enemy is here before us, too. . .I think the enemy is here before us with a thousand faces, but I think we know that all his faces wear one mask. I think the enemy is single self-ishness and compulsive greed. . ."

These quotes and Mr. Lawson's remarks appeared over a year ago in the first issue of Mainstream. Since that time I have seen several similar statements concerning Wolfe.

The latest of these appears in a Berlin daily, Vorwarts, (quoted in New Republic). Howard Fast's "Freedom Road" was running serially in this Russian-licensed journal and arousing considerable favorable comment. The Vorwarts literary editor responded to requests for further information about "progressive American literature" by listing Theadore Dreiser (who joined the Communist party shortly before his death), Upton Sinclair, Erskine Caldwell, John Steinbeck, Ernest Hemingway, William Faulkner, John Dos Passos (who recently renounced Marxism in Life magazine)—and Thomas Wolfe.

Wolfe is already quite popular in German translations but the recent Red stamp should increase his fame considerably. At least to the East.

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

—Bill Corley's Wednesday afternoon dancing classes have been more than successful this quarter, and well over half a hundred have participated. Present plans call for an enlarged dancing program next term.

With the photog chief in the infirmary, the darkroom class for this morning has been postponed until next week.

The all-building "Carnival" originally set for next Friday night, has likewise been postponed until the first week of spring quarter. . .GM welcomes the 150-odd IRC convention delegates who have headquarters on the ground floor of the union this weekend. . .(Remember tonight: Rendezvous and Bingo.)

Coed Advisor Posts May Be Applied For

Miss Helen Bouldin, chairman of women's orientation, has announced that in addition to the recommendations received from student advisers, any girl particularly interested in being a student adviser next fall may submit her name to her house president for consideration. Selection will be based on the fitness of each girl to act as a student counselor for new girls.

Each adviser will be expected to attend a short training course during the middle of the spring quarter, and she will be asked to return a few days early for the orientation program. They will be asked to serve as advisers throughout the year.

Carolina Carousel

Editors Lead, Editorials Mold

By R. Foo Giduz

A frank, firm, but friendly memo to Mrs. Irvine Smith, Victory Village vetwife who complained in Thursday's "Write Away" of increasing DTH editorial page "partisanship":. . . Thanks for your interest.—There are probably a great number of readers who think as you do;—especially the many who do not agree with any particular DTH editorial column stands.

Now CC is usually the first character to speak out against this paper's editorial policies when he doesn't agree. . .But here's one undeniable fact; An editor should lead, not follow! . . .And consequently editorials must mold, not record opinion! —If you want the latter, try the Gallup poll. Sometimes that's not any good indication, either; viz, mag referendum!)

Excuse it again if we recall the words of "partisan" Josephus Daniels: "A newspaper is no good unless it will. . .fight for something it believes in." "The only crime is to be dull."—Lady, you elected the DTH editor because you supposedly favored his platform, which he is fighting for in the editorial columns. . .You didn't elect an automatic vote recording machine to voice student opinion, though "Write Away" and edit page columnists can serve for this. . .The unbiased facts are on the news pages. . . The editor hopes that by presenting an analysis of these he can assist in forming your opinion.

The DTH should present issues —not opinions or decisions"—You should pardon the expression, Mrs. Smith, but, "Nuts! What is the purpose of a newspaper?"

The lads working on the proposed Literary Quarterly (and Bully for them!) are searching a source of initial capital. . . Muse: What about the thousands of dollars of surplus funds the Publications board now has invested in STOCKS? . . .Can the PB help this worthy cause?. . .

Louis Graves, editor of the CH Weekly, has been one of our favorites for many's the year now. . .So yesterday his paper "celebrated its silver anniversary. . .Several birthdays ago genial Mr. Graves expressed the honest observation "This paper is 18 years old today and I am very tired of it.". . .So comes now the 25th anniversary, and the veteran journalist quoted his sentiments anticlimactically concisely again: . . .Sometimes the pressure of getting to press on time and the long tedious hours . . .make us wonder if it's worth while to go through with the same irksome routine again next week!"

This 'n That

Wilbur and the Crazy Phone

By Bill Buchan

Telephones are crazy animals. Friend Wilbur Amberson was sitting quietly in the back booth of the Campus Cafe a couple nights ago when the buzzer on the phone started buzzing. Susie McGillicudy, cocoa-drinking coed and philospher answered the thing and announced that a "lady" wanted to speak to Wilbur.

Now even though Wilbur realizes that he is quite the lady's man, it was a mystery how any young woman would know that he would be in the Campus — especially when he usually camped out in the University. To settle the mystery, Wilbur took the receiver and informed the lady that he wasn't interested in marriage with unseen persons.

The unseen person, however, was a long distance operator from Shelby and she was not impressed with the importance of the man to whom she was speaking. With a curt "Are you Wilbur Amberson", she ordered him to hold the wire for Shelby. Now Shelby is a pretty big little town and it was hard to figure how Shelby would get through the telephone line, but Wilbur held on anyway and eventually a voice, that of his cousin Willie, came through.

It seemed that Willie was interested in spending a fast weekend (false impression, naturally) in Chapel Hill and was informing Wilbur that he was leaving pronto. That news wasn't so bad, but what worried Wilbur was how in hang they knew to locate him in the Campus Cafe. In the student directory, he is listed as living on McDawdle Street, and his cousin Willie knew that he could be located in the office of the Society for the Advancement of the Left Hand, but no one knew that he would be in the Campus at exactly nine-o-nine on Thursday night. The logical answer is that some brilliant character in the SFALH office told the operator to try all the beer joints, but as yet Wilbur hasn't found anyone who gave such a message.

After Wilbur hung up the phone, he surrounded himself with beers and numerous politicians, and proceeded to try to solve the problem with logic.

(See BUCHAN, page 4)

Write Away

Tired of Battle of UMT Wits

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Editor,

Mr. Nichols' letter "UMT Lacks Reasoning" was given an unfortunate title because the contents of his paper was an examination of the conclusions of his opponents arguments instead of an analysis of his argument. Logic is concerned only with the process of going from one premise to another. Mr. Nichols did not attack on this basis.

Therefore he did not attack on the basis of logic. (This is using the word "logic" in its technical sense. If he wants to use it to mean vaguely "anything that doesn't sound reasonable to me" then he is permitted to say that the prize winning essay is logically unsound.)

Even though UMT and its implications are of the utmost importance, I am getting tired of the continual battle of wits in which each side propounds its viewpoint with a patriotic fever that leaves the impression that their side is a Holy Right and that this is the last train for peace.

Such a faith is good for the individual who possesses it because it gears him for action but an attempt to foster that faith on others who are of a different opinion without an attempt to examine the basic assumptions of your opponent is bound to lead to failure on your part and a feeling of frustration on the part of the great body of passive onlookers.

Let us consider the basic attitudes which we bring to these problems, agree on some common fundamentals and then, if it possible, proceed to some agreement. I would like to look at the roots of this problem instead of the multiplicity of its branches.

Roy L. Wray

Right Face

Editor,

Recently Mr. Charles Kauffman, an experienced journalist approached you on the subject of writing a column of conservative news and opinion. Mr. Kauffman was turned down and immediately the Tar Heel announced a new policy of cutting out writing by and for Student Organizations.

We Conservatives accepted that as well and good and concluded that the Tar Heel was doing a good thing in cutting out highly partisan and prejudiced material. But today appeared a column by Bill Robertson (sometimes known as the "pink shrieker"). After a scrupulous search of the Tar Heel masthead, I fail to note any connection of Mr. Robertson with the Daily Tar Heel.

In addition, his material is definitely party line and he ballyhoos Henry Wallace in every column. I maintain he represent the Chapel Hill Communists and the Henry Wallace for President Club. If that is true, the Tar Heel has already broken their promise

(See WRITE AWAY, page 4)

Mills-Stones

Look Behind You Your Automobile May Be Following

Yesterday morning we happened to overhear a conversation between a couple of delegates attending the IRC convention.

A tall, stately young man turned to his female companion and said, "Is that the Daily Worker you have there." She replied, "Yet, it's the Daily Tar Heel if that is what you mean."

My ears did not burn, but it did take a lot of restraint to keep myself from interrupting the chatter and telling them that they were accusing the Daily Tar Heel of something which they themselves are guilty.

From more of the conversation we learned that the couple were chattering about a certain columnist who writes weekly for this publication. They talked about his pink tinge and his along-the-party-line approach. I will not attempt, neither to deny nor affirm, their views.

This couple advocated that such a person should not be allowed to have the space in a student publication. They would have anyone thrown off the staff who did not confirm strictly with everything the United States government does.

This follows the Communist tactics. Take a current example —the practices that the Communist used in taking over the Czechoslovakian government. They got a foothold within the government itself and then purged the government of any officials who did not tag along with their beliefs and pledge their support to the Communists.

Think what would have happened if the Democrats had been pushed out of Congress when the Republicans took over. North Carolina would not have any representation in that body.

* * *

Enthused over the prospects of seeing a "little car" in the pit over at the south end of Alumni building Wednesday evening, I rushed over at the request of Ruth Evans and Bud Dutton to see the sights. When I got there a wrecker had already arrived and with a noise that sounded like a B-24 taking to the tir, the car was pulled up the steps and back on the road between New East and Old East.

Approaching the scene we saw the little Ford coupe and heard the owner of the car, who a young lady called Woodrow, explaining how the car happened to get down into the pit. "You see." Woodrow related. "I was just going to be gone a few minutes, so I threw the car into gear and then ran into Alumni. I looked around just in time to see the car following me into the building."

* * *

What really gets me is the signs that are now appearing on shoe polish containers. On the side is printed, "To open insert coin and twist." What makes them think we have a coin: if I did would I be shining my own shoes?

Test Personality

Psychoanalysts Use Comics

Pittsburgh, —(UP)— Modern comic strips, many of which long ago forsook comedy for adventure, love, and satire, now give psychoanalysts a new means of testing personality.

Dr. Warren W. Sones, professor of education at the University of Pittsburgh, believes comic strip preference offers more reliable study material than the best of tea leaves or the trustiest of palms.

For instance, the reader who fights for each installment of high adventure, mass homicide, glamor, and love comics is an "ego enhancement" type—a person who nurses ambitions for heroism, swash-buckling adventure and glamor.

Readers who follow the "domestic" comic strips usually are members of happy families.

The strips Dr. Sones refers to as "hate art" include those in which the unscrupulous villian is foiled. Often the villian is a commonly respected type of citizen for whom a particular class or type of individual reserves a special dislike.

Dr. Sones says the frustration of the villians serves to give the "hate art" readers vicarious pleasure.

In the "strictly for adults" classification, Dr. Sones lists a limited number of comics which appeal either directly to adult minds, or use a broad brush in daubing the strip's continuity with social satire.

The final listing Dr. Sones gives is the purely educational, or religious comic strip.

Drawing the outlines of a comic reader's personality from his preferences is no cinch, Dr. Sones says. But knowledge of such preferences is a helpful guide.

For instance, an adult who regularly reads none but the adventure and danger strips is often a man or woman who nurses a feeling of persecution, or a grudge against a superior, or perhaps simply dissatisfaction with the existing social order.

Dr. Sones believes comics have only begun to progress. He predicts more adequate use of comic strips in education.

For example, he believes that a text book story duplicating one four-block sequence of "Prince Valiant" would run at least 2,500 words long and have less effect on the memory than the pictures which can be read in a minute's time.

National Prohibition May Hit Bubble Gum

Boston—(UP—A Boston manufacturer has announced a nationwide drive to thwart the "impending threat" of prohibition.

No, relax. Not Scotch or bourbon—bubble gum.

It seems it's that bad. The industry faces a crisis. Groups of parents and teachers have formed angry anti-bubble gum cliques, he said. One Pittsburgh dentist even went so far as to say the ballooning confection caused buck teeth.

"This is absurd," scoffed Thomas G. Wilder, vice president of Gum Products, Inc. "Everyone knows that if you huffed and puffed hard enough to distend your teeth you'd make very inferior bubbles. That is common knowledge."

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS Editor — HOWARD BAILEY Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

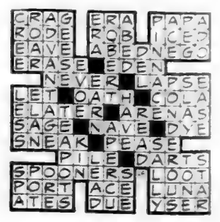
SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser
NIGHT EDITOR: Charlie Gibson
SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears
ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden
ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow
SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison
EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.



SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Ed Joyner — NIGHT SPORTS: Dick Jenrette

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—A few
5—Religious title
9—Cloak
12—Russian sea
13—King of beasts
14—Thin pole
15—Mouselike rodent
17—U. S. soldier
18—Swedish nickname
19—Hebrew measure
21—Imp
23—Twisted together
27—Mother
28—Ventured
29—Light tap
31—To realize
34—Chinese weight
35—Low dive
37—Pickpocket (slang)
39—Hawaiian lava
40—Cloth measure
42—To stitch
44—Approaches
46—Pronoun
48—Evilly
50—It shades eyes
53—Bridge fare
54—Pismire
55—Home of Abraham
57—Checked
61—Sainte (abbr.)
62—Marsh bird
64—Roman emperor
65—Rocky crag
66—River duck
67—Blood

DOWN

1—To droop
2—Mineral earth
3—To deface
4—Pushed aside
5—Man's name
6—Prefix: two
7—Swamp
8—Girl's name
9—Smells
10—Kind of knife
11—Arabian seaport
16—Chemical compounds
20—Twilled fabric
22—Printer's measure
23—Unemployed
24—Part of finger
25—"Teddy's" initials
26—Father
30—Bell-like sound
32—Nobleman
33—Simple
36—Recent
38—Paring
41—Sheen
43—Humor
45—Notice
47—In this manner
49—Marine growth
50—Hugs
51—In
52—To corrode
56—Fish eggs
58—Prefix: new
59—To make mistake
60—Female deer
63—Egyptian god

Determined Blue Devils Turn Back Phantoms For 56-45 Win In Durham

John Dillon Has Great Night On Hooks But His 18 Points Fail To Halt Duke

By Billy Carmichael III

Duke Stadium, Durham, Feb. 27—Two gentlemen of the old school of Carolina basketball played their hearts out for Coach Tom Scott's Carolina Tar Heels here tonight, only to see their efforts go to no apparent avail as the back-to-the-wall Blue Devils of Duke shot and fought their way into the Southern Conference tournament by dropping the Chapel Hill entry into defeat, 56-45, before around 7,000 howling fans.

It was lanky Johnny Dillon who turned back the pages to give the assemblage a look at the Dillon of old as he 1) dropped in five of his specialities; 2) made eight for 11 free throws; 3) fouled the big Duke center, Ben Collins, out in the early part of the second half; 4) then fouled out Collins' successor, Doug Ausbon, who was running wild at the time; and 5) turned in the scrappiest game of his career.

The other gentleman was Bob Paxton of rebound fame who lived up to and beyond all the clippings of his altitudic attainments. Paxton controlled the defensive boards for the Tar Heels all the evening and helped to keep the Scottmen in the game through his efforts.

Getting back to the stark truth of the matter, the Duke entry won the ball game by taking more shots than did the Carolinians and thereby scoring more points. The men of Gerry Gerard needed the win to be sure of making the conference tournament next weekend and they played as if they had decided to win the game before they walked onto the court.

The Blue Devils outcut and outran the Tar Heels after succeeding in getting out in front in the ball game and succeeding in staying there. They grabbed the lead after a minute had passed on a foul shot by Youmans and built this advantage to a 5-0 before Carson broke the ice with a foul toss.

From this point Duke moved to a 13-3 lead after seven and a half minutes and here Dillon entered the ball game. The Tar Heels, at once showed new life and a minute later Carson dropped Carolina's first field goal of the game on a driving layup shot.

Hook Plays Well

The Tar Heels pulled to 14-16 after 11 minutes with Dillon shooting and passing as his teammates rallied to the cause. Duke, however, seemed to be able to maintain their slight supremacy throughout the remainder of the period despite the successful efforts of the Carolinians to tie up the ball game at 19-19 at the 13-minute mark.

The Hook was repeatedly fouled during the half as he was throughout the game with the referees determined that not Heaven alone would have to protect the poor working boy. Dillon pushed the losers to within one point, 24-25, of the Dukesters, but a short rally by the winners at this point forced the Tar Heels back to a 25-31 deficit at the half.

Duke pushed farther to the fore at the start of the second half with Doug Ausbon hit for two quick field goals. Cole matched one of these, but Youmans netted a hook and a one hander and the Blue Devils were off to the races. Dillon continued his defense of the cause at this point by fouling Collins out and then scoring a layup and a foul to pull the visitors back to 30-42 after seven minutes had passed.

From here to the end, the Tar Heels were down but never quite out. Carson, Paxton, and Cole along with the starring pivotman kept pushing points through the hoop, but the Duke entry was not to be denied. Dillon left the game at 10:30 because of four fouls, returned at 14:00 for a short while before mysteriously leaving the contest for good at 16:30 in favor of Sunday Swartzberg.

Duke started a semi-freeze with six minutes to go and held the ball throughout the majority of the remaining time.

Devil's Revenge

Carolina (45)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Paxton, f	2	1	2	5	0
Swartzberg	0	0	2	0	0
Carson, f	3	5	1	11	3
Scholbe	0	0	3	0	0
Nearman, c	0	1	3	1	0
Dillon	5	8	4	18	3
Thorne, g	1	0	5	2	1
Cole, g	3	0	0	6	0
Nyimicz	0	2	1	2	1
Totals	14	17	21	45	2
Duke (56)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
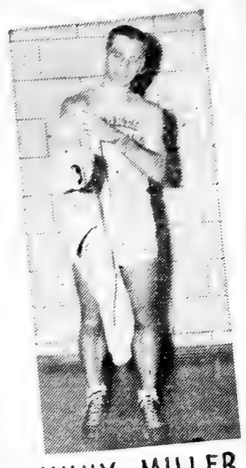
Ausbon, f	6	3	5	15	0
Sapp	0	1	1	1	0
Youmans, f	4	5	1	13	4
Duff	3	1	1	7	1
York	2	0	1	4	1
Skibsted	0	0	0	0	1
Collins, c	1	3	5	5	2
Lyons	0	0	0	0	0
Hughes, g	2	2	2	6	1
Stark	0	0	0	0	0
Martin, g	1	0	3	2	0
Gordon	1	1	2	3	2
Totals	20	16	21	56	12

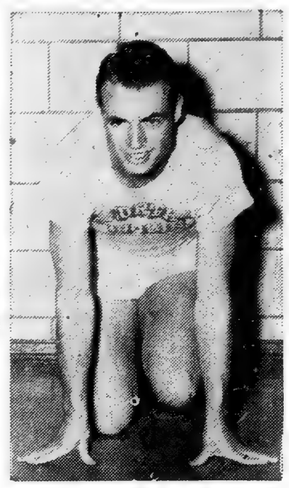
Officials: Williams and Hedrick.
Halftime score: Duke 31, Carolina 25

TICKET SITUATION



Only 500 tickets remain available to Carolina students for the big indoor track program in Wollen gym today. There are also 500 ducats which remain on sale to the general public. Student tickets are selling for 75 cents and the general public price is $1.50. The ticket window at Woollen will be open from 1-4 today and from 6:30 until starting time tonight.

Dolphins Win



Atlanta, Feb. 27—North Carolina's Blue Dolphins firmly established themselves as the class of Southern swimming teams by outstroking a highly regarded Georgia Tech team, 62 to 13, here tonight.

The win continued Carolina's unbeaten season and avenged their lone loss of last year.

Southern Invitation Indoor Games

JIMMY MILLER
U.N.C.

BOB BLACK
U.N.C.

GEORGE TROXEL
VIRGINIA

BOB PALMER
MARYLAND

DAN MOHLER BILL MOHLER
VIRGINIA

1948

JIM O'LEARY
DUKE

Neighborgall, Matthews, Seligman Will Try To Hold Individual Titles Gained Last Year

(Continued from page 1)

The highs will also see these boys left fighting for the number one spot.

The 440-yard run should prove to be a crowd thriller with Matthews getting his competition from Bob Black of Carolina, Loren Young, Duke, Dan Garibaldi of Navy, and Norm Rucks of South Carolina.

Half-Mile Run

The half-mile run will send Neighborgall against a field of challengers including Frank Magill of VPI, Frank Rabb of Navy, Lou Schneider of Tennessee, Mark Burnham and Julian Mackenzie and Sam Magill of Caro-Eglund of State.

The mile will see Bob Palmer of Maryland as the favorite with the main competition coming from Navy's Jim Oberholtzer, Forrest Ross of Tennessee, Mackensie and Sam Magill of Carolina, and George Troxel of Virginia.

Sam Magill will be the lad to beat in the two-mile with the chief opposition expected from teammate Jimmy Miller, if he is able to participate, Ed Middleton of VPI, and Jim White of Maryland.

In a special feature of tonight's indoor track meet, Chunk Simmons, national junior champion hurdler, will meet Bill Mitchell, of the Georgetown AA, in the 70-yard high hurdles.

The pole vault has Martin Korek of Tennessee as the leading prospect with John Colvin, Bob Bowles and Ed Jackson of Duke, Hank Hickman and Rusty Russell of Carolina, and Dan Achee of Navy as the possible place winners.

Cager to Trackster

The broad jump will have Doug Ausbon of Duke making the transformation from basketball suit to track togs overnight and also as the favorite. Bill Harper of Florida, Murray of Navy, and Briley and Terrell of Carolina as the main opposition.

The high school division was won last year by George Washington of Arlington and they are back with nearly the same team which should give them the nod. Among the six State high schools that are entered Durham looks like the best bet. They are being coached by Roger Neighborgall of Duke and have been practicing for about two weeks.

State Accepts Bid To Big Tournament In New York City

Raleigh, Feb. 27 —(UP)—N. C. State College's Wolfpack today received and accepted a bid to participate in the National Invitational basketball tournament which will be held next month in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Last year the Wolfpack finished third in this same tournament, and this season the Wolfpack is expected to better its standing. State has the best scoring record in the nation and a mark of 25 wins in 27 games.

It has been a foregone conclusion that State would be tendered a bid to the big tourney, which ranks with the NCAA as the two top tournaments in the nation. There had been persistent rumors that the Wolfpack would receive the bid.

Faculty Meet

State college officials said that before the bid was accepted, a conference was called with members of the faculty council. This faculty group had to consent to let the members of the team delay taking their exams until after the tourney. The meet opens on March 11 and runs until the 17th. Exams at State begin March 12.

The Wolfpack received the honor largely because of its sensational scoring. Twice this year Coach Everett Case's charges have passed the 100-point mark in a single game, and on four occasions they have counted more than 90 points. The team average per game is about 77.6, which gives them top spot in the nation over Rhode Island, the usual leader.

State is unbeaten in conference play, having copped 11 straight.

State is the fourth team to accept a bid to the tournament. Other teams that have accepted bids are Texas University, St. Louis, and Western Kentucky.

Mural Sports Carnival Is Slated For April 1

Campus finals in three sports will highlight the first Intramural sports carnival since before the war. The events are scheduled for the evening of April 1.

The proceedings will probably last from 7-10 at night and with all the events a spectacle to rival a three ring circus. The last time the games were held an estimated 2000-3000 persons attended. The festivities are open to anyone who happens to be in the vicinity of Woollen gym on April Fool's day.

In addition to the battles between the dormitory and fraternity champs in handball, basketball, and boxing, there will be an intercollegiate vollyball game and exhibitions by outstanding performers in swimming, badminton, and table tennis.

Cage Championship

The Blackballs will meet Sigma Chi in the championship cage contest. The dorm men defeated the Grads quintet to clinch their division title and Sigma Chi bested the Beta 1 aggregation in the frat finals.

The Roaches and Chi Psi are slated to clash in the handball battle. The Roaches copped their title with a win over Oakwood Drive and the fraternity leaders dropped Phi Delt 3.

Eight boxing matches will be needed to decide the campus champs in that sport. However, it will probably shape up into a battle between the Zetes and Emerson for campus superiority. The frat leaders captured three first places while the Emersonians took four.

Volleyball Game

A volleyball team from either Duke or Guilford will be imported for the carnival to meet the Phi Gams, top team at Carolina for two straight years. In that time they haven't lost a single game.

Badminton and table tennis professionals will give exhibitions in their sports as well as a national swimming figure. The flammaries to appear here have not yet been announced by the mural department.

The coeds will also participate in the festivities by presenting a water ballet.

Soccer Tourney

The five-man soccer tournament is moving along rapidly. Steele reached the finals in its bracket Wednesday and will meet Lewis Wednesday for the dorm title. The Lewis booters won a place in the finals by downing the Everett quintet, 3-2, Thursday.

The fraternity division completed its quarter finals Thursday. Some semi-finals will be held Tuesday and the finals will be run off Wednesday.

Grid Scrimmage

Coach Carl Snavely, head football coach, announced yesterday that he will conclude winter drills for Carolina's Tar Heels with a scrimmage at Kenan Stadium this morning at 10:30.

The Tar Heel mentor stated that he would have some five or six teams in the action. The workout is expected to last about two hours, and the drills will be open to any fans who would like to get a look at the squad.

Today's work will be the last for the Tar Heels until March 29, when Spring practice will officially begin. After about six weeks of practice this spring the team will stage its traditional Blue-White intra-squad game.

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

1942 NEW MOON HOUSE TRAILER—22 feet. Sleeps four. 211 Swain Hall, Trailer Court. (1-1802-1)

MAGIC CHIEF GAS STOVE. 736 E. Franklin phone 7551. (1-1811-1)

NEW 5 ROOM BRICK VENEER House, close in, all modern conveniences. Phone 4921 for appointment. (1-1813-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1940 DODGE 4-DOOR SEDAN. HAS new motor. Caston Motor Co., Phone F-3391. (ch 1x1)

BLACK TUDOR MODEL-A SEDAN, new motor, tires, clutch, brakes, radiator, upholstery. Can be seen by contacting Jesse R. Langston, Tr. Ct. 61, Pittsboro Rd. (1-1818-1)

NOTICE 14

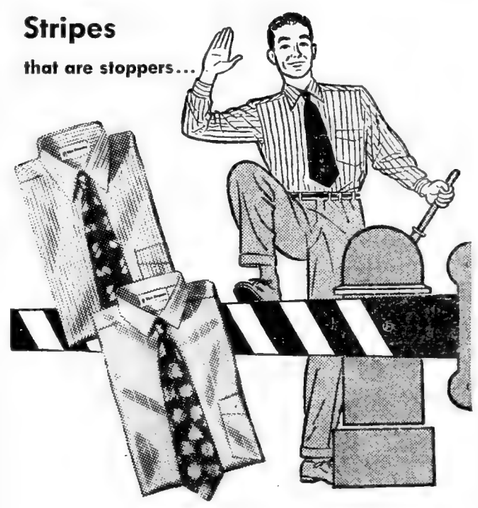
THE STUDENT ENTERTAINMENT committee requests that the remaining Student Entertainment Books be returned by March 10, or no refund will be made on them. Please send books to Student Entertainment Committee, 206 South Building., B. J. Strong, Chairman. (ch 1x2)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 122 West Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

WANTED TO RENT 24B

APARTMENT FOR STUDENT AND wife to occupy about June 1. Reply Box 201, [illegible] (1-1P12-1)



"It contained my car keys, $20 and a whole package of Dentyne Chewing Gum!"

"This dame must think I'm Dick Tracy! Nobody can resist delicious, clean tasting Dentyne Chewing Gum. Nobody can pass up that rich, long lasting flavor. She knows Dentyne helps keep teeth white and smiles bright. Yet I should find the guy who stole her Dentyne. If I could do that I'd be the D.A.!"

Dentyne Gum—Made Only By Adams

Stripes that are stoppers...

Perhaps you won't stop traffic in these new "Stopper Stripes" by Van Heusen. But you will stop more than your share of admiring glances. These smart new patterns are exclusive with Van Heusen—you'll find them on no other shirts! All of them boast new low-setting "Comfort Contour" collar styling and other fine details of Van Heusen's magic sewmanship. All Sanforized—a new shirt free if your Van Heusen shrinks out of size! $3.95 and $4.95. PHILLIPS-JONES CORP., NEW YORK 1, N. Y.

You're the man most likely to succeed in

Van Heusen Shirts

TIES • SPORT SHIRTS • PAJAMAS

How many operators will we need NEXT YEAR?

This is but one of the many questions telephone men are called upon to answer.

Part of their work has always been to anticipate demands for personnel . . . to determine what additional equipment must be provided, what new construction will be necessary to handle the constantly increasing demands for service.

Careful planning in every phase of telephone work requires the services of many qualified men. For them, this growing business offers the opportunity for active, interesting careers.

There's a future in telephony.

BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

Yesterday in Washington . . .

President Taking Life Easy In Florida, Reveals No Alarm Over Revolt

By Joan Marble
United Press Staff Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 27—(UP)—President Truman, who's currently the South's most distinguished vacationer, doesn't show any public alarm over the Southern revolt against him.

The temporary White House at Key West, Florida, has strictly no comment to make on the rumblings from Southern political leaders. The president himself is happily going about the business of vacationing. He swam with enlisted men at the submarine base yesterday, and is spending a good bit of today on the beach.

Actually, developments in the Civil Rights controversy were somewhat mixed today.

Name Off Ballot

A committee of the Virginia state legislature has moved to soften the so-called "Anti-Truman" law which Governor Tuck proposed yesterday. The committee has approved several amendments to the bill, which aims to keep President Truman's name off the Virginia ballot.

A number of Virginia newspapers and Republican leaders have heaped criticism on the Tuck proposal. The Richmond Times-Dispatch calls the measure "dangerous and undemocratic."

A representative from Georgia however, believes his state should adopt the Tuck election strategy. Democratic Representative Gene Cox told the House today if Georgia legislators have the courage of their forebears they'll follow Virginia's lead.

Another Georgian, Senator Walter George, hinted that a party shakeup is essential to give the South a bigger vote in party affairs. He says it will be possible to reorganize the party after the 1948 elections, and he implies that the reorganization will come because the Democrats may lose the next election.

Meanwhile, Republicans are heaping new coals on the simmering Democratic feud. A Republican-dominated Senate subcommittee voted to approve an anti-poll tax bill. A full committee is expected to okay the measure soon. After that it may get to the Senate floor where it faces a filibuster by Southern Democrats.

Budget Action

Congress sent the vacationing President another rebuff.

The House today formally approved a resolution to cut the President's budget by $2,500,000. The vote was 314 to 36. The Senate already has approved this budget cut, so Congress is now on record as favoring a government budget of $37,000,000,000.

However, there's nothing to force Congress to stick to this figure.

Congress has been urged to slice another $500,000,000 from the Marshall Plan.

Saint Lawrence Seaway

A bill to open up the Saint Lawrence seaway to ocean-going shipping was tossed into a congressional pigeon hole for another year.

The Senate voted to lay aside the controversial bill after some two weeks of debate. The vote was 57 to 30.

Midwest senators, headed by Senate President Vandenberg, fought long and hard to pass the bill this year. They argued it would open up the Great Lakes ports to ocean ships, and provide a whole new power system for the Northwest.

The bill was opposed, however, by senators from Atlantic Coast states and others who argued it was too expensive in this year of heavy foreign committments.

FLANKED BY HIS ATTORNEYS, Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers is pictured leaving Federal Court in Washington where he is on trial on charges of subornation of perjury. He is accused of inducing an associate Bleriot Lamarre, to lie to Senate investigators about financial deals. At left is R. T. Bushnell, ex-attorney general of Massachusetts. At right is Russell Hardy, formerly of the Department of Justice. (International)

-Buchan-

(Continued from page 2)

Buz Melchor, publications wheel, decided that Willie knew Wilbur better than Wilbur thought he did and that he had asked for the beer joints first. Wilbur smashed this theory, however, with the explanation that Willie knew he never touched beer. "It ain't healthy, or something," said Wilbur, "or that's what Willie thinks."

Midnight and closing time arrived at the Campus and several energetic musclemen escorted Wilbur to the door. When I passed the Marathon early in the morning he was sitting alone in the back booth loudly berating the world in general and telephones especially. Telephones, he had decided, are crazy animals.

-Write Away-

to the readers contained in the announced new policy.

In considering this situation, I would appreciate your taking into consideration the following (1)the HWFPC already receives more publicity than any other campus organization (2) a Campus poll showed 94 per cent of the students opposed to Henry Wallace (3) if barring Robertson is "discrimination" and "suppression" what is the barring of people in other organizations?

Perhaps it is time we had some change in "This Changing World" and a clear-cut and strictly enforced policy on the part of the Daily Tar Heel.

Paul E. Mullinax

(Ed's note: We are unaware that we have been approached by Mr. Kauffman.)

Doctors Initiate Extended Program To Better Health

A long-range program for improving rural health conditions in North Carolina was launched at the University yesterday at the first annual North Carolina Rural Health Conference sponsored by the North Carolina Medical society and conducted by the North Carolina Good Health association.

The meeting was attended by approximately 150 medical, health, welfare, and agricultural leaders from all sections of the State.

The program will be projected through the organization of health councils in every county in the State, the plan being outlined at the afternoon session by Dr. Fred C. Hubbard, North Wilkesboro, chairman of the committee on rural health of the North Carolina Medical society.

Sixteen state and national leaders in health, medicine and agriculture appeared on the program, and those attending were urged to go back home and generate enthusiasm for the county health councils and to call on the state council, organized several months ago, for any assistance needed.

Dr. Paul Whitaker, past president of the North Carolina Medical society and a leader on the Good Health Association's program, said at the final session that "due to the great interest manifested here today, I have definite hope and promise that the multiple problems of providing better health needs and better hospitalization for all North Carolinians will soon be achieved through the democratic process."

Dr. Hubbard emphasized the point that "the first job is to educate the people of each community as to the need. After they realize the need, they will do the job," he declared.

Taking part in the meeting from the University were Dean W. Reece Berryhill, School of Medicine, Dean E. G. McGavran, School of Public Health, and I. G. Greer of Chapel Hill, president of the North Carolina Good Health association.

JOKER JOHN RETURNS

"Joker John" Van Hecke returns tonight after a two-weeks absence to call the Saturday evening Bingo session in the Graham Memorial main lounge. Calling of the games will begin at 8 o'clock and from 2 to 25 rounds will be played.

Wilson C. Flake (above), United States Foreign Service officer and former trade commissioner to Australia, who addressed classes in political science and international relations at the University yesterday.

A native of Polkton, N. C., Mr. Flake has been in government service since 1926. He has served in Washington, New York, Bombay, Calcutta, Sydney, Canberra, and Manila. He has been in Washington with the State Department since 1945.

-Symphony-

(Continued from page 1)

member's name and submitted them to Dean Fred Weaver who will notify the members. Their acceptance is not yet official. According to the Constitution three faculty members will be elected by the student members of the committee—one faculty member at-large, one member from the music department, and one from the dramatic art department.

Members of the student section of the entertainment committee are B. J. Strong, Bill Shuford, Billy Carmichael, and Ruth Evans. The committee will meet again next week and consider ways of raising money to liquidate their debt and to draw up a list of entertainers from which next season's series will be taken.

Air Force Starts New ROTC Class Here In Spring

Colonel Byron R. Switzer, Professor of Military Science and Tactics here at the university announced yesterday that a new class will start this Spring Quarter for the Freshman class. All freshman who have entered the university the Fall and Winter quarters as well as those entering for the first time this coming Spring quarter will be eligible to make application.

The purpose of this course of instructions is to train reserve officers for the United States Air Force. At the completion of this four year course and upon graduation you are commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the United States Air Force Reserve, which in no way entails you to serve in active military service unless the individual requests active service himself.

All Equipment Furnished

During the course of instruction there is no expense to the student and all text books and other equipment is furnished at government expense. Also during your junior and senior years you receive financial benefits which amount to twenty four dollars ($24.00) per month.

All freshman students interested in making application are requested to come see Colonel Switzer, at the Air Reserve Officers Training Corps (Air ROTC) building located in the rear of the Naval Armory before the Spring quarter starts the 24th of March.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

Worn with a Smile

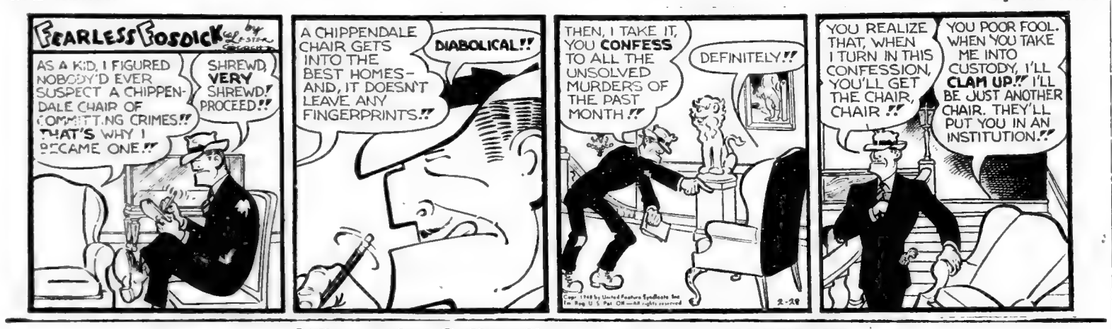
$60

"BOTANY" BRAND 500
Tailored by Daroff

MILLER-BISHOP CO.
"CLOTHIERS TO GENTLEMEN"
"Where Carolina Men Meet"
112 Corcoran Street, Durham, N. C.

TWO BLOCKS WEST OF CITY HALL
You'll Find A Solution To All Laundry Problems
HELPY-SELFY
AUTOMATIC LAUNDRY
Bendix Machines
W. Rosemary St.

CAR & TRUCK OWNERS
STOP LOOKING!



Get Chrysler Corporation MoPar Parts For
DODGE-PLYMOUTH and DODGE Job-Rated TRUCKS
USE CHRYSLER CORPORATION PARTS MoPar ACCESSORIES PARTS DIVISION PRODUCTS
CASTON MOTOR CO.
419 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill N. C.
Phone F-3391

Back to thrill you again . . . .
TOBACCO ROAD

with
Gene TIERNEY
Dana ANDREWS
Charlie GRAPEWIN
Marjorie RAMBEAU
CAROLINA
NOW PLAYING

LI'L ABNER By AL CAPP

Where the Collegelite meet to eat—HARRY'S

DU PONT Digest
For Students of Science and Engineering

Research simplifies print making with development of "Varigam" Paper

Chemists and physicists make important contributions

Photographic film that has been overexposed or overdeveloped usually means a "hard" or "contrasty" negative—too much silver is deposited on the highlights in comparison with that in the shadows. The opposite effect, a "soft" or "thin" negative, results from underexposure or underdevelopment. At one time photographers had to stock four or five grades of enlarging paper to correct for these conditions and get the right degree of contrast.

To eliminate this expensive, unwieldy situation, scientists developed "Varigam" variable contrast photographic paper. With "Varigam," the whole procedure of getting different degrees of contrast is reversed. Instead of using several grades of paper, the photographer uses only one. He gets variation in contrast by use of filters that control the wave lengths of light reaching the paper, thereby getting finer degrees of contrast than are otherwise possible.

The action of "Varigam" depends on the ability of certain dyes to extend the sensitivity of silver halide emulsions beyond the blue and blue-green regions. This effect was well known to scientists. But "Varigam" has an added feature—it gives high contrast in the blue portion of the spectrum and is also sensitive to light in the green region, with low contrast.

"Varigam" the work of many men

The first job was one for the physical chemists. Silver halide emulsions, normally sensitive to blue light, had to be made to give maximum contrast when exposed to light in this region.

It was known that certain dyes would extend the sensitivity of the emulsion over as far as the infra-red. But they were not practical for photographic paper, being affected by the red safety light used in the darkroom. Research by chemists showed that certain dyes such as 1:1'-diethylthiopseudocyanine iodide extended the light sensitivity only to the green region. And, most important, they produced low contrast when used in lower-than-normal concentrations. When such a dye was combined with high-contrast silver halide emulsion, the result was an emulsion that gave high-contrast prints when exposed to blue light, and low-contrast prints when exposed to green light.

Physicists Develop Filters

Physicists made this contrast control a reality by preparing sharp-cutting filters that allow the user to control his printing light selectively. These filters, which are attached to the lens of the enlarger, range from blue for high contrast to yellow, which cuts out the blue almost entirely and gives low contrast. In between are eight grades of filters with intermediate degrees of blue and yellow light transmission. All of the filters are made in such a way that neither light nor printing time needs to be varied as filters are changed, except the last two on the blue end. These require approximately twice the time of the others.

In "Varigam," made by Du Pont, chemical science has given the photographer new economy and convenience in printing, and a degree of contrast control more precise than is possible with any combination of commercial papers.

Questions College Men ask about working with Du Pont

What types of training are needed?

The majority of openings for college graduates at Du Pont are in technical work and are usually in chemical, physical, or biological research; chemical, mechanical, civil, electrical, or industrial engineering. Openings are available from time to time in other fields, including architecture, ceramics, metallurgy, mining, petroleum and textile engineering, geology, mathematics, accounting, law, economics, and journalism. Write for booklet, "The Du Pont Company and the College Graduate," 2521-C Nemours Building, Wilmington 98, Delaware.

DU PONT
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
BETTER THINGS FOR BETTER LIVING ...THROUGH CHEMISTRY

More facts about Du Pont—Listen to "Cavalcade of America," Mondays, 8 P.M., EST on NBC

Normal print (center) can be obtained from either a "soft" negative (left) or a "hard" negative (right), using "Varigam" variable contrast paper.

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Carolina Team Successfully Defends Invitation Indoor Track Laurels

—See story, page 3

WEATHER
Fair and cooler.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
DTH Society
Lost Weekend
Wrong Number

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 113

WINDING UP HIS CARIBBEAN TOUR, President Truman is shown (top) inspecting the Marine Guard of Honor at the U. S. Naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba. Bottom, the Chief Executive receives a scrapbook from William Barrett, 12, on behalf of the base's schoolchildren. William is the son of Chief Pharmacist Mate Preston Barrett. (International)

IRC Convention Chooses Officers, Holds Seminars

By Dan Wallace

New officers for the Northern district of the Southeast region of the International Relations club were chosen here at the conclusion of the IRC conference yesterday.

William Gibbons of Randolph-Macon college replaced John W. Bristow of UNC as president, John Fritz of William and Mary relinquished the vice-presidency to John Pritchard of Davidson, and Bill Patterson of UNC took over the post of secretary-treasurer from Jim Burwell also of UNC.

It was decided at the concluding meeting yesterday that next year's conference will include schools from North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, and Tennessee, but no host club had been chosen as yet.

Following are reports of the six seminars which were held Friday and yesterday:

Seminar 1, Near Eastern Nationalism—The three topics discussed were the Arab League, Palestine Partition, and the India Question. The first topic included a review of the seven states comprising the Arab League and it was pointed out that the League was formed by Britain in order that she might retain some of her former world power. Also, the League could be a threat to World peace if sufficiently organized economically and militarily. On the Palestine Partition, both the claims of the Arabs and Jews were judged and a solution to the problem, decided by a majority vote, was that the U. S. should defend the U. N. plan for partitionment, with force if necessary. In discussing the India Question, it was agreed that the struggle in India was internal and should be solved with as little outside intervention as possible.

Seminar 2, European Recovery Plan—The three main points discussed were U. S. and a World Leader, Background and Purpose of the Plan, and the Marshall Plan. The results were that the purposes of the U. S. in the plan are economic, humanitarian, and military. Debate of the second point showed that the ERP is necessary in order to enable an economic stability in the countries subscribed to this plan. The members agreed that the Marshall Plan is a gamble which may prove unsuccessful and that the U. S. should invest money in the ERP or into military preparedness instead.

Seminar 3, United Nations—The group offered four proposals to strengthen the organizational structure of the U. N. Among these were proposals that the world court be given compulsory jurisdiction of justice and that an international police force be established to enforce the decisions of this court.

Seminar 4, Decline of Imperialism in the Far East—The rise of independent nations of the Far East is a contributing factor and

(See IRC, page 4)

Longhair News

Need a haircut?

Graham Memorial may soon be able to fix it.

The news came yesterday after several people began wondering why the five green-and-black barber chairs are stored down in the men's room of the student union building.

According to GM Director Bill Shuford, the chairs are awaiting the re-establishment of the GM Barber Shop, a pre-war concern which offered students a clipping without clipping the wallet quite so heavily.

The five hydraulic chairs, maufactured by the Emil J. Paidar company of Chicago with cushions fashioned by Wheatly and Reade of Raleigh, will soon be moved into the present location of the Art Shop on the basement floor.

As soon as Shuford can secure several barbers, the haircut shop will be re-opened. Now that winter seems definitely over, the reduced prices may prove good news to campus longhairs.

Meanwhile, the chairs stand like motionless washroom attendants, mid-way between the —well, anyway, they're a long way from shampoo and cream oil.

Top Parties, Wall Street, Segregation Hit By Wallace Address Read Here

IN THE LIVING ROOM of an old mansion in New York's historic Murray Hill section, which has become the temporary headquarters of the Wallace-for-President movement, his campaign leaders hold their first press conference. Sen. Glen H. Taylor, Wallace's potential running mate, was on hand for the interview. Shown (l. to r.) are: Jo Davidson, Rexford G. Tugwell, Sen. Taylor and C. B. Baldwin. (International)

Clark Foreman, James Wise Talk To Wallacites

By Gordon Huffines

"There is no willingness to fight for even limited advances on the part of either major party," declared Henry Wallace in a speech written for the Tar Heel Students for Wallace assembly and delivered here last night by Sam Hirsch.

"The choice they offer is between degrees of retreat, degrees of reaction, not degrees of progress and advancement."

SCHW President

Wallace's speech was delivered by the Playmaker assistant business manager at a public rally held by the Wallace student assembly in Alumni building at 8 o'clock. The rally also featured Dr. Clark H. Foreman, president of the Southern conference for Human Welfare and James W. Wise, national vice-chairman of the Progressive Citizens of America.

Attacking Wall street, Wallace said, "We must act upon the fundamental premise that a strong and democratic America cannot be built while one third of our people who live in the South, Negroes and whites alike, remain the common victims of an oppressive economic, political, and social system. For years Wall street has been exploiting the resources and people of the South. It has had willing hirelings here in the South who have set white against Negro and Negro against white.

White, Negro Votes

"The 1948 election, he said, "must see the greatest outpouring of Southern white and Negro voters in history."

The Wallace message condemned racial and religious predjudices and critized segregated schools. "Racial and religious discrimination in America, in any form, must go," the third party candidate stated. "We who oppose race and religious hate too long have been on the defense. It is time to take the offensive", he declared.

Suspicion and Hatred

On the non-segregated school system in the South Wallace said that there can be no "equality of educational opportunity" in segregated school. Claiming that the system is "intended to deliberately maintain suspicion and hatred between Negro and white" Wallace stated that Congress and the Supreme Court must discard the doctrine of "substantial equality."

"It will take immense courage to challange Jim Crow," he said "but the time to strike is now."

Speakers at last night's session were James Waterman Wise, director of the Council Against

(See WALLACE, page 4)

Summer Session Notices Mailed

Guy B. Phillips, director of the summer session, stated yesterday that 12,000 preliminary announcements of the 1948 summer session have just been distributed, largely over the state and the South. The pamphlets of announcement contain information regarding application and eligibility for admission, the graduate program, housing accomodations, and other subjects pertinent to summer school work.

The summer session will be divided into two six-week terms, from June 10 to July 20, and July 21 to August 28 which will be the equivalent of a fourth school quarter. Arrangements have been made for adequate offerings to both graduate and undergradute students so they may continue with their regular work.

The summer session schedule is still in process and the catalog is expected to be ready about the first of April. There will be pre-registration sometime during the spring quarter for students in school then so they may have a short vacation before summer school begins.

As is customary, students now in school who expect to attend the summer session will have to make application for dormitory space early in the spring quarter. Katherine Carmichael, dean of women, and James E. Wadsworth, director of the housing bureau, are in charge of housing accommodations and will soon announce the date by which time students now in residence must apply for rooms.

Young Democrat Club Plans to Initiate Long-Range Speakers' Program Tuesday

A long-range speakers, program for the newly organized Young Democrats club on campus will be initiated Tuesday when Jonathan Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, will address the group on liberalism in the Democratic party from a national viewpoint.

Another well-known North Carolina figure will be invited here the following week to discuss the Democratic party from a state viewpoint, according to a release from club President Lester G. Carter, Jr., and sometime later the club will sponsor a speaker on the international aspects of the party.

During the spring quarter, the club plans to bring all the candidates for the North Carolina Democratic gubernatorial primary to the campus to speak from the same rostrum.

Need Apparent

Carter, a native of Fayetteville, stated "The realization that other groups and organizations on the campus are presenting organized programs in behalf of other candidates and idealogies has made the need for a presentation of the program and platform of the Democratic party apparent. It is the feeling of the club organizers that the students of this university should have the opportunity to learn of the past, present, and future of the Democratic party, and of the part it has played in North Carolina and the nation."

Debating Results

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

New Orleans, Feb. 28—The University of North Carolina had fluctuating success here at Tulane university today, taking several rounds of the Forensic Centennial debates in their stride, and dropping others to varied opponents.

Merle Stevens and Charlie Long, upholding the affirmative on Resolved: That there should be a federal world government, triumphed over the debaters of Arkansas State, Miami, Mississippi State, Southwestern Louisiana and Wynesburg college, but they were defeated by Texas, Louisiana State University, and Abilene college.

The negative team of Dick Mottsman and Herb Mitchell out-talked Emory, Texas A & M, and Auburn, but were downed by Florida, Arkansas State, University of Mississippi, women's branch of Arkansas State, and Loyola university.

Committee Is Rapidly Shaping Plans for Literary Quarterly

Plans for a literary quarterly were progressing rapidly yesterday as legislators and magazine men surveyed the possibilities of obtaining adequate financial backing for the venture and as John Marshall's executive committee shaped the broad program for a quarterly into more specific form.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon in Graham Memorial, Marshall's group filled out the membership of the committees set up earlier this week to lay the groundwork for the publication.

The committee forecast yesterday that the prospectus of the magazine will be completed by the end of the coming week. This prospectus which is being prepared by a group headed by Publications board member Julia Ross will put into concrete form the organizational setup of the proposed magazine.

It will, according to Marshall, show what the quarterly will be be for and about, how it is to be organized and why. It is expected that the Student Legislature will take some action regarding the venture at its meeting Thursday evening.

According to the members of Marshall's group, the quarterly's backers hope to have a definite basis for the magazine by that time.

LEGISLATURE ABSENCES

The following members of the Student Legislature were absent from the February 26 meeting and must submit excuses to the Rules committee of the Legislature, according to Jim Fort, chairman: Herb Alexander, Jack Devore, Bob Kirby, Don Robertson, Jane Rogers, Mary Swann, Ted Young.

Morehead Planetarium Rivet Tosser Has Fireball Pitch That's Too Hot to Handle

By Raney Stanford

With the baseball season coming on, the J. A. Jones Construction company now at work on the Morehead Planetarium has a fireball pitcher that Coach Bunn Hearn should look over. For Conrad "Dad" Teague, rivet-tosser of the gang now engaged in clamping together the steel framework of the new art gallery and planetarium, literally has a pitch that is too hot to handle.

Red-Hot Rivets

Students are continually stopping by the fence around the construction site to watch "Dad" nonchalantly toss the red-hot rivets across the length of the building's framework to the waiting three-man crew and their air hammer.

The coal-burning heater for the metal bolts sits on a wooden platform on the ground floor of the structure, but with the hammer crew working at girder joints all over the building's skelton, "Dad" must pitch his fiery rivets from many angles and continually changing distances to Buckster Bill Ward, who catches Teague's glowing tosses and inserts them into the waiting girder hole.

100 Feet Maximum

"Guess my top distance is about a hundred feet," the long-experienced riveter commented as he poked up his soft coal fire.

The rivet cooker says it takes about five minutes to get one up to the right degree of heat and ready for the hammer. After insertion through the beams, "Bucker" Bob Rush then slips on a steel die that clamps the beam and the rivet head together while Ray Miller leans on the hammer, bradding the point down tightly with 110 pounds of bucking air pressure.

Construction men estimate that the air around the building should continue to be made hideous by the machine-gun-like hammer for about three weeks more, if good weather allows the work to progress according to schedule.

NO KIDDING?

There is a city ordinance to the effect that dogs must have license tags and collars or they will be picked up as vagrants. Mrs. A. M. Jordon, representative of the local SPCA states that they are having special trouble with the dogs from the trailer courts and Victory Village.

Charles F. Milner of Communication Center Preparing for Trip to Tokyo for Army Work

By Herb Nachman

Charles F. Milner, director of the audio-visual section of the Communications Center, leaves for Tokyo next week where he will serve for 90 days as a visiting expert.

Milner's appointment, confirmed by Washington Wednesday night, was announced yesterday by Russell M. Grumman, director of the University Extension division.

Army Consultant

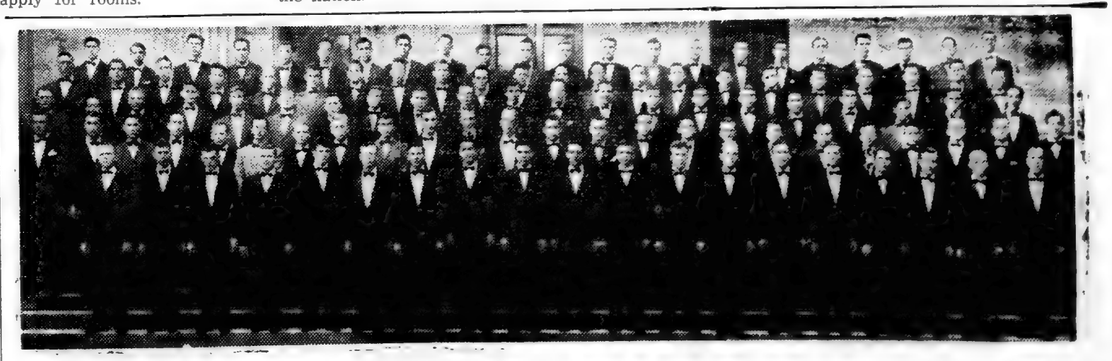
Officially, Milner has been appointed an expert consultant to the Army and a visiting expert assigned in connection with the Civil Affairs Military Government in the field of audio-visual education in Japan.

His orders state, "The purpose of this mission will be to advise and assist the Civil Information and Education section of Supreme Commander, Allied Powers in the development and implementation of a program designed to improve and extend audio-visual education in Japan."

In developing an audio-visual program for Japan, Milner will work out of Tokyo, contacting appropriate Japanese adult educators in cooperation with the Civil Information and Education section. Contacts will be made through the use of interpreters.

CHARLES F. MILNER

Milner is now in Washington making final preparations for the trip. He will leave by air sometime next week, probably Wednesday, with a number two priority. He is expected to return June 9.



Grumman said a leave of absence was granted Milner by Chancellor House and President Graham. While he is in Japan, his post with the Communications Center will be filled by Mrs. H. S. Pendergraft, his secretary.

Return From Newton

The orders for the trip came through only a few days after his return from Newton, N. C. where he taught an eight weeks course in audio-visual instruction, techniques and materials.

Originally from Leesburg, Pennsylvania, Milner graduated with an A. B. degree from Guilford College and received his M. A. here.

He has been director of the audio-visual section for 13 years and is also an associate director of the Extension division and a member of the advisory board of the Communications Center.

The Men's Glee club, under the direction of Paul Young, will present their annual spring concert Friday evening at 8:30 in Hill hall.

Beatrice Donley, alto soloist, will appear with the club and present Johannes Brahms' "Rhapsodie, Opus 53." John O'Steen and William Waters will be accompanists for the concert. Highlighting the program will be Randall Thompson's "Testament of Freedom." A group of folksongs and spirituals and three numbers by Wagner will complete the program.

Holders of season tickets or individual tickets for this concert may exchange them at Hill hall, beginning tomorrow, for reserved seats. No tickets will be held after 8:20 on the night of the concert.

Heterogeneity and Harmony

We're not a Wallace for President booster, but we have got to give that bunch credit for one thing—their apparent undying devotion to carry the gospel throughout the State. Here yesterday two-hundred Wallacites began their two-day conference, built around a theme that stole the limelight from other discussions. That was, "How to go back and begin a Wallace club."

Even before this conference a substantial group in about ten cars made a tour of what has been described as "every nook and crook of the State" to arouse interest in Wallace. Since Leo Isacson's win in New York, interest has been at a noticeably higher pitch.

The Wallace "Third Party" has a peculiar heterogeneity which apparently has for the most part enjoyed complete harmony. The liberal elements have massed for Wallace, some of their viewpoints clash as loudly as the elements within the Democratic party, but any friction that may have occurred has been kept quiet.

It is unfortunate that the Democratic party with its divergent sentiments cannot mould itself into such a sturdy machine of eager beavers.

'Sorry, Wrong Number!'

In the most recent issue of Look magazine, there is a comparison of the American telephone equipment with that of Russia. The comparison shows that America is stronger than Russia in its number of telephones per capita. If the census is including the Chapel Hill telephones in this survey, then there is a gross error in the computation.

The Chapel Hill telephone system has been notoriously inadequate and, here of late, the system has been out of order to such an extent that it is often necessary to dial a number for half-an-hour before the correct number can be connected. This has not been a complaint of only one or two clients, but for the past two weeks innumerable complaints have been registered against faulty equipment.

We can think of nothing more aggravating to the caller or the person who answers than to continually have to hang up the receiver after an emphatic "wrong number."

It is true that the users of the telephones give the instruments rough treatment and unnecessary hard knocks, but the old equipmment even with normal handling is frequently out of order.

All of the complaints which have been versed lately are not due to the handling of the instruments of the users. It is evident that it is due partially to flaws in the more delicate connections in the telephone system.

The telephone is a vital part of Chapel Hill both for local and long-distance calls. The system must be in good order at all times.

Two members of the advertising department of the Mobile (Ala.) Press Register found out the expensive way that it pays to advertise.

P. D. Beville, head of the local display advertising department, and Bobby Spottswood, solicitor, placed classified ads in the newspapers and received quick answers from each other.

Beville wanted to buy a tricycle for his youngster and Spottswaad wanted to sell a tricycle which one of his boys had outgrown. Each paid 75 cents for the ads.

Mrs. Spottswood read Beville's ad and telephoned Mrs. Beville, who bought the tricycle.

Spottswood and Beville work in the same department and their desks are only three feet apart.

Under "Baby Carriages" in the For Sale classification of the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Eagle appeared:

Brockway 1940 5-ton; perfect condition with milk body.

The United Press, reporting on a congressional resolution to adjourn, added: "If approved, Congress would not return until the next regular session is scheduled to congeal on Jan. 6."

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

"Whaddaya mean, 'Long live true democracy,' Toravich? I thought that wuz OUR theme song."

Write Away

Defends the Lost Weekends

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Dear Sir:

Though I do not go to the extreme of a three-day week, I will admit an occasional four-day week, and a maximum of a five-day week spent in Chapel Hill. And I believe that we weekly commuters are well justified. Some very good reasons were given by the student members of the Welfare Board, but I would like to add a few hours.

To begin with, the students are spending their own time, and —excepting government help via the G. I. Bill, their own money to attend school. Therefore, why not leave it up to the individual student (or his parents, if they are the source of revenue) as to how often he need attend class in order to satisfy the requirements for the ultimate degree.

Another reason that some students go home over the weekends is to utilize the facilities of the home laundry which is definitely more economical to the student and safer to clothes.

And what about the married men who are unable to find a place for their wives up here—trusting that they could pay $60 a month or more if place could be found? Do these people of the State begrudge them a few nights at home each week? Or would they rather go around talking of an increasing divorce rate?

Also in the editorial, there was mentioned the trouble of "not getting our share of young high school graduates." It is certainly too bad the University got its share of veterans, isn't it? And what was that about the veteran being "more geared to rough living" in contrast to the high school graduates? Well, now, we certainly don't want to force those high school graduates into any uncomforts, do we? After all, Mr. G. I. lived for three months in a fox hole in Guadalcanal, so he is perfectly able to live in a Quonset hut now on Chapel Hill, and let the High School graduate (since he isn't used to mud) occupy a dormitory.

I propose that, if the High School graduate isn't willing to take what he can get for living quarters at U. N. C., he doesn't have to enter. Naturally the administration will say—"but it will be three years before all the veterans are through and there will be enough room to take him in. That means he will have to wait three years for an education!"

O. K., so what? The average veteran waited three years for an education, didn't he? And it was under much more uncomfortable circumstances than exist now. Maybe these three years could be spent in gearing the young men of today to rougher living.

Marvin Cowell

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

—Rendezvous just got in electric ware enough for a minor kitchenette. . .They're now equipped to serve the best coffee, and toast all sandwiches.

The Travel Agency hopes you didn't want a reservation on the Silver Meteor going North any time soon. . .It's booked pretty tight for weeks to come. . .(Student union travel agency is still the most painless way known of settling your transportation worries; 2-6 daily.)

Spring Sunday Siesta Suggestion:—No finer way to spend the Sabbath afternoon than listening to the NY Philharmonic Symphony—Graham Memorial main lounge, 3-4:30 p. m.

Chi O's Entertained By Phi Gams, ATO's

The Chi Omega's entertained the Phi Gams on Thursday, February 19, with a Chinese dinner party at the sorority house. Dates were chosen by the girls by choosing the necktie they liked best and dancing followed dinner. They were entertained the following Tuesday by the ATO's at a dance from 8 to 10 at the fraternity house. Punch and sandwiches were served and a humorous skit was presented.

Coffee will be served Sunday evening at the Chi Omega house and everyone is invited.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association | Complete Leased Wire of United Press | Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser
NIGHT EDITOR: Charlie Gibson
SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears
ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden
ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow
SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison
EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Hudnes, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patten, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Sehaap, Dick Jenzette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — NIGHT SPORTS: Bill Kellam

SOCIETY

Leap-Year Day Here; Opportunity Knocks Once in Four Years

By Jane Mears

Today is leap-year day so we are wearing a path between the lower quad and fraternity row with stops at Old East, New East and the Y court in between. This is our big chance, and it won't happen again in four years. Secret meetings have been held in all girls dormitories and sorority houses, and intricate plans have been laid. The underground headquarters between Alderman and McIver is seething with activity, but now the men are on the other end of the rope. We only hope they hang themselves.

So, take warning and look before you leap. Matter of fact, don't leap at all, but sit at home beside the telephone and wait for the phone to ring, and if you don't rate at least a couple of calls, you'll know how some poor coeds feel when they sit in on weekends. Bet this will be one weekend every coed will be dated up.

Co-slave this week is Weddy Thorp, Pi Phi princess who knows all, sees all, but doesn't tell a darn thing according to our Aycock reporter. As of March 14, Weddy will be your new society editor and is getting in a little practice now. J. P. is going into hibernation with the Coed Handbook.

Margaret Goodman, from Concord, and Bill Richardson, Jr., of Goldsboro, both students here at school, were married February 20 in the local Presbyterian church by Rev. Hilton D. Seals.

Friday evening, the 20th, the Phi Gams entertained their sister sorority, the Kappa Alpha Thetas of Duke at a party in the Rumpus room of Hartman's Palladium in Durham. Both teams claim the evening was singularly enjoyable.

Entertainment was provided by Mr. Dixie Green, baritone and eccentric dancer from Robertsonville, who astounded the motley assemblage with an original dance entitled "The Epileptic's Cake Walk."

Last Tuesday the Phi Gams entertained the Pi Phi's at a supper party given in the Fiji house. Theme of the party was "The Starving Armenians." Enormous success also.

Williams, Gammage Entertain ATO Party

Alpha Tau Omega entertained the girls of Chi Omega last Tuesday night with an informal dancing to recordings and informal entertainment. Punch and sandwiches were served at the affair.

On the entertainment side, several numbers were presented under the capable emceeing of Jack Wooley. The program began with songs in harmony by the chapter quartet, composed of Charles Heinmiller, Hank Williams, Ken Gammage, and Tom Davis.

This was followed by Paul Reichle on the piano and the Williams and Gammage ragtime song-and-dance routine to the strains of "Are You from Dixie?" Their encore was "Goodbye, My Lady Love."

The interlude was ended by Pete Strader and cohort Gammage doing one of their innimitable skits, this one on the merits and demerits of alcoholic beverages.

Dancing until 10:45 completed the evening.

Coeds To Get Late Permission To Attend CICA Fashion Show

All women students attending the CICA Spring Fashion show on Tuesday night have been granted late permission by Dean Carmichael. The performance starts at 9 o'clock in the Carolina theater and will probably run until shortly after 11 o'clock. Coeds will have until a half an hour after the performance to be in their dormitories.

Marion 'Bussy' Woodbury, Phi Gamma Delta from Wilmington, was selected by CICA executive council to emcee the event, to the soft background music of a string quartet.

The 45 complete outfits for women and 23 for men will include everything from what to wear on a cabin party to what to wear at your wedding built around the theme of Carolina life.

All clothes modeled will be on display in the various stores around town. Clothes from Montaldo's of Greensboro, to be modeled by the women, will be displayed in the Varsity for two weeks following the show.

Other sponsors for the event include the Varsity, Jack Lipman's, the College Shop and Carolina Bootery, the University florist, and the Carolina theater.

Tickets are 75 cents each, and can be obtained from any CICA member, or at the door on Tuesday night. Only 1,000 tickets were printed, so everyone will have a good seat.

Nance Elected SPE President

James Nance, Asheboro, was re-elected president of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity this week. Other officers elected included: Roland P. Early, Jr., Raleigh, vice-president; Harry Tsumas, secretary; George Atkins, Winston-Salem, historian; Joseph Jones, Winston-Salem, comtroller; Don Alexander, Asheboro, senior marshall; and Everett Hampton, Kannapolis, junior marshall.

Committee chairman appointed at this time included: William Hodd, Charlotte, rush chairman; Charles Linville, Winston-Salem, pledge master; Tom Wood, Winston-Salem, social chairman.

Final arrangements were made for the chapter Founders' day banquet at the Carolina Inn on February 28, and plans were formulated for a pledge dance in March.

ADPi NOTES

Mrs. McCord Williams, local province president of Alpha Delta Pi, spent four days visiting the Carolina chapter this week. She returned to her home in Charlotte yesterday afternoon.

The highlight of the ADPi social calendar was a party at the Sigma Chi house Thursday night.

Everyone is invited to open house at the ADPi house from 7 to 8 oclock tonight.

Lambda Chi Pledges

On Wednesday night, February 18, the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity pledges six men. This raises the number of Lambda Chi pledges to 25. The new pledges are William Ballew, Jr., Nebo; Ralph Davis, Lakeland, Fla.; Leland Jones, Joseph Duke, Jr., Wilmington; Aubrey Talbert, Jr., High Point; and Peyton Cox, Winston-Salem.

Pi Beta Phi Initiates 23; Providence President Arrives

Pi Beta Phi initiated the following 23 pledges yesterday: Donna S. Barnett, Jacksonville, Fla.; Molly Blackburn, Winston-Salem; Hunter Bell, Norfolk, Va.; Gladys [illegible], Red Bank, N. J.; Louise Dodson, Miami, Fla.; Katharine Finney, Eccleston, Md.; [illegible] mian Griffin, Washington, [illegible] dall Hudson, Tarboro; [illegible] Huffman, Morganton; [illegible] Tom Lawrence, Raleigh; [illegible] Marie Lester, St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Elizabeth Myatt, Goldsboro.

Virginia Nash, Raleigh; [illegible] Goode Nufer, Goldsboro; [illegible] Pointer, Raleigh; Jean [illegible] Durham; Katherine Royal, Goldsboro; Harriet Sipple, Orlando, Fla.; Mary Glen Slater, Wilson; Barbara Smith, Raleigh; Henrietta Thorp, Rocky Mount; Ann Wells, Milledgeville, Ga.; [illegible] Sally Woodhull, Bethlehem, Pa.

The Pi Phi's province president, Mrs. John Herod, Charlottesville, Va., made her annual visit with the local chapter on Wednesday and Thursday. She held conferences with officers and went over the business of the sorority to the past and coming year. Following her talk with the pledges on Wednesday afternoon, the Pi Phi's had a buffet supper party.

Two Pi Phi pledges have received engagement rings recently. Laura Roe, Wilmington, plans to marry Lloyd L. Fonvielle, Sigma Alpha Epsilon from Wilmington, and Mary Goode Nufer, Goldsboro, is engaged to Charles R. Bragley, an Annapolis man from Medford, Ore. Both weddings will take place in early June.

Dekes Celebrate Wedding, Pinnings

The Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity has had one marriage and three pinnings recently.

Robert Kemp, of Goldsboro, was married to Anne Cobb, Tri Delt alumna from Winston-Salem, last weekend.

Dekes recently pinned included: John S. Meade, Danville, Va., to Louise Dodson, Pi Phi from Miami, Fla.; Roy Holsten, Glen Rock, N. J., to Elizabeth Myatt, Pi Phi, Goldsboro; and James Griffin, Asheville, to Mary Murphy, Chi Omega from Snow Hill.

Formal opening of the new "wreckreation room" in the basement of the Deke house took place on February 15 when the chapter held open house from 12:30-4:30 a.m. Music was furnished by Frank Wright and his Bull City Night Hawks.

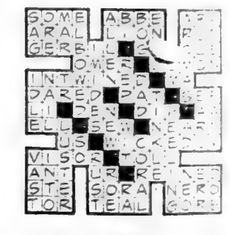
Tri Delts Hold 1948 Elections

At the regular meeting of the Tri Delts last night elections for the school year 1948-49 took place. The following girls were elected to office: Peppy Lucas, president; Hilda Sharkey, vice-president; Margie Norris, recording secretary; Candy Jonas, corresponding secretary; Elinor Woolz, treasurer; Babs DeWitt, rush chairman; Joan Lucas, house president and W.A.A. representative; Fern Hughes, Pan-Hellanic president; Phyllis Bradshaw, chaplain; Liz Leggett, marshall; Danny Payne, Social chairman; Mary Dillard, Cultural chairman; B. A. Pope, Activities chairman; Faith Adams, historian; Betty McDonald, Librarian and Custodian; Babs Kerr, Scholarship chairman.

EPISCOPAL SERVICES

There will be an evening service with a brief address every Sunday night at 8 o'clock at the Episcopal church.

The service will last 30 minutes and is especially for students. The Canterbury club will sponsor the services and will provide the choir and participants.



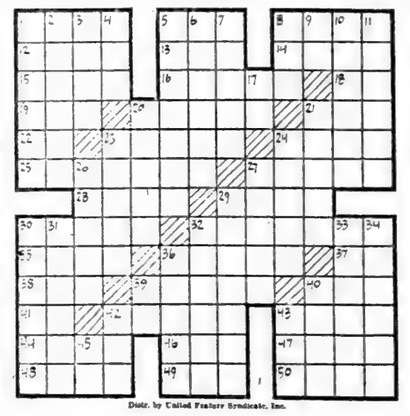
All students are cordially invited to attend.

PROFESSORS MEETING

The University chapter of the American Association of University Professors will meet at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening in Gerrard hall. Interested members of the faculty are invited to be present.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



ACROSS

1—Became bigger
5—Gull's cry
8—Auto
12—To talk wildly
13—Night before
14—Again
15—Greedy
16—Carpenter's joint
18—Inward
19—Sesame
20—Curses
21—Mr. Murray's union
22—Within
23—Coal dust (pl.)
24—Mountain lake
25—Wise teachers
27—Female horses
28—Fasteners
29—Bristle
30—Little brooks
32—Tardy
35—To revise for publication
36—One of the Apostles
37—Musical note
38—Favorite
39—To make speech
40—To fold
41—Babylonian god
42—To join
43—To comfort
44—Above
46—River in England
47—Baking chamber
48—Spreads for drying
49—Bitter vetch
50—Fragrant ointment

DOWN

1—Browned crust
2—Gulch
3—Wrong
4—To marry
5—Shooting stars
6—Occasions
7—Travels
8—Able
9—Indefinite article
10—To go to bed
11—Faints
17—Bone
20—Blessings
21—Diamond measure
23—Wading bird
26—Russian broadcast
28—To cut in half
27—Mixup
29—Divans
30—To reiterate
31—To form thoughts
32—Thrasher
33—Rubber
34—To rely on
36—Self-esteem
39—Upon
40—Molten rock
42—Periods of good fortune
43—Age
45—Unit of force

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

LI'L ABNER — By AL CAPP

Where to eat?—HARRY'S! OF COURSE!!!

Tar Heels Capture Five Firsts; Middies Edge Devils For Second

By Bob Goldwater

Scoring all but three of its 37 1-2 points in five events, North Carolina's track team ran off with the Southern Invitation Indoor Games for the third straight year last night in Woollen gym before 2,000 cheering fans.

Given a good sendoff with 14 points from the afternoon program, the Tar Heels maintained their advantage during the first four evening events, then went on to clinch the top laurels in the seventh attraction of the meet, the 70-yard high hurdles. The locals captured five first places, taking the honors in the shot put, high jump, two-mile run, and both hurdle races.

While Carolina was breezing off with top honors in the team scoring, Navy and Duke were waging a close battle for second place, and the Middies eventually won by one-tenth of a point. Maryland was a close fourth, VPI finished fifth, and seven other teams trailed behind.

In the freshman division, Tennessee's yearlings outscored the rest of the field combined to gain an easy first place. Carolina was second and Virginia placed right behind.

George Washington high school, of Alexandria, Va., repeated its 1947 championship in the scholastic group with two other Virginia outfits, Washington and Lee and John Marshall, coming in second and third, respectively.

Four meet records were shattered by the collegiate performers during the sixth annual games, with a fifth one being tied and a scholastic mark also going by the boards. Chief record-breaker and the individual star of the meet was Roger Neighborgall, Duke's high powered hope for the Olympic games this summer.

Both of Neighborgall's new marks were formerly held by Charlie Beetham, Carolina Preflight ace in 1944. The speedy Blue Devil clipped 2.4 seconds off the half-mile record, with a sizzling 1:57.4. Exactly one hour earlier, he sliced three-tenths of a second from Beetham's 51.6 standard in the 440-yard run.

Another running record to fall by the waysides was in the one-mile run, where Navy's Jim Oberholtzer came through with a 4:19.7 effort, almost five seconds better than Browning Ross' mark set in 1946. Carolina, usually the distance champion, was sadly lacking in this event because of the absence of Jack Milne. The 1947 NCAA cross-country titleholder was expelled from the University two days ago for disciplinary reasons.

The Tar Heels also sported a record-smasher among their stars. Jack Moody upped the meet high-jump mark set last year over an inch, with a leap of 6 feet 3 and 11-16 inches.

The high jump also boasted one of the surprises of the meet, when two Blue and White performers placed among the scorers behind Moody. Bill Joyner captured the second spot, bowing out to his teammate when the bar rested at an unofficial 6-2. And among those tied for third was newcomer Doug Smith, whose previous high was way below six feet.

Although missing out in the one-mile honors, the Tar Heels proved their strength in the distances later in the evening. Sam Magill, who picked up one point for a forth place in the mile, came back to run off with the two-mile affair in 10:04.5. And two strides behind youthful Sam came veteran Jimmy Miller, running in his first competition since a recent illness.

Carolina also scored heavily in the low hurdle event. Ted Schultz came in more than a step ahead of teammate Bob Morrow and Navy's Dean Ousterhout, who tied for second. In the high hurdles, it was still another Tar Heel—Bob Morrow—who flashed across to break the tape. The other UNC first place was registered by big Bob Scligman, in the shot put. He and Neighborgall were the only repeaters from last year.

Neighborgall Sets Records in 440, 880; Two Other Collegiate Marks Shattered

Track Summary

Shot Put—Seligman (UNC), Hills (Fla), Beeler (Navy), Byler (NCS). 46' 7 1-2".

Broad Jump—Ausbon (Duke), Taylor (Fla.), Andrews (Md.), McGill (SC). 21' 6 3-4".

High Jump—Moody (UNC), Joyner (UNC), tie for third among Smith (UNC), Davis (Navy), Brannon (Navy). 6' 3 11-16". (New meet record.)

One-mile run — Oberholtzer (Navy), Palmer (Md.), Troxel (Va.) Magill (UNC). 4:19.7 New meet record).

60-yard dash—Wingo (VPI), Utz (Shippensburg), Willis (UNC), McGowan (Md.). 6.4.

440-yard run — Neighborgall (Duke), Garibaldi (Navy), Matthews (Md.), Young (Duke). 51.3 (New meet record).

70-yard high hurdles—Taylor (UNC), Salvanelli; (Md), Rhuback (Md.), D. Mohler (Va.). 8.8.

Two-mile run — Magill (UNC), Miller (UNC), Liddell (VMI), Middleton (VPI). 10:04.5.

880-yard run — Neighborgall (Duke), Magill (VPI), Hall (Navy), Schneider (Tenn.) 1:57.4 (New meet record).

70-yard low hurdles—Schultz (UNC), tie for second between Morrow (UNC) and Ousterhout (Navy), Meanix (Navy). 7.9.

One-mile relay — Maryland (Fanshaw, Price, Salvanelli, Matthews), Navy, VPI, VMI. 3:30.5 (Ties meet record).

Pole vault — Five-way tie among Roller (Va.), Korik (Tenn.), Taylor (Fla.), Colvin (Duke), Bowles (Duke). 12'6".

TEAM TOTALS

Carolina 37 1-2		Virginia 5	1-5
Navy 20	1-2	Tennessee 3	1-5
Duke 20	2-5	VMI 3
Maryland 18		Shippensburg 3
VPI 11		N. C. State 1
Florida 8	1-5	S. Carolina 1

Freshman Team Totals

Tennessee 26	1-2	Duke 2
UNC 8		W & L 2
Virginia 6		State 1
So. Carolina 4		Davidson 1

Scholastic Team Totals

Geo. Washington 20		Granby 2
W & L 14	1-2	Thos. Jefferson 2
John Marshall 10		W. Wilson 2
Gordon Lee 3		Fork Union 1	1-2

Winter Gridders Tally Five Times in Two Hour Scrimmage

With such familiar figures as Charlie (Choo Choo) Justice frequently on the run, along with other stars of last year, the Carolina gridders closed a week of winter football drills yesterday with a spirited scrimmage in Indian summer weather.

Six teams alternated in the bruising contact and ripped off five touchdowns before the two-hour session was over.

Coach Carl Snavely unveiled a few new wrinkles in his power-laden single wingback formation. Following the scrimmage, he expressed himself as well pleased with the way his 75 or so candidates had handled themselves. Beginning the latter part of March the squad will assemble again for about six weeks of spring practice.

Sophomore Billy Hayes tossed a long pass to Johnny Clements for one of the first string touchdowns. Hayes has been converted into a fullback and showed proficiency in his new role. Justice ran another one over. Quarterback Don Hartig worked in the same backfield with Hayes, Clements and Justice racked up one of the scores with an intercepted pass.

CLASSIFIED

FOR RENT 6A

TWO GARAGES AT 107 S. COLUMBIA St. Phone 3681. (1-1819-1)

FOR SALE 6B

1942 NEW MOON HOUSE TRAILER—22 feet. Sleeps four. 211 Swain Hall. Trailer Court. (1-1802-1)

NEW 5 ROOM BRICK VENEER House, close in, all modern conveniences. Phone 4921 for appointment. (1-1813-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1940 DODGE 4-DOOR SEDAN. HAS new motor. Caston Motor Co., Phone F-3891. (ch 1x1)

FOUND 6C

FOUND SICK IN TRAILER COURT, beautiful full grown male collie, no collar. Also a hound dog reported to police from 216 Cameron Ave., either very old or sick. Call Dr. Nathan's Vet. Hosp. for either of these dogs. (1-C1823-2)

LOST 12

ONE SET OF CAR KEYS ON CHAIN with a silver pen light, Ann H. Martin engraved thereon. Ann H. Martin, Kenan Dorm. (1-1820-1)

NOTE OF THANKS 13

I WOULD LIKE TO EXPRESS MY appreciation to all of my friends who were so generous to me in connection with my recent bereavement. James Harrington (1-2900-1)

All Occasions
Flowers say it better
REHDERS
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office corner

QUALITY FURNISHINGS at E. A. Brown Furniture Co.
Next to City Hall
Phone 6586

Quick Service
DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham

Mermen Sink Emory, 60-15, To Sweep Tour

What's Up In Intramurals

Final figures on the swimming tournament released by the mural department yesterday reveal that the Emerson mural team walked away with its second winter quarter title by running up a total of 61.5 points in the swimming tourney.

The Emersonians copped first places in five of the nine events to lift the dormitory crown from the Med School mermen. The Medics came in second with 40.5 points and one first place finish. Lewis, 14; Graham, 9; Aycock, 7 rounded out the top five dorm teams. Each had one man come home ahead of the field.

The fraternity race was much closer. The three top teams, Phi Gam, KA, and Kappa Sig, finished with point totals of 37, 35, and 33, respectively. The Phi Gams registered three firsts and KA notched two. No Kappa Sig won an event, but they got credit for four second finishes. SAE, who placed fourth, counted two seconds and fifth finishing Sigma Nu took one first place. ATO, winners of last year's tourney, failed to place in the top five.

The Sigma Nu riflemen really went to town last week. The ten men shooting registered an average of 142, while the top four men, who will comprise the final entry when regular competition commences averaged 156.75.

Harvey Turnage turned in the best score for his fraternity, a 163. Ralph Jonas placed second with 158 and John Foreman was next with 154. Bill Williams won his place on the quartet by a whisker, nosing out John Small, by one point, 152-151.

The KA's didn't do quite so well. Their 10-man average was 105.1 and four best men averaged 135.25. Ed Davenport and Clyde Wall tied for the lead with identical totals of 147. John Schofield shot a 130 and Nat Williams hit for 177.

MONDAY'S MURALS

SOCCER

4:00—Field 1: Sigma Chi 1 vs. ATO 1; Field 2: DKE 1 vs. Sigma Nu 1.

RIFLE FIRING

7:30—Chi Phi, (orientation).

Cagers Begin Drills For Tourney Monday; Drawings Held Today

Carolina's cagers begin practice tomorrow afternoon for the Southern conference tournament starting on Thursday, with the finals coming up next Saturday evening.

Drawings for the tourney pairing will take place today when representatives of the teams meet with the conference basketball committee at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham. N. C. State and George Washington, the two top teams in the standings, are certain to receive the seeded spots in opposite ends of the draw. Should four clubs be rated, Carolina and Maryland will gain the remaining seeded positions.

Other colleges that clinched tourney berths before last night's concluding games in circuit play are Davidson and Duke. The Blue Devils pushed their way into the select eight with a 56-45 victory over the White Phantoms, despite the 18-point performance of Johnny Dillon. Looking like "The Hook" of old, Dillon turned in what definitely stands as his best gome of the season.

Clark Taylor Gains Finals in Badminton

Clark Taylor has battled his way to the finals of the intramural badminton tourney, but the other bracket is still in the semifinal round.

The winner of the Watson Pugh-Dave Boak contest tomorrow night will face Taylor for the campus title. Taylor defeated W. G. Hooks to gain his spot in the finals.

Doubles play in the tourney, which is being conducted by the Badminton club under the sponsorship of the Intramural department, will be continued Wednesday.

Donald Vaughan, professional badminton player who is working with the National and Southern Badminton associations to promote the popularity of the sport in the South, visited the local Badminton club Wednesday evening and played several exhibition contests.

Dolphins Capture Second Victory Of Southern Trip for Year's Ninth

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

Atlanta, Feb. 28 — The University of North Carolina's undefeated Blue Dolphins proved themselves to be the class of the Southeast here tonight in the Emory University swimming pool as they overwhelmed an outclassed band of Emory mermen, 60-15. Tonight's flood of North Carolina points marked the second meet in succession that the powerful Tar Heel tankers had broken the 60 marker scoring mark against a preivously unbeaten Peach State opponent.

In racking up their ninth consecutive victory of the season, the Dolphins were never seriously threatened after jumping to an early lead by copping the medley relay. Last night against Georgia Tech, the North Carolinians captured the blue ribbon honors in all nine events. The tourn visitors also set two new Engineer pool records as they wrecked the Techs, 62-13.

Despite a slow Georgia Tech pool, the visitors from the old North State broke the old marks in the 150 yard backstroke and the med relay. Jerry Cook made his debut in the breaststroke leg of the medley and turned in a capable performance while freshman ace Jim Thomas, who was the pool record-setter for the Tar Heels, opened the event with a speedy showing in the backstroke leg. Allison Pell made his initial appearance in the medley while taking care of the freestyle chores.

Dick Twining was another double duty man. The Carolina distance sensation easily captured first place in both the 220 and 440 freestyle events. In both endurance tests, he came out on top in duels with Johnny Hiles, Tech's top marathoner.

Gridder Bill Pritchard, who seems to improve with experience, turned in his top performance of the year to cop the 50 yard freestyle crown. In splashing his way to a fleet 24.3 time in the sprint, he edged Floyd Drew, the Bowman Gray pool record holder in the same event.

Dan Breeden, another Dolphin who is coming along fast, was at his season's peak against the Engineers as he finished the grueling breaststroke event only a few yards between the veteran Bob Ousley to take the runner-up honors.

At the meet's conclusion, Carolina coach Jamerson commented shortly before departing for Chapel Hill that he thought that everybody did well in the slow pool after the lengthy train ride.

The summary:

300-yard Medley Relay—North Carolina (Thomas, Cook, Osborne). Time: 3:05.3. (New pool record.)

220-yard freestyle — Twining (NC), Hiles (T), Pell (NC). Time 2:18.5.

50-yard freestyle—Pritchard (NC), Drew (NC), Avery (T). Time: 24.3.

Diving—Sper (NC), Erle (NC), Hirschberg (T).

100-yard freestyle—Greenbaum (NC), Morrow (NC), Chapman (T). Time: 54.7.

150-yard backstroke—Thomas (NC), Flowers (T), Bippart (NC). Time: 1:38.7. (New pool record.)

200-yard breaststroke—Ousley (NC), Breeden (NC), Topper (T). Time 2:33.5.

440-yard freestyle — Twining (NC), Hiles (T), Norwood (NC). Time: 5:10.2.

400-yard freestyle relay—North Carolina (Osborne, Greenbaum, Morrow). Time: 3:41.2.

Diamond Club Set to Report

If old Sol is beaming tomorrow afternoon, baseball mentors Dunn Hearn and Walter Rabb's tanned countenances will also be wreathed in smiles for they have issued a call for all candidates for the 1948 diamond squad to report at 3 o'clock on Southwest Emerson.

This weekend's spell of mild weather has strengthened the hopes of the Carolina coaching staff for getting outside early. However, should tomorrow be rainy, the candidates are to report to the Tin Can where the Tar Heel mentors will have a short meeting with them.

The battery candidates have been working out since last Monday. Several of the new mask and mitt aspirants have handled themselves very capably in the brief outdoor workouts of last week and they should be a big help to the weak Hearnmen catching staff. It was still too early at the last workout to pass judgment on the moundsmen.

As things now stand, it's very likely that a pair of guards on Carl Snavely's gridders will be guarding home plate for the local clouters. Chubby Sid Varney, a catcher by trade, and rugged Emmett Cheek, a converted Monogram outfielder from Chapel Hill, will probably be doing a large part of the work behind the plate this spring unless one of the freshman shoves them out.

Jack Herzog original

Gossamer rayon chiffon drifts beneath a portrait neckline. In pastel shades.

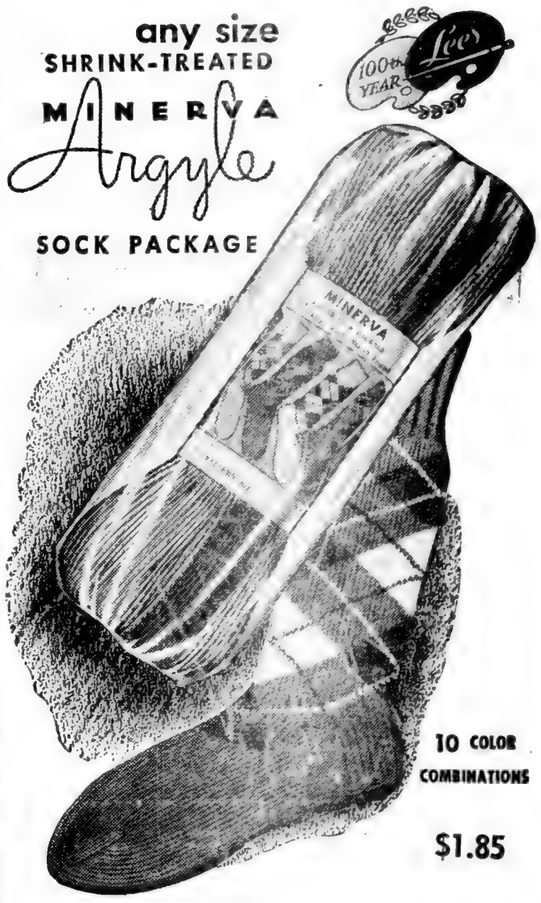
Formal & Cocktail Salon

FOR FASHIONS IN . . .
- Evening and Party Frocks
- Date Dresses
- Street Dresses
- Suits
- Hats
- Shoes
- Lingerie
- Hose
- Gloves
- Bags

Original Designs by Nationally Advertised Manufacturers

VISIT THE FORMAL AND COCKTAIL SALON AT

Robbins
The House of Fashion in Durham



VILLAGE
TODAY

—MONDAY—

PACKAGED PRIZE—
any size SHRINK-TREATED MINERVA Argyle SOCK PACKAGE

10 COLOR COMBINATIONS

$1.85

Split the protective cellophane and out pops the "makings" for a pair of his favorite socks—any size. You know how much hand-knit Argyle socks cost—if he can find 'em! Here in one complete package you have just the right amount of Minerva long staple yarn... full instructions and 10 different color combinations to choose from—at pretty savings, too! Come in tomorrow . . . and start a pair for him.

Efird's DEPARTMENT STORE DURHAM, N. C.

ANOTHER FAMOUS PRODUCT ... Lees WILTON COLOR CARPET

Anti-UMT Group Chooses Officers

At its final meeting of the winter quarter the Chapel Hill Anti-UMT committee unanimously adopted a proposal to affiliate with the National Youth Assembly Against Conscription.

In the absence of Gary Fullerton, regular chairman, Eli Friedland acted as chairman, hearing a summary of the committee's activities for the past quarter. Representatives of several campus organizations attended in both official and non-official capacities.

New officers unanimously elected for the spring quarter were John Meyers, chairman, and Bill Evans, recording and corresponding secretary. Mrs. Raymond Adams, of the Women's League for Peace and Democracy, was chosen treasurer.

-Wallace-

(Continued from page 1)

Intolerance and author of "The Springfield Plan," who was co-chairman of the Citizens committee that supported Leo Isacson in his Bronx victory for Congress, and Clark Foreman, Atlanta, member of the national Wallace committee.

"The very formation of a third party today is an act of faith in democracy," asserted Wise. "It is a faith that when old parties and leaders fail the people can choose new parties and leaders within the framework of American political tradition.

Wise said the "tremendous response of American youth on and off the campus to the Wallace candidacy is a tribute both to him and to them.

Foreman in his address declared, "The Democratic party is crumbling. The faltering leadership has succeeded in alienating both the progressive and the reactionary wings of the party simultaneously.

"Wallace is in this campaign for good and his supporetrs intend that the campaign shall be victorious. The same people who say now that Wallace cannot win said two weeks ago that Congressman Isacson could not win. Actually we know that there is nothing that the American people cannot accomplish when they set thir minds to it."

Foreman said that on a recent trip through the South he found "active Wallace committees everywhere I stopped and the determination to win. I predict that Wallace will be on the ballot in every Southern state with the possible exception of Florida.

"The outrageous message of the Governor of Virginia recently calling upon the Legislature to deprive the people of that state the right to vote for presidential candidates was one of the most obvious moves toward fascism that has occurred this year."

-IRC-

(Continued from page 1)

this decline, has been evidenced politically in varying degrees.

Seminar 5, Occupation and the Peace Treaties—This discussion included the U. S. occupation in Germany, Austria, and Japan and it presented the economic and political difficulties with which the U. S. must deal. It was suggested that the U. S. should attempt to make world peace and at the same time increase its military potential.

Seminar 6. The Political Condition of Europe—Among the solutions proposed for the precarious political condition in Europe was one that suggested that the U. S. recognize the socio-political evolution in Europe and attempt to direct this into channels associated with democratic principles.

THAT'S TEXAS SHOOTING

Big Spring, Tex. —(UP)— It takes a crack shot to shoot speedy coyotes from an airplane but Earl Brownriff brought down three of four he spotted.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

Sigma Alpha Iota Initiates Seven

The Iota Tau chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, professional honorary music sorority, has just initiated seven new members.

Mary Elizabeth Burrus of New Bern, president of the Carolina chapter, presided at the ceremonies.

The new members are Virginia Johnson, Hamlet; Betsy Green, Chapel Hill; Mary Helen zum Brunnen, Salisbury; Martha Adair, Washington; Ferne Hughes, Rainelle, W. Va.; Gwen Howard, Sanford, and Sybil Drake, Minden, La.

Following the initiation a dinner honoring the new members and Miss Emily Garrett, Iota province president, who attended the ceremonies, was given at the home of Mrs. Earl Slocum, a patronesse. Short talks were made by Katherine Carmichael, dean of women, and Dr. Glen Haydon, head of the Music department.

Membership in the sorority is based on musicianship and scholarship.

Conservative Club Will Meet Tomorrow

The Carolina Conservative club will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30 in room 20 of the New East annex to discuss "Will the Fall of Czechoslovakia Lead to War?" All interested persons are invited to participate.

Club members are requested to meet at 7 o'clock in the lobby of Graham Memorial for a retake of the Yack picture.

Straley, Seegar Programs

Dr. Joseph Straley, professor in the Physics department, will present a movie, "One World or None," in Convention hall in Alumni building at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Dr. Straley is an active member in both the local chapters of United World Fereralists and Wallace for President club.

The Pete Seegar folk ballad concert is scheduled for the Pick Theater at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

In 1236 a hen in Paris sold for an amount equal to about two cents in American money.

SUNDAY — MONDAY
CAROLINA

"Many times a year the people turn to the Red Cross—once a year the Red Cross turns to the people; that time is now."
Statement by President Truman in March, 1947

Now...once again it's Red Cross Time!

Out of human suffering the Red Cross was born.
At the scenes of human suffering the Red Cross takes its place.
Emergency is its call to service. The unpredictable disaster—the uncontrollable flood and raging fire, the stealthy epidemic—when these strike, your Red Cross quickly reaches the victims, to comfort, sustain and restore.
The Red Cross must be prepared to spring instantly into action,
any time, anywhere.
And the Red Cross will be ready. It will be ready because your generous dollars always have made possible its merciful work.
For the sake of the unsuspecting thousands who will be stricken this year . . . for the sake of those destined for injury and anguish . . . the Red Cross now turns to you.
It's March—and Red Cross time. This is the annual appeal the Red Cross makes so that your humanity may be spread throughout the coming year, among all—irrespective of race, color or creed.
You'll help again, won't you?

IT'S YOUR RED CROSS...KEEP IT GOING — Give Generously!

Home-Owned Food Store
Bennett & Blocksidge
Berman's
Carolina Barber & Beauty Shops
Marian Stores
Foister's Camera Store
Hill Bakery
Yates Bros. Plbg. & Heating Co.
University Florist

Bank of Chapel Hill
Chapel Hill Flower Shop
Farmer's Dairy Co-op
Service Insurance and Realty Co.
Strowd Motor Co.
Fitch Lumber Co.
John Foushee Insurance Agency
City Cab Co., Phone 7341

Varsity

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Cloudy and continued cool with occasional showers.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Politics
The Press
Wallace

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, MARCH 2, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 114

Charlie Gibson To Run For Tarnation Editor On Campus Party Slate

Daniels To Speak Tonight On Democratic Liberalism

By Jack Brown

Jonathan Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, will address University students on "Liberalism in the Democratic Party—Is the Democratic Party Liberal?" tonight in Hill hall at 8 o'clock.

JONATHAN DANIELS

A question-and-answer period will follow the address, and admittance to the meeting is open to all students of the University, regardless of their political affiliations.

Daniels, son of the late Josephus Daniels who was Secretary of the Navy under President Woodrow Wilson, will speak with the qualifications of one who has been a Washington reporter, an administration troubleshooter, a Presidential press secretary, and later a reporter and private citizen.

Tar Heel Editor

A graduate of the University, Daniels completed his undergraduate work in three years and remained another year to earn his master's degree. In 1921-22 he was editor of the Tar Heel.

For his book "A Southerner Discovers the South," Daniels was awarded the Mayflower cup for the North Carolina book of the year in 1938. His most recent book, "Frontiers on the Potomac," is a view and review of the American political scene.

Daniels' address tonight will be the first in a series of such programs sponsored by the recently-organized student Young Democrats club, according to Lester G. Carter, president of the organization.

The purpose of the programs is to cover the policies of the Democratic party in state, national, and international affairs.

Davis Announces Playmaker Cast

The members of the cast of "Call Back Yesterday", the fourth major production of the Carolina Playmakers thirtieth season, were announced late yesterday by Harry E. Davis, director of the play. "Call Back Yesterday" is a new play by graduate student Gene McLain, and will be presented March 10, 11, 12, and 13.

The leading role of "Judge Ralph Gentry" will be played by Gordon R. Bennett, who appeared in last summer's presentation of "Outward Bound." Mary Jo Cain, who last appeared with the Laboratory Theatre, will play the role of "Alice Gentry."

Porter Van Zandt will play politician "Tom O'Malley", and Sidney Shertzer will appear as political henchman "Tad Finton." George Upchurch will act "Richards", while Eleanor Ringer will play "Mrs. Cooper", and Mac Shaw will be seen as "Cooper."

James Geiger will have his 27th role, this time as "John Kenston", Ralph's father-in-law, and Majorie Cameron is to portray "Jerry Dutra". The role of "Merideth Gentry" will be handled by Erle Hall, and Claude "Slats" Rayborn will act "Carl Nicholby".

"Miss Parker" will be played by Hilda Frances Lawrence, Edsel Hughes will be the radio announcer, and Harry Thomas and Robert Eberle are the two workmen on the dike.

James Riley is designing the experimental style setting, and William Ayres will serve as master electrician.

Council Delegates Determined Today

Delegates for the Executive council meeting of the State Student Legislature will be chosen this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge No. 1.

The seven delegates will be selected by the presidents or official representatives of all campus organizations, and it is strongly urged that all campus groups such as the Di, IRC, CPU, and also YMCA, YWCA and others participate in this meeting since the responsibility of this school's representation in the State Student Legislature lies with them.

The Executive council meeting will take place in the Senate chamber of the State capitol in Raleigh and at that time, plans will be made for the April meeting of the Student Legislature in the capital city. Delegates from all the colleges and universities in the State will be present.

First Mag Since Its 'Death' Vote Scheduled To Hit Campus Today

The first issue of the Carolina Magazine to hit the campus since the announced death given the publication by a student body referendum is scheduled for today. Yes, the magazine is still very much alive—and literary.

Word came yesterday from Managing Editor Charlie Gibson that this first of the four final issues of the monthly magazine is one which has the accent on fiction. The February issue carries four fiction stories by student writers.

"Dark Incident", a short story by journalism senior Clarke Stallworth is the highlight of the magazine's story material. A description of a lynching, the story has a full-page illustration by Dick Preyer.

Two short stories, "The Big Clock" by Julia Ross, which concerns a child's confusion regarding death, and "Alone" by Dorothy Dashiell Smith, which has a campus locale, are contributions from women student authors. Illustrations for the Ross story is done by Lucie Baxter.

The story of a hypocritical snake-pastor, Donald F. MacDonald's "The Way of the Serpent" tells what happens when a cuddler loses the faith and attempts to regain it. The story was written in Professor Phillips Russell's creative writing class this quarter. The illustration of panting, ecstatic snake worshippers is done by artist Bill Harrison.

The highlight of the feature this month is the photographic story, "Salute to the Basketball Substitute", with pics by Wilson Yarborough, Jr. It's the story and pictures of a White Phantom bench-warmer who wants to get on the hardwood. One of the pictures, in silver and maroon, occupies the cover seat in this issue.

"What Is So Radical?" by Henry Adams discusses the reputation which Chapel Hill has acquired as a hotbed of radicalism. The text is sparked by cartoons from Bill Harrison.

Other features which help to round out a very full issue, are: Mag Man of the Month picturing Sam Selden, as photographed verbally by Doris Weaver; the Carolina Parade, written by R. Foo Giduz and others, returning in this issue; one full page of poems by students Frank Grosseclose, John Zucker, Tom Wood, Bob Sain and Wyatt Helsabeck; and cartoons for "Inside UNC" by H. K. Privette.

Wallace Assembly Completes Plans; States Purposes

The Tar Heel Students for Wallace assembly adjourned here Sunday after organizing a North Carolina Wallace organization and drawing up a statement of purposes.

In the statement of purposes issued by the assembly, the Wallacites declared themselves in favor of world peace, anti-inflation measures, abolition of the House un-American Activities committee, civil rights for Negroes and other minority groups, and opposed the extension of segregated schools.

The North Carolina Students for Wallace organization will be headed by a state executive board comprised of one delegate from each Wallace club and elected state officials.

Local Wallacite Bob Lewis was elected chairman of the executive board at the final session Sunday and Sylvester Thorpe, North Carolina college, was chosen as executive secretary-treasurer. Bill Richardson, president of the local Wallace club, was appointed as University delegate to the board.

Representatives from other colleges elected to head the state organization are Al Meltzer, Duke; Thomas MacPhator, Johnson C. Smith University; George Poggioli, Guilford college; Warren Jarvis, East Carolina Teachers; William Thomas, North Carolina college; Juanita Boomer, A and T; Henri Huse, State; James Johnson, Shaw; and Larry Dubovik, Black Mountain college.

Mag Managing Editor Serves On Staffs of Tarnation, DTH

Charlie Gibson, a versatile hand in University publications, is the Campus party candidate for editor of next year's Tarnation, campus humor magazine, CP spokesmen announced yesterday.

CHARLIE GIBSON

Gibson, who is serving on three of the four publications here, is a rising junior from Winston-Salem. He is at present serving as a feature writer for Tarnation while holding editorial positions on the staffs of the Daily Tar Heel and the Carolina Magazine.

The 21-year-old humorist transferred here from Vanderbilt university in January, 1947, after spending 22 months in the AAF. He is doing reporting and feature writing for the DTH and is now serving his second year as a night editor.

Work on Both Mags

During the past year he has been associated with both of the magazines here, serving as associate and now as managing editor of the Carolina Mag.

His light profiles in Tarnation and the Mag have ranged from R. Foo Giduz to Ed Lanier. His most recent work for the Mag was "Of Cabbages and Queens," a tongue-in-cheek survey of the Woman's college which was banned in Greensboro.

In announcing Gibson's nomination, chairman Bob Haire of the Campus party stated, "We are fortunate to be able to include on our slate the one candidate who stands head and shoulders above all other aspirants for this post."

"Most Qualified"

Pete Gerns, present business manager of Tarnation, endorsed Gibson, following the announcement of his candidacy yesterday. Gerns said, "I believe Charlie Gibson to be the best qualified candidate for Tarnation editor. I have found him to be the man who can and will make our Tarnation the best humor magazine this campus has ever seen. He has the ability to write, knows how to handle the layout of a publication, and can get along with a staff of sometimes temperamental writers and the businesslike owners of a printshop. He will manage without having to depend on others for the execution of duties."

Gibson is a member of the Dialectic Senate, the Air ROTC, and Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Gentlemen to Get Added Attraction

Additional incentive has been added for Carolina gentlemen to attend the CICA Spring Fashion show, as if 68 complete outfits, Bussy Woodbury's commentaries and a string quartet for background music wasn't enough.

If you're one of the lucky five, you might also end up dating any of the models you select with all expenses paid for by CICA. The master plan will work like this: as they enter, all men will write their names on slips of paper. At the end of the show, five names will be drawn. The five men whose names are drawn can then take their choice of models, select an evening, and prepare to start out with dinner at the Carolina Inn with no worries about the check.

Subsistence Raise Begins on April 1

Veterans attending school under the GI Bill and the Vocational Rehabilitation act will get higher subsistence allowances effective April 1. Students will receive their first checks at the higher rate during the month of May.

The new rate for veterans without dependents will be $75 per month, veterans with one dependent $105 per month, and veterans with more than one dependent will receive $120 per month.

Excluded from the increased benefits, but entitled to subsistence allowances computed on the old basis of $65 and $90 a month are veterans who come within the following categories:

(1) Those taking part-time institutional training.

(2) Combination or co-operative training (in which students attend school part-time and are employed part-time, usually in a related field).

(3) Internship and residency training.

(4) Graduate training under a fellowship requiring a reduced credit course load because of services rendered under provisions of the fellowship.

Veterans without dependents, and veterans with a single dependent will not have to make application to VA to qualify for increases.

VA said that in the case of dependent children it will be necessary for students to submit certified copies or photostats of birth certificates. In the case of dependent parents, the student must supply evidence of actual dependency by making out an affidavit. Veterans are requested to file their dependency statements before April in order to insure efficient service.

Court Dismisses Segregation Case

Richmond, Va., March 1 -(UP)- The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today dismissed a bus segregation case against a Negro woman convicted in Fairfax county on a disorderly conduct charge.

The appellant, Mrs. Lottie E. Taylor, was traveling from Washington to Madison county, Virginia, on September 12, 1946.

Evidence disclosed that the driver of the bus asked the woman to change seats before the bus left Washington. He pointed out segregation rules that would make it necessary for her to move when the reached the Virginia line. She refused to comply.

The passenger was removed from the bus at the Fairfax county courthouse, arrested for disorderly conduct and convicted.

However, the unanimous opinion of the high court reverses the conviction of the circuit court. The driver's request that the defendant change her seat was based on any provision of law, the opinion says. Her refusal to comply constitutes "at most" a breach of the rules and regulations of the carrier.

Common carriers do not have the power to provide that a violation of their rules constitutes an offense punishable by fine or imprisonment, the opinion adds.

Stevens, Long, Place Third in Debates; University of Texas Wins First Honors

Navy Announces Uniform Change

The announcement may be premature, but official notice that spring is here was posted yesterday when the following order of the day appeared on the Y bulletin board:

Headquarters
6969 AAFBU
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1 March, 1948

General Order)
No. 521)

Subject: Change of Uniform

To : All Enlisted Personnel

(1) Effective 1 March 1948, due to the favorable weather change, optional Class A uniform for all duty personnel will be khaki, cotton.

(2) Off post and after 1800 hours on post, khaki ties, as per Q.M.C. issue, will be worn.

(3) All personnel are ordered to comply with this command and any infraction will result in disciplinary action in accordance with par 9 ar 615-40.

By order of Colonel Foster:

D. Byron Barnes
Capt, MAC, AUS
Asst. Commandant of Troops

Copies of order will be furnished the fol.

2 copies—TAG Attn: "SPXPO-R"
2 copies—CG HQ APFPDC
1 copy —CG AAF

After issuing the order "Colonel" Paul Foster and "Captain" Don Barnes, whose headquarters are in rooms 27, 28 Old West dorm, commented "We're just looking out for the enlisted boys."

They figured the one winter suit which a veteran might be able to afford on $65 a month must be getting pretty threadbare by now.

Debaters, Coaches Declare Tournament "Greatest of Year"

By Dan Wallace

Coed Merle Stevens and Charles Long, UNC affirmative team, placed third in the division of mixed teams at the Glendy Burke Contennial Forensic tournament last week held at Tulane university in New Orleans. First honors of the meet went to the University of Texas.

Earl Fitzgerald, manager of the UNC delegation, reported that the other debaters were good but did not meet with the success of Stevens and Long.

"Greatest of Year"

Debaters and coaches who had participated in other meets declared that this tournament was the greatest of the year. They held that the competition was the toughest experienced in any meet.

Coming in behind the University of Texas to take second place in the men's division was S. M. U. Among the schools present were the University of Wichita, Agnes Scott, University of Utah, Emory U., University of Mississippi, and the University of Toronto, Canada.

Return Debates

The Debate council is now completing plans for return debates with Wake Forest, Duke, and Davidson, and arangements are being made to atend the National Forensic tournament to be held at Fredericksburg, Virginia, this month. The various categories in which UNC representatives may compete are: Oratorical and extemporaneous speaking, dramatic reading, after-dinner speaking, and debating. The competition in this tournament is expected to be very strong.

UVA Open House Cancelled Tonight

The University Veterans association will not hold its regular open house tonight.

Because of the CICA fashion show, UVA President Johnny Clampitt said yesterday that the party has been postponed until Thursday night at 8:30.

At that time, the Town Girls association and Archer house will be co-guests of the association. Betsy Ann Barbee, president of the Town Girls, said the group is expected to be present in force.

A. B. Coleman is in charge of entertainment for the open house and a musical program is tentatively planned.

The UVA Board of Governors will meet this afternoon at 5 o'clock, Clampitt announced. There will be a general business meeting of the association next Monday night at 8 o'clock at the clubhouse behind Lenoir hall.

INNOCENT ABROAD

When a visiting motorist was involved in an accident here, he said he was innocent—Innocent A. Marva of Bound Brook, N. J.

Invitation Committee To Maintain 'Y' Booth

The Order of the Grail Invitation committee will maintain a booth in the "Y" building until Thursday of this week.

Thursday, March 4, will be the last day graduating seniors may order invitations for the graduation exercises in June. There is no cash transaction at this time. Payment will be made when the invitations are delivered in May.

The ring committee announced that there would be a registration book in the "Y" office. Those students wishing to order class rings are asked to sign the book so that the committee can contact them for the sale.

The ring chairman is Bob Kirkland of the Zeta Psi Fraternity.

BEHIND THE BARS in Orange county jail at Newburgh, N. Y., are news editor Douglas V. Clarke (left) and reporter Charles L. Leonard after they had been jailed for refusing to reveal their sources of information for gambling stories in the Newburgh News. Supreme Court Justice Gordon Flannery fined them $100 each and sentenced them to serve 10 days in jail on charges of contempt of court. (International)

Williams Hits Truman

Washington, March 1—(UP)—A demand for President Truman to remove himself as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination was voiced openly on Capitol Hill for the first time today.

It was made in the House by Representative John Bell Williams, a Mississippi Democrat and one of the leaders of the Southern Democratic revolt against Mr. Truman's Civil Rights program.

Williams told the house that the President should bow, in his words, "with the hope that our party still can be salvaged." The President's Civil Rights program, he added, has removed any chances the Democrats had of winning in November.

On the other hand, another Southern Democrat, Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, pledged his loyalty to Mr. Truman, even though he denounced the administration program which has touched off the Southern revolt.

Added fuel was heaped on the Southern rebellion today in the action of a House subcommittee. The group voted to bar federal funds to states which do not offer equal work and school opportunities to all races.

President Truman, at his first news conference in more than two weeks, today refused to talk about the Southern revolt. He did cautiously criticize a move by some Southern states to keep their electoral votes from him. The President said that the presidential year in politics in general is having a bad effect on the settlement of both foreign and domestic problems. Mr. Truman plans to leave Key West, Florida to return to Washington Friday.

Top Money Earner Is Ginger Rogers

Only one woman appears on the Treasury department's list of the top ten wage earners. She is Ginger Rogers, blonde dancer and actress, who comes from President Truman's home town Independance, Missouri. Among the first ten, she took the leading money lady role away from shapely Betty Grable, whose $280,000 topped Hollywood stars on a similar list last August. This new list includes money earned in 1945 and 1946.

However, it is not actually a true index of total wealth because it does not include money earned from investments. Deanna Durbin was runner-up to Ginger among the Hollywood folk. Her work before the cameras earned the songbird almost $263,000.

Newman Will Present Concert in Hill Hall

Dr. William S. Newman, pianist and assistant professor of music, will present a concert in Hill hall at 8:30 Thursday evening.

His program will include thirteen keyboard sonatas of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

Dr. Newman has appeared in recital here frequently since the beginning of 1946, and he has always been well received.

UP MEETING

There will be an important meeting of the University party steering committee this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Horace Williams lounge. Nominations for Men's council, Women's council and Student council will be considered.

Mills-Stones

The Press Doesn't Always Give a True Picture

By Barron Mills

If I had been a devout Henry Wallace fan before the past weekend, I would not be one today. If I had believed in the "sincere" methods of Henry Wallace and his backers before the Wallace Rally here, I would not believe in it now. If, before the past weekend, I had a soft spot for Wallace because his "heart is in the right place" that soft spot has hardened.

Because I wanted to learn more about Wallace and his campaign for the presidency, I attended the initial meeting of the Rally. With three Daily Tar Heel colleagues I entered the fourth floor of Alumni where the meeting was in process. I saw a group of some 130 people. They talked, they laughed and they clapped when the word "Russia" was defended. A favorite sport was not to answer in a straight-from-the-shoulder fashion but to rationalize. When a question was raised about the policies of Russia and her conduct in Europe the same old thing happened. The answer would inevitably be: "But look at us! Look down there in the Caribbean. What are we, or rather the Sugar Kings, doing down there in Puerto Rico?"

One young man, whom we tagged as being from Duke since he later announced that he wished to speak with all the delegates from Duke, said it is incorrect to say that Russia has overrun Poland. Why, he had been there himself and he saw only a few Russians around. Right in Palestine there are more British than there are Russians in Poland!

Somehow this statement by the Duke delegate does not gibe with what I have heard others who visited Poland on UNRRA ships say. And his statement sharply clashes with the recent book by a former American Ambassador, Arthur Bliss Lane. Writing under the title, I saw Poland Betrayed," Mr. Lane tells of the farce election of January 1947. Poles who did not toe the Communist line were intimidated. Previously, The Soviet Union had urged the Polish underground forces to revolt against the conquering Nazis in 1944 and then made sure the uprising was quelled by Germany, with the "sole intent of imposing a Soviet-controlled government upon Poland when the time was ripe."

These are only a few of the the contradictory questions that were brought up by the Wallacites who will go back to their campuses to form Wallace clubs.

Every person that entered the room without a blue button was approached and asked if he wanted to register. We answered in the negative. The second time we were approached, we were asked if we wished to sign the guest register. Again our answer was in the negative. The usher was then informed by a friend that we were members of the fourth estate. On her third return she asked us to pin a tag on us that labeled us as the press. Evidently everyone had to be classified to be able to sit in on the meeting.

One member of the Administration resisted every approach of the ushers and finally, in order to encourage them to stop making trips over bothering him, he informed them, "If you want to throw me out of here bring your bouncer on over—'cause it's gonna take one to get me outta here!" This administrator, a young man wearing a blue button told us, was jotting down the name of every person that arose to speak.

During the meeting I sensed that I was one of those members of the press which they talked about over and over again—the press which did not always present a true picture of what was happening. Later we learned that everything went off swell "except for the administration and the press."

From the minute I entered the room I felt that the group had a chip on its shoulder. The members seemed to believe that they were going to be investigated by the FBI. And when they finally asked me to pin on a "Press" tag, it made me believe that they were afraid that some Wallacite would talk out of turn if I asked any of them a question.

We did not go to any of the panel discussion groups that were conducted by "experts." After reading the account of them

(See PRESS, page 4)

Politics-- State and National

The long-awaited Young Democrats club on campus promises to prove a worthwhile organization and one which will prove interesting to watch. The YDC appeared less than 10 days ago and already it has elected its officers and has a planned program for today.

Jonathan Daniels, editor of the News and Observer and a man who has been proclaimed possessor of one of the most vivid minds in the South today, will be the initial YDC-sponsored speaker of the year.

It will be interesting to watch the Democratic party in the State in the 1948 elections. The State elections prove to be even more exciting than usual with Kerr Scott's, the man who has taken several sure steps toward the Capitol, entry into the gubernatorial race. Now with President Truman's strong declaration on the Civil Rights report and because he has plummeted from popularity, it is very unlikely that Truman will carry the Democratic ticket in this State.

An observer at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner last Saturday night at the Sir Walter hotel in Raleigh claims that the people who supported Mr. Truman were few and far between. At least 50 of the people he talked with at the dinner said that they would not vote for Truman in '48. The consensus was that North Carolina will go Republican greater than it did against Al Smith.

It will be interesting to hear Mr. Daniels opinion on the presidential and national election and his tie-in with the State politics.

Write Away

In Prague: Freedom of Thought?

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Editor:

In his column in Friday's "Daily Tar Heel," Mr. Bill Robertson quotes from a letter which was sent from the Governor-General of a province to the students of a university under his jurisdiction. He cites this as a parallel to what he calls "an attempt to surpass the democratic ideas that honest students have developed" by members of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina.

Mr. Robertson need not have gone back to the middle of the last century to find some evidence of an attempt to dictate to the students of universities as to the lines which their thinking should follow. There was ample evidence to be found in last week's newspapers. Let Mr. Robertson ask the students of the University of Prague how much freedom of thought they now have under their new government. I will quote from a statement made by Zdenek Nejedly, the new education minister, "schools must be made political just as the army must be political." He also said that new textbooks would be prepared for Czechoslovakia. Since Mr. Robertson has often expressed his admiration for what he calls "the Eastern European democracies" he probably will find no fault with the statement made by the new education minister of Czechoslovakia.

I am forced to suspect the motives of men like Mr. Robertson and Henry Wallace. They denounce the Marshall Plan as interference in the internal affairs of sovreign nations, yet neither Mr. Robertson nor Mr. Wallace has protested Russia's taking over country after country. Neither has protested against the suppression of all liberties in the countries which have been taken over by Russia. Both Mr. Robertson and Mr. Wallace disagree with the foreign policy of this country, if either of them has expressed disapproval of the brutal, unscrupulous practices of Russia it has escaped my notice.

I would be the first to admit that our country, our state, and our university are not perfect. Much needs to be done. Imperfect as they are, they are far superior to anything to be found in Russia, or in any of the Russian statellite countries. The individual still counts for something here. He counts for nothing in Russia.

There is a great deal more that I would like to say, but I will try to abide by your limitations concerning the length of letters.

W. G. McCall

Incorrect

Editor:

I wish to advise that Mr. Paul Mullinax in yesterday's edition of the DTH is quite incorrect in his statement that I approached you on writing a column of conservative news and events, and is therefore also mistaken in his charges that the DTH had formed a policy of not printing material submitted by campus organizations immediately after my imagined session with you.

I am highly flattered at any rate.

Sincerely,
Charlie Kauffman

Thanks

Editor:

The members of Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority wish to express sincere thanks and appreciation to all those who helped us during and after the fire which damaged our house on February 13. We could not have done without the men and women who seeing we needed help swarmed over and removed our furniture and other belongings.

Thanks goes to the fraterities who gave us places to eat that eveninig and the following morning and also to the other sororities and women's dorms who offered us places to sleep. Special appreciation goes to the Pi Phi's who accommodated our housemother, Mrs. Clark. The house mothers of Alderman, McIver, and Smith have been most kind in arranging rooms for the girls who lived in the house.

We hope very soon to resume full activities which would not have been possible without the aid of these many students.

Gamma Epsilon Chapter
Alpha Gamma Delta

Guilty

Editor:

Apropos of the fine distinction between "discrimination" and "segregation" which you make in the editorial on that subject, in the issue of February 27, I wonder if perhaps you are not guilty of a more serious evil than the one to which you conscientiously admit.

Recourse to Webster's classical work reveals that segregation is a practical consequence of the (mental) act of distinguishing. The latter is the primary denotation of the term "discrimination." The secondary meaning assigned to this term, however, seems to be the one you desire to evade—pardon me—avoid. This is as follows: "A distinction, as in treatment; esp., and unfair or injurious distinction." (In effect): "The arbitrary imposition of. . .a difference in treatment made between persons" etc.

Now I wonder what ingenious interpretation you can give to such terms as "unfair," "unjust," etc., which will except the humiliating segregation of a person on the basis of an hereditary skin characteristic?

Come now, Mr. Editor, let us have no more of this eristic logomachy. Let us rather have the courage of our convictions. If we believe in discriminating amongst human beings on the basis of pigmentation, then let us say so; let us hold our heads up high and announce to our fellow men that we believe in democracy only in so far as it conforms to our prejudices.

M. E. Lean

(Editor's Note: If Mr. Lean has the courage of his convictions, why does he not use "segregation" instead of "discrimination" in his last sentence. Of course, we do not have "Webster's classical work." Our source is an old, 1946 edition Webster's Unabridged dictionary.)

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price: $5.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

NIGHT EDITOR: Charlie Gibson — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buehan

SOCIETY EDITOR: June Mears

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Hudnall, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Tayler Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman — NIGHT SPORTS: Bill Carmichael

Carousel

Veterans Groups Pulling Together For TEW Measure

By R. Foo Giduz

Washington, Monday afternoon—Every GI student at UNC may be affected from the results of the National Veterans Housing Conference which is in session here today—if we can gain our objective:

The bringing to the House floor the three-year-old Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing bill, passed last year by the Senate and blatantly ignored for many months by the House.

Nobody's kidding themselves . . . and none of the 2,000 plus delegates from seven national veterans organizations gathered here for the two-day conference hold any illusions of grandeur about how we might march into the Capitol building and angrily demand the passage of the bill . . . but we do hope we can show our congressmen this afternoon how important action on the long-awaited TEW Bill is.

Discounting the business of the meeting itself, it has been rather inspiring to see representatives of all major vet organizations in the country together for a change working in harmony for the same thing . . . wrangling between American Legion, VFW, AVC, AMVETS, etc.

Been rife since War's end . . . and this is the first time we've seen them all get together shoulder-to-shoulder on a common ground . . . proving it can work . . . open sessions of the conference are being held in the stately department of Commerce auditorium under a huge banner "There's No Place Like Home—If You Have One."

Senators Taft and Ellender, authors of the TEW measure, spoke out hopefully on its prospects to the assembled delegates this morning. And Truman and Eisenhower both wired their best wishes, and hopes for our success and resultant TEW enactment . . . one VFW'er came clear from Alaska with an armful of facts and figures to prove the inadequacy of the northern country's igloos . . . though AVC is author of the conference, they represent only about one-third of its delegation, and Congressman Jack Javits (NY) and John Kennedy (Mass.) are acting chairmen.

Now in a few minutes we are all due to get together with our individual congressmen (Carl Durham for us) to try to have them sign a discharge petition to get the measure out on the House floor.

Campus Forum

Campus Favors Appeal System

By Pete Gerns

The Campus Forum will today make a prediction. If in the coming Spring elections the student body will be given the choice between retaining and abolishing our appeal sysetm, they will vote for retaining it. We are basing this statement on the result of a poll which this column ran during the past week. According to it a great majority of students are in favor of keeping the appeal.

The sentiment of this majority was: "Let's try to improve our present system, but let's not do away with the appeal." We suggest to the legislators that they get in touch with their constituents before casting their vote in legislature when this subject will come up next Thursday night.

Opinion is divided between members of our judiciary bodies and students in general. The former advocate abolishing of the appeal system while the latter favor its retention. To get some definite idea of the matter we questioned Bill Tate, and Donleen MacDonald, chairmen of the Men's and Women's council respectively.

Miss MacDonald told us that the Women's Council had not had any appeals in the last two years. She is, however, opposed to an appellate court of students above the council as we have it today and believes that an appeal should go directly to the faculty. Questioned as to whether she would rather have the present system likened to our National court system (with appeal on basis of legality rather than fact) she answered that this seemed to be too technical. "Our Honor system is based on ethics, not legality.

Bill Tate is opposed to the present system of appeal to higher student-composed council because, in his opinion, this sort of thing works to the detriment of the honor system. The components of Student council have neither the better background, nor do they possess greater maturity and experience than the members of Men's council. In fact, they do lack in experience due to the small number of cases they have had to deal with as compared with the higher court." Tate would favor, if necessary, and practical, a court composed of both students and faculty.

We could unfortunately not get in touch with Bob Broughton, chairman of the Student council. It is our understanding however, that Broughton thinks along the same lines as Tate. We're taking Tate's word for that.

Here comes a note from Bill Crisp, a student in Law school. He agrees with the previous parties that our present system is "ineffective" since there is no substantial distinction between the lower and upper courts. "What is needed is not a retrial of the case appealed, but a review of the record of the lower trial only (with the Student Council not being aware of the indentities of the parties involved). Such a review would be a means of assuring every appellant two invaluable rights which, due to the circumstances involved, he can never receive in the court of first instance: First, his case would be considered without respect to his identity—personality, and therefore, individual prejudice, would be virtually eliminated; second by comparing the appellant's record with the records already on file of similar cases, the appellant is assured of "equal justice under law"; he is entitled to as much, but to no more, consideration as all previous defendant committed the same offense under similar circumstances."

Other student opinion ran as follows:

"Not only does the Student council offer valuable experience for student leaders, it is conducive to campus cooperation with the Honor code. Self-government is irreplaceable." H. Sieber.

"I am in favor of abolishing this student government system and instituting a new one based on the Federal system." Dave Collins.

"I do not favor abolishing the Student council—it can be one of the best features of our Student government system." Ernie House.

"I would like to have them take up more interesting problems, such as free love, for instance." Pete Beaudry.

Question for Friday: "Do you think the DTH would take editorial stands on campus issues?"

The Brassy Taste

Wallace, Negroes and Music

By Bob Sain

The Wallace-for-President convention here over the weekend proved several things: that student support for Wallace is well-organized, that student support is being channeled into practical political action and—most important of all—that Negro and white students can meet on common ground and work together in harmony.

There were a number of Negro students—men and women—present at all convention meetings and there was, of course, no special seating arrangement to segregate them. (Indeed, at least one faculty member offered overnight accommodations to Negro conventioners.)

Certainly this is not the first time that such a democratic gathering has been held in North Carolina, but it is the first that I can remember seeing. It was impressive, so impressive, in fact, that it has caused me to withdraw all of my previous statements against educational segregation at the University of North Carolina. I have said before that I objected to immediate co-racial education on the grounds that it would cause too much of an uproar in the State—thereby cutting down the good all of us could receive from education here. The reactionaries would raise the roof. Southern tradition! they would shriek.

Tradition in this case is synonomous with stupidity. If my fellow southerners are so uncertain of their own worth as to attempt to preserve it by keeping Negroes in virtual slavery, I hereby secede from the Confederacy.

I know that there is no hope of seeing that human decency for which I ask, but I stand for co-racial education. Right here! Right now!

* * *

Music

The record situation isn't even interesting yet. Although bossman Petrillo's ban on the waxworks is clamped down tighter than a freshman on Friday night, the local record shops haven't decided to go out of business anytime soon.

I look forward, however, to the day when you drive down a rutted country road, park in front of a gray shanty and slip surreptitiously inside for a bootleg Kenton or Krupa.

Will the spirit of the roaring twenties return with dark basement "listeneasies" to replace the speaks?

* * *

Speaking of Stanley Kenton, what's with all this critical disapproval of the boy with the brass? Attacking the "progressive jazz" gentleman of late are Barry Ulanov (Metronome) and Charles Miller (New Republic). Kenton's has been the band of the year for the past two calendars. Proves that it only takes a little success to get the men behind the typewriters on your neck.

* * *

Going from the sublime to the ridiculous, I note that yesterday Arthur Godfrey got a request from his eleven ayem CBShow audience to sing "Too Fat Polka." Godfrey, who boosted that loathesome ditty to the place of one of the most obnoxious hits of the decade, started singing it, couldn't remember the words! More power to him!

Money? Manage A Movie Star

By Patricia Clary
United Press Staff Correspondent

Hollywood — Don Barry may not be able to make a million as a movie star himself, but he thinks he can fix it so somebody else does.

Taking over the usual chores of a talent agent, the cowboy actor has signed a pretty model to a personal contract and is building her for stardom.

"With my "managed career,' I think she's a cinch to be a star right from the start," Barry said. "This system in which an actor starts out in small parts and gradually works up, that's no good. You're just wearing yourself down while you're working yourself up."

Barry "discovered" Mary Gibbs of Kansas City when he saw her picture in a fashion magazine.

"I was convinced then she was a sure bet for stardom," he said. "She had poise, beauty, glamor and everything. So I called her up in Kansas City and asked her how she'd like to be in the movies.

He Wasn't Kidding

"Well, she thought I was kidding. But I was going east anyway, so I flew up to Kansas City to talk to Mary and her parents. She signed a contract the same day."

Now, under Barry's "managed career," Mary visits Republic studio every day to watch him work in "Madonna of the Desert." Barry says that's so she'll get the feel of a movie set.

She takes drama, diction and voice lessons under teachers Barry selects.

The actor frankly is copying his grooming from Howard Hawks, who starred Lauren Bacall, Ella Raines and Joanne Dru in their first pictures.

"I think his system is foolproof, and Mary is going to get the same training his proteges do," Barry said. "Even to going up to the top of a hill and screaming every day until her voice gets husky."

When Mary's ready, Barry says he's going to star her in a movie called "For Those with Courage." He wrote the story and he says he's going to produce the movie.

"It's a great part," he said confidently. "It'll make her a star overnight. Then I'll be able to sell her contract for more than I can make myself."

A movie colony parlor game has turned up as an important part of the plot of Eddie Albert's latest picture.

Albert, his bride, Margo, and some of their Hollywood friends, including writer Mary Anita Loos, used to sit around in their living rooms of an evening and practice Indian sign language.

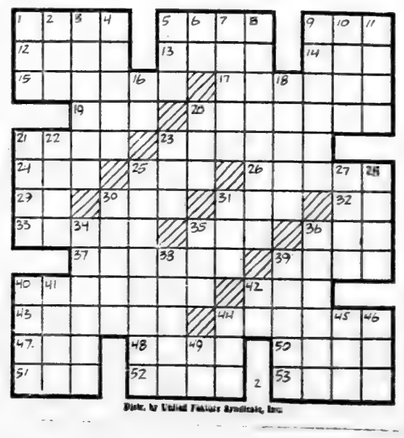
"It often came in handy later," Albert said, "at stuffy dinner parties."

Now, in Albert's movie "Tenderfoot," a Kings Bros. movie for Allied Artists release, he gets the Indians working for the good guys and against the bad guys, not to mention saving his own life, by shooting a little sign language their way.

The signs were fairly universal among American Indian tribes, Albert says. Nearly everybody could figure out, for instance, that when a brave made a circle of his arms in front of him and appeared to be rapturously hugging the empty air, he was talking about "sweetheart."

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



ACROSS

1—To grow dim
5—Ornamental ball
9—Cushion
12—Baking chamber
13—River in Germany
14—Literary scrap
15—Build again
17—Two-handed card game
18—Suffix: adherent of
20—Bissed
21—To obliterate
23—Carved gems
24—Lyric poem
25—Cover
26—Frank
29—Pronoun
30—Obese
31—Peer Gynt's mother
32—Artificial language
33—Sacred song
35—To blind
36—Fly that infests horses
37—Jumped
39—Hair on neck
40—Italian treaty
42—To cure leather
43—Musical dramas
44—To enact
47—Title of respect
48—Part of face
50—Girl's name
51—S-shaped worm
52—Girl's nickname
53—To construct

DOWN

1—On behalf of
2—Hailt
3—Death
4—Growing out
5—Honey maker
6—Raised railway
7—Alongside, as of ship
8—To lessen
9—Follower of Mary
10—Planter
11—Chinese weight
16—Prefix: down
18—To expiate
20—Baby food
21—To frolic
22—Fruit drinks
23—Temporary bed
25—Larch tree
27—Metal
28—Pigeon coop
30—To sneer
31—To help
34—Changes
35—A number
36—Yellow fruit
38—Turkish title
39—Woman's title
40—To misplace
41—Sacred bull of Egypt
42—"Teddy a" bears
44—Unit
45—Writing fluid
46—Born
49—That thing

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Back Tracking In Sports

with

Morty Schaap

Written Into the Books

THE SIXTH ANNUAL SOUTHERN INVITATION TRACK MEET has been written into the books and all the records will now be history as next year the meet will be back under the banner of the 14th Annual Southern Conference Indoor games.

The meet was a big success and no little credit should be given to Coach Bob Fetzer, Director; Marvin Allen, Meet Manager; the maintenance crews that moved the track and kept the pits in good order, all the ofifcials who gave their services; and to the runners from the 37 institutions who made the whole show a terrific night's entertainment.

If there were an award to be made to the outstanding athlete in the meet it would go unanimously to Roger Neighborgall of Duke, who won the 440 and the 880 and set a new record in each event. Big Roger showed plenty of ability and will to win as he drove down across the finish line well ahead of the nearest man in either event. He also wanted to run the anchor leg on the Blue Devil relay team but the coaches decided that he had done his share for the day.

While on the subject of coaches, those that were on hand might make up quite a track team, Percy Beard, the University of Florida mentor, was top hurdler of his day, Spec Towns, the Georgia Boss, still holds the World's record in the high hurdles, Archie Hahn, Virginia's coach, held most of the world's records in the sprints, Earl Thompson of Navy was the 1920 Olympic High hurdle champion, Carleton Crowell of Tennessee was Big Ten champ in the 440 in his undergraduate days at Wisconsin, and most of the other coaches held their share of records in competition.

Records remind us of the performance of Jack Moody who sailed over the high jump bar at 6 feet 3 and eleven-sixteenths inches to better any mark that can be remembered in these parts. It was in the high jump that Carolina gained the impetus to cop the meet. Billy Joyner came through with a leap of 6 feet one and five-eighths inches for second while Doug Smith who had never bettered 5 feet 9 came through with a jump of six feet one inch to give the Tar Heels nine out of eleven points in this event.

Navy Star Cruises

The other record in the college division was set by Jim Oberholtzer of the Naval academy, who cruised to a first place in the mile in 4:19.8. This mark was better than the time that Gerry Karver of Penn State ran in the IC4A mile in Madison Square Garden Saturday night. Oberholtzer looked very good all the way and had the situation well in hand. Last year he led for all but the last 220 yards and lost out when Alvin Smith of Carolina came up with a terrific kick to beat him out. Bob Palmer of Maryland and George Troxel of Virginia staged a thrilling duel for second place with Palmer winning by the narrowest of margins. Carolina's Sam Magill was fourth.

Coach Dale Ranson made the remark Saturday night that his team had won the meet last year with 46 points and that six boys who contributed 30 points to the Carolina score last year were no longer with the team. That list included Chunk Simmons' 10 points in the hurdles, Alvin Smith's five in the mile, Jack Milne's five in the two-mile, Norm McLeod's five in the pole vault, Tommy Turner's three in the 440, and Dick Hollander's two in the 880. Thus the win was a credit to the squad with no individual star but everyone trying his best. A good example was Dave Willis, freshman sprinter, last week at Maryland he failed to make the finals, but after a week of work he came through in third place to beat out a much better class of competition. Magill did a fine job in the mile and two-mile as did Jimmy Miller. Ted Shultz proved to be the big helping hand with his first in the low's. Dick Taylor came back from a defeat last week and took the highs. So it's hats off to the Carolina trackmen and Coaches Dale Ranson and Joe Hilton.

Track Splinters

The University's Veterans' Club came through in fine fashion with an open house for the Annapolis lads. . . .The talk of the crowd was Bobby Jones' of George Washington high school, performance in turning in a record performance in the scholastic 1000 . . . .He bested the 1941 record set by Carolina's Julian Mackenzie, then at Boyden high, Salisbury. . . .Bob Seligman bested his old V-12 Georgia Tech teammate, George Hills of Florida, for the top position in the shot put. Jim O'Leary of Duke, winner of the meet at Maryland did not qualify for the finals. . . .The excellent caliber of pole vaulters, they kept the bar attendants working for three hours before the event, became a five-way tie for first place. . . . Duke relay team showed plenty of spunk when they came up from a dropped baton last to back in the running position.

None of the North Carolina high schools managed to score a point in the scholastic division. . . .There were six teams entered . . . .Coaching and interest is the answer. . . .Starter Frank Dobson had trouble with both of his guns and had to recall a heat after they had already finished. . . .Upset of the night almost went unnoticed when Bob Sherrill of Tennessee took the measure of Bob Snoddy of Georgia in the Freshmen high hurdles. . . .Snoddy had gone to the semi-finals in the Senior National AAU championships in New York last week. . . .Chunk Simmons edged out Bill Mitchell of Georgetown in a special exhibition over the high hurdles.

SPECIAL SPECIAL

CAROLINA PHARMACY PRESENTS

SPECIAL

MALTED MILKSHAKE

with ICE CREAM

20c

This Week Only

SPECIAL SPECIAL

Matmen Close 1948 Season With 4-2 Mark

By Buddy Vaden

Closing out the 1948 wrestling season, Coach Chuck Quinlan's mat squad chalked up a record of four victories against two defeats as they collected a total of 98 and one-half points in Southern conference dual meet competition.

After getting off, to a rough start due to ineligibility rulings and minor injuries, the locals came back after their initial defeat to win three meets in a row before losing their second contest to Washington and Lee, the probable new Conference champions.

In their last meet of the year, the Blue and White crew eked out a two-point victory over Duke when Bill Kemp earned a fall in the final and deciding match to give the Tar Heels a 14-12 advantage.

Kemp Undefeated

Captain Kemp led the scoring by winning all of his matches, four on falls and one by a decision. Wrestling in only five of the six meets, he amassed 23 points.

Second place scoring honors go to 136-pounder Tom Urquhart, who garnered 17 points, 12 coming by way of decisions and the remaining five on a pin.

Following close behind Urquhart is Oscar Gupton, 165-pound muscleman. Gupton won three decisions, one pin, and fought to a draw in his first match against VPI's Rosen.

One-half point behind Gupton is freshman 145-pounder Phil Kemp, younger brother of the team captain. Phil gained his points on two pins and an equal number of decisions.

Fisher Triumphant

Following Kemp in the fourth spot is Carrol Fisher, intramural wrestler who joined Coach Quinlan's squad this year. Fisher won four matches, all on decisions.

Doug Thompson, at 128 pounds, Lyn Bond, who wrestled against Davidson in the heavyweight class, and Corky Bluethenthal, who joined the crew for the last three meets in the 175-pound division, round out the tallies with six, five, and three points respectively.

Marvin Wilson, remaining member of the squad to see action, was unable to score any points. Despite this fact, however, Wilson proved his worth to the team by putting on superb performances against some of the best wrestlers in the Southern conference.

Entering the new season with the Conference title under their belts, the Tar Heels dropped their first meet by one point to VPI. After this defeat they came back to down State, Davidson, and VMI before losing to the powerful Generals at Lexington.

Unable to defend their title this year because of conflicts between the final exam schedule and the Conference tourney in Lexington, the local crew will send only two representatives to try for conference crowns in the 145-pound and 165-pound classes.

Phil Kemp, out to get the title in the 145 class, and Oscar Gupton, who will try to avenge his single defeat of the season, will be Carolina's lone representatives in the tournament, scheduled for next week.

THE ABOVE PICTURE of swimming Coach Willis Casey, right, and his number one star, Bill Kelly, was taken in 1945 when the two led Carolina to a very successful season. They still occupy the same roles of coach and star, but the location has changed from Chapel Hill to the West Raleigh campus of N. C. State, where the Blue Dolphins will be in action tomorrow.

Dolphins Prep for Important Contest Against State Mermen on Wednesday

By Bill Kellam

Carolina's itinerant Blue Dolphins were back home in Bowman Gray pool yesterday afternoon stroking out a lengthy practice session after spending a peach of a weekend in Atlanta, G. A. Although the undefeated Blue and White mermen scarcely exerted themselves last week in swamping the Deep South's two top swimming teams by well over 40 points each, the locals' first real test of the season comes tomorrow afternoon in the pool of Cow College's Frank Thompson gym where they'll splash out the championship of the South against the unbeaten aquatic Aggies.

Not only will tomorrow's clash between the Old North State chlorine giants decide the Southern conference dual championship, but its conclusion will also find the nation with one less team sporting a spotless record.

Twining vs. Kelly

The meet's big attraction will be the individual battle which is slated tob e waged between Carolina's versatile Dick Twining and State's one man team, Bill Kelly. Since both coaches are planning to pick their lineups according to their fortunes as the meet progresses, the events that the tank terrors tangle in won't be known until they come up.

In Atlanta against Emory on Saturday night, the Dolphins continued their winning and pool record-breaking ways as they buried the Educators under a 60-15 flood of points for their ninth straight win. The locals smashed four old marks and, as one might expect, Dick Twining set half of them.

The Tar Heel speedster, swimming exhibition events in the 220 and 440 freestyle, easily defeated Charlie Stephanos, who was representing the Atlanta Swimming Association.

Pritchard Shines

Against Emory, a school that still considers the acquisition of an education the most important activity in college and thus has no football team, Bill Pritchard —one of the local institution's leading candidates for the "Greek God" honors—continued to capably fill the role of the team's most improved performer as he won his second straight 50-yard sprint of the tour and also turned

(See MERMEN, Page 4)

ATO, Sig Nu Post Soccer Victories

The number one ATO and Sigma Nu five-man soccer squads moved up into the semifinals of the intramural tournament by virtue of shutout victories in the only two games played yesterday.

Sigma Nu counted once in each of the two periods to defeat DKE 1, 2-0. Leo McDuffie and Henry Lenz took care of the scoring for the victors.

ATO and Sigma Chi 1 were deadlocked up until the second stanza, but Al Moore counted the only goal of the game to provide the margin for the 1-0 ATO win.

Dormitory finals and fraternity semi-finals are slated to be played off today. The campus handball championship will also be decided this afternoon in a contest between the Roaches and Chi Psi.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

SOCCER

Field 1: Zeta 1 vs. ATO 1:
Field 2: Sig Nu 1 vs. Phi Gam 1:
Field 3: Everett vs. Steele.

HANDBALL

5:00—Chi Psi vs. Roaches. (campus final)

RIFLE FIRING

7:30: Zeta Psi (orientation).

TOURNEY TICKETS

A limited number of tickets to the Southern conference basketball tournament starting in Durham tomorrow are available on a first-come, first-served basis at the Woollen gym ticket office. The tickets will be put on sale at 9 o'clock this morning and sell for nine dollars each.

White Shirts

A wide range of styles and prices

English wide spread with slotted collar in oxford cloth and the new popular Basket Weave Button Downs in the different wide spread style

Wide Spreads

with French Cuffs also regular and short stub styled collars

Drop by and examine this wide arrangement of all shirts in popular brand names

At

JACK LIPMAN'S

SC Tourney Opens Tomorrow; Phantoms Face VPI Thursday

Virginia Tech, sixth-place finisher in the Southern conference, will provide the opposition for Carolina's White Phantoms in their opening game in the annual loop tournament in Durham this week.

For the second time in 16 years, the tourney this year is open to more than the customary eight teams. The conference directors, faced with the problem of choosing between three teams that finished in a tie for the eighth spot, voted to allow all three to participate in the tournament. Hence there will be ten teams in the affair, and two additional games will be played.

In 1939 a similar tie prompted the loop chiefs to allow 11 clubs to get in the action. Clemson, one of the clubs that barely qualified for the tourney, went on to take the title that season.

Teams That Qualified

Making the grade this year are N. C. State, George Washington, Carolina, Maryland, Davidson, Virginia Tech, Duke, Wake Forest, William and Mary, and South Carolina. An unusual feature is that for the second time in history all five of the North Carolina teams in the conference were able to gain berths.

The plan that was worked out for the current tourney has Duke meeting South Carolina and Wake Forest engaging William and Mary on Wednesday night, a day earlier than the usual opening day. The winner of the Wake-William and Mary tilt will face top-seeded N. C. State in the second round on Thursday night. The Duke-South Carolina winner plays second-seeded George Washington on Thursday night also.

Carolina drew a bye into the second night's action and will meet Virginia Tech, which also got a bye, on Thursday afternoon at 2:15. Davidson and Maryland play at 4:00 on the same day. These two clubs likewise got byes into the second day of action.

Must Win Four

An unusual feature of the tourney is that if either Duke, South Carolina, Wake Forest, or William and Mary is to win the crown, they would have to win four straight games. The other teams in the tourney could take top honors with just three victories.

The finals will be held on Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the Duke Indoor Stadium. All games are a sellout, so crowds of 9,000 should attend the proceedings.

N. C. State, the first place finisher in the conference with an undefeated record, is the heavy favorite.

Coach Tom Scott's Carolina White Phantoms, beaten by Duke, 56-45, in their last start, resumed their practice sessions yesterday in preparation for the tourney, and another drill is slated for today. Carolina was runnerup to State for the title last year.

The Phantoms still are seeking their 20th win of the year, and they will be favored to get it when they meet Virginia Tech in the first round of the tourney.

Final Standings

TEAM	W.	L.	Pct.
N. C. State	12	0	1.000
G. Washington	13	3	.813
N. Carolina	11	4	.733
Maryland	9	6	.600
Davidson	10	7	.588
Va. Tech	7	5	.583
Duke	8	6	.571
Wake Forest	8	7	.533
Wm. and Mary	8	7	.533
S. Carolina	8	7	.533
Wash. and Lee	5	9	.357
The Citadel	4	8	.333
Richmond	4	9	.308
Furman	3	10	.231
Clemson	3	14	.176
Va. Military	1	12	.077

Loop Coaches Name All-stars

The Southern conference coaches association has announced its all-star basketball team which is naturally spearheaded by the powerful State college machine which has ground 12 conference foes into the hardwood.

Dick Dickey and Ed Bartels paced the Wolfpack on a dizzy point producing rampage and now they represent the leaders in the conference in this first annual poll.

The quintet was picked from the ballots sent out by Association secretary Norman Shepard, Davidson athletic director. Votes were counted on basis of two points for a first team nomination and one for a second team berth.

No one received a runaway margin but Dickey got first place votes on all 15 ballots returned. He barely nosed out big Bob Paxton, the Carolina cage king, who polled 14 top spot votes and one second.

The guard slots went to Co-Capt. George (Buddy) Cheek of Davidson and George Washington's Capt. Bill Cantwell. Bartels was chosen for center with Dickey and Paxton at forward.

Speedy Jack McComas and Capt. Leo Katkaveck occupy forward and guard positions, respectively, on the second team. Katkaveck was awarded the Most Valuable trophy at State by the Thirty and Three, a leadership society, at half-time of the State-Wake Forest game Saturday night.

(See LOOP, Page, 4)

Sixty-Odd Infielders and Outfielders Report to Rabb for Diamond Practice

Some 60-odd candidates for infield and outfield positions responded to Coach Bunn Hearn's summons for the start of "Spring training" yesterday afternoon and went through preliminary workouts on Southwest Emerson.

The large turnout, composed of about 40 infielders and 20 outfielders, brought to more than 100 the total number of candidates out for the 1948 diamond squad. Over 40 pitchers and catchers began their daily practice sessions early last week.

Among those officially reporting yesterday for the first time were Co-Captains Jim Hamilton and Jim Hayworth, Frank Jones, Dallas Branch, Jack Brasington, and Jim Kelly, all lettermen. Kelly, last year's Big Four batting champion, is the only outfielder of the six, but more veteran gardeners are due later this week, as are other infield mainstays.

Yesterday's workout was devoted to light batting drills plus limbering-up and pepper sessions. Assistant Coach Walt Rabb, directing the practice in the absence of Coach Hearn, also had the pitching hopefuls stepping up the tempo of their warmups, and several promising newcomers were among those going through their paces.

BALDWIN'S
Marine Room
Durham

Breakfast 7:45—10:30
Luncheon 11:00—2:30
Tea Hours 2:30—5:30
Dinner 5:00—8:00

Mrs. Jennie J. Thurston
Phone 9493

Fraternity Work a Specialty

Charles Valentine's Cabinet Shop

FURNITURE
REPAIRED
REFINISHED
UPHOLSTERED
MADE-TO-ORDER

PHONE 9367 — PITTSBORO RD

Easy Whirldry Table Washers

- Washes and damp dries a good size load such as 12 diapers
- You do not have to touch your clothes until they are ready to take from the washer dry
- No water to lift. Washer is easily filled and emptied

$59.95

Easy Small Monthly Terms Arranged

You will find this washer will pay for itself in the money you save in a few months

Chapel Hill Phone 5841

OGBURN FURNITURE CO.

EXHIBITION

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

March 3 & 4

At Varsity Store

GENTLEMEN'S APPAREL FOR SPRING AND SUMMER USAGE HAS BEEN EXECUTED IN THE FAMOUS FINCHLEY MANNER WITH FULL REGARD ACCORDED DEPENDABILITY AND TASTEFUL, EXCLUSIVE STYLING.

GENTLEMEN'S SUITS
TOPCOATS • TUXEDOS • SPORTSWEAR
HATS • HABERDASHERY • SHOES

Finchley

FIFTH AVE., AT 46th ST., NEW YORK

University Of Florida Students Rising Against Southern Governors Meeting

Gainsville, Fla., March 1 — (UP)—University of Florida officials are trying to play down a rising tide of student objections to a meeting of Southern governors and educators on their campus Thursday, but the rebellious students say they intend to appear before the governors to air their protests in person.

If this does no good, they say, then they may stage a mass demonstration.

The students object to the governors' plan to maintain the tradition of racial segregation at Southern colleges by setting up a system of jointly-financed regional professional schools for white and Negroes.

In a letter to all students and organizations, the small band of Protestants have labeled the plan "ignorant and prejudiced." They add, "We resent Gainsville being made the sounding board for the vile language of demagogues."

The protest, which exploded at a rally last week, is being led by Gerald Gordon. At the meeting, some 31 students alligned themselves with the dissenting group. Two-hundred others urged that the university not be inhospitable to the over 200 Southern leaders who will attend the joint education conference and inauguration of University President J. Hillis Miller.

The angered faction has adopted a resolution putting their objections in concrete form. They say, "They (the governors) advocate an unjust and inequitable system of education. They propose a plan which is uneconomical and refuse to face the fact that Supreme court rulings require equal educational facilities 'within' the state."

President Miller served an ultimatum to the students that he will consider any protest an extreme act of disloyalty to the university, and Governor Millard Caldwell, conference chairman, said that Students "misunderstand" the meeting's purpose. ....

The students apparently are ignoring their officials. They state that they have a stake in what the session decides. It is obvious, the students charge, that the "dissipation of funds through establishment of parallel institutions will retard our educational growth."

The college newspaper, "The Alligator," asked the protesting faction if they intend to hold a public demonstration. The students replied, "We will attempt to appear before the governors either in person or by written report.

—Press—

in Jim Chaney's article in the News and Observer, I am sorry that I missed the activity. I believe it would have furnished me with enough evidence to put the final clinch and give me further reason to believe that Wallace is not sincere, because certainly the methods Chaney relates are far from sincere ones.

Chaney, in his detailed report of the Rally, says that the members were told that now they are salesmen and they must contact radio stations and continue to write letters to publications and ask why Wallace is not getting the publicity he deserves. Chaney quotes one of the "teachers" as saying, "There are many times when you will not reveal your real objective. As students you will have many opportunities to campaign by talking to the right people."

Henry Wallace may be sincere, but his promoters are far from it in their methods. Working under false pretenses is not what I call sincerity. But of course, as was brought out time and time again in the initial meeting, the press is not always giving a true picture.

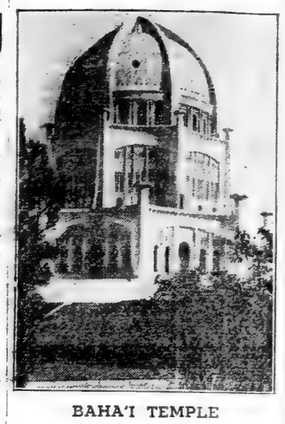
—Mermen—

in a good leg in the freestyle relay.

The 220, without Twining the record maker, was a real struggle as shadowless Bob Hutton edged Haw of Emory and Allison Pell of Carolina. Haw and Pell matched each other stroke for stroke through the very rough waters of the short Emory pool but Haw managed to just nose out Pell in a photo phinish.

Jim Thomas and the quartet of freestyle speed demons—Steve Osborne, Norm Sper, Mike Morrow, and Pritchard—hung up the new pool records. Thomas didn't strain any muscles in turning in a 1:42.6 time in the 150 backstroke while the relayers turned in a fairly fast 3:46.6 race.

HOMETOWN CLUBS



The Greensboro-Carolina club dance committee will meet for a half hour in 103 Bingham at 8 o'clock tonight, Ben Kistler, chairman of the committee, has announced.

There will be a meeting of the Henderson club tonight at 7:30 in the Horace Williams lounge. Plans for spring vacation parties will be made.

The Wilmington club will meet in the Horace Williams lounge at 7 o'clock. Plans for spring holiday activities will be made.

The Fayetteville-Carolina club will meet in Roland Parker Lounges 1 and 2 at 4 o'clock. At the meeting last Wednesday night, the group discussed plans for a spring dance. All members are urged to attend.

Baha'i Religion To Be Discussed

BAHA'I TEMPLE

A discussion of the Baha'i World faith, a religion founded in Iran as a symbol of man's hope for a better world, is scheduled for 8 o'clock in the Grail room tomorrow night.

Highlight of the discussion will be an address by H. M. Tangrall, Jr., former Western Maryland college student who has studied the principles of the faith. According to Tangrall, who is a veteran of World War II, the Baha'i faith recognizes the teachings of Christ, Moses, Mohammed and other founders of the world's great religions.

The faith is neither mystical nor ritualistic, and has neither a priesthood nor a professional clergy. Services are conducted by members themselves using Baha'i writings and the scriptures from other great faiths.

Founded in 1844, the Baha'i faith now has members in 84 countries.

All persons are invited to attend the Baha'i group's first campus meeting on March 3.

IRISH TOP VIOLETS

New York, March 2—(UP)—Notre Dame broke New York University's 19-game winning streak tonight by beating the Violets, 64-to-59, in a thrilling basketball game at Madison Square Garden.

LI'L ABNER By AL CAPP

Hamburger on C'est Bon at—HARRY'S

Campus Calendar

3:00 p. m.—Debate council, Roland Parker lounge No. 1.
5:00 p. m.—Carolina Quarterly financial committee, Roland Parker lounge No. 1.
5:00 p. m.—Pan Hellenic council, Grail room.
5:15 p. m.—Lenten Service, Episcopal church.
6:00 p. m.—Canterbury Club, Episcopal church.
6:30 p. m.—Recorded dinner music, Main lounge.
6:30 p. m.—Fayetteville club, Roland Parker lounge Nos. 1 and 2.
7:00 p. m.—Johnston county club—207 Alumni.
7:00 p. m.—Campus party, Roland Parker lounge No. 3.
7:00 p. m.—Bridge tournament, Main lounge.
7:00 p. m.—Wilmington club, Horace Williams lounge.
7:00 p. m.—Sigma Kappa Epsilon, Grail room.
7:30 p. m.—Physics club, 212 Phillips.
7:30 p. m.—Henderson club, Horace Williams lounge.
7:30 p. m.—Philological club, Roland Parker lounge Nos. 1 and 2.
8:00 p. m.—Greensboro club dance committee, 103 Bingham.
8:30 p. m.—Wilmington club dance committee, Horace Williams lounge.
9:00 p. m.—Alpha Epsilon Delta.

—Loop—

(Continued from page 3)

Ben Collins of Duke was selected at the other forward with Norm Kohler of Carolina at guard. Chet Giermak of William and Mary breaks up an all North State quintet. The 6-5 center for the Indians was high scorer for the conference with a total of 242 points.

Mike Williams and Whit Cobb of Davidson; Jack Gentry of Wake Forest; Warren Cartier of State; and Tommy Hughes of Duke received honorable mention honors.

If Nature reneges on Spring one more time I will have to change back to my other suit.

TWO BLOCKS WEST OF CITY HALL
You'll Find A Solution To All Laundry Problems
HELPY-SELFY
AUTOMATIC LAUNDRY
Bendix Machines
W. Rosemary St.

Bull's Head Bookshop
Tennessee Williams: A STREETCAR NAMED DESIRE
Browse — Rent — Buy

PRESCRIPTIONS
Filled Promptly
ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY
—at—
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

Genuine
White Buckskin Shoes
Style Bal and Blucher
12.95
JACK LIPMAN'S

RECORDS
Don Giovanni
—Mozart
complete
Metronome All-Star Record
Ab's Intimate Bookshop

CHAPEL HILL CLEANERS
104 Franklin St.
Phone F-2466
BETTER CLEANING & PRESSING

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

1942 NEW MOON HOUSE TRAILER—22 feet. Sleeps four. 211 Swain Hall, Trailer Court. (1-1802-1)

NEW 5 ROOM BRICK VENEER House, close in, all modern conveniences. Phone 4921 for appointment. (1-1813-1)

RECORD PLAYER—PHILCO PICKUP—Plays through radio. No wire connections necessary—excellent condition. No surface noise. $20.00. 126 Daniels Road, Victory Village. (1-1816-1)

CAVONA PORTABLE—WITH CASE—Excellent condition. Latest model—$45.00. 126 Daniels Road, Victory Village. (1-1815-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1940 DODGE 4-DOOR SEDAN. HAS new motor. Caston Motor Co., Phone F-3891. (ch 1x1)

JEEP FOR SALE. SEE AT 306 McCauley St. after 1:30 p.m. (1-1824-1)

LOST 12

ON TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 17, THREE men in a new olive-green DeSoto convertible played golf at the Chapel Hill Country Club. Witnesses state that one of this threesome found a club on the fourth green. The lost club is a Pedersen No. 5 iron, one of a matched registered set. Golfers are puzzled as to why it has not yet been turned in.

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 122 West Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGBURN Furniture Co., Phone 5841. (ch 1x1)

TAKEN BY MISTAKE 20

WILL PARTY WHO TOOK LIGHT tan Camel's Hair topcoat by mistake last Wed. nite at Buccaneer please return it to Phi Delt house. Have reversible tweed with gloves and car keys in return. (1-1822-2

WANTED TO RENT 24P

APARTMENT FOR STURENT AND wife to occupy about June 7. Reply Box 201, Graham. Have auto. (1-1812-1

Please return to Estelle Lawson Page at home or Country Club or call the English Office 4441. Any information appreciated. (1-C1821-4)

NOTICE 14

THE STUDENT ENTERTAINMENT committee requests that the remaining Student Entertainment Books be returned by March 10, or no refund will be made on them. Please send books to Student Entertainment Committee, 206 South Building, B. J. Strong, Chairman. (ch 1x2)

L-I-S-T-E-N L-O-V-E-R-S!
THE VOICE OF THE TURTLE
Great Play! Terrific Picture! WARNERS did it!
THE HIT WITH 1000 KISSES AND A LAUGH FOR EVERY ONE!
RONALD REAGAN · ELEANOR PARKER
EVE ARDEN · WAYNE MORRIS
TODAY
VILLAGE

WHERRY STUDIO
"If you can walk, you can dance"
BALLROOM DANCING
Courses In
Fox Trot — Waltz
Tango — Rumba
Jitterbug — Samba
Come in for free dance analysis
DEVELOP CHARM AND PERSONALITY
Dance With Confidence
In
6 lessons—$15; Couples, 6 lessons—$25
Groups of 6 to 10 Persons
10 Lessons—$15 per person
For Appointment Phone 9291
219 E. Franklin St. Chapel Hill

as shocking as she was beautiful..
Jassy
Breathtaking color by TECHNICOLOR
J. ARTHUR RANK presents
MARGARET LOCKWOOD
PATRICIA ROC
DENNIS PRICE
BASIL SYDNEY
and introducing DERMOT WALSH in
"JASSY"
Nora Swinburne · Jean Cadell · Linden Travers
Ernest Thesiger · Cathleen Nesbitt
TODAY
LAST SHOW 7:15
STUDENT FASHION SHOW 9:15
CAROLINA

Let's Get together
PHILIP MORRIS is so much better to smoke!
PHILIP MORRIS offers the smoker an extra benefit found in no other cigarette. For PHILIP MORRIS is the ONE, the ONLY cigarette recognized by leading nose and throat specialists as definitely less irritating.
Remember: Less irritation means more smoking enjoyment for you.
Yes! If every smoker knew what PHILIP MORRIS smokers know, they'd ALL change to PHILIP MORRIS.

CALL FOR PHILIP MORRIS
TRY A PACK... TODAY

Library (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Partly cloudy, slightly warmer.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Best Foot Forward
Whiskey Talks
Kicks on Lenoir

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 3, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 115

UP Names Bob Smith, Tom Wharton For Tarnation Co-Editors

SNAPPED BY THE photographer just before they left by plane for Tulane university where they participated in the National Centennial Forensic championships last weekend were the nine University debaters above.

Four entered in the regular debates, competing with students from many states and from South America; two entered in the extemporaneous speech division, and two in the oratorical contests.

Front row, left to right: Herbert Mitchell, Earl Fitzgerald, president of the University Debate Council who accompanied the group as manager; Miss Merle Stevens, and Richard Mottsman.

Back row: Tom Shelton, Charles Long, Jim Spence, Richard Bowen, and Blanton Miller.

Culbreth Attributes Telephone Difficulties To Lack of Equipment, Overtaxed Facilities

By Raney Stanford

"Insufficient equipment and overtaxed facilities," is the explanation for the telephone service difficulties that Chapel Hill callers are continually experiencing, says Grey Culbreth, University supervisor of the light, water, and telephone utilities.

"I believe Chapel Hill has more telephones in use than any other town its size in the country," Culbreth explained. "And our equipment is worn, outmoded, and has not been expanded in several years."

The telephone exchange here is set up to handle 15 per cent of its total number of subscribers at one time, but Culbreth said the full 15 per cent seems to be in use continually, with scarcely any let up. The University and town authorities have been trying to increase the switchboard's facilities for some time, he noted, but the needed and expensive selector switches are tied up in the current nation-wide production bottlenecks.

"Patience and Fortitude"

In advising how users of the town's system could get lines, through despite crowded lines, Culbreth could only recommend "patience and fortitude."

"For instance, when you hear a ticking when you pick up the receiver, it means all the trunk outlets to the phone series you are connected with are in use. Many mishaps occur when two or more people continue to dial despite the ticking, and then one of the outlets opens up. The first one to finish dialing gets his number, but the others are on the circuit too, and they all find themselves in conversation together.

Chance Increased

"This ordinarily happens very seldom," Culbreth noted, "but when the phones are in constant use the way ours are, the chances of such tangles are greatly increased. All the callers can do is just wait until the wires clear."

Turning from the local situation to out-of-town calls, Culbreth said he thought most long-distance calls were clearing Chapel Hill and encountering only a minimum of delay.

North-South Good

"There is sometimes trouble on East-West calls, but the service North and South seems to be pretty good," he commented.

If all goes according to schedule, he said, the long-distance facilities here should be doubled by June, when seven more outgoing toll trunk lines will be connected to the local switchboard.

Seven University Students to Attend Planning Session for State Assembly

Seven students; Charlie Long, Pete Gerns, Chet Zum Brunnen, Al Lowenstein, Ruth Evans, Sally Woodhull and Sam McGill were elected yesterday afternoon as delegates from the University to the meeting of the executive committee of the North Carolina Student Legislature. Alternate delegates, all of whom were chosen by a group of executives or representatives of the many campus organizations which are sponsoring the annual student assembly, are Bill Mackie, Roland Giduz and Patsy McNutt.

These delegates will meet with those of fifteen other state schools at Meredith college at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon to plan the activities of this year's legislature and to elect its officers.

The legislature itself is scheduled to assemble in the State Capital building on April 16.

In regards to last fall's extensive pro and con discussion about the meet's bi-racial quality, Pete Gerns, member of the Debate Council here who is in charge of the University's arrangements for the assembly, said that "both Governor Cherry and Secretary of State Eure have assured us of the use of the state building for the meet."

Air Reserve Body Plans First Meet

The local Air Reserve association will hold its initial meeting next Tuesday, March 9, at 7:30 in 103 Bingham hall, Dr. Clyde C. Carter, president of the chapter, announced yesterday. The main feature of the meeting will be the showing of a film which will be of particular interest to Air Reserve personnel. Several films have been ordered and Carter expressed the hope that "Operations Crossroad," the color film of the atomic bombing of Bikini will be available.

In addition to the movies, the meeting will include a presentation of the charter which arrived this week from the national headquarters and a business meeting. There will be a discussion of plans for further flight training and of active duty training during the summer months.

Carter pointed out that the meeting is of greatest interest to Air Reserve personnel, but that the general public is invited to attend.

At the same time Carter said that the flight of Air Reserve officers going to Marrieta, Ga., for flight training will leave from the armory annex at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. All reserve officers interested in making the flight should contact Captain Stuart at the armory.

NROTC GIVES PHYSICAL

Physical examinations reminiscent of Army days have been the order of the day during the past week for the 125 members of the local NROTC establishment as a group of Navy doctors checked the old members of the unit and checked and shot the new men in preparation for the NROTC crews this summer.

Thompson Chosen IFC President

Jack Thompson, Sigma Chi president from Graham was elected president of the Interfraternity council at a meeting of the council held Monday night. The new president, a member of Elections committee of the Student Legislature succeeds Leon Todd of Phi Gamma Delta.

Thompson assumed office immediately after his election, and his first official act was to join the membership of the council in giving a rising round of applause to Todd for his work with the council during the past year.

Other officers selected Monday are Bill White of Lenoir a Sigma Nu, vice president; John Stump of Clarksburg, W. Va., a Kappa Alpha, secretary, and Ted Young of Florence, South Carolina, a Phi Gamma Delta, treasurer.

SP MEETING

SP officials announced yesterday that a meeting of the party will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. At 4:30, following the meeting, a caucus of SP legislators will convene.

RADIO CLUB

There will be a meeting of the University radio club Thursday evening in Swain hall at 7:15. A discussion of elementary theory will be held after a short business meeting.

Student Party Names Publication Slate

Woodhull, Hauser, Gerns, Buchan Are Up for Board Jobs

Sally Woodhull, Pete Gerns, Chuck Hauser and Bill Buchan are in the race for seats on the Publications board on the Student party ticket, SP spokesmen announced yesterday.

Miss Woodhull was nominated earlier by the University party for the senior position on the board. A transfer from Woman's college in Greensboro, the Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, native is at present working as a reporter on the Daily Tar Heel staff and in the business department of the Carolina Magazine.

She did makeup and news work for the "Carolinian" while at WC, and is now working with the committee for the establishment of a literary quarterly on campus.

Three Publications

Gerns, from Canton, Ohio, is business manager of Tarnation, and also an assistant editor of the Yackety Yack and a columnist for the DTH. He has been nominated also by the Campus party.

He did newspaper work while overseas during the war, and served as business manager of the "Spartan," magazine of Michigan State college, where he was a member of the publications board.

DTH News Editor

Chuck Hauser, from Newton, is present news editor of the Daily Tar Heel, and has a year and one half's work on that publication behind him, acting as reporter and night editor.

A journalism major, he is the United Press representative for Chapel Hill, and has done correspondence work with various state newspapers. In high school he served as art editor of a monthly magazine. He is seeking the post of junior member to the board.

Top Army Editor

Bill Buchan, aspirant to the at-large seat on the board, is a sophomore who is now performing typewriter chores with the editorial staff of the DTH. He has chalked up a long list of experience with publications, including work as editor of one of the top army newspapers overseas during the war.

A native of Aberdeen, he served also overseas as public relations press chief of the Bremerhaven port of embarkation, while he was editing "The 17th Port Reporter," rated one of the three best weekly newspapers out of 85 in Germany. Buchan has been with the DTH editorial staff since last summer.

Daniels Proclaims Democrats Defend True Liberalism

By Jack Brown

"We do not need the reactionaries; the Claghorns are out of date. We do not need the Communists either. We raised hell before Karl Marx was ever born and are still able to at any time we feel like it!" spoke Jonathan Daniels, editor of the News and Observer, at an assembly last night sponsored by the Young Democrats club.

Daniels stated, "We are democracy at its best."

He went on to say that the Democratic party has been and still is the true liberal party in America, that the Democratic party defends the liberal central way which is founded on the rights and freedom of men—all men.

Speaking on the current Southern revolution in the Democratic party, Daniels said there has been a revolution every four years, just before the presidential election. Truman himself, according to Daniels, is the successful product of Southern revolution, and he has every reason "not necessarily to be agreed with but to be treated with respect and honor."

It also seemed strange to Daniels that North Carolina was represented at Jackson, Miss., at a meeting of revolting Southern Democrats, yet the State party officials knew nothing of it. It so happened, said Daniels, that the North Carolina representative was David Clark of Charlotte, who was not only against the Civil Rights program but was also opposed to the abolition of child labor and to Franklin Roosevelt's program in general.

As for Henry Wallace, Daniels was of the hope that he would return to the Democratic party. "I do not question the honor of Henry Wallace," he said, "but I

(See DANIELS, Page 4)

Redistricting Bills Are Hashed Over In Open Elections Committee Meeting

Voices were raised and undertones of political intrigue circulated yesterday afternoon, as several controversial solutions to town redistricting legislation were discussed in an open meeting of Jess Dedmond's Elections committee of the Student Legislature.

Four proposed methods of dissecting the town voting district were brought up, but the final vote of the committee concerned only two. The one which triumphed by a five-four vote of the group was devised by Bill Mackie and Basil Sherrill, and will be presented by the committee to the Student Legislature session tomorrow night.

Five Districts

The Mackie-Sherrill plan would split the town men's area into five districts, as follows: (1) Victory Village and trailer courts, (2) West from Columbia street and south from Cameron avenue, (3) West from Columbia street between Cameron avenue and Franklin street, including Carrboro, (4) North of Franklin street, (5) South of Franklin, east of Columbia, and all other areas.

The reapportionment decided on by the committee will give the town men's district 23 representatives, dorm men's district 21 representatives, town women one and dorm women five.

Under this set-up, the districts in the Mackie-Sherrill bill will be entitled to representation as follows: District 1: three, district 2: five, district 3: either seven or eight, district 4: six, and district 5 two.

Leary Proposal

In the Legislature tomorrow night, Dedmond will also discuss the runnerup in the committee's voting, a proposal by Joe Leary which would cut the town into four districts, as follows: (1) Victory Village and trailer courts, (2) The area south of Cameron and west of Columbia, (3) The area north of Franklin street, (4) All other areas including out of town.

Other bills discussed yesterday were to cut the town into only two districts and one to cut it into four districts. The former was presented by Miles Smith and the latter by Tag Montague and Ernie House.

Tickets On Sale For Play's Debut

The sale of reserved seat tickets for the twenty-second premiere production of a new play by the Carolina Playmakers will start today, according to John W. Parker, staff business manager. The play, "Call Back Yesterday", was written by Gene A. McLain, a graduate student, and it is being directed by Harry Davis.

Tickets will be available at Ledbetter-Pickard's on Franklin street, or at the Playmaker business office in Swain hall. Seats may be reserved in advance, but no reservations can be held at the box office later than 8:15 on night of performance.

"Call Back Yesterday" will be staged in the Playmaker theater on March 10, 11, 12, and 13. It tells the story of a small town political ring, as expressed in the life of one member, Judge Ralph Gentry.

Final Examination Schedule

Saturday, March 13, at 8:30 o'clock
All 2 o'clock classes.

Saturday, March 13, at 2 o'clock
All 3 o'clock classes, Commerce 71 and 72, and any other courses not otherwise provided for by this schedule.

Monday, March 15, at 8:30 o'clock
All 8 o'clock classes.

Monday, March 15, at 2 o'clock
All 9 o'clock classes.

Tuesday, March 16, at 8:30 o'clock
All 10 o'clock classes.

Tuesday, March 16, at 2 o'clock
All 11 o'clock classes.

Wednesday, March 17, at 8:30 o'clock
All 12 o'clock classes.

Wednesday, March 17, at 2 o'clock
Common Examinations, (All French, German, and Spanish courses numbered 1, 2, 3, and 4.)

Thursday, March 18, at 8:30 o'clock
All 1 o'clock classes.

No student may be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary, in case of illness; or by his General College, Faculty Adviser or by his Dean, in case of any other emergency compelling his absence.

Staffmen To Support Policy: 'Keep Humor Mag Humorous'

Bob Smith and Tom Wharton, associate editors of Tarnation, will run for co-editorship of the humor magazine on the University party ticket, party officials announced yesterday.

Both Smith and Wharton have been members of the Tarnation staff since it was organized. Wharton is primarily a cartoonist while Smith has done mostly editorial work.

Speaks For Both

Pertaining to the question of their policy under the co-editorship, Smith spoke for Wharton and himself.

"Wharton and I are in favor of a policy of progressively testing the reactions of the student body to various experiments in the line of college humor.

"The student body will have the final approval of anything we do. In other words, student body support is our platform.

"Will Remain Humor"

"Tarnation was commissioned as a humor magazine and was upheld in the recent referendum as a humor magazine. It will be our policy that it will remain primarily a humor magazine.

"We feel that together we would work very smoothly in an editorial capacity since we are in complete accord on matters of policy."

Hodgson Comments

In commenting on the nomination, Tarnation editor Tookie Hodgson had this to say, "Bob and Tom have done excellent work as associate editors of Tarnation since it was organized.

"I think both have a great deal of ability along humorous lines. I'm very happy to see that they received the UP nomination."

Smith's Work

Smith, a journalism major from Greensboro, is noted for his "Hey-How U?" story in the first issue of Tarnation, "New Years Eve" and "Flashback", a satire on modern prose, in the past issue.

While overseas in the Army, Smith did feature work for the Stars and Stripes. He entered Carolina in January of 1947 and is now, as he phrases it, a "sinking" Senior.

Commercial Art Major

Wharton is a rising junior from Winston-Salem. He entered Carolina in the spring of 1947 and did work on the trial issue of Tarnation which came out at that time. He has also done illustration work on the Yack and is a commercial art major.

He has done cartooning for the Winston-Salem Journal-Sentinel and did illustrations for the Daily Target on Saipan while in the Army. He is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Celebrated Poet Robert Lee Frost To Speak Tonight

By Sally Woodhull

In a return visit to Carolina, Robert Frost, distinguished American poet, will appear tonight in public lecture at 8 o'clock in Hill hall under the sponsorship of the English department. Well received during his campus visit last year, the New England poet will discuss poetry and its relation to world affairs, and will read some of his poetry and comment upon it. Dr. Clifford P. Lyons, head of the English department, and personal friend of the poet, will introduce him.

Frost will stay in Chapel Hill for the remainder of the week, and while here will speak informally to several classes in contemporary poetry, American literature, and creative writing, answering questions of students and discussing his ideas.

At Other Schools

Following his stay here, Frost will go to the University of Florida at Gainesville, Florida State university at Tallahassee, and Richmond. Since his resignation from the Amherst English department in 1938, Frost has spent a great deal of time lecturing in an informal way at various colleges throughout the country.

Teaching Posts

Recipient of numerous honors for his poetry since the publication of his first volume, "A Boy's Will" in 1913, Frost has been associated with many colleges in his long career as teacher and poet. In addition to Amherst, he has taught at University of Michigan, Harvard, Middlebury college's Breadloaf School of English, and Dartmouth.

His most recently published works are "Masque of Reason" and "Masque of Mercy," two book length poems designed to complement one another, and dealing with the import and interrelations of justice and mercy. Based on the books of Job and Jonah, respectively, the works are longer and more extended than others Frost has done. He has called them " two New England biblicals."

Absent Minded

Cambridge, Mass., March 2—(UP)—Here is a story of an absent-minded professor that just about tops them all.

Seventy-two-year-old W. J. Cunningham is the professor, a retired professor in the Harvard graduate school. He was on his way to Cambridge, Massachusetts, after a six thousand mile automobile trip to the west coast. Professor Cunningham stopped at Greenfield, Indiana, to look at a road map. Then he drove on. Thirty miles away, he realized that he had forgotten something at Greenfield.

He had forgotten—his wife. He went back for her.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

Members of the Women's Glee club are requested to meet this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock, since Mr. Young will be away on Thursday.

Di Officer Election To Be Held Tonight

The Dialectic Senate will meet tonight in a closed business session to elect its officers for the next term. All Senators are required to be in the Di hall promptly at 8 o'clock unless they submit valid excuses in writing to Charles O. Long, speaker of the Senate at present.

All those who applied for Di membership recently are also asked to be present at 8 o'clock in order that their applications might be acted upon in time for those accepted to participate in the election of officers.

Charlotte Club Bids To Be Sold Today

Bids for the Charlotte-Carolina club's spring semi-formal dance will be on sale at the YMCA this morning from nine until one o'clock.

The dance will be held on Friday, March 19, at Morris Field Officers' club from nine until one o'clock. Music will be furnished by Billy Knauff.

There will be only one bid available to each member. Any bids left will be sold to alumni on March 9. No bids will be sold in Charlotte.

Mills-Stones

Robert Frost's 'Talking Poetry' Is Different

By Barron Mills

Robert Frost, the genial and well-loved poet of this century, is not like his contemporary craftsmen. While the trend of the Newspaper Poet Edgar Guest is to turn out reams of copy day after day, Frost was past his thirty-fifth birthday before he published his first poetry and that book contained the work of 20 years of writing. This first book was, "A Boy's Will." It was published by an English publisher, but it contained works about his beloved America. And Frost does love America. There is not a line of his poetry that does not corroborate his love. He writes about the simple things. His talking verse has been awarded the Pulitzer Prize four times and he is the only poet to achieve that distinction four times.

Louis Untermeyer, one of the most renowned of the Frost critics, says that many poets have written about people. Frost is different—his poems are the people.

Frost will be on the campus this year to deliver another of his informal addresses. I did not hear Frost deliver his lecture last year, but this time I wouldn't miss it.

I knew little of Frost before two weeks ago. I met him on the bus. A bus trip is very tiresome for me if I have nothing to keep me from counting telephone poles. I had a pocket edition of Frost poetry and became deeply interested in what he had to say. So interested in fact that when I found I did not have a seat I read about 20 pages standing in the aisle.

I hope that I do not have to stand in the aisle tonight at the Frost lecture, but I would gladly do so to hear what Robert Frost has to say.

With Our Best Foot Forward

An unsigned letter from a Duke coed this week condemns the conduct, according to her, of Carolina students at the Carolina-Duke game Friday night. According to reliable sources here, however, the remarks and general behavior of the Duke students was nothing to brag about either. It is unfortunate that two teams, in spite of their keen rivalry, cannot meet without their fellow students ruining the affair by unnecessary booing and name-calling.

The Southern conference tournament begins at Duke tonight with leading teams, supported by their followers, taking part. Undoubtedly, there will be numerous incidents of misconduct on the part of enthusiastic fans who will be displeased with referees, or with the defeat that some teams will receive. The Carolina students can easily set an enviable example for the other schools to follow if they will remember that they are guests on the Duke court and are being observed by others.

People, naturally remember the wrong that others do instead of the good. It would seem, however, that we could set a precedent by living up to the "Carolina Gentlemen" title. Other schools besides Carolina have been accused of unsportsmanlike conduct at basketball games. Doubtlessly, the tournament will give the questionable honor to every team that eventually is eliminated from conference play.

Those from Carolina who are lucky enough to have tickets to attend the event will do their school a "good deed" if they take any bad judgements on the part of officials or defeat (if we should lose) with their best foot forward. That is the best and the only way to retain our reputation as good sports and gentlemen. —B.B.

To the Editor:

In going through some old newspapers I found an item in which you might be interested. It is from the Raleigh Register for Saturday, January 19, 1852.

"At Chapel Hill, the seat of our University, according to the American Almanac, there were but thirty-nine clear days from June, 1850, to May, 1851, the rest, (326) being recorded as 'cloudy.' There is probably no other locality in the Union, or in Europe, where there are so many cloudy days."

Fannie Memory Farmer

Under a Tamaqua, Pa. dateline, the AP reported: "More than 100 anthracite miners wearing lighted electric lambs on their caps. . . ."

Of Students In Quandaries

G.F.Lypsnok Didn't Look Good

By Sergei Burgess

This question is getting a bit out of hand. And especially the business about green hair. It's surpassed my wildest dreams, no mean feat indeed. Foo Gidders told me 'tother day about some gal who though she'd like green hair, other people have told me about still others they'd like to see with marine tresses, and I can think of a short little babe named Jacque over in Spencer who'd look on thousand percent better that way. Maybe she could beat us in ping pong then; we'd be too busy staring. Me uncle and me.

And while talking about ping pong I am pleased to inform you that the great Collins-Burgess 65 game series has at last ended. It took over two weeks and 59 games to do it, but I finally won 33-26. It took time to do it, especially after I lost a three-game lead to fall behind 20-14. But I finally realized that Dave was picking up points on bad serves of mine, so I concentrated on offense and soon became the top defense player of the group. I'm still thinking about green hair.

For the next 65 game series I'll play Jacque.

B. J. "I'm feeling mighty low" Strong, chairman of the present version of the Student Entertainment committee can't quite understand how the Tar Heel happened to correctly spell his name Saturday morn. Seems like other times it's come out as B. S. Young and similar misapplications. Said Colonel Strong last night for publication, "They must have written down G. F. Lypsnok and the proof reader didn't think it looked good."

Answers to the favorite drink poll were too diversified to give all the answers here. He're the top three, anyway. Water won with 10 votes, beer came next with nine and those who refused to answer said nothing eight times. Best answer, however, was Bebop Barker's, "I like whiskey sours; they taste so sweet."

Joke-of-the-week department. Football coach: "See here, prof, why did you flunk my star player on that exam. He made a ninety, didn't he?" "Yes." "Well, what did your best student make?" Ninety." "Did he pass?" "Yes." "Well, why did you flunk my star player?" "Well, coach, on the first nine questions my best student answered them all correctly, and so did your star player. But on the last question my best student wrote down, 'I don't know,' and your star player wrote, 'I don't know, either.' "

Draw no conclusions, son, you'll probably be wrong.

Since green hair has become so popular I think that I should ask a few more questions on the subject. Therefore, for next week my query shall be this: On the girls of what dormitory or sorority would you prefer to see green hair?

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.	Complete Leased Wire of United Press	Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Ed Joyner — NIGHT SPORTS: Bob Goldwater

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

"It's a bottle of fresh air I scooped up in Central Park. I take a whiff from time to time."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Whiskey Talks, Taft Listens

By Drew Pearson

Washington—It's no secret that the big whiskey trust has tremendous political influence, but few realized it was able to tell Sen. Bob Taft what to do.

However, that was what happened last Thursday, when the Republican majority held up the business of the Senate for three hours on orders from the whiskey trust that the Distillery Grain-Allocation bill had to be amended. The Republicans voted solidly to allocate most of the grain for distilling to the three big whiskey companies which control the distilled spirits institute—Seagrams, Hiram Walker and National Distillers. The first two of these are Canadian.

Hitherto, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson has allocated grain based on a combination of each distiller's capacity and its past use. This gave a break to smaller and independent companies. The Senate Banking and Currency Committee had agreed unanimously that this formula was fair, and urged the Senate to let the Agriculture Department continue using this formula.

But the Senate Republicans voted solidly to overrule their own committee and laid down a new hand-picked formula, carefully selected to favor the Whiskey Trust. This cuts down allocations to independent companies such as Schenley, Publicker and United which have never joined the whiskey club known as the Distilled Spirits Institute.

Inside reason why the Senate Republicans overruled their own committee is that the Whiskey Trust made it plain to Senator Cooper, a Republican from normally Democratic Kentucky, that he had to put across their formula if he wanted to be re-elected. Bob Taft and the Senate Republicans are most anxious to save Cooper's seat for the GOP, So finally decided to go down the line for the Whiskey Trust. Incidentally, Democratic leader Alben Barkley, also from Kentucky, joined them.

Interesting sidelight is that Cooper's formula hurts 19 distilleries in his home state, while most of the distilleries which are helped belong to the distilled Spirits Institute—the front for the Whiskey Trust. Of the three big companies that dominate the Whiskey Trust, two are Canadian.

—Sen. Taylor Still a Democrat—

Significantly, a move to banish Sen. Glen Taylor from the Democratic party after he signed up with Henry Wallace was defeated recently inside Idaho's Democratic State Central committee.

At a meeting in Boise, ex-Sen. Charles Gossett and former State Democratic Chairman Robert Coulter tried to push through a resolution ruling Taylor out of the party.

After two hours of wrangling, Sam Hindman of Boise moved to adjourn without a vote. Hindman's motion carried 33 to 19.

Note—Political observers report considerable Wallace backing in the northwest.

—Czech Secret Deal—

When the secret documents on the Czech crisis are finally made known, it will be found that the State Department made one enormous effort to save the Czechs from the Iron Curtain. The attempt took place last July and here is the inside story.

When the Czech Cabinet first heard about the Marshall Plan, they sent a secret emissary to see then Undersecretary of State Will Clayton in Geneva and informed him that Czechoslovakia wanted to line up with the west.

In the past, the Czech said, Washington regularly gave his government the brush-off, as, for instance, when Prague tried to buy $10,000,000 worth of seed wheat in the United States for cash. The offer was turned down cold; meanwhile, Russia gave the Czechs the wheat free. Accordingly the Czech agent suggested to Clayton that the Truman administration strengthen Benes and Masaryk with a real gesture of friendship.

Clayton said he was willing, and the Czech promptly proposed that the export-import bank authorize a $50,000,000 credit to Czechoslovakia. Clayton telephoned Washington, got got the loan ok'd.

Meanwhile, however, Moscow began wielding the big stick, the Czech cabinet caved in, and Czechoslovakia pulled out of the Marshall Plan. When that happened, the State Department knew Czechoslovakia had lost the will to fight back.

—Under The Dome—

Russell Adams, director of the Civil Aeronautic Board's economic Bureau and a career man, will replace CAB board member Harlee Branch. . . A movement to rebuild the badly disorganibed Democratic party in Michigan from the ground up will be launched by a group of young liberals. They include Assistant Secretary of Labor John Gibson; Hickman Price of Grand Rapids; Vice President of Kaiser-Frazer; Wendell Lund, wartime Industrial Relations chief of the War Production Board; and Mennon Williams of the soap family. . . . Those 20 Senators from coastal states, led by Warren Magnuson of Washington, Wayne Morse of Oregon and Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, who have been demanding a Fisheries division in the State Department, soon will get their wish.

—3rd Party Moguls Meet—

Henry Wallace and running mate, Sen. Glen Taylor, met with their campaign managers behind closed doors last week to map 3rd-party strategy.

They made tentative plans to hold their national convention in Chicago in June, and reviewed procedure for entering the party on the ballot in various states. Florida was the only state given up as hopeless.

Senator Taylor wanted to identify the party with a name immediately and suggested calling it the Progressive Party. But Wallace couldn't make up his mind, and the christening was put off until the convention.

—Merry-Go-Round—

Next step in Army-Navy unification will be a merger of Army-Navy water transportation. Most people don't know it but the Army actually keeps more vessels afloat than the navy—2,953. This is 300 more than the navy's total fleet. On top of this, the Air Force operates an additional 350 vessel. . .Campaign buttons reading, "Why not Henry Kaiser?" have begun to appear on the campus of Stanford university in Palo Alto, Herbert Hoover's home town. . .Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia has consistently told individual southern Democrats that he would not run against President Truman for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Broadway

Hot Rodgers-Hammerstein Team at Work

By Jack Gaver

New York —(UP)— Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein have announced new plans to produce next season, in association with Leland Hayward and Joshua Logan, a musical play based on the book "Tales of the South Pacific," by James Michener. Rodgers will do the music and Hammerstein the book and lyrics.

Previously Hammerstein and Rodgers let it be known that they will produce a new musical by Irving Berlin and Norman Krasna. Berlin gave the Rodgers-Hammerstein producing firm the successful "Annie Get Your Gun" and Krasna gave it the comedy "John Loves Mary," which is now on tour after a year in New York.

March 6 marks the first anniversary of Fred Astaire's venture as a dancing school proprietor. His place on Park Avenue has done well and in addition he has established 26 school units throughout the United States. He now has his eye on London, Paris, Rome and Brussels.

If the plans go through, Broadway will get a look next fall at the first play whose action occurs inside an eggshell. The play is "Jim Dandy" and it couldn't be by anyone else but the glad boy of the American drama, William Saroyan.

Four men have banded together to sponsor this work, which has been in print for months. There are some people who insist that it should remain in print. However, Frank Satenstein, Robert L. Joseph, Mark Marvin and the actor Canada Lee feel that its confusion will be even more counfounding when

(See BROADWAY, Page 4)

Write Away

Worker Kicks About Lenoir

Editor,

I am writing this letter to express the protest of self-help students working in Lenoir Dining hall in regard to the latest step taken by the management in their efforts towards efficiency. Doubtlessly there will be those who maintain that DTH is not the proper agency for voicing such an opinion. However, this move affects people who are your fellow students and is planned to reduce the price of meals. I am requesting that my name be withheld, whereas my attendance at the University is dependent upon self-help work in some form.

The latest move in the management's drive for efficiency and cost curtailment is a limitation upon the time that a student may begin work. Under the present system, some students are not allowed to begin work until half an hour after serving on the lines has begun. The average student worker is paid 55 cents per hour and at three hours per day and seven days per week earns $11.55. Many students, such as myself, come to the University depending strongly upon this source of income to remain here. Already the seven day provision has been broken with increasing frequency. Most students are now forced to take off one day each week-end and two days every fourth week-end. This plays havoc with one's budget unless one finds substitute work.

Under the new regulation, a student whose pay cannot begin until 5:30 must remain in the building until 8:30 to obtain his three hours. By 7:45, all work done by students is finished, and students would have to sit in the steaming dressing room for half an hour. True, some students do come early and wait around at present in their desperate struggle to earn enough to feed themselves the next week, but others are left with insufficient time to do such preliminary chores as setting up water glasses and wipe wet trays. To so get behind leaves the worker behind during the entire work period. I prophesy that the decrease in efficiency will overbalance any payroll savings for the management.

I wonder if the cut in days and in hours is in accord with the agreement that we signed with the Student Aid office and its truly helpful and thoughtful director, Mr. Lanier. My agreement called for working 3 hours per day, seven days per week.

While discussing Lenoir Dining hall, let me inform the student body of the cut of student personnel, particularly of busboys, around the end of the last and beginning of the present quarter. This cut was to give students a raise. Since then, there has been no official mention of a raise except a number of choices as to preferred pay plans which students were to select. No mention of the later has been made either.

Does anyone have any ideas as to how the management may be deterred from this impractical plan of efficiency? Has anyone noticed a lowering of prices as a result of other schemes or efficiency experts. I have not.

Name Withheld by Request

Crude!

Editor:

After witnessing tonight's (Feb. 27) action of certain Carolina students at the half of the Duke-Carolina basketball game, I want to express the thoughts of many Duke students, spectators and those well-bred Carolina people who were present. Never before has an audience been so humiliated by mob rudeness than those at the awarding of the trophy for the outstanding football player for the year 1947.

From the moment that Mr. Arnold of the Center theatre stepped upon the court to announce the winner until Fred Folger had received the award and left the floor, the boos and rude comments from Carolina students in the balcony did not cease. The speaker was forced to stop his speech until the cries for "Choo-Choo" and jeers quieted somewhat. How any guest could show such disrespect in the presence of their hosts and other visitors is beyond our comprehension. We all enjoy school spirit and try to stand behind our alma mater, but we do not overstep our bounds. The award given was for only Duke players; therefore, there was no need for the interference which came from the visiting Chapel Hillians.

I am a North Carolinian and I hold no prejudice against Carolina since many of the students are of excellent character, but I do think a lecture on good sportsmanship would improve the standard of the crude minority which soiled the Tar Heel nam tonight.

A Duke Coed

Innocent

Editor:

It seems that Pete Gerns a bit over-zealous in his exp of "other students' opinions" his Campus Forum under the da line of March 2, 1948. I neith answered the call to the forum nor made the statement attribu ted to me.

It appeared that the question set forth was whether the appellate powers should be continued status quo, revised, or abolished. If the student government leaders can put forth a sound plan of appeal power before the campus better than the present system, this should be done immediately. My opinion in the matter follows a combined summation of the opinion advanced by Ernie House and the alternative by Bill Tate.

In view of unknown facts, it appears that the statement over my name in Tuesday's column was either a gem of the author imagination or that it was the stroke of a student who neithe understands nor cares to under stand the intricacies of student government. I suggest that future columnists verify the facts and authenticity of forum blanks turned in to them which will subsequently be used for publication This will avoid frivolous statements made in bad taste in conjunction with serious problems.

Peter T. Beaudry

(Ed's Note: DTH agrees.)

Playful

Editor:

Because of the local stir is has concerned, I feel it necessary to come out with something of a confession. In a rather exuberant mood last Friday evening, I happened upon Graham Memorial and a box which said something about Campus Forum on it

Feeling rather playful due to Miller's High Life and so forth, I decided that a letter should be written and put in this worthy box. Therefore, I penned the letter, erroneously signed Pete Beaudry, which appeared in Tuesday's Tar Heel advocating free love. I wish to state at this time that these are not Mr. Beaudry's sentiments on the matter, or mine either.

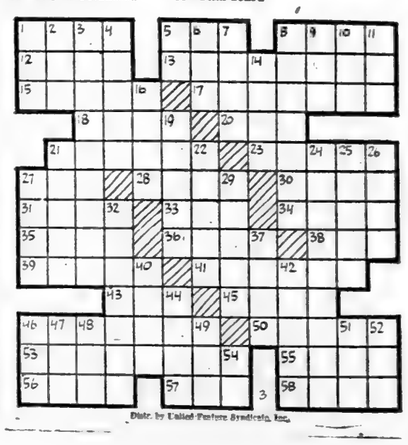
I am very sorry to have involved Pete, but I had no idea of the issue involved. This letter is in the form of an apology to Pete Beaudry and the Daily Tar Heel for misusing their Campus Forum.

Don McKinney

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



ACROSS

1—To melt
5—Lunched
8—The linden
12—Opera by Verdi
13—Able to read
15—British Foreign Minister
17—Served food
18—Isaac's elder son
20—To jump
21—All
23—Wealthy man
27—Took a seat
28—The Swedish Nightingale
30—Close
31—Chills
33—City in Oklahoma
34—Fencing cry
35—Ocean bird
36—Brave man
38—Indian of Shoshonean tribe
39—Upright
41—Gives back
43—— Angeles
45—Bristle (comb. form)
46—Loud noises
50—To mention
53—Pert. to Thomas Erastus
55—"Missouri Canary"
56—To venture
57—Hardy annual cereal grass
58—Thin board

DOWN

1—Label
2—To go in haste
3—Daring feat
4—Blouse
5—Man's nickname
6—Surgical saw
7—Explorer's base in Greenland
8—Surgical saws
9—Hearing organ
10—Suffix: native of
11—Guided
14—Short jacket
16—Metal fastener
19—Husband of Bath-sheba
21—Ardent
22—Finisher
24—Lovely
25—Kilns
26—Bank (Scot.)
27—To satisfy
29—Ventures
32—To encircle
37—Hebrew measure
40—Legal wrong
42—Newspaper paragraphs
44—To arouse
46—A radical
47—Age
48—Level of exchange
49—To declare
51—High note
52—To soak
54—Compass point

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Mermen Face Potent State In Raleigh; Loop Cage Tournament Begins At Duke

Bobbing in Sports

—with—

Bob Goldwater

Weekend T-Parties

ARE YOU GOING to a T-party this coming weekend? We're hoping to take in two of them, one in Durham and the other here in Chapel Hill. For over in the Tobacco Town, it's Tournament Time for ten conference cage teams, while here at home, between five and eight squads will tangle for the loop Tank Title.

Although not wishing to be charged with undue pessimism or optimism, as the case may be, we nevertheless consider both championship events as "pretty sure things" when talk arises as to the respective winners. In the basketball derby, which gets under way tonight, Carolina, George Washington, Duke, and six other outfits will be out to do what hasn't been done for some 14 or 15 games—and that's to beat N. C. State. But right off hand, we can't see that happening for at least three more contests—and maybe a few more after that!

And despite Coach Dick Jamerson's moans to the contrary, the swimming festivities appear to be just as much of a cinch as does the scrap for the cage crown, only this time for Carolina. The 1947 Blue Dolphins swamped all opposition in churning off with the title last season, and with additional strength this year, they definitely rank among the top teams in the nation. All of which indicates that Carolina, in the swimming field, and State, in basketball, have something more in common other than their fraternal relationship.

Reaching the Finals

RETURNING TO THE subject of the basketball tournament, it's interesting to note that, just like last year, some fans are already heralding the possibility of State and Duke meeting in the finals. South Carolina ruined the Blue Devils' hopes on opening day one year ago, and the Gamecock will get a chance to do it again this evening at 9 o'clock.

That game and the tourney curtain-raiser between Wake Forest and William and Mary loom as two of the toughest of the whole cage affair. All four teams barely did make their way into the act, Duke gaining a claim to a berth as late as Friday night and the others squeezing in on the decision of the conference committee Sunday afternoon. And tonight's respective winners face still harder hurdles—they may turn out to be permanent obstacles—tomorrow when they run up against State and George Washington in what would normally be the tournament's first round.

The luck of Sunday's draw certainly didn't favor Carolina too much, except for pitting the Phantoms in their first action against a team they downed twice during the season. For if the locals do manage to make it three in a row over VPI, they then have the dubious honor of doing semi-final battle on Friday with the wonderous Wolfpack, or whatever group of magicians that happens to upset the high-flying Raleigh lads tomorrow evening. Personally, we know of no one expecting such to be the Case.

Oddly enough, State almost missed making the tourney, under the strict interpretation of the conference rules. The regulations state that a team must play in 12 loop tussels in order to qualify—and the Wolfpack's record shows an even 12-0. That's close enough, but the Staters came even closer, having one of their tilts cancelled and later rescheduled.

Wonder what the committee would have done had State played in only 11 games, one short of the requirements.

Getting in the Swim

BUT WHILE STATE is feeding humble pie to Carolina and the other cage outfits, it's still a pretty safe bet that the weekend won't be entirely a lost one for those of Tar Heelia. Not as long as Dick Jamerson and his boys have anything to say about the matter, that is. For come Saturday afternoon when the conference swimming finals are decided in the friendly waters of Bowman Gray pool, the Blue Dolphins ought to splash their way to another in their long line of loop championships.

The defending titleholders in six of the nine events on the program, the local mermen are quite liable to prove ungracious hosts by threatening to cop—or at least place second—in each and every event. The most interesting part of the whole proceedings ought to come when the South's most notable examples of human fish—Dick Twining and Bill Kelly—battle for supremacy in the 220-freestyle.

AND WHILE WE'RE thinking along the T-lines, another T comes bobbing up as we backtrack along the sporting picture. This latest T starts off the name of one Tatum—otherwise known as Big Jim.

Here Saturday for the indoor track classic, Big Jim advised us not to have any concern over the Carolina-Maryland grid scrap next November being bumped out of Griffith stadium because of "prior commitments." "We have the field for sure," he emphasized. And possibly in the hope that we might overlook the game on the previous week, he warned us to "Look out for Duke in '48."

Battery Candidates Practice Indoors

Driven indoors by the inclement weather, the 40-odd candidates for the battery positions pressed themselves a little harder in warm up drills held in the Tin Can yesterday.

The sharp noise of a well thrown ball meeting the mitt of the catcher echoed strongly as the hopefuls opened up with a little more stuff.

Coaches Bunn Hearn and Walt Rabb looked to more work for the entire squad today if the bad weather breaks up. The rest of the new men who didn't get a crack at batting practice on Monday will be given a chance to knock out a few.

Several more letterment are expected to report for the drills later this week. Other players back from last year include two jayvees infielders Will Hobbs at first base and Doc Cranford at second.

Kelly-Twining Race To Feature Battle Of Unbeaten Crews

By Bill Kellam

Carolina's powerful Blue Dolphins and State's equally potent Wolfpack will splash it out in the Frank Thompson gymnasium tank this afternoon for the aquatic dual meet championship of the South when the unbeaten teams tangle at 4 o'clock in the West Raleigh school's pool.

The slightly favored Chapel Hill mermen will return to the scene of the crime—the 81-42 shellacking handed the local cage forces by the Hoosier Hot Shots—where they'll be stroking to regain the face lost by the elderly institution's athletes earlier this year.

Dick Twining will lead the Tar Heel forces into the fray in search of their 37th consecutive conference victory and their 10th straight triumph of the season. The Aggie mermen are undefeated in eight meets thus far this year.

Seven Mutual Foes

Numbered among the victims of the two teams are seven mutual foes—Florida, Duke, VMI, Georgia Tech, Virginia, VPI, and George Washington. The fact that the Dolphins have swamped the vanquished by much larger margins than State would rank the locals as apparent favorites but, in this spirited traditional rivalry, past records have no meaning.

Coach Dick Jamerson was far from optimistic yesterday afternoon when quizzed about the Dolphins' chances. He did venture this cautious comment, "We have had things easy for the past few meets, and as we said earlier in the season, one little slip and we would be the loser.

The Fateful Meeting

This afternoon's big individual attraction will be the long-awaited dual between the team's two one-man teams—Twining of Carolina and Bill Kelly of State The two aquatic aces will probably meet in the 220 although there's a chance that they may splash it out in the 100. Since both coaches will select their lineups as the meet foams along, the progress of the meet itself will determine the hour of their fateful meeting.

Speedy sprinter Bill Ward of the hosts will be another big threat to the victory hopes. Recently, he set a new loop mark in the 50-yard freestyle—his specialty—of 23.9 seconds. That's .4 of a second less that the time it took Floyd Drew, the Dolphins ace dash man, to churn his way

(See DOLPHINS, page 4)

To Spearhead Dolphin Attack

SHOWN ABOVE IS THE versatile pair who will lead the undefeated Blue Dolphins against State's powerful mermen in Raleigh this afternoon. Twining is slated to appear in the 220 and 440 freestyles while Sper will perform in the diving and backstroke events.

Indoor Track Meet to Become Conference Affair Next Year

Next year Chapel Hill's big indoor track carnival will return to its pre-war status and will again be called the Southern Conference Indoor Games.

Held last Saturday night, the event this year was the Southern Invitation Indoor Games, as it has been since 1943. North Carolina's Tar Heels this week are celebrating their fourth victory in the new series. They won the Southern Conference Indoor Games nine times.

When the show returns in 1949 to its former status, conference championships again will be determined. This means the restoration of the old Weil mile, inaugurated in 1939 and named after the late Lionel Weil of Goldsboro, who awarded a handsome trophy each year to the winner.

An eloquent tribute to Mr. Weil's memory was read at the games Saturday night. It read in part: "Lionel Weil lived in Goldsboro. He was also a citizen of the University of North Carolina. He was graduated here in 1897 and last June at the same time of the 50th anniversary of the graduation of his class, the University conferred on Mr. Weil an honorary degree. Ardently interested as alumnus and trustee in many phases of University life, Mr. Weil's special interest in track athletics cause us particularly to think of him tonight."

Cagers Continue Work for Tourney

Carolina's White Phantoms were hard at work yesterday making preparations for their game with Virginia Tech on Thursday afternoon in the Southern conference tourney in Durham.

A full-dress scrimmage between the Phantoms and some of their former stars highlighted the workout. The opposing team showed Bob Rose, one of the leaders on Carolina's NCAA tourney outfit in 1941; Lou and Jim Hayworth; Bill Miller; Pete Mullis; and several others. Coach Tom Scott tried several different combinations during the afternoon in an effort to determine which players to take to the Durham event tomorrow.

Each team is allowed only ten players in the tournament, so the Carolina coach will have to make a cut in his squad.

One encouraging note in the

(See CAGERS, page 4)

Duke, Wake Forest Slated For Action In Opening Games

By Dick Jenrette

With 10 teams participating for the first time since 1939, the annual Southern conference basketball tournament opens a four-day program with two games scheduled tonight in the spacious Duke Indoor Stadium.

Wake Forest and William and Mary, a pair of clubs that barely qualified for the tourney, start the action by meeting at 7:30. Duke University, which has qualified in every one of the 16 tourneys since the Southern conference was reorganized, lays this impressive record on the line against South Carolina in the second game of the evening, which will get underway about 9 o'clock.

Wake Forest is expected to have a rather easy time in subduing the Indians from Williamsburg, Va., in the first game of the evening. The Deacons of Coach Murray Greason came along fast at the end of the season, defeating Carolina, 53-47, and giving both Duke and State big scares before losing by a narrow margin. Duke had to score four points in the last minute in order to defeat Wake.

Last Season Upset

Both schools finished their seasons with identical 8-7 won-lost marks, but the schedule that the Deacons played was considered the more difficult.

The game between Duke and South Carolina marks the second straight time that these two teams have met in the first round of the tournament. Last season, Duke, with such stars as Ed Koffenberger, Bubber Seward, and Garland Loftis around, were the victims of a startling upset. The Gamecocks had not been considered as much of a threat in that tourney, but with big Al Adams tossing in hook shots with phenominal accuracy, they were able to beat Duke.

Adams is still playing for South Carolina, but he has not been particularly effective this season. So once again the Dukes are regarded as the favorites.

In addition to having made the tourney in all 16 years, the Blue Devils have gained the finals on ten occasions. They won the championship five times, which is the most titles held by any school in the loop. Carolina ranks second to Duke in the number of championships won with four.

Roaches Cop Handball Tourney Over Chi Psi

The Roaches, dormitory handball champs, caputred the campus title yesterday by shutting out the fraternity leaders, Chi Psi, 3-0.

The elements, which caused the cancellation of the three soccer games scheduled to be played didn't affect the handballers deep in the cozy confines of Woollen gym.

The contest, originally slated to be run off as part of the intramural sports carnival April 1, was moved up to accommodate players on both teams who are members of the tennis, track, and baseball varsities.

Shot-putter Bob Seligman and fellow track star Don Nelson teamed up in the first doubles to defeat the Chi Psi duo of Vinnie DiLorenzo star baseball southpaw, and Tom Clayton, 21-11, 21-8.

Joe Zahran and pole vaulter Hank Hickman combined to ice the match for the Roaches by whitewashing Debby Smith and Joe Proctor in the second tandom tilt, 21-0, 21-0.

Sam Hooks took the measure of Vic Seixas, Tar Heel net star, in the singles contest, 21-2, 21-9.

Randy Hudson Second In Washington Event

Carolina' versatile first lady of the swimming pools, Miss Randy Hudson of Tarboro, journeyed to Washington, D. C., Friday and that night stroked her way to the runner-up honors in the 300-yard Junior National individual medley event.

Miss Dent Richards, wearing the colors of the Atlanta Swimming Association, took first place while Miss Stevie Rosen, performing for the Women's Swimming Association of New York City was third.

The women's individual medley and the 200 yard Junior National breaststroke for men were the only national events on the schedule of Friday night's district meet.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

SOCCER

4:00—Field 1: Zeta 1 vs. ATO 1; Field 2: Sigma Nu 1 vs. Phi Gam 1.

RIFLE FIRING

7:30—Med School (orientation)

REHDER'S
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

TODAY
CAROLINA

B. ALTMAN & CO.
FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK

The Altman College Shop says:

"PIN UP

THE NEW SPRING CLOTHES"

Fresh as the buds on the trees, our happy college clothes for spring 1948. Come and see them all at . . .

WASHINGTON DUKE HOTEL
Monday and Tuesday
March 8 and 9

CORDUROY COATS

Light Weight for Greater Wearing Comfort

Tan – Grey – Maroon – Rust

Popular Prices

At

JACK LIPMAN'S

Party mood?

- Midnight Snack
- Party Desert
- Party for Kids

Frozen
DRUMSTICKS
Are Always Ready
at Our Dealers

FARMER'S DAIRY COOPERATIVE, INC.

Two things every college man should know!

1. This is a woman. Synonymous with legs, tears, and gold. But necessary. Fragile.
An independent dependent. Knows what she wants and how to get it. Always turns arguments around to whether you love her or not.

2. This is a "Manhattan" Lasher Shirt. Very necessary too. Has slick long collar points so popular now. Distinctive "Manhattan" tailoring. Residual shrinkage less than 1%. Study this and other fine "Manhattans" here today!

CAMPUS FAVORITE—
Manhattan
THE MANHATTAN SHIRT COMPANY
Copr. 1948, The Manhattan Shirt Co.

Czech Reds Crack Down On American Information

Bulletins Banned; Spokesman Denies Benes Resignation

Washington, March 2 —(UP)— The new Communist regime in Czechoslovakia is reported cracking down on the American Information Service tonight. The American embassy in Prague says two daily bulletins of the Information Service have been banned.

A Czech government spokesman today officially denied published reports that President Eduard Benes has resigned.

Finland May Agree

Latest reports from Finland indicate that the Finnish parliament will agree to Russia's suggestion for negotiating a Soviet-Finnish military treaty. However, the issue has not yet come up for a parliamentary vote.

West Speeds Plans

The situation in Finland and Czechoslovakia is making Western European nations speed plans for an anti-Communist union. London diplomats predict that an agreement between Britain, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands will be completed in two weeks.

At the Big-Four Deputy Foreign Ministers conference in London, the United States today turned down Russia's proposal for special right over Austrian oil and shipping.

FOLLOWING THE ANNOUNCEMENT of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia, crowds gather in front of a newspaper building in Prague. Premier Klement Gottwald has called for a high pressure recruiting drive to increase by 600,000 the Communist Party ranks, now numbering about 1,400,000. (International)

Whid Powell's

COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM

GRILLED TARHELLIAS
Also Serving
French Fried Potatoes
with all dinners

Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

DOES YOUR RADIO SOUND GOOD?

—see—
D. W. ANDERSON
—at—
LLOYD ELECTRIC COMPANY
Carrboro. N. C.
—for—
Fine Radio Repairing

-CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

TYPINGS—EIGHT WEEKS COURSE, High School, beginning March 4th—Mon., Tues., Thurs., 3:30-5:00. (1-c1830-1)

FOR SALE 6B

OVERSTUFFED SOFA AND CHAIR, slip covers included, $35.00. Phone 3231 evenings. (1-c1835-1)

NEW 5 ROOM BRICK VENEER House, close in, all modern conveniences. Phone 4921 for appointment. (1-1813-1)

TRAILER, GOOD CONDITION. CAN be seen any night after 6:30—41 Pittsboro Road Trailer Court. $750.00 cash. (1-1829-1)

YOU MAY SOLVE YOUR HOUSING problem by inspecting blue trailer, Greensboro Street, Carrboro, then making an offer to John Berry, 235 Jackson Circle, after 5 P.M. Must sell this week at some price. (1-1827-2)

STUDIO COUCH, OCCASIONAL chair, chair and ottoman, bed and chest of drawers. Excellent condition 126 Bagley Drive, Victory Village, after 1 o'clock. (1-1825-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1948 4-DOOR SUPER DELUXE FORD Radio, heater, other extras. 900 miles. Steve Parrott, Phone 9021, Kappa Sig House. (1-1826-1)

1940 MODEL DELUXE FORD COACH. See E. Lamb, 1 Old West Dorm. (1-1828-1)

LOST 12

ON TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 17, THREE men in a new olive-green DeSoto convertible played golf at the Chapel Hill Country Club. Witnesses state that one of this threesome found a club on the fourth green. The lost club is a Pedersen No. 5 iron, one of a matched registered set. Golfers are puzzled as to why it has not yet been turned in. Please return to Estelle Lawson Page at home or Country Club or call the English Office 4441. Any information appreciated. (1-C1821-4)

GOLD ALBRIGHT WRIST WATCH last Friday. 14-K —Reward—Call Ted Stouffer at 5741. (1-1831-1)

BINOCULARS IN BROWN LEATHER case Sunday evening in Carolina theater. Finder please notify Martha Jordan, 113 Bingham, 4486. Reward. (1-c1832-1)

REWARD: BICYCLE, OLD BUT VALued. Red, wire basket, balloon tires, Durham license on rear, back tire worn thru. Please notify or see Physics Dept. secretary. (1-1833-1)

WANTED TO RENT 24B

APARTMENT FOR STURENT AND wife to occupy about June 7. Reply Box 201, Graham. Have auto. (1-1812-1)

Ridgeway's
OPTICIANS
Complete Eyeglass Service
Prompt attention to al mail orders
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
Raleigh N. C.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

For Spring

CASHEMERE SWEATERS

in colors of
Navy Blue — Natural — Carolina Blue
Grey — Light Green — Black

SLEEVELESS CASHEMERES

in colors of
Yellow — Natural — Carolina Blue
Navy Blue
JACK LIPMAN'S

-Broadway-

seen on the stage and they are going to sponsor it.

No musical show score in recent years has had as many novelty hits as that of "Angel in the Wings" for which Carl Sigman did the music and Bob Hilliard the lyrics.

First of their numbers to reach the public ear via the radio disk jockeys and juke boxes was "Civilization." The "Thousand Islands Song" and "Big Brass Band from Brazil" were the next, running about neck and neck in popular favor.

Any show that finds three of its songs striking the popular fancy as expressed in sheet music and record sales can consider itself lucky. When, as in this case, the songs are all of the novelty class, that's history. Furthermore, this is the first show Sigman and Hilliard have done.

Campus Calendar

3:00 p. m.—Coalition council, Grail room.
4:45 p. m.—Women's Glee club, Hill hall.
5:00 p. m.—Chi Delta Phi, Grail room.
6:30 p. m.Recorded dinner music, Main lounge.
7:30 p. m.—Chess club, Roland Parker lounge No. 3.
7:30 p. m.—Carolina Conservatives, Roland Parker lounge No. 2.
7:30 p. m.—Pi Kappa Phi, Roland Parker lounge No. 1.
8:00 p. m.—Chemistry Wives, Horace Williams lounge.

-Daniels-

(Continued from page 1)

do believe that he is naive in the people from whom he draws his support. I do not accuse Wallace, but the men around him who are interested in his foreign policy because of interest or support of foreign governments."

When queried as to why he had a reporter attend the Wallace conferences held last wekend in the guise of a State student, Daniels said that he knew nothing of the affair and doubted that it was true. He added, however, that he though his reporter did a very excellent job of covering the convention.

The question-and-answer period which followed Daniels' address was taken up mainly with discussion over the President's Civil Rights program and the Wallace third party controversy.

When asked if he thought the liberal trend in the Democratic party ended with the death of Roosevelt and the rise of Truman, Daniels answered that "Truman is going forward with liberal trends more than any man before him."

Look Out For a New Kind of SHE — Woo-Woo WOLF!

SAMUEL GOLDWYN PRESENTS
WOMAN CHASES MAN
with
MIRIAM HOPKINS and JOEL McCREA
CHARLES WINNINGER
ELLA LOGAN
BRODERICK CRAWFORD
TODAY
VILLAGE

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

For students with show-bent talent, there is a spot now open on the Graham Memorial staff. . . Union can use a man to do part-time work in the field of entertainment, taking in getting up shows, M. C.'ing, even personal performing. . .Talk to director Bill Shuford.

Last dance class of the quarter is this afternoon, 4 o'clock, Roland Parker lounges 1, 2, 3, One more week before exams . . .Made your travel reservations yet?

Khatchaturian's "Gayne Suite" (containing the popular "Sabre Dance") and Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 2, have been added to the Union's record library... And the dinner music concert tonight will feature the following all-Beethoven selections: Piano Concerto No. 2; Twelve Contra-Dances; Consecration of the House.

Donald J. Atkinson* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked the Finger Nail Test

WHY ACT like a donkey just because your ears are pointed? Don't "burro" your roommate's bottle . . . of Wildroot Cream-Oil, that is! Get some for yourself. See how it grooms your hair neatly and naturally without that gooey look! See how quickly it goes to work relieving annoying dryness and removing ugly, loose dandruff! Wildroot Cream-Oil hair tonic is non-alcoholic — it contains soothing Lanolin. Helps you pass the Fingernail Test. No wonder Wildroot Cream-Oil is "again and again the choice of men who put good grooming first!" Get a tube or bottle today at any drug or toilet goods counter. And ask your barber for a professional application.

* of 38 Deumant Terrace, Kenmore, N.Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil
Get it at
SUTTON'S
DRUG STORE
Your Walgreen Agency

LI'L ABNER By AL CAP

Cheese Blintzes—Today—at HARRY'S

Article by Proffessor H. Baer In Law Review February Issue

The February issue of the North Carolina Law Review is now being distributed.

Professor Herbert R. Baer, of the Law school faculty, has prepared an article entitled; "Suing Uncle Sam in Tort", which deals with decisions under the Federal Tort Claims Act.

An article of great interest not only to lawyers but to the general public of the state was written by Wallace C. Murchison, of the Wilmington Bar. This article, "Significance of the American Tobacco Company Case", discusses a recently decided anti-trust action. It deals extensively with marketing practices in purchasing leaf tobacco and traces the history of pricing the finished product in the tobacco field.

Comments on recent cases of interest were prepared by: William H. Burton, Jr., Mebane, N. C.; Donald W. McCoy, Laurinburg, N. C.; George L. Grantham, Jr., Easley, S. C.; Thomas A. Wadden, Jr., Washington, D. C.; Robert G. Stockton, Winston-Salem, N. C.; August L. Meyland, Wilmington, N. C.; R. W. Bradley, Jr., Bessemer City, N. C.;Henry E. Colton, Chapel Hill, N. C.; Joe H. Barrington, Jr., Lumberton, N. C.; Hoyt Patrick Taylor, Jr., Wadesboro, N. C.; L. P. McLendon, Jr., Greensboro, N. C.; Charles D. Powers, Greenville, S. C.

Reviews of several new books appear as well as news of the North Carolina State Bar.

JOHN Q. ADAMS

Asheville, March 1—(UP)—A Greenville man bearing the name of a president of the United States was freed of a technical murder charge here today.

John Quincy Adams was charged in the death of 51-year-old Buddie Pittman of Greenville, who was killed in a wreck near Alexander.

Adams, the driver of the car in which Pittman was riding, said the car ran out of control when a tire blew out.

-Dolphins-

(Continued from page 3)

through the waters of Bowman Gray pool several weeks ago when he set a new pool record. Bill Pritchard will be the Carolina representative in this event.

Another feature event of the meet will find the relay quartets, who have been taking turns breaking each other's conference records all season—fighting it out in the finals of the chlorine classic.

Jamerson disclosed that he plans to use co-captains Jesse Greenbaum and Mike Morrow, Floyd Drew, and Steve Osborne against State's flashy foursome of Kelly, Ward, Despres, and Lojka. The outcome of this event might determine the victor if the meet is close.

Norm Sper, who'll also perform in the backstroke with Jim Thomas, and Mac Erle will probably cop the springboard honors. However, Sper was nursing a bad ear earlier this week and possibly may not be in his usual top form.

-Cagers-

(Continued from page 3)

afternoon's procedings was the return to action of Norm Kohler, regular guard who sustained a bad knee injury several weeks ago. Kohler still has a big bandage protecting his knee, but he will be able to participate when game time rolls around.

Coach Scott also quieted the rumor that King Cole would be incligible for the tourney. There was considerable discussion in some quarters about Cole's eligibility, but the Carolina mentor says the matter has been straightened.

The Phantoms will play in t opening game of the afternoo starting at 2:15. The Davidson Maryland game will follow th contest at 4 o'clock.

QUALITY FURNISHINGS
at
E. A. Brown Furniture Co.
Next to City Hall
Phone 6586

Bull's Head Bookshop
Collected Poems of Robert Frost
$1.98
Browse — Rent — Buy

JUST ARRIVED
New Spring Slacks In
Gabardine and Flannel
Beautiful Shades
You'll be pleased with the Quality and Price
At
JACK LIPMAN'S

Follow the trend to TRAILWAYS

SAMPLE FARES

Chapel Hill to:	one way
Raleigh	.60
Asheville	4.10
Charlotte	2.80
Greensboro	1.00
Richmond	2.95
New York	8.25
Norfolk	3.45
Lynchburg, Va.	2.60
Knoxville, Tenn.	5.05

(plus Fed. tax.)

Over Sixteen Million, Three Hundred Thousand persons traveled by Carolina Trailways in 1947. Why? Trailways fares are low in the face of rising costs of private car operation. Frequent departures allow patrons to travel at hours convenient to them. Patrons have learned they can depend on our modern, roomy Trailmasters, driven always by safe and friendly drivers. New, no-change service over direct routes to distant centers is making Carolina Trailways as popular for long trips as it has always been for short ones.

CHAPEL HILL BUS TERMINAL
311 W. Franklin St.
Phone 4281

NATIONAL TRAILWAYS BUS SYSTEM
Carolina TRAILWAYS
THE ROUTE OF THE Trailmasters

LIBRARY (Periodicals)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Possible rain; continued mild

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Non-Partisan Council
SPE's Worthy Project
Too Much Wallace

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 116

CP Supports Gene Blake In Yack Editorship Race

The Campus party placed the stamp of its endorsement upon Gene Blake's candidacy for the editorship of the Yackety Yack at a meeting of the party held Tuesday evening.

Blake, a junior from Wilmington, is the senior class editor of this year's annual. He was nominated for the top Yack job on February 23 by the Student party.

Prior to his endorsement by the CP, the nominee told party members that he will work for a better Yackety Yack during the coming year. His entire platform has not yet been made public, however.

A journalism major, Blake has said that while attempting to bring a better book to the campus, he will emphasize careful spending of yearbook funds and work towards getting more students onto the staff of the publication.

When Blake was first nominated for the editor's post, one of the present editors of the Yack stated, "Blake should be commended for the work that he has done in completing the senior class section, the largest of its kind in Yack history."

Campus party chairman Bob Haire said yesterday, "Blake's previous Yack merits the wholehearted endorsement of all those who are interested in a good Yackety Yack. The Campus party is glad to endorse and support him in his candidacy."

The candidate is an Army veteran with overseas service in North Africa and Italy. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

DR. ARNOLD PERRY

Dr. Arnold Perry To Join Faculty

Dr. H. Arnold Perry, formerly on the staff of the North Carolina State Department of Public Instruction and coordinator of the Twelve-Year Program study for this state, will begin his new duties as associate professor of education in the summer session in June.

He is now teaching at the University of Alabama and will complete the current college year there.

A graduate of Duke Univeristy in the class of 1926, he received his master's degree there in 1933 and his doctorate in education at Columbia University in 1943.

Twin-City Club Tickets on Sale

Tickets will go on sale in the "Y" today for the Winston-Salem Carolina club Easter dance which will be held Friday night, March 19 at the Balinese Roof of the Robert E. Lee hotel in Winston-Salem.

Bob Haire, president of the club said that 40 percent of all proceeds of the dance will go to the North Carolina League for Crippled Children in their annual Easter Seal campaign.

Haire said the bids were originally $1.50 each but that an additional dollar has been added to be presented to the crippled children's fund, bringing the price of each ticket to $2.50.

The booth in the "Y" will be open from 8 o'clock this morning until 4 o'clock this afternoon. Haire said this is the only day that tickets may be bought exclusively by Carolina students. After today, he reported, the bids will also be available to students of other schools.

Paul Bell's orchestra of Greensboro will provide music for the dance.

UVA To Entertain Town Association

The University Veterans association will hold open house tonight at 8 o'clock with the Archer house and the Town Girls association as guests.

Tuesday the UVA Board of the Governors voted to sell membership cards from a booth to be set up in the Book Exchange line the first of next quarter.

A welcome-back dance will be given by the organization on Saturday night, March 27 at the clubhouse. President Johnny Clampitt said that Spencer dormitory is the tentative guest for next week's open house.

The regular UVA business meeting will be held this coming Monday night.

SDA Will Convene In Alumni Tonight

The Students for Democratic Action will meet this evening at 7:30 in room 403 of Alumni building to hear a report from the Americans for Democratic action convention held recently in Philadelphia.

According to Bob Lindsay, president of the local chapter, the meeting will be held jointly with ADA, SDA's parent organization.

At the meeting, which will be open to the public, Al Lowenstein, SDA convention delegate, and Dr. Woodhouse, ADA delegate from the local chapters will make the reports. Others who attended the meeting will also be heard from.

AQUINAS CLUB BREAKFAST

The Aquinas club, Catholic student group, will sponsor a communion breakfast Sunday immediately following the 8 o'clock mass, in recognition of the day of the club's patron saint, St. Thomas Aquinas. The Rev. Barry S. Dwyer, S. J., will be guest speaker for the event, which will be held at the Carolina Inn.

Tickets will be sold at the office of the Rev. F. J. Murphy, second floor of the YMCA building, today from 9:30 to 12:30.

Ernest House Is Elected Speaker Of Phi Assembly

Ernest House, SAE from Marion, North Carolina, was elected speaker of the Phi assembly Tuesday night as a new slate of officers were chosen for the spring quarter. House, chairman of the Finance committee of the Student Legislature and the University Safety council, succeeds incumbent Speaker Chester D. zum Brunnen.

In an election which put practically an entire new staff at the head of the 152-year-old debating society, Bill Duncan of Narbeth, Pennsylvania received the post of speaker pro-tem. Duncan is a candidate for the Yack editorship in the forthcoming spring elections.

Top Names in Office

The top office of the Phi assembly, to which House was elected Tuesday night has been occupied by such men as Kenneth Royall, assistant Secretary of War, Chancellor House, and Senator William B. Umstead.

Retiring speaker zum Brunnen replaced Pete Gerns as parliamentarian in Tuesday night's elections. Gerns, who has served five terms as parlimentarian, was elected treasurer of the assembly.

Baker Chosen Critic

Other officers elected for the Spring quarter are Emily Baker, critic; Charles Dixon, sergeant-at-arms; and Dave Sharpe, recording clerk.

Incumbent officers for the winter quarter are zum Brunnen, speaker; John Giles, speaker protem; Pete Gerns, parliamentarian; Jim McNider, critic; Charles Cowell, treasurer; Page Harris, sergeant-at-arms; and Dave Sharpe, clerk.

Final committee reports for this quarter were presented at the session. The constitution committee reported that the revised constitution of the Phi assembly will be presented to the members at the next executive session.

Next regular session of the assembly will be held on March 30.

Newman Concert Is Set Tonight

Dr. William S. Newman, pianist and assistant professor of music, will present a concert tonight at 8:30 in Hill hall.

His program will include one of his own compositions and a number by Ernest Block which Dr. Newman first introduced into this country.

Came Here in 1946

Dr. Newman came to Chapel Hill in 1946 and he will be remembered for his recital that year with Margaret Kolb, also of the music department.

Dr. Newman received his three degrees (B. S., M. A., Ph. D.) from Western Reserve university. He is a native of Cleveland, Ohio, where he plans to present a recital in May.

JOHN J. PARKER

Parker To Make Address Tonight

Judge John J. Parker of Charlotte, who was an American member of the international military tribunal at Nuremburg will speak here in Gerrard Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

Judge Parker, whose appearance here is being sponsored by the University of North Carolina Law School Association headed by William Friday of Gastonia, is now senior judge of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals.

His subject will be "The Way Ahead" and he will indicate the necessary role of American leadership in international affairs. He will be introduced by Terrell (Wm. T.) Webster of Gastonia, chairman of the speaker's committee.

Judge Parker has had 21 years of service on the bench. He received his B. A. degree from the University here in 1907 and his LL. B. in 1908. In 1920 he was the Republican nominee for governor.

Glee Club Returns From Concert Tour

The Men's Glee club returned to Chapel Hill Tuesday evening from High Point, the final stop on its winter tour of four North Carolina towns. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of the previous week, the Club had sung for audiences in Fayetteville, Wilmington, and Raeford.

The winter tour, the first in the 1947-48 season, was a marked success, according to Dick Cox, Glee Club president. Newspaper reviews were enthusiastic in praising the singing of the club, director Paul Young, the program, and the work of Rufus Norris, baritone soloist for the tour. Especial interest was showed in the performance of the Randall Thompson Testament of Freedom.

As its final encore in each town, the Glee Club sang the University Alma Mater, Hark the Sound. As a climax to its winter activites, the Club will present a home concert in Hill hall on Friday evening.

Business Manager Lanier Davis has announced that a spring tour of women's colleges has been planned.

Frost Delivers Talk on Poetry To Full Audience

By Sally Woodhull

"The sayings of poetry are stuck into experience like stars in the sky to pin the blue of heaven on," said Robert Frost, speaking last night before an audience of students and townspeople that overflowed Hill hall.

The 73-year-old poet was introduced by Dr. Clifford Lyons, head of the English department.

Touching on subjects of wide interest, ranging from world affairs through methods of judging poetry to a trans-medium who "never could understand why it was easier to read letters locked in a metal box than those locked in a wooden box," the elderly New England poet chatted informally with his appreciative audience, reading from his own works and interjecting comments on them.

Like Rotten Eggs

"I judge poetry by the validity of its rhyme," he said. "The verse must be at least as good as its equivalent prose. If the rhyme has hurt it in any way it's like rotten eggs."

Reading from some of his newer works, the poet explained that he had never written anything "as near editorials." "I've been teased into doing some teasing of my own," he said. Included in this group were "Why Wait for Science," and "Wish to Comply," satires on scientists who take themselves too seriously.

Commenting on his popular "Mending Wall," the poet said "This was written before either of the world wars. I wasn't thinking of nations changing their boundaries." He went on to say that something which is distressing the world today is the remaking of boundaries, and that actually all of life is the making and breaking of walls—the cell walls of the brain.

Republican Elephant

Discussing metaphor, Frost told of the idea of looking at democracy as an elephant that two or three blind men are trying to learn about by feeling. Each one, he said, feeling a different part, gets a different idea. "Suppose," he said, "they all had their sight restored at once. What would they see? The Republican party!"

The poet paraphrased a quotation from the bible to read, "If you can't understand metaphor, you'll go to hell." The passage, he said, was from the book of Mark, "But unto them that are without, all these things are done in parables: . . lest at any time they should be converted, and their sins should be forgiven."

With the prolonged applause of the enthusiastic audience, Frost returned to the stage after the conclusion of his talk to read several other of his poems, including "The Road Not Taken," and "Spring Pools."

CP MEETING

The Campus party will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial to consider a and nominate for secretary-treasurer of the student body.

Redistricting, Constitutional Changes Face Last Legislature Session Tonight

By Chuck Hauser

Redistricting, three bills to amend the constitution, including the appellate jurisdiction amendment, and several other measures will be tossed onto the floor of the Student Legislature tonight when it convenes at 7:30 in Di hall.

The redistricting and reapportionment measure will be presented from Jess Dedmond's Elections committee, which held an open meeting Tuesday afternoon to thrash out several kinks in the proposal. The kinks will undoubtedly find themselves retwisted by the time the law-makers finish with them tonight.

If the elections bill is not passed during this evening's session, it will not go into effect for the coming April 6 balloting, due to a law passed last year stating that no elections bills approved within 30 days of a general campus election may apply to that vote.

To Remove Appeal

The constitutional amendment which will undoubtedly receive the greatest amount of opposition is the one concerned with removing the appellate jurisdiction of the Student council. The bill is designed not to go into effect, if passed, until after campus elections next December.

The second amendment would provide for separate honor councils for the Medical and Law schools of the University, giving them power to try violations of the honor code within their respective schools.

Inauguration Date

An amendment to move the inauguration date for student government officials from the third Tuesday in April to the third Tuesday in May will be the third constitutional measure to come up tonight.

Two other bills are scheduled to come under discussion tonight. One is the provision for setting up a committee to study the possibilities of establishing a campus post office, and the other is a proposal for the Legislature to finance two delegates to the University of Chicago Student Forum model of the United Nations which is being held March 24 and 25.

Presented by Kan

The bill was brought before the legislative body last week by CCUN State Director Lincoln Kan, who gained the privilege of the floor to offer the bill to the legislators. Three delegates are scheduled to attend the Chicago forum from here, but the Legislature is being asked to finance only two of them.

It is expected that Kan will petition the Coed Senate for money to sponsor the third delegate.

Jim Godwin, Campus party candidate for the vice-presidency, will come before the Legislature for approval tonight of his presidential appointment to that body.

JIM GODWIN, CP nominee for vice president of the Student body has been given the endorsement and backing of Student Body President Tom Eller in his race for office. In a statement released yesterday Eller declared, "Jim Godwin has all the attributes of an excellent vice president. The electorate will do itself credit by meeting him and investigating his qualifications." Eller has appointed Godwin to the Student Legislature, and his name will be up for that body's approval at its meeting this evening.

Democratic Group Launches Drive For Marshall Plan

The University chapter of the Student for Democratic Action launches a two-day campaign this morning to attempt to get up a 1,500-signature petition favoring the Marshall plan.

Chapter members will work from tables set up in Lenoir hall and the Y building today and tomorrow, soliciting names to affix to petitions to North Carolina Senators Hoey and Umstead, Senator Robert Taft, majority leader of the Senate, and Senator Arthur Vandenberg, who introduced the Marshall plan on the floor of the Senate this week.

Lindsay Explains

"Totalitarian governments grow strong on breakdown and chaos," said Bob Lindsay, chairman of the local SDA chapter, as he explained why his group is taking this action. "If we are to prevent this breakdown and chaos, we must pass the Marshall plan and get aid to Europe immediately. Otherwise, the totalitarian vultures will sweep down on the rest of Europe just as they swept down on Czechoslovakia last week.

"We want our senators to know that we are aware of this danger and that we support them in their efforts to get the Marshall plan passed," Lindsay emphasized.

The SDA chapter will stock its petition-tables with pamphlets and literature on the subject of aid to Europe for the benefit of those interested.

Valkyries Tapped In Dawn Ceremony

Two members, and one honorary member were tapped into Valkyries, the major coed honor society on campus, this morning in an impressive predawn ceremony.

Hooded, black-robed figures, tolling gongs, tapped Betsy Ann Barbee, of Chapel Hill, and Jo Farris, of Danville, Ky. The honorary member is Mrs. Betty Rose Dowden, advisor of the YWCA.

Admission into the organization, which includes no more than 2 per cent of the total coed enrollment, is the highest recognition given to women students. Membership into Valkyries is based on the outstanding character, effective leadership, fine scholarship, unselfish service, and sound judgment of the coed.

Current Valkyries officers are Jo Fishel, president; Marshall Spears, vice-president; Julia Ross, secretary; Bill Lloyd, treasurer; and Barbara Cashion, alumnae chairman.

Poteat Will Address Y Group on Religion

William Poteat of the University philosophy department, will speak to the YWCA committee on "You and Your Religion' 'tonight at 7 o'clock in the Y library, discussing history and beliefs of the Baptist church. The meeting is open to all interested students.

Jeanne Basnight and Helen Compton are co-chairmen of the committee, and Dean Katherine Carmichael is faculty sponsor.

KATTSOFF TO SPEAK

Professor L. O. Kattsoff of the Department of Philosophy will speak at Davidson college next Wednesday. He will address the morning chapel session on "Great Ideas in Civilization" and will speak to a faculty group in the afternoon.

State Legislature Delegates

The following students, elected to represent UNC at the executive committee meeting of the State Student Legislature, will meet tomorrow at 2 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge 1: Charles Long, Ruth Evans, Sam Magill, Al Lowenstein, Sally Woodhull, Patsy McNutt, Bill Mackie, Chet ZumBrunnen, and Roland Giduz.

Stormy on Campus

Baton Rouge, La., March 3—(UP)—Stormy, the New Orleans strip-tease dancer, is still kicking up a fuss at Louisiana State University.

Her influence on campus was first felt when Pat McIntyre, editor of the university humor magazine, "Pell Mell," ran a story and pictures on Stormy in order to boost circulation. As a result, the magazine was banned and McIntyre entered the race for president of the student body.

Stormy, whose real name is Stacie Laurence, came to Pat's aid, announcing that she and her band would come to the campus to campaign for him.

But McIntyre dropped out of the running, saying that he got to wondering whether Stormy would be tempted to try her professional routine on campus.

CICA Fashion Show Sets Attire For Easter

By Jane Mears

Ballerina styles and long, long skirts will lead the Easter parade this spring, according to the Fourth Annual Spring Fashion preview, presented Tuesday night in the Carolina theater by the Carolina Independent Coed Association. Men's styles remain static, with the ever popular grey flannel in all shades predominating the spring scene.

The small boy jacket, in matching or contrasting colors, renders a prim appearance to the girls' ballerina skirt outfits; jackets with short tails, narrow sleeves and small, high collars, the perfect background to set off a gay silk scarf, knotted loosely or wound snugly around the neck.

Skirts are really long, from 10 to 12 inches from the floor, and are inserted with many extra panels of material, sides and front to give that extra fullness. Even skirts for school and daytime wear are long and full.

The best materials this spring seem to be flannel, for both men and women, faille, and silk—grey, light blue and brown men's flannel slacks; navy and plaid skirts in flannel or light weight wool, with full-cut bright colored jackets.

Two particularly attractive outfits modeled were a kelly green two-piece knit dress and a silk print of muted blue and grey with long sleeves and cut off the shoulders with long full skirt.

The standard knit tie, good looking oxford cloth shirt with button down collar and cashemere sweater are still the smoothest men's combination. For dress up occasions, a light weight navy blue flannel double breasted suit and a tan gabardine double breasted are neat and conservative.

Straps are coming off of everything, including bathing suits which are made of anything from waffle pique to gold lame Evening clothes are pretty much the same, double breasted white dinner coat on the best dressed man from April to September. White tie and tails naturally are still the standard for formality.

Many of the 60 outfits are now on display at the stores which sponsored the show, the Varsity, Jack Lipman's and the College Shop. The womens clothes were sponsored by Montaldo's of Greensboro.

Following the show, five men whose names were drawn from a hat by Joe Romano, won a date with a model with all expenses paid by CICA. Ted Stoffer chose Cattie Lee Holt, Delta Delta Delta representative; Alec Watkins chose Marty Hinkle, model for CICA; Frank S. English chose Tula Carter, model for the Stray Greeks; Charles S. Patterson won an evening with Lillian DeArmon, Chi Omega representative, and J. A. McGranahan selected Helen Barnes, Pi Beta Phi Proceeds from the show, which drew an audience of about 1,000 students and townspeople, go to the CICA, who thank James Davis, owner of the University Florist, E. Carrington Smith, and the various sponsors for their time and generosity. Marion Woodbury of Wilmington was master of ceremonies and Ginny Trott and Betty Long were co-chairmen in charge of the event.

Cassidy Poetry Will Be Read By Author in Student Union

Vincent Cassidy, graduate student in history, will present readings of some of his own poetry Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the main lounge of Graham Memorial, sponsored by the student union.

Among the works to be presented is his very popular "Yesterday," written in 1943 when Cassidy was with the First Marine Raiders in New Caledonia, and published in newspapers throughout the country as well as in the Congressional Record.

Simeon Holloway, a student at North Carolina College, will sing this work, to music composed for it by Cathryn Zerbe, concert pianist, Bob MacDonald, music major at Carolina, will accompany.

Others assisting in the readings include Eli Friedland, Sam Hirsch, Dan Jackson, Bill Good, Bob Lewis, and Mrs. Cassidy. The poems entitled "Many Voices" and "Shall We" include vocal selections, and "The Challengers" is a group arrangement.

Cassidy has been writing poetry since his childhood, and has been published in The Saturday Evening Post; Silver Star, a magazine of poetry; and student publications such as Scribbler's Script and the Carolina Magazine.

A native of Derry, New Hampshire, Cassidy attended Pinkerton academy, University of New Hampshire, and Southwestern Louisiana institute before entering the Marines. Following his service overseas he was assigned to Chapel Hill in the V-12 program. Returning here as a civilian in 1946, he received a degree in dramatics art. He is now married and living here while doing graduate work in history.

Mills-Stones

Jonathan Daniels, Strong Democrat, Quips, Has Points

By Barron Mills

Energetic Jonathan Daniels, talking first from the side of his mouth to stress a point, pausing now and then to quip over a point, but always a staunch Democrat, presented a potpourri of political oats for both the donkeys, elephants and offspring of the third party to nibble on here Tuesday night.

The editor of the News and Observer and former editor of the Tar Heel dug into his mental morgue of Chapel Hill facts, but none of them proved as interesting as his forecast of the future and the danger he prophecies if the younger generation is nurtured on the same doctrines and methods of teaching these doctrines that have been used within the Kremlin. "These practices," he stated, "have not been used yet, but they will be taught if we would allow it." He implied that they will begin in such meetings as the Wallace Rally held here over the past weekend.

Daniels stressed that essentially the Democratic party of the South is far from being conservative. It is liberal and it was the South who put in Harry Truman as the vice-president. Daniels, at the present time, is a Truman booster. He believes that Harry Truman is the man for '48. He says that Truman is even more liberal in his ideas and his plans than FDR. "There is no better place to start liberalism than in Chapel Hill. We've got all of the differences of opinion right here."

* * *

An account of the Daniel's visit to Chapel Hill would not be complete without mention of the banquet held in the speaker's honor before the speech. In such an intimate gathering, Daniels made known that he knew his State and particularly what is going on in Chapel Hill today. Since those present consisted in the main of law students, their wives and faculty members, the conversation centered around law.

Daniels told about his experience as a law student. He attended the Columbia school of law—there was a girl he was interested in who lives in New York. Consequently, at the end of the year he flunked every one of the courses he was taking.

UNC in those days was teaching a six-weeks review course in the summer; Daniels, the law student, attended this session and upon its completion, passed the bar examination.

This led to a remark by Dr. Frank Graham who mentioned a young fellow who took the bar examination. There were 100 questions on the examination and you were required to get 66 correct in order to pass the bar. This young man, Dr. Frank said, answered the first 66 questions and then handed in his paper. "He was that confident," added Dr. Frank.

Daniels, the man who always has a remark to quip back, answered, "That's what I like about you Dr. Frank. You're such a romantic that you believe all those tales."

SENIOR DEADLINE

Today is the deadline for Seniors to obtain their invitations. The booth will be open in the "Y" throughout the day for last-minute orders.

Johnny Clampitt, chairman of the Invitation committee, said that orders must be in eight weeks in advance so they may be ready by May 4.

UP LEGISLATORS

There will be a meeting of all University party legislators at 3 o'clock today in the Grail room. Attendance is urgent as important business will be considered. UP Legislator Miles Smith said.

Non-Partisan Council Absolutely Necessary

In an effort to prevent any future accusations of partisanship within the Men's Council, a plan has been devised by some of the campus-minded to have representatives from each of the political parties select the qualified students and then present them to the student body for final selection. Under the plan which has been proposed each of the political parties are required to select two or three delegates to meet and discuss collectively the merits of qualified candidates. They would qualify as many as 18 or 20 men for the 10 positions. Their names would be placed on the ballot, without any party affiliation, for the voters to make the final decision.

Such a plan, we believe, has many merits. Especially is there a need to maintain a Men's Council that is free of cliques and members who feel that they have obligations to the party on whose slate they were elected.

It is too late, we have been told, to shape the plan into actual use for this spring elections. At least one party has already nominated their candidates. But, in theory, all of the parties have agreed that it is a good plan. Some individuals within the parties feel that theory is not enough and that the whole process of selection should be worked out in minute detail before the final approval is given.

However, we feel that the plan is too good to be completely forgotten and that for another year the Council will suffer accusation of showing partisanship, and employing practices that are not in accordance with the best judicial procedure.

It is not too early for a committee composed of representatives of the three political parties to gather and work out the minute details for such a non-partisan Council, so that that method could be employed in any future election of membership of the Council.

It will entail several hours of hard work deciding how men are to be selected. Should they be required to submit applications to the committee, and other questions, must beworked out. But we believe that this is the only plan that has been proposed that would completely divorce the Men's Council from political affiliations and remove that group from accusations.

SPE's Worthwhile Project

Fraternities too often get so involved in their social doings and so deeply involved in their own little circle that they give little thought outside that sphere. But at least one fraternity, a newcomer to the campus, has given consideration to the welfare to other groups and organizations.

Recently the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity decided that it would be a good deed to publish Dr. Hardin Craig's fall Convocation address, "Crisis and Responsibility." They believed that that address was up to par with his address of two years ago which was published and widely distributed, so they voted to take money from their treasury to cover the cost of printing and distribution.

The SPE fraternity has mailed copies of the address, in printed form, to practically every fraternity, sorority and organization on campus and to many out-of-town organizations and individuals.

We wish to recognize the SPE's for a worthwhile project.

Mudville Mutterings

Burning Oven Brings Fire Trucks

By Dan Sapp

The fire that brought everybody and his kid brother streaking down Jackson Circle Monday afternoon turned out to be not too serious, luckily. It was caused by a kitchen stove oven in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Lowdermilk of 215 Jackson Circle. The fire had been extinguished before the firemen arrived and the greatest damage appears to have been done to the walls of the stove. The fire extinguisher liquid covered the stove and nearby walls completely.

Jim Ewart reports that his talented bicycle has returned home after having been gone for several weeks. It disappeared right after Christmas and Jim bought another one. He said that about a week ago he found it lying in a nearby ditch. It is now securely locked to the building in case it gets spring fever and tries to roam again. Let us repeat as of another issue, you'd better keep your stealables locked up. There's no telling about bicycles in the spring. They're liable to get out and breed with a motorcycle and come home with a litter of scooters for you to pay the upkeep on.

Socially speaking this week: Mrs. Dan Reeves of Jackson Circle is entertaining the K. A. Wives bridge club on Thursday night.

Now, a word-to the little homemaker. If you have fallen heir to any old draperies, you know the kind that mother takes out of the sunroom because they give father the blind staggers. If you have any of these eyesores ten to one they won't fit the window, they're probably too short to do more than hang limply a good 10 inches above the floor. The solution is cut them off level with the bottom of the window and make a valance out of what's left, if any. Then place a low table under the window. If you don't have a low table place the baby carriage under the window, there's always something that just fits under the window. This window treatment was illustrated and explained in a recent home magazine.

CP MEETING

The Campus party will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

The purpose of the meeting will be to make further nominations of Campus party candidates for the forthcoming campus-wide Spring elections.

GLEE CONCERT TICKETS

Tickets for the Men's Glee club concert in Hill hall Friday, March 5, are on sale at the Glee club's box office, 109 Hill.

Holders of season tickets are urged to exchange their stubs for reserved seat tickets before Friday evening. Reservations may be made by telephone, but no reservations can be held after 8:20 on the evening of the concert.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — NIGHT SPORTS: Dick Jenrette

LIL ABNER — By AL CAPP

A house by the side of the road — HARRY'S ! ! !

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

This 'n That

Legless Vets Want War Now

By Bill Buchan

There is a large group of soldiers in one of the fashionable suburbs of Washington who have not forgotten the last "war for democracy", and who are not interested in fighting another anytime soon.

The catch to their opposition, however, is the fact the majority of them couldn't fight anyway because they are patients in an unit of the Walter Reed Hospital and their pants legs are noticably empty with canes and crutches to take their place being the order of the day.

We spent a quiet weekend in Forest Glen, Maryland on the estate which was taken over by the army for the hospital. Central meeting place for the guys was a soda fountain and cafe (specialized in milk shakes and cokes, no kidding) where we got in a "war now" conversation with a group of the patients.

The leader of the group was an old soldier about 35 years old who had lost two legs, but already had had one fitted. He was worried about the Russian move into Czechoslovakia and was convinced that war is not only inevitable, but that it will come within the next two years.

"Why not," he said. "Nine years ago, Germany moved into the same country, we all stood by and watched, England sent a worn-out old man to talk with Hitler and he returned muttering something about 'peace in our time'. So what happened, we still sat there and when we finally woke up, the whole damn world was in an uproar. Now, we're starting on the same record again, just nine years difference."

"Personally, I may be prejudiced," his buddy joined in, "because fighting has always been my profession, just like some people write or sell, but I think in spite of that, that I'd be all for dropping a couple of atom bombs on Russia now and stopping their campaign of expension once and for all."

"But," I interrupted, "by far, the majority of the people in the United States are bitterly opposed to war, especially so soon after the last one. There is too much opposition from that angle and from those who are inclined to sympathize with Russia's program."

A young soldier, attached to the hospital, joined in, "I've never been overseas, and am not interested in going, but if it is necessary I'd go to make one final fight to put democracy on top."

"On top? We've already fought two wars for this so-called democracy. If we fight again, it won't be for democracy, but for the survival of the fittest," a civilian standing by had joined the session. "We're finished as far as that old line is concerned, now we're out for what we can get and we'd might as well admit it."

"There's too much time being spent on local elections and not enough on world affairs," another veteran said, "we've got to get down to business and work these problems out once and for all. The easiest and safest way is through diplomacy, careful and thoughtful diplomacy."

"I still maintain," the legless sergeant maintained, "that war is inevitable, that whether it takes a year or ten to hit us, it will come. In ten years, we may not be as qualified to defeat Russia as we are now. On that basis, we should go to war again —now."

"Of course," the young soldier added, "nothing we say is going to have any great influence on whether we do or not. It's gonna all depend on those in power in the State Department and Congress. What good can we do by arguing it out."

The old sergeant had gotten up from his seat, adjusted his crutch, and was moving toward the door when he stopped and addressed the group. "Well, I know one damn thing, this time I'm going to stay home and make all the high money in the war plants. Maybe war isn't so bad after all."

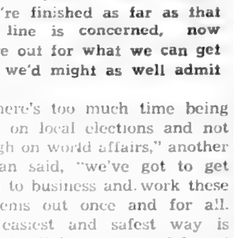
One Final, Cynical Chuckle

By R. Foo Giduz

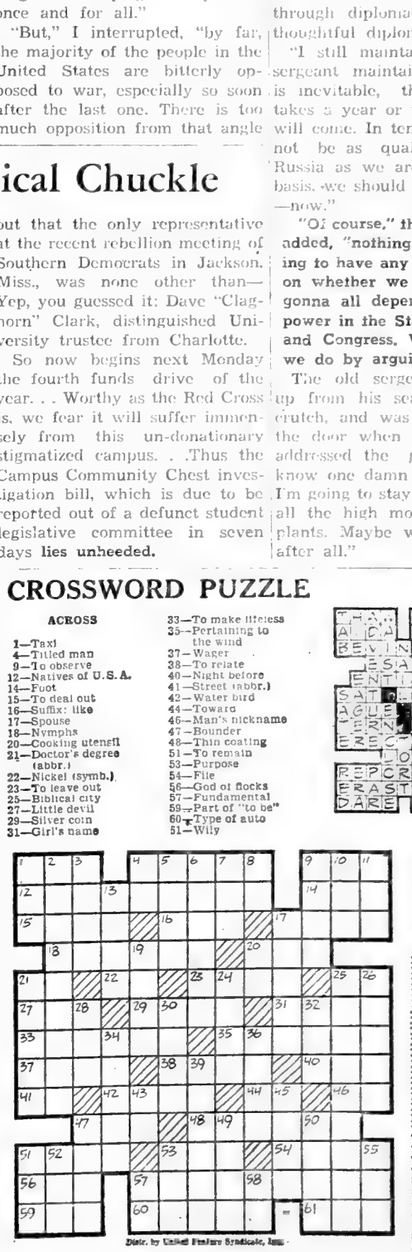
Post-National Vet Housing Conference Contemplations:—The future of the U. S. housing problem looks good!—Yeah, for the real estate men! The 2,000 vets who attended this past weekend's rally in Washington worked in harmony all the way, and put up a concrete plan of action to be published in a few weeks. . . And many learned a large lesson in the fine art of lobbying.

As to the accomplishments of the conference: Enough signatures and promises were secured for the discharge petition of the TEW bill 218 necessary so that it is hopeful the measure will get on the House floor sometime soon . . .But the chances for any long range public housing at all are nil. . .—Sold down the river by the author of TEW, Sen. Taft, who frankly said he backed the measure but thought another private housing bill (Sen. McCarthy's just about, as good. . .

A number of congressmen gave interesting replies when interviewed on the matter—(Bayard Clark, D-NC): ". . .All for vets public housing, but against the TEW bill!". . .(Davis, D-Ga.) who is on the House committee which has had the three-year old bill for nine months now: ". . .Haven't read it. . .Don't believe in signing petitions. . ." . . .Others "The housing problem will solve . If." . . ."There is no housing problem!"—To them, one final cynical chuckle: Hah!



In case you were still apathetic, it should be clear by now that the N. C. State Student Legislative Assembly (NCSSLA) WILL be held. . .That's in six weeks, April 16. . .Final plans will be touched up at a planning session this Saturday at Meredith. . .Add News Note: In his hard-hitting speech Tuesday evening Jonathan Daniels brought out that the only representative at the recent rebellion meeting of Southern Democrats in Jackson, Miss., was none other than—Yep, you guessed it: Dave "Claghorn" Clark, distinguished University trustee from Charlotte.



So now begins next Monday the fourth funds drive of the year. . . Worthy as the Red Cross is, we fear it will suffer immensely from this un-donationary stigmatized campus. . .Thus the Campus Community Chest investigation bill, which is due to be reported out of a defunct student legislative committee in seven days lies unheeded.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Taxi
4—Titled man
9—To observe
12—Natives of U.S.A.
14—Foot
15—To deal out
16—Suffix: like
17—Spouse
18—Nymphs
20—Cooking utensil
21—Doctor's degree (abbr.)
22—Nickel (symb.)
23—To leave out
25—Biblical city
27—Little devil
29—Silver coin
31—Girl's name
33—To make lifeless
35—Pertaining to the wind
37—Wager
38—To relate
40—Night before
41—Street (abbr.)
42—Water bird
44—Toward
46—Man's nickname
47—Bounder
48—Thin coating
51—To remain
53—Purpose
54—Flie
56—God of flocks
57—Fundamental
59—Part of "to be"
60—Type of auto
61—Wily

DOWN

1—Rotating piece
2—Correction
3—Greek letter
4—Prefix: two
5—Sharp to taste
6—Kidnap money
7—Single thing
8—Nova Scotia (abbr.)
9—Quarrel
10—To dine
11—Female sheep
13—Guide line
17—Saving
19—Helper
20—3 1416
21—King of Phrygia
24—Dinner
25—Unlimited
26—Hurried
28—Fixed
30—In
32—Island (Fr.)
34—To retard
36—Dash
39—Coveted
43—Unit of force
45—Water bird
47—Walkingstick
49—Girl's name
50—Diner
51—Resort
52—Sailor
53—Beverage
55—To carry on
57—Plural ending
58—Printer's measure

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Write Away

Too Much Space For Wallace

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Editor:

Why is it that on the front page of the Daily Tar Heel last week articles on Henry Wallace appeared every day near the top of the page. On no day was there a single reference to any other candidate (there were notes on Truman, but as President, not as a candidate).

I am no Truman supporter, but I object to the position and quantity of columns given to Henry Wallace if the Tar Heel is supposed to be a politically unbiased paper. Of course, the editor can say that he prints only what comes over the wires. To that I would like to say that the Tar Heel evidentally has access to nothing but a Wallace wire. The hottest news item Saturday morning (when practically the whole front page of the Tar Heel was devoted exclusively to Wallace) was:

"At the Communist P Lenin Dinner Friday night ruary 27th) in New York, W V. Foster, a member of the munist Executive Committe nounced that: 'Wallace's par the Communist party and w going to support him to the est'".

This article would have most timely had the edi the Daily Tar Heel want produce both sides of the pol picture.

William Robert Webb IV

Great Service

Editor:

In response to your Mills St of this morning let me ext my sincere thanks. It was h time a word in that tenor w voiced.

The DTH does a great service to the campus when it pursues a policy of providing an outlet to minority opinion. This policy should not, however, be exploited by a minority faction to the detriment of the student body and-or the majority interests. I hope that the editorial reins will be held tautly in regard to the Wallace matter.

Raymond O. Halvorsen

Dissenting View

In his column on Tuesday, Mr Barron Mills attacked the sincerity of the delegates at the North Carolina Students for Wallace Convention, implying that they advocated underhanded methods of political action and that they were trying to hold a secret meeting.

Attending as a delegate from the UNC Club, I heard no one advocate any but recognized democratic procedures of political organization and publicity.

As for the implied secrecy of our convention, it is plain that Mr. Mills is unacquainted with the standard procedure of conventions—that of registering for the business meetings all those attending, either as delegates, as observers, or as representatives of the press. Newsmen and photographers were welcomed at our meetings. Why Mr. Mills, with his zeal for sincerity, displayed such obstinacy in refusing to abide by our simple rules of registration and why he delayed so long in identifying himself, I cannot guess, unless it is that he was enjoying playing the role of infiltrator into what he took to be a secret meeting.

Mr. Mills fails to mention the Saturday night session, which was absolutely open to all comers, without even the formality of registration.

Then Mr. Mills proceeds to judge the sincerity of the panel speakers on the basis of Jim Chaney's articles in the News and Observer. Mr. Chaney, also perturbed at our lack of sincerity, managed to hide his identity throughout the first session. If Mr. Mills can accept at face value as accurate reporting the distortions, innuendoes, and outright falsehoods of Mr. Chaney's articles, it is no wonder that he finds no difficulty in defending the honesty of the press.

Mr. Mills says, "From the minute I entered the room I felt that the group had a chip on its shoulder." Mr. Mills might profit by a study of the psychological phenomenon known as "projection," for he apparently was wearing the biggest chip of all.

The concern of Mr. Mills for sincerity will be more convincing if at his next convention he will heed the Wallace motto—"Stand up and be counted."

John V. Myers

(Note: The article did not imply that it was a secret meeting, but the Wallacites were anxious to know everyone who attended. We always try to infiltrate meetings by attending in a foursome. It's less conspicious! They passed the hat around at the Saturday night meeting; it was wide open. At the next meeting when I stand up they won't count me because I will ask the speaker to stop rationalizing and answer questions directly. —B. M.

SENIOR STEERING MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Senior Class Steering committee at 2 o'clock in the Grail room today. Benson McCutcheon, class president, announced.

Carolina Meets VPI In Tourney Today; Dolphins Triumph Over State Mermen

Maryland, Davidson Slated for Action In Second Contest

By Dick Jenrette

Basketball continues to hold the spotlight in Southern conference sports circles as the annual loop tourney moves into its second day of action with four contests scheduled for this afternoon and tonight in the Duke Indoor stadium.

Carolina's White Phantoms, second-place finishers in the regular season, will take the floor at 2:15 this afternoon against Virginia Tech, a team they defeated twice during the year. Davidson and Maryland will battle immediately following the first game. The starting time of the second tilt will be about 4 o'clock.

Carolina will rate as a definite favorite in its game with VPI, and the other North Carolina school, Davidson, is given a slight nod over Maryland, although the Terps have proved that they are capable of giving any club a rough evening. Maryland dropped a 51-47 decision to Carolina during the regular season while Davidson was defeated by the Phantoms by a 53-47 count. Thus it would seem that the two clubs are evenly matched.

Tonight's Schedule

Games tonight will see fabulous N. C. State engage the winner of last night's Wake Forest-William and Mary contest, and George Washington, runnerup to State, meets the winner of the Duke-South Carolina tilt. State is the defending titlist, having defeated Carolina by two-points for the honor last year.

Most of the attention in the afternoon games today will be centered on Coach Tom Scott's Phantoms. Carolina, which started the season with a rush to score 12 straight victories, has been able to win but seven of its last 13 games. The Chapel Hill entry was hit hard by the loss of Bill Miller, regular forward, because of a conference eligibility ruling at mid-season. No sooner had the team begun to show signs of improvement when Norm Kohler, the team defensive perfectionist and starting guard, was laid out with a bad knee injury. Thus the Phantoms have been creeping along on three cylinders, so to speak.

Kohler Will Play

But Kohler is expected to return to the lineup tonight if his knee doesn't undergo a sudden relapse. He naturally will not be able to play his usual hard game because of the injury, but his presence should strengthen the team. Taylor Thorne, an old veteran at tournament play, will be able to fill the post if Kohler isn't ready. Coy Carson, who has been showing turning in some good work recently, will fill the other forward post along with Bob Paxton.

John Dillon, who hooked in 18 points against Duke last week, is expected to play a leading role for the Phantoms tonight. Nemo Nearman, the regular pivot-man, is slated to get the opening nod at center. Nemo also has considerable scoring punch, having tallied 170 points to be second among the Carolina scorers. Dillon is third with 163.

King Cole will be the fifth starter for Scott's club. Cole definitely is eligible for play, despite rumors that he would be barred from tourney participation by the conference's intricate eligibility rules. Cole's set shots make up one of Carolina's biggest scoring threats.

Kingpen of the Virginia Tech attack is Joe Shockey, a six-foot freshman from West Virginia. Shockey scored 24 points against VMI recently to almost single-handedly defeat the Cadets. He plays forward.

Indians Upset Deacs In First Round Play

Durham, March 3 — William and Mary's Indians, after trailing throughout the entire game, staged a heroic finish to upset Wake Forest, 61-56, in the opening contest of the Southern conference tourney here tonight.

The Indians, who hadn't been rated much of a chance against the Deacons, managed to take the lead with just three minutes left in the game. A successful freeze plus several foul shots enabled the Williamsburg, Va., club to hold this lead and increase it to five points at the end of the game.

Thus the Indians earned the right to meet N. C. State on Thursday night in the second round of play. The spirited William and Mary crew will again be the underdog, but they should have plenty of supporters against State. Their scrappy play tonight won the respect of the crowd of near 9,000 that attended.

Duke's Blue Devils, the victims of an upset in the first round of last year's tourney, came through with flying colors in their contest with South Carolina tonight. Held to a 32-30 half-time margin,

(See TOURNEY, Page 4)

BOX SCORES

W. F. (56)	fg	f	pf	tp	ftm
Gentry, f	4	2	5	10	0
Geary	0	0	1	0	0
Najeway, f	4	4	4	12	2
Patton	0	1	1	1	0
Walters, c	4	4	2	12	1
Taylor, g	4	3	0	11	0
Schlosser	1	0	2	2	1
O'Quinn, g	3	2	1	8	1
Kersh	0	0	0	0	0
Totals	20	16	16	56	5

W. & M. (61)	fg	f	pf	tp	ftm
Peach, f	2	0	4	4	0
Robinson	2	3	1	7	1
Sokol, f	3	3	2	9	1
Holley	1	0	5	2	1
Giermak, c	6	1	2	13	4
Bunting, g	7	1	2	14	1
McMillan, g	5	1	4	11	1
Totals	26	9	20	61	9

Halftime score: Wake Forest 29, William and Mary 26

Officials: Williams and Stephens.

Duke (56)	fg	ft	pt	tp	ftm
Ausbon, f	3	0	3	6	5
Youmans, f	9	4	0	22	1
Duff,	4	2	2	10	1
Collins, c	1	2	5	4	4
Lyons, c	0	0	0	0	1
Hughes, g	5	4	1	14	2
Martin	1	0	3	2	0
York	0	0	1	0	0
Gordon, g	1	1	2	3	0
Sapp, g	0	2	1	2	0
Totals	24	15	18	63	14

S. C. (61)	fg	ft	pt	tp	ftm
Cantore, f	0	2	3	2	1
Talus	3	1	3	7	2
Martin, H., f	5	1	1	11	3
Adams, c	0	0	5	0	2
Slaughter	3	6	5	12	1
Simth	0	1	1	1	0
Trewhella, g	1	2	5	4	0
Kitchens	0	0	1	0	0
Szakacsi, g	5	1	1	11	1
Totals	17	14	25	48	10

Halftime score: Duke 32, South Carolina 30.

Officials: Heft and Hackey.

GAME BROADCAST

Station WPTF in Raleigh will offer complete radio coverage of the Carolina-VPI game in the Southern conference tourney today. The broadcast begins at 2 o'clock.

Ticket Sale

Tickets to the Southern conference swimming meet to be held in Bowman-Gray pool on Friday and Saturday are now on sale at the Woollen gym ticket office.

No passbooks are needed for the ducats, and the price is 50 cents per person—students and general public. However, this price entitles the holder to seats for both Friday and Saturday's action.

Carolina is the defending champion, but the State College mermen are rated a good chance to upset the Blue Dolphins.

Bob Paxton Leads Scoring With 303

Bob Paxton, Senior forward from Spokane, Washington, finished the regular basketball season with a total of 303 points, compiled on 109 field goals and 95 foul shots. He is the top scorer for Carolina and ranks behind Dick Dickey and Jack Gentry in scoring all over the state.

Paxton was far ahead of his nearest team mate. Nemo Nearman, center, accounted for 170 to be second. His substitute at center, John Dillon, was close on his heels with 163 points. With Dillon's total added to Nearman's it seems that center is the highest-scoring position of the team.

Kohler, Cole Close

A pair of guards, Norm Kohler and King Cole, rank next. Kohler has 156 points to 155 for Cole. Coy Carson, with 113, is the only other player to pass the century mark.

Other scoring totals for the season show Roger Scholbe, with 85; Bill Miller, 70; Taylor Thorne, 43; Fred Swartzberg, 40 and Dan Nyimicz 24.

Paxton had the best average per game, with 12.1.

ATO, Sig Nu Advance Into Soccer Finals With Overtime Wins

ATO 1 and Sigma Nu 1 advanced into the final round of the intramural five-man soccer tourney yesterday with victories in two of the closest contests of the entire tourney.

After completing the two regulation periods and two overtime sessions, the Sigma Nu booters and Phi Gam 1 were all tied up at 1-1. A sudden death period was then played and Sigma Nu Hank Lenz dented the cords for his second goal of the game to give his team a hard-won 2-1 triumph. Merritt Connor scored for the Phi Gams.

A sudden death session wasn't necessary in the ATO-Zeta 1 semi-final tussel, but the two teams did play two extra periods before the issue was decided. In the last special session, the ATO booters, who had been held scoreless up to that point, pushed through two goals for the 2-0 win. Myrt Sherrard and Don Ahern counted for the victors.

Fnals in both divisions will be held today at 4 o'clock. Everett will meet Steele on Field 1 to decide the dorm title and ATO and Sigma Nu will clash on the number two rectangle.

Table Tennis Tourney At GM This Evening

Ray Morris will be favored to retain a firm hold on his table tennis crown in the second Graham Memorial one-night ping pong tournament and Carolina tennis star, defeated Dave Boak in three straight games to win the title. He has been taking table tennis titles left and right all year.

The winner of the tournament will be awarded a book of theater coupons. Last time play began at 7 o'clock, but so many paddle-wielders came late and lost by forfeit that they decided to move the starting time up half an hour.

Baseballers Will Play 25 Games This Spring

Carolina's Tar Heels will play a 25-game baseball schedule this spring, with 13 of the tilts being slated for Chapel Hill. Yale and Pennsylvania are the only newcomers to be faced.

Of the 25 contests, 18 are Southern conference affairs. Twelve of the loop games will be within the Big Four, the circuit in North Carolina of which the team is the member. Duke copped the championship last season, thanks to Carolina, which turned back State in the season finale to present the Blue Devils with the title.

The Carolina season will begin on March 26, when the University of Virginia performs here in a non-conference tilt. The final contest of the year will be on May 26, two months later, against State in Raleigh.

Hearn Returns

Head coach Bunn Hearn, returning to active work after an extended illness last season, issued a general call for candidates for the team this past Monday. Some 75 boys turned out for the drills. Hearn is assisted by Walter Rabb and Henry House.

Captaining this year's nine will be Jim Hayworth, High Point, and Jim Hamilton, of Weir, Kansas.

The schedule:

March 26—Virginia at Chapel Hill; 29—Michigan State at Chapel Hill; 30—Pennsylvania at Chapel Hill; 31—Cornell at Chapel Hill.

April 2—Yale at Chapel Hill; 8—South Carolina at Columbia; 9—Clemson at Clemson; 10—Furman at Greenville; 13—Wake Forest at Wake Forest; 15—Furman at Chapel Hill; 17—Greenville, S. C., at Greenville; 21—Duke at Durham; 24—N. C. State at Raleigh; 27—Davidson at Chapel Hill; 29—N. C. State at Chapel Hill.

May 1—Wake Forest at Wake Forest; 4—Duke at Durham; 6—Virginia at Charlottesville; 7—Maryland at College Park; 11—Wake Forest at Chapel Hill; 13—N. C. State at Raleigh; 15—Duke at Durham; 17—Wake Forest at Wake Forest; 22—Duke at Chapel Hill; 26 N. C. State at Raleigh.

Jayvee Tank Team Scores 35-31 Win

Raleigh, March 2—Victory in the final event of the meet provided Carolina's jayvee swimmers with a 35-31 win over the reserve tankmen of State college here this afternoon in a preliminary to the struggle between the two varsities.

Going into the 200-yard freestyle relay on the short end of a 31-28 count, the Tar Heel group came away from the meet with a four-point decision on the combined ability of Bob Snow, Gil Beam, Bob Elliott, and Jim Mericka.

It was an uphill fight all the way for the Carolina jayvees. After four events, they were behind by 24-12, the State team having come in first in all four races.

The jayvee summary:

50-freestyle—Harris (S), arm Snow (C), Carnes (C). 25.7.

50 - freestyle — Harris (S), 50 - freestyle — Ritchie (S), Bartlett (C), Patten (S). 1:13.1.

200 - breaststroke — Ritchie (S), Bartlett (C), Patten (S). 1:13.1.

200 - freestyle — Morris (S), Dietzel (C), McNeill (C). 2:17.3.

100 - backstroke — Johnson (S), Berford (S), Cordle (C). 1:10.4.

100 - freestyle — Coart (C), D. Whichard (C), Harris (S). 60.1.

Diving — J. Whichard (C), Beam (C), Ramsey (S).

150 - medley — State (Johnson, Ritchie, Morris). 1:31.4.

200 - freestyle relay — UNC (Snow, Beam, Elliott, Mericka). 1:45.4.

Twining and Ousley Lead Carolina Club To Easy 55-20 Win

By Bob Goldwater

Raleigh, March 2—What was hailed as the big battle for swimming supremacy in the South turned into a one-sided rout here in Frank Thompson pool this afternoon when Carolina's powerful Blue Dolphins romped to an easy 55-20 triumph over the previous unbeaten N. C. State mermen.

With Dick Twining and Bob Ousley the top luminaries in a star-studded victory, Coach Dick Jamerson's aquatic performers registered their 10th straight win of the 1948 season to complete their ninth consecutive year as conference dual meet champions. But the team achievements don't end there!

Never Lost to State

For instance, it was Carolina's 13th straight victory in the swimming lanes and 37th conference dual triumph in a row. It maintained the Tar Heels' superiority over State—they've never lost to the Raleigh swimmers—and last, but not least, it gave the occupants of Bowman Gray Memorial pool in Chapel Hill their fourth perfect season in the last seven years.

All of which indicates that the 1948 Blue Dolphins have a clear right to the claim of "the greatest swimming aggregation ever assembled in the South." As Coach Jamerson phrased it, "It's the best bunch I've ever seen down this way—and Carolina has had some great teams in the past."

The Dolphins captured seven first places and shattered two conference records during the afternoon, and both of the leading performers figured in one of the new marks. In the 100-yard freestyle, Twining sped the distance in 53.8 to clip seven-tenths of a second from the existing mark set by State's Bill Ward two weeks ago. Ward led for much of the race, but was left floundering when Carolina's one-man team opened up on the last lap.

High Scorer

Twining was easily the meet's high scorer with 11 and three fourths points. He also took a first in the 220-freestyle and swam a speedy third leg on the 400-yard relay quartet that won by seven yards.

The other Tar Heel record came in the opening event, the medley relay. Backstroker Jim Thomas, Ousley swimming the breaststroke, and freestyler Jesse Greenbaum made the 300-yard distance in 1.7 seconds under the old mark. It was the third time this season that Carolina had lowered the standard in the leadoff event—and a different trio each time.

It was in the 200-yard breaststroke that Ousley really stood out. Swimming against State's number one performer, Bill Kelly, the Tar Heel veteran stayed out front most of the way and easily withstood Kelly's closing finish. Conference titleholder Jerry Cook barely missed touching ahead of Kelly while turning in his best time at the distance.

Aquatic Avengers

300-medley—UNC (Thomas, Ousley, Greenbaum). 3:01.5 (new SC record).

220-freestyle — Twining (C), Morrow (C), Despres (S). 2:19.8.

50-freestyle—Ward (S), Drew (C), Pritchard (C). 23.9 (equals SC record).

Diving—Sper (C), Erle (C), Cramer (S). 123.3.

100-freestyle — Twining (C), Ward (S), Greenbaum (C). 53.8 (new SC record).

150-backstroke — Thomas (C) Sper (C), Mandel (S). 1:39.8.

200-breaststroke — Ousley (C), Kelly (S); Cook, 2:29.4.

400-freestyle — Despres (S), Basescu (C), Denyes (S). 5:20.7.

400-freestyle relay — UNC (Osborne, Morrow, Twining, Drew). 3:43.8.

NOW OPEN

Chapel Hill's Beautiful New COLONIAL Super Market

Franklin Street at Graham

Ample Parking for Customers

It's new! It's modern! It's Chapel Hill's finest food store. Colonial Stores cordially invites the fraternity members, resident's of Victory Village and the University student body to make this beautiful new store headquarters for their daily food needs. Shop at the sign of the friendly C.S. Rooster for greater savings!

Check These Typical Colonial Savings

Guaranteed Meats

ECONOMICAL SUNDAY ROAST
CHUCK ROAST
Colonial Price, lb. 49c Winner Quality, lb. 47c

Colonial
LEG O' LAMB, lb. 65c
PORK SAUSAGE, lb. 49c
DRESSED FRYERS, lb. .. 63c

Square
VEAL ROAST, lb. 49c
GROUND BEEF, lb. 43c

SMALL LEAN — FRESH
PICNICS Lb. 43c

Fresh Produce

U. S. No. 1 — WHITE
POTATOES
10 lbs. bulk 51c

Medium Size Green
CABBAGE, 2 lbs. 7c

Large Juicy Florida
GRAPEFRUIT, 5 for 23c

Fresh and Green
TURNIP SALAD, 2 lbs. .. 21c

Fancy California Pears
AVOCADOES, each 23c

U. S. No. 1 Yellow ONIONS 2 lbs. 31c

Medium CARROTS 2 bchs. 21c

COLONIAL STORES

University Florist

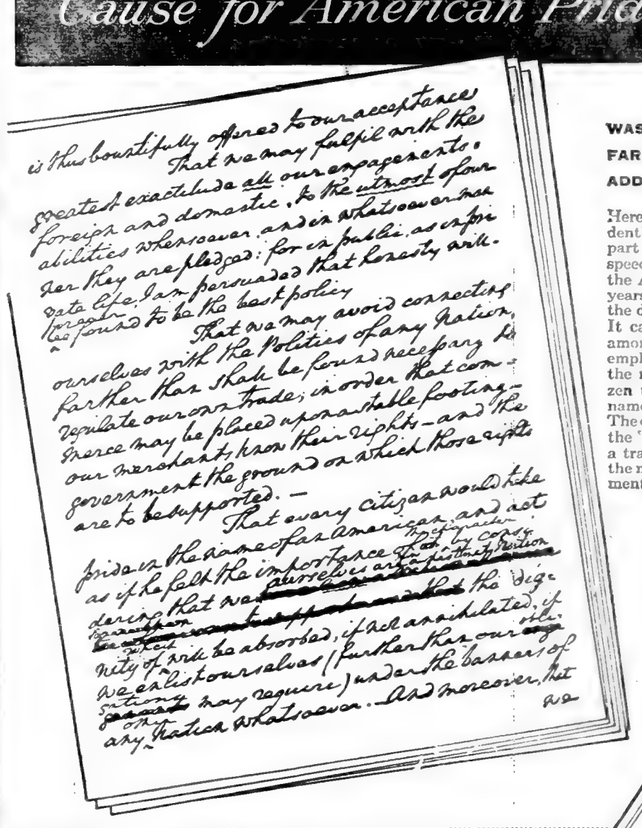
"For the Best in Flowers"

Pick Theatre Bldg.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

Telephone 6816

PRESCRIPTIONS



Filled Promptly

ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY

—at—

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

Cause for American Pride

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL ADDRESS

Here, in our First President's own handwriting, is part of the far-sighted speech he delivered to the American people 152 years ago. The spirit of the doctrine still applies. It calls for a firm unity among our people . . . emphasizing, above all, the need for "every citizen to take pride in the name of an American." The original is now aboard the "Freedom Train"—a traveling exhibit of the most significant documents in our history.

Be proud of what you write . . .

and the way you write it!

Naturally you're proud when you own a Parker "51". For this is the world's most-wanted pen. It glides with satin-smoothness . . . gives new freedom to your thoughts and fingers . . . makes writing more fun! Whether it's an exam—a theme—a letter, this is the pen that will always show you at your best. Ask for the "51" in either the regular or new demi-size. Choice of points. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin, U. S. A., and Toronto, Canada.

Parker "51"

"51" writes dry with wet ink!"

Campus Calendar

2:00—Senior Class Steering committee, Grail room.
3:00—University party legislators, Grail room.
4:00 Campus party, Roland Parker lounge.
5:15—Lenten services, Episcopal church.
6:30—Recorded dinner music, Main lounge.
7:00—Greensboro-Carolina club, 103 Bingham.
7:00—YWCA committee on "You and Your Religion," Y library.
7:00—Freshman Friendship council, YMCA.
7:15—Radio club, Swain hall.
7:30—Student Republican club, Roland Parker lounge No. 1
7:30—Western North Carolina club, Roland Parker No. 2.
7:30—Students for Democratic Action, Roland Parker lounge No. 3.
7:30—Law Wives Bridge club, Horace Williams lounge.
8:00—Law School Association presents Judge John Parker, "Administration of Justice," Gerrard hall.
8:00—UVA entertain for Archer House and Town Girls, Veterans' club.
8:00—Woman's Auxiliary of Hillel, Mrs. Berman's, 120 Kenan Street.
8:00—Delta Tau Delta, Grail room.
8:30—Piano recital by Dr. William S. Newman, Hill hall.
8:30—"North Carolina Viewpoint," WHHT and WRAL.

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

—Afternoon activity in the Union has picked up to such an extent that the Rendezvous will now begin opening at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. . .A cool relaxing spot for business or pleasure.

Vince Cassidy's poetry program, set for Sunday afternoon, should be something new and stimulating in the mode of springtimely entertainment. . .That's 5 o'clock, main lounge.

The one-hour recorded dinner music concert in the main lounge at 6:30 this evening, will include two selections: Music of Jerome Kern, played by Andre Kostelanetz; and Tschaikovsky's Nutcracker suite.

-Tourney-

the Dukes came back to take a 63-48 triumph to move to the second round against George Washington.

Corren (Ceep) Youmans, Duke forward, turned in a brilliant performance for Coach Gerry Gerard's Devils to rack up high-scoring honors with 23 points. Tommy Hughes added 14 to the Duke scoring total.

The game was close throughout the first half, with the lead changing hands frequently. As the final stanza began the Gamecocks racked up two quick goals to take the lead at 34-32, but Duke took charge from there on out and was never headed.

Jimmy Slaughter, stringbean center for South Carolina, led his team with 12 points, scored in a very short period of time.

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 8B

ONCE WORN PAIR OF BROWN CORdovan wingtip shoes, size 13. French, Shriner, and Urner best quality. A real buy. Stop by 107 Graham. (1-1834-1)

TRAILER, GOOD CONDITION. CAN be seen any night after 6:30—11 Pittsboro Road Trailer Court. $750 00 cash. (1-1829-1)

MALE ENGLISH BULLDOG 6 WEEKS old in the process of registration. Call 8857. (1-1837-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1948 4-DOOR SUPER DELUXE FORD. Radio, heater, other extras. 900 miles. Steve Parrott, Phone 9021, Kappa Sig House. (1-1826-1)

FOUND 6C

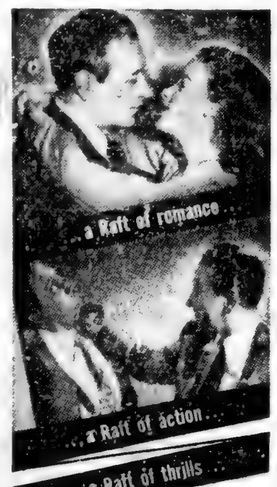
GOOD FOUNTAIN PEN; LEFT IN University Cafe Monday night. Loser may secure from "Charlie" at the restaurant by describing. (1-1840-1)

LOST 12

A BROWN STRIPED SHAEFFER fountain pen between the A.D.Pi House and Alumnae. If found please call Sarah Montague at F-3071. (1-1836-1)

BLACK AND GOLD PARKER '51 lost Feb. 24. Name Betsy Huggins tapped on side. If found please notify Betsy Huggins, 303 Alderman Hall. (1-1839-1)

GOLD ALBRIGHT WRIST WATCH last Friday. 14-K—Reward—Call Ted Stouffer at 5741. (1-1831-1)



BINOCULARS IN BROWN LEATHER case Sunday evening in Carolina theater. Finder please notify Martha Jordan, 113 Bingham, 4486. Reward. (1-c1832-1)

NOTICE 14

THE STUDENT ENTERTAINMENT committee requests that the remaining Student Entertainment Books be returned by March 10, or no refund will be made on them. Please send books to Student Entertainment Committee, 206 South Building, B. J. Strong, Chairman. (ch 1x2)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGBURN Furniture Co., Phone 5841. (ch 1x1)

with
George Raft
in
"INTRIGUE"
with
JUNE HAVOC · HELENA CARTER
TOM TULLY · MARVIN MILLER · DAN SEYMOUR
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

"GYPSY" Marlene's OUT TO TAKE Ray Milland... and the screen goes wild with LOVE!

Get set for sensation — when the incomparable Dietrich, as a fabulous Romany coquette, brings out the Gypsy in Ray!

Paramount presents
RAY MILLAND and MARLENE DIETRICH in "Golden Earrings"
with
MURVYN VYE · BRUCE LESTER · BERNHOLD SCHUNZEL
DENNIS HOEY · QUENTIN REYNOLDS
A MITCHELL LEISEN PRODUCTION
NOW PLAYING
VILLAGE

HOW TO Save ON FINE FOODS

Millions of American homemakers are finding the kin dof food they want . . . at the prices they like to pay . . . by shopping at A&P stores. They've found that all the top quality, famous brand foods are at A&P . . . and priced at levels they appreciate these days. Whether it's canned goods, meat or poultry, fresh vegetables, or dairy products, A&P has "swell buys." So why not join the thrifty thousands who save on fine foods every day of the week! Always shop at your A&P.

A&P Fancy
APPLE SAUCE . . 2 No. 2 Cans 25c
Iona Sliced or Halves Yellow Cling
PEACHES . . . . . . No. 2½ Can 25c
Sunnyfield Self-Rising
FLOUR . . . . . . 10-Lb. Bag 80c
Packer's Label Standard Pack
PEAS . . . . . 3 No. 2 Cans 29c
Mild American
CHEESE . . . . . . Lb. 51c
Ann Page Spaghetti or
MACARONI . . 3 8-Oz. Pkgs. 25c
Campbell's
TOMATO SOUP 2 10½-Oz. Cans 21c
Washburn Dried
PINTO BEANS . 1-Lb. Pkg. 17c
Ann Page Salad
DRESSING . . . . . . Pt. Jar 33c
Pick o' Carolina Swee t Mixed
PICKLES . . . . . . 15-Oz. Jar 19c
Mott's
APPLE JUICE . . . . Qt. Bot. 15c
Ann Page Peach
PRESERVES . . . . . 1-Lb. Jar 23c
Libby's or Sultana
FRUIT COCKTAIL . No. 1 Can 24c

Sunnyfield Flour For
PANCAKES
20 Oz. Pkg. 13c
Ann Page Blended
SYRUP
Pt. Bot 25c
A&P's Own Vegetable Shortening
dexo
1-Lb. Can 41c · 3-Lb. Can $1.17
Sunnyorook Grade A Large FRESH
EGGS
1-Doz. Ctn. 59c

Golden Ripe
BANANAS
2 Lbs. 23c
N.B.C.
VANILLA WAFERS
12 oz. pkg 31c

Not a Dream
It's Here!
MARVEL
Enriched Home Style
WHITE BREAD
with MORE SUGAR... MORE MILK... MORE SHORTENING...
1½ lb. loaf 18c
DATED "FRESH" DAILY
REMEMBER WHEN FRESHNESS FADES, FLAVOR FADES

HOT CROSS BUNS
9 BUNS 25
Bursting with Juicy Raisins and Fruit Tidbits
Creamy Icing Cross
MARVEL SANDWICH BREAD
18-Oz. Loaf 15c
JANE PARKER DONUTS
1-Doz. Pkg. 19c

A&P SUPER MARKETS

ANN PAGE PREPARED
SPAGHETTI 2 15½-Oz. Cans 23c
With the Sauce That's a Combination of Sun-Ripened Tomatoes and Golden-Rich Cheese JUST HEAT AND EAT!

Mild and Mellow
8 O'CLOCK COFFEE 1-Lb. Bag 40c · 3 Bag $1.13
Rich and Full Bodied
RED CIRCLE COFFEE . . . Lb. Bag 43c
Vigorous and Winey
BOKAR COFFEE . 1-Lb. Bag 45c · 3 Bag $1.29
CUSTOM GROUND AT THE MOMENT OF PURCHASE

Nabisco Shredded Wheat .. 2 Pkgs. 25c
Nabisco Fig Newtons ..... Pkg. 19c
Post's Grapenuts ..... Pkg. 18c
Post's 40% Bran Flakes ..... 8-oz. Pkg. 14c
Sunnyfield Corn Flakes ..... 8-oz. Pkg. 12c
Sunnyfield Rolled Oats ..... 20-oz. Pkg. 15c
Octogan Soap Powder ..... Lge. Pkg. 24c
Sunbrite Cleanser ..... 2 Pkgs. 13c

Niblets WHOLE KERNEL CORN Brand
Corn 17c 12-Oz. Can

"JUNKET" DANISH DESSERT Pkg. 10c
"JUNKET" MIX FUDGE Pkg. 27c

YEL... Pkg. 33c
Cashmere Bouquet SOAP 2 Bars 25c
Lux Toilet SOAP Reg. Bar 10c
Lux Toilet SOAP 2 Bath Size 29c
Ajax CLEANSER Pkg. 11c
Lux FLAKES Lge. Pkg. 36c

QUALITY MEATS

Whole or Half
LEG O' LAMB, lb. 65c
Cross Cut
SHOULDER OF LAMB, lb. 45c
Sirloin, T-Bone, Club, Porterhouse, or Pinbone
SUPER RIGHT STEAKS, lb. 79c
Rib Boned & Rolled
SUPER RIGHT ROAST, lb. 75c
Super Right
CHUCK ROAST, lb. 57c
Coles — Jones
PORK SAUSAGE, lb. 54c
Center Cut
PORK CHOPS, lb. 59c
Rib or Loin End
PORK ROAST, lb. 45c
Short Shank
SMOKED PICNICS, lb. 49c
Table Dressed
FRYERS, lb. 66c
HENS, lb. 56c
Thick FAT BACK, lb. 25c
RIB SIDE, lb. 39c

Fresh Fruits & Vegetables

CARROTS, 2 bunches 19c
Medium Heads
LETTUCE, 2 for 19c
Large Size
GRAPEFRUIT, 4 for 19c
Winesap
APPLES, lb. 19c
Red Bliss
POTATOES, 5 lbs. 10c
White
POTATOES, 10 lbs. 37c
Red Emperor
GRAPES, 2 lbs. 53c
New Green
CABBAGE, 2 lbs. 29c
BANANAS, 2 lbs. 7c
Turnip and Mustard
GREENS, 2 lbs. 23c
ORANGES, 8-lb. bags 25c
39c

A&P Super Markets

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Cloudy and cool with possible rain late today.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
February Mag
Wolfe Recognition
Democratic Optimism

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 117

Amended Redistricting Bill Passes; Tom Eller Promises Veto

Senior Jazz Concert Will Be Held Sunday

"Jazz at the Memorial", which promises to rock the roof and shake the chandeliers of tradition-staid Memorial hall, will bring the Jimmie Lunceford band here Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock.

BRINGING JAZZ TO Memorial hall Sunday night is Joe Thomas, one of the directors of the Jimmie Lunceford band which was reorganized as a tribute to the late jazz artist. The concert is being sponsored by the senior class.

The concert, sponsored by the senior class with tickets set at $1.25, will feature the music of the late jazz artist as presented by members of his original band. Luncefordians Joe Thomas and Eddie Wilcox, who co-piloted the orchestra, both were with the late Negro maestro and helped develope the style which music fans have called "personalized rhythm."

Beard to MC

According to Benson McCutcheon, senior class president, the two-hour program will be emceed by radio announcer Sam Beard. "Sour Grapes Sam", remembered last year by his "Moonglow" program heard by collegians all over the South, is at present the announcer for a morning record show, "Breakfast with Beard", over Raleigh's radio station WPTF.

Sponsored by the graduating class the concert will be underwritten by the German club, according to that organization's president, Bill Tate. Tickets are now on sale at a table set up in the Book Exchange.

Tenor Sax Man

Joe Thomas, who co-directs the seven-member group of jazz musicians, is a tenor sax man who has such a great admiration and respect for the late maestro that he was influential in keeping together the members of th band. Thomas, a native of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, was long a mainstay of the Lunceford aggregation. Today he typifies the spirit and musical interpretation created by the original engineer of the famed "Harlem Express." He is a leading exponent of the personalized rhythm which brought fame to the Missouri-born bandleader.

Other members of the group, besides Eddie Wilcox, include Jack Carruthers, Mustapha Hashim, Al Grey, Russel Green and Joe Marshall.

NCCPA To Hold Press Convention During Vacation

The North Carolina Collegiate Press association will hold its second annual convention since the war on March 18, 19, 20 in Durham.

Duke will be host for the meeting which consists of editors, business managers and their assistants of all college and junior college newspapers, yearbooks and magazines in North Carolina.

Theme of the convention will be, "How to put out a better school publication." Announcement of the convention was made yesterday by Clay S. Felker of Duke, NCCPA president.

Speakers Obtained

Headquarters for the convention will be the Washington Duke hotel. Nationally known authorities in the fields of editing, reporting, news editorial, sports, feature, fashion-writing, lay-out, and make-up will be present to address the group.

Business managers will be addressed by experts in advertising salesmanship, space scheduling and promotion.

A partial list of these outstanding journalists, writers and newsmen include Jack Lait, editor of the New York Daily Mirror and syndicated columnist; Prof. Roscoe Ellard, Associate Dean Columbia University School of Journalism; Harry Martin, President of the American Newspaper Guild; J. G. Taylor Spink, publisher of The Sporting News; Sidney R. Stanard, news editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; William R. Reddig, Editor of the Charlotte News; Steed Rollins, editor of the Durham Herald-Sun papers; Art Flynn, president of Art Flynn Associates, advertising and public relations; George E. Johnston, sales promotion-advertising Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., N. Y.; and Al Meredith, art illustrator.

Coed Corner

Of interest to coeds will be Miss Betty C. Schmidt of Mademoiselle; Miss Mary Snow Ethridge, Junior Bazaar; and Mrs. Carolee Stanard, Fashion Editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and former president of the American Fashion institute.

A special short story panel for literary magazines will be composed of several New Yorker writers, among them Noel Huston, Frances G. Patton, and Mrs. Helen Bebington. These writers will select the best collegiate published short story and discuss

(See PRESS, page 4)

Seniors Should Finish Records

Seniors graduating this quarter are reminded that they should complete their personnel records with the University Placement service prior to their departure from the campus, if they wish to avail themselves of the facilities of this service any time in the future.

James Galloway, associate director of the service, explained that "the filing of these records will make it possible for the Placement service to be of help to seniors at the present time or in the future, if they wish to have their credentials sent to prospective employer."

These personnel forms contain such material as a photograph, personal data, confidential rating sheets, extent of participation in extra-curricular activities, and other information which would be of value to a prospective employer.

Students interested in the services of this University aid may secure further information at its office on the second floor of South building.

WALLACE CLUB

There will be a business meeting of the Wallace club tonight at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker 3.

Zucker Chosen Speaker of Di For Next Term

John Zucker was promoted to the position of speaker of the Dialectic Senate in Di elections this week in which six officers were chosen for the next quarter.

Zucker has been a member of the Senate for eight terms. He is at present speaker pro tempore of the campus forensic group and director of the ways and means committee which prepared the bills for discussion at the Wednesday night Di meetings.

The 27-year-old mathematics major from Washington, D. C., is also a member of Pi Mu Epsilon, honorary fraternity for student mathematicians. He will receive an A. B. degree in June.

Long Elected

The speaker pro tempore elected was Charles O. Long, a junior from Thomasville. He is currently serving as Di speaker in addition to taking an active part in campus life as a DTH columnist and a varsity debater. In the past he has been secretary-treasurer of the student body, a member of the student legislature, and chairman of the student party.

Other Officers

Other officers who will be inaugurated at the first Di meeting next quarter are: critic, James Southerland from Willard; sergeant-at-arms, Jerry Pettigrew, Reidsville; clerk, Joanne "Mickey" McNutt, Greensboro: debate council representative, Merle Stevens, Forest City; and chaplain, Bill Harding, Aurora, N. Y.

Four new Senators initiated prior to the elections were Richard Erie Cofield, Jr., Edenton; Robert Kaufman, Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Claude W. Shannon, Sanford; and Robert A. Nelson, Upper Montclair, N. J.

Democratic Club Gets 500 Signers

A noon-time count yesterday by the University chapter of the Students for Democratic Action showed that from four to five hundred students have signed that group's petition favoring the Marshall plan.

"We are pretty gratified over student interest so far," commented Bob Lindsay, president of the organization.

"Many students did not sign but took some of our explanatory literature and said that they would come back," Lindsay said.

Campus Red Cross Drive Slated To Open Tuesday

Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week have been set as dates for the campus Red Cross drive, according to Bill Shuford, Graham Memorial director and chairman of the student drive.

At a planning meeting yesterday afternoon, Shuford announced a goal of $2,000 to be collected from Carolina students as a part of the $75 million national goal.

Students Joe Ferguson and Bob Ormand are working with Shuford in administering the drive, and the actual solicitation will be handled through the heads of campus organizations: Emile Saleeby, president of Interdormitory council; Jack Thompson, head of Interfraternity council; Barbara Cashion, speaker of Coed senate; and Margaret Jean Taylor, president of Pan-Hellenic council.

Every student on campus is to be contacted to contribute to the drive, Shuford said. "However," he went on, "in organizing the campaign we are making every effort to contact each individual only once."

TRUMAN

Recognition will be given to the dormitory, fraternity, or sorority which contributes the largest amount to the drive, and also to those whose members contribute 100 per cent.

Political Groups Make Plans For Nominations to Councils

Joint Nominations Are Aim of SP, CP

In the face of opposition to a plan calling for non-partisan membership in the Men's council, the Student party yesterday passed a resolution to meet with Campus party officials and other interested organizations in an attempt to draw up a non-political ticket for judicial candidates.

According to SP member Bill Mackie, University party members have declined to participate in this plan. Mackie said that UP members have expressed the opinion that there is insufficient time to work out the plan to be put into effect before spring elections.

SP chairman Gran Childress said yesterday, "The only way to have an unbiased judiciary is to have the members elected to office on a non-partisan basis." Other SP spokesmen maintained that if other parties and organizations are willing the plan could be worked out, with a plan similar for Women's council, before elections in April.

The SP chairman called attention to an editorial appearing in

(See SP-CP, page 4)

UP Screening Boards To Judge Candidates

The University party has set up two screening boards of present and former members of the Men's and Student councils who will hear all interested students who wish to run for council positions at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The boards will carefully check qualifications, interest and conscientiousness of all persons who desire nominations, after which it will make recommendations to the UP steering committee when nominations for the councils are to be determined.

"This board has been set up in line with the University party goal of a better, non-partisan student government," UP Chairman Thurman Williams stated yesterday.

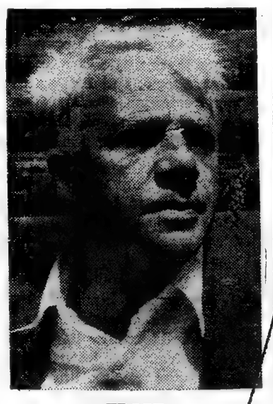
"The party feels that the establishment of a group composed of members of the three political parties, as one of the other parties has suggested," Williams continued, "would lead to involved procedure and behind-the-scenes maneuvers which should be avoided.

The UP is always willing to

(See UP, page, 4)

Noted New England Poet Robert Frost Holds Theory That Verse Should Be Symbol of Life

By Sally Woodhull



"Every poem is a symbol of life itself," says Robert Frost, genial New England poet appearing on campus under the sponsorship of the English department.

In an interview yesterday afternoon, the poet expounded his theory of poetry. "Every poem has something of conformity," he said. "If it hasn't it's nothing. You conform to the traditional in poetry, to the meter, rhyme scheme, to the form in general."

He went on to explain the parallel between this conformity and the necessity for conformity which everyone meets in life, conformity to college life, to home life, to marriage, and so on.

The problem in writing poetry, according to Frost, is to fit the feeling or idea to be expressed into the form chosen without compromising it. The same problem of fitting in without being compromised is met in life, he said.

When asked what advice he would give aspiring poets, Frost said, "The greatest thing of all for everybody is understanding. What understanding means you must think out for yourself."

FROST

Although he has often been called a nature poet, Frost insists that he has written not more than two nature poems. "I'm a portrait painter," he says, stating that such poems as "Birches," and "Stopping by Woods," often called nature poems, are actually more involved with human problems.

Frost has a small farm in Florida, in addition to his place of several acres in Vermont, and he says he enjoys "playing around with oranges and grapefruit—" it's all rather novel to me, since for many years I knew nothing but New Hampshire and Vermont."

Earlier in the afternoon, Frost spoke to members of several classes in creative writing and contemporary poetry.

Debate Group Sets Tryouts For Hopefuls

Potential contestants in the National Forensic tournament in Fredericksburg, Va. the end of this month will try out in the fields of poetry reading, dramatic reading, extemporaneous speaking, and address reading Monday evening at 7 o'clock in the Di Senate hall, New West, the Debate council announced yesterday.

"This meeting is open to all interested students regardless of previous experience in these speaking fields," a Debate council spokesman explained.

Coeds Urged

"Coeds are especially urged to try as well as men students, for these contests have both mens and womens' divisions."

Regulations governing the speaking events say that the poems selected for reading do not have to be memorized. The contestant can supply his own choice of verse for this event.

In the dramatic reading division, anything of a dramatic nature may be used, if the delivery time does not exceed eight minutes.

Ten Minute Limit

Ten minutes is the limit specified for the preparation of the talks in the extemporaneous division.

In outlining the requirements for the extemporaneous competition, the Debate council members commented that "any fluent speaker will fit into this category of the tournament, so we very strongly urge participation in this division."

Stripper Dunked By LSU Students

Louisiana State University, March 4 —(UP)— Louisiana State University students today gave the stripteaser dancer "Stormy" a dunk in a nearby lake.

The rumpus was stirred up a few weeks ago when the Louisiana State campus magazine ran some pictures of the strip tease dancer.

University authorities banned the magazine and its editor, Pat McIntyre, quit to run for president of the student body.

Yesterday McIntyre withdrew from the race because the sultry dancer offered to win votes for him by doing her stuff on the campus.

However, his withdrawal from the race didn't stop the burlesque dancer. She came to the campus today and, as promised, started into her routine.

The students gathered in droves. They watched, they cheered. Then, the unexpected happened. Quicker than the time it takes to unfasten a snap hook, they picked up Stormy and tossed her into a nearby lake.

New Orleans, March 4—(UP —Striptease dancer Stacie Laurence arrived here by plane tonight from the LSU campus where students dunked her in a lake.

The girl who is known as "Stormy" was met by her personal physician who found that she had no broken bones but plenty of bruises. One foot was scraped, four of her bottom teeth were lose, she had a swollen lower lip and her right eye was discolored.

For the time being, she says, "My college career is over."

Reversal Occurs on Appeal Measure; Quarterly, Forum Bills Are Approved

By Chuck Hauser

Not Bill Mackie and Basil Sherrill's, but Joe Leary's redistricting bill was passed by the Student Legislature last night in what was probably the longest and possibly hottest session on record.

The bill not only passed, but it passed in the face of a promise by Student Body President Tom Eller that he would veto the measure if it was approved as was.

Debate raged for almost two hours, the last part of which was devoted to numerous votes to either bring the question to a vote or to recommit the bill on the grounds that as amended by Leary it was not effective.

Four Town Districts

The measure breaks the town men's voting area into four districts, in contrast to the five provided for in the Mackie-Sherrill bill which was reported out of the Elections committee with a 5-4 vote.

The second most controversial subject of the evening was the judicial set-up constitutional amendment which was amended in committee to leave appellate jurisdiction with the Student council.

Law student Bill Crisp's professors would have been proud of him if they had attended the legislative session, for it was he who got the bill passed in true oratic style after obtaining the privilege of the floor.

Eller and Lowenstein

But at approximately 11:30 last night the bill was voted under reconsideration and thrown back into committee after President Tom Eller and Al Lowenstein both obtained the floor to protest the action.

Along with it was tossed the original Eller bill of several weeks ago which would abolish the appellate jurisdiction of the Student council. Eller first presented the bill to the Legislature in his State of the Campus message last month, and brought it up again last night as a substitute to the bill which was passed early in the evening.

Law, Med Courts

Another hotly-debated bill which was passed last night was the constitutional amendment to legally establish honor violation courts for the Law and Medical schools.

Another law student, Mike Carr, obtained the floor to present the school's side on the issue. His stand was attacked by the vociferous Crisp, and the battle of the neophyte lawyers was on.

Crisp may have taken the legislators by storm on the previ-

(See LEGISLATURE, page 4)

Special Bus May Run for Holidays

Possibilities of running a special student bus to and from New York City or Washington for spring holidays are being investigated by the Graham Memorial travel agency, according to Director Bob Watson.

Arrangements for the trip will be made to suit the convenience of the majority of students desiring to take advantage of the offer, Watson said, and anyone interested should contact him at Graham Memorial any afternoon between 2 and 6 o'clock.

In order to run the special, on which no one but students would be accomodated, 37 round trips must be guaranteed. Fares would be $17.08 round trip to New York, or $10.66 if the bus goes only to Washington.

Officials of Carolina Trailways, who will run the special, have said that they are willing to load at any spot on campus agreeable to the students, and set as destination any place in either New York or Washington that the travellers decide upon.

YOUNG

Men's Glee Club To Give Concert In Hill Tonight

The annual spring concert of the Men's Glee club will be presented tonight under the direction of Paul Young in Hill hall at 8:30 o'clock.

The Men's Glee club, recently returned from its winter tour, will offer two large works as the featured numbers in the concert, Brahms' Alto Rhapsody, with Beatrice Donley of Meredith College as guest soloist, and Randall Thompson's Jefferson memorial work, the Testament of Freedom.

Thompson's setting of four passages from the writings of Thomas Jefferson was composed in honor of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Jefferson, in 1943. It was first performed by the University of Virginia Glee club at the university which Jefferson founded.

Miss Donley, soloist for the Alto Rhapsody is now associate professor of music at Meredith college, following a professional career in New York. She is a graduate of West Virginia university and did graduate work with Horatio Connell at Juillard Music foundation. She has been soloist at the First Presbyterian church in Greensboro.

A folksong group will be offered after intermission. The group includes two Negro work songs, This Ol' Hammer Killed John Henry, a song about the famous hammer-man, who, according to legend, died after winning an all day contest with a steam-drill during tunnel construction work in West Virginia; and Chain-Gang Song, a work based upon authentic tunes sung by chain-gang crews at work. Also in the group are The Galway Piper, an Irish folksong; Mountain Farewell Song, from the Appalachian mountains; and Hoodah Day, a traditional American chantey.

The final group is comprised of three chorouses from Wagner operas: The Sailors' Chorus from the Flying Dutchman, the Pilgrims' Chorus from Tannhauser, and the Chorous and Finale from Die Meistersinger.

WARM WEATHER COMING

Chicago, March 4 —(UP)— Warm weather is expected to start moving eastward across the nation tomorrow. Chicago weather forecasters say cold weather in the Midwest will ease tomorrow and rising temperatures should spread to the east coast by Saturday. The Midwest today is in the grip of a new cold spell. The North Atlantic states are being covered by snow and the South Atlantic states by rain.

Mills-Stones

February Mag, Cover to Cover, Is Best of Year

By Barron Mills

A very enjoyable way to spend that spare hour after supper would be to grab one of the new Carolina Mags and read it from cover to post script—I believe that you would like it because from the standpoint of cover, illustrations, photography and layout it is by far the best of the year. Oh yes, the stories. It is evident this time that the stories all have endings. There is no "The End" slug at the conclusion of each, but you know that there is where the author intended to make an adieu.

Probably the most outstanding work of the issue is the drawings of Bill Harrison. Both his illustration for "The Way of the Serpent" and his clever cartoons to portray "What Is a Radical" are masterpieces. The layout to "What Is a Radical" is sufficient in itself without the article with it. However, Henry Adam's story contains thought and shows hard work if it does lack logic in spots.

Donald MacDonald, lives up to his writing brother's reputation and his "The Way of the Serpent" is the one of the top articles of the issue. His plot is fresher, his words smoother, and his characters human so that the reader is convinced that MacDonald knew what he wanted to say and said it.

A story well worth your time in reading, because it has style and something to think about, is Clarke Stallworth's "Dark Incident". Especially the end of this story is handled with finesse of a craftsman. Stallworth is a man to look out for in the future. I, for one, will always read anything he writes if "Dark Incident" is fair example of his talents.

One article which I equally enjoyed, but because of an entirely different reason, was Julia Ross's "The Big Clock." To me it is a secret of the art to be able to start out a sentence and include an assortment of everything in a hardware store and still not end up with a series of items. Her's is a little short story, hardly taking more space than the accompanying illustration by Lucie Baxter, but it is complete and satisfying.

"On Stage, Sam" Doris Weaver's contribution to the Mag, gives a concise, well-rounded picture of Sam Selden, the man behind the Playmaker productions. Adequate and well-handled, the article honors Mr. Selden as the Mag Man of the Month.

A little bit of the "Talk of the Town" (a New Yorker feature) has been captured in this month's Carolina Parade. The last issue, lacking its former staff writers Jud Kinberg and Earl Heffner, was minus a Parade. On its return, it has been molded for the light reader rather than the one looking for a crusade.

Dorothy Dashiell Smith's "Alone" leaves the reader baffled; perhaps this is the manuscript that Mr. Sears, Erica's English teacher, said was only "purging of emotion." "Alone" has all of the ingredients for the making, but after reading it you are not convinced that Erica really has a "peculiar fascination to the lonely rhythm of her heel taps."

The tribute to the White Phantom reserves is well-timed and the photography of Wilson Yarborough, Jr. and the layout effectively pays homage to the "bridesmaids". "Inside UNC" did not deserve to be in the same magazine with the other material. The cartoon with the cutline "A Professor's eye-view of a class" provided the only chuckle.

LIGHTNING HARNESSED

Pittsburgh —(UP)— A superlightning bolt, possibly the mightiest ever recorded, was "trapped" by special instruments at Westinghouse Electric Corporation's plant. Consisting of five separate surges, the bolt contained an estimated 345,000 amperes of electricity, which is equal to the current flowing into 300,000 homes.

Recognition for Wolfe?

Say "Thomas Wolfe" in a loud voice and a goodly percentage of Carolina's seven thousand will prostrate themselves before the Old Well. We, being of that percentage, have nothing to say against this respect due one of Carolina's great alumni. Nor, for that matter, has Jonathan Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, who —in his Tuesday night banquet here this week—decried the fact that the University of North Carolina has done nothing to honor the great writer.

Needless to say, something should be done.

We have noted that the University is not averse to naming a domitory after members of the board of trustees. We do not know whether an honor is granted on the basis of how much money the honoree gives the University—but if this is so it should not be.

Wolfe has done much for Carolina. His first book—"Look Homeward, Angel"—in which the University is the setting for much of the story has brought many natives and out-of-staters to the school. Avid literary tourists visit the University often solely because the ground is "hallowed" by the big feet of the man from the mountains.

But the major thing that Wolfe has done for the school is intangible. It cannot be expressed in numbers of students who came here because of him or in money given the school because of him.

His name is a spur to the writing group here; he is an example of what can be achieved. His spirit is still alive here—ten years after his death, almost 30 years after he finished classes here.

The Carolina Mag, according to editor Fred Jacobson, will use its last edition (May) for a Wolfe dedication. It should have been done long before but this will serve. Wolfe would have, if he had lived, mourned the death of the 103-year-old publication which first printed his work.

The Mag dedication, however, is certainly not sufficient as a memorial to Wolfe. More fitting, perhaps, would be the naming of one of the new dormitories for Wolfe. Though we have not contacted the administration on this point we have heard talk that it is opposed to the idea.

Perhaps the administration will see fit to make clear to the students Thomas Wolfe should not be so honored?

—B. S.

Tribute to the University

If you want to learn more about the Dutch-Indonesian strife than has been published in the scanty news reports, all that is necessary to get a complete picture of the differences, the potentialities of the Dutch East Indies in natural resources, the complexion of the peoples and the former and contemporary problems that face those peoples is read the very complete and precise report that Dr. Frank Graham presented. The report in its entirety was printed in several of the State papers this past Sunday edition as it was presented to the UN.

The problems that entered into deciding such an issue as the one which faced the three-man Commission which mediated between the Dutch and Indonesian are inconceivable.

The Commission had to go back into the early history of the country. The history of Japan had to be considered and even the most minute matter had to be fitted into the overall picture.

The long and well-presented report is an example of the thorough work of Dr. Frank Graham and this project is a great tribute to the University.

Experience seems to point to patterns that may be used as guides in many fields. There are recurring cycles in business economy. There guiding rations in accounting. There are break-even points in production and milline rates useful in advertising. But how about the variables in human behavior? To what extent can experience go beyond facts in making marketing decisions? Worth pondering over.

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

"Officer, this man is molesting me!"

Campus Forum

Students Okay Edit Opinion

By Pete Gerns

The Campus Forum has frequently been petitioned to get student opinion on whether or not the Daily Tar Heel should express opinion in its editorials. As far as we were able to find out the student body favors it if it is not stated in such a manner that the reader is led to believe that (1) it represents the DTH on the whole or (2) the administration. It should represent opinion of the writer of the editorial, based on all available facts, and bear his signature.

Don Lotta sums it up in stating that "a member of the staff should not express his opinions under the name of the paper. I think that you should print opinions of all sides on a subject if a student will sign his name to it to let the students know it is his idea not the opinion of the paper."

Michael DeMaio joins Lotta with: "Present the facts on both sides of the issue—let the students decide for themselves."

Taking a decisive stand on both sides of the question are the following:

"The DTH should not take a stand on campus issues." Benton Brown.

"Viewing the fact that the DTH is read by practically all students, definitely it shoud take a stand on campus issues." Sol Monsour.

"Why else do we have editorials?" Bill Fitzgerald.

"Absolutely not. The paper is for and of the students." Dan Sullivan.

"I think the editorials should take a stand on the many unmentionables' (Lenior Ha issues which effect the campus instead of just the political-minded students." Name held upon request.

'If this were a privately newspaper it would be fa the students own the pap no select few should hav right to say what is right Owen.

The question for Tu "What should Carolina offer its alumni in return for what they give to us?"

Just Here

Authority of Man Over Man

By Larry Berry

Last Sunday the Charlotte Observer carried an editorial concerning the discrimination shown the graduates of Pembroke College for Indians in this state. The Indians were applying for admission to the UNC graduate school. Our university patently sees no harm in admitting Indians from India, but draws the line in the case of Indians from the Cherokee reservation, USA. After all, we must not let our good white Americans be associated with any other American who does not measure up to the arbitrary standard of complexion (set up, of course, by the GWA's).

Anyone, however, from a foreign country is thought of as an objet d'curio in the Victorion or Elizabethan manner of a living souvenir that walks and talks, in ways quite similar to our actions. Many of these people, these "imports," show themselves to be very human and likable. They have the advantage of entering our school and country as strangers with the opportunity to prove themselves, whereas the character of the Indians from Pembroke College has been predetermined in the wholesome American style of "My father didn't have anything to do with them, so why should I?" The majority of us have a tendency to pull this same kind of "Rank (take it both ways) with Negroes and anybody else we think we can use it one. Last night I was looking at an 1848 copy of the Hillsborough Recorder, and noticed an ad offering $100 reward for return of a slave named Buck. I use this as an extreme example of what I hope is the passe "authority" of man over man, as such Have we left this for the worse kind of authority of men over men's development of intellect.

I have attended several conferences which included representatives from various so-called groups. I hate to admit it because of the reflection it th on my own "group," but I lieve the Negroes present about the most well-mann individuals there. I cannot Hitler's or anyone's idea of Super Race being perpetuat without making comment on the notion's innate absurdity. I am not trying to create an "Africanus Gloriosos," but express my feeling on the matter as it stand

Spring is here, for the pres and I still cannot tell visitors very much about the various bu and trees blooming and budd on campus. I wish the botany department would put out a s guidebook (illustrated) to en us to bone up on local vegetat for the sake of uninform visitors.

More Army Huts Here For Use

The University has procured three more temporary buildin from the Army to help ease th building shortage in the campu plant. Claude Teague, busines manager of the University said yesterday. Most of the parts of the wooden structures have al ready arrived from a Norfolk Va., camp, and Supervisor of Operations J. S. Bennett said that foundations for them were being laid and actual construction should begin next week.

This Changing World

View Of Democratic Optimism

By Bill Robertson

Last week we wrote an article in which we attacked attempts being made to suppress the expression of democratic views held by members of our student body and faculty. Specifically, we pointed our finger at members of the Board of Trustees. We also stated that in spite of such attempts a healthy, democratic spirit is growing among the students—and that this spirit is embodied in the local Wallace-for-President Club and the statewide Student Movement for Wallace.

Since that time a letter of criticism has appeared in the Tar Heel. This letter was written by Paul Mullinax of the Carolina Conservative Club. The essence of the criticism was that our column contained "highly partisan and prejudiced material" written in support of a particular organization and therefore should be barred from publication. Additional details make it quite apparent that the Carolina Conservative Club is opposed to the presidential candidacy of Henry A. Wallace.

No mention is made of charges concerning attempts to suppress freedom of thought on our campus. The publication of such a letter, therefore, should be pleasing to some of the members of the Board of Trustees. It avoids the issue. It throws dust in everybody's eyes.

But aside from all this the letter raises the question of the role a columnist should play in a newspaper. We should like to depart from our usual policy of ignoring attacks of a personal nature in order to discuss this question.

It is a well-known fact that newspapers throughout our country have editorial columns which reflect views and opinions of their owners. For example, an editorial in a Hearst newspaper reflects the views of Hearst. The Wall Street Journal reflects the views of Wall Street. The Savannah Morning News reflects the views of the Talmadge race-baiters in Georgia—and so on and so forth.

Here at the University of North Carolina we have a newspaper of, by, and for the students. The editor of this newspaper has one set of political views. The assistant editor has another. The columnist who writes "This Changing World" has still another. Such a difference of opinion in itself does not guarantee the democratic expression of the opinions of the students — any more than the existence of more than one party in a country guarantees its democracy. But it must be admitted that this newspaper, as long as it allows the democratic expression of democratic ideas (while, of course, excluding Negro-baiting and anti-semitic ideas) will continue to serve the interests of the majority of the students.

As for our philosophy, we should like to explain it briefly. It simply reflects the real situation. The universe is in a process of continuous change. The planet on which we live is a product of this change (ask the radicals in the geology department). Human beings are products of organic evolution (ask the radicals in the chemistry and biology departments). Human societies are products of the changing activities of human beings who are constantly bringing the forces of nature under their control (ask the radicals in the social science department.)

Nothing stands still. Not even the Carolina Conservative Club. For as humanity progresses toward racial democracy it also adjusts itself to the new situation, it may be reluctant, but —it adjusts itself!

Such, in brief, is our world-out look—an outlook of democratic optimism. To paraphrase the words of an early American patriot, Patrick Henry: If this be the world-outlook of Karl Marx, let the Carolina Conservative Club make the most of it.

Write Away

For Legislature Postal Action

Editor:

I noticed in this morning's Tar Heel that the Student Legislature was considering an investigation committee as to the feasibility of a campus post-office. I think that it is highly commendable that the Student Legislature is taking an interest in a measure that has such an effect upon the Student Body. Also, I would like to pass along the following information.

Since the first letter that I wrote about a post-office, I have followed up the old adage, "If you want it done, do it yourself", and talked with the postal authorities here. But before going into what they had to say, let me pursue the policy, with which I flatter myself by claiming, of looking at both sides of the question, pro and con. Like any good thing, this idea has a few relatively minor disadvantages. Unless by some miracle or what have you, we get into dorm rooms, a post-office would be slightly disadvantageous to us of Miller, Nash, and Whitehead. This is because, to be at the most convenient spot to Upper Quad, Lower Quad, New Dorms, Women's Dorms, Old East and Old West, Steele, and BVP; a campus postoffice would have to be located perhaps behind or near Caldwell or the Armory Store.

Now the advantages, which seem to me to far outweigh the inconveniences. A campus post-office would offer all the services of the Chapel Hill office, except postal savings. It would sell the various kinds of stamps, money orders, registry, and so forth. Mail would be trucked directly from the town office to the campus station and put in boxes, which students would rent from the University at the rate of 50 cents per quarter. Mail would be handled just as it is uptown, being put in the boxes on Sundays, holidays, etc. It is possible that there would be three distinct releases of mail whereas the dorm deliveries offer two and one on Saturday.

During the pre-flight training, a campus post-station was maintained and according to postal authorities worked beautifully. How can we get a campus post-office? According to Postmaster Hogan, the preliminary step is up to the University. The Post-Office Department is always seeking to serve the people more efficiently, even at added expense. Mr. Hogan feels certain that the postal service would be more than willing to have a station on campus. Until another and more permanant building could be secured, a station could be set up in one of the many little white temporary buildings which already dot our campus.

So, through Legislature committee or otherwise, let's show so much interest in a campus post-office, which most much-smaller schools already have, that the administration of the University will be stirred to getting one.

Erie Cofield

Exonerated

Editor:

In the matter concerning the recent ad about the lost golf club. The club was found and placed in my golf bag with all intentions of turning it in when I reached the club house. There was no intention on my part as to keeping the club. I forgot I had found and placed it in my bag with the rest of my clubs. Upon discovery of the ad in the Daily Tar Heel, I returned the club promptly to the owner. I want to exonerate the owner of the olive-green convertible. He had nothing to do with this affair and was completely ignorant of the fact that I had forgotten to return the club.

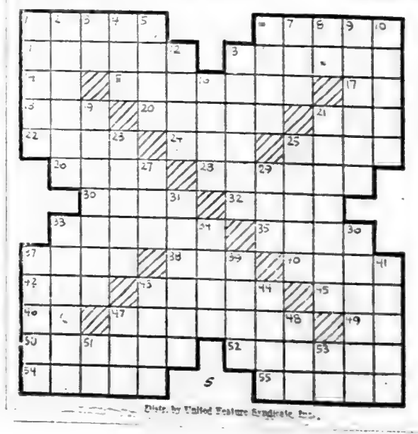
Name Withheld by Request

To demonstrate the operation of atomic energy, an exhibition train with actual working models has been equipped by the Atomic Energy Association of Great Britain to tour English cities.

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

—For listening and dancing the John Hough trio will play in the Rendezvous tonight. . .That Hough (clarinet), Jack Burney (bass), and Jack Sturgell (piano) . . .In Tuesday's bridge tournament, Mrs. Opie McKeever and Mrs. Kay Wilson won North South, and Harold Cheek and J C. Barefoot won East-West.

Plans now being formed f student entertainment next yea under the new set-up where the Student Entertainment co mittee works in conjunction wi Graham Memorial.



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—The "staff of life"
6—Banquet
11—Rotated
13—Semitic evil spirit
14—Toward
15—Court officer
17—Conjunction
18—Father
20—To depart
21—Part of "to be"
22—Meat dish
24—Gravel
25—Away from wind
26—Female sheep
28—Snow banks
30—Profound
32—To glut
33—Scottish island
35—Roman despot
37—Calls like dove
38—Saint
40—To tease
42—Mountain
43—Brought
45—Cube
46—Midwestern state (abbr.)
47—Takes out
49—Opera (abbr.)
50—Goes in
52—Beloved of Lancelot
54—Monsters
55—Free

DOWN

1—Small nails
2—To spin
3—Raised highway
4—Priest's robe
5—Transaction
6—Wind instrument
7—Pixie
8—Sloth
9—Hoards
10—Trio
12—Course of feeding
13—Body organs
16—Placed
19—Bit of water
21—Changed
23—Periods of time
25—Behind
27—Jap coin
29—John (Scottish)
31—Parts of flowers
33—Kind of tea
34—Old Elf
36—Vegetables
37—Carved stone
39—Nerve network
41—Wigwam
43—Possessive pronoun
44—Valley
47—River in England
48—Weight of Siam
51—Famed President's initials
52—Kind of moth

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association. | Complete Leased Wire of United Press | Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman — NIGHT SPORTS: Bob and Bill

Phantoms Down VPI, Face Wolfpack In Semi-Finals Tonight

Nearman, Paxton, Thorne Top 61-40 Win; Davidson, Duke in Other Semi-Final Tilt

By Bob Goldwater

Duke Indoor Stadium, Durham, March 4—North Carolina and Davidson moved into the semi-finals of the Southern conference basketball tourney here this afternoon, the White Phantoms by virtue on an easy 61-40 triumph over VPI and the Wildcats on the strength of a 58-51 decision over Mary-

The bracket of four became an all North State monopoly as a result of the evening's activities. N. C. State romped over William and Mary, 73-52, and Duke pulled the first major upset of the tourney with a 54-51 win over George Washington.

The Blue Devils and Davidson will open tonight's festivities at 7:30, and the brother institutions of the Greater University will start their family squabble at 9 o'clock.

It took the Carolina cage combination some 24 minutes to get moving in the first tussle of the day, but once the Phantoms got up steam after four minutes were gone in the second half, they never slowed down.

Hottest Streak of Year

For starting with Nemo Nearman's follow-up at 4:10 after intermission, Coach Tom Scott's charges went on their hottest streak of the season, a four and one-half minute interval that netted them 19 points and put the game on ice. Nearman, in one of his top performances of the year, sparked the drive, although all five players hit the cords for two-pointers during the hot spell. His eight points in four minutes led to a game total of 14, enough to give the big center a tie for scoring honors with teammate Bob Paxton.

Paxton's work under both backboards was another big factor in the victory. The Tar Heel co-captain came away with most of the rebounds during his 37-minute tour of duty. He played all but the final three minutes.

Thorne's Best Game

And right behind Nearman and Paxton in the Blue and White scoring column was hard-driving Taylor Thorne, with 12 points and a top-flight game. "That's Tee's best game of the year," Coach Scott commented after the game. "And Kohler (playing his first game in three weeks) also helped a lot with his steadying influence. All the boys did well."

As true as the statement was in regard to the second half, it certainly wasn't that way during the opening session. Midway through the period, the Phantoms appeared off to the races, but the Gobblers caught up and even took a brief lead. And during the final 11 minutes of the first half, Carolina could only register eight points.

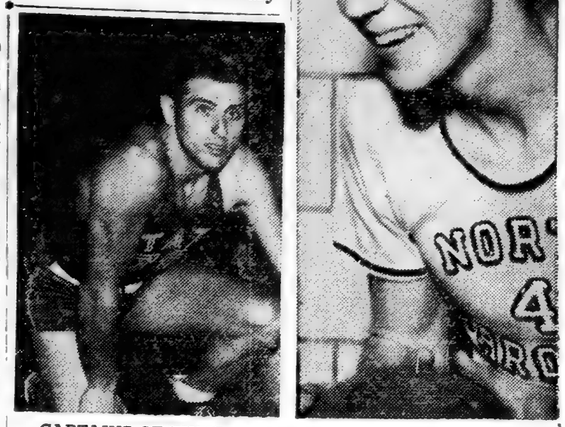
The Tar Heels jumped off at the start of hostilities with a quick 3-0 yead, but VPI came right back to double this output, with Jack Shockey, Tech's high scorer with 11 points, contributing four tallies.

Four-Point Lead

At this point, Paxton and Thorne began to make their scoring presence felt. Big Bob dropped in two layups and a one-hander, Thorne added another layup, and Carolina led at 7:20 by 11-7.

The Phantoms increased the four-point margin to six in the next six minutes, and at 13:45, they held their biggest advantage of the half, an 18-12 lead. That's when VPI began to move—and kept moving until in possession of a 20-19 lead at the 17-minute mark. It was nip and tuck the rest of the half, with Thorne's long set with 10 seconds left providing Carolina with a 23-22 halftime lead.

At the start of the second half, the Tar Heels took four minutes to get up steam, then began to move at the four-minute mark. Before this time, the Gobblers had held a one-minute advantage, but goals by Nearman and King Cole put Carolina back in the fore. Then followed the hot spell, and the Phantoms, changing to a fast break, quickly clinched their semi-final berth.



Start of Splurge

Nearman pushed in a follow-up at 4:10 to start things off, and came back with a layup 40 seconds later. Fred Swartzberg added a free throw and Shockey interrupted the splurge with a long set.

In the next three minutes, the already-hot Tar Heels really became torrid. They took seven shots between them—and made all seven. In succession, the order read: Cole on a set, Thorne with a one-hander, Nearman on on a follow-up, Paxton a push-shot from way out, Nearman a layup, Swartzberg one of the same, and Paxton a one-hander. All this scoring raised the count to 46-28 with 8:30 gone in the second half.

From here on, it was easy sailing. Carolina continued to rack up points, although Johnny Dillon, into the game for Nearman, was unable to connect with a hook. Tech's elongated center, Bob Dickson, blocked just about everything Dillon threw up.

Shot averages for the contest show that the Phantoms hit 25 for 70, for an accuracy rating of 36 per cent. VPI had 15 for 76, for 19 per cent. Individual averages give Thorne six for ten, for 60 per cent, Nearman five for nine for 55 per cent, and Paxton six for 16, for 37 per cent.

CAPTAINS OF THEIR respective teams, State's Leo Kaikaveck, left, and Carolina's Bob Paxton, right, will be opposing each other for the final time in their brilliant collegiate careers tonight when their teams square off in the semi-finals of the conference basketball tournament in Durham.

Tournament Box Scores

Tar Heels Breeze

Carolina (61)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Paxton, f	6	2	3	14	3
Swartzberg	2	2	1	6	1
Nyimicz, f	2	0	3	4	0
Scholbe	0	0	0	0	0
Carson	0	1	1	1	1
Nearman, c	5	4	3	14	2
Dillon	0	2	0	2	3
Kohler, g	0	0	0	0	0
Thorne	6	0	1	12	1
Cole, g	4	0	1	1	1
Totals	25	11	13	61	12
VPI (40)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Spruhan	2	0	2	4	0
Reed	0	0	1	0	0
Shockey, f	5	1	5	11	1
Ashburner	0	0	0	0	0
Dickson, c	3	0	4	6	4
Harris	0	0	1	0	0
Chambers, g	3	2	2	8	1
Sayre	1	5	1	7	1
Wriston	0	1	1	1	0
Fisher	1	1	3	3	0
Totals	15	10	20	40	7

Halftime score: UNC 23 VPI 22.

Cats Triumph

Maryland (51)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Brown, f	3	1	5	7	5
Murray	0	0	1	0	0
Wright, f	2	4	4	8	0
Edwards, c	3	1	5	7	3
Siegrist	3	0	3	6	1
Smith, g	5	3	2	13	0
Crescenze	1	0	1	2	1
Lanni, g	1	2	1	4	0
Armsworthy	2	0	4	4	0
Totals	20	11	26	51	10
Davidson (58)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Williams, f	4	0	4	8	2
Iverson	0	0	0	0	1
Manor, f	0	3	5	3	1
Poole	1	0	2	2	2
Cheek, c	8	5	4	21	6
Ashmore, g	6	5	1	17	0
Cobb, g	2	3	1	7	3
Totals	21	16	17	58	15

Halftime score: Davidson 29, Maryland 26.

Devils Win

G. W. (51)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Moffat, f	1	2	5	4	3
Cantwell	1	2	3	4	1
Cerra, f	5	4	4	14	2
Small	4	4	1	12	0
Adler, c	2	1	5	5	0
McNiff, g	3	1	1	7	3
Pictras	0	0	2	0	0
Haithcock, g	1	3	2	5	2
Totals	17	17	23	51	11
Duke (54)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Ausbon, f	2	4	1	8	1
York	1	1	1	3	2
Youmans, f	5	0	3	10	1
Collins, c	0	4	3	4	1
Duff	0	4	4	4	2
Hughes, g	5	1	5	11	1
Sapp	6	2	2	14	0
Martin, g	0	0	1	0	0
Gordon	0	0	3	0	0
Totals	19	16	23	54	8

Halftime score: G. W. 31 Duke 27.

Wolfpack Rallies

W. & M. (52)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Sokol, f	5	2	2	12	1
Teach, f	1	0	3	2	0
Holley	1	1	5	3	0
Giermak, c	2	3	4	7	2
McMillan, g	1	1	4	3	0
Robinson	2	2	5	6	0
Bunting, g	8	3	3	19	2
Green	0	0	0	0	0
Totals	20	12	26	52	5
N. C. State (73)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Dickey, f	9	1	2	19	3
Stine	0	0	0	0	0
McComas, f	0	2	2	2	0
Ranzino	3	0	1	6	1
Horvath, c	8	3	3	19	4
Cartier	1	3	1	5	0
Bartels, g	5	0	0	10	3
Sloan	0	5	3	5	2
Katkaveck, g	3	1	3	7	1
Burbas	0	0	0	0	0
Totals	29	15	15	73	14

Halftime score: State 22, W. & M. 17.

Diamond Drills

Baseball activity on the Carolina campus yesterday found the local diamond hopefuls at work on Navy field, their temporary practice location, as the Tar Heel coaches continued to get a look at prospects for the 1948 season.

Southwest Emerson, the usual site of the practices was so muddy that the workout had to be shifted. Although Emerson field proper at present is in bad condition, it is expected that it will be ready by the time of the first game.

Batting practice featured the work, and freshmen candidates took the spotlight as the coaches sought to size up their abilities before making a cut in the squad some time next week.

Lettermen were not required to work out yesterday, but a number of them were present.

Tourney Games Prove Thrillers

Duke Indoor stadium, Durham, March 4—The three non-Carolina games played in the Southern Conference tourney in Durham yesterday proved to be as thrill-packed and hard fought as the Tar Heel-Gobbler clash was.

The other afternoon game was a thriller all the way. Davidson led at the halftime 29-26, but the Terrapins finally caught up at 43-all and then went ahead by two points. The Wildcats regained the lead and upped their margin to 50-45 with five minutes remaining.

Maryland narrowed the gap to three points but that was a close as they could get and Davidson was home safely. Buddy Cheek's 21 tallies paced the Wildcats to their victory.

In the evening games, highly-favored N. C. State college's Wolfpack had to go all-out to subdue underrated William and Mary, 73-53. Led by little Gere Bunting, who draped himself in all kinds of glory, the Virginians played the national point leaders to a virtual 22-17 first half-standstill, only to falter before the second period West Raleigh onrush. Dick Dickey and Paul Horvath tallied 19 points each for the winners.

Duke outlasted a superior, but sloppy George Washington outfit in the final game of a long day by a 54-51 margin. The Blue Devils were ten points down at one place in the first half, but rallied to a 27-31 position at halftime.

After two minutes of the second period the Dukesters tied the game at 31-all, afterward to take the lead and hold it throughout the remainder of the ball game.

Loop Tank Meet Starts Here Today

Dolphins Favored To Retain Crown Over Seven Rivals

By Bill Kellam

Swimming coach Dick Jamerson and his highly favored Blue Dolphins assume the role of willing hosts at 3 o'clock this afternoon to mermen representing some eight Southern conference schools when the local and visiting contestants launch the 15th annual conference swimming championships in Bowman Gray Memorial pool.

Heading the list of group of schools that will be stroking to depose the Dolphins as champs will be State's deflated tankers. Duke, VMI, VPI, Washington and Lee, William and Mary, and George Washington will also be represented by entrants.

Finals Tomorrow

Approximately 100 laurel-seekers are slated to churn the waters of the Carolina pool in this afternoon's qualifying events. The survivors are then slated to stroke it out for the individual honors in the nine-event program beginning at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Dick Jamerson disclosed yesterday afternoon that he intended to enter around 25 Carolina mermen in today's initial aquatic festivities. Late yesterday, the Tar Heel mentor was still undecided as to what men would open in the various events. However, he did release a list of probable starters.

Heading the home forces into the spray will be two individual event champions and the members of the two record-holding relay teams. Norm Sper holds the crowns in the 150-yard backstroke and diving events while Jerry Cook won the 1947 200-yard breaststroke title.

Twining to Triple

Sensational freestyler Dick Twining will be favored to cop the titles in the 100, 220, and 440 yard freestyle events. Earlier this season, the Carolina ace easily defeated Duke's Bill Adams, the defending champ, in a dual meet in the local pool and he is expected to repeat his previous feat in the marathon event tomorrow.

Twining's speedy performance in the State rout on Wednesday has established him as the favorite in the 100 and 220. Against the Wolfpack, he easily splashed out victories in both events against the Aggie men, who are expected to provide him with

(See DOLPHINS, page 4)

Baseball Briefs

By United Press

GIANTS THREATEN

Phoenix, Ariz., March 4—President Horace Stoneham has issued an ultimatum to the New York Giant shortstop, Buddy Kerr.

Stoneham has told Kerr to come to camp at the club's terms, or else be suspended if he isn't in shape by opening day. Stoneham admits Kerr is holding out for $20.000. The Giants are offering $18.500.

PAGE PLAGUED

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4—The New York Yankees' ace fireman, Joe Page, is having a tough time getting started in spring training. Page sprained a finger his first day out, and today he had to pass up a workout because of a cold.

TIGER TOILERS

Lakeland, Fla., March 4—Four pitchers who learned their baseball on the sandlots in Detroit are likely to be the work-horses of the Tiger staff this year. Manager Steve O'Neill says he is counting heavily on southpaws Hal Newhouser, Billy Pierce and Ted Gray, and right-hander Art Houtteman.

SENATOR SYSTEM

Orlando, Fla., March 4—The Washinton Senators are going to count heavily on speed and strategy to help them win games this year. Manager Joe Kuhel says he's going to give the team as much "inside baseball" as possible to help make up for a lack of batting power.

KEYSTONE QUESTION

Bradenton, Fla., March 4 — Manager Bill Southworth of the Boston Braves is giving his players plenty of time to fight for the second base and shortstop berths. Southworth says he probably won't decide on his opening day Keystone combination until the end of spring training.

Southworth had a good chance to look over the prospects today as the Braves played their first intra-squad game. Outfielder Danny Litwhiler was the individual star of the game as he rapped a long triple off the clubhouse roof and turned in a brilliant one-handed catch.

ATO, Steele Booters Capture Titles In Intramural Soccer Championships

By Bill Gallagher

ATO 1 and Steele captured the titles in the fraternity and dormitory divisions yesterday afternoon in the intramural soccer tournament.

The ATO team racked up three goals in the first half and settled down to win by a 3-1 count over Sigma Nu. Myrt Sherrard, Tom Jordan and Al Ruggles booted in the scores for the winners. Henry Lenz scored the lone tally for the losers.

In the dormitory division it was a different story as the winning Steele quintet had to come from behind to eke out a 2-1 decision. Everett, on the strength of Bill Seigel's goal in the first half, took an early lead. But Sid Varney and Lee Gliarmis came surging back with two goals in the last half to sew up the win for the Steele team.

Members of winning fraternity group are Myrt Sherrard, Tom Jordan, Al Ruggles, Johnny Clampitt, Al Moore, Bob Plumb, Joe Dorsett, George Griffin and Don Ahern.

The Steele booters are Sid Varney, Lee Gliarmis, Jim Hamilton, Ducky Lloyd, Gerald Allen, Bill Tate, J. T. Odom, Stan Marcyzk, and Bobby Reynolds.

Swimming Tickets

Tickets to the Southern conference swimming meet may be obtained at the Woollen gym ticket window this morning or at the west side door this afternoon after the event gets underway.

The price of a ticket is 50 cents, and each ducat will entitle the bearer to admittance to the swimming activities today and tomorrow. No student passbooks are needed. Because the meet is a Southern conference affair, students will have to pay the 50-cent price.

Ray Swigart Joins Tar Heel Mat Entry In Conference Meet

Ray Swigart, sophomore from Norfolk, Virginia, has added his name to the duo of Carolina matmen who will journey to Lexington next Sunday to try for titles in the Southern conference wrestling tourney, held this year at Washington and Lee university.

Swigart has been working out with Oscar Gupton and Phil Kemp in the mat room in Woollen gym since the close of the regular season.

A 175-pounder, Swigart saw action in only one meet during the current season. In his initial match against North Carolina State Swigart cracked a rib and was forced out of action for the remainder of the season.

Whid Powell's
COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM
GRILLED TARHELLIAS
Also Serving
French Fried Potatoes
with all dinners
Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

SHOE SALE
CLOSE OUT
2000 OR MORE SHOES AT 1/2 PRICE OR LESS
ALL 1.98
1000 OR MORE
MEN'S DRESS OXFORDS – $5.00
GOOD FOR DRESS — GOOD FOR WORK
SEE OUR TABLE OF MEN'S PANTS
SPECIAL ASSORTMENT 3.00
LADIES DRESSES
1 RACK @ 1.00
1 RACK @ 2.00
1 RACK @ 3.00
We are having calls for good merchandise for overseas shipping. We have made our prices low. Buy NOW and save. Ask about our special prices for large quantities for over-seas shipment.
BERMAN'S

BASEBALL?

Read about
PENNANT CHANCES IN 1948
- What mystery team is favored over both the Dodgers and Cards?
- Name the famous manager with the greatest pennant record in baseball history!
- How many homers did the Giants hit last season?
- What talented pitcher is the farm system's newest gift to Lippy Durocher?
- Who threatens to dethrone the World Champion Yanks?

You don't need a crystal ball to find the answers. They're all in Bill Fay's hard-hitting, fast-reading, Sports Feature in this week's Collier's, now on sale. And keep ahead of the headlines every week with
Bill Fay
NOW EVERY WEEK IN
Collier's
Get your copy each Friday at your college book store or newsstand. Ten cents.

The women's and children's wear industries offer rewarding opportunity to a variety of
CREATIVE TALENTS
Virtually every type of creative ambition finds a satisfying outlet in the women's and children's wear industries of America.
These industries have, in fact, progressed to their present position as third largest in the United States by their effective utilization of these varied talents.
Whether the individual goal is business administration, fashion creation and production, merchandising, advertising or sales management, the fashion industries offer a rich field for the fulfillment of one's personal goal.
Introducing
The Women's and Children's Wear Industry
to
THE AMERICAN COLLEGIATE PUBLIC
A series sponsored by "Women's Wear Daily," a Fairchild Publication, 7 East 12th St., New York 3, N.Y.

Quick Service
DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham

Phone 8686
Dr. William Kohn
OPTOMETRIST
Over Carolina Coffee Shop
Office hours
9:00-1:00 Sat.
9:00-5:00 Tues. & Thurs.

Fraternity Work a Specialty
Charles Valentine's Cabinet Shop
FURNITURE
REPAIRED
REFINISHED
UPHOLSTERED
MADE-TO-ORDER
PHONE 9357 - PITTSBORO RD

Boggs Receives Appointment To Brazilian Folklore Group

Dr. Ralph S. Boggs, well known folklorist of the University and member of the department of Romance languages, has just been appointed United States representative and correspondent for the newly established National Commission of Folklore of the Brazilian Institute of Education, Science and Culture in Reo de Janeiro, it was learned here yesterday.

BOGGS

Dr. Boggs was informed of the appointment by Renato Almeida, Secretary General of the Commission, which is to work in conjunction with UNESCO.

Mr. Almeida said: "It is my pleasure to inform you that the new organ, National Commission of Folklore, has just acclaimed my proposal of your name to be its representative and correspondent in the United States. In doing so, its members have duly shown their recognition of your distinguished and invaluable services in behalf of that genuine cultural Pan-Americanism which is our common goal.

"We hope and trust that your new capacity, rather than being too much a burden, will encourage you to go on fighting with constant determination toward the strengthening of spiritual bonds between our two peoples —through the medium of folklore.

"I heartily congratulate you upon this demonstration of the admiration and affection with which you are held by Brazilian folklorists—and which I enthusiastically share."

Daniels Wins Prize In Cigarette Contest

Out of the 618 entries in the Chesterfield Bowl Cigarette Guessing contest this past week, only one prediciton, made by Gerald M. Daniel, Alpha Epsilon Pi house, was correct. Daniels, who guessed there were 368 cigarettes in the one-gallon jar placed in the window of the University restaurant, and may pick up his prize of $5.00 in the Graham Memorial office tomorrow.

Runner-up, and winner of $3.00, was Lewis R. Bloom, 12 Cobb Terrace, who guessed the jar contained 369 cigarettes.

On the whole, predictions centered around 450, though the lowest guess was 121 and the highest an amazing 7,005.

JUST ARRIVED—

IDES OF MARCH
Thornton Wilder
THE GILDED HEARSE
Charles O. Gorham

Ab's Intimate Bookshop

Ridgeway's
OPTICIANS
Complete Eyeglass Service
Prompt attention to al mail orders
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
Raleigh N. C.

Philo Vance's GAMBLE
with
ALAN CURTIS
TERRY AUSTIN
FRANK JENKS
TALA BIRELL
TODAY
VILLAGE

The ORIENTAL
Chinese-American Restaurant
116 E. Parrish Street
Durham, N. C.

Campus Calendar

2:00 p. m.—Debate council, Roland Parker No. 1.

5:15 p. m.—Lenten Services. Episcopal church.

6:00 p. m.—Student supper and study group, Presbyterian church.

6:30 p. m.—Recorded dinner music, Main lounge.

7:00 p. m.—Wallace club, Roland Parker No. 3.

7:30 p. m.—Hillel foundation Roland Parker Lounge No. 1 and 2.

8:30 p. m.—Men's Glee club concert, Hill hall.

-SP-CP-

(Continued from page 1)

the November 22 edition of the "Daily Tar Heel." The editorial, signed by Barbara Cashion, speaker of the Coed Senate; Donleen MacDonald, president of the Women's council; Jack Folger, speaker of the student legislature and Al Lowenstein, then a member of the student council, said, in part:

"The wisdom of electing to certain student government offices on a partisan basis is open to serious question and ought to be carefully considered by individuals and parties alike; for instance, there would seem to be much merit in a judiciary selected on a non-political basis."

SP spokesmen are in agreement with student body president Tom Eller who, in his "State of the Campus" address, declared that in order to have a better working judiciary with no cliques, the members to the councils must be elected on a non-partisan basis.

-Legislature-

(Continued from page 1)

ous measure, but all his points were in vain as this one sailed through.

When the last few bills of the evening came to the floor before the session broke up at 20 minutes before midnight, the Legislature coeds were still present, thanks to Women's council Chairman Donnie MacDonald, who obtained late permission for the girls who were again showing that they could speak when they wanted to last night.

The literary quarterly bill to establish the "Carolina Quarterly" also went through the legislative ranks with hardly any trouble at all, followed by CCUN State Director Lincoln Kan's proposal for the Legislature to sponsor two delegates to the University of Chicago forum on the United Nations to be held in the Windy City on March 24 and 25.

When objections to the measure came up to the effect that soon any campus organization could ask for money to send its representatives to conventions, Kan took the floor and stated that no members of the CCUN group would be included in the two sponsored passages.

The one bill which was passed with no discussion and no dissenting vote was the measure proposed last week by Speaker Pro Tempore Miles Smith to establish a committee to investigate the possibility of setting up a campus post office.

A mature milk cow will drink an average of 15 gallons of water a day; a horse, 10; a pig, two, and a sheep, one gallon.

-UP-

(Continued from page 1)

cooperate with any group in any move to better student government, and will meet in good faith with any organized group concerning this or similar issues, but the party feels that the plan which was offered would put the election of council members more in the hands of a small group of politicians who would control the campus judiciary. We wish to put the judicial set-up above the plane of politics."

The meetings at 3 o'clock Monday will be in the Men's council room for those interested in that group. Bill Tate, council chairman, will preside. For prospective Student council nominees, Student council Chairman Bob Broughton will sit over the board which will meet in the Grail room. Members of the two boards will be either in the councils at present or former members.

"We hope," UP Chairman Williams concluded, "that by a thorough examination of candidates by qualified men who have served or are serving on the two councils, that the University party may be able to present to the student body a slate of nominees who are qualified, interested, and conscientious workers. We sincerely hope that all interested persons will appear before the boards on Monday so that we may have a wide choice of qualified men to choose from."

HILLEL SERVICES

The weekly Hillel Friday night services will be held tonight in Roland Parker lounge at 7:30. Speaker will be Edith Feemat, a graduate student in sociology. Her topic will be "A civilization without institutions," which is about a South American tribe completely devoid of all culture traits.

INTRIGUE... ...in the Shanghai underworld!
INTRIGUE... ...with two dangerous women!
INTRIGUE... ...in the world's dirtiest racket!

in "INTRIGUE"
with
JUNE HAVOC · HELENA CARTER
TOM TULLY • MARVIN MILLER • DAN SEYMOUR
TODAY
CAROLINA

CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

ATTENTION WINSTON - SALEMITES and Northwest North Carolinians—Let the folks back home know what you're doing in Chapel Hill. Report all news to Owen Lewis, 67 Trailer Court or DTH business office, your Winston-Salem Journal correspondent. Phone 9032 or F-3371. 1-2000-1

WIN PRIZE. HELP US CHOOSE NEW name for Co-ed Beauty Shop. Prize—free service up to $15.00. Contest closes Friday, March 12. Address: Co-ed Beauty Shop, 312 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, North Carolina 1-c1841-1

FOR RENT 6A

LARGE SINGLE ROOM AVAILABLE for spring quarter and summer school to male graduate student. Telephone 3341. 1-1843-1

FOR SALE 6B

ONE MAN TRAILER. MAY BE SEEN at 245 B.V.P. Trailer Court. Price $450. Contact 309 Mangum after 6:00 p.m. 1-1844-1

TRAILER, GOOD CONDITION. CAN be seen any night after 6:30—11 Pittsboro Road Trailer Court. $750.00 cash (1-1829-1)

MALE ENGLISH BULLDOG 6 WEEKS old in the process of registration. Call 8857. (1-1837-1)

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. 1-ch1x2-1

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1948 4-DOOR SUPER DELUXE FORD. Radio, heater, other extras. 900 miles Steve Parrott, Phone 9021, Kappa Sig House. (1-1826-1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

MAN FOR PART TIME YARD WORK. Telephone 3341. 1-1842-1

LOST 12

BLONDE COCKER SPANIEL PUPPY, age 11 weeks, near Murphy Hall at noon Wednesday. Finder please contact Margaret Marley at 7066. Reward 1-1845-1

BROWN WALLET CONTAINING $72 or $73 Wednesday, probably in Carolina Theatre, Library, or Zo building Reward. Dallas T. Jones, box 163 or Quonset No. 33. 1-1846-1

ONE BETA THETA PI FRATERNITY pin. Finder return to Nan Reid, third floor Smith Dormitory. Reward. 1-2000-1

JUST RECIEVED
FOR SPRING
• SPORT JACKETS
• GABARDINE SUITS
• CORDUROY JACKETS
We Invite Carolina Students to Visit Us
The YOUNG MEN'S SHOP
East Main at Church
DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

LIL ABNER By AL CAPP

Picnic? Heck No! To HARRY'S – YEP!!

-Dolphins-

(Continued from page 3)

the most opposition in this weekend's activities.

State's Bill Ward is expected to retain his 50 yard freestyle crown but Carolina's Bill Pritchard and Floyd Drew will be primed to upset the dope bucket with a victory.

Carolina's speedy medley trio of co-captain Jesse Greenbaum, Jim Thomas, and Bob Ousley are heavy favorites to cop the blue ribbon honors in their event while the freestyle Pale Blue and White relayers are also given the nod by observers.

Carolina's probable lineup:

Medley relay — Greenbaum, Thomas, Ousley.

220 freestyle — Twining, Morrow, Hutton, Pell.

50 freestyle — Drew, Pritchard, Osborne, Ingram.

Diving — Sper, Whichard, Beam, Erle.

100 freestyle — Greenbaum, Morrow, Mericka, Twining, Osborne.

Backstroke — Thomas, Sper, Bippart, Clements.

Breaststroke — Ousley, Cook, Breeden, Bartlett.

440 freestyle — Basescu, Twining, Norwood, Elliott, Hutton.

Freestyle relay — Greenbaum, Morrow, Twining, Drew, Osborne, Pritchard. (Four men.)

-Press-

(Continued from page 1)

the problems of young writers.

Competition will be held in 20 classifications including best news story, sports story, feature, editorial, headline, etc.

Magazine editors have been requested to submit five stories considered best of the year so that the New Yorker writers may discuss "The Problems of the Young Writer," in connection with the stories selected.

Officers of the NCCPA are Clay S. Felker of Duke, president; James Gribbens of Davidson, vice-president; Peggy Davis of Salem, secretary; Kenneth Coble of State, treasurer; and Dr. E. E. Folke of Wake Forest, permanent secretary.

There will be no limit to the number of delegates attending the convention from any school or publication. However only the regularly elected editors and business manager of each publication will be allowed to vote in the business meetings. Rooms at the Washington Duke hotel have been reserved by the Executive committee of the NCCPA for the delegates.

Additional information may be secured by writing or wiring Clay S. Felker, Box 5498, Duke Station, Durham, N. C.

Jerry the Tailor
OVER
N. C. CAFETERIA

THE DETROIT SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Dr. Karl Druger, Conductor
Henrietta Schumann, Pianist
Page Auditorium, Duke University, Durham
Thursday, March 18 at 8:15 P.M.
Tickets—$2.50, $3.00, and $3.50 (incl. tax).
Miss Schumann will play the Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 2
For reservations; phone Durham 112 ext. 270; or, write J. Foster Barnes, Duke University, Durham, N. C.

ARE YOU UNAWARE OF UNDERWEAR?

If you're laughing on the outside —dying on the inside (from creeping shorts with a cruel center seam) you're not aware of the wonders of Arrow underwear!

Switch to Arrow shorts and relax. Arrow shorts (with the patented seamless crotch) come in a variety of styles with either gripper fasteners or buttons and are Sanforized labeled, guaranteeing less than 1% shrinkage. $1.25, $1.50, and $1.75.

ARROW SHIRTS and TIES
UNDERWEAR • HANDKERCHIEFS • SPORTS SHIRTS

Follow the ARROW TO Varsity

REHDER'S
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

CHAPEL HILL CLEANERS
104 Franklin St.
Phone F-2466
BETTER CLEANING & PRESSING

Harmony in a musical print for the "Forgotten Woman"

Martha Manning
as seen in Woman's Home Companion

$14.95

Guaranteed by Good Housekeeping

Martha Manning recognizes the fitting needs of the shorter, slightly fuller figure . . . and does something about it! Heres a now - into - summer dress with length-loving pleats. Black print on Concerto Blue, Allegro Aqua, Rhapsody Pink, Libretto Lilac in Enka Rayon Sheer. Illusion sizes, 16½-22½.

BERMAN'S
A New Shipment Of JANE EVANS Frocks

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Cloudy and colder with possible rain.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
No Opinions
One Hand Concerto
Legislature Measures

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, MARCH 6, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 118

Parker Favors Preparedness In Law Speech

A three-point program calling for adequate preparedness at home, aid to friendly nations in Europe, and support of the United Nations was advanced here Thursday night in an address by John J. Parker, Charlotte, Federal Judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals and member of the international military tribunal at the Nurenberg trials.

Addressing the Law School association, headed by William Friday, Dallas, in Gerrard hall, Judge Parker asserted that America today is faced with the challenge of world leadership. He was introduced by Terrell Webster, Gastonia, chairman of the Association's speakers committee.

"We must make ourselves strong not only physically but also intellectually and spiritually," Judge Parker said. "Peace will be preserved, not by apeasement or cowardly surrender, but by manly determination and readiness to maintain the right."

He said that "not to help the nations of western Europe who need our help so badly is to turn them over to Russia. To help Europe adequately will require only a small part of our great national income. It will be the best investment we have ever made.

"Let us strengthen the international organization and not abandon or destroy it. Rome wasn't built in a day; and our own national government was nearly a century in coming to full strength and power."

Judge Parker said that "if we fail to accept world leadership, it will unquestionably be seized by a totalitarian power. But if we accept the responsibility of leadership and carry into the world community the principles of fair dealing and respect for human rights upon which our own national life is founded, it is not too much to hope that those principles will win their way there, as they have here, and that with the passage of the years a new understanding of human life and human values will become the common heritage of the human race."

IN WRIGHTSVILLE, GEORGIA, A CROWD WATCHES a parade of hooded members of the Ku Klux Klan. The demonstration included a barbecue and the burning of a 15-foot cross. KKK Grand Dragon Samuel Green, dressed in a brilliant green cloak, addressed some 2,000 persons. He said: "We southern people realize another danger has arisen even from our own President who would take our constitutional rights so that he could guarantee social equality between you and other people—black, yellow or red." (International Soundphoto)

Law Applicants Should File Now

Undergraduates interested in applying for admission to the Law School for the fall semester should file applications before April 1, Dean Wettach advises. Any student who will complete his pre-law work by September, 1948, should place his application on file now .

The minimum basis for admission to the Law School is three years of approved academic work. An average grade of C is required on all college work presented.

Dean Wettach urges that any qualified student who is definitely interested in the study of law can be sure that his application will receive every consideration. It is expected that all applications on hand on April 1 will be passed on during the month of April. No applicant will be accepted until all of the applications and accompanying records have been carefully evaluated.

Applications filed after April 1 will be placed on a reserve list. Beginning law students may be admitted only in September.

Director of Lunceford Band Is 'Tar Heel Born And Bred'

When the Jimmie Lunceford band arrives for its 7:30 "Jazz at the Memorial" concert tomorrow night, it will be like old homeweek for one of the band's two directors.

Eddie Wilcox, who with Joe Thomas will co-direct the group of hot jazz artists, will be closer to his old hometown that he has been in quite some time. The versatile arranger of such Lunceford hits as "Outskirts of Town," "Like a Ship at Sea," and "Rhythm Is Our Business' is a Tar Heel born and bred.

The co-director, whose band comes to Memorial hall sponsored by the senior class, was born in Raleigh. A piano man imbued with the spirit of "personalized rhythm", he spent his childhood in the Tar Heel state. Wilcox was one of eight children born to ambitious parents who insisted that each of their children study the piano. For that reason, the-band-leader reminiscently says that he cut his eye teeth on the ivories.

When he had completed elementary school in Raleigh, Wilcox decided to set his sights for a career in medicine. To attain his ambition he enrolled in Fiske university, Memphis, Tennessee, where he met the late Jimmie Lunceford. The two put together the first Lunceford band, which played for college dates and firemen's balls. With the band's initial success, Wilcox's medical career was forgotten.

After Lunceford's death, Wilcox and Joe Thomas—tenor sax man and vocalist—decided to pledge themselves to continue the band, keeping the Lunceford group together as a memorial to their late "boss."

As arranger for the group Wilcox has helped make the versions of "Sophisticated Lady", "Solitude", "Walking Through Heaven", and "Blues In The Night" famous for the jazz group.

EDDIE WILCOX

Joe Thomas' career differs greatly from that of the Lunceford arranger. Thomas was born in Uniontown, Pennsylvania. A saxophone star who was never given a formal lesson on any instrument, Thomas was evidently endowed with native ability. He has attained a position of enviable eminence as an exciting sax stylist.

Other members of the jazz group are Jack Carruthers, Mustapha Hashim, Al Grey, Russell Green and Joe Marshall.

Tickets for the Lunceford concert, set at $1.25 per, were first distributed to members of the

(SEE LUNCEFORD, page 4)

YWCA Says Vacation Jobs Are Wide Open

Opportunities for summer activities open to college students this year cover a wide range of interests, according to information received during the past week in the YWCA office.

Social service, scientific research, government service, institutional work, jobs in industry, and overseas projects are included in the activities set up by such groups as the National Intercollegiate Christian council, American Ethical union, American Friends Service committee, and many denominational groups.

Probational appointments at the Bureau of Standards and the Naval Ordnance and Research laboratories may be secured through the Civil Service board. These appointments are for periods of school vacations, but may aid in securing regular appointments after graduation. Students with majors in chemistry, engineering, mathematics, metallurgy, physics, or meteorology are eligible to apply, but must take a written test of general abilities.

National Intercollegiate Christian council sponsors three summer projects of special interest to students, all of them open to men and women of all racial and national backgrounds.

Students hold full time paid jobs in government agencies and spend eight to twelve hours a week in seminar meetings in the Washington Student Citizenship seminar. The New York College Summer Service group provides work for students in settlements, unions, and other agencies, and study in economic, social, and religious problems. The Students-in-Industry projects involve working in factories in Chicago, Illinois; Minneapolis, Minnesota; Hartford, Connecticut; Columbus, Ohio; or Los Angeles, California, with frequent meetings with community leaders.

Opportunities abroad include youth hostel trips, international service seminars, and reconstruction work in South America, Scandinavia, the British Isles, and continental Europe.

Applications for many of the projects should be submitted next week. Students interested may obtain further information from Mrs. Betty Rose Dowden in the YWCA office.

DIRECTOR of the National Bureau of Standards, in Washington, Dr. Edward U. Condon is shown discussing the accusation by a House Un-American Activities subcommittee that he was "one of the weakest links in our atomic security." He was also charged with "knowingly or unknowingly" associating with alleged Soviet espionage agents. Dr. Condon, who had been previously approved by a loyalty board, refuted all charges. (International)

ICRIL Schedules Group Discussion

Students of Duke, North Carolina college and the University will discuss "Segregation in Education, Religion and Transportation" in the regular monthly meeting of the Intercollegiate Council for Religion in Life to be held in the Presbyterian church this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Reverend Charles McCoy, Dr. Tinsley Spraggins, and attorney Herman L. Taylor are slated as discussion leaders for the group. Mr. McCoy is an active Wesley Foundation worker at State college, Dr. Spraggins a head of the St. Augustine's college history department, and Taylor holds the position of lawyer in North Carolina for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The local ICRIL group is one of 21 groups scattered throughout the South. Students and professors of the University, Duke, and North Carolina college founded it some ten years ago for the purpose of religious study based on social problems, and for friendly exchange of ideas among students of the three neighboring school.

American Spy Group May Be Investigated

By United Press

The Justice Department may soon indict a suspected spy ring, according to hints dropped today during Congressional uproar over Dr. Edward U. Condon, chief of the Bureau of Standards.

California's Republican Representative Nixon threw this hint at a House Un-American Activities committee meeting where the Commerce department stuck by its guns and refused again to submit its loyalty records on Condon.

Representative Rank, a Democrat from Mississippi, had earlier proposed that the committee expose all its records on Condon.

Nixton objected and said that a New York grand jury is investigating spying by Americans and aliens alike. He stated that the grand jury's findings might be "prejudiced" if the complete files were made public.

John L. Towne, secretary of the department's loyalty board, came before the committee in repsonse to a subpoena that ordered him to show up with the papers.

However, he didn't have the deports and refused to answer any questions about them.

Secretary of Commerce Harriman advised the committee by letter last night that the records would not be turned over to the Congress members. He said that to do so would be "prejudicial" to the public interest.

In this situation:

1. Committee members talked of asking Congress to pass a law forcing Harriman to surrender the papers.

2. Harriman's stand was lambasted in speeches on the House floor by Reps. Mackinnon (R-Minn.", Hoffman (R-Mich), and Rich (R-Pa).

Rich said: "The only way we will get anything of benefit out of those bureaus downtown is to clean house—next November."

3. An Un-American Activities Subcommittee recommended that the full committee hold formal, public hearings on the case of Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

4. Condon himself told reporters that "Oh, certainly," he favors hearings. As a matter of fact, he said, he asked for them last July.

Injured Skipper Of Sunken Ship Flown to Norfolk

Manteo, March 5 —(UP)— A Coast Guard helicopter has flown to a Norfolk hospital with the master of a 93-foot fishing vessel which sank this afternoon five miles off Oregon Inlet near Manteo. Three other crew members are safe although they were forced to abandon ship before a Coast Guard life boat reached them.

The injured fishermen has been identified as B. V. Smith of Portsmouth, Virginia. He was hurt when two heavy breakers stormed aboard the Marylon, stopping her engines and battering in her side.

The three other crew members have been identified as Ira Taylor of Norfolk, Charles H. Morris of Lowland, and William H. May of South Creek, Virginia.

All four of the men set out for shore in a small skiff when it became apparent they could not wait for the Coast Guard lifeboat only one-hundred yards away. The skiff was capsized by heavy surf, but the men were washed up on shore where the coastguardsmen picked them up.

Communism Threat Discussed by UFW

Theoretically, Communism is a threat to Democracy since a person must select one to the exclusion of the other, members of the United World Federalists decided at their weekly meeting Thursday. The topic of the discussion was "The Nature of the Conflict between the United States and Russia."

A majority of the members agreed that in simplified terms the conflict between the two countries was one of nation states. The theory of an ideological conflict also found support in the discussion.

"World Government without Russia" will be the topic for discussion next week. A new meeting time for next quarter will also be announced, and new officers will be elected.

Senator William Umstead Pays Twice To File As Candidate For Re-election

Raleigh, March 6 —(UP)— Senator William B. Umstead has paid two filing fees in the State Board of Elections office in Raleigh.

Umstead has paid $250 and has actually filed for election to two terms in one time. One term is from election day in November until the date that the 81 Congress convenes. The other is for the regular six-year term.

The reason for the two filing fees is that Umstead is an appointeee of the Governor. By law, a governor can appoint a senator only until the next general election date.

Therefore Umstead's term, unlike that of a regular-elected senator, runs out in November. He must be elected to serve from that time until the date when the next Congress convenes. He must also be elected to serve the regular term that begins on that date.

Umstead's opponent, former Governor J. Melville Broughton, has filed for the race earlier under similar terms.

The new solicitor of the twentieth judicial district, who was sworn in only this morning, also has filed to run for election to succeed himself. T. D. Bryson, junior, of Bryson City took the oath of office this morning. He was named to succeed Baxter C. Jones, who died last week.

Young Republicans Pick 4 Delegates To Attend Orange County Convention

The Young Republican club, meeting last night, selected four delegates, Bill Hipple, Coline Smith, Parrott Parish, and Jack Carson, to attend the Orange County Republican Convention which is being held in Hillsboro on March 10. These delegates will give a report of the convention at the first meeting in the spring quarter, at which time, definite policies will be announced.

President Bill Hipple said that invitations have been sent to three possible presidential candidates, Senator Taft, Governor Dewey, and Mr. Stassen, to come here and speak before the student body. As yet, no answers have been receivd from any of the candidates.

Plans to set up a voting information booth on the campus are being undertaken. Here all students will be able to check their voting procedures in their home states. Information concerning the "absentee ballot" will be gladly given.

The next meeting of the organization will be on March 25 at 7:30 p.m. in Graham Memorial. All students interested in joining the organization are invited to attend. The meeting will be devoted mainly to reports from the Finance Committee and the delegation.

Parrott Parish, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, announced that a series of discussion periods will begin in the spring quarter in which all leading possible candidates for the Republican party nomination will be talked over.

SQUARE DANCE

The Presbyterian Church of Chapel Hill will hold another of its weekly square dances tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the church. The public is invited.

Lodge To Speak Monday Evening

The philosophy department will present its visiting professor, Rupert Clendon Lodge, in a public lecture, "Applying Philosophy", next Monday evening, March 8, at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Professor Lodge was born in Manchester, England. His academic career includes a large number of European and American universities: study at Oxford, Manchester, Marburg, and Berlin; teaching at Manchester, Dalhousie, Alberta, Minnesota, Manitoba, and Harvard. He is a former president of the American Philosophical association (Western Division). In addition he has published many notable books, including "Plato's Theory of Ethics", "The Philosophy of Business," and "The Philosophy of Education."

Members of the Philosophy department describe Professor Lodge as "that rare mixture of the philosopher's philosopher and the layman's philosopher, the thorough scholar and the appealing speaker to a general audience."

The lecture is open to the public.

TO GIVE RECITAL

Arthur F. Settlemyer, Jr., senior music student from Kannapolis, will give a piano recital in Hill hall tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

JAILED FOR CONTEMPT after refusing to divulge where they obtained a lottery ticket reproduced in their Newburgh, New York, newspaper, news editor Douglas V. Clarke (left), and reporter Charles L. Leonard leave the White Plains, N. Y., Supreme Court, after being paroled in the custody of their attorney. The newsmen, sentenced to ten days in jail and fined $100 each, were released by Justice Frank H. Coyne pending decision on their habeas corpus writ application. (International)

Cream-of-the-Crop Coeds . . . . . Model for Fashion Section

Unrelated Incidents Clarified By Carolina Mag

Carolina magazine sources yesterday revealed with the air of conspirators a "Now it can be told" story that explained a number of seemingly unrelated incidents which had puzzled campus observers last week.

Among the mysterious occurences were the unscheduled interruption of the Carolina football team's winter practice session on Friday afternoon, the pile-up of hitch-hikers on the Raleigh road Saturday, and the intense concentration of hangers-on found toxing it with the politicians and publications men in Graham Memorial during the latter part of the last seven days.

According to Editor Fred Jacobson of the mag, the explanation for these and other puzzling happenings is that the Carolina magazine's managing editor Charlie Gibson and Chapel Hill photographer Francis Lavergne Johnson were in the process of photographing ten cream-of-the-crop coeds for the fashion feature of next month's magazine.

During the course of preparing the six page section, photographer Johnson and eager volunteer Gibson took the beauties to various campus spots and shot pictures of them in everything from spring outfits to bathing suits.

The understandable Raliegh road incident occurred when about 25 fortunate hitch-hikers were so interested in the operation of photoraphing Barbara Dalton that none of them even tried to pick up a ride until the model and caravan left.

It was an almost identical happening which held up football practice—except that model Fern Hughes was the lady in question.

And when all ten of the coeds were assembled in Graham Memorial, it was considered an accident that none were crushed in the crowd that gathered to watch the proceedings.

Warned by previous experience, the mag men took Chris White to a location three miles out of town for her modeling chore. Jacobson's explanation for this was that, as she was to be photographed in a bathing suit, it was feared that a snapshot in town might form a traffic jam that the CH's narrow boulevards would never disintergrate.

But after all of the work was done, the pictures turned out as fine as the models—almost—;under the hand of photographer Johnson, the girls had learned that modeling was not as easy as it looks, and the Carolina magazine had gotten what many are betting will be its most popular feature of the year.

"It should be," Jacobson maintained yesterday. "The work was held up a week by adverse weather, and for every day of hold-up the Mags staff was quizzed by myriad would-be assistants who had gotten wind of the feature."

As it now stands, the section will appear in the March mag, scheduled to come out right after Spring vacation, and will feature Fern Hughes on the cover.

In additiion to Hughes, Dalton, and White, others featured in the big fashion coverage are Helen Barnes, Dede Gant, Liz Hazlitt, Caty Holt, Frances Angas, Joan Lucas and Pat Hole.

No One Is Entirely Convinced

To those who attended the last session of the Student Legislature it is evident that at least on two issues, the powers of the Student Council and the redistricting bill, student opinion is far from being stable. Thursday night we thought the Legislature had settled its mind on maintaining the appellate powers within the Student Council. But only hours and many many words later the decision was reversed.

This is proof enough that the legislators and the average student do not know enough about the Council framework and procedure of business to be able to decide if the appellate power can work.

Is is evident after a two-year period that the present system is not what we want. We all want a court system that would be readily applicable and just for all students that have to be tried in the courts. The majority of students with whom we have discussed the matter is strongly in favor of keeping the complete judicial process within the Student Government itself. The majority would like for the Faculty Board of Appeals be used under very unusual circumstances. Most of us believe that it would be the system to use if we can patch up the intricate machinery within the Student Council.

We have not talked with a single member of the Legislature who feels that the Student Council issue is settled. We have yet to talk with a legislator who is satisfied with the present decision to give up completely the effort to keep the appellate powers within Student Government. It was not the question of one orator being more clever than another. The significant factor is that few of the members of the Legislature are convinced that appellate power can be maintained within the jurisdiction of the Student Council.

It is too late now for anything to be done about this in the Legislature. We do not believe that it would be advisable for Speaker Jack Folger to call a special session to thrash out the matter. Nothing can be accomplished by that.

It would seem then that the most sensible thing, in view of all of the skepticism, would be for the voters to defeat the amendment at the polls and demand that those individuals elected to the Student Council install adequate working machinery, possibly along the lines suggested by Bill Crisp, to keep the appellate power in the hands of the students.

Write Away

Opinions Have No Place Here

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Mr. Giduz:

A frank, firm, but friendly rejoinder to your "frank,firm, but firendly" memo in Saturday's Carolina Carousel—you have your sexes confused, Mr. Giduz. I am not a Victory Village vet-wife. In fact, I'm nobody's wife at all! I am—leave us face it—of the masculine sex. My wife, however, wishes me to express to you gratitude for sudden rise to fame.

You and I, Mr. Giduz, are obviously in fundamental disagreement as to the policies which should guide a college newspaper. I doubt that these conflicting viewpoints can be reconciled, but I feel that one rebuttal on my part is necessary.

You infer that my disapproval is based on a disagreement with the opinions expressed by the editors on the editorial page of the DTH. This is untrue. My disapproval stems from the sincere belief that such opinions have no place on the editorial page of a newspaper which represents the student body, for these opinions are the opinions of individuals, and should be presented as such.

Primarily, I do not feel that a college newspaper, owned by the students, and a commercial newspaper, owned by one financially united faction, are analogous. A college paper must represent many divided groups, for the student body is split into many segments of opinion. A commercial newspaper represents one opinion—that held by the owners and their hired editorial staff. I feel, therefore, that your quote by Josephus Daniels is applicable, in this case, to the extent that the DTH must fight for what the students believe, not what the editors believe!

I do not agree with your inference that a paper is "dull" unless it presents opinions of the editor. I do not even see the connection. A paper's interest value does not depend upon the editor's belief or disbelief in a specific issue, but upon the paper's news content, feature stories, columns, letters-to-the-editor, etc., and the manner in which this material is presented.

I did not vote for the present editor because he believed in a combined mag, a new gymnasium, or ashtrays in every classroom. I voted for him because he seemed to me to be the best available candidate for the job of administrating and coordinating the student newspaper. I expect him to suggest changes in format, content, style. I do not expect him to present his personal opinion! I do not believe that his position entitles him to pass judgment on debatable campus issues. I agree with you Mr. Giduz, that an editor's job is to analyze current issue in the hope of helping the student body to form its opinion. But there is a vast difference between an objective analysis and a subjective conclusion! The editor who wishes to draw such a conclusion should appropriate a column, sign his name, and thus unburden himself as an individual, not as a spokesman for the student body. The right of interpreting such an analysis belongs to the student, not to the editor.

You have made no attempt, Mr. Giduz, to answer my charge that a growth of partisanship by the DTH may lead eventually to open support of political candidates. You have not answered my statement that off-campus readers largely base their judgment of the students on such publications as the DTH—and thus the DTH must speak for the students. You have not explained my charge that injustice is done when the DTH speaks for only a segment of the student body, and yet does not openly admit that this is the case.

I have a frank, but friendly statement for you, Mr. Giduz: I believe in unbiased representation of all facts of an issue. The conclusions I will draw for myself.

MR. Irvine N. Smith

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

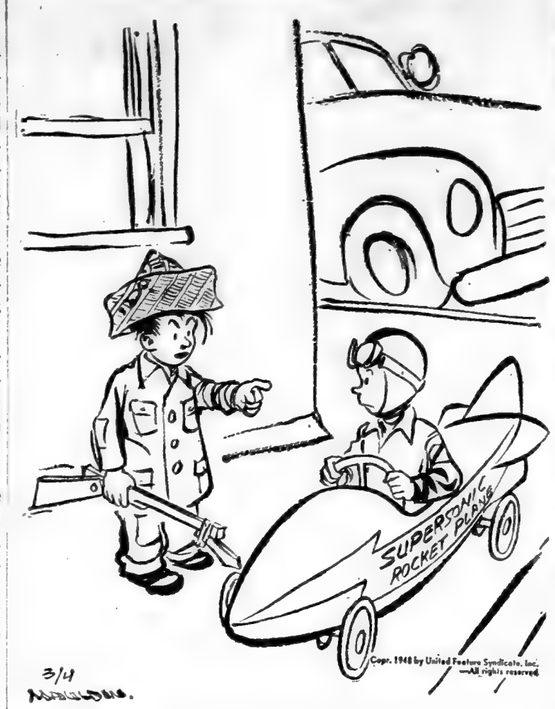
NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.



FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Charlie Gibson — NIGHT SPORTS: Bill Kellam

Sessions Announces Manuscript Deadline

All manuscripts to be considered for publication in the April issue of the Carolina Magazine must be turned in to the Mag office by Monday, March 8. Literary editor Bill Sessions said that short stories, poetry, literary articles and book reviews are urgently needed and particularly invited members of Mr. Phillips Russell's and Mr. Charles Eaton's creative writing classes to submit their work.

All material entered will be given careful consideration by the Literary Board. Criticism will be given by the board members even if the material is not accepted.

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

"There'll always be th' Infantry."

Carolina Carousel

OK, So It's Mister Smith

By R. Foo Giduz

Cheers and salaams to Irvine Noble Smith. . .All hail to him as a soundly established male! (—and mailer, too: See today's "Write Away.") . . .And God bless his better half, Mrs. Nancy Page Smith, for her calm acceptance of the whole muddy mess . . .To totally detract any unjustly conceived feminity from his name we henceforth call him just plain unfrilly "Irv.". . .

So thanks to Irv for his well-thought-out letter. . .We do have a fundamental disagreement in that I believe when you vote for a man for editor you must of necessity consider his beliefs. . .— Just to clear up another issue, CC wishes to explain that anything at all written in the editorial columns of a paper, whether written or initialed by the editor or not, always represents his opinion. . . So the Ed. never needs to write the editorial himself. . .If it's in that column, it IS his opinion, and consequently the opinion of the paper. . .THAT is S. O. P.!

Lately we hear increasing complaints of Lenior hall hash; maybe justifiably so;— but evidently not so, think campus politicoes. . . Take a happy look around next time you're in the chow hall and see how many new faces you spot—of the candidates for offices in spring elections!. . .(Only 24 more axe-grinding days 'til polltime!). . .Yep, the Lenoir hall habit is sort of a candidate's election time migratory habit, from the exclusive frat court dining halls to the "mess hall of the masses." Glad to see you back, boys.—Don't get indigestion!

For early spring sports and boring class back-row boredom relief, we recommend Bazooka Bubble Gum—"The Atomic Chew"—It's the latest thing on sale at the Lenoir hall cig counter. . .And with each and every package for onlyanickle they give you a comic strip, pun ("All work and no play makes Jack" —phew!), a panel of the history of the A-Bomb, and a coupon for valuable prizes. . .(We're saving 'em; please shoot'em in.). . . That's Bazooka!—Love that blow"

—From here it seems as though the local Wallaceites somewhat flubbed the dub at Jonathan Daniels' Tuesday night talk. . . Pretty much in the same way a few of them bit-the-hand-that-was-patting-them-on-the-back in attacking Gen. Herbert Holdridge in his post-speech question period. While attacking left-wingers in his talk and question-answering session, the Raleigh editor also undeniably spanked the not-so-voiceferous right wing, too!. . .And in North Carolina and the south, like it or not, Jonathan Daniels is definitely to be classed as a "liberal."

But Daniels' lukewarm stand in favor of increased civil rights seemed mighty cold for the Wallacers.—We wonder how many of our great unspoken masses of tradition-trod Carolina students would leave their lily-white line and go straight down the road with him on his beliefs.

Record Reviews

One Hand Concerto Is Good

New York — (UP) — The left hand, of Robert Casadesus is sinewy, dexterous, expressive. When relaxed it is all symmetry and grace; and when animated, a veritable joy. Currently it is to be heard at work, with the assistance of the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy, in Ravel's Concerto for the Left Hand. (Columbia; two 12-in., alb.)

Although confined to his lap in this number Casadesus right hand is admirable too. It seems a pity Columbia didn't give him something worth while to play that would have employed both the hands of this master piano player.

Ravel composed the concerto for an unfortunate artist who had only one hand—he lost the other in World War I. Ingenious as it is, it is second-rate Ravel with only the distinction of its freakishness to keep it alive.

Clifford Curzon, the British piano player, is exhibiting both his hands in Brahms' first piano concerto. (English Decca; six 12-in., alb) He plays with self-effacing nobility and produces all the subtle pianistic qualities of tone and color in precisely the perfect degree—never too much, never too little. Moreover, he has a mind. His unified comprehension of the discursive young Brahms permits him to achieve a tight integration; that is, a long, unbroken line. His is the most impressive recorded piano performance this reviewer has heard in a long time. The orchestra is the British National Symphony, under Erique Jorda. The recording is superlative.

Another piano concerto among the new records is Schumann's, in A Minor, played by Artur Rubinstein and a symphony orchestra under William Steinberg. (RCA Victor; four 12-in., alb.) The maker hopes you fell in love with it when you hear Rubinstein play it in the movie "Song of Love," as ghost for the luscious Clara Schumann on the screen, and will find the records irresistable. In truth, it is worthy, both as music and performance. The recording is acceptable but not of the best.

For a breath-taking exhibition of piano virtuosity, hear RCA Victor's album entitled "Chopin-Liszt," made by Vladimir Horowitz. (Three 12-in.) The numbers are Chopin's first ballade, in G minor, and his Nocturne in F sharp, No. 2 of Opus 15; and Liszt's sixth Hungarian Rhapsody and "Au Bord D'Une Source." The recording here is no less brilliant than the playing.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Inside Facts On Sen. Brewster

Drew Pearson

(Editor's note: Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a memo to Senator Ferguson of Michigan, chief Senate Investigator.)

Washington.—Memo to Senator Ferguson of Michigan:

You will recall that last summer serious charges were made against your Republican colleague, Senator Owen Brewster of Maine, by the West Coast airplane builder, Howard Hughes. Senator Brewster was accused of being a lobbyist for Pan American airways and of using his high office for the commercial advantage of one airplane company.

Although these charges were publicly made and although Senator Brewster—at that time—said he welcomed an investigation, nothing has happened since. I understand that Senator Brewster since has informed the Justice Department that he did not wish to be investigated. However, in view of your own record for conducting impartial probes, and in view of the fact that you are courageously going after your Democratic colleague, Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, I feel sure that you will also wish to explore thoroughly the serious charges against a Republican.

Accordingly, I tender herewith certain evidence and the names of witnesses which I believe important in the case.

I suggest that you interview Mrs. Ellen Jenny Brown, RFD 4, Dexter, Maine (telephone St. Albans 4 ring 13), who has served as Brewster's houskeeper for the past three summers. Mrs. Brown is a lady with a New England conscience who believes that Senators should live up to their oath of office. I am sure she will tell your committee the truth.

She will tell, among other things, how Brewster used to fly up to Dexter, Maine, almost every week end in a private airplane belonging to Pan American Airways. The Brewster summer house in Maine was kept open from May 1 to November each year. And when Mrs. Brown first went to work for the Brewsters the Senator spent almost every week end at home.

He would be picked up by a private Pan American plane in Washington, and Mrs. Brown is in a position to testify regarding this because she used to answer the telephone when Sam Pryor, vice president of Pan American Airways, would call to say when the Senator would arrive. The calls usually came from Washington or Greenwich, Conn., the latter being Pryor's home.

The Senator also filled many speaking engagements and Mrs. Brown has the impression that he also flew to them in a private plane. When Charles Brewster, the Senator's son, returned from overseas in 1945, Brewster brought him to Dexter in a private Pan American plane.

When the Brewster-Hughes hearings were held in Washington last summer, the Brewster household was thrown into an uproar. Brewster immediately stopped flying Pan American planes, taking a train from Boston instead or else flying by Northeast Airlines to Bangor. Mrs. Brown was cautioned not to mention to a soul the Senator's past association with Pan American Airways.

As you know, Senator Ferguson, Congress some time ago passed a law making it illegal for railroads to give free passes to members of Congress. The law was because so many favors were passed out to Congressmen by the railroads in the old days that it got to be a scandal. The Civil Aeronautics Board also has stringent rules against free trips by commercial airlines.

Therefore it would seem that any average citizen highly ethical for a U. S. Senator to be constantly accepting free airplane trips from one airline, especially when, at the same time, he was trying to push a law through Congress benefitting that airline.

If you need further evidence, I suggest that you also contact Ernest Glueck, 24 Ormond Street, Rockville, Center, L. I., whose nephew Stanley worked for Pan American in Washington from September, 1946, until September, 1947. Stanley told his family of seeing Brewster several times get into Pan American's private plane in Washington. At first Stanley was willing to testify, until his mother pesuaded him not to. However, if you put him under subpoena he will doubtless tell the truth.

While I realize the Senate's reluctance to investigate one of its own members, nevertheless when such serious charges are made it would seem to be the Senate's duty to explore these charges thoroughly in order that public confidence in the good name of Congress may not be lessened.

Respectfully yours,

Drew Pearson

Student Government Record

Legislature Passes 41 Measures

By Pete Gerns

Winter term is drawing to a close. Three more meetings of legislature (unless our constitution is amended on election day to provide for inauguration in May instead of April) and new faces will be seen on the floor of our legislative body, new voices be heard from the rostrum. Legislators have gotten around to knowing each other well by now and can work more smoothly as a cooperative unit. Since September that body has passed 41 measures and made them into laws, 18 of which were acted on in Fall.

The newest to add to the list of legislature's accomplishments since our last report are four proposed amendments to the student constitution, and a committee to investigate possibilities of having a student post office; it also provided for a literary quarterly and sent three student delegates to a United Nations conference at the University of Chicago on the 24th.

We will today go only shortly into the amendments to the constitution since the Record intends to elaborate on them to a great extent on the 3rd of April, Saturday before Spring elections at which the student body will either ratify or reject these measures.

If the student body will pass on these amendments, the following will be the result: The court of the Inter-fraternity council will have the power to try all cases of fraternity violations of the Coed visiting agreement and will have jurisdiction over all judicial cases involving individual fraternities as organizations, except that individuals concerned with violation of the Honor and Campus codes would be tried by either Men's or Women's council.

The second one of these proposed amendments provides for impeachment by the student legislature of any officer elected by the student body. Impeachment would be for non-performance of duty and or mal-administration of student office. It further provides for the method of trial of the accused.

Another item changes the present juridical set-up as provided for under our constitution (which now deals with Student council, Men's council, Women's council, the courts of the Men's Inter-dormitory council, Men's Dormitory councils and Women's House councils) by giving the Law and Med schools the right to set up their own judicial system.

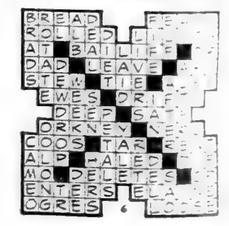
The last one will permit student legislature to review all but social rules made by the Coed senate, if the legislature deem it necessary to review them.

Three other measures that were passed since our last report to you are as follows:

A committee is to be appointed by the Speaker of the legislature to confer with the administration and Post Office officials on the probability of securing a post office for the campus only. This committee is to report back to the assembly by April 8th.

In another bill, passed last Thursday, the legislature authorized the selection of three delegates to be sent to the University of Chicago Forum to attend a mock United Nations assembly. Qualifications of these delegates must be passed on by a CCUN recommendation board and the President of the Student body and his cabinet.

The establishment of a literary quarterly, called the Carolina Quarterly, was provided for in the last session, to be completely self-financing. The resolution states that this shall not become a fund-receiving publication and that the $2,000.—with which the legislature is underwriting this venture shall be the final amount appropriated. It further provides that the editor of this publication shall be appointed by six members of the English and Journalism departments and the student members of the Publications board.



This completes the summation of the passed resolutions.

Several interesting measures were defeated by the legislature during the past year. Among them are an intended authorization to the President of the student body to appoint a research committee to study the principal differences between communism and democracy and to report to the student body periodically.

The Student Government Record will again be published at the beginning of Spring quarter. Any suggestions regarding it should be sent to the writer in care of Student Government office, Graham Memorial.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Straw vote
5—Dull finish
8—Tibetan priest
12—Away from wind
13—A constellation
14—Holm oak
15—To camp
16—Obstruction
17—Globe
18—To droop
19—Hearing organ
20—To inscribe
21—Island near Australia
24—Whitish-gray
25—End
27—Greek letter
30—Hurries
33—Sounded bell
35—God of flocks
36—To take food
38—Hair on neck
39—Last day of week
42—Opened
45—Spanish for "river"
46—Cover
49—Part of stove used for baking
50—Roman bronze
51—Bees' home
52—"The Swedish Nightingale"
53—Southern general
54—To give off
55——— and ends
56—Girl's name
57—Marries

DOWN

1—Hits lightly
2—Olive genus
3—To stretch
4—To permit
5—Woman's title
6—Famed landing place
7—Kind of hat
8—Sign of Zodiac
9—Turkish regiment
10—To turn to water
11—What wheel turns on
19—Plural ending
20—To rub
22—Yes
23—Little drink
24—Viper
25—Resort
27—Time for amusement
28—Chicken
29—Small fish
31—Lifeless
32—Took seat
34—Wine cup
37—Soup bowl
39—Transmits
40—Ascended
41—To perform
42—Large knife
43—Greedy
44—To tear
47—Roman writer
48—Fondles
50—Wing
51—To do

State Outlasts Inspired Phantoms, 55-50; Duke Wins

Dolphins Set Three Marks In First Day Of Loop Meet

Five Coed Teams In Tourney Today

The winter coed basketball sport day will be held in the Women's gym today beginning at 12:30 with the local lassies serving as host to four visiting teams.

The quartet of entrants will include the Duke coeds of neighboring Durham, Meredith college of Raleigh and the Woman's college and Guilford college of Greensboro.

Play in the session will be conducted on a modified round-robin basis with a total of six games to be reeled off. The games will be arranged in order to provide the most varied array of competition for the entering teams.

The action will continue throughout the major part of the afternoon with a halt scheduled to be called at four at which time players and spectators alike will retire to the WAA room of the gym where refreshments will be served. All are cordially invited to attend both the games and festivities that will follow.

TRACK ACTIVITIES

Track activities have switched from the board floor to the cinder lanes and Coach Dale Ranson said yesterday that he would like to have all candidates for freshmen and varsity positions start working out at their convenience. The coaches will be at Fetzer field every afternoon.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

Drew, Twining, Medleymen Shatter Records Yesterday

By Bob Goldwater

Faced with a minimum of competition from their Southern conference rivals, Carolina's Blue Dolphins sought new worlds to conquer in the form of assaults on Old Man Record yesterday afternoon, and the result was that three more loop marks were shattered as the local mermen completely monopolized the honors in the first day of the 15th annual loop swimming championships in Bowman Gray Memorial pool.

The afternoon's festivities saw the finals reeled off in four events—and the Blue and White tankmen were the victors in all four. What's more, they broke the conference records in three of the races, and in one, the 50-yard freestyle, sophomore Floyd Drew equalled the best collegiate time registered in the country this season.

Only Four Teams

Only four of the eight teams expected to compete were in the field, and consequently the program was changed to allow some final events to be run off yesterday. The results showed Carolina way out front with 47 points, while N. C. State reposed in second place with 19. Duke and VMI tallied 6 and 4, respectively, as a reward for finishing in the medley relay.

The top thrill of the afternoon came in the very first event, the 50-yard sprint. Before establishing the amazing mark of 23.2 seconds in the final run, Drew had broken the existing standard in the second trial heat and Bill Pritchard, runner-up in the finals, did likewise in the third heat. The addition of the 50-freestyle mark gives Carolina the distinction of holding all nine records in the conference competition.

Twining Shining

As could be expected, the Dolphins' Human Fish, dashing Dick Twining, also had a hand in the record-breaking performances. Swimming in the 220-freestyle against last year's winner, Bill Kelly of State, Twining bettered his own mark set two weeks ago with a 2:16.6 effort. Kelly was second and Carolina Co-Captain Mike Morrow was close behind.

The other co-captain, Jesse Greenbaum, shared in a new record. Anchoring the medley-relay team behind backstroker Jim Thomas and breaststroker Bob Ousley, Greenbaum sailed home way ahead of State's freestyler.

Thomas also turned in an individual first place for his afternoon's work. In winning the 150 yard backstroke, the Baltimore freshman deposed teammate Norm Sper as champion. Sper was an easy second and another Dolphin, John Bippart, breezed home third. The victory gained for Thomas the possession of the George M. Tullidge III Memorial trophy, awarded by VPI.

Three more trophies will be awarded after today's paddle derby. The 440-freestyle winner will gain the William M. Thompson Memorial trophy given by Carolina in honor of a former swimming star killed at Pearl Harbor. The John Feutchenberger Memorial award, also given by the Tar Heels in memory of their conference diving champion of 1942 will go to the springboard titleholder. The third award will go to the outstanding senior in the meet.

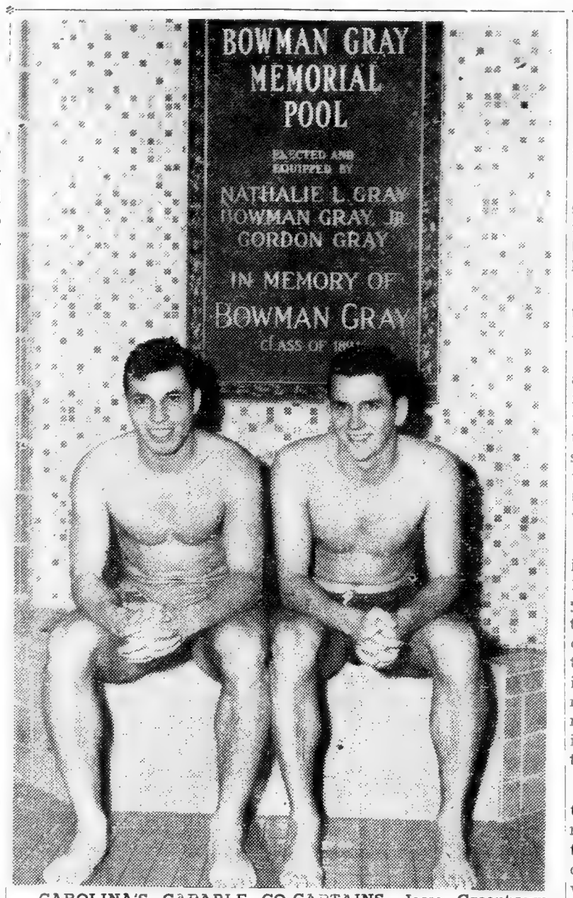
Swimming Summary

Finals

50 - freestyle — Drew (C), Pritchard (C), Ward (S), Osborne (C), Ingram (C). 23.2 (New SC record).

150 - backstroke — Thomas (C), Sper (C), Bippart (C), Lojka (S), Mandell (S). 1:40.3

220 - freestyle — Twining (C), Kelly (S), Morrow (C), Hutton (C), Despres (S). 2:16.6. (New SC record).



300 - medley — UNC Thomas, Ousley, Greenbaum), State, Duke, VMI. 3:01.1. (New SC record).

Preliminaries

Diving — Six men qualifying for finals are Sper (C), Connor (D), Erle (C), Beam (C), Whichard (C), Martin (VMI).

Team Scores

Carolina 47	Duke 6
State 19	VMI 4

CAROLINA'S CAPABLE CO-CAPTAINS, Jesse Greenbaum, left, and Mike Morrow, right, are taking things easy in front of the Bowman Gray pool plaque in this picture, but the two seniors won't be loafing this afternoon when they swim their last meet against Southern conference opponents in the finals of the loop meet.

Spring Murals Feature Tennis, Softball, Track

The spring quarter intramural schedule is beginning to take form with tournaments in softball, track, water polo, tennis, horseshoes and archery.

Water polo and archery are the only new sports that will be instituted next quarter.

The archery contest will be an all-campus affair with male and female entries. Kenan stadium will probably be utilized for the tourney. Several targets will be set up and contestants will draw their equipment at the basket room and record their scores with the mural assistant present.

The rifle tournament will begin in earnest in the spring. About 10 of the 50 teams entered have yet to complete their firing. If the mural department can secure the use of the armory in the afternoon, the practice shooting will be finished before exams roll around. The outdoor firing range is scheduled to be used in the spring to speed up the tourney.

At the next meeting of the intra-mural managers the 10 fraternities who do not sponsor mural trophies will draw for the honor of awarding a trophy in soccer, water polo, and rifle firing.

ATO and Steele will meet Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock to decide the campus five-man soccer championship. Steele won the dorm title with a final round 2-1 victory over Everett and ATO won in the fraternity division over Sigma Nu by a 3-1 score.

Class A and B High School Champs Will Be Determined Here Next Week

High school basketball in North Carolina will reach its season's climax next week as the state's top class A and B quints will converge on Chapel Hill for the first annual tourney to decide the state championship in these divisions.

Pairing for the tourney, which will be run off in Woollen gym, were announced yesterday by L. J. (Hap) Perry, executive secretary of the High School Athletic association. Tournament games here will be alternated between the class A and B. schools. Eight games are slated for Tuesday, four semi-final tilts are on the program for Friday, and the two final games will be reeled off on Saturday night.

The schedule of games on Thursday will begin at 9 o'clock that morning. All 16 of the teams entered will see action during the day. The class AA championship games will be held in Duke Indoor Stadium in Durham also next week.

Ticket Sales

Tournament tickets have been been mailed to the competing schools, according to Manager Marvin Allen, and these may be obtained at $3.00 for a season ticket. Tickets for any morning, afternoon, or night games are now on sale at 75 cents, with the exception of the finals for Saturday night. Their price is $1.00. For Chapel Hill residents, tickets are on sale at the Woollen gym ticket office.

Drawings released for the tourney:

Class "A" Division

March 11, 10:30 a. m.: Tabor City vs. Hendersonville; 2:30 p m.: Kinston vs. Sylva: 6:30 p. m.: Laurinburg vs. District 1 champion; 9:30 p. m.: Statesville vs. Hillsboro.

Semi-final contests Friday will pit the winner of the Statesville-Hillsboro game against the winner of the Tabor City-Hendersonville contest at 7 p. m., and the surviving team between Laurinburg and the District 1 winner at 2:30 p. m.

Baseball Briefs

By United Press

WILLIAMS STILL STRONG

Sarasota, Fla., March 5—(UP)—The winter layoff hasn't taken any of the power out of Ted Williams' bat. The Boston Red Sox slugger stepped up to the plate for the first time today and drove the ball over the right-center field wall, 450 feet away. Later he hit two more drives over the right field wall, although one was a foul by inches.

YORK IS REGULAR

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 5—Big Rudy York will play first base for the regulars Sunday in a Philadelphia Athletics intra-squad game.

Other members of the so-called regular team all are veterans—Pete Suder, Eddie Joost and Hank Majeski in the infield, Barney McCosky, Sam Chapman and Elmer Valo in the outfield, and Buddy Rosar behind the plate.

WHO'S ON THIRD?

Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, March 5—Arky Vaughn and Cookie Lavagetto arrived in the Brooklyn Dodgers training camp today. That makes six third base candidates. The others are Tom Brown, Johnny Jorgensen, Eddie Miksis and Bob Ramazzotti. Vaughan also is listed as an outfielder and may play there in the intra-squad games which start tomorrow.

Manager Leo Durocher spent part of today's workout correcting pitcher Rex Barney's delivery.

Dillon Shines In Near Upset With 19 Points; Blue Devils Kill 'Cats, 53-37

By Billy Carmichael III

Duke Indoor Stadium, March 5—John Dillon was almost a hero here tonight.

A winning hero, that is, for the lanky riches-to-rags pivotman did champion a tremendous losing cause for the Tar Heels of Carolina with 19 big points as the underdogs from Chapel Hill fought a Dickey-less N. C. State college to a sterling standstill in the second half, only to lack the necessary touch for victory and fall, 55-50, before the poise and polish of the stately Statemen.

State in Finals

The Wolfpack, by virtue of the squeaking victory, advanced to the finals of the Southern conference tourney where they will face the Blue Devils of Duke tomorrow night at eight o'clock for the championship. Duke entered the finals from the lower bracket earlier in the evening by trouncing a faltering Davidson college five 53-27, after trailing 26-24 at halftime.

As for the Tar Heels, what might have been, wasn't. The Tar Heels played their opponents on even terms for the first few minutes of the game, only to fall seven points to the rear after 11 minutes had passed. Here, Dillon entered upon the scene and from there on, the Scottmen were always in the ball game.

Dillon was fouled repeatedly during the remainder of the first period and, when the Tar Heels left the court at halftime trailing 33-25, the scoreboard showed four personal fouls against both of the State pivotmen, Cartier and Horvath.

Dick Sick

State, playing without Dick Dickey, their Jack-of-all-shots, was not the State that had raced through all Conference competition and erased William and Mary last night. They had their usual court know-how, a factor that eventually won them a ball game, but their tremendous scoring punch was definitely in the lacking.

Dickey did not make the game because of illness. The announcement that he would not play came shortly before game time and was not made public to the crowd. The Casemen just appeared upon the hardwood with nine players—one below the tourney limit—and the red head of Dickey was noticely missing. The truth of the matter soon spread by word of mouth and it became common knowledge that the Hoosier high point getter was flat on his back in the State infirmary with a 103 degree temperature of unknown origin.

The Tar Heels looked as if they were going to capitalize on this break of nature in the second half when they rallied from behind to tie the score twice, but they were never able to forge to the fore. Many times big Dillon had the chance to pull his team to the lead, but try as he might the Savannah, Ga., ace could not command his hook of old.

Hook On Spot

It became Dillon's ball game to win or lose. It was the Hook who put his teammates back into the game by dropping 11 of the 13 free throws he received from a pair of zealous officials, a total which Dillon combined with four scoring hooks of the even twenty he attempted.

Dillon was by no means the whole Tar Heel show. Captain Bob Paxton, who was playing what developed to be his last game along with Swartzberg, another graduating senior, played themselves to the physical limit with an exhibition of back board technique that drew the applause of the majority of the 9,000 fans that jammed the arena for the contest.

Taylor Thorne turned in his second brilliant game in a like number of games, hitting precious field goals from the outside and succeeding in the never-ending task of getting the ball in to Dillon. King Cole was another creditable performer who saw the efforts of an evening go to waste as mighty State finally outsteadied the threatening Tar Heels.

It took the Phantoms 12 minutes and 40 seconds of the second half to catch the weakened Raleigh entry and it was Dillon who closed the last four point gap with two free throws and a hook to tie the score at 43-all. State pulled ahead once more, but at the 14 minute mark Dillon again tied the score with two more foul shots and the count

(See PHANTOMS, page 4)

Phantoms Phail

N. C. State (55)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
McComas f	3	3	4	9	1
Stine	0	3	1	3	0
Cartier f-c	1	3	4	5	3
Ranzino	3	2	4	8	0
Horvath c	4	4	4	12	1
Bartels g	2	3	4	7	0
Sloan	0	0	1	0	0
Katkaveck g	4	3	3	11	1
Totals	17	21	25	55	6
UNC (50)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Paxton f	5	2	5	12	0
Kohler	0	0	0	0	0
Swartzberg f	0	2	5	2	1
Carson	0	2	2	2	1
Nearman c	0	2	3	2	1
Dillon	4	11	4	19	2
Thorne, g	3	1	4	7	2
Cole	2	0	1	4	2
Nyemicz g	0	2	2	2	1
Totals	14	22	26	50	8

Score at Halftime: N. C. State 33, UNC, 25.

Officials: Heft and Stephens.

Tame Wildcats

Duke (53)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Ausbon	2	1	1	5	3
York	0	0	0	0	1
Youmans	5	5	3	15	2
Duff	1	2	1	4	0
Collins	9	2	4	20	0
Sapp	0	0	2	0	0
Martin	1	0	0	2	0
Gordon	0	3	1	3	1
Hughes	2	0	2	4	2
Totals	20	13	14	53	9
Davidson (37)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Williams	2	3	4	7	5
Mills	0	0	1	0	0
Cobb	4	2	2	10	0
Iverson	0	0	1	0	0
Cheek	2	3	3	7	0
Ashmore	3	4	2	10	0
Roddey	0	0	0	0	0
Maner	0	0	5	0	0
Poole	1	1	0	3	0
Totals	12	13	18	37	5

Halftime score: Davidson 26, Duke 24

Officials: Williams and Hackney

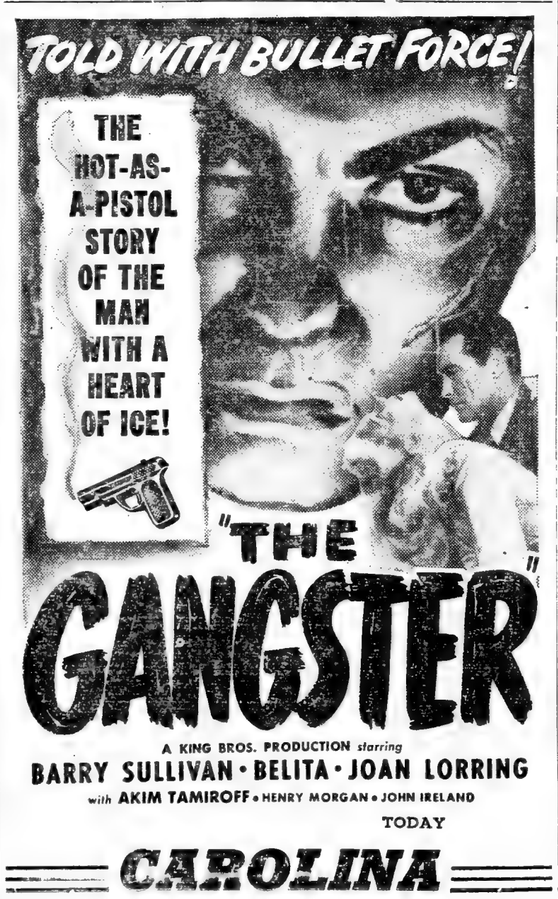
NIT Card Complete

New York, March 5—(UP)—The acceptance by Bowling Green state university (27-5) of a bid to the National Invitational Basketball Tournament completed the eight team lineup for the tourney.

Earlier today NYU (19-1), DePaul (21-5), and LaSalle (20-3) had accepted bids to the metropolitan post-season cage classic which begins play next Thursday night in New York's Madison Square Garden.

The four newcomers to the NIT join Western Kentucky, Saint Louis, and North Carolina State as participants in the tournament.

exams getting you down?



Van Heusen Shirts take 1500 every month!

Van Heusen's own laboratory experts take yarns, fabrics, and finished shirts through fade tests, strength tests, laundry tests, microscopic examination—1500 times each month. All this to assure you that every Van Heusen Shirt will give you more style and value for your money. A new shirt free if your Van Heusen shrinks out of size! $3.50, $3.95 and $4.95. PHILLIPS-JONES CORP., NEW YORK 1, N. Y.

You're the man most likely to succeed in

Van Heusen Shirts
TIES • SPORT SHIRTS PAJAMAS

Better Shirts—
VAN HEUSEN
Better Buy at
JACK LIPMAN'S

A KING BROS. PRODUCTION starring
BARRY SULLIVAN • BELITA • JOAN LORRING with AKIM TAMIROFF • HENRY MORGAN • JOHN IRELAND
TODAY
CAROLINA

Fashion's "Honor Grads"
SEAM-FREE NYLONS
WITH PATENTED HEEL

Taking first place in college activities that call for smart attire, the nylons which bear the Seal of the DANCING TWINS feature the patented Gusset Heel* for snug fit, the Gussetoe for comfort...plus a care-free, seam-free beauty! Sold under leading brand names at smart college shops and stores.

*U. S. Pat. No. 2388647

CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

WIN PRIZE. HELP US CHOOSE NEW name for Co-ed Beauty Shop. Prize—free service up to $15.00. Contest closes Friday, March 12. Address: Co-ed Beauty Shop, 312 West Franklin Street Chapel Hill, North Carolina 1-c1841-1

FOR RENT 6A

LARGE SINGLE ROOM AVAILABLE for spring quarter and summer school to male graduate student. Telephone 3341. 1-1843-1

FOR SALE 6B

ONE MAN TRAILER. MAY BE SEEN at 245 B.V.P. Trailer Court. Price $450. Contact 309 Mangum after 6:00 p.m. 1-1844-1

TRAILER, GOOD CONDITION. CAN be seen any night after 6:30—11 Pittsboro Road Trailer Court. $750.00 cash (1-1829-1)

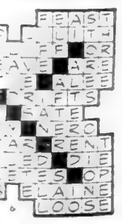
MALE ENGLISH BULLDOG 6 WEEKS old in the process of registration Call 8857. (1-1837-1)

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans For full particulars contact Hill Homes Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. 1-c1842-1

LATE MODEL WEBSTER COMBINATION disc recording machine, playback, P.A. system complete with microphone, [illegible] 1-1845-1

LATE 1946 BLUE CHRYSLER 4 DOOR sedan, perfect condition. Seat covers, radio, heater, fog-lights, back-up lights, 5 lifeguard safety tubes. Henry Gooding 9011. (1-1849-1)

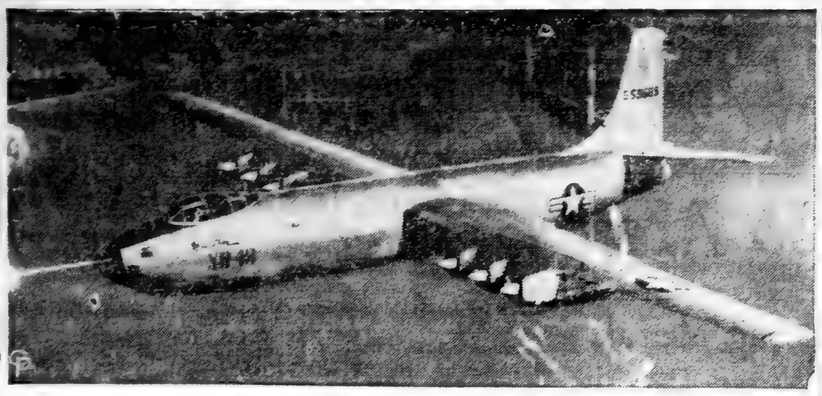
LOST 1B



CAMEO RING LAST THURSDAY AT Woollen Gym or Mangum Dorm. Finder please notify Room 302, Mangum. Reward. (1-1847-1)

BROWN WALLET CONTAINING $72 or $73 Wednesday, probably in Carolina Theatre, Library, or Zo building Reward Dallas T. Jones, box 163 or [illegible] 1-1846-1

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB



lent for home or professional record making. Can be seen at 407½ Pritchard Avenue or call 9472, Claude Dunnagen —$65 cash. (1-C1850-2)

PREVIOUS PUZZLE

DOWN

1—Hits lightly
2—Olive genus
3—To stretch
4—To permit
5—Woman's title
6—Famed landing place
7—Kind of hat
8—Sign of Zodiac
9—Turkish regiment
10—To turn to water
11—What wheel turns on
12—Plural ending
13—To rub
21—Yes
22—Little drink
23—Viper
24—Resort
25—Time for amusement
26—Chicken
27—Small fish
28—Lifeless
29—Took seat
30—Wine cup
31—Soup bowl
32—Transmits
33—Ascended
34—To perform
35—Large knife
36—Greedy
37—To tear
38—Roman writer
39—Fondles
40—Wing

SOARING OVER CHESAPEAKE BAY, MARYYAND, in one of a series of flight tests is the Martin XB-48, the United States Air Force's first six-jet bomber. The new craft can carry over ten tons of bombs and requires only three crewmen. The speed of the new jet bomber remains a secret. (International Soundphoto)

Truman's Return Met by Pickets, Southern Revolt

By Joan Marble

President Truman returned to Washington today, tanned and fit from a two week Caribbean vacation, ready to face problems on the home front.

Even before he reached the White House, the President got a taste of the trouble that is waiting for him. Some thirty pickets, members of the Civil Rights Congress which is listed by the Department of Justice as subversive, were marching back and forth in front of the Presidential mansion.

As the limousine rolled through the gates, they shouted: "Mr. Truman, we're going to fight until we get our civil rights." The pickets are protesting deportation of four alleged foreign communists.

Southern Revolt

This was not the only trouble the president faced on civil rights. Far more serious was the revolt of Southern Democrats. At least four Southern states have made significant moves towards blocking Mr. Truman's presidential nomination.

The President went to work almost as soon as he had taken off his coat. His first official action was a move to settle the labor difficulties at an atomic energy plant. He created a board of inquiry to investigate the threatened strike at Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

This is the first time the President has invoked the provisions of the Taft-Hartley labor relations act which set up procedure for dealing with national emergency strikes. The President will announce the names of the members of the board later.

The President then met with cabinet members at four o'clock. It is assumed Mr. Truman was filled in on reaction to his Palestine policy and on progress in Congress of the European recovery program.

Cabinet vs. Congress

Also, he probably got details of the latest fued between a cabinet officer and Congress. Secretary of Commerce Harriman has refused to turn over to the House Un-American Activities committee confidential papers concerning Dr. Edward Condon, Chief of the Bureau of Standards. Condon was accused by the committee of being the weakest link in our atomic bomb security chain.

Dr. Condon says the committee made a number of inaccurate statements in its report on him. Among other things, Condon says the committee claims that he has entertained the wife of the Polish ambassador. Actually, the scientist claims he has never met the the lady. He adds that so far as he knows none of the people with whom he is associated is a communist.

However, the Congressional group is standing by its story that Condon associated with Soviet spies. The committee says a New York grand jury is investigating some of the people who reportedly associated with Condon. The grand jury has been looking into Soviet spy activities for several months now.

Appropriations

The House Appropriations committee has knocked out an anti-racial discrimination clause from a government money bill. The provision would have kept federal money from states which discriminated against race, creed, or color.

At the same time, the full House has cut a big chunk out of the running expenses of three government departments—State, Commerce, and Justice. The House approved by a voice vote, an appropriation bill giving these three departments nearly $501,000,000 to run on during the next fiscal year. This is nearly $87,000,000 less than President Truman asked for.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Democratic Representative Gary of Virginia fought vainly to restore some money to the bill. He wanted to restore $2,000,000 to the State Department's foreign service, and $6,000,000 to it information group. However when the vote came, the Gary motion was beaten 78 to 41. Thus far, the Republican economy drive has cut $274,000,000 from the President's new budget.

Foreign Aid

Republican Senator Taft of Ohio has come out against a proposal that the western nations set up a military council outside the United Nations. The Senator said flatly today that he does not favor the idea.

MIGHTY HAPPY is film star Victor Mature, 34, following his marriage in Yuma, Ariz., to the former Dorothy Stanford Berry, 24. The wedding culminated a two-year romance. Both have been previously married. Mrs. Mature is mother of a 5-year-old son (International Soundphoto)

Photo Fraternity Announces Show

Kappa Alpha Mu, national collegiate honorary fraternity devoted to photo journalism, announces its third annual 50-print Collegiate Photography Exhibition. Science Illustrated, co-operating with Kappa Alpha Mu, will award the grand prize which includes a trip to New York with traveling expenses paid, seven working weks with the magazine at a salary of $50.00 a week, and promise of a job if the winning photographer proves acceptable.

Entries will be accepted in five classes from now until April 30, 1948. First place awards will be made for the best pictures in the News, Pictorial-Feature, Fashion, Sports, and Industrial classes. The grand prize will be awarded to the best of these five winners. A complete list of awards will be announced at a later date.

Students regularly enrolled in any college or university are eligible to enter up to ten prints with no more than five entries in any one division. Prints may be 5x7 or larger but must be mounted on standard 16x20 board. There is no entry fee, but pictures must be sent prepaid and will be returned express collect.

Competing in last year's show, 218 photographers from 67 different schools submitted 691 pictures. First prize, and Eastman twin-lens reflex camera was awarded by Popular Photography to James Swetnam, a sophomore at the University of Missouri.

Entry blanks and contest rules may be obtained by writing to W. J. Bell, secretary, 18 Walter Williams Hall, University of Missouri, Columbia, Missouri.

–Phantoms–

stood at 45-45.

Here the Tar Heel chances began to wane and finally died in the closing minutes. The Chapel Hill lads had their chances to push to the front with Dillon especially getting hook chances in the pivot. But it was too much to ask of the former All-American center, for had he provided a margin of victory, his performance would have been miraculous. Nineteen points is all that one can ask from anyone but John Dillon.

It was fitting that Dillon, along with Paxton, Thorne, and Swartzberg should have played their final games for Carolina as stars if not as champions. No one but the Tar Heels themselves seemed the least bit disappointed in the Carolina showing.

In the opening game, Duke started slowly got up full steam, and finally steam-rolled over a Davidson team that in the clutch had little of its winning form of yesterday.

Campus Calendar

10:45 a.m.—"Musical Merry-Go-Round." WDUK and WRAL
3:00 p.m.—Intercollegiate Council for Religion in Life, Presbyterian church
6:30 p.m.—Recorded dinner music, Main lounge
8:00 p.m.—Bingo, Main lounge
8:30 p.m.—Square dance, Presbyterian church

LI'L ABNER — By AL CAPP

Going on a picnic? Delicatessen — Rye Bread — at HARRY'S

Luncetord's Band Will Play For Concert Here

(Continued from page 1)

senior class steering committee, a group consisting of representatives from each dormitory, fraternity, and town district. They are now on public sale at a special table set up in the Book Exchange. According to German club president Bill Tate, the concert will be underwritten by that organization.

Proceeds for the program will go to the senior class as one of two big events sponsored by the graduating class. Later in the year the seniors plan to secure a name band for the annual junior-senior dance.

The Raleigh announcer, Sam Beard, will emcee the concert. "Sour Grapes Sam", whose sarcastic quips between records were heard by eleventh hour listeners to last year's "Moonglow" program, at present holds the disc-jockey position on a morning program over station WPTF, entitled "Breakfast with Beard."

Tomorrow's concert will last for two hours ,scheduled to end at 9:30 o'clock.

TWO BLOCKS WEST OF CITY HALL
You'll Find A Solution To All Laundry Problems
HELPY-SELFY
AUTOMATIC LAUNDRY
Bendix Machines
W. Rosemary St.

"I've smoked Chesterfields for years I know THEY SATISFY"
Betty Hutton
STARRING IN "DREAM GIRL"
A PARAMOUNT PICTURE
Chesterfield CIGARETTES
LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.
CHESTERFIELD
WHY I smoke Chesterfield
(FROM A SERIES OF STATEMENTS BY PROMINENT TOBACCO FARMERS)
"I smoke Chesterfield. I think it's a good cigarette. It has a real good tobacco flavor.
"Liggett & Myers buy a good percentage of my best tobaccos...mild, ripe, sweet tobaccos. When they see a basket of tobacco they want they pay the top price to get it."
J. G. Harrelson
TOBACCO FARMER, YANCEYVILLE, N. C.
ABC ALWAYS BUY CHESTERFIELD
ALWAYS MILDER BETTER TASTING COOLER SMOKING
Copyright 1948, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Another Wonderful Goldwyn Comedy!
SAMUEL GOLDWYN presents
CARY GRANT
LORETTA YOUNG
DAVID NIVEN
Cary and The Bishop's Wife
with MONTY WOOLLEY
JAMES GLEASON · GLADYS COOPER · ELSA LANCHESTER and THE MITCHELL BOYCHOIR
Directed by HENRY KOSTER
Screen Play by Robert E. Sherwood and Leonardo Bercovici · From the Novel by Robert Nathan Released through RKO RADIO PICTURES, INC.
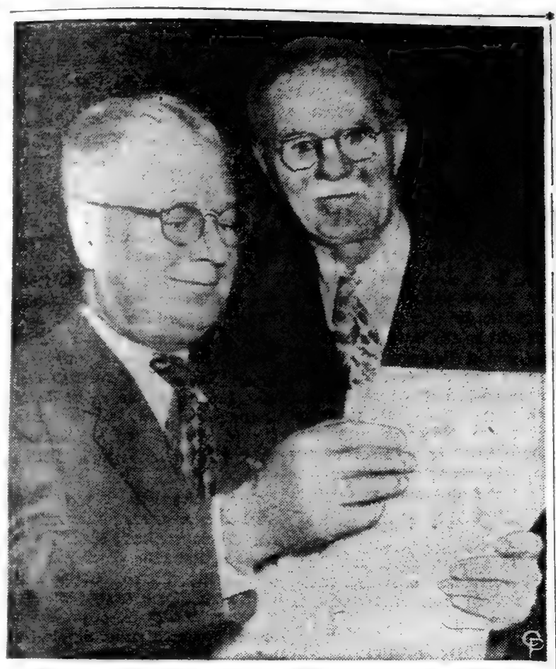
LATE SHOW TONIGHT
SUNDAY — MONDAY
CAROLINA

"Well, I can keep the Dentyne Chewing Gum, can't I?"
"What's a little rap like twenty years if I can have all I want of delicious, clean tasting Dentyne Chewing Gum. Just think!—twenty years to enjoy that rich, long lasting flavor and all that time Dentyne will help keep my teeth white."
Dentyne Gum—Made Only By Adams

TODAY
VILLAGE

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48



WEATHER
Cloudy and slightly warmer with possible rain this afternoon.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
DTH Society
Clipjoint Needed
Dynamite-Laden

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, MARCH 7, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 119

'Jazz at Memorial' To Be 'Real Gone'; Tickets For Concert Are Still Available

WISCONSIN'S SECRETARY OF STATE and former Governor, Fred R. Zimmerman (right) goes over his MacArthur nomination papers before filing them, as ex-Governor Philip F. LaFollette, Madison attorney, looks on. The two men headed the full slate of General MacArthur-For-President candidates for delegate positions in Wisconsin. (International)

Orchestra Leaders Thomas, Wilcox Use Style of Lunceford

By Bebop MacDonald

"Real-gone" is the word for Memorial hall tonight, when the Jimmie Lunceford jazz group of seven bebopsters, Dixielanders, boot-whipsters, scatmen—or what have you—take over at 7:30 o'clock for "Jazz at the Memorial."

The two-hour concert is sponsored by the senior class. According to class president Benson McCutcheon, tickets at $1.25 each are still available, and these will go on sale at the door tonight.

Led by Saxman Joe Thomas and 88-fingered Eddie Wilcox, the group features Jock Carruthers, Mustapha Hashim, Russell Green, Joe Marshall and Al Grey—all artists of the Jimmie Lunceford school of jazz who are continuing the rhythm style of their late maestro.

Sam Beard, the Raleigh disc jockey whose program "Moonglow" was heard last year by collegians who sometimes turned deaf ears to his "sour grapes" sarcasm, will be on hand to emcee the concert. Beard's present morning program is "Breakfast with Beard", a record show over radio station WPTF.

Proceeds from the program will go to the graduating class as one of two big events sponsored by the seniors before graduation. Sometime during the final quarter, as yet unannounced, the seniors plan to secure a name band for their annual junior-senior dance.

According to Bill Tate, president of the German club, tonight's concert is being underwritten by that organization.

The Lunceford group is considered by music critics as a first-rate jazz group. Eddie Wilcox, a native of Raleigh, and Joe Thomas, of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, are two members of the original Lunceford band who have led in the band's reorganization as a memorial to the prominent Negro artist. Wilcox has been associated with Lunceford and Luncefordian jazz since he met the popular bandleader at Fiske university, in Memphis. Wilcox, as pianist and arranger, worked with Lunceford and Sy Oliver in setting the tempo for such JL-favorites as "Outskirts of Town," "Rhythm Is Our Business," "Sophisticated Lady," "Solitude" and "Walking Through Heaven."

As tenor sax player and vocalist, Joe Thomas hitched his wa-

(See LUNCEFORD, page 4)

Democratic Split Will Be Healed Declares Official

Washington, March 6 —(UP)— An unidentified source close to the White House said tonight that the split between Southern Democrats and the administration will be patched before the Democratic national convention.

The source, a high administration official who refused to permit the use of his name, declared that he was hopeful that time and cooler tempers would heal the breach caused by Truman's civil rights speech. His prediction was that both sides would move to restore party harmony before the July convention.

However, Senator Scott Lucas (D-Ill.) was not so hopeful. In fact, he admitted yesterday, speaking from the non-Southern point of view, that the revolt looks "fairly serious."

Although he apparently did not feel that the revolt would be quickly quelled, Lucas predicted that the President would be "back on top" within the next thirty days.

Democrats generally have been much worried by the party quarrel which began when the President brought his civil rights program before Congress and was accentuated by Southern protests which fell on deaf ears.

Since that time, throughout the South, conventions, state assemblies, and high officials have advocated a second secession—this time from the Democratic party.

Snider Appointed To Secretaryship

Raleigh, March 6 — (UP) — William Snider of Salisbury will replace John Harden as private secretary to Governor R. Gregg Cherry, the governer's office announced today.

Snider has been a member of the news staff of the Salisbury Post for the two years since leaving the army when he was 26 years old. The Salisbury native is a graudate of the University.

Harden, whom he replaces, has resigned to handle the publicity for the campaign of United States senator William B. Umstead who is running to succeed himself in the Senate.

Harden is a veteran newspaperman and was once editor of the Salisbury newspaper. Two years ago he directed Governor Cherry's successful campaign for the governorship.

Campus Red Cross Drive Aims At $2,000 Goal; Shuford Heads Local Campaign Opening Tuesday

PRESIDENT FRANK P. GRAHAM (center) presents the first check to the Red Cross drive in the Chapel Hill-Carrboro areas to J. P. Hazzard (left), of Chapel Hill, who is chairman of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro campaign being conducted this week. Looking on are Dr. F. Carlyle Shepard, (second from left), chairman of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro chapter of the Red Cross, and Bil Shuford (right), director of Graham Memorial and chairman of the University campus campaign which opens Tuesday, March 9. Photo, Courtesy Durham Morning Herald

Interdorm Councils, IFC, Coed Groups, To Handle Solicitation

By Gordon Huffines

A campus Red Cross drive to raise $2,000 by Carolina students as a part of the $75,000,000 national goal will start here Tuesday according to Graham Memorial director Bill Shuford, chairman of the student drive.

In planning the campus campaign, which will take place from March 9th through the 11th, every effort has been made to work so that students will not be contacted for solicitations more than once, Shuford asserted.

"We definitely do not want to annoy students in view of the close proximity of examinations; however, we do want to see each individual that one important time," Shuford stated at the campus campaign headquarters in Graham Memorial.

Assistants Named

Assisting Shuford in the campus drive are Joe Ferguson and Bob Ormand, who will help supervise the organization of the drive and maintain contact with campus organizations which are assuming responsibility for solicitation of funds.

Actual solicitations will be handled through the heads of these organizations: Men and Women's Interdormitory councouncils, Pan Hellenic council, Interfraternity council, and the Co-ed senate. Students and their families living in Victory Village will be contacted by an independent group acting under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Cooke.

Funds collected in the national drive, which started March 1, will be used to finance the Red Cross program for the 1948-49 fiscal year, which includes disaster relief, home services (especially for veterans), first aid, water safety programs, accident prevention, and nursing.

2 Million Cases

Last year more than 2,000,000 cases involving aid to veterans were handled by the Red Cross. Services rendered included financial assistance to veterans and their families and hospital work.

The Chapel Hill home office, Room 106, Alumni building, aided veterans in countless ways connected with GI insurance, hospitalization, filing of claims, and general counseling. The local office expressed the hope that any veterans hitherto unaware of this service, will avail themselves of it whenever needed.

Student leaders have called on dormitories, fraternities, and sororities for cooperation in making the drive a success. Shuford announced that organizations making outstanding contributions, or whose membership contribute 100 percent, will be given recognition for their work.

Thirty-Three By Air Will Present 'Second Wind' Over N. C. Network

"Second Wind", directed by Richard Katzin, will be presented by the University Communications center Wednesday night at 8:30 over the North Carolina network.

The show will be the regular presentation of "Thirty-Three by Air." It was adapted by Bob Andrew from a story in the Saturday Evening Post by Talbert Josselyn.

Edsel Hughes takes the lead in the production with his portrayal of Danny Darrow, a former middleweight champion of the world.

Darrow is believed to be dead after he was involved in an automobile wreck following a crooked fight in which he lost his title.

However, suffering from amnesia, Darrow wanders about for five years until attacked by two hobos and beaten. The beating causes him to regain his memory and he takes up his life where he left off.

He arranges a return match after convincing his former boss who he really is. The rest of the show involves his winning of the fight and regaining the title.

A sound feature of the production is handled by Les Thornbury who by using a filter on piano strings, causes the effect of mysterious music in Darrow's semi-conscious mind.

Other members of the cast are Bill Skarlsky, Bob Barr, Morty Schaap, Tommy Thomas and Merv Lenz.

Bob DeBardelaben is announcer for the show; John Young, control engineer; Hut Craig, Bob Hall and John Stanfield, sound technicians; and Avery Gibson, turntable operator.

ADPi ALUMNI

There will be a meeting of the Alpha Delta Pi alumnae at the ADPi house on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. All alumnae are urged to attend.

Peron Faces Test In Argentine Vote

Buenos Aires, March 6 —(UP) —Juan Peron, the strong-man president of Argentina, will face a major test when Argentine voters go to the polls to elect a Chamber of Deputies.

Although Peron himself is not running, some political observers say that the election will determine whether or not the people want Peron re-elected in 1952 to another six year term.

They point out that by giving the Peronist party a two-thirds majority in the chamber, the electorate would make it possible for Peron's followers to change the constitutional provision which prevents the re-election of an Argentine president.

Peron, who has been in bed since undergoing an emergency appendectomy on Monday, has announced that he will vote tomorrow. The president spent his first time out of bed today.

The election is being watched carefully by North Americans who are interested in the progress of Peron's strange career.

Campus Poet Will Read Work In Special Program Today

A special program of poetry reading to musical accompaniment, featuring the work of campus poet Vincent Cassidy, will be presented this afternoon in Graham Memorial by the University student union.

The program, scheduled to start in the main lounge at 5 o'clock, will be presented by a group of readers and singers, including the poet himself.

Cassidy, a graduate student in history, has had his verse published in the Saturday Evening Post, the Silver Star periodical of poetry, and student magazines like the Scribbler's Script and the Carolina Magazine. One piece, "Yesterday", was given wide publication through the nation's news services and was printed in the Congressional Record. "Yesterday" has been set to music by Cathryn Zerbe, noted concert pianist, and will be performed today by Simeon Holloway, baritone at the North Carolina College, with Bob MacDonald on the piano.

Assisting Cassidy in the musical recitations, besides Holloway and MacDonald, will be Eli Friedland, Sam Hirsch, Don Jackson, Bill Good, Bob Lewis, and Mrs. Cassidy. Works performed will include "Shall We" and "Many Voices", the last being rendered in an choral arrangement.

These selected writings represent Cassidy' work written since 1943, a period including service with the First Marine Raiders in New Caledonia and New Georgia, and his stay at the University, where he has already received a degree in dramatic art.

Settlemyer Will Give Concert in Hill Hall

Arthur F. Settlemyer, Jr., University of North Carolina senior music student from Kannapolis, will give a piano recital in Hill Hall here Sunday afternoon, March 7, at 4 o'clock.

His program will include Three-Part Invention in F minor and in G major by Bach; Sonata in G major, Beethoven; Impromptu in F sharp major and Prelude in D minor, Chopin; La Cathedrale engloutie, Debussy, and American Sonata, Elie Siegmeister.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Students will enter into a panel discussion on "What the church can mean to me" at the regular Sunday night Wesley foundation program in the Methodist church tonight. Four students, Raymond Mils, Bob Parham, Bob Bunch, and Doris Weaver will remark on various phases of the church in an effort to throw questions for debate before the group. The discussion will center about the church as a teaching agent, the effectiveness of its worship services, the fellowship it offers, and the church in society.

UVA MEETING

The UVA will hold a general business meeting tomorrow night at the clubhouse behind Lenoir Hall at 8 o'clock.

Class Tickets Ready Wednesday

Class tickets for the Spring Quarter should be picked up at Registration hall, Venable X, between Wednesday and Friday of next week, March 10, 12, Ed Lanier, University director of Central Records, said yesterday.

Lanier reminded students returning next quarter that all their financial accounts with the University must be cleared with the administration before any class tickets for the coming term will be issued.

SP MEETING

According to an announcement yesterday by Fred Thompson, Student party publicity chairman, the regular Monday night party session will begin at 8 o'clock tomorrow night instead of 9 o'clock The party will meet in Roland Parker lounge, Graham Memorial.

There will also be a meeting of the SP steering committee at 7 o'clock, Thompson said.

From House to Office . . . . . to Lake-Side . . . . . and Back to House

'Call Back Yesterday' Calls Back Yesterday's Dramatic Pioneering

By Mark Sumner

Pioneering has never been easy, as the American people well know, but the Carolina Playmakers are faced with a new kind of pioneering problem in connection with their production of "Call Back Yesterday," their fourth major play this season.

"Call Back Yesterday," by 26-year-old Gene McLain, will be the 22nd annual premiere production of a new full length play to be staged by the Playmakers in their theatre here March 10, 11, 12, at 8:30.

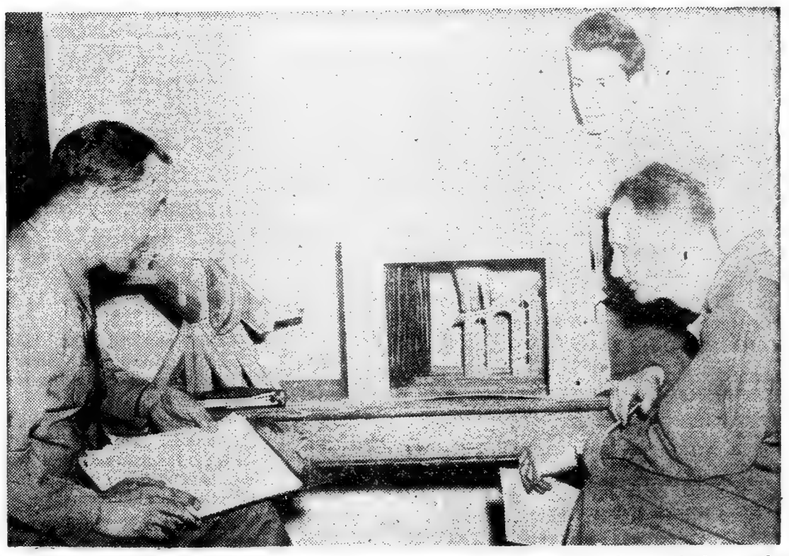
Harry E. Davis, associate professor who has the job of directing the experimental production, summed up the problems this way: "Presenting an untried play by a new author is like building a house without a blueprint. The cast and scene crews have to test every idea to make sure it works."

Davis pointed out that "Call Back Yesterday" is not only experimental in giving student writer McLain a chance to test his writing, but it is highly experimental in the scenery problems it presents.

James Riley, 20-year-old senior from Palm Beach, Fla., has the job of designing a setting for the intricate production. Riley, who was given a special award last year for his technical work with the Playmakers, was scene designer for the Artillery Lane Playhouse in Florida, and the New London Playhouse in New Hampshire, before he came to the University to study with the Playmakers.

Riley explained that his problem was "designing the setting so that the scenes in the action of the play could be shifted from house to office, to lake-side, and back to the house by changing the lighting."

Author McLain has written the scenes so that the changes from location to location by the actors are almost immediate. There is no time to pull the curtain and change the settings as is usual in scene shifting.



The problem on the 19-foot Playmaker Theatre stage is greater than a standard size stage because there is no room on the sides of the stage to hide scenery and furniture before it is used.

Riley has tried to overcome the scenery shifting and lack of storage space by using a series of curved platforms, almost like steps, and by setting the furniture on tracks. The furniture and heavy scenery pieces are designed to move into position without the stage hands being seen, and while the action of the play is going on.

Technical director Lynn Gault commented: "We don't know whether it is going to work or not, but we do experimental plays to let students like Riley have a chance to try new ideas in front of an audience.

Samuel Selden, director of the Playmakers, explained it this way: "One of the drawbacks of the modern professional theatre is its inability to give young and beginning theatre people a chance to test their work, so for 30 years the Playmakers have tried to give new voices a chance to be heard by the public."

There is plenty of proof that the Playmaker policy of allowing new writers to try out their full length plays. Paul Green, Josephina Niggli, Betty Smith, Noel Houston, and Walter Carroll are all products of the Playmaker organization.

THE CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS ARE experimenting with a number of new staging methods in the production of Gene McLain's full-length play, "Call Back Yesterday," which is to be given its premiere by the Playmakers March 10, 11, 12.

Here Harry Davis, (left) the director; James Riley, (standing) student scene designer, and Lynn Gault, technical director, study a reproduction of the set which will be changed completely for different scenes by lighting.

The Mail Must Get Through

Another Legislature committee will soon begin work investigating the possibilities and more important the probability of establishing a branch postoffice on the campus. It is already evident what the committee will learn.

Other universities and colleges of equal size in towns of about the same population as Chapel Hill have campus postoffice units. The postoffice here in Chapel Hill was built at a time when it was adequate to handle both students and townspeople. Now there are not even enough lock boxes to meet the requests of the townspeople alone. Consequently, students and others are having to stand in line at the General Delivery window in order to get their daily mail. This presents a more complex problem because the lines are unusually long and every day appears to be a Christmas rush.

This is the situation with only 7,000 students enrolled. The Board of Trustees is now considering what must be done in the way of additional facilities to adequately house, feed and educate 10,000 students here. The postoffice must not be overlooked. Additional students will increase the size of the village itself and place a greater strain on the postoffice and its staff.

If the University is successful enough to win the approval of the Post Office Department to get a postoffice here, students would be able to get their mail with much more expediency than the present condition permits. It is true that there would be no dormitory delivery except to isolated dormitories. But the dormitory residents are not able to get their mail under the dormitory delivery system on Sunday and only once on Saturday. If there were a postoffice on campus, mail would be sorted and placed in lock boxes as soon as it arrives—a great advantage over having to wait hours for delivery.

Veterans' checks and other important mail would not be held up because of change of address. You see, if you had a box, your number would not change even if you moved every week. This will relieve complicated record-keeping in South building and other agencies, and the student directory would always be accurate, except for typographical errors.

This is not the first time the Legislature has had committees to investigate a campus postoffice. Others have and before the war the postoffice investigation was carried to such an extent that the Post Office Department made plans and even sent a department expert to investigate and decide what would be the best arrangement. The Department then gave the University Administration two alternatives: (1) the postoffice would be operated by the Post Office Department, (2) the University could operate the postoffice, hire personnel, perform all the functions and collect all the box rents to cover the operational costs. Under each of these proposals the University would furnish the building to house the office.

Neither of these plans was accepted because a faction of the administration did not deem it advisable to establish a postoffice branch on campus.

The conditions have become even more complex since the war and there is a greater need for more adequate facilities. And if space was at a premium before the war and that was the reason for refusal of the Post Office Department's offer, then space is more precious today.

Clip Joint Needed

The reestablishment of a barber shop in the Student Union will be welcome. There are those who feel that Graham Memorial is not using its space to full advantage and that while the art shop did perform some service for campus organizations, it did little for the individual students. Director Bill Shuford announced last week that plans for installing the barber chairs and acquiring barbers are now being formulated and that the barber shop should be in operation before long.

We agree with those who say that a barber shop would be a very valuable addition to the student union, especially since the equipment is already owned by Graham Memorial it could be put to better use than just a hoarded wealth.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $3.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor
HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr.
CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lowis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser
ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden
SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison
SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears
ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow
EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: John Stump NIGHT SPORTS: Larry Fox

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Dynamite-Laden Legislation

By Drew Pearson

Washington. — Although it's a matter of debate whether any of the much-discussed civil-rights program can be enacted at this session of Congress, a dynamite-laden appropriation bill requiring equal racial education in government-subsidized universities and hospitals is almost sure to be adopted.

This appropriation bill has been worked out by Congressman Frank Keefe, Wisconsin Republican, who has charge of voting money to hospitals, colleges, child welfare, crippled children, institutions for the blind, and a score of other federal subsidies.

And for the first time in history, Keefe is inserting in his appropriation bill an amendment which reads:

"No part of the appropriations provided for in this Act shall be paid as grants to any state or educational institution in which, because of race, color or creed, discriminatory practices deny equality of educational opportunity or employment to anyone to pursue such educational courses or employment as are provided for by such grant."

Briefly this means that while a filibuster might be carried on against a civil rights bill, it will be almost impossible to defeat an appropriation bill. It also means that, from now on, all hospitals receiving grants from the federal government for cancer research, polio, heart disease or any other kind of subsidy, must give employment to Negro interns, nurses and doctors.

It also means that if state universities refuse to admit Negroes they will no longer receive subsidies from the federal government.

* * *

Congressman Keefe, in holding recent hearings, found that St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the Insane in the District of Columbia, though entirely supported by federal money, does not admit Negro interns. He also found that it is difficult for Negro doctors to get an education because only two hospitals in the entire United States admit them for training—those at Howard university in Washington and Maharry University in Nashville, Tenn.

"The colored folks pay taxes," observed Keefe, "but don't get the benefits."

The Wisconsin Congressman also learned that there is only one Negro doctor to every 3,337 Negroes in the United States, whereas the proportion for the white people is one doctor for every 750 persons.

In fact, there are only 4,000 Negro doctors in the entire USA—in other words, only 2.2 per cent of the nation's total of 180,000 doctors. In contrast, Negroes comprise 10 per cent of the population.

There is only one Negro doctor for every 8,320 colored people in Arkansas, Keefe discovered, one for every 12,152 in South Carolina, and one for every 18,527 in Mississippi.

Congressman Keefe points out that although Gallinger hospital in Washington is largely financed by federal funds and largely takes care of colored people, no Negro interns are allowed to practice there. His amendment to the Federal Security Appropriations Bill will require that this and other hospitals receiving federal funds be open to Negro interns and doctors.

* * *

When the last regular session of Congress adjourned in July with one of the worst "do-nothing" records in history, Republican apologists freely predicted that the next session, beginning in January, would be one of the busiest and most productive. GOP leaders, it was explained, wanted to chalk up a good legislative record to show the voters next November.

Despite this campaign incentive, it now looks as if the batting average of the second session of the 80th Congress will be pretty much like that of the first session, at the rate things are going. Here is the Merry-Go-Round forecast on what Congress will do about major legislation.

Price controls— No action.

Rent controls—The present inadequate system of rent control will be extended for another year.

Military training—No action.

Housing—Despite the continuing shortage of adequate low cost housing, the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing bill will be kept in a deep freeze by Congressional leaders. So will national health insurance legislation to provide low-cost medical care for the general public.

St. Lawrence Waterway—Already defeated.

Taxes—The Republican $6,800,000 tax reduction bill, which has passed the house, will be reduced to about $4,000,000,000 in the Senate. Despite Senate changes President Truman will veto the tax bill, and unless Republican leaders write an excess-profits tax into the measure, to make it more attractive to Democrats and GOP liberals, Senate leaders will not be able to muster the two-thirds majority needed to override the President's veto.

Federal aid to education—legislation, providing for an increase in teachers' pay and other purposes, will be enacted by Congress after a hot battle.

Marshall Plan—Congress will finally enact legislation similar to that recommended by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee providing for an expenditure of $5,300,000,000 for one year, to be administered by an independent agency.

Newman Recital Termed 'Admirab

By John McDowell

Dr. William Newman, pianist, appeared in recital this past Thursday evening at Hill music hall.

The opening work played by Dr. Newman, the Sonata in E minor of Johann Joachim Agrell, is a pleasant work of no great distinction. It was well played but Dr. Newman's tone is frequently brittle, and an occasional harshness tends to offset the effects of his clean cut phrasing.

The next work, a sonata of Johann Loewe, modestly described as the Grande Sonate Brillante in E flat major, is an example of the worst influences of musical romanticism. Well played, this unfortunate relic of musical Gongorism has interest, so far as this reviewer is concerned, only for a good performance, and for whatever musicologists may wish to do with it.

The next two works were a nocturne of Faure and the Malaga from Iberia of Albeniz. Both of these were given careful and intelligent performances. Dr. Newman ended his regular program with a fine sonata of Ernest Bloch. This remarkable composer who is well known for his beautiful Schelomo, a rhapsody for cello and orchestra, and for his Concerto Grosso, wrote in an entirely different vein when he composed this sonata. Dr. Newman's performance was altogether admirable.

As an encore the audience was favored with a spirited playing of Dohanyi's 4th Rhapsody.

COLINE SMITH — FRIEDA DEANS — JANE MORRISON

CATHERINE BAIN — PEGGY GRAY — CORNELIA PEGRAM

THESE SIX ATTRACTIVE GIRLS were sponsors for the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity's second annual McCorkle Ball, honoring George McCorkle, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., the oldest living alumnus of the University of North Carolina, a graduate of the class of '78 and a member of the fraternity. The ball was held Friday night at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham with Roy Cole's orchestra furnishing music.

A series of parties were also given Friday and Saturday honoring the new pledges to Phi Kappa Sigma.

Top row: Miss Coline Smith, Chapel Hill, whose escort was W. H. J. Hipple, III, Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Frieda Deans, Wilson, with Joseph B. Foster, Winston-Salem; Miss Jane Morrison, Asheville, with George McLeod, Durham, president of the fraternity.

Bottom row: Miss Catherine Bain, Burlington, with James C. Munden, Smithfield, sergeant-at-arms; Miss Peggy Gray, Robersonville, with Frank English, Monroe, treasurer; and Miss Cornelia Pegram, Asheville, with Claude Crocker, Winston-Salem, sergeant-at-arms.

Alpha Gamma Delta Elects New Officers; Priscilla Moore Receives Presidency

Priscilla Moore, English major from Tryon, was elected president of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority for the coming year at the chapter meeting held last Wednesday night.

Other officers elected include Jean Snyder of Hagerstown, Md., vice-president; Jean Sommerell of Durham, recording secretary; Ruth McCann of Asheville, corresponding secretary;; Mary McGougan of Lumber Bridge, treasurer; Sally Jackson of Demopoli, Ala., house president and Sue Stokes of Raleigh, rush chairman.

Lucille Arnott of Persia, Tenn., was elected to the post of Pan-Hellenic representative; Emily Baker of Asheville social chairman; Patsy McNutt of Greensboro, activities chairman and Jane Blalock of Winston-Salem, chaplain.

All sorority officers have not yet been elected, but the slate will be completed in the spring quarter.

Tri Delt Fetes Monogram Club

The Tri Delts entertained the Monogram club with a circus party last Tuesday night. Pat Lane sang "Old Joe Stalin," and Candy Jonas read "Twas the Night Before the Duke Game." Joan Lucas, Candy Jonas, Dannie Paine, and Margaret Gaston gave a skit and Margaret Gaston sang a pledge song.

The Zeta Psis entertained for the Tri Delts at an open house and coffee hour on Wednesday afternoon. Thursday night Phi Delta Theta gave a dinner party for them.

Pi Beta Phis Name Outstanding Pledges

Sally Woodhull and Anne Wells have been named the outstanding pledges of the newly initiated pledge class of Pi Beta Phi.

Sally received the "Model Pledge" award and Anne received recognition for her scholastic average.

The honors were announced at the annual Phi Phi initiation banquet for new activities, which was held Wednesday night in the Carolina Inn ballroom.

President Bill Lloyd acted as MC for the occasion. She welcomed new initiates into the chapter and introduced visiting alumnae. Louise Dodson, who was president of the pledge class, spoke for the new actives in answer to this.

The regular chapter meeting was held at the sorority house following the banquet.

KEEP HEARTS OFF TREES
EXPERT WARNS LOVERS

Kent, O. —(UP)—Don't wear your heart on a tree.

That, in effect, is the St. Valentine's Day warning sounded to lovers who might be tempted to carve their symbol of undying affection on trees, particularly the smooth-barked beech.

D. Q. Grove, chief field supervisor of the Davey Tree Expert Co., said deep carving interferes with the circulation of sap in the tree. It is seldom fatal, but can prove harmful, especially if too many Romeos operate on the same tree.

Sigma Chi Sweetheart Candidates Selected

Approximately 40 lovely and excited young ladies were fluttering about the premises of the Sigma Chi house Thursday evening trying to impress all the members. And what was the reason for all this? These are the candidates for the title of Sweetheart of Sigma Chi.

There are to be several of these gatherings during the next few weeks in order that the members may gather data for their final choice. Each week will see fewer candidates though since eliminations will be held each week until the field is narrowed down to the point of selecting the sweetheart and her court. The final election will be kept in absolute secrecy until April 24 when the winner will be announced as Sweetheart of Sigma Chi for 1948.

Thursday evening was the get-together of the candidates and it was evident that the election is going to be a very difficult task. The girls were treated to supper and then a regular gabfest was held prior to the meeting. The Sigma Chi Sextette was on hand to deliver several of their well known renditions which have gained campus-wide fame. Jack Thompson, Sigma Chi president, closed the evening's activities with a short orientation speech at which time he explained to the girls the procedure in choosing the Sweetheart who will replace Jo Benton who won the honors last year.

Following are the candidates for the Sweetheart title: Alpha Delta Pi: Sara Jane Farlow, Augusta, Ga.; Bonnie Thrash, Asheville; Frances Angas, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Claudia Lee, Marshallville, Ga.; Alpha Gamma Delta: Betty Holton, Belmont; Marty Dot Clayton; Dusty Moore, Winston-Salem; Lucille Arnott, Persia, Tenn.

Delta Delta Delta: Peppy Lucas, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Margie Norris, Jacksonville, Fla.; Fern Hughes, Rainelle, West Va.; Linda Sharkey, Chapel Hill; Pi Beta Phi: Jean Marie Lester, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Weddy Thorp, Rocky Mount; Harriet Sipple, Orlando, Fla; Roberta Hoffman, Morganton.

Chi Omega: Betty Ann Cooper, Greensboro; Betty Brown, Asheville; Ann Bumgardner, Charlotte; Ann Cooper Knight, Tampa, Fla.; Alderman StRtBl.T Gastonia; Helen Bouldin, Clarksdale, Miss.; Peggy Edgerton, Hendersonville; Archer house Frances Bickett, Raleigh; Mary Tandy Lacy, Hopkinsville, Ky.; Mary Dillard, Greensboro.

McIver: Mary Anna Dunbar, Laurinburg; Carolyn and Shelley Roper, Lincolnton; Sue Walton, Miami, Fla.; Kenan: Ann Martin, Ruth Lassiter and Gail Griffen of Winston-Salem; Spencer: Marty Hinkle, Winston-Salem; Kay Holding, Raleigh; Mary Glen Slator, Wilson; Smith: Sally Jackson, Demopolis, Ala.; Martha Hughes, Cedar Grove and Nell Evans, Asheville.

Kirby Elected KA President

Last week the Kappa Alpha Order here on campus reelected Bob Kirby, rising senior from Charlotte, as chapter president. This will be the third time Kirby has headed the campus K A's. He was elected to his first presidential post in 1944 when he was here in the Naval V-12 program. At present Kirby, a commerce major, is also a member of the Grail, the University dance committee and the Student Council.

Other officers chosen Wednesday evening were Joe Satterthwaite, a junior from New Bern as vice-president, aand Jim Bulla, law student from High Point as secretary.

Three Initiates

Three men will be initiated into Kappa Alpha this afternoon. They are John Campbell from Shelby; William Creel of Wilmington and Tom Foister of High Point.

The engagement of Marian Owen of Newton was announced last week to Brandis "Dusty" Leonard, Kappa Alpha from High Point. The wedding will take place in the First Baptist Church of Newton on March 17. The couple will live in Durham until Leonard completes his work toward a pharmacy degree here.

Celebration Held By ZBT Group For Anniversary

Zeta Beta Tau celebrated its twenty-first anniversary last weekend.

Beginning with the formal opening of the new game room in the fraternity house, events were scheduled for the entire weekend.

Picnic at Hogan's

Saturday afternoon the fraternity entertained with a picnic at Hogan's lake. Outstanding feature was the softball game in which the boys played left-handed against their dates.

Following this annual anniversary banquet was held in the Carolina Inn ballroom, with Arnold Marks, president, acting as master of ceremonies.

Block Speaks

Norman Block, Greensboro, fraternity trustee, delivered the speech on this occasion. The alumni presented the fraternity with a memorial plaque honoring the brothers killed in service.

Special guests for the banquet included Dean Carmichael, Dean Mackie and Mrs. Mackie, and Dr. Katsoff, advisor to the fraternity, and Mrs. Katsoff.

Dance at Inn

Concluding the weekend's festivities was a dance at the Carolina Inn from eight until twelve o'clock, with Jimmy Marshall and his Carolinians furnishing the music.

McIver Dorm Hears Sigma Chi Serenade

McIver dorm was treated to a Sigma Chi serenade last Thursday night to celebrate the pinning of Shelley Roper to Bud Early and Frances Angus to Hank Beebe.

Both girls had individual serenades and songs dedicated to them. Other selections were "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," "The Queen of Alpha Tau," and "Lovey Mine."

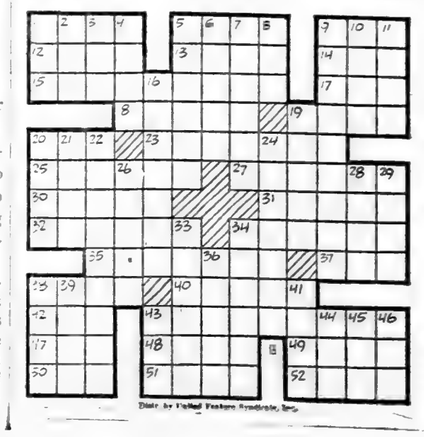
IF WINTER COMES—

NEW YORK (UP)—The Brooklyn Forsythia Committee decided that April 5 would be Forsythia Day in Brooklyn. Outside, the temperature was around 20 degrees.

A portable electric drilling rig, said to be capable of saving $5,000 in the drilling of a single oil well, has been developed to fit a truck and trailer.

UNCLE SAM MAY BE SLOW BUT FINDS HIS MAN

Seattle —(UP)— An ex-GI convinced the wheels of government grind slowly.



A newcomer to Seattle, the veteran left Illinois for California 14 months ago and notified the Veterans Administration of his new address.

After a year in California he came to Seattle and told the VA of the change. He has just received a postcard, forwarded from California. It notified him the Chicago office of the Veterans Administration had received his notification of change of address and that the "request is receiving the closest possible attention."

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Brought into life
5—Shaped like egg
9—Male sheep
12—Away from wind
13—Father
14—High note
15—Spoke to
17—Piece of butter
18—Vegetable
19—Irish
20—Dance step
23—Gulf at Italy's "heel"
25—Ambulance doctor
27—Light shoe
30—Robbed
31—Yellowish color
32—Wireless antenna
34—Variety of European grape
35—Bull fighter
37—S-shaped worm
38—Girl's name
40—A soft, twilled silk
42—Sea bird
43—Moving stairway
47—To bother
48—Touchdown
49—Not any
50—Raised railways
51—Kilns (var.)
52—Situated far down

DOWN

1—Sheep's cry
2—Ancient
3—Crimson
4—Roman despot
6—Early Irish hero
6—Peak on cap
7—Spheres of action
8—Guided
9—To repeat
10—Exclamation of regret
11—Companion
16—To beg
19—Heating vessel (pl.)
20—Site of leaning tower
21—Wager
22—Blusterings
24—Like nature
26—Man's name
28—Wallabas
29—Permits
33—Ropes
34—Ethics
36—European gold coin
38—Smooth
39—Spoken
41—Part of arm
43—Self
44—Pedal digit
45—Single thing
46—Quilted fabric

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Blue Dolphins Take Eight First Places To Breeze To Conference Championship

Locals Amass 101 Points for New Mark; Ousley Regains Title Won in 1941-42

By Billy Carmichael III

Britannica found itself forced to share the rule of the waves yesterday afternoon at Bowman Gray swimming pool as the mermen of Carolina completed their two-day show of Southern conference swimming supremacy by outstroking and outdiving the meager field of three opponents before the equally meager crowd of several hundred.

The locals, showing point-winning strength in all departments, copped a total of eight firsts, four seconds five thirds, six fourth, and two fifths, for the astronomical total of 101 points which eclipses the former conference record of 82 which the Tar Heels set themselves last year. It was the sixth year in a row that the locks of Coach Dick Jamerson have won the loop title and the sixth straight time they have broken the scoring mark.

DICK JAMERSON
. . . another winning year.

Placing a poor second was N. C. State with 33 tallies while Duke edged out VMI for third, 17 to 13.

Bob Ousley was the individual star for the Tar Heels in the day's activities when he defeated highly-touted Billy Kelly of State in the 200-yard breaststroke. Ousley took the lead after the 150-yard mark and went on to win by five yards. He regained the title he won in 1941 and 1942.

The only non-Carolina victory came in the 100-yard freestyle event when Bill Ward of State won a watch-spring victory over Tar Heels Jesse Greenbaum, and Floyd Drew, who finished second and third in that order. The race was definitely the closest of the entire meet.

Unbeatable Dick Twining maintained his unblemished slate by winning the 440-yard freestyle, his second first in a like number of days. Twining won easily and did not seem pressed throughout the race.

The diving, which had been billed as a battle between Norm Sper of Carolina and Johnny Connor of Duke turned out to be a rout for the Tar Heel ace. Connor, in fact, got beaten for second place by Mac Erle also of Carolina who displayed his finest performance of the year. Gil Beam and John Whichard took fourth and fifth place to give the locals a virtual sweep in the event.

Having a new scoring record already under their belt, the Tar Heels went on to sweep the final event of the afternoon, the 440-yard relay. An all-senior team of Osborne, Morrow, Greenbaum, and Pritchard scored an easy win for the meet champions.

Carolina took the championship trophy along with the dual meet trophy for their unbeaten season's record. Besides this, Sper won the John A. Feutchenberger Memorial Trophy for his excellence in diving. State's Kelly won the Coach's Trophy for the highest number of points scored by a senior in the meet. His total was 10 and two-thirds.

The summary:

100 - freestyle — Ward (S), Greenbaum (C), Drew (C), Morrow (C), Stephens (VMI). 54.4.

200 - breaststroke — Ousley (C), Kelly (S), Breeden (C), Cook (C), Coughlin (D). 2:28.8.

440 - freestyle — Twining (C),

(See DOLPHINS, page 4)

SC Swimming Champions—1948

300 - medley — UNC (Thomas, Ousley, Greenbaum).
220 - freestyle — Twining (C)
50 - freestyle — Drew (C).
Diving—Sper (C).
100 - freestyle — Ward (S).
150-backstroke—Thomas (C)
200 - yard breaststroke — Ousley (C).
440-freestyle—Twining (C).
400 - relay — UNC (Osborne, morrow, Greenbaum, Pritchard)

The swimming squad will hold its annual banquet tomorrow evening in the Carolina Inn, Coach Dick Jamerson announced yesterday. The team is asked to meet in the lobby at 6 o'clock.

Mural Notes

Steele and ATO will clash tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock to decide the all-campus five-man soccer championship.

plete their orientation rifle-firing tomorrow. Phi Delta Chi will do its firing at 4 o'clock and Kappa Sig takes aim at 7:30.

In badminton, the winner of the Dave Boak-Watson Pugh contest tomorrow evening will meet Clark Taylor for the championship of the men's singles on Wednesday. Doubles matches are also scheduled for tomorrow evening's play in the Women's gym as follows:

Brumley and Hook vs. Boak and Lupton; Lee and Strayhorn vs. Edwards and McAden; Mr. and Mrs. Cranford vs. Miss Wilson and Boak; Miss Tabor and Lupton vs. Miss Vincent and Smith.

Big Four Sets Plans for May Mural Carnival

Officials of the intramural department journeyed to Duke Thursday night to confer with mural heads from that school, Wake Forest, and N. C. State about the Big Four sports day to be held in the spring.

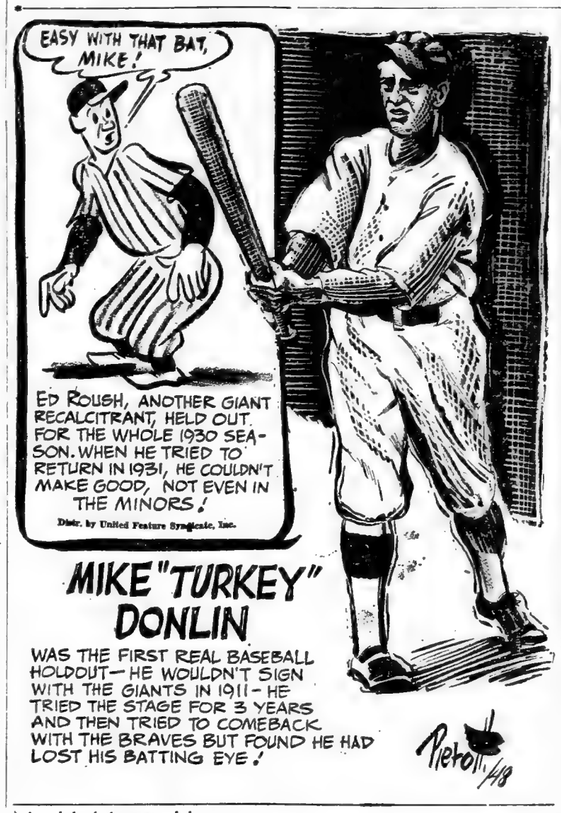
The biggest news to come out of the conclave was that the day would be expanded from intercollegiate mural softball tourney to include such sports as volleyball, handball, badminton, and horseshoes.

The event will be held over at Duke sometime in the second week of May. Thursday was set as the probable date but final word will have to come from the Blue Devil baseball varsity which has several tentative games to schedule.

Team Scores

Team scores will be kept and consolation rounds will be held to decide the third-place finishers. In the individual events, two doubles and one singles matches will be played in single elimination tournaments. Handballers will use only one wall in the games.

Duke will furnish all of the officials except in the softball play where all four schools will each contribute one umpire. Officials will not call games in which their school is participating and only two contests will be staged at a time.



It will be up to the individual institutions to decide whether they will be represented by all-star aggregations or by the campus champions. The annual carnival, held here last year, will rotate among the four schools.

Braves Get Stanky

Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, March 6 —(UP)— The Brooklyn Dodgers have completed a deal that probably will have Brooklyn buzzing for a long time to come.

The Dodgers traded their popular second basemen, Eddie Stanky, to the Boston Braves today for Ray Sanders, a first baseman who spent last season in retirement. The Dodgers also got an undisclosed amount of cash.

State Captures SC Crown With W in Over Duke

No Holdouts Here . . .

Cold Weather Disrupts Baseball Drills; Squad to be Cut for Vacation Practice

The chill winds toward the end of last week were ill winds for the large turnout of aspirants for the 1948 Carolina baseball squad, for the spell of cold weather plus the usual heavy fall of Chapel Hill dew succeeded in disrupting almost completely the practice of the Tar Heel coaching staff.

The first cuts of the candidates originally had been scheduled for early this week but the spell of frigid and damp weather has set back the plans of Coaches Hearn, Rabb and House a number of days.

Coach Rabb disclosed yesterday that he was hoping for a break in the weather so that he might stage several intra-squad games before he makes the first and probably last major paring of the squad.

The Carolina assistant mentor also commented that, unless the weather does improve before the final exams start, he will be forced to arbitrarily cut the squad to the number he intends to have remain here to practice during the spring holidays.

According to the Tar Heel mentors, they have spotted several prospects who have possibilities of developing into good ballplayers.

Yesterday's cold weather and mass homeward exodus of students moved Rabb to call off any organized practice. However, most of the batterymen and several infielders and outfielders loosened up their arms in the Tin Can.

Until the weather does let up, the candidates will continue to go through light hitting and infield drills.

Dave Boak Captures Table Tennis Honors

Dave Boak, varsity soccer player, won the Graham Memorial table tennis tournament Thursday night, emerging undefeated from the field of 14 entries.

Boak, who reached the finals in the last GM tournament only to be defeated by Ray Morris, won the title by winning over Tommy Scheinman. Morris did not enter this week's tourney.

Scheinman took the first game, 21-19, but Boak came back strongly to capture the next three contests and the crown. The scores were 21-14, 21-15, and 21-11.

Scheinman defeated Archie Goodwin in the semis to gain his finals berth and Boak outplayed Bob Callahan in the next-to-last round.

Three Matmen Depart Today For SC Meet

Three members of Carolina's wrestling squad will leave this morning for Washington and Lee university in Lexington, Virginia, where they will take part in the annual Southern conference wrestling tourney.

Oscar Gupton, Phil Kemp, and Ray Swigart will be the only members representing the Tar Heel defending champion crew because of the proximity of final exams and the fact that they will have to miss three days of school in order to take part in the tournament.

Gupton, 165-pounder who lost only one match during regular dual meet competition, will be out to avenge this loss which was incurred at the hands of W & L's Ken Lindell in Lexington last month.

Kemp, a 145-pound freshman who went through the regular season with only two defeats in six contests, will meet such competition as Duke's Jack Wamsley and Ken Finley of the Generals. Both Finley and Wamsley defeated Kemp during the season by two points, Wamsley's victory coming in an overtime match on the Woollen gym mat.

Ray Swigart, remaining member of the trio to represent the Blue and White crew, saw action in only one meet this year. Facing State's Fred Wagoner, Swigart cracked a rib early in the first period and hasn't seen action since. He will wrestle in the 175-pound class.

Other teams participating in the affair are VMI, VPI, State, Duke, and Davidson.

Wolfack Surge Nets 58-50 Triumph; Wolfpack Surge Nets 58-50 Triumh;

By Bob Goldwater

Duke Indoor Stadium, Durham, March 6—Showing the ill effects of a case of mumps, the all-conquering cagers of N. C. State recovered sufficiently from a point-quarantined first half to overcome a fighting Duke quintet, 58-50, and thus add the Southern conference cage diadem to an already brilliant 1948 campaign.

On the short end of a three-point gap in the intermission score, the Wolfpack returned with a strong second half in their efforts to "win it for Dick." And win it they did, moving to the fore in the third minute of the last session and nursing the lead for the remainder of the contest. Dickey, in the State college infirmary with an acute case of mumps, should only be nursed as well as was the point advantage held by his teammates.

The triumph provided State with its third conference championship and second in a row. Each member of both teams received cups in post-game ceremonies, and team Captain Leo Katkaveck was presented with the trophy symbolizing the Southern conference basketball title.

If individual honors had also been made, Katkaveck would certainly have come in for a share of them. State's brilliant guard, making his final court appearance against a Southern conference foe, played his usual standout game on defense to sew up a spot on the all-tournament team to be announced Monday morning.

But Leo wasn't the only State star in tonight's game. Big Warren Cartier, starting in place of the absent Dickey, did what Dickey might have done had he been there by racking up 20 points to take scoring honors. Corren Youmans led the Duke scoring assault with 16 to take the tourn-

As Expected

Duke (50)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
Ar Lon, f	2	2	3	6	4
Youmans, f	8	0	1	16	2
Colleo, c	3	1	4	7	2
Dill	0	3	2	3	0
Surp	0	0	0	0	0
Hi Lee, c	0	2	5	2	1
Fox	0	1	1	1	1
Martin, g	3	0	0	6	0
Golden	3	3	0	9	2
Total	19	12	16	50	12
State (58)	fg	ft	pf	tp	ftm
McComac, f	3	2	1	8	0
Ranzino	1	1	5	3	0
Cartier, f	8	4	2	20	2
Stine	0	1	2	1	1
Novarth, c	6	1	2	13	0
Bartels, g	2	1	1	5	1
Sloan	2	3	4	7	1
Katkaveck, g	0	1	1	1	0
Bubas	0	0	1	0	0
Totals	22	14	19	58	5

Halftime score: Duke 27, State 24
Officials — Heft and Williams.

ament point-making laurels with 63.

The first half was nip and tuck all the way. State took a one-point lead, had a 7-4 advantage at the five-minute mark, and clung to a 12-11 margin shortly after 10 minutes had elapsed.

Duke Leads

That's when Duke took over, going ahead on Doug Ausbon's layup at 10:19. The two teams took turns holding a one-point advantage for the next three minutes, but the Blue Devils finally upped the margin at the 14-minute mark to two points and went on from there to gain a 27-assault with 16 to take the tourn-

(See WOLFPACK, page 4)

WC, Meredith Tie for First In Coed Cage Tourney Here

The cagers of Women's college and Meredith tied for first place with five points each in the basketball tournament sponsored by the Women's Athletic association yesterday.

Five schools were entered in the abbreviated tourney. In addition to WC and Meredith, there were coeds from Duke, Guilford, and Carolina participating.

Duke placed third by defeating Guilford in the consolation round, 18-7.

The winners took two games apiece to tie for the title. Meredith dropped Duke 12-10 and Guilford, 7-4. The WC basketeers took decisions over Carolina and Guilford for a clean sweep.

The Carolina hoopsters dropped both of their games. They lost to WC, 6-2, and were defeated by their arch-rivals, Duke. The Devils' 11 points proved too much for the Tar Lassies.

The contests were only ten minutes long, thus accounting for the low scores.

Carolina coeds who carried the Blue and White standard were: Becky Holten, Margaret Booth, Lib Browning, Tinnie Royal, Bobby Bess, Betsy Fountain, Phyllis Bradshaw, Evelyn Blanchard, Peggy Lucas, Barb Cashion, Lib Pennington, and Weddy Thorp.

A Complete Line of Polishes . . .
ESQUIRE
KIWI
CAVALIER
In All Colors . . .
Including RED And GREEN
ALSO
SHOE LACES And SHOE TREES
AND
A COMPLETE SHOE REPAIR SERVICE
AT THE COLLEGE SHU-FIXERY

"Featuring"
THE
"NEW LOOK"
IN SPRING WAVES

ASK ABOUT OUR $5.00
ECONOMY
COLD WAVE
CAROLINA BEAUTY SHOP
(ANNEX BARBER SHOP)

Have YOU heard about CARY and The Bishop's Wife?

(That "Bachelor and Bobby Soxer" Man)
CARY GRANT
Women run to him with their troubles

("The Farmer's Daughter")
LORETTA YOUNG
She's always running into Cary

DAVID NIVEN
He'd like to run Cary out of town!
SAMUEL GOLDWYN'S wonderful new comedy
Cary and The Bishop's Wife
with MONTY WOOLLEY
JAMES GLEASON · GLADYS COOPER
ELSA LANCHESTER and
THE MITCHELL BOYCHOIR
Directed by HENRY KOSTER
Screen Play by Robert E. Sherwood and Leonardo Bercovici · From the Novel by Robert Nathan · Released through RKO Radio Pictures, Inc.
SUNDAY — MONDAY
CAROLINA

"THE BEST IS YET TO BE"

The telephone will be seventy-two years old this year. Its development within a single lifetime has been a modern miracle: Yet it is only the beginning:

There are any number of men in the telephone business today—some just starting out—who will see greater progress than the past has ever known.

Year by year the next half century will be increasingly theirs. New leaders will appear from among them. Step by step, rung by rung, they will mount the ladder to the top. For telephone management is employee management and comes up from the ranks.

There will be more good jobs for qualified men in the telephone business in 1958 and 1998 than now. It just can't help being that way. For of all the businesses and professions, there are few more interesting and necessary.

So the future is bright for those who make telephony their life work. For them, "The best is yet to be."

BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

SDA Will Present Radio Program; Petition Finished

The Students for Democratic Action will present a 15 minute program this afternoon at 5:15 over radio station WDUK, Durham, entitled "Why the Marshall Plan."

Written by Stuart Lucas, the educational feature will be given in dramatic narrative form Points covered by the program will include how much will be spent by the Marshall Plan, how the plan will be administered, who will profit by it, how it will affect this country, and its history and development.

Members of the cast will include Jim Roberts, Margaret Healy, Bob Lindsay and Stuart Lucas.

Bob Lindsay, chairman of the SDA, announced yesterday that the final number of signatures in the Marshall Plan petition campaign totalled 1,000.

Lindsay said that copies of the petition backing the Marshall Plan will be sent to North Carolina Senators William Umstead and Clyde Hoey, Senator Robert Taft (R-Ohio) and Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R-Michigan).

In commenting on the response to the petition Lindsay said. "Most everybody that we approached said they would either sign it or would like to know more about it. We feel that we could have gotten a lot more signatures if we had the time and the manpower."

He also said that explanatory literature concerning the Marshall Plan was placed in the hands of more than 1,000 persons.

-Wolfpack-

(Continued from page 3)

24 halftime lead.

Duke held tight to the lead for exactly two and one-half minutes in the second half. At 2:30, Ed Bartels tossed in a hook and the Casemen moved out front by 32-31. And they held it for the next 17 and one half minutes, long enough to get themselves crowned champions when the ball-playing was over.

Immediately after the game, speedy Jack McComas climbed up on the shoulders of two teammates and clipped off the cords from one of the baskets . . . The P.A. announcer in the indoor stadium gave the startling news during the second half that a Chicago resident had won the Walking Man contest by naming Jack Benny . . . Eddie Cameron made the after-game presentations in his capacity of chairman of the conference basketball committee.

-Lunceford-

(Continued from page 1)

gon to the Lunceford star after getting his early musical training with bands like Earl Hood, Horace Henderson, George Dixon and Stuff Smith. Thomas, according to information from the Gale publicity agency of New York, "typifies the driving, creative style that came to be the hallmark of the late Jimmie Lunceford's original orchestra. Thomas is an exponent of 'personalized rhythm,' and this was the sort of thing which distinguished the band from the time it came into prominence."

The reorganization of the band is in itself a memorial to the memory of Jimmie Lunceford, who was born in Fulton, Missouri, in 1902. When his family moved to Denver, Colorado, it was there the young Lunceford met James Whiteman, father of Paul Whiteman. From Denver the musician moved to Memphis, where he attended and was graduated from the Manassa high school. He then was enrolled at Fiske university in 1926. His musicial career led him into New York's famed Cotton Club and to one of the top positions in the field of jazz.

In a page-long eulogy to the bandleader, a critic in the magazine "Downbeat" wrote, "The death of Lunceford marked the end of an era in the history of jazz."

All Occasions
Flowers say it better
REHDERS
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office corner

ON HER ARRIVAL in New York, Mrs. Rose Trnka (above) charged that she was "stripped to the waist" and searched by Czech officials before she was allowed to board her plane at Prague. Mrs. Trnka, who went to visit her mother on the outskirts of Prague before the Reds seized control, was obliged to account for every cent she had spent during her two-week stay.

(International)

Officers Association Meets Tomorrow Nite

The local chapter of the Reserve Officers association will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30 in the Carolina Inn.

The members of the organization will hear a talk on universal military training to be delivered by Peter Lavin, a student in the Commerce school. Lavin, who holds the rank of major in the reserve has recently returned to school from duty with the War Department where he assisted in drafting the plans for UMT.

All reserve officers are invited to attend the meeting.

Advisory Group Maintains Student-Faculty Relationship

By Jean Baskerville

Maintaining a personal relationship between faculty and students has always been a big job, but it is one which the Committee of Faculty Advisors at the University handles with care and adequacy. Professors have always been charged with the responsibility of keeping a close check on their students and even now, with the greatly increased enrollment, they are not relenting their efforts.

Many of the students have special problems—problems that often require special treatment, and that's where the Faculty Advisers come into the picture. These are regular members of the teaching staff who give part of their time each day to the job of seeing that their student advisees are keeping on the right track.

No matter how well the student seem to be doing, those in the freshman and sophomore classes are called in for conferences with their adviser at least once a quarter. And those with problems are called in more often. The adviser also keeps in touch with the parents through periodic reports, and parents are encouraged to offer suggestions.

Faculty Adviser's Group

Established in 1935 by President Frank P. Graham, with hearty faculty approval, the Advisory System has been expanded in recent years to meet the increased enrollment. There are now eight such advisers, who are permitted a reduced teaching load to enable them to give plenty of time to this job. They are carefully chosen, and to qualify they must be first of all good teachers. But they must also possess the sort of personality that fits this job.

Dean C. P. Spruill of the General College is Chairman of the Faculty Advisers' group, and the other members are Profs. Cecil Johnson, Carlyle Shepard, F. H. Edmister, M. A. Hill, Jr., Fred E. Coenen, Clyde C. Carter, and G. A. Barrett.

In addition to his periodic conferences with the students assigned him, the faculty adviser also keeps regular daily office hours when he is available for conferences about any academic or personal problem. A student may, therefore, consult his adviser as often as he likes.

Some Have Financial Problems

There is usually a group of students waiting outside every adviser's office with a wide variety of problems. A student under physical strain is sent to the infirmary for medical treatment, and the adviser and physician work together in helping the student make necessary adjustments.

A student with financial problems may be referred to Edwin S. Lanier, head of the Self-Help bureau, who helps him find employment. When a student must work to help defray his expenses, his adviser helps him arrange his schedule accordingly.

Students who are emotionally maladjusted are given additional attention by their advisers and by members of the psychology and sociology departments who are especially capable of dealing with personality problems. There is usually a solution for every problem, and the adviser makes every possible effort to help the student find it.

There are many examples like that of the student whose work at the University was so poor that his adviser sent him to Dr. Perry to be tested. The results of the test showed that he had superior abilities in mechanical subjects, none of which were offered at the University. He was encouraged to transfer to a technical school where he made an outstanding record and upon graduation became a successful engineer. Many other students unwilling or unable to do good work at the University have similarly found constructive alternatives by transferring to professional or trade schools or by taking advantage of Government-sponsored on-the-job training programs.

Wallacites Hear Weinstein Motion

In an attempt to clarify the stand of the Wallace movement on American foreign policy, Harvey Weinstein introduced a resolution at the Wallace club meeting Friday night to the effect that the Wallacites should condemn any foreign policy—American or Russian—that is imperalistic and that abrogates the civil rights of any peoples.

Weinstein introduced the motion in answer to recent attacks that the Wallacites were evading questions concerning their attitude toward Russia at the Tar Heel Students for Walace convention held here last week-end.

Weinsteins motion was tabled until the next meeting by the Wallacites after a long debate on the issue, and a committee of three: Dan Harris, Sandra Saunders, and Harvey Weinstein were appointed to study third-party candidate Henry Wallace's stand on American foreign policy and report to the next meeting which is scheduled for March 26th.

Delivering a report to local Wallace supporters on the recent Students for Wallace convention, Marge Frantz asserted that in view of the interest stirred up by Jim Chaneys articles in the News and Observer, the convention was a "huge" success.

-Dolphins-

Despres (S), Basescu (C), Norwood (C), Adams (D). 5:07.3.

Diving — Sper (C), Erle (C) Connor (D), Beam (C), Whichard (C). 147.5.

440 - freestyle relay — UNC (Osborne, Morrow, Greenbaum, Pritchard), VMI, Duke (State disqualified). 3:40.3.

TEAM SCORES

Carolina 101	Duke 17
State 33	VMI 13

Finnish Leaders Hold Secret Meet

Foreign affairs experts held a secret meeting in Helsinki, Finland, today. Political observers believe they drafted Finland's reply to the Russian overture for a long-term economic and mili- pact.

Despite the blackout on official news reports, there is a general feeling that the government has decided to send a Finnish diplomatic team to Moscow to begin treaty negotiations.

Because of this feeling a number of rich businessmen and Baltic refugees are trying to sell their holdings and leave the country.

Police have officially anounced that a dozen persons arrested last night when they tried to cross Finland's frontier, but Swedish newspapers maintain there were six times as many arrests made.

One Stockholm paper says that 600 Baltic refugees crossed into North Sweden last month alone, and it adds that many more persons have been fleeing from Finland during the past 10 days.

BAPTIST MUSICAL PROGRAM

Climaxing the series of student-conducted supper forums for the winter quarter, the Baptist Student union will present a program devoted to religious music tonight at six at the Baptist church, announces Charles Cunningham, program director for the group. Milton Bliss and Betsy Huggins will have charge of the program.

UNIVERSITY HOUR

"The University Hour," heard locally over radio station WPTF, this afternoon at 1:30, will feature the University orchestra under the direction of Earl Slocum, with Margaret Leinbach Kolb as piano soloist, in a performance of Erno Dohnayis' "Variations on A Nursery Rhyme."

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

LI'L ABNER — By AL CAPP

It's OUR Red Cross – let's keep it going – HARRY'S

North State Political Roundup

North Carolina Has Varied Political Week

By Larry Dale

United Press Staff Writer

Raleigh, March 6 —(UP)— The week began and ended in North Carolina on very different notes as far as President Truman's civil rights program was concerned.

At the beginning of the week the harsh words of Tom Connally, Texas Democrat, sitll were ringing in the ears of Tar Heel political leaders. At the Jackson-Jefferson day dinner Conally had called President Truman's civil rights program "pratically a lynching of the constitution." Connally's call to arms was phrased, "we shall resist it, we shall not take it lying down."

But on Friday night Governor Gregg Cherry said to many of the same party leaders that he hoped "a great deal of patriotism and common sense" would prevail at the state party convention on May 20.

Cherry's quieting remarks were for the benefit of members of the state democratic executive committee, meeting in Raleigh to set the convention date.

Possibly his sentiments were responsible for action of at least two committee members who suddenly decided not to present anti-Truman proposals to the meeting. Those decisions were made before the committee convened. But the governor's feelings about the civil rights issue were no secret even before that time.

He gave the Democratic executive committeemen his clearest expression of his ideas. Cherry put it, "if measures are adopted in congress that our people do not like, there will be abundant time to frame our issue and make our plans before the November elections."

The week also began and ended very differently in the governor's own office.

On Monday he announced the resignation of his personal secretary and former manager of publicity during his campaign for election, John Harden.

On Saturday he named William D. Snider as Harden's successor. Snider was a member of the news staff of the Salisbury Post. Strangely enough, Harden also was once an editor of the Salisbury Post.

Harden now is directing publicity for the campaign of Senator William B. Umstead. The Durham senator has served nearly two years since his appointment by Governor Cherry to succeed the late Senator J. W. Bailey.

Umstead and former Governor J. M. Broughton both have paid their filing fees to run for the office.

Some Republicans also have joined the official roster of candidates during the week. They are Manley R. Dunaway and A. L. Bulwinkle, both of Charlotte, and both campaigning for the 10th district congressional seat now held by Hamilton Jones.

A third Republican joined the stepped-up pace of the GOP by getting into the governor's race. The Republican candidate for state chief executive is E. L. Gavin, former mayor of Roseboro who served in the State Senate in 1919 and 1920. Gavin also is a former district attorney.

The week also included announcements from candidate for governor W. Kerr Scott. The former commissioner of agriculture's first announcement came as a surprise. On Monday he revealed that he would serve as his own campaign manager. Later, he named James Caldwell of Concord as his assistant campaign manager. Caldwell has been state adjutant of the American Legion for the past 18 years.

Dean of the House of Representatives, 85-year-old Robert L. Doughton, filed for re-election during the week. He has been in congress since 1911.

One candidate withdrew from the 9th district congressional race and threw his support to a form-Southport said he would support er opponent. S. Bunn Frink of F. Ertel Carlyle of Lumberton for the seat to be vacated by J. Bayard Clark.

Quick Service
DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. 1-ch1x2-1

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

LATE 1946 BLUE CHRYSLER 4 DOOR sedan, perfect condition. Seat covers, radio, heater, fog-lights, back-up lights, 5 lifeguard safety tubes. Henry Golding, 9011. (1-1849-1)

LOST 12

CAMEO RING LAST THURSDAY AT Woollen Gym or Mangum Dorm. Finder please notify Room 302, Mangum. Reward. (1-1847-1)

BROWN WALLET CONTAINING $72 or $73 Wednesday, probably in Carolina Theatre, Library, or Zo building. Reward. Dallas T. Jones, box 163 or Quonset No. 33. 1-1846-1

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

MAN FOR PART TIME YARD WORK. Telephone 3341. (1-1842-1)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 122 West Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

WANTED TO BUY 24A

SECOND HAND BABY PLAY PEN. Call Mrs. A. M. Jordan, 5486. (1-C1851-1)

VILLAGE
TODAY

MEN FOUGHT HIM...WOMEN LOVED HIM!
SAMUEL BRONSTON presents
MICHAEL O'SHEA · SUSAN HAYWARD
JACK LONDON
with OSA MASSEN, BARRY DAVENPORT, FRANK CRAVEN, VIRGINIA MAYO, RALPH MORGAN, LOUISE BEAVERS
Screen Play by IRVING PICHEL
Directed by ALFRED SANTELL
—MONDAY—
RONALD REAGAN · SHIRLEY TEMPLE
EVERY THING YOU LOVE - YOU'LL LOVE ABOUT
"That Hagen Girl"
A WARNER BROS. TRIUMPH!

OUR SWISS SUPPLIER WAS CAUGHT WITH A SURPLUS...
. . . so you get a "buy." You've seen watches like these sell for double this price. Each has a lathe-turned stainless steel case (NOT die-stamped), plus features found on only the best importations. Just compare!
• 7 Jewel Swiss Movement
• Sweep-second hand
• Luminous dial calibrated to 1/5 second
• Curved-crown unbreakable crystal
• Waxed Norwegian leather strap.
Guaranteed as Advertised
Send check or money-order. No C.O.D.'s. We pay mailing, insurance, and Federal tax.

7 JEWEL SWISS ONLY $12.95
GRACEFUL WAFER-THIN CASE!
Handsome satin finished stainless steel case is rust and corrosion-proof!
HARRIS HOUSE
BOX 2 476 NORWOOD AVE.
BUFFALO 13 N. Y.

The dollar has shrunk. But human needs have not.
When you give to the Red Cross this year, remember that greater sums are required to do an equal job
IT'S YOUR RED CROSS...KEEP IT GOING Give Generously!
CAROLINA PHARMACY
CASTON MOTOR CO.
CHARLES A. VALENTINE CABINET SHOP
CURVE INN
DURHAM ROAD DAIRY
ELECTRIC CONSTRUCTION COMPANY
TAR HEEL BARBER SHOP
HAZZARD MOTOR CO.
TWIN VILLAGE LAUNDRY AND CLEANERS

University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Increasing cloudiness and mild with rain this afternoon or night.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Freshman Chapel
Honor System
Faculty Mag Editor

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 120

Dick Manning Enters Race For Presidency As Independent Candidate

CP Backs Fitzgerald For Secretary-Treasurer, Names PB Slate

Candidate to Make Formal Acceptance At Meeting Tonight

By John Stump

Earl Fitzgerald, rising junior from Pelham, has been nominated by the Campus party for secretary-treasurer of the student body.

Although the nominee has accepted informally, his formal acceptance is scheduled to be made in a speech to the party at its meeting this evening.

Heads Debate Council

Fitzgerald is president of the Debate council and has taken part in University debating activities for more than two years.

His nomination was hailed yesterday afternoon by CP publicity chairman Tom Lockhart speaking for the party commented, "We feel that in nominating Earl for the secretary-treasurer's post we are choosing one of the most able and agressive leaders to be found in the student body."

Chairman Bob Haire of the Campus party called the nomination "a long step in our attempt to revive interest and maintain efficiency in Carolina student government."

Commends Work

Lockhart pointed out that through Fitzgerald's work with the Debate council this year and last, the activity has again become a major one at the University. "Fitzgerald," he said, "has played a leading part in getting the University into the Tulane forensic tournament, was primarily responsible for the eminently successful intramural debating program, and is now devoting his efforts to the coming Fredricksburg (Va.) Grand National tourney."

The candidate is a former vice president of the Debate council and has served as clerk and as treasurer of the Dialectic senate. At the present time ,he is a Di member and a member of the University debating squad.

JOB INTERVIEWS

Graduating seniors interested in working for the department of state of Virginia can secure employment interviews with Miss Pauline Wirt, a personnel officer from this state tomorrow.

Miss Kathryn G. Cook, assistant director of the University's Placement Service, through whose office in South building these meetings can be arranged, said that Miss Wirt can offer scholarships from the state of Virginia to those undergraduates desiring to specialize in the fields of child and social welfare work in this state.

Long Heads Executive Council Of State Student Legislature

By Chuck Hauser

Plans for the 11th annual State Student Legislature are rapidly nearing completion under the leadership of Charlie Long, junior from Thomasville.

Long, former Student party chairman, Di Senate speaker and speaker pro tempore of the University Student Legislature, was elected chairman of the executive council of the state legislative body and its temporary speaker at a council meeting Saturday evening at Meredith college in Raleigh.

Chester ZumBrunnen was elected to the steering committee of the council, and Pete Gerns was appointed temporary speaker of the Phi Assembly and Gerns is present parliamentarian of the Student Legislature.

The state meeting will be held on April 16 and 17, and according to present plans will be unicameral, since only the House chambers of the state capitol are available at present. There is still a possibility, however, that the Senate hall will be open, in which case the assembly will revert to its usual bicameral form.

The legislature was begun in 1937 by the Pi Kappa Alpha debating society at State college and was carried on by that organization until the 1945 session, when the executive council gained control of the project.

During the 1945 meeting, the decision was made to admit representatives the following year from Negro colleges in the state. According to observers, the interracial group worked together in perfect harmony, but the race question was admittedly part of the cause for the attempted cancellation of this year's assembly by State college students on the executive council last fall.

A complete revamping of the council set-up followed the move, and the 11th annual legislature is now moving close to reality.

Bursley, Joyner Gerns, Stump Are Running for Board

Harold Bursley, Pete Gerns, Ed Joyner, and John Stump will run on the Campus party slate for Publications board positions, party publicity chairman Tom Lockhart announced yesterday.

Bursley, a member of the board of editors of the Yackety Yack seeks the at-large position on the board. A junior from Charlotte, Bursley is a veteran publications man specializing in yearbook work.

While still in high school, he edited the annual of Charlotte's Central high school. Last year the 21 year old veteran returned from overseas service to take over the fraternity section of the Yack. He was promoted this year to the position which he now holds. Bursley is a Commerce major and a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Gerns and Joyner will seek the senior positions on the board.

The business manager of Tarnation magazine, Gerns' endorsement by the Student party has already been announced. He was assistant editor of the 1947 Yackety Yack and is a Daily Tar Heel columnist.

Gerns was a member of the Publications board at Michigan state college and while there served as business manager of the Spartan magazine. During the war, the Canton, Ohio native, worked as a correspondent for the Guadalcanal-New Georgia area.

Joyner, the managing editor of the Daily Tar Heel, is also running on a three-party ticket for DTH editor The candidate is a rising senior from Wilson.

An incumbent member of the board, Joyner serves at its treasurer. He has three years experience on the DTH, and has, in the past been associated with the Orange printshop. He is an overseas veteran and a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Stump, University party nominee for the junior position on the board, has been endorsed by the CP for that position.

The candidate is a member of the Daily Tar Heel and Yackety Yack staffs and serves as night editor for the DTH.

A rising junior from Clarksburgh, W. Va., he is a member of the elections board and holds the position of secretary of the Interfraternity council. During the past summer, he worked on the business staff of a West Virginia newspaper.

He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

FINAL EDITION

Final edition of the Daily Tar Heel for this quarter will appear on Thursday morning, March 11. All copy for this issue must be in by 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Publication will be resumed on the first day of classes in the spring quarter, Thursday, March 25.

Campus Drive For Red Cross Starts Today

By Sally Woodhull

Today marks the opening of a campus-wide Red Cross drive to raise $2,000 from Carolina students as part of the national campaign goal of $75,000,000.

Headed by Graham Memorial Director Bill Shuford with the assistance of students Joe Ferguson and Bob Ormand, the drive continues through tomorrow and Thursday, in an effort to reach the campus goal in a minimum of time and with as little inconvenience to students as possible.

Responsibility for solicitations of funds has been assumed by various campus organizations, with a keen spirit of rivalry in evidence among them, according to Shuford. Recognition will be given to those organizations which contribute outstanding amounts, or which solicit 100 per cent contributions.

Lead Solicitation

Emile Saleeby will head the solicitation for Men's Interdormitory council, and Bootsie McWilliams for Women's Interdormitory council; Jack Thompson for Interfraternity council and Ferne Hughes for Pan Hellenic council; and Barbara Cashion for Coed Senate. Mrs. Dorothy Cooke will head the group which is to contact students and their families living in Victory Village.

Included in services of the American Red Cross are activities such as those of the home service office in Alumni building, which aids veterans in filing of claims, GI insurance, hospitalization, and general counseling.

Aid to Veterans

Throughout the nation there are more than 18 million war veterans, who with their families, comprise 32 per cent of the population. Red Cross aids them in countless ways.

First aid, water safety, accident prevention, nursing and nutrition services are included under the health services offered by the Red Cross; and in addition there are numerous volunteer services such as the Gray Ladies, Nurses's Aides, canteen service, and entertainment and instruction.

Distaster service, such as that offered following the Texas City explosion of last year is one of the most important of Red Cross activities, although the services of the organization encompass a far wider program.

CHARLOTTE DANCE BIDS

Bids for the Charlotte Carolina Club holiday dance may be purchased today and Wednesday at the "Y" from 9 until 1 o'clock for $1.50. Wednesday will be the last opportunity to obtain tickets for the dance which is to be held Friday, March 19, at Morris Field Officers' club in Charlotte. Tickets will not be available in Charlotte. The number of bids per person will not be limited until the supply of 275 tickets has been exhausted.

Platform Expresses Desire For Efficient Government

DICK MANNING

Dick Manning, commerce major from Raleigh, has declared as an independent candidate for the presidency of the student body.

"It has been my sincere desire," Manning stated, "to see and participate in an efficient and effective student government. I believe that this type of government may be achieved only with a president who has no affiliation with or obligation to any political party.

The 23-year-old candidate, who served in the European theater of operations in the parachute infantry during the war, explained that the reason he has not entered the political field before was the uncertainty of the duration of his stay on campus after he first entered in 1945.

At that time he was on active duty assigned to an army hospital to which he was forced to return several times after his first enrollment. He was retired with the rank of captain in October, 1947.

A member of Zeta Psi fraternity, Manning has been awarded the distinguished service cross, the British military cross, and the Purple Heart. He will be a junior at the end of next quarter.

Manning' statement of his candidacy follows:

"I have at this time decided to yield to the persistent requests of my friends that I announce my candidacy for the office of president of the student body.

"I fully realize the difficulty that I will encounter running as an independent candidate against organized parties. I feel confident, however, that this obstacle may be overcome with the aid and active support of those who, as I, desire a government which will meet the needs of the individual and not the interest of a political party."

All Nominations Due by March 25

Nominations for all campus offices must be in the hands the Elections board not later than midnight on Thursday, March 25, the first day of classes in the spring quarter, Board Chairman Al Winn, said yesterday.

Winn stated that this date is the absolute deadline for all candidates. By that time, all political parties must have submitted their slates, and independent candidates must have presented petitions of candidacy containing their signatures and those of at least 25 qualified voters.

Winn also announced a meeting of the Elections board at 7 o'clock tonight in Roland Parker lounge 3 of Graham Memorial. "This meeting is imperative," the board chairman stated, "since we will be discussing the new elections bill and the entire plan of operations for the spring elections.

Members of the board who must attend are Bill Fuess, Barbara Cashion, Bill Hipple, Ralph Sherrill, John York, John Stump, Chick Slack, Wilbur McFarland, Jim Gwynn and Fred Thompson.

SENIOR INVITATIONS

Jack Fitch has made the following announcement:

Seniors may order their invitations at the YMCA lobby today from 9 to 4. This is the last day that orders will be accepted. No deposit is necessary. There are two types of invitations—blue leather and white paper. These sell for 35 cents and 25 cents apiece, respectively. Invitations ordered now will arrive during the second week in May. Class rings may be ordered at the same time.

President Truman Says He Will Run

Washington, March 8 —(UP)— President Truman announced tonight that he will definitely run for re-election. He made the statement through Chairman J. Howard McGrath of the Democratic national committee.

McGrath and Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic committee, met an hour and a half with the president this afternoon. McGrath said afterward that the president had authorized him to say "If he is nominated by the Democratic national convention, he will accept and run."

The statement was the first official news of Truman's course. There has been little doubt that the president would go after the Democratic nomination, but recently rebellious Southern Democrats aroused over the administration's racial rights program, have talked about putting up some other candidate.

BULLETIN:

Tokyo, March 7 —(UP)—General Douglas MacArthur says that he will run for president if nominated.

This is the first statement he has made concerning probable nomination. He says that he does not "Actively seek or covet any office," but he adds, "I will not shrink from accepting any public duty to which I might be called by the American people."

In this connection, McGrath said that President Truman's position on the civil rights program is unchanged.

The Democratic chairman said that Truman's decision to announce his candidacy for the nomination followed "urgent" requests from Democratic leaders throughout the nation.

Music Program Slated Tonight

A program of American music, representative of the nation's entire musical history, will be presented tonight at 8:30 in Hill hall sponsored and performed by the members of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, Alpha Rho chapter, national honorary fraternity.

Featured on the program will be two octettes for woodwinds and harpsichord by Alec Wilder, well-known modern composer, who it noted for his unusual chamber music in the jazz idiom. These pieces, "A Debutante's Diary" and "Walking Home in Spring", will be played by Harry Shipman and David Arner, clarinets; John Kiser, flute; Frank West, oboe; William White, English horn; William Benton, bass clarinet; Harold Andrews, bassoon; Charles Stevens, harpsichord; Nelson Benton, drums; and Howard Myers, string bass.

A composition, "Rhapsody for Oboe and Piano," by one of the members, Harold Shiffman, will be performed with the composer at the piano and Frank West on the oboe.

Other members performing tonight are Henry Lofquist, Richard Cox, William Waters, William Sasser, David McAdams, Carl Perry, John Bridges, and Allen Garrett.

DAMES CLUB

There will be a meeting of the Carolina Dames club at 8 o'clock tonight in Roland Parker lounge. Mr. John Rambert, associate professor of art, will give an illustrated lecture on "Appreciation of Art in America Today." All student wives are invited.

Kan To Ask Coed Senate Assistance For Delegate To Student UN Forum

With financial assistance already promised by the Student Legislature to send two delegates to the University of Chicago's student forum on United Nations, CCUN State Director Lincoln Kan will go before the Coed Senate tonight to ask assistance from that body for a third delegate's expenses.

Authorization to pay travel and living expenses for two male delegates was made by the Student Legislature which met last Thursday night.

Applications Accepted

Kan said yesterday that some applications for the National Intercollegiate Assembly of the United Nations, scheduled for three days beginning March 24, have already been received. All students are eligible, he explained, except persons who are members of the CCUN. The director stated that applications should be made before Wednesday afternoon at which time a board of selection will interview prospective delegates. Interviews will take place in the CCUN office, Graham Memorial.

Delegates, Kan continued, should include in their applications a letter of experiences and qualifications. The board of selection is composed of Roberta Sterling, state secretary-general for CCUN; Ed Davenport, UP member of the Student Legislature; Dortch Warriner, SP member of the Student Legislature; Barbara Cashion, speaker of the Coed Senate; and Kan. Selection will be made on the basis of knowledge, experience, and the sincere desire of the candidates.

Model of UN

The three-day assembly, Kan said, will be held on the University of Chicago campus under the auspices of that university's Student Forum. The Student Forum is inviting the leading universities of the nation to send delegations to participate in a full-scale model of the United Nations. It hopes to promote understanding of the activities and aims of the United Nations by providing students an opportunity to work within a facsimile of UN structure and to create a nation-wide forum for students together with men of national and international reputation to discuss problems which may confront the UN.

CP MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Campus party this evening at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge No. 2 of Graham Memorial. The group will continue the nomination of Campus party candidates for the coming elections.

In announcing the meeting, party chairman Bob Haire again emphasized that the party will "welcome the attendance and participation of all interested persons."

State Briefs

Charlotte Group Hears Dr. Graham

Charlotte, March 8—(UP)—The president of the University of North Carolina made a public address here tonight.

Dr. Frank Porter Graham spoke at the second church branch of Covenant Presbyterian church on the Indonesian situation. The educator was a member of the United Nations commission on a trip to Indonesia recently.

Marines Will Return

Camp LeJune, March 8 —(UP)—Officers at the Marine base here say that several hundred marines on sea duty in the Mediteranean sea will return to the North Carolina base this week. The Marines are scheduled to arrive in Norfolk, Virginia, this week and will then go to their home camp.

Cherry Is Undecided

Raleigh, March 8 —(UP)—Governor Cherry says he still has not decided whether he will go to Washington next Saturday to attend the Southern Governors conference. The governors will meet in the nation's capital to discuss action against President Truman's civil rights program.

Textile Leader Dies

Charlotte, March 8 —(UP)— A leader in the Southern textile industry, George Parker Entwistle of Rockingham, is dead. The former president of the Pee Dee Manufacturing company died in Charlotte today at the age of 76.

Coast Guard Rescue

Morehead City, March 8 —(UP)—The Coast Guard at Morehead City has successfully rescued 21 men from the disabled motor vessel Norfolk which is aground about a mile and a half offshore. The men stayed aboard the ship last night while giant waves battered the vessel and kept rescue boats from reaching its side, but now the Coast Guard has taken the men off with a line and a breeches bouy.

Resurrection Pageant Will Highlight Easter Sunrise Service Program Here

Presentation of a Danish resurrection play which has been translated and arranged by Kai Jurgenson and Bob Scherk will be the highlight of the Easter sunrise service to be presented in Forest theater by churches of the community in cooperation with the YWCA and YMCA.

Dave Sample, graduate student in drama, will direct the play, with Jim Geiger playing the role of Pilate, A. E. Westover as Caiaphus, Fred Johnson as Centurio, and Edsel Hughes as Jesus.

Lynn Gault has designed the set and will driect the technical staff made up of members of the Wesley Players, some of whom will also fill minor acting roles in the production.

Mrs. Robert Nelson is chairman of the committee planning the service, and Martha Mendenhall, Mrs. Ruby Jones, and the Rev. Bernard Munger compose the program committee which is planning a worship service with music, prayers, and scripture readings.

Mrs. Fred McCall, director of elementary school music, will be in charge of a processional and recessional by school children, and Dean William Wells will contact church choirs. Other music for the service will include recorded medieval music and chimes from the bell tower.

Mrs. Guy Phillips of the Chapel Hill Garden club will be in charge of decorations, assisted by Pete Burks and members of the YMCA. Gertrude Osbourne will be in charge of ushers.

In former years the Forest theater sunrise service has been primarily a function of the campus Y groups, but this year participation and planning by the entire community are being solicited. Representatives of both student and adult groups from each of the churches in Chapel Hill form the central planning committee.

Carolina Magazine Contest Offers $25 Prize To Photographer Who Enters Winning Picture

Twenty-five dollars in merchandise for the photographer, and publication in the Carolina Magazine for the picture—those are the prizes in a Carolina mag photography contest announced yesterday by Mag editor Fred Jacobson.

The contest opens March 26, and closes at midnight April 9. Foisters Camera store on East Franklin street is donating the first prize.

Purpose of the competition according to Jacobson, is to encourage interest in ameteur campus camera work and to make available, through the Mag, the best results obtained by local shuttermen.

The contest will be open to any student of the University. In addition to the winning picture, all photos receiving honorable mention will be published.

Jacobson yesterday encouraged all would-be entrants to look for suitable scenes to photograph while they are at home on vacation. He pointed out that there are probably many possible winners already taken and reposing in trunks and albums.

Entries may be submitted to the magazine office on the second floor of Graham Memorial from 2 to 5 o'clock on all weekdays.

Jacobson suggested that all pictures submitted by 8 by 10 but said that all sizes will be given equal consideration.

He specified that no name or identifying mark may be affixed directly to the photograph. Reason given for this was that the pictures are to be numbered and judged with no way of telling who the photographer is without referring to the key.

Judges for the contest will be Jacobson and Mag managing editor Charlie Gibson.

Mills-Stones

Freshman Chapel Would Aid Return Of School Spirit

By Barron Mills

Those on the campus who transfer from smaller colleges throughout the country and outspoken critics of the school spirit here in Chapel Hill and there is just cause to bellow. To corroborate their views of spirit-less Carolina they point out to the record of the football team of last season. They wiggle a finger at the spectators because they were avid team boosters until we lost our second game of the season (Wake Forest) and from then on out students were more of a critic of their team than a booster.

And transfer students add that sports are about the only event where there is the slightest bit of spirit on the campus. Certainly there is no spirit in the class organizations. Those who organized the Jimmie Lunceford concert had an ulterior motive besides the financial side. They hoped to create an artificial spirit within the senior class organization. There is little evidence that this spirit was summoned from the deep.

Probably one of the best methods of creating spirit is to start in the freshman class and try to retain this spirit throughout the four-year run. The spirit among newcomers to the campus is evident and should be preserved.

I am a great advocate of Freshman Chapel. It is the only practical way that has been presented at the present time to nurture this spirit. It would serve a manyfold purpose because it would provide a more thorough means of orientation. At least there would be some organization of the classes for more spirit. We can go just so far in organizing because there is not an auditorium on campus that will even come close to seating the entire student body.

Down in the main lounge of Graham Memorial Sunday afternoon, Vincent Cassidy, graduate student in History, presented a series of original poetry. The advertisements announced that the program was to be sponsored by Graham Memorial. The only connection we could see with Graham Memorial was that it was held in the student union building. Wallacites predominated at the meeting, and in general, it was a Wallacite meeting. Most of the cast of characters who appeared in the chorous and on the program were Wallacites. And it ain't because they all had talents—If they did they were hidden.

Cassidy is clever in his innocent poetry and gets in some good laughs—a couple real belly laughs. He should stick to those instead of leaning over backwards in giving out with poetry which he says he tried to write for the people. Casidy says he tries to write "poetry for people rather than poetry for the poet."

Well, all of his poetry was for the people, but some of it was evidently written for a Wallace Rally and not for a program sponsored under the auspices of Graham Memorial.

Harold Stassen, especially since the build-up in Life magazine and the recent plummeting of Truman popularity, has become one of the more popular candidates among students all over the nation. So I was not in the least surprised to find in yesterday morning's mail a letter from "Students For Stassen" national headquarters. An enclosure was a mimeographed list of instructions on how to organize a Stassen club on a campus.

So before long, we will probably have a Students for Stassen group on the campus—unless I miss my guess. We have here in the office the mimeographed material if any students would like to obtain it for use in forming a chapter of the Stassen group and would like to communicate with National Headquarters.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS

The Young Democrats club will meet this afternoon at 3:30 in Rolland Parker lounges 1 and 2 of Graham Memorial for a business session.

COED SENATE

The Coed Senate will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Horace Williams lounge of Graham Memorial.

Individuals Make Honor System Successful

Here lately we have heard a lot of talk about the Honor System, and invariably the same question stalemates our conversation, "Is the Honor System working?" Each time the individual with whom we are discussing the topic leaves us holding that question after he has dropped a hint of the answer, "Well, it is not being given any consideration in my 10 o'clock class."

If we are to draw any conclusions from those people with whom we have talked we can only say — the Honor System is being scoffed at. Every day it is the butt of some joke.

The blame cannot be laid on the professor whether he deserts the room while the quizzes are in process or whether he serves as a monitor (which is a direct violation of the spirit of the Honor System). The difficulty can always be traced back to the individual students.

When an individual cheats he is cheating himself of much knowledge and self respect and the other members of the class of higher grades. It is much easier to realize the latter of these if the grading is done on the curve.

The Honor System will never work if the individual does not believe that it will work and does his foremost by taking all precautions to make it work.

One of those with whom we duscussed the Honor System said that he knew that a young man in his class copied from his paper on every quiz, but he had never turned him into the Honor Council. Instead, uncomfortable and ill-at-ease, he sat there crouched over his paper to hide as much as possible from public consumption. Naturally when he finished his quiz he felt as though he had been peddling dope and had just sold his last deck.

We asked him why he did not turn in the name of the young man who persisted in lifting information from his paper. "Well," he answered, "I'm keeping my paper pretty well covered now and if he continues I'll warn him that he had better stop or I'll turn him in."

It is obvious that there are many fallacies in an Honor System which we have had for many years at this University. But it is still not an antiquated system just because it put the faith in the individual. Any small deviation from the Honor System in word or spirit is a death stab for the system. This is not a prep school which has a large bulletin board in a conspicious place to post the announcement that a certain student was shipped last night because he failed to adhere to principles of the Honor System. This University is so large that it is impossible to get everyone to ostricize violaters of the Honor System.

Such a bulletin board is not necessary. You as an individual are the only one that can make the Honor System a success. This means not only your complying with the pledge, but also reporting any person you see not adhering to the Honor System either in word or spirit.

Write Away

'Jess Dedmond Lacks Integrity'

Editor:

As a result of the Legislature meeting last Thursday night, I think every student who will go to the polls in April should know certain facts. I attended this meeting and left it with a feeling of anger and disgust directed toward Mr. Jess Dedmond, C.P.-U.P. nominee for the presidency of the student body. This is not an attempt to slander Mr. Dedmond; my only motive in writing is to present the pertinent facts to every voter on this campus.

The Legislative Elections Committee, of which Jess Dedmond is chairman, passed a compromise redistricting bill which was to be presented to the Legislature. S. P. members on the committee agreed to back a five-district bill which was conceived and presented by Dedmond, as a compromise between the U. P. "no district" and the S. P. nine-district bill.

Mr. Dedmond presented to the legislature the bill (for five districts) which he had drawn up and his committee had accepted. Not only did Mr. Dedmond listen while statements he knew were lies were made on the floor of the legislature, to the effect that the bill was an "S. P. plot;" but he, as candidate and spokesman of the U. P. sat smugly in his seat chewing gum, when he knew he had proposed this bill in lieu of the S. P. bill for nine districts. Furthermore, he cast the deciding vote against his own bill. As the last straw, Mr. Dedmond admitted to legislators after the meeting that he believed his own bill (which he voted against) to be a fairer solution.

As a candidate for the presidency of the student body, I think Mr. Jess Dedmond has exhibited a lack of integrity, sincerity, the courage of his own convictions, consistency, and leadership—all qualities I believe to be essential in a president of the student body.

I defy Mr. Dedmond to deny the facts.

Lindsay Tate

No Real Communist Menace

Editor:

There is no real "communist menace". There is and has been no real "fascist menace." The only real menace has been and is neither Fascism nor Communism, but an expanding totalitarian state.

It was not the Fascism of her leaders that made Nazi Germany a menace to the rest of the world in the third decade of the present century,—it was the expanding totalitarian state. It is not the Communism of her leaders that makes of the U.S.S.R. a menace to the rest of the world today,—it is the expanding totalitarian state.

We were fortunate enough, with the help of the U.S.S.R., to be able to curb the menace of the expanding German totalitarian state. Will we be fortunate enough, in spite of all efforts to the contrary of Henry A. Wallace and his followers, to curb the menace of the Soviet totalitarian state?

Bill Patterson

Decency

Editor:

Now is the time for the University of North Carolina to do something positive about its great liberal traditions.

The doors of the University should be opened at once to qualified Negro students seeking entrance to the graduate and professional schools. The colossal lie of "separate and equal" must be erased forever.

My southern brethren who caution and cry "wait" refuse to face the realities of life. Negro students are demanding a decent education. It is a just and too long delayed demand fully in accord with the elementary principles of human decency.

The Regional School idea is not a solution. . .a delay perhaps, but not a solution. It resolves itself into the rationalizations of atrophied politicians faced by a decision their slave-holder mentalities cannot reckon with.

Joseph F. Blake, Jr.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor
MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr.

HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.
CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser
SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears
ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden
ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow
SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison
EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman NIGHT SPORTS: Dick Jenrette

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

"This city ain't big enough fer th' both of us."

The Brassy Taste

Faculty Editor Needed For Mag

By Bob Sain

Anybody else confused about the literary quarterly?

The other night the boys in Legislature handed out a couple of gees to publish a strictly lit publication and even though two thousand isn't a hell of a lot of money there should have been a little more organization along a sensible line.

I'm probably behind in my information concerning the quarterly—but I think we all are. I'd like to know first if the quarterly is to be for campus talent only, regional or nation-wide.

If it's either of the latter, then a student editor—as is now planned—could not handle the job. I rather doubt that there is any student on campus now who could make a go of even a local lit mag. But that is opinion and John Marshall, eager-beaver head of the quarterly committee, would probably disagree vociferously. (Would, did I say. I mean will.)

I think that a faculty member (Eaton or Cotten, perhaps) should edit the quarterly or at least act as an overseer.

Since the students have cut themselves off from things literary, let things literary cut themselves off from students. Now—when the quarterly isn't tied down with attempting to please popular taste—is the time to accomplish something worthwhile in writing.

It's probably too late to get a faculty member in as editor—even though a literary fan would probably replace the two thousand that the legislature would withdraw. (Sorry, I'm broke.)

The most logical answer would be for the quarterly committee to appoint a faculty adviser. Will they? Probably no. Power is intoxicating.

* * *

Chapel Hill's brilliant nitelife rivals that of the Sunset strip... If you want to see Mr. Thoreau's "lives of quiet desperation" check the Lunarthon any morning from midnacht 'til seven. Such gaiety. Joy leaps, unrefined.

Or, for that matter, look in at Tommy Maris' version of the Trocadero or Latin Quarter out on the Greensboro road. Fine place to view the new displaced generation, which of course, considers itself to realistic to be "lost" in the manner of the twenties. . .Kidding aside, however, you'd be hard pressed to find better than the Terrace View's singer, Beverly Joslin, whose vaughaning ranks high here.

* * *

Speaking of musicians. . .Glenn Hubbard has a new horn which isn't quite in line with his antique-collecting of a week or so ago. Taking up relic-gathering with him is a drummer named Perry Ritch. (Look out for these innuendoes.) . . . Frank Settlemyer did a fine job on Siegmeister's "American Sonata" at his piano recital Sunday afternoon. There's a tune that would challenge the popularity of Khatchaturian's "Sabre Dance" if someone would give it a commercial recording.

(You think it's dull. What about me? I had to write it.)

This Is It

International Revolution

By John Roeder

We are beginning an International Revolution.

We are revolting against the concept of nationalism—the individual sovereignty of individual nations.

The news during this past week has been full of manifestations of the new International Mind. The Russian "coup" in Czechoslovakia has demonstrated to the Western World the fatuity of the nationalist concept.

The European Recovery Program no longer will have trouble getting an "aye" in Congress.

Representatives of the United States, Britain, and France were conferring in London at the time of the "coup." For the first time in three years it appears as though these nations have come to some sort of an agreement on what to do with Western Germany.

In Belgium the first steps were taken toward a Western European Union. A conference in Brussels, requested by the Benelux states, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg, is being attended by representatives of Britain and France. There is hope that later Italy and the Scandanavian nations will join them in contemplation of an economic, political, cultural and defensive union of Western Europe.

In the United States on the floor of the Senate, Senator Ball, threw a proposal to be annexed to the European Recovery bill, that an eleven-nation "security council" be created, without the veto power in any of the member nations. Ostensibly, this was a defensive measure. This proposal has been temporarily withdrawn at the insistance of Senator Vandenberg, who claims that it will draw the United States into war against her will.

What is obvious is that a so-called reactionary United States Legislator, consciously or unconsciously recognizes that the concept of nationalism is splitting at the seams.

On March 30, the ninth International Conference of American States will open in Bogota, Collumbia. The main subject matter on the agenda is inter-American economic cooperation. This conference will be a follow up of the meeting in Rio last year which created the Western Hemisphere defense pact.

On February 26 a rather conservative group of Western Europeans, chiefly French and British, namely the International Committee for the Study of European Questions, published a statement. It said that an International of Democracy must be set up. "A revolution of mind must take place in order to enable democracy to resume its onward march." This is to be achieved mainly by a European federation.

The nations of the world should have realized a long time ago that no nation can remain completely independent in this interdependent world. Now all nations are being faced with volcanic turmoil. The falsity of the concept of national sovereignty is finally being recognized.

Certainly during the war some of our leaders felt vague rumblings of this sort, and created the United Nations. But mainly due to the efforts of the United States and Russia the concept of National Sovereignty was made an integral part of that International Organization.

The beginnings of a revolution against Nationalism has come, and it will not stop short of 'One World."

'Angel Street' Is Scheduled by Duke

Under the direction of Kenneth Reardon, the Duke University Players will present Patrick Hamilton's "Angel Street" on two successive evenings, March 11 and 12 in Page Auditorium on the Duke campus. Tickets for the production are now on sale at the Page box office, telephone 112 Ext. 484.

The three-act victorian thriller was originally produced under the title, "Gas Light", by Gardner Davies at the Richmond Theater, London, England. More recently the plot was presented to movie-goers in a film starring Ingrid Bergman and Charles Boyer, and entitled similarly, "Gas Light."

Carolina Carousel

Quiet, Deliberate, Direct

By R. Foo Giduz

Hey, y' really missed out on two hot, heppy, hours if you didn't take in the Lunceford lads Sunday evening. . .And a fine bunch of troupers they are, too . . .Saturday night they played a dance at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama; hit the road immediately afterwards; drove non-stop through to Mem. hall; hungrily knocked themselves out for 120 minutes; then hit the road immediately for New York. . .Wow!

Audience generally felt it was the best concert here in several years!. . .(Let's hope they'll come back for a dance soon.). . .The five saxers got so hot they blew themselves clear halfway up the aisle during several jam-ups. . . Hint: Lunceford's latest release, "Saxology", is five minutes of the sassiest sax ever disced (Manor recording.) . . .And incidentally that juicy bunch of purple grapes mysteriously draped on the curtains was meant to honor "Sour Grapes" Sam Beard, MC for the program. (His gal resented it.)

Time out for a short, short true story. . .An annonymous coed (we think) dropped it around the office the other day, and it mighty timely:

"A dimly discernible f... stepped out from the shadows the Y court and approached room mate and me as we coming from the library night last fall. At first sta we were instantly put at by the gentle, even voice addressed us and inquired w er we knew the address young girl who had been by an automobile.

"We didn't know, but suggested the gentleman accompany us to the dormitory where we might find her listed in the student directory. He did, and as we walked across the campus we discussed the weather and the birds around the campus. There was nothing deep or heavy, nor anything particularly brilliant about his remarks. His manner was entirely unassuming.—Entirely too unassuming and too friendly to be a professor and too courteous to be a student. Yet I remember the distinct feeling I had that he was someone very special, if not great, for, as many great people he was treating ordinary people as friends and equals.—Something a semi-successful person can never seem to do.

"As we entered the dormitory all faces turned and the coed at the desk just sat there amazed for the lights disclosed the conservatively clad gentleman to be none other than Dr. Frank Graham.

"He wasted no time by superfluous gestures or expanding of nervous energy, but every move he made was quiet, deliberate and direct.

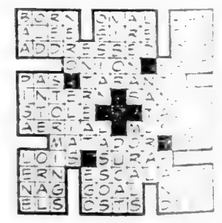
"And as I observed him it struck me that that is exactly the way he accomplishes every thing—the big things as well as the little details of every day life."

Wilder's New Book Is Fine Reading

By United Press

Thornton Wilder's first novel in 14 years, The Ides of March (Harper, $2.75) is a superb blend of imagination and artistry.

Imagination plays the major role in making this story of the last days of Julius Caesar a current literary event, for Wilder has fashioned his tale out of a series of imaginary letters, documents, notes, and reports to create a narrative of both sensitivity and wit.



These fictitious papers reveal not only Caesar the statesman, the man, and the lover, but form a vivid background of life in those early Roman days.

With great subtlety, the author through letters and correspondence, creates three different Caesars and, as if that were not enough, shows us as many fascinating Cleopatras—the intriguing scheming queen, the worried mother, and the desirable sweetheart.

There are indications that in places Mr. Wilder has let his romantic enthusiasm lead him too far from historical fact. But we can forgive him these deviations in the name of artistic distortion.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—To overthrow
4 Sudden thrust
8 Pate
12 Hymn
13 Grain pus
14 Time long past
15 Drops
17 To twist
18 Small drink
19 Kind of fabric
21 Wise men
23 Is growing
24 Household gods
25 One who shares
26 Egg
29 Ibsen heroine
30 Sea birds
31 Ship's diary
32 Deprives
34 Smoke darkened
35 Early prophet
36 Towering
37 Hanging ornament
40 Hooded order
41 Death notice
42 To worship
46 Capable
47 Sirocco
48 To study
49 Game animal
50 Snaks
51 Turf

DOWN

1—Pony
2—Lyric poem
3—Gypsy
4—Divans
5—Tidy
6—Part of p...
7 Wind inst...
8 Way of ...
9 To drink to excess
10 Great ...
11 Pro...ger
Philade...hia
16 Wanders
20 Charity
21 Flat stone
22 —Comfort
23 Customs
25 Small gap
26 Books of ...
27 Seized
28 Seeds
29 Domesticated
33 Christmas ...
34 To burn slightly
36 Petitions
37 Tailless, ... amphibian
38 French priest
39 Steve ...
40 To join firmly
41 Soviet ...
44 Also
45—Finish

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael III

Tournament Hangover

NOW THAT THE SOUTHERN CONFERENCE basketball tournament is done and over with, it comes time to scan back across the nine-game, four-day span of play and see what, if any, conclusions can be drawn from the whole affair. The tourney as a whole, ran rather true to form as far as the predicted winner was concerned, but the wonderful Wolfpack of State college had to accomplish their task in a manner and form that no one had expected to see.

The fact of the matter was that the Caseman came within an awfully close margin of losing to the Dillon-drillin' Tar Heels of Carolina in the semi-finals only to be forced rally from the rear ends to catch and surpass the well-coached Blue Devils of neighboring Duke in the finals. The Wolfpack had a gret excuse to lose both games since they were forced to play with only the spiritual nerves of Dick Dickey.

Dickey developed mumps after State's game on Thursday night and couldn't quite make the remainder of the ball games. Whether or not he will make the National Invitation this week is a matter of speculation as mumps are not a thin to be played with or to be playing with. But the latest word from Raleigh is rumoring that the All-American boy may be in the line-up come Saturday through the grace of God and the great white father, Everett Case. All of which proves that Wheaties and penicillium can do for a man.

Dillon's Departure

EVEN WITHOUT DICKEY at the helm, State had the best team in the tournament and proved it to the 9,000 fans that jammed Duke Stadium to see if it were true what they say about the Wolfpack. There was but one influence the mighty Wabash cannonballers were unable to cope with and that was the famed hook of John Dillon. It was unfortunate for the charges and followers of Coach Tom Scott that Dillon ran lukewarm instead of hot in his Friday night effort. In the second half of that game when the Tar Heels twice rallied to tie the score at 43-all and 45-all, Dillon was allowed to shoot almost at will once the ball reached him in the pivot since both Swede Cartier and Paul Horvath had drawn four fouls each in the opening period while trying to give the Tar Heel pivotman the proverbial hard time and they were not eager to be banished from the ball game.

Even as the champion of a losing effort Dillon left the local hardwoods as the Carolina star that he had been on first coming to Chapel Hill and thus, in graduating leaves his mark on the blackboards of time. Bob Paxton, who would be the richest man in the world ihad he a penny for every rebound he has gotten for this University, also was effortful in his last appearance as were tumblin' Taylor Thorne, King Cole and Fred Swartzberg.

A World on the Field

THE REST OF THE TEAMS in the tourney varied from good to so-so to poor. George Washington was easily the biggest disappointment, looking very ragged and very poorly coached. William and Mary, like GW seemed to have more material than sideline leadership. The Indians did come up with probably the best player in the tournament, Jere Bunting, cousin of local Dick. Bunting draped himself in showers of applause as he rallied his team to victory one n ight and then gave stately State college the hard time of their life the next. He held Dickey, who played feverishly both from mumps and college try, pretty well intact and it was from other Indian players that the West Raleigh racer gained most of his 19 points.

Davidson looked like the best coached team in the tourney in defeating the first round's perennial loser, Maryland who didn't reach the heights of their season's ability. But the second time around, the Wildcats found hustling Blue Devils of Duke too potent in name and ability and folded like a two dollar deck chair, VPI, Wake Forest, and South Carolina also took part in the tourney.

Two Improvements Needed

TO THE CASUAL OBSERVER, only two things need to be done to improve the show which Duke officials performed to a "T". One, it would seem to be adviseable to eliminate smoking in the arena. The cigars and cigarettes are enjoyable, but make for one maze of haze. New York's Madison Square Garden spent thousands trying to remove the smoke from the Garden but to no apparent avail. Twould be better to outlaw tobacco even in Tobacco town.

The other improvement would be something done about moving the floor supports for the baskets back ten feet or so and allow the boys to return to playing in comparative safety. Bunting hit them Thursday and had to leave the game. McComas did likewise and hasn't cut since. Dickey was still another greatcrasher, getting the bumps before mumps. It is a shame to see a beautiful athletic plant with one single structural failure. Mr. Gerry Gerard might try applying his expert coaching touch to his playhouse as he has to his basketball team.

ANNOUNCING

OUR FISHING CONTEST

Shakespeare Rod, Reel, Line And Lures To Be Given For Biggest Bass Taken From University Lake March 15th Thru July 15th

Registration Free

Visit Our Store Today For—

*Fishing Supplies
*Auto Parts and Supplies
*Hundreds of Nationally Advertised Items For The Home
*Seiberling Tires
*National Battries

You get a Better Buy at a BLACKWOOD ASSOCIATE STORE

312 WEST FRANKLIN STREET

CHAPEL HILL

Tsantes Is Leader As Jayvees, Frosh End Excellent Year

By Morty Schaap

Even though he missed the last two jayvee games of the season because of his elevation to the varsity, John "Beak" Tsantes paced both the Carolina jayvee and freshmen scoring during the past season.

Coach Jim Hamilton's teams had a fine record, with the jayvees winning 13 out of 17 tilts and the freshmen copping five out of seven. The jayvee losses were two to Duke, one to State and one to Campbell junior college. Both Frosh losses were at the hands of the potent High Point Bisons.

Tsantes hit the hoop in fifteen jayvee contests for a total of 163 points and a game average of 10.9 points. In six Tar Baby games, he accumulated 63 markers for a 10.5 average. Runner up in the junior competition was Charlie Thorne with 128 points. Other jayvees also breaking the century mark were Pete Peters with 110 and Hal Ferraro with 106.

Overall, the juniors scored 845 points against 629 for their opponents. The frosh accumulated 336 while holding their opponents to 236.

After Tsantes in the yearling scoring was Thorne Gregory with 52; Ferraro, 47; Hank Lebed, 44; Bill White, 34; Dale Morrison, 29; Floyd Gilmore, 21; Terry Holmes, 10; Simon Terrell, Stan Goodman, 8; Bill Langley and Al Koenig, 6; and Adrian Lineberger and Mark Nathan, 2.

Other individual scoring for the junior varsity showed Sandy Hoft, 73; White, 63; Bud Wilkerson and Bill Harrington, 40; Lebed, 33; Gregory 28; Gilmore, 25; Morrison 18, Goodman, 7; Holmes, 6; Jim Powers and Terrell, 2; and Koenig, 1.

Ralph Casey To Head Freshmen Tracksters

Ralph Casey, last year's head coach of swimming and track at VMI, has been named freshman coach at the University. Casey has lined up several meets for the yearlings and hopes to get a good turnout of freshmen for the squad.

Hank Gifford, former weight man on Tar Heel track squads, will assist Casey.

Coach Dale Ranson said yesterday that he would like to meet all lettermen and all candidates for varsity and freshmen squads in 304 Woollen this afternoon at 4:30. Workout schedules will be lined up and discussion of the coming outdoor season will be held.

HIGH SCHOOL EVENT

Tickets for the first annual North Carolina High School Athletic Association class A and B basketball tourney to be held here on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday are now on sale at the Woollen gym ticket office. The season ticket price is $3.00 and includes admission to all 14 games.

Wrestling Meet

Lexington, Va., March 7 — Two of the three Carolina participants in the Southern conference wrestling tourney now being staged here were victorious in their opening matches.

Phil Kemp, entered in the 155 pound division, decisioned Lou Phoebus, Maryland, in his initial start; and Oscar Gupton, 165, pinned Jake Brown, Maryland, after 1:58 of the second period. Fred Wagoner, State, defeated Carolina's Ray Swigart on a pin after 2:18 of the first period.

RECORDS

Gloomy Sunday
Artie Shaw
Down Memory Lane
Vaughn Monroe

Ab's Intimate Bookshop

Paxton All-Tourney Again

State College's Wolfpack, champions of the Southern conference for the second straight season, dominated the annual loop all-star team, selected by the sports writers who attended the tourney this past week.

Captain Leo Katkaveck, dependable Senior on Coach Everett Case's State quint, and big Ed Bartels were nominated on 29 ballots for the first team. Both perform at guard, but Bartels earned his position as a center.

Bob Paxton, Carolina' bounding captain, earned one of the forward posts for the second straight year, and Corren (Ceep) Youmans, Duke forward who led the tourney in scoring with 63 points was the other forward. Little Jere Bunting, the sensational William and Mary guard who found himself in the Indians' two outings in Durham, was named as the other guard beside Katkaveck.

The second team was composed of Dick Dickey, State, and Buddy Cheek, Davidson, at forwards; Paul Horvath, center from State; and Warren Cartier, also from State, and scrappy Tommy Hughes, Duke, as the two guards.

Honorable mention honors went to John Dillon and Taylor Thorne, Carolina: Ben Collins and Doug Ausbon, Duke; and Jack McComas, State.

Youmans, who played in four tourney games, led the entire group of players in the event with 63 points for an average of 15.8. Horvath was runnerup with 44 points, ten more than the total Bunting picked up in two games. Bunting's 17 point-per-game record was tops in the average department.

Art Cerra, who scored five times in seven shots at the basket had the best shooting record. Carolina's Thorne hit on nine of 18 shots from action to be second.

Loop Champion Blue Dolphins Complete Fourth Undefeated Season Since 1942

By Bill Kellam

Carolina's undefeated Blue Dolphins, who demolished more records during the 1948 season than an atomic bomb explosion in a Decca factory, early this week were looking new indoor waves to rule. According to Coach Dick Jamerson, those yet undominated puddles of chlorine lie to the North for, later this month, a select band of Tar Heel mermen will shove off from the "village" to spread Carolina nautical fame by their participation in some of the nation's top collegiate aquatic meets.

The Dolphins capped their double figure winning streak by dominating the conference's annual swimming meet more completely than State's cagers dominated the hardwood. The members of the three other teams entered in the loop classic saw little but the locals' spray as Jamerson's charges grabbed eight of nine first places and all but one of the trophies and also established a new meet scoring record.

Gone With The Waves

Seven conference, four university, and 60 dual meet records fell to the strokes of the razor-sharp Tar Heel swimmers. Three of these—all freestyle marks—fell to Dick Twining, one of the several one-man teams that compose the local aquatic aggregation. He lowered the former top times in the 220, 440, and 100 yard events.

Floyd Drew almost made the water steam with his national time-equaling performance in the 50 freestyle, and freshman Jim Thomas established himself as a boy to watch with his record breaking time in the 150 yard backstroke.

Thomas topped his sensational debut into intercollegiate swimming by scoring 63 andt wo thirds points while Twining's 63 and seven twelfths counters were a rather close second. Norm Sper's 59 and two thirds markers were a cheering third. Mike Morrow and Floyd Drew waged a close fight for fourth place with 59 and five sixths and 49 and one half points respectively. Greenbaum and Ousley notched 46 and seven twelfths and 40 counters, respectively.

Captain Twining

Dick Twining, a Junior from Anchorage, Alaska, will serve as captain of the Carolina Blue Dolphins next season. Dick was selected by his team mates at the team's annual banquet at the Carolina Inn last night.

Twining, who has just completed his third year as a Carolina swimmer, set three conference records this season in the 100, 220, and 440 yard freestyle divisions.

Bob Ously was the recipient of the award given the outstanding member of the varsity. Jim Thomas was honored as the outstanding freshman swimmer of the year.

Coed Badminton Play Underway This Week

The coed intramural badminton tournament is in full swing and all of the first round matches will be completed by Thursday.

All the entrants will receive W. A. A. points as well as adding to their dormitory or sorority total.

First round matches include Marge Yokley and Emily Ogburn, Corrinne Grimsley and Nancy Black, Betty A. Cooper and Jean Sommervel. Estelle Lassiter and Bunny Davis, Alice Jones and Mildred Tislon. Barbara Dalton and Lynn Blanchard. and Reet Aldrich and Estelle Jones.

"Oh THAT CARY GRANT"

"He's more attractive than ever before" —Dorothy Kilgallen

SAMUEL GOLDWYN presents CARY GRANT LORETTA YOUNG DAVID NIVEN

Cary and The Bishop's Wife

with MONTY WOOLLEY JAMES GLEASON GLADYS COOPER ELSA LANCHESTER and THE MITCHELL BOYCHOIR

NOW PLAYING

VILLAGE

HERE IN ALL ITS SPLENDOR!

ANTHONY ADVERSE

from the novel by HERVEY ALLEN

STARRING FREDRIC MARCH OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND CLAUDE RAINS

WARNER BROS. RE-RELEASE

with EDMUND GWENN · LOUIS HAYWARD

NOW PLAYING

CAROLINA

Tennis And Baseball Move Into Spring Sporting Spotlight Here

By Bob Goldwater

With the winter sports definitely ready for the summary stage, two spring activities move into the center of Carolina's sporting scene this week when candidates for the 1948 tennis team join the baseball hopefuls in their spring workouts.

The first official racquet practice will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at which time Coach John Kenfield requests all aspirants to report to the varsity courts. At least six lettermen, headed by the nation's ninth ranking netter, Vic Sexias, are expected to be on hand.

Other Lettermen

Other returnees from last year's outfit, which turned in the sensational season's record of 21 wins against one lone loss, include Clark Taylor, Ray Morris, Charlie Rice, Don Skakle, and Heath Alexander. Missing from the '47 outfit are Jack Kenfield, whose eligibility has expired, Stan Gruner, and Jim Nicholson.

The complete schedule still awaits definite dates for the team's northern swing, but it is certain that the season will open March 29 when Michigan State provides the opposition on the local courts. The Southern conference tournament is scheduled for Chapel Hill sometime in May, at which time a new individual champion will be crowned. Last year's winner, Gardner Larned, who led William and Mary to the conference team honors, is no longer at the Williamsburg school.

Spring Training

Along the baseball front, spring training continued yesterday afternoon on Southwest Emerson, and, according to assistant Coach Walt Rabb, "We're blessed with quantity." Upwards from 110 candidates have been working out with the team during the past week and the coaching staff plans to make its first squad cut sometime this week.

Three more lettermen, all first-stringers last year, have reported for duty, two coming out yesterday for the first time. Making up the veteran trio are first-baseman John Gregory, shortstop Rip Ryan, and centerfielder Whitey Black. Gregory was co-captain of the Tar Heel baseballers last year.

ATO Wins Campus Soccer Championship With 3-1 Victory Over Steele Booters

By Larry Fox

ATO took an early lead in the campus five-man soccer playoffs by scoring twice in the first half and was never headed, breezing to a 3-1 triumph over the Steele booters, dormitory champs.

Bob Plumb scored the goal that put ATO in the lead in the first period when his throw-in from out of bounds caroomed off a defensive man into the goal. Myrt Sherrard enlarged the lead in that same session by denting the cords for what proved to be the winning marker with a kick.

Both quintets matched goals in the last period, ATO holding fast to its two point margin. Varsity footballer Sid Varney saved Steele from the shame of a shutout by counting on a penalty kick.

Ahern Scores

Don Ahern notched the final score for the winners. Ahern dribbled half the length of the field to ram home the third goal unassisted.

The game marked the completion of the tournament that began several weeks ago with 34 entries in both the dormitory and fraternity divisions. The two teams won the titles in their respective brackets last week

Only one match was played last night in the badminton tournament although the floor of Woollen gym was crowded with enthusiastic bird chasers.

Watson Pugh advanced into the finals of the men's singles tournament by virtue of a hard won victory over Dave Boak. It took three games, the last of which went to "double-deuce", to decide the man to face Clark Taylor for the campus crown.

The final game of the match was the prize of the evening. Going into the deciding game with one victory apiece, the two protagonists battled each other all the way, but when the smoke cleared, Pugh was in the finals as a result of his 19-17 win. Pugh dropped the first game by a 15-4 count but came back to win the second round easily, 15-4. Pugh will meet Taylor in the finals tomorrow night.

Monogram Club Holds Big Meeting Tonight

There will be a meeting of the Monogram club tonight at 7:30 in 304 Woollen gym.

President Bill Pritchard announced that the new constitution will be presented to the club for ratification and urges all members to attend so that they may voice their sentiments on the document. It is hoped that with a constitution in force, the club may be able to hit its full stride on the campus.

University Florist

"For the Best in Flowers"

Pick Theatre Bldg.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

Telephone 6816

Bull's Head Bookshop

Cord Myers: Peace or Anarchy

Browse — Rent — Buy

TWO BLOCKS WEST OF CITY HALL

You'll Find A Solution To All Laundry Problems

HELPY-SELFY

AUTOMATIC LAUNDRY

Bendix Machines

W. Rosemary St.

Capital Entertainment Co.

PRESENTS

The Poet of the Piano

CARMEN CAVALLARO

AND HIS ORCHESTRA

IN PERSON

Concert 8:30—9:30
Dance 9:30—12:30

Thrilling performance in only N. C. appearance!!

Both for only $2.00 tax incl. Advance Sale Per Person

Raleigh

Memorial Auditorium

Wed., March 17

Get Tickets from:

Jack Poole

CHI PSI HOUSE

WE DON'T PROMISE A Prince Charming WITH EVERY BOTTLE BUT WE DO PROMISE CLEANER BRIGHTER MORE BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION

$1.50 VALUE FOR $1

LIMITED SALE

Dermetics

FAMOUS S. A. CLEANSER

S. A. Cleanser cleans by Soil Adsorbing. A new, amazing, speedy, cleanser that leaves your skin fresher, brighter, cleaner, more beautiful.

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

WALGREEN AGENCY

Welcome-back Dance To Be Given By UVA

The University Veterans association announced that it will hold a welcome-back dance the first Saturday after spring holidays.

Announcement of the dance was made by UVA president Johnny Clampitt following a general business meeting of the association.

Open house will be held at the clubhouse tonight with Spencer dormitory as guests of the association.

Tonight's party will begin at 8:30 with entertainment in charge of A. B. Coleman.

INSPECTION LANE

will be In Chapel Hill
from April 4th
thru April 14th

Prepare your car now and avoid the last minute rush.

CASTON MOTOR CO.

Dodge-Plymouth
Dodge Trucks

THE DUKE PLAYERS
Presents
"ANGEL STREET"
by
Patrick Hamilton
March 11th & 12th — Page Auditorium
8:15 p.m. — Duke University
Admission $1.00
Phone 112, Extension 484 for Reservations

PRESCRIPTIONS
Filled Promptly
ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY
—at—
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

THE DETROIT SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Dr. Karl Druger, Conductor
Henrietta Schumann, Pianist
Page Auditorium, Duke University, Durham
Thursday, March 18 at 8:15 P.M.
Tickets—$2.50, $3.00, and $3.50 (incl. tax).
Miss Schumann will play the Rachmanioff Concerto No. 2
For reservations: phone Durham 112 ext. 270; or, write
J. Foster Barnes, Duke University, Durham, N. C.

CHAPEL HILL CLEANERS
404 Franklin St.
Phone F-2466
BETTER CLEANING & PRESSING

"Come on, Johnny, mother promised us Dentyne Chewing Gum if we only sat through it once!"

"Not even Frankie Swoonatra could make me miss Dentyne Chewing Gum! That nifty flavor really sends me—I mean it really does. And the way Dentyne helps keep my teeth white, I wanta turn on the old smile all the time."

Dentyne Gum—Made Only By Adams

Whatchamacallit Is Subject Of Charlotte Court Battle

Charlotte, March 8—(UP)—A sad-eyed ward of the county animal shelter is the bone of contention in a Charlotte dog fight.

The principal in the dispute is part police dog, part optional. Two people claim to be his owner—Kathleen Gillian and Hubert Crenshaw.

Miss Gillian calls him "Buck," Crenshaw calls him "Fuzzy." To complicate the situation, Judge E. M. Currie says the dog—he calls him "Whatchamacallit"—doesn't exist—not legally, that is.

Judge Currie says "Whatchamacallit" is not listed on the tax books. Therefore, in the legal sense there's no such animal, so the dog can't be classified as the property of either Miss Gillian or Crenshaw, so he couldn't have been stolen from anybody, so there's no case.

Until the matter of ownership is settled, it looks like "Whatchamacallit" will have to stay at the Mecklenburg county animal shelter—just an "it" that legally isn't.

Fraternity Work a Specialty
Charles Valentine's Cabinet Shop
FURNITURE
REPAIRED
REFINISHED
UPHOLSTERED
MADE-TO-ORDER
PHONE 9367 — PITTS BORO RD.

Supreme Court Rules Public School Religious Education Unconstitutional

Washington, March 8—(UP)—The Supreme Court today handed down one of the most sweeping rulings ever made on the subject of religious education in public schools.

By an eight to one vote, the court held that religious teaching in public schools, even on a voluntary basis, is unconstitutional. The ruling was made on a case challenging the voluntary system of religious instruction used in Champaign, Illinois.

The majority opinion, written by Justice Hugo Black, was based on the traditional separation of church and state as provided in the first amendment. Black holds that the Champaign plan falls squarely under the ban of the first amendment.

TRIP PAYS DIVIDENDS

Quincy, Mass. —(UP)—Distributing their three sets of twins among their relatives here, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Walsh went to New York, appeared on a quiz program on the radio and returned $615 richer.

CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

WIN PRIZE. HELP US CHOOSE NEW name for Co-ed Beauty Shop. Prize—free service up to $15.00. Contest closes Friday, March 12. Address: Co-ed Beauty Shop, 312 West Franklin Street Chapel Hill, North Carolina 1-c1641-1

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. 1-ch1x2-1

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

LATE 1946 BLUE CHRYSLER 4 DOOR sedan, perfect condition. Seat covers, radio, heater, fog-lights, back-up lights, 5 lifeguard safety tubes. Henry Golding, 9011. (1-1849-1)

1942 FORD 5-PASSENGER COUPE. Extra clean. Good condition. Reasonable price. Charles Stamey, 311 Grimes Dorm. Telephone 5091. (1-1848-1)

1936 PONTIAC "6", 4-DOOR SEDAN. Good mechanical condition. Good tires. $200 cash. Call 8281. (1-1853-1)

LOST 12

GOLD SCARF RING WITH RINE-stones in center. Lost somewhere between Carolina movie and Alderman dorm. Please, Please, return to Beckie Holton, 218 Alderman. (1-8154-1)

BROWN WALLET CONTAINING $72 or $73 Wednesday, probably in Carolina Theatre, Library, or Zo building Reward. Dallas T. Jones, box 163 or Quonset No. 33. 1-1846-1

RIDERS WANTED 18A

DRIVING TO MIAMI LEAVING NOON, March 16. If interested, call Charles Berman, 4011. (1-1852-1)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 122 West Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGBURN Furniture Co., Phone 5841. (ch 1x1)

BALDWIN'S
Marine Room
Durham
Breakfast 7:45—10:30
Luncheon 11:00—2:30
Tea Hours 2:30—5:30
Dinner 5:00—8:00
Mrs. Jennie S. Thurston
Phone 9493

Campus Calendar

1:00 p.m. — Men's Faculty club luncheon, Carolina Inn

3:00 p.m. — "Tarnation" business staff, Tarnation office

3:30 p.m. — Young Democrats club, Roland Parker lounge No. 1 and 2

5:15 p.m. — Lenten service, Episcopal church

6:00 p.m. — Canterbury club, Episcopal church

7:00 p.m. — Campus party, Roland lounge No. 2

7:00 p.m. — Coed Senate, Horace Williams lounge

7:30 p.m. — Elisha Mitchell Scientific society, 206 Phillips hall

8:00 p.m. — Carolina Dames club, Roland Parker lounge

8:00 p.m. — Glass-blowing demonstration and color movies of glass manufacture, 206 Venable hall

8:30 p.m. — Phi Mu Alpha Music Fraternity presents "American Music Program," Hill hall

Glass Blowing Show To Be Held Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock in 206 Venable, Alpha Chi Sigma—professional Chemistry fraternity—will present another in its series of programs designed to familiarize students with Chemistry in the modern world. The program will center around the subject of glass manufacturer. Color movies furnished by the Corning company will be shown, and a glass blowing demonstration will be given by D. E. Sampson.

Sampson, the Chemistry department glass-blower, is one of the few master glass-blowers in the southeast.

LIL' ABNER By AL CAPP

Studying too hard? RELAX — at HARRY'S

Supper Club Tickets Are Available

Forty tickets to studio broadcasts of the Chesterfield Supper club radio programs are available to students planning to be in New York over the spring holidays. These may be had for the asking at the Graham Memorial main office, through the cigarette firm's campus representatives.

Twenty tickets each are available for the 11 o'clock shows of Friday, March 19, and Monday, March 22. Broadcasts originate from the NBC studios in RCA building, Radio City. Those desiring tickets are requested to pick them up as soon as possible.

A fifteen-minute musical show every week-day evening, the Supper club stars singer Perry Como, the Satisfiers, and Helen Carroll.

AT LAST!

An F. M. Adapter For Your Radio
With No Connections Necessary.
Just Plug The Set In Any Electric Outlet
And Tune In F. M. Stations On The Radio
You Now Have.

OGBURN FURNITURE CO.
Chapel Hill

CAROLINA DRAPERY SHOP
NOW OPEN
In Ogburn Furniture Co.

*Draperies
*Slipcovers
*Bedspreads

Selection of Material on Hand
$1.34 — $2.49
Miss Lillian Edwards

ALL THIS WEEK
Clear-away! SALE
Varsity

LADIES' COATS
All wool Chesterfields, blacks, greens, and dubonet. Now—
$15.00 to $50.00

LADIES' DRESSES & SUITS
Ladies' dresses—2 pc. rabbit hair and wool dresses. Pastel shades, sizes 9 to 15—as low as—
$6.50
Ladies' all wool two and three piece suits, including gabardines. Assorted colors, as low as—$14.00

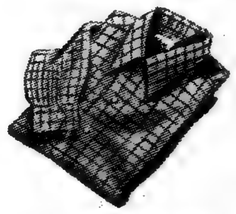
SWEATERS
All wool slip-overs and cardigans in long and short sleeve. Attractive patterns and solids in pastel colors, as low as—
$3.50

SPORT COATS
Tweeds, herringbone, plaid and smart patterned sport coats and two-tone sport jackets. Now—
$9.00 to $18.50

TIES . . .
69c and up



MEN'S SUITS
Double and single breasted grey flannels, blue flannels and a group of assorted tweeds and glenn plaids.
$15.00 to $34.50

MEN'S OVERCOATS .
All wool coverts, herringbone tweeds in a variety of colors. Also gabardines and camel hair coats in assorted colors.
$25.00 to $29.50

WOOL SPORT SHIRTS & SWEATERS
All wool sport shirts in plaids and solid colors as low as $4.95. Long sleeve and sleeveless all wool sweaters. All colors.
$1.95 to $7.95

MEN'S WOOL SLACKS . .
Hound's Tooth, Glenn Plaids, Herringbone Tweeds and solid color Flannels—
$4.95 to $8.95

BE SURE TO VISIT OUR BOYS' DEPT.
JACKETS, wool & leather $5.95 to $10.00
SUITS, 2 Pc. Tweeds—Sizes 6 to 14
$6.50 to $10.00

Library (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER

Occasional light rain with little change in temperature.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS

Honor System
Miss Aiken
Col. Killian

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 121

Tom Eller Clamps Veto On Redistricting, Reapportionment Bill

SMILING Betty Williams wears a satin lastex swim suit that caused many an eye to turn in her direction as she strolled along the beach in Miami. A two-tone tailored bow is attached to one shoulder strap. The bottom of the suit is elasticized so that it clings tightly to the pretty model. (Infernational)

Council Releases List Of Debaters

Announcement of the list of speakers who will represent the University in the Grand National Forensic tournament set for Fredericksburg, Va., on March 24 was made yesterday by Debate Council President Earl Fitzgerald.

Fitzgerald also said the speakers should meet in Graham Memorial next Sunday afternoon at 4:30 to make final arrangements for transportation to the tournament.

Question for debate at the tournament will be: "Resolved: That a world federal government should be established."

Debaters taking the affirmative position will be Merle Stevens, Emily Baker, Dortch Warriner and Herbert Yates. Negative stands will be taken by Charles Long, Herbert Mitchell, Tom Shelton and Jim Spence.

Poetry readers will be Blanton Miller and Robert Giles.

Herman Sieber and Blanton Miller will enter the tournament contest for dramatic readers.

Extemporaneous speakers will be Miss Stevens and Charles Long. Address readers will be Robert Giles and Blanton Miller; and orator contestant will be Bill Miller. Debate council representative will be Jim Taylor.

Wicker, Thompson, West, Sanford Seek Council Posts On SP Slate

Announcing the Student party's final slate of Student council candidates for April elections, SP spokesmen yesterday listed nominations made at Monday night's party session.

Men candidates for Student council posts are: Jake Wicker, Sanford; Cam West, Philadelphia; and Fred Thompson, Rocky Mount.

Wicker, a junior, is president of the University chapter of United World Federalists and also serves as vice-president of the Carolina Political union.

A legislator, Cam West is a member of the Dialectic Senate.

Fred Thompson, a freshman, is a member of the Student Legislature, of the Freshman Friendship council and the Elections board.

Women candidates for Student council are: Iris Best, Concord; Emily Baker, Asheville; and Marty Davis, Clayton.

A transfer from Women's college, Miss Best is in Alpha Delta Pi sorority and serves as co-chairman of the Westminister group of the Presbyterian church.

Miss Baker is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority.

NORMAN SPER (rhymes with cheer), who has the Student party endorsement for head cheerleader, has been one of the leading promoters of the CAA-aproved card stunts at football games.

She is a critic in the Phi Assembly and serves as a reporter on the "Daily Tar Heel" staff. She also served on the "Y" junior council.

A Salem college transfer, Miss Davis worked on the "Salemite", college newspaper. She was an International Relations club member and officer. At Carolina she is an Alpha Gamma Delta pledge, majoring in chemistry.

Candidates for Council members at large are: Sam Magill, Shanghai, China, who is vice-president of the YMCA, a track star, and who served as co-chairman of the WSSF drive last year; Bill Mackie, Chapel Hill, a former member of the Student Legislature where he was chairman of the Finance committee; and Anna "Chick" Slack, Raleigh, a pharmacy student, a Student council member and a candidate for re-election.

At the party meeting Chairman Gran Childress announced a special meeting of the party for tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge.

Victor Seixas, Di Lorenzo Are Endorsed by CP

Vic Seixas and Vinnie Di Lorenzo were nominated for president and vice-president respectively of the Carolina Athletic association at a meeting of the Campus party held last night.

Seixas, rising senior from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is a tennis star and has played varsity basketball for the University.

Army Pilot

During the war, he served as an AAF pilot for three and one-half years, two and one-half of which were spent overseas.

Before leaving Carolina, the candidate served as treasurer of the sophomore class and was a candidate for the vice presidency of the junior class when he left. Previous to his service, he played freshman tennis and freshman basketball and participated in one year of varsity competition in each of the two sports.

Riggs, Kramer Comment

Since returning to Carolina, Seixas has played one year of varsity basketball and has advanced to a starring position on the University tennis team and in amateur tennis circles. Bobby Riggs has said of him, "I'd put Vic right near the top of the list of up and coming stars." Jack Kramer declared that in ranking Seixas as number 11 among 1947 tennis amateurs the experts had given him a "raw deal".

The candidate is captain of this year's tennis squad, a member of the Monogram club, and is on the Dean's list.

Government Experience

Di Lorenzo, the vice-presidential nominee, is also an outstanding athlete with experience in student government.

He has played two years of varsity baseball at Carolina and has one season of service on the basketball team. An ace portsider, he was a winning mainstay on last year's diamond squad.

Di Lorenzo has served one year in the Student Legislature and is a member of the Monogram club. He is a rising senior from Bergenfield, New Jersey.

Both nominees are members of Chi Psi fraternity.

Student Body President Vetoes Bill After Open Meeting Of Party Leaders, Interested Persons Probes Question

Veto Statement Released in Full By Prexy Eller

(Following is the complete text of the statement released by Student Body President Eller after he applied his power of veto to the redistricting and reapportionment bill yesterday afternoon.)

"My reasons for vetoing the legislative enactment in re redistricting and reapportioning are as follows:

"In this, as in past occasions, we are confronted with a disasterous time problem in regard to re-apportionment and re-districting. All nominations must be in at the end of this week.

"(1) In my opinion, it is unfortunate and impracticable to attempt to achieve much-needed re-apportionment in the same act with politically questionable district division.

Step Forward

"(2) The provision for division of the Dormitory area is a step forward, as is the separation and representation of Victory Village; however, the bill provides for virtually no division for the town which has more residents than the dormitory areas. This is in my opinion contrary to the theory of districting which dictates that the sole reason for districting is to allow a constituent to know his representatives. I cannot agree with the spirit of an act which districts the minority and leaves the majority in reality undistricted.

"(3) Commuters should be considered as a part of no geographical district, but should be in class separate from all others. This bill has men from the town representing men from Hillsboro, Raleigh, Durham, and even Greensboro. By classing these men in the town district, disproportionate weight is given the voters of the town, because representatives who represent the town as a result of this action will in practice be chosen from the town district.

Equity Question

"(4) A series of circumstances in the Legislature have attended the passage of this bill which seriously involve the question of equity to the contestants. (I refer to the fact that the passage was upon a 23-22 vote when a member of the majority vote wished to change his vote. (The vote of the clerk having been erroneously ignored. He failed to achieve his hope to do so because the Speaker had called a recess. Following the recess no opportunity, in the presence of haste, presented itself for his request.) In addition, I had warned the Legislature that its bill would be unacceptable to me. Some legislators had already concerned themselves with pressing advance business.

Dangerous Premise

"(5) It seems to me that we adopt a dangerous premise in representation when we make further districting on a geographical basis. Students should not be represented as resident on a particular street, but as members of a community of interests. The conclusion to be drawn from this is that we should have districts built upon the provisions of the constitution which refers to men in Dormitories, women in dormitories, and town students. In my opinion, the fraternities represent a community of interests and should be districted separately from non-fraternity town men and women, just as they are now districted separately from the dormitories. It is only fair and reasonable to say, therefore, that we should have tangible bases for districts rather than mere geographical map appearances.

"(6) I have duly considered this bill in the presence of more than 15 representatives of diver-

(See ELLER, page 4)

TOM ELLER, president of the student body, yesterday vetoed the campus redistricting and reapportionment bill which was passed by the Student Legislature last Thursday night.

Death of Measure Follows Hot Debate By Party Spokesmen

By Chuck Hauser

Tom Eller, president of the student body, turned thumbs down yesterday afternoon on the redistricting and reapportionment measure which was passed by the Student Legislature last Thursday night.

The veto followed an opening meeting held at 3 o'clock yesterday in the student government offices. The assembly was attended by leaders from all three political parties and by a number of other interested people who wished to add their aid in helping the student body president make up his mind whether or not he should kill the bill.

Cause of Dispute

The cause of the whole dispute was the provision for the town men's districts in the redistricting section of the law. As passed by the Student Legislature, three districts were provided for. The original proposal presented by the Elections committee authorized five voting areas.

In the open Elections committee meeting preceding the Legislature session, Joe Leary presented a four-district amendment which took the four votes opposing the five-district plan which won the committee vote, 5-4. But the amendment Leary threw on the floor Thursday night was for three balloting districts, not four, and subsequently both confused and took by surprise many legislators and visitors.

Conference Goes Negative

And after much heated debate, discussion, charges and disputes yesterday, Eller went into private conference with Elections board Chairman Al Winn and right-hand man Scotty Venable and came to the decision that he would put a negative stamp on the measure.

The two sides of the question were argued back and forth between 3:10 and 4:20 until the participants began repeating themselves, at which time Eller called the meeting adjourned.

Eller Gives Reasons

Charges of hurting student government, political intrigue, and distorted justice were hurled about the little student government office. Eller's reasons for his veto are to be found in an adjoining column and the other side of the question is also presented in today's paper by UP Chairman Thurman Williams, who was one of the bitter defenders of the redistricting bill.

At any rate, the decision means that neither the new apportionment figures nor further districting of any voting areas will be in effect when the spring elections roll around on April 6.

UP Head Attacks Tom Eller's Veto

Announcement of Tom Eller's veto of the redistricting bill has been received by the University party with marked opposition, Party Chairman Thurman Williams announced yesterday.

The UP chairman said, "The University party received the news of President Tom Eller's veto of the redistricting and reapportionment bill with a definitely unfavorable opinion.

The bill passed, which provided for the breaking down of the town district into four districts instead of one, had been sponsored in the Legislature by the University party.

"The UP had assumed that in breaking up the single district it stood to lose representation in the Legislature. Although the party realized this, it felt that this bill would result in better representation from the town district.

"The party knew that the bill was not perfect, but it felt that it was a move in the direction of better man-for-man representation in our Student Government.

"This feeling is the main plank of the University party's platform and the party has and will continue to fight for this plank regardless of opposition.

"In vetoing this bill, Tom Eller and Student party members have broken faith with the student body. Backward steps such as this which are made only with political interests behind them are detrimental to student government. This veto is strongly opposed by the University party."

Political Parties Are in Agreement On Selecting Men's Council Members

All three campus political parties have reached agreement on the method for nominating candidates for positions on the Men's council.

The plan for nominations was voted affirmative backing by the Student party Monday night, the University party yesterday afternoon, and the Campus party yesterday evening.

The proposal calls for four members of the nominating board to come from each party. These are: Student party—Gran Childress, Bill Mackie, Dortch Warriner and Herb Alexander; University party — Thurman Williams, Charlie Loudermilk, Len Butt and Anne Coop Knight; Campus party—Bob Haire, Walt Arnold, Bob Ormand and Tom Lockhart.

Bill Tate, Mike Carr and Tom Eller will sit as non-voting members of the board, with Tate as chairman. The election was made at the first meeting of the board at 9 oclock last night.

The board will make all nominations for the Men's council and will handle all publicity concerning them. The nominations will be made after interviews with all interested students.

Those who desire candidacy are urged to submit applications for consideration to Bill Tate in care of Men's council, Graham Memorial, as soon as possible. The deadline for these applications has been set for Thursday, March 25.

On that day, the board will meet in Roland Parker lounge 3 in Graham Memorial to orient all applicants, and then will move to the Grail room for the interviews.

Playmakers' Fourth Production Is Original; 'Call Back Yesterday' Is Scheduled Tonight

Good Seats Open For Tomorrow, Thursday Nights

By Mark Sumner

Gene A. McLain's new full length play, the highly experimental "Call Back Yesterday," will be given its premiere run starting tonight at 8:30 and continuing through Saturday by the Carolina Playmakers in the Playmaker Theatre. It is the drama group's fourth major production for the 1947-48 season.

"We still have good seats for all the four production nights, but the best tickets are for Wednesday and Thursday evenings," John W. Parker, business manager, said late yesterday.

The play counts heavily on lighting and a new type of scenery designed by university senior James Riley. William Ayers, Kay Kyser scholarship holder, is serving as master electrician.

McLain, a graduate student in the dramatic art department, says his play is "an attempt to escape the limitations of the box setting, the restrictions of realistic time, and the distracting qualities of material detail, and I have tried to present the essence of the characters as they might exist in memory or imagination."

The play is under the direction of Harry Davis, associate professor, and the cast includes: Gordon R. Bennett, James Geiger, Mary Jo Cain, Claude Rayborn, Sidney Shertzer, Porter Van Zandt, Erle Hall, Hilda Lawrence, George Upchurch, Margaret Cameron, Mac Shaw, Eleanor Ringer, Edsel Hughes, Robert Eberle, and Harry Thomas.

A. E. Westover, III, is stage manager, and Robert Eberle is crew chief. The technical crews include: Hilda Lawrence, Betty Finley, Iantha Smart, Fred Bull, Harry Thomas, Mac Shaw, Suzanne Davis, George McKinney, and Bradford Fearing.

Democrat Club Adopts Constitution; Makes Plans For Securing Speaker

Adoption of a constitution and plans for bring another prominent Democratic speaker to Chapel Hill were the principal accomplishments of the Young Democrats club meeting held yesterday afternoon in Graham Memorial.

The speaker, whose name was not announced, will appear here on April 6. He will follow Jonathan Daniels in the series of prominent Democrats currently being brought to the campus by the YDC.

A provision forbidding the endorsement by the local organization of any person prior to his nomination by the party was incorporated into the constitution and, as expected, the group bound itself to support the nominees of the Democratic party.

According to the newly adopted document, the purpose of the campus YDC will be "to increase the efficiency of popular government, to foster and perpetuate the ideals and principals of the Democratic party, and to provide for our people, through its administration, the highest degree of justice, social welfare, and happiness."

All students on campus were made eligible for active membership. In this connection, Lester Carter, the president, requested that anyone who may be interested in the Democratic party identify himself with the organization.

Under the constitution, an executive committee was set up as a governing board, with its members to be elected by the full membership of the club and to have the power to appoint their own chairman. It was also provided that the constitution adopted yesterday should supersede any like document now in existence.

The next meeting of the group will take place on Thursday, April 1.

CP MEETING

The Campus party will meet to complete its slate for offices to be filled in the Spring elections at an urgent special meeting set for tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker 2 of Graham Memorial.

All candidates already nominated, all those who wish to receive nominations, and any interested persons have been asked by party chairman Bob Haire to make a special effort to be present.

ARRIVING in New York from Czechoslovakia, American opera singer Josepha Chekova tells of the Red terror which followed the Communist march to full power in that country. She warned, "What I heard from crying lips should be a forceful warning to America to be ever vigilant against the march of Communism."

Summerlin Edits . . . | . . . 72-Page Magazine

Budding Authors Publish 'Bud'

By Donald MacDonald

Fourteen budding authors, members of Professor Phillips Russell's creative writing class, have at last realized an ambition. They have "published"—even if it took their own manual labor to complete their magazine.

Summerlin Is Editor

The result of their efforts comes off the mimeograph today, a 72-page magazine entitled "Bud". Sam Summerlin, a senior journalism student, is editor of the publication which has become a regular feature of Professor Russell's class each winter quarter.

Art Editor Don McKinney is responsible for the cover design and a special dedication page to Russell. Stencilling was done by each member of the class, and mimeographing by Guy Kirkman of the University News bureau.

Should Be Considered

Each member of the class is represented in the magazine. There are stories which, the modest authors say, probably never will appear anywhere hereafter. Also are some which acording to readers' opinions, the better-known publishing houses would do well to consider.

The content ranges from stark realism to romantic mystery, from tales of insanity to Rebalaisian humor.

Privy Peril

Highlight of the issue is the lead-off article, "New England's Peril—The Privy," a humorous essay modeled somewhat along the lines of the Atlantic Monthly's "I Personally" contributions. The author, John Gignilliat, gathered his material from a summer bicycle tour through New England when he stayed at American Youth hostels which did not know the advantages of modern plumbing. Planning to study architecture, Gignilliat found the difference in structures worth recording. He has two other contributions in the issue, a short story entitled "Let No Man Put Asunder," and a character sketch, "The Damnation of Earl."

Bourbon and Liberalism

A short story which received unanimous editorial approval is "Listen: A Banjo" by Sandy Grady. Grady's story presents a dangerous situation come from an overdose of "liberalism" mixed with an overdose of bourbon.

Included also in the issue is a story already chosen by the literary board for criticism at the Arts forum to be held in Greensboro at Woman's college tomorrow. ". . .Of Red and the World," by Charles Preslar, concerns insanity with a campus setting. The story has appeared in a special issue of the Woman's college magazine, "Coroddi," published for the Arts forum.

The literary board which made selections from a host of contributions gathered from class assignments is composed of: Norma Hotard, D. F. MacDonald, Don McKinney and William Armstrong.

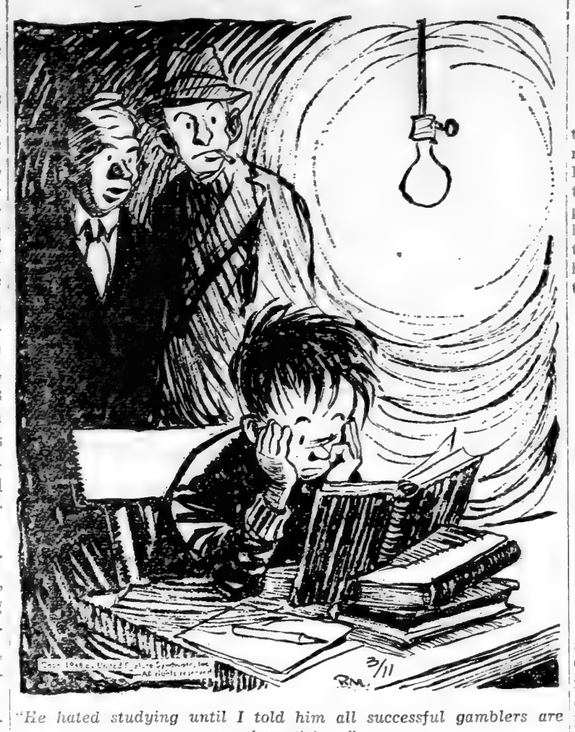
Other persons who have their work included are: Benedicta dos Santos, Jim Kluttz, Lucy Barret, Bill Prouty, James H. Shumaker and Elaine Patton.

Copies of the publication, which were bound by Colonial Press, will be distributed to the class members as souvenirs, and copies will be kept on file at the Library and in Bynum hall.

Our Honor System--- Living or Existing?

In the course of my two-year's experience on the Men's Honor Council, I have been unable to keep from consistently asking myself one question—Why do we continue to have so many cases? The Council members and myself, along with others, have offered various answers from time to time—the crowded conditions in the classrooms; the large proportion of veterans, many of whom were taught the "get-away-with-what-you-can" doctrine throughout their service careers; the large number of students who come from schools professing to have honor systems, but which actually have nothing approaching even a fair one; the failure of many professors to cooperate in advancing the system; the mere acceptance of the Honor System by so many who do not practice it, i.e., the unwillingness of the majority of students to report others, causing, therefore, an "I-won't-be-reported,-so-I'll-do-what-I-want-to" attitude to exist in some students; the failure of many to prepare adequately for their exams, resulting in their weakening at the last minute in the face of temptation; poor orientation, and a lack of knowledge in general of just what the Honor System is; and the failure of many to realize what may constitute cheating, and the serious consequences thereof. These and several more reasons have been put forth as the cause for the many lengthy meetings in Room 215, Graham Memorial, and I think that all are in part true.

But I have come to the conclusion that the answer in its entirety lies in two principal failures of the students—the students in general, on the one hand, and the student leaders, on the other. The first concerns itself with students who fail to accept the fundamental principle of the Honor System that all are bound to report violations when they witness them; and the second is the failure of student leaders to realize that the Honor System cannot be taken for granted as being ever existent in perfection, merely because of the power of the name, but that it needs constant priming. This priming consists of informing the student body from time to time as to just what the Honor System is, and the responsibilities one owes to it.



The Men's Council, perhaps because it has been so extremely busy all year with the research and hearings necessary for the many cases reported, has, I readily admit, fallen down in its share of the priming process up till now. However, if for no other reason than the fact that it recently heard a case involving the entire membership of a class, the Council has awakened to the fact that something is definitely lacking in our Honor System as it stands at present. It is merely existing—not living as it has in the past. And so, through a series of articles, of which this is the first, the Council plans an attempt to thoroughly familiarize each and every member of the campus,-students and faculty alike, with its duties and obligations under the system, and how we can all help revive it and restore it to its proper high level.

In this (re)orientation series, will appear discussions of what an honor system is, why we have it, how it is enforced (including the procedure for handling a case from beginning to end), punishments for violations, cases heard the past year, and recommendations for further improving the system. Also an attempt will be made to clear up various ill-conceived rumors presently rampant on the campus concerning individuals involved in certain cases.

The members of the Council urge you not to take this series lightly, for each individual here at UNC certainly owes it to himself and the University to familiarize himself, to the best of his ability, with every aspect of the very back-bone of Student Government—the Honor System. And if any of you have ideas about improving conditions, or wish to have a certain point in particular discussed, please don't hesitate to contact a member of the Council at any time. Names, telephone numbers, and addresses of the members of both the Men's and Women's Councils will appear in the Y lobby shortly, and until then just drop a card in care of Graham Memorial.

Bill Tate, Chairman,
Men's Honor Council

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

"He hated studying until I told him all successful gamblers are mathematicians."

Of Students in Quandaries

Green Hair for Spencer Girls

By Sergei Burgess

What with finals just around the corner, and spring vacation not much farther away, it looks like this will be the last time this winter I'll be with you lucky people. I presume that everyone has studied well and hard for those dreaded finalities. If you haven't, just do like me. Hypnotize your instructors.

Space this time prevents me from printing the answers to the problem posed in last issue's question. Still talking about green hair, we wanted to know what dorm or sorority would look best with stunning green curls. Seems that people favor Spencer mostly. In the final tabulation this morning the Spencer maids came out on top with 17 ballots cast in their favor. Pi Phi came next, with 11, and Carr dorm (including a vote by a Carr resident) showed for nine.

Every establishment received at least one vote, thanks to Bob Goldwater's vote for 2nd Alderman. And then there was a vote cast that we couldn't decide on. Randy McLeod's proposal that it should be for the ones who don't die their hair a flaming scarlet. (Sorry, Randy, but no quotes today.)

Allow me to state that this will not be a gossip column. In a way, perhaps, but . . .you know who I mean. Charley Houghton insisted that it not be the other night. He 'n whatshername asked that I say nothing about "Guess who was seen with who when and where." Well, then, chillens, I won't

But after the intermission the Wolfpack rolled out and proceeded to run the Devils ragged until the end of the game. Unless I'm mistaken, this paragraph belongs on the next page.

Lindsay Tate's letter re Dedmond on this page yesterday was just about the height of something. I wonder if Lindsay really wrote that diatribe. It sounds like someone kinda high up in the affairs of campus politics—especially the Stoojent Party—and is Lindsay really that high? Dunno. If you discover anything, let Zergee hear about it, please.

Add another to the unions. In Noo Yawk recently, according to an article on page 12 of Friday's NYTimes, the local gang of cinema projectionists decided that they didn't like their contract with the theaters where they worked. To protest they'd pull such stunts as fooling with the sound track until it dived or zoomed in pitch, or left the action on the screen completely. Then they'd switch reels from one feature to another and still not satisfied they'd aim the projector at the side or the ceiling of the joint. Then, to cap it off, they denied along with the management(!) that these incidents had caused the patrons any "inconvenience."

Chee, babe, look at Cary Grant and Loretta Young skating across the roof of dis place!

The guys in Stacy are really going to get kicked unless they decide they want to stay in their dorm at a meeting tonight. The welfare board seems to think that it'd be better for freshmen to stay in Stacy. B. J. Strong, the captain of the "wewann stay" group staging the protest this p. m.

'COON AND FOX HUNTERS OUT TO SAVE "PREY"

Oil City, Pa., —(UP)— Ted Kinch takes his membership in the Venango County 'Coon and Fox Hunters Association seriously.

The unusual thing about the association is that members do not hunt racoons or foxes for sport or pleasure.

In the last three seasons, Kinch has bagged 68 racoons with the help of his two prize 'coon hounds. After they were caught the animals were kept in a pen until the hunting season was over, then released.

The purpose of the association is to preserve the animals.

Campus Forum

Arrangement for Alumni?

By Pete Gerns

The question for today is on what provisions our University could make for alumni who come to visit our campus throughout the year. To get to crux of the matter we spent an hour with Alumni Secretry Marion Saunders. We would like to take these means to thank Mr. Saunders for his time and consideration.

Mr. Saunders tells us that the Carolina Inn was originally intended to be the visiting place for alumni, and still is. Established 25 years ago and taking over by the University 10 years thereafter, the Inn today serves our alumni as gathering place. In fact, "Alumni Inn" was once considered as substitute for Carolina Inn".

The Forum asked Mr. Saunders who is considered to be an alumnus of this University. There are 30,000 former students living today who fall under this category. This figure does not only include those who have received a degree, but also covers everyone who has ever attended here. About 11,000 have received a degree at one time or another, and 6,000 belong presently to the Alumni association. Paying $3.00 in yearly dues, they receive the "Alumni Review" and voting privileges in election for Alumni association officers.

We tried to get a specific answer from Mr., Saunders on whether it would be advisable to erect a building for sole use by alumni. He did not feel it fair to answer this question without being presented with specific details concerning it. He believes one thing, though, and that is that separating the alumni from students and townspeople would be inadvisable. "This university is state-operated and such separation would be contrary to our best interests. When a Carolina alumni comes to the Hill he wants to go downtown to the barber's, to Harry's, look in on Graham Memorial, talk things over with Roy Armstrong, and perhaps stop for a chat with people in the alumni office."

If a place were erected for him he would probably visit it. However, the great problem would be the upkeep of such an alumni house, for it would be quite busy during the football season and commencement, yet would hardly be used during the other part of the year. And money isn't floating around for a place that cannot be used to a full extent throughout with what the housing and classroom situation is right now.

This seems to present the situation adequately. Two students, who have evoked great interest in the problem, say this:

"It is a glaring example of negligence on the part of any university who will diligently press its campaign for funds yearly upon a group of alumni and yet not provide these same benevolent contributors with a suitable gathering place." Bill Bowman.

"Carolina has given all that is necessary; the gift is implied by the word 'Alumni'. When the former sons of Carolina give to their alma mater, they are merely repaying her for what they gained through her." Herman Sieber.

ONE CITY FINDS PEACE

Batavia, N. Y. —(UP)— This western New York city has one claim to fame for 1947—it was a safe place to live. Police Lt. Forrest A. Gray reported no violent deaths within the city limits last year—"no automobile fatalities, no suicides and no murders."

Like Elsa

Tired of Knock-Knees, Coeds?

By Sally Swing

Paris (UP)—"Women are tired of old knock-knees."

That was Elsa Schiaparelli's comment on attempts of some Paris designers to chop a few inches on skirt lengths.

"Women the world over are sick to death of short skirts," she said tartly. "Any change now is silly." Her new collection shows skirts for daytime wear dropped as low as ankle-length.

Several times a week, men call up "Scap," as her friends call her, and plead that she make skirts shorter.

"They (the legs) are so much nicer when we can see them," is the talking point.

To that she argues that if legs are pretty, then the ankles are pretty and you can get just as much of a kick out of seeing pretty ankles as calves—even more.

"Long skirts are more feminine. We needed the change," she said.

Mme. Schiaparelli wore a brown velvet hat, with green feathers and a black daysuit. Her lipstick was bright cerise and her eyes were heavily shadowed with blue.

Her collection also is crowded with orange color combinations such as salmon with shocking pink, navy and black, and red and yellow.

"Most women are making the mistake these days of wearing too many mud colors," the veteran Paris designer said.

"Bright colors are pretty for the skin, and make you feel better."

Talking of the new back fullness and ruffles which dot her presentation this year, Schiaparelli said:

"There is nothing new about the trend towards the back.

On the contrary, to be feminine women must have back fullness. It gives a woman more sex appeal."

This 'n That

Why Not Boost Col. Killian?

By Bill Buchan

Since every other Tom, Dick and Harry is forming a "Our Candidate for President" Club, yours truly and Raney Stanford, DTH news scribe have decided to come out in the open and announce the formation of a club in support of OUR candidate.

Anyone interested in joining the ranks of a"Colonel Killian for President" club on the campus, please get in the line that forms on the right.

Colonel Killian has several outward advantages. In the first place, he was the proprietor of the famous Litchfield GI Prison in England, where American soldiers got such soft treatment. In the second place, after the treatment was finally discovered, Colonel Killian was given a very heavy sentence of a $500 fine. In the third place, after his conviction, he has repeatedly appeared on the White House promotion list for Brigadier General. A man with such obvious influence certainly could be elected president.

We've got a Wallace Club already, propaganda for Stassen is being publicized, MacArthur says he will bow to the "will of the people" and dependable Harry says he'll accept—if nominated. With such worthy competitors, why not boost Killian?

Although his campaign platform has not been clearly defined as yet, the local promoters feel sure that he will advocate one six foot "Cat 'O Nine Tails" whip in every home and an ice cold shower for any especially rude criminals. Crime will certainly be on the decrease under such a reign. Juvenile delinquency will certainly disappear. What other candidate has offered a surer campaign?

Any potential members of the "Killian For President Club will naturally have to affirm on a stack of Bibles their beliefs in the good colonel's innocence on all those nasty charges of which he has been accused by the mean old press.

The first meeting of the new organization will be announced in the very near future. . .probably in the Friday edition of the DTH. Look for it, we need your support.

Slightly off the beaten path is the story of a fraternity party at nearby State College last weekend. Seems that the agriculture majors were having their annual Barnwarming Dance Saturday with the formal dress for the evening consisting of (naturally), overalls, denim shirts and cotton dresses. After the dance broke up, one of the fraternities entertained at a party at their house. Refreshments? Two very large five gallon cans of—hot chocolate!! Time Marches On.

Write Away

Miss Aiken Takes Exception

Dear Foo:

Carolina Carousel of last Saturday amazed me by giving us more strong opinion on serious subjects sandwiched in harmless chit-chat. Evidently you still do not agree with Mr. Smith that the best journalism supplies "an unbiased representation of all facts of an issue", nor that most readers can, and would rather, draw their own conclusions IF an objective analysis is presented. (Note: I do not know MR. or MRS. SMITH!) Also, you think that all editorials "written or initialled by the editor or not" —represent Barron Mills' " opinions and decisions; this is quite confusing!

However, what I want to konw is just how you think "the local Wallaceites "flubbed the dub" at Mr. Jonathan Daniels' Tuesday night talk. Your negative and incomplete appraisal deserves more than blind acquiescence or slight reaction—but "here starts". A speech WAS the main event of said assembly Tuesday, wasn't it? What did you think of the main event-incidentally? Then, to be specific, what was wrong with my question: "Mr. Daniels, would you please tell us what you think of the Un-American Activities Committee?"

Now, my OPINION is that most "local Wallaceites" wecome constructive and objective criticism—but I BELIEVE that they take a lot that is insinuating and unwarranted. It may be that I was the only one in the entire audience who approved of the surprisingly good behavior of these citizens in the shadow of recent severe and unjustified journalistic attacks by Mr. Daniels and reporter. Do you really think that they booed, heckeld or clapped loudly at the wrong times? Weren't most of their questions factual? Did they monopolize the "post-speech period"? if anyone else wanted to question the Southern Liberal?

Last—but not least— I wonder if you heard all of General Holdridge's speech. You see, many thought that the Wallace supporters approved what he said: in fact, they were probably his most numerous proponents. It was OUR EDITOR (Feb. 20,—"who can't tag along with the man who pats the crowd on the back") who called General Holdridge "the chief crackpot of all crackpots". From WHERE and WHAT I heard, he admitted that he was a PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE of a small protesting minority within the Democratic Party. He said that he agreed with him on a 11 the major issues of our day.

This week I do not know where you stand—and do not recommend that you necessarily look "from there" instead of "from look again with advantage FROM here" but perhaps you could more than one side of a question —in accordance with your habitual practice.

Sincerely but Frankly
Martha Aiken

Reply

Martha Dear,

—In addition to reiterating what I have already said with regard to "flubbing -of-the-dub," I now maintain that you are the latest to "bite the hand that is patting you on the back."

And I feel your letter to be so thoroughly riddled with fallacies and untruths, and to be so asininely making a mountain out of a molehill that I shall not waste student newspaper space here nor in the future by replying to your irrational charges. However, I shall be happy to publicly debate this "vital" issue with you any time, and to verbally explain it to any other interested students. (As you know I went over the situation in great detail with you for over an hour Monday night.) To reply here would take many peges.

My purpose in mentioning incident "dub-flub" was to make a personal observation on what I thought were some tactless tactics by some members of W.C. (Wallace club). The main intent of the entire comment, as you do not seem capable of fathoming, was to ask conservatives who were rallying under the Daniels banner ". . .how many would go straight down the road with him on his (civil rights) beliefs?" (—Carousel, Mar. 6)

I could even be a member of the W.C. and still make the same comments legitimately. . .In fact, several of your fellow W.C.'ers have agreed with me that some of the Wallaceite questions asked at both speeches would have been better un-asked!

Dear sweet Martha (note patronizing tone), I am basically on your side in working for liberal causes, as is Jonathan Daniels, etc., too. Hence my "hand-biting" point to you: You and the W.C. are working for liberal measures to an extreme degree; I to a lesser degree; and, in my opinion, Jonathan Daniels to a lesser, but probably most politically sensible degree. —You "in biting these hands" thus ultimateley hurt only your own Wallaceite cause.

I am sorry not to have answered your charges here and now, but as I said, if you think it's important enough well. I'm for forensics!

As for your self-admitted, persecution-complected, mud-bespangled banter, I say, "long may it rave." But it doesn't make good political hoss sense!

Love,
Foo

TAKE SUNDAYS OFF

Cabondale, Ill. —(UP)— The Student Christian Foundation at Southern Illinois University, a non-sectarian group, is the only organization of its kind which does not hold meetings on Sunday. Eighty per cent of its members go more for the weekend.

Hay for calves during winter months should provide protein minerals and vitamin A maximum amounts farm experts say.

Soybeans absorb moisture easily and small bin leaks may cause spoiled grain, the University of Illinois Agriculture College says.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor
HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser
ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden
SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison
SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears
ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow
EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Chuck Hauser NIGHT SPORTS: Buddy Vaden

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—To venture
5—Woman's title (abbr.)
8—Cloth made from bark
12—Metal
13—Gave sympathy
15—Amounts owed
17—Order
18—Ship's jail
20—Wager
21—Covered
24—Small bundles
28—Sailor (coll.)
29—Girl's name
31—Pronoun
32—Goddess of discord
34—Sooner than
35—Egyptian goddess
36—Vegetable
37—Rear of ship's keel
39—Rodent
40—City in Germany
42—Glint
44—To marry
46—Observes
47—Comes into sight
51—Bodies of water
54—Young actresses
56—Kind of bean
57—Headpieces
58—Wyoming (abbr.)
59—Cozy

DOWN

1—Performed
2—Part of "to be"
3—Thefts
4—Between (Fr.)
5—Master of ceremonies (abbr.)
6—Fabulous bird
7—Social climber
8—He sang "titwillow"
9—Wing
10—Writing gadget
11—To compute
14—Seagull
16—Location
19—Biological factors
21—Greek pillar
22—Rabbits
23—Daggers
25—Cloth
26—Part of flower
27—To strike
30—Deep parts of ocean
33—Meat pins
38—Highlander
41—Man's name
43—Old Spanish coin (pl.)
45—Sketched
47—Fire residue
48—Parent-teachers organization (abbr.)
49—Bit of butter
50—Pig pen
52—Flightless bird
53—To hang down
55—Thus

C	O	W		S	T	A	S		S	T	E	P
O	D	A		O	R	C	A		Y	O	R	E
B	E	N	E	F	I	T	S		S	P	I	N
		D	R	A	M		S	A	T	E	E	N
S	E	E	R	S		M	O	L	E
L	A	R	S		R	O	O	M	M	A	T	E
A	S	E		T	E	R	N	S		L	O	G
B	E	R	E	A	V	E	S		S	M	O	G
		A	M	O	S		P	E	A	K	S
T	A	S	S	E	L		K	L	A	N
O	B	I	T		V	E	N	E	R	A	T	E
A	B	L	E		E	R	I	A		C	O	N
D	E	E	R		R	E	T	S		S	O	D

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

White Phantoms End 1948 Season Sporting Creditable 20-7 Record

By Dick Jenrette

...'s White Phantoms, ... precious years have ... the reputation of be... of the perennial basketball leaders, ... most successful sea... with an enviable ... 20 wins and seven ...

... Tom Scott's current set ... won't walk off with ... honships this season, ... overall won-lost mark ... reflects credit on the ... athletic record. ... to N. C. State this ... considerably detracted ... team's prestige, but in ... defeating the Phantoms ... ated by only a 55-50 ... a great comeback after ... trailed in the first two ... into the Wolfpack. The ... team of 1947-48 can be ... of its fine record, which ... rounded under conditions ... would have disrupted ...

... started the season in ... rolling up 12 consecu... victories which carried them ... to the top of the nation's select ... list of unbeaten teams. The Phantoms moved on to New York, ... facing their unblemished record on the line against the Violets of NYU in a game that was to prove disasterous to Coach Scott's charges. Bill Miller, a rangy freshman forward who was one ...

Seven Players Not Returning Next Year; Paxton High in Scoring With 329 Points of the key men on the Carolina quint, was declared ineligible just before the game. Whether his absence was the cause of defeat cannot be accurately judged, but NYU crushed the Southerners under a 63-34 score.

Still Not Recovered

Carolina still hadn't recovered the next night, falling before Temple, 61-51, in Philadelphia. The Phantoms, after a week's rest, came back to stop Pennsylvania, 52-46, and two more quick victories followed, making a 15-2 record. Then Coach Everett Case's State college cagers routed the Phantoms by a record 81-42 count before a screaming attendance of State students in Raleigh.

For the remainder of the season, Carolina won five of nine games, losing to State in the semi-finals of the Southern conference tourney by 55-50.

In addition to the loss of Miller, Norm Kohler, regular guard saw little activity in the last five games because of a knee injury.

Collegiate Finals

The tourney contests marked the collegiate finales for seven of the Phantoms. Missing when practice begins next fall will be Captain Bob Paxton, Johnny Dillon, Mervyn (King) Cole, Roger Scholbe, Taylor Thorne, Fred Swartzberg, and Mark Nathan.

The team had a scoring average of 53.8 per game while the opposition averaged 46.1. Paxton was the scoring leader for the year with 329 points.

Here are the complete scoring totals for the year:

Player	Fg	Ft	Tp
Paxton	115	99	329
Nearman	54	79	187
Dillon	58	66	182
Cole	77	11	165
Kohler	57	42	156
Carson	44	28	116
Scholbe	40	9	89
Miller	31	8	70
Thorne	26	10	62
Swartzberg	17	13	47
Nyimicz	12	6	30

Moody Places Fifth In Garden High Jump

Jack Moody, Carolina's lone representative to the Knights of Columbus games, placed fifth in the high jump last Saturday night at Madison Square Garden.

The Southern conference and indoor meet champion and record-holder cleared the bar at six feet, two inches and then went out two inches higher.

Jack Milne, former Tar Heel trackster, was fourth in the two-mile run and turned in one of his best performances of the indoor season.

UNC Matmen Lose

Oscar Gupton, Carolina's representative in the 165-pound class of the Southern conference wrestling tourney, was defeated in the final round last night by Washington and Lee's Ken Lindell. Lindell won on a referee's decision after the score at the end of three rounds was tied up at one-all.

In the semi-final round yesterday afternoon, Phil Kemp, 155-pounder, was decisioned by N. C. State's Doug Martin, 8-6.

Whid Powell's
COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM
GRILLED TARHELLIAS
CAROLINAS
WAFFLES
Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

REHDER'S
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

DICK TWINING
. . . to captain in 1949

Mermen Picked For IC4A Meet

Seven members of Carolina's unbeatable swimming squad have been selected by Coaches Dick Jamerson and Ralph Casey to compete in the IC4A tank championships to be held at Cambridge, Mass., March 20.

All seven mermen shared in Southern conference individual or relay-team titles over the past weekend. Dick Twining, the team captain for 1949, was victor in both distance events, Norm Sper won the diving crown for the second straight year, Floyd Drew led the field in the 50, Bob Ousley won the breaststroke and swam a leg in the medley, and Mike Morrow, Bill Pritchard, and Steve Osborne made up three-fourths of the winning relay quartet.

Two other conference titleholders, relay star Jesse Greenbaum and backstroker Jim Thomas, are ineligible for the IC4A meet, Greenbaum because of his graduate status and Thomas because of his freshman rating.

Fijis, Med School Hold Leads In Mural Cup Race; Entry Dates On Six Spring Sports Are Announced

Softball, Tennis, Track Plans Made

Entry and competition dates have been set for the six mural activities for the spring quarter by the intramural department.

Softball is first on the agenda with entries due by March 31. Play will begin on April 5. There will be a meeting of the mural managers March 25 at 7:30 in which any wrinkles in the spring session program will be ironed out and final plans laid for the Sports carnival.

Four days will be allotted for track qualifying heats—April 12-15. Semi-finals will be staged the 20th with finals the next day. Sigma Chi and the Med School copped the titles in that tourney.

The horseshoe tourney will be run off simultaneously with the cinder competition. Entry deadline is April 15 and the tourney will commence four days later. Beta copped the campus crown last spring.

Tennis is next on the list, beginning the next week. The Phi Gams won the campus championship last year by beating the dormitory leaders, Oakwood Drive.

Two new activities will wind up the program, water polo and archery. However, the archery will not count on the regular mural standings as it will be run on an all-campus basis. Both men and women will be allowed to enter.

Finals in Badminton Slated for Tonight

The intramural department's badminton tournament will be concluded this evening in the Women's gym when the finals in the men's singles and men's and mixed doubles will be reeled off.

The feature match of the evening will pit Tar Heel tennis star Clark Taylor against Watson Pugh in the finals of the men's competition. The finalists in both doubles divisions have yet to be decided, and all teams not yet eliminated in the tourney are asked to be present tonight so that the doubles play can be completed.

Mural Standings

Dormitories

Med School	711.6
Lewis	575.8
Aycock	534.8
Oakwood Drive	420.7
Emerson	416.
Everett	415.2
Mangum	414.2
Grads	409.
Graham	404.9
Stacy	401.1
Mud Dobbers	337.7
Steele	307.3
Ruffin	293.4
Nash	275.8
Whitehead	259.2
Law School	258.2
Miller Hall	256.7
Alexander	253.8
Old East	249.3
B. V. P.	224.3
Y-Cabinet	169.3
Blackballs	160.
Seiler Five	140.
Field House	117.
Fire Balls	116.
Willers	116.
Geology Depart.	105.
Emanons	105.
Roaches	100.
Quonset Huts 8 & 26	177.4
Comets	94.
Independents	94.
Old West	94.
Coons	94.
Sky Scrapers	83
Honeycut Manner	83.
Wesley Rockets	71.1
A. V. C.	52.1
Brockwell	51.1
Black Phantoms	51.

Fraternities

Phi Gamma Delta	881.6
Zeta Psi	757.7
Sigma Chi	742.5
Phi Delta Theta	705.4
Sigma Nu	657.6
Kappa Alpha	632.4
Beta Theta Pi	622.3
Chi Psi	620.2
D. K. E.	609.7
Kappa Sigma	617.4
A.T.O.	555.5
S. A. E.	537.1
Chi Phi	528.9
Phi Kappa Sig	462.9
Pi Kappa Alpha	453.
T. E. P.	418.7
Phi Lambda Phi	408.1
Lambda Chi Alpha	354.6
Sigma Phi Epsilon	300.2
St. Anthony	282.3
Delta Sigma Pi	253.3
Kappa Psi	233.3
Z. B. T.	190.
Phi Delta Chi	172.
A. E. P.	100.

High School Basketball Tournament Set to Open Here Tomorrow Morning

Basketball will make a belated final appearance in Woollen gym tomorrow morning when quintets representing Tabor City and Hendersonville high school open the first annual State High School Class A and B basketball tournament at 9 o'clock.

The 14-game tournament will run through Saturday night with the finals slated for 7 and 8:30 o'clock that evening in the Class B and Class A loops, respectively. 15 of the 16 spots in the two tourneys have also been filled with the winner of the Richfield-Scotts Highs slated to become the remaining class B entrant.

Although the bigger Class A schools usually have more polished ball clubs, executive secretary L. J. (Hap) Perry of the State High AA thinks that the Class B cagers will display a top-notch brand of ball this year.

Two of the clubs, Elizabethtown and Bethel, have suffered only one defeat apiece this season. The members of the powerful Elizabethtown quint are all six feet tall or better. Elizabethtown's lone setback came at the hands of a potent Edwards Military Institute quint.

Carolina's own ace whistle tooters, Frank Murray and Lew Hayworth, will team with the baseballing brothers, Jim and Joe Mills, of Apex to referee the hardwood event.

Zete Psi, Lewis In Second Place

By Larry Fox

Although they copped no championships during the winter quarter, the Med School retained its first place spot in the dormitory standings by a substantial margin, 135.8 points.

The Phi Gams added over 100 points to their first place lead, mainly through their victory in the swimming tournament and their good showing in the handball contest in the fraternity division.

Emerson made the most meteoric rise of any organization this quarter. No men represented the dormitory in the fall session, but by taking championships in both the swimming and boxing tourneys, they emerged with 416 points and a fifth place berth for the winter's activities.

New Dorm Teams

Participation in the mural program this quarter expanded greatly with 18 new dormitory and independent groups and two fraternity organizations entering teams. All but two of the dorm units competed in the basketball tournament; the Blackballs had the greatest success of one-tourney entries, picking up 160 points, the dormitory championship, and 22nd place in the standings.

Lewis moved up four places this quarter, from their old sixth position, displacing the Aycock athletes from their runner-up place. Aycock moved down to third, followed by Oakwood Drive who didn't change their spot at all. Fifth place went to Emerson and Everett moved up from twelfth to sixth. Mangum dropped two notches, fifth to seventh while the Grads moved down five positions, fifth to eighth. Graham and Stacy exchanged places to and finished ninth and tenth, respectively, to round out the top ten. A total of 41 dorm teams scored points.

Zetes Hold

The Zete held fast to their second place berth, but Sigma Chi jumped up from ninth place to dump the Phi Delts from third to fourth. Sigma Chi won the fraternity division title in the basketball play. Sigma Nu moved up one notch to sixth and KA jumped eight places to sixth. The Betas stayed in the lucky seventh position to be followed by another repeater, Chi Psi.

Coed Badminton

The coed badminton tourney scheduled to start this week has been postponed until the spring quarter, badminton manager Joyce Adams announced yesterday.

Girls wishing to engage in the competition can file their entries through the first day of the Spring quarter, March 25, with Miss Adams. Play in the tournament will start March 30.

MIAMI WINNERS

Miami, March 8 —(UP)— A Texas oil dentist—Cary Middlecoff—and Australian Jim Ferrier have won the 10-thousand dollar international four-ball golf tournament. Middlecoff and Ferrier beat Ellsworth Vines and Ed Mojeol one-up on the 36th hole to take the top prize.

PHILIP MORRIS offers the smoker an extra benefit found in no other cigarette. For PHILIP MORRIS is the ONE, the ONLY cigarette recognized by leading nose and throat specialists as definitely less irritating.

Remember: Less irritation means more smoking enjoyment for you.

Yes! If every smoker knew what PHILIP MORRIS smokers know, they'd all change to PHILIP MORRIS.

CALL FOR PHILIP MORRIS

TRY A PACK . . . TODAY

Look BRIGHT in This Year's Easter Parade

SEE HOW SANITONE—THE BETTER KIND OF DRY CLEANING BRIGHTENS COLORS—MAKES CLOTHES LOOK LIKE NEW!

Yes, our Sanitone Service is the first really scientific Dry Cleaning method. Garments are cleaner, free from spots and stains. Fabrics look and feel like new again. It also means your clothes are better pressed, are free from unpleasant dry cleaning odors. Minor repairing done free and loose buttons tightened. Be ready for the Easter Parade in clothes cleaned the Sanitone way.

LICENSED SANITONE CLEANERS

UNIVERSITY CLEANERS
Across From The Post Office

The "sweetest man in Chapel Hill"

Danziger's
Old World
Restaurant &
Coffee House

Course In Parliamentary Procedure To Be Offered to Student Leaders

A course in the fundamentals of parliamentary procedure for student organization leaders and campus government officers will be offered through the Political Science department next quarter, Randy Hamilton, instructor in the department, said yesterday.

Hamilton, who will teach the course, pointed out the "crying need" for the conductors of campus meetings to know how to run these affairs so that the students attending will get the full benefit from the proceedings.

"And this is basically a problem in the knowledge of parliamentary procedure," he explained.

The proposed course has the backing of the University administration and is to be offered through the cooperation of Dr. C. B. Robson, head of the Political Science department. Hamilton said it would be a non-credit course and would probably be conducted during the evenings at Caldwell hall. There will be no competition, no examinations; the only purpose is instruction, he stated.

"We will use several texts, and try to get guest lecturers from time to time from other University departments and from various branches of state government."

The instruction, as estimated by Hamilton, will run for 15 or 20 hours, and will consist o actual practice in problems met in conducting formal gatherings, as well as the basic rules governing procedures.

"The course is open to all interested, but we particularly hope that student leaders will show sufficient interest in such instruction to merit the establishment of the course. Its continuance will be entirely up to the student interest in its benefits," Hamilton concluded.

FASHION SHOW MOVIES

Pictures of the CICA fashion show will be shown in Kenan tonight at 7 o'clock.

-Eller-

(Continued from page 1)

sified political thought. At various times, the Student Party has asserted it has nothing to gain from the bill. The University Party makes the same contention; as does the Campus party. It seems difficult to find anyone who thinks his party will benefit from the legislation. Feeling that, under my interpretation of my duties, I must consider a bill for practicality (the time element is involved here), fairness to the student body as a whole (I refer to the previously mentioned partial districting), and equity (Legislative decorum was not conducive to equitable and mature legislation.) For this latter difficulty I accept due responsibility as I was in attendance and was both confused and a contributing factor to the confusion. I also regret that the sincere work of so many legislators was wasted in this bill. We shall take renewed hope that, at the earliest date, just and equitable apportionment as well as districting can be enacted. It is both necessary and a constitutional requirement.—Tom Eller.

GREENSBORO CLUB

Tickets will go on sale today in the "Y" for the Greensboro-Carolina club spring dance. The tickets will be sold from 9 o'clock this morning until noon.

They will also be available tomorrow and Friday mornings. Final meeting of the club will be held tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in 103 Bingham hall.

Campus Calendar

7:15 a. m.—Holy Communion, Episcopal church.

3:00 p. m.—Mathematics Seminar, 320 Phillips hall

3:00 p. m.—Coalition council, Grail room.

4:30 p. m.—Lenten services, Episcopal church.

5:00 p. m.—Chi Delta Phi, Grail room.

7:00 p. m.—Pictures of CICA fashion show will be shown in Kenan.

7:30 p. m.—Chess club, Roland Parker lounge No. 3.

7:30 p. m.—Carolina Conservative club, Roland Parker lounge No. 2.

7:30 p. m.—Pi Kappa Phi, Roland Parker lounge No. 1.

7:30 p. m.—Southern Conference for Human Welfare, Grail room.

7:30 p. m.—H-23 club, Horace Williams lounge.

8:00 p. m.—ADPi alumnae meeting, ADPi house.

8:30 p. m.—"Thirty-Three by Air" WHHT and WRAL.

8:30 p. m.—"Called Back Yesterday," Playmakers theatre.

Teaching Candidates Will Meet Tonight

There will be an important meeting of all seniors who are working towards a teaching certificate this evening in Peabody 201 at 7:30 o'clock, Guy B. Phillips, head of the Education department announced yesterday.

TWO BLOCKS WEST OF CITY HALL
You'll Find A Solution To All Laundry Problems
HELPY-SELFY
AUTOMATIC LAUNDRY
Bendix Machines
W. Rosemary St.

Fraternity Work a Specialty
Charles Valentine's Cabinet Shop
FURNITURE
REPAIRED
REFINISHED
UPHOLSTERED
MADE-TO-ORDER
PHONE 9367 — PITTSBORO RD.

DOES YOUR RADIO SOUND GOOD?
—see—
D. W. ANDERSON
—at—
LLOYD ELECTRIC COMPANY
Carrboro. N. C.
—for—
Fine Radio Repairing

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

HERE IN ALL ITS SPLENDOR!
WARNER BROS. Present
ANTHONY ADVERSE
RE-RELEASED
HERVEY ALLEN
FREDRIC MARCH · OLIVIA DeHAVILLAND
CLAUDE RAINS · EDMUND GWENN · LOUIS HAYWARD · AKIM TAMIROFF
Directed by MERVYN LeROY
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

Presenting . . .
Cum Laude
SEAM-FREE NYLONS
WITH PATENTED HEEL

Here are the nylons that lend distinction to your important occasions—on campus and off. The Seal of the DANCING TWINS identifies their exclusive Gusset Heel* for ankle-hugging fit, their Gussetoe for comfort . . . their sleek, seam-free loveliness. Sold under leading brand names at smart college shops and stores.
*U. S. Pat. No. 2298429

Ridgeway's
OPTICIANS
Complete Eyeglass Service
Prompt attention to all mail orders
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
Raleigh N. C.

Quick Service
DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham

CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

WIN PRIZE. HELP US CHOOSE NEW name for Co-ed Beauty Shop. Prize—free service up to $15.00. Contest closes Friday, March 12. Address: Co-ed Beauty Shop, 312 West Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, North Carolina 1-c1841-1

FOR SALE 6B

TWO MILES FROM CHAPEL HILL on hard surface road one brick veneer house, several acres land. Good well water, electric pump. House has five rooms with hardwood floors plus bath. Large living room with fireplace. Extra large basement. House partly furnished and has coal fired hot air furnace. Write L. V. Grubb, box 511, Carrboro. (1c1860-2)

TRAILER. COMPLETELY FURNISHED $300. or will sell to next best offer. Must be sold this week. See J. A. Berry, 235 Jackson Circle, Victory Village (1-1856-1)

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. 1-ch1x2-1

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1946 PLYMOUTH TUDOR DELUXE sedan. Excellent condition, heater. $1450. A good buy! Let's talk it over. 511 Pritchard, Chapel Hill. (1-1858-1)

BLACK TUDOR MODEL A SEDAN, excellent shape. New motor, tires, and radiator. Jesse R. Langston, trailer No. 61, Pittsboro Road Trailer Court. (1-1859-1)

LATE 1946 BLUE CHRYSLER 4 DOOR sedan, perfect condition. Seat covers, radio, heater, fog-lights, back-up lights, 5 lifeguard safety tubes. Henry Golding, 9011. (1-1849-1)

1936 PONTIAC "6", 4-DOOR SEDAN. Good mechanical condition. Good tires. $200 cash. Call 8281. 41-1853-1)

WANTED TO RENT 24B

VETERAN AND WIFE DESIRES apartment around June 10. Write Fletcher Teel, Box 9, Old East or call 4021. (1-1855-1)

AT LAST!
An F. M. Adapter For Your Radio
With No Connections Necessary.
Just Plug The Set In Any Electric Outlet
And Tune In F. M. Stations On The Radio
You Now Have.
$34.95
OGBURN FURNITURE CO.
Chapel Hill

YOU'LL BE THE BEST LOOKING LADY IN THE EASTER PARADE

With One Of Our Professional Permanent Waves
COLD WAVES FROM $5.00 UP
CAROLINA BEAUTY SHOP
(ANNEX BARBER SHOP)

JOSEPHINE BAKER
The Captivating Star of the Folies Bergere, Paris
in
"PRINCESS TAM TAM"
In French—English Titles
NOW PLAYING
VILLAGE

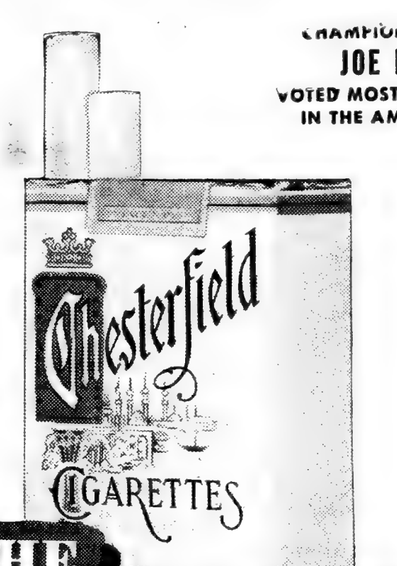
GO TRAILWAYS
FOR SPRING HOLIDAYS
9 BUSES DAILY FOR GREENSBORO, CHARLOTTE ASHEVILLE, other Western points.
9 BUSES DAILY TO RALEIGH, NORFOLK and Eastern Points.
CHAPEL HILL BUS STATION
Phone 4281

Carolina TRAILWAYS
THE ROUTE OF THE Trailmasters

LIL' ABNER — By AL

Which away? – that away – to HARRY'S

CCUN to Interview Forum Applicants



The board which has the responsibility of choosing delegates to the University of Chicago Forum on the United Nations will meet and interview all applicants at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the CCUN office in Graham Memorial. Anyone who is interested in representing the University at the Chicago conference should come before the board today.

ADPi ALUMNAE MEET

There will be a meeting of all Alpha Delta Pi alumnae at the ADPi house tonight at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to attend.

Jerry the Tailor
OVER
N. C. CAFETERIA

THE DUKE PLAYERS
Presents
"ANGEL STREET"
by
Patrick Hamilton
March 11th & 12th — Page Auditorium
8:15 p.m. — Duke University
Admission $1.00
Phone 112, Extension 484 for Reservations

CHAMPION N. Y. YANKEE'S
JOE DiMAGGIO
VOTED MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN THE AMERICAN LEAGUE

Chesterfield CIGARETTES
LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

THE BASEBALL MAN'S CIGARETTE
When you change to Chesterfield
THE FIRST THING YOU WILL NOTICE IS THEIR MILDNESS
that's because of their Right Combination of World's Best Tobaccos
ALWAYS MILDER
BETTER TASTING
COOLER SMOKING

BOSTON BRAVE'S
BOB ELLIOTT
VOTED MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE
A B C ALWAYS BUY
CHESTERFIELD
ALWAYS MILDER BETTER TASTING COOLER SMOKING
Copyright 1946, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER

Cloudy and cooler with occasional rain.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS

Prediction—A Runoff
UP Is Anti-Fraternity
Dog Innoculation Due

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, MARCH 11, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 122

Second Independent Candidate Tosses Hat Into Presidential Ring

Legislature Nominees Are Announced By SP

By Donald MacDonald

Candidates for Student Legislature, as endorsed by the Student party, were announced yesterday by SP publicity chairman Fred Thompson. The announcement nearly completes the rapidly-filling SP slate for the elections in April.

Announced as candidates for men's dormitory representatives, the following men are rising sophomores:

John Brockman, of High Point, Alexander dormitory; Hershell Keener, of Lenior, Old East; Jack Park, of Elkin, BVP trailer court; Ed Washington, of Concord, Emerson; and Wilson Yarborough, of Fayetteville, Alexander.

Future Juniors

Candidates who are future members of the junior class are Banks Talley, of Bennettesville, South Carolina, Everett; Dortch Warriner, of Lawrenceville, Virginia, Whitehead; and Herb Alexander, of Waterbury, Connecticutt, Battle.

One rising senior is listed, Al Lowenstein, of Scarsdale, New York, Aycock; and one law student, Basil Sherrill, of Gastonia, Aycock.

Nominees for the siz months term for men's dormitory positions include one rising sophomore, Bob Payne ,of Gastonia, Alexander; and two future seniors, Bob Allen, of Mountainbury, Arkansas, Ruffin; and Bob Baxter, of Columbus, Georgia, Battle.

One Year Term

One year terms for women's dormitory lists the following next-year seniors as SP candidates: Mary Anne Daniel, of Weldon, and Patsy McNutt, of Greensboro, both of Alderman dormitory; Lindsay Tate, of Charlotte, McIver dormitory; and Kate Connor, of Durham, Spencer dormitory.

A meeting of SP members has been called for 4 o'clock tomorrow in Roland Parker lounge.

Contrary to a DTH Wednesday headline, the Student party is not running the town of Sanford for Student council.

SMILING Donna Quigley shows off to advantages a swim suit that has just made a hit on Miami's beaches. (International)

WNC Club Members Plan Picnic at Home

There will be a party for all members of the Western North Carolina club and all Western North Carolina students who wish to attend Monday afternoon, March 22 at 4 o'clock at the Bent Creek picnic grounds, entertainment chairman Johnny Orr announced yesterday.

He suggested that members get together and plan their own table and bring their own refreshments.

The Asheville Citizen-Times wil carry information and any change in plans in the Sunday edition, March 21.

Due to exams the regular meeting of the club scheduled for today, will not be held. The next meeting will be on Thursday, April 1.

Physicist, Preacher Will Speak Sunday

Dr. Harold Miller, a prominent young British physicist as well as a Methodist lay preacher, will make two appearances in the Methodist church next Sunday. He will preach at the 11 o'clock worship service, and will address the stduents of the Wesley foundation at the 5:45 supper meeting.

Dr. Miller graduated with highest honors in physics from Cambridge university and took his Ph D work under the famous Lord Rutherford. He has been working in atomic energy research during the past five years, but not in connection with atomic weapons. His work is related to the application of atomic energy to treatment for cancer.

DTH NOTICES

CP MEETING

The final Campus party meeting of the quarter will be held this afternoon in Roland Parker No. 2 of Graham Memorial at 4 o'clock.

Its agenda includes consideration for Student council nominations and more legislature nominations.

UP MEETING

The University party will meet today in Horace Williams lounge at 2 o'clock. Nominations for Student Legislature and Student council will be considered.

Complete attendance is urged and representatives will please note change in time.

VETERANS REPORT

Col. F. C. Shepard, campus veterans advisor, announced that all veteran students, graduates or undergraduates, who do not intend to return to school next quarter are requested to report by room 316 South building and give notice of their intentions.

G. I. benefits are assured of being kept straight if student veterans will do this Col. Shepard advised.

CLASS TICKETS READY

Class tickets for the spring quarter should be picked up at Registration hall, Venable, before this Friday, by all students who are returning and have paid all debts outstanding with the University.

ATTENDS CONVENTION

Dean of Men Fred Weaver left the University today to attend a week-end convention of the National Association of Deans and Advisers to Men in Dallas, Texas. Dean Weaver is a member of a special panel which will study a survey of the functions of the group at the Texas meeting.

He will return to Chapel Hill Tuesday.

Red Cross Campaign Campus Solicitation Goes Into Third Day

By Sally Woodhull

The campus Red Cross drive will complete today its third day of solicitation in a campaign to raise $2,000 as part of the nation-wide Red Cross drive.

Graham Memorial director Bill Shuford, head of the student drive, has made a final appeal to everyone who has not as yet contributed to do so today. Contributions will be accepted at the campaign headquarters in Graham Memorial, he said.

Collections Direct

Shuford also stated that dormitory, fraternity, and sorority representatives making solicitations should bring their collections direct to the student union office without necessarily contacting organizational heads.

The goal of $2,000 for the campus will require, Shuford said, a small contribution from everyone. "We sincerely hope," he said, "that everyone will take part in the drive inasmuch as it is such a worthwhile cause."

Cites Jobs

Citing particular jobs that the Red Cross has undertaken during the past year, Shuford mentioned the Texas City disaster and the Maine forest fire as occasions when the Red Cross gave aid to many homeless and destitute people.

"I also wish to acknowlede the extremely cooperative spirit shown by the heads of organizations," Shuford said, naming Jack Thompson of Interfraternity council; Eimile Saleeby of Men's Interdormitory council; Ferne Hughes, Pan Hellenic council; and Bootsie MacWilliams, Woman's Interdormitory council.

"If each individual on campus can capture the enthusiasm of these organization leaders," Shuford said, "I have no doubt that the campaign will be a success."

DEGREE APPLICATIONS

Students who expect to complete the requirements for a degree at the end of the Winter quarter are reminded that they must have filed an application for a degree card with their Dean in accordance with the instructions of their particular school.

Degree candidates should check with the University Cashier, Room 01, South Building, before leaving the University since no degree can be awarded to students with outstanding fees.

BOY KILLER

BULLETIN — Winston-Salem, March 11 —(UP)— Sixteen-year-old Tommy Lee Phillips has been found guilty of second-degree murder in Winston-Salem.

He has been sentenced to 50 to 60 years in prison for the New Year's eve killing of his mother and father. The boy eloped to South Carolina with his girl firend after the killings but was arrested.. before.. he.. could.. be married.

Saleeby, Davenport To Head CP Slate For Senior Class

By John Stump

Presidential candidate Emile Saleeby and Ed Davenport for vice president have been nominated to head the campus party senior class slate, party officials announced yesterday.

Others on the ticket are Mintie Cantrell who will run for secretary and Jack Thompson who will represent the party in the race for class social chairman.

Davenport has been co-nominated by the University party and will therefore run as a doubly endorsed candidate.

Interdorm Prexy

Saleeby, the presidential nominee, is at the present time serving as president of the men's Interdormitory council. He has been president of Stacy dorm for the past two years.

During the war, he served in the Army and spent 21 months overseas. He has been vice president and acting president of the campus University club. He is a member of Delta Sigma, professional commerce fraternity

(See SALEEBY, page 4)

EMILE SALEEBY

Committee Chooses Three Delegates To Attend Intercollegiate UN Meet

Ann Wells, Bill Crisp and John Stump were chosen by an interviewing board as delegates to the three-day National Intercollegiate Assembly of the United Nations, scheduled to begin March 24 in Chicago.

Living and travel expenses to the Windy City for the trio will be paid by the Student Legislature and the Coed Senate, according to an announcement made yesterday by CCUN director Lincoln Kan. Financial assistance was promised the three delegates by the Legislature last Thursday night, and by the Coed Senate on Tuesday.

Crisp was chosen for his ability to disseminate information gained at the assembly to the campus and to the state. In view of his outstanding leadership qualities, he was recommended as the team leader of the delegation. Past qualifications of Miss Wells including being state vice-president of the Georgia IRC coupled with her enthusiasm, resulted in her selection as the coed representative. Stump was chosen as the other delegate on the basis of his qualifications as a press representative and his ability in public speaking.

Selection by the board came after it had interviewed approximately ten students to determine their knowledge, experience and desire to assist in United Nations work.

The board, appointed by Tom Eller, was composed of, Kan, Roberta Sterling, the state secretary-general for CCUN; Miles Smith, substituting for Ed Davenport, UP member of the Student Legislature; Dortch Warriner, SP member of the Student Legislature; and Barbara Cashion, speaker of the Coed Senate.

New Magazine Is On Sale In Dorms

Charles Markham, publicity director of the Young Democrats of America, has published the first interview with Junius Scales, head of the Communist party here, in Campus Time ,a new intercollegiate magazine for southeastern colleges.

Also featured in the magazine, which is now on sale in the dorms, is an article on Duke's recent collapse as a major athletic power, an interview with the chairman of the House Veteran's committee, plus humor, fashions and close-ups on campus personalities throughout the South.

Campus News

A special feature is a section including pictures and news from every campus covered.

Carolina students on the staff of Campus Times include Barron Mills, editorial staff, Howard Bailey, Al Pettiway and Sadie Pearson, business staff.

Coed Contest

Of interest to coeds is a cover girl contest sponsored by the magazine which is endeavoring to find the most beautiful, or photogenic girl in the South.

Any fraternity, sorority, club or dormitory may enter candidates direct to the Campus Time magazine, Box 327, American University, Massachussettes at Nebraska avenue, Washington, D. C or by contacting Sadie Pearson at McIver dormitory.

Poll Of Campus Veterans Planned

Opinions from veterans on everything from the Umstead act to the administration of the Atom Bomb are currently being requested by the Carolina magazine in the course of a poll being conducted by the publication.

After the results of the poll have been tabulated, they will be published as part of a Mag article tentatively titled "V-E plus 3". According to Mag Editor Fred Jacobson, it will be a study of how the veteran now views the results of his five year fight "to make the world safe for democracy."

To obtain the information requested, the magazine has had a mimeographed form prepared. It will be placed in Lenoir hall, the Y, and in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

The form will contain a list of questions requiring a simple Yes or No answer (Sample: Have you benefitted from your military service?), a place for the answers, and space in which the person filling out the form is requested to put his name.

The last named precaution has been made necessary because of the possibility that otherwise some people would answer more than once. In this connection, Jacobson asked yesterday that all veterans attempt to participate. Otherwise, he pointed out, it will be relatively easy for "some of the more active campus presure groups" to distort the results.

After the sheet has been filled out, it may be dropped into boxes which will be provided for that purpose near the blank forms or may be mailed to the Carolina magazine office.

The poll contains questions pertaining to vital foreign, domestic, local, and personal issues. The opinions of any individual participating will be kept confidential.

According to Jacobson, the magazine plans, if possible to complete the poll before Spring vacation begins.

Students Must Make Deposits On Rooms For Coming Terms

By Raney Stanford

Students desiring rooms in the University's dormitory for the coming summer and fall terms must make a separte deposit for each term with the University Cashier, J. E. Wadsworth, housing officer for the University, announced yesterday.

Current dormitory residents and those students living in Nash and Miller halls, and the quonset huts, have the privilege of reserving space for these future terms, but a deposit of $10 for summer school and one of $6 for the fall must be made at the Cashier's office on the ground floor of South building before April 1.

Point Emphasized

"A room reserved for the summer only does not entitle the occupant to that space in the fall," Wadsworth emphasized.

If these deposits are not made, housing authorities said, the residents will revert to their proper places on the room priority schedule.

Wadsworth expressed the hope that all occupants of Nash, Miller and the quonsets would get dormitory space for the summer session, even though Stacy, Everett, Alexander, Graham, Aycock, Lewis, and Whitehead dormitories will not be available.

To Be Reassigned

"Residents of these buildings who plan to attend summer school will be assigned to other rooms," he explained.

Because Alexander and Stacy are scheduled to be reserved for freshmen next fall, Wadsworth said the men now in the dormitories who are returning for that session will also have to be reassigned.

Horner, O'Rourke To Appear Here

Charles Berman, chairman of the Pi Delta Alpha honorary predental society, announced yesterday that Dr. John T. O'Rourke and Dr. Harlan H. Horner will be in Chapel Hill next week to discuss the problems of dentistry with pre-dental students.

The two men are coming here as representatives of the Council on Dental Education of the American Dental association.

"These two men probably know more about dental education than any other two men in the nation," Berman said. "It would be very beneficial for all predentals on campus to meet and talk with these men."

Horner and O'Rourke will arrive Tuesday, March 16. Berman said that a luncheon has been planned at the Carolina Inn for 11:45, and an open discussion will follow.

All pre-dental students who are interested in attending are requested to contact Berman at the Tau Epsilon Phi house, 4011 for a reservation.

KEYS MUST BE IN

Graduating residents of men's dormitories are asked to turn in their room keys to Room 02, South building, before leaving the University, Dormitory Manager Bill Smith requested yesterday.

GOES TO PARIS

Dr. Werner Friederich, member of the University's department of Germanic language, left Chapel Hill Tuesday to attend a conference in Paris, France, on comparative literature. Dr. Friederich will return to his University post April 12.

PHI DELTA KAPPA

Phi Delta Kappa, professional educational fraternity, will meet this evening at 7 o'clock in 211 Peabody.

Charlie Hodson's Platform Opposes 'Machine Politics'

By Chuck Hauser

Charlie Hodson, junior from San Antonio, Texas, has increased to four the field of presidential candidates running in the April 6 general campus elections.

Hodson, who graduated with an A.B. in political science last December and is now a special commerce student, is in the race as an independent.

CHARLIE HODSON

Opposes Machine Politics

In announcing his candidacy, Hodson declared that he opposed "undemocratic machine politics which all to often determine the outcome of an election before the voter has cast his ballot.

"An elected independent candidate," he continued, "is always voted into office on his own qualifications and not those of any political party."

Hodson has been a member of the Student Legislature, former parliamentarian of the Dialectic Senate, and member of the varsity debate squad.

Marine for Four Years

A veteran with four years of Marine corps service behind him, the candidate has also been in the Debate council and the Carolina Political union here.

"Greater cooperation between all Carolina students toward better student government is an essential part of our campus life," he stated. "The time has come to stop piddling around with our intentions. Student government has come of age."

Hodson will run against Jess Dedmond (CP-UP), Mike Rubish (SP) and Dick Manning (Ind.) when the spring balloting begins.

Winn Announces Deadline Change

The deadline for filing of nominations for the spring elections has been changed from midnight on March 25 to midnight on Saturday, March 27, according to Elections Board Chairman Al Winn.

By that time all parties must have filed their slates with Winn and all independent candidates must have submitted petitions of nominations containing their own signatures and those of 25 qualified voters.

The deadline extension was created by executive order of President Tom Eller with the approval of the chairmen of all three campus political parties.

Official notification of the change has been sent to all parties by Chairman Winn. The fact that March 25 falls on the first day of classes in the spring quarter and the subsequent confusion were cited as the reasons for the extension.

Coeds To Nominate In Gerrard Today

Nominations for Woman's Council, Women's Athletic association and Coed Senate are to be made at a mass meeting of all coeds to be held in Gerrard Hall today at 4:30. These nominations are the candidates to be elected in the spring quarter to assume their duties at the biginning of the fall term.

A slate of tentative nominations has been drawn up by the Coed Senate. However, none of these nominations will be official unless the candidates are renominated at the coed meeting today.

Civil Service Posts Open In Public Health

The U. S. Civil Service commission today announced an examination for filling Health Program Specialist positions in the Public Health service in Washington and throughout the United States.

Yearly salaries range from $3,397 to $7,102. No written test is required for this examination, but previous experience or college education will be necessary. The positions to be filled involve travel and frequent change of station.

Age limits for Health Program Specialist positions are 18 to 62 years, but may be waived for persons entitled to veteran preference.

Plans Move Ahead For Literary Mag

The organization, content, and technical make-up of the forthcoming Carolina Quarterly finally assumed definite printed form yesterday afternoon when a committee under Julia Ross submitted a completed prospectus to the magazine's temporary headquarters in Graham Memorial.

In accord with the Student Legislature bill which authorized the quarterly, the editors and business manager of the magazine during its first year of operation will be selected by a faculty committee and the student members of the Publications board.

However, in ensuing years, the two officials will be picked by the faculty committee in cooperation with the incumbent executive staff of the quarterly. The faculty committee referred to will be composed of two journalism and three English department members.

The quarterly will be supported by funds other than those appropriated by the Student Legislature, with the exception of a $2,000 underwrite given for the purpose of starting the publication.

The quarterly apparently will not specialize, because according to the prospectus "No creative work will be excluded provided it has literary merit." Provision was made for contributions from both student and outside sources.

Planned as a 64-page publication, the quarterly will sell to students for one dollar a year and to others for $1.50.

DANIELS TO SPEAK

Jonathan Daniels will be th guest speaker to the New Come Club on March 16th at a c' meeting to be held in Gra Memorial at 4:00 o'clock. topic will be "Is the South Changing?"

The New Comers Club whose members have been with the faculty no longer than three years, extends a cordial invitation to all faculty wives to attend this meeting.

Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Richard Calhoun and her committee.

Mill-Stones

When It Rains The Pedestrian Hasn't a Chance

By Barron Mills

We're still waiting on the city fathers to do something about the postoffice crossing. All apologies to Morton's Salt, but when it rains in Chapel Hill the traffic pours. Tuesday in the rain we were waiting during the noon rush to try and cross the street. There was a regular rat race between the cars which were trying to slice across the avenue, run circles, or stop and try to run in the postoffice for just a moment and the poor pedestrians who just wanted to get a bite to eat before a two-o'clock lab.

Someone in the crowd remarked that they hoped some poor soul would get run over there and hurt seriously so that the Aldermen would outlaw the u-turning and trick driving.

A very plump, but jovial man who wasn't very jovial because a motorbike almost went between his legs, said, "Hell, if a regiment was mowed down by the traffic they wouldn't do anything about it."

• • •

With this issue the Daily Tar Heel will lose two of its very competent staff members—Howard Bailey, business manager, and Donald MacDonald, reporter and feature writer. Howard began his career back in the fall of 1946 as apprentice under Bill Selig and took over the business manager position from Selig when he graduated last spring. Howard, an efficient and hard-working keeper of the accounts will be difficult to replace.

Don MacDonald is better remembered for his feature article on Robert Ruark when he paid his visit to the campus recently. Last month's issue of the Carolina Mag contained his "The Way of the Serpent", a short story about a snake-handler. More recent is his article "The Opal Ring" in "Bud", the magazine published by the creative writing class.

The DTH's loss is the Charlotte New's gain.

• • •

Below is a coed's interpretation of the Honor System. Maybe your's is the same. In her own words she says:

Today, at lunch in Lenior hall, I was introduced to a "Carolina Gentleman." In our conversation, we began discussing life here and soon he mentioned that he considered the Honor System a farce. He did not stop, but went on to say that he was not acquainted with anyone who didn't cheat. He said that he felt sorry for one boy during exams last quarter because he copied straight from his note book and only made 84. The boy asked me, "What kind of sheltered life have you been leading?" When told that I didn't consider my life a sheltered one, he told me, "To get on the ball and make Phi Bete grades. We have the honor—let them have the system."

I don't know who this boy thinks "them" is, but everyone here at Carolina is a part of the "them" who "have the system". Unless everyone does a part, the system will be a farce. If you fail to turn someone in who is cheating, you are cheating the Honor System.

I think a gold Phi Bete key would hang much heavier on me than an honorable low grade in a subject.

Several years ago, Carolina had the reputation of having one of the most stainless records in the nation. Let us try to regain this coveted title.

"Ya never can tell under artificial light. Wait'll ya see her in th' daytime."

Political Spotlight

UP Is Anti-Fraternity

By Charlie Long

Wednesday's Tar Heel carried the story of Tom Eller's veto of the redistricting bill and beside it a statement by the Chairman of the University Party. Mr. William's statement set forth the outlook of the University party on redistricting.

That is, the outlook that the UP wants the campus to have. The real truth of the matter runs a far different coures. It is the course that is usually followed by the University party from admitted unprincipaled actions to the low level of trying to pervert the fraternity spirit to hold bloc votes.

The role Mr. Dedmond played in redistricting was throughly covered by Lindsay Tate in Wednesday's Tar Heel. He was the complete and willing dupe of his party in concocting the entire corrupt deal from the time it went into his committee until he voted it down on the floor of the legislature.

The real reason why the UP doesn't want redistricting was brought out in committee when one good UP boy pointed out that the best men on campus are in fraternities and therefore fraternities should have more representatives and if you put through a fair, honest, and equitable redistricting you would keep the best men out of the legislature.

The result of such sound reasoning led Mr. Dedmond to throw out the original bill cutting the the town up into nine districts and writing a compromise bill with five districts which Mr. Dedmond labeled with Mr. Mackie's name. The only compromise in that bill must have been with Mr. Dedmond's principles.

Lindsay Tate was wrong on one count. Mr. Dedmond didn't lack the courage of his convictions on that score. He merely folowed the orders of his UP bosses which he dared not buck. By such noble action Mr. Dedmond saved himself from being branded anti-fraternity and kept himself pure in the sight of the University Party.

The campus at large should thank Mr. Eller who followed the pure principle of right and wrong and vetoed the entire mess. Round three was won by the University party.

Readers please note that the issue of being anti-fraternity keeps cropping up on the campus. Just what constitutes an act of being anti-fraternity? First evidence shows that when a person stands up on the campus and attacks any of the pet babies of the UP he automatically becomes anti-fraternity. The reality of the isue is that the fraternity spirit, basically a fine thing is perverted and warped by the UP power politics boys to enable them to control a bloc fraternity vote on any issue by the mere statement that the issue is anti-fraternity. Regardless of the merits of many issues that have come up they have been branded anti-frat and killed.

Like a vulture, the UP has played this issue up until they are actually building up anti-fraternity spirit on the campus. In the final analysis, fraternities will suffer for the personal ego and power greed of a very small faction in their midst. To what degree the UP can go in scaring fraternity men was clearly brought out in the fall election when the Phi Gams, admitted in a large number, that their own brother, Bill Mackie, was the better man for the Student Council but they couldn't vote for him because the boys had sent word down that Mackie had anti-fraternity tendencies.

The UP isn't even content with that type of mud.

During the last election they sent word around to the houses that it was imperative that all pledges vote and vote right. No mention of qualifications was made in their memorandum. The point was that pledges were to vote and vote the straight University Party ticket.

This entire situation leaves the fraternities on the campus in the position of being a social group represented on every non-social issue that comes up by a purely political group. The results can only be disasterous for the Greeks. The issue is of grave importance. We would advise that it be viewed in that light for a little while for the best interest of all concerned.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $6.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: John Stump NIGHT SPORTS: Larry Fox

Carousel

Prediction: Runoff For Presidency

By R. Foo Giduz

A column on things politic:

With twenty whole mud-slinging days left before election day, the honorless politicoes of the campus have already started trying to smear the unimpeachable integrity of Independent Art (the people's man) Melton, the next DTH editor, Joyner Tripley permitting. . .So yesterday comes to the office a missive from a slanderer named Huddleston, which could not be printed today due to lack of space. . .Mr. H. said he doubted DTH would have the guts to print it!

—They haven't got the space, but WE do, Huddie, old boy, and herewith gives a choice bit of your tripe: ". . .If Melton—that acknowledged fly-speck on the otherwise shining escutcheon of Carolina journalism, should ever be elected, God help the readers . . . It is not my purpose to malign anyone, but. . . if he was elected. . .we would be confronted by cross-word puzzles, jokes, and inane editorials on dances . . ."

—There you have it, dear constituents!. . .And don't ever say Melton hasn't got guts—er, intestinal fortitude!. . .When a man stoops that low to assail our man Mellow Melton then Melton must be good!. . .(Incidentally, Melton does propose increased crossword puzzles, joxe, etc!)

Yep, those DTH headline writers are rilly a crew. . .Gives a 3 col. tag yesterday to the following effect: "Wicker, Thompson, West, Sanford Seek Council Posts. . ." There being no "Sanford" mentioned in the story, though Jack Wicker is from Sanford, the only conclusion we uninitiated readers can draw is mebbe that "Wicker Thompson from West Sanford is running. . ." Or maybe—owell, we give up!

The Club-Formers union's No. 1 asset, Martha Aiken, (see Write Away, yesterday), sez she isn't interested in verbally defending any of her inane charges.—She "just wanted to have her say!" Muse: If it was worth printing she shouldn't be afraid to defend it!. . .

As per prediction of early Jan., Manning and Hodson have now entered the prexy race. . .Soooo, makes time for new crystal-balling. . .CC sees that with hard work Hodson may garner enough votes to force Dedmond and Rubish into a runoff for the presidency. . .Without Hodson running it would be a clean sweep for JD on the first ballot . . .And Manning should at least carry the Zeta Psi vote!—Though we never were such sharp shots on soothsaying, remember, the Ides of March are now upon us . . .What sall bringeth April, ye campus Bruti politici?

Play Clicks But Acting Not Up to Par

By Bob Sain

Last night's production of the Carolina Playmakers of Gene McLain's three-act play, "Call Back Yesterday" is ample proof that on at least one creative level at the University a student is doing some interesting work.

"Call Back Yesterday," McLain's first play to reach the stage, was, as could be expected, a little heavy on manner, rather light on matter. Nonetheless, it succeeded in saying what it meant to say.

Acting was not up to the level of McLain's writing. Effective work was done, however, by Sidney Shertzer, Porter Van Zandt and Mac Shaw. Eleanor Ringer, whose role, I admit, was somehting less than desirable, was a dissappointment after her brilliant work in G. B. Shaw's "Saint Joan," produced some months ago by the Playmakers.

James Riley's imaginative sets were a welcome change from the usual harshness—although his use of sliding furniture was more than a little hampered by practically primitive machinery.

The show continues through Saturday night.

Write Away

Hodgson Promises To Nullity A Vote

Editor:

In last Tuesday's DTH, I was somewhat amused to find that Miss Lindsay Tate, in a letter to the editor, has labeled Jess Dedmond, the UP-CP candidate for the presidency of the student body as lacking in "integrity, sincerity, the courage of his convictions, consistency, and leadership." As a matter of fact, Miss Tate accuses Dedmond of just about everything except B. O. and membership in the Communist Party, which is not particularly surprising when one considers that she is an SP candidate for the student legislature and that her political thinking is largely influenced by her membership in that party.

Speaking from personal experience, I have become fully convinced that Jess Dedmond has—and in abundance—those very qualities in which Miss Tate claims him to be lacking. For one thing, he went on record for a combined magazine during the recent magazine referendum, an act which theoretically, would alienate a considerable number of publications people toward his candidacy, while, if he had remained silent on this issue (as other office-seekers did), he would have risked offending no one.

Indeed, TARNATION means a good deal to me, personally, yet I could not help admiring Dedmond's extremely cogent and well-reasoned arguments on the matter, which to me, at least, bespoke the best kind of leadership. I refer to the intelligent, honest, and forceful variety at present all too lacking on this campus. Should Miss Tate cast her vote against Dedmond during the coming election, which she has every right to do, I can promise to nullify it, at least, with a vote of my own for Dedmond.

Tookie Hodgson

Visionary?

Editor:

We are hearing a lot about Henry Wallace on our campus today. One group of students think that he is a wonderful man. They even think he should be president. In fact, they say that anyone who doesn't agree that Mr. Wallace should be president is a reactionary or a dupe of Wall Street and the militarists.

But maybe there is another reason. A lot of students will be interested in what Marquis Childs had to say about Mr. Wallace in a recent column. He said:

"First, last and always, Wallace is a visionary. As a visionary he can promise the moon. He can promise a paradise on earth, as he does every time he speaks. . . "Wallace. . .is for the small business man and against monopoly. Of course, he is. He is also against sin and the common cold. He is for everything that is good and against everything that is bad. And because he will never be called to account for his promises, he can go right on offering the moon—your kind of moon, my kind of moon, the moon of the common man, every kind of pie in the sky."

Tom Shetley

Buddy

Editor:

Since I know nothing about literary criticism and unfortunately missed Vincent Cassidy's poetry reading I was interested in Barron Mill's remarks about it in today's Tar Heel. It seems to me that Mr. Mills, whether he realizes it or not, is laying the groundwork for a revolution in the field of the criticism of art—a revolution designed to bring security and light to those of us who are ignorant in that field. No longer will we have to worry about the cryptic significance of surrealist paintings or abstract poetry. No longer will we have to face a barrage of conflicting opinions concerning "what e e cummings really means!" We simply have to know who was there.

This new criteria posed by Mr. Mills is fraught with significance. Since Vincent Cassidy's poetry was for Wallaceites and therefore frowned on by Mr. Mills, and since I am not a Wallaceite, I too can have an opinion when the subject of his poetry comes up at the next party. "It's simply not for me," I can say. "It's no good." And the same goes for the next art exhibit or piano recital. Simply by finding out who was in attendance I can form my own comfortable opinion.

So, on behalf of all of us, like me, who have heretofore been hampered by our ignorance, I think I can say "We salute you, Mr. Mills. We feel you are one of us."

Rachelle Marshall

Again!

Editor:

For some unknown reason, it is the policy of college editors to leap before they look. Such was the case of Editor Mills when he wrote his comment on the Cassidy poetry program.

Those persons appearing on the program, with the exception of Simeon Holloway (who was recommended by his college at the "last minute."), were Cassidy's friends and neighbors. As such, they were giving Cassidy a friendly hand; political affiliations had nothing to do with their presence on the program.

In reference to the editor's statement that some of the poetry was evidently written "for a Wallace rally," it might be pointed out to the incautious editor that the poetry was written prior to Mr. Wallace's announcement of his candidacy. A retraction of the statement is highly recommended.

The editor, if he so chooose, may check my political affiliations. He will find that I am a Democrat, but not a Wallace Democrat. This letter is being written so that the political prejudices of the editor will not result in the misrepresentation of Cassidy's poetry.

Paul Rothman

Consideration

Editor:

It has recently come to our attention that incoming freshmen of next fall are to be housed in Stacy Dormitory as well as Alexander Dormitory. We would like to know why the next newest dorm must also go to the freshmen. Do upperclassmen no longer get any consideration? It appears as if boys should have been weaned by the time they reach eighteen. Is there to be a housemother in each of these dorms to see if the boys brush their teeth, wash behind their ears, and go to bed on time?

Claude Smith

Red

Editor:

As has been pointed out to us so forcefully by Leon R. Morse and J. Richard Owen, the Red Cross is (1) a non-profit organization and (2) is the RED Cross.

Any organization with these two characteristics is at one subversive and an agent of Mosc Therefore, while it is fitting t Communists contribute to branch of the Comintern Democratic or Republican talist who contributes is staging the principles of A Smith, the American way of and the Constitution of the U ted States.

Rylan Weisner
Robert Neill

Marshall Explains Quarterly Idea

Editor:

One of the first things that a professional newspaper man learns is to ask questions. He also learns to investigate before printing "facts."

Perhaps, although not in a vitriolic way, other students are bothered by the questions raised in Bob Sain's attack on the Carolina Quarterly.

In answer to this attack I should like to say that there was some organization before the recent bill was enacted by the legislature; and a tentative budget was submitted to the finance committee when it was considering the bill to underwrite the magazine.

The DTH columnist suggests that the Quarterly have a faculty advisor, although he says, "Will they? Probably no."

The bill passed by the legislature provided for a five man faculty advisory committee; this group will be paramount in selecting the editor. The magazine's prospectus, to be issued in a few days, establishes a permanent advisory committee.

At the organizational meeting is was decided that a minimum of fifty per cent of the Carolina Quarterly should be devoted to student contributions; however, outside material will also be accepted. This remains a basic part of the Quarterly's policy.

It is doubtful whether a faculty member would have the time to edit the magazine; perhaps the columnist was also correct in saying that we have nobody here capable of editing our new magazine. The proof will come after it has been tried, and since the Quarterly is to be primarily for the students, it should be produced by the students.

It is difficult to establish a magazine. Certainly the columnist must agree that it cannot be created in two weeks; however, a good start has been made. A prospectus has been drawn up, costs have been investigated, a tentative format has been decided upon, an organization chart has been developed, and committ are working on other phase do, however, need a little An open meeting will be at the beginning of next at which time the executive mittee will give a report. In meantime we shall remain mistic, and we shall continue try to create the best maga that we possibly can.

Jonathan Marshall

(Ed's note: Sain did not p tend to print facts, only op —which he stands by.)

BOST IS BEST

Apologies are due Iris Bost, Student party candidate for woman member of Student council, for the error in yesterday's newspaper. Each time Miss Bost has been mentioned in SP stories, her name always comes out "Best." Apologies are in order, but with tongues in cheeks. "Bost is Best" sounds like a pretty good campaign slogan from here.

Chapel Hill Bird Club Opens Exhibit Today

The Chapel Hill Bird club hibition of original paintings engravings of birds of N Carolina will open Sunday Person hall. About 20 paintin by Menaboni, well-known A lanta painter of birds, have b obtained from the National Audubon society for the show, and about a dozen Audobon engravings have been obtained from private sources in Chapel Hill by Dr. David Frey of the Bird club.

These engravings from the Audbon elephant folios were hand-colored by Havell, Brit artist, who worked on the 4 plates for twelve years, 1826 1838. Other bird painters, English and German, will also be exhibited. Among these is Gou who is famous for his paintin of humming birds, catching the irridescence of their rapid move ment in space.

The Bird club's exhibition will run through March 28.

MUDVILLE MUTTERINGS

Dog Innoculation Is Due Soon

By Dan Sapp

At the Village Council meeting Monday night the main business was devoted to the subject of dog registration and innoculation. According to council secretary Haywood Wyatt. The council decided that a survey should be made in the village to determine the number of dogs needing innoculation. At a date to be announced after spring holidays, dog owners will register their dogs and a vetinerean will come out to give the shots.

With the ever increasing number of pets in the village this sounds like a very intelligent plan. Instead of waiting until somebody gets bitten and has to take rabies shots, the dogs will get shots. It's good to see the council going into action again.

Another topic up for discussion was the traffic problem, our pet project. There is definitely a need for one way traffic on certain streets in the village. The council has been plugging away at this one for some time but there seems to be a bottle neck somewhere.

This is open season for grandparents, bless'em. Every day or so a new set arrives. Let us state here and now that all theories about grandparents being bad for children are wrong.

They arrive heavily laden with food, clothing and various necessities, besides a yen to take care of junior. So they spoil him a little, so what, they give his mother a ten day break which [illegible] us. There isn't room here to list all the visiting grandmothers in the village but anyway, welcome to you all and come back again

ART EXHIBITION

"Work in Progress," an ex tion of twenty-seven paint drawings, and sculptures by versity Art students is open public view in the small at Person Hall until Ma In the group are portraits, s trual abstracts, designs that could be applied to textile two decorative screens.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Fundamental
6—Twilled fabric
12—Sphere of action
13—Girl's name
14—Bride of Redcross Knight
15—County in England
16—Pope's home
18—Sawfish
20—Place
21—To peel
23—Burned up
25—Hazy
26—Painted
27—Large spoon
29—Belief
33—To please
37—High note
38—To lessen
41—Among
42—Wings
43—To abuse (hyphenated)
45—City in Sicily
47—Hemp
50—Flightless bird
51—Lair
52—Roman public works official
53—Sister (coll.)
54—To put on
55—To place again

DOWN

1—Corrupt
2—Land measure
3—Cut off
4—Positive pro
5—Terra firma
6—To worship
7—Escaped
8—Feed
9—Gold coin
10—Growing out
11—Grew sma
17—Turkish dessert
19—To hin
21—Charm
22—Girl's name
24—To dea. out
26—Dry
28—Household gods
30—One who [illegible] reproduction
31—Jewish high priest
32—Lincoln's wife
34—Observed
35—Land in water
36—Delaware [illegible]
38—Tilled words
39—Fragrant resin
40—Event
41—Away
44—Exporter
46—Girl's name
48—Beverage
49—To [illegible]

Scholastic Cage Tourney Opens Today

Class A, B Titles To Be Determined In Woollen Affair

By Dick Jenrette

A full program of eight games will be run off in Woollen gym today as the first annual tournament to determine the State Class A and B high school champions gets under way.

Tournament Manager Marvin Allen announced that there would be no seeded or favored teams in the event. None of the 16 scholastic outfits that are entered met each other during the regular season and there were few mutual opponents faced by which a comparison in the strength of the teams could be made. All the opening round game, however, put a team from the eastern part of the State against a western representative.

First to Arrive

Members of the Laurinburg high school quint were the first to arrive in Chapel Hill. Each team is limited to 10 players, accompanied by their coach and manager. Sleeping accomodations have been prepared in the Kenan stadium field house and the barracks here to accommodate the squads.

Tournament play will begin this morning at 9 o'clock when Newport meets Stanley in the Class B quarter-finals. At 10:30 Tabor City's Red Devils battle Hendersonville in Class A competition to complete the morning activities in Woollen.

Afternoon tilts today show Elizabethtown, beaten only once this season, facing Jonesville at 1 o'clock. At 2:30 Kinston's highly-regarded Red Devils take on Sylva's Golden Hurricanes. Cullowhee and Bethel, a pair of Class B clubs will meet at 4 o'clock, with Bethel being a slight favorite by virtue of its record of having lost but one game this year.

Evening Program

The evening program shows a powerful Hanes High quint from Wintson-Salem playing Laurinburg at 6:30 in another Class A quarter-final. Lowe's Grove, opponent was determined last night in Winston-Salem when Richfield and Scotts played for the district title. The eighth game of the day has Statesville against neighboring Hillsboro at 9:30.

Seating space for a crowd of 4,500 has been provided for the crowd. Tourney Manager Allen stated that he had mailed a number of tickets to each of the competing schools, but there are plenty of ducats still available. The price of a season ticket is $3.00 while admission to each of the quarter-final and semi-final programs is 75 cents. The two championship games on Saturday night will cost $1.00. Tickets will start on sale at the ticket window in Woollen gym this morning at 8:30.

Winners Get Trophies

Two large trophies which will go to the championship teams are on exhibition in the gym. Each trophy will be held by the winning team in each division for one year until tourney time next season. In addition, gold basketballs will be presented to the players, manager, and coach of each team, and the runner-up will receive silver basketballs.

Tourney Sidelights

Elizabethtown's Yellow Jackets will field the tallest team in the tourney. Coach Roy Phillips' club averages about 6-3. Sammy Cole, Elizabethtown, is the tallest player who will participate in the event. He stands 6-5 and ranks (See HIGH SCHOOL, page 4)

Generals Cop SC Mat Meet

Washington and Lee's powerful wrestling squad copped five individual titles in the Southern conference wrestling tourney at Lexington, Va., early this week to capture the conference crown with a 41-point advantage.

N. C. State and VMI were tied for second spot honors with 17 points each, while Maryland took the fourth position with 13 points.

Only one of Carolina's three entries reached the finals. Oscar Gupton lost out by a referee's decision in the final round of the 165-pound division runoff to W and L's Ken Lindell.

Phil Kemp, who wrestled in the 155-pound consolation finals, decisioned Davidson's John Evans, 8-7.

Ray Swigart, Tar Heel 175-pound entry, didn't pass the first round, being pinned in his initial bout.

Eight Local Matmen Entered In AAU Meet

Eight Carolina men, all familiar to local mat fans, have entered the Carolinas AAU wrestling tourney, to be held in Boone March 12 and 13.

Entered under the name of the "Grunt and Groan Grapplers," the locals, who hope to cop the team trophy, are directed by Bill Crutchfield.

Composed of several past Southern conference champions and members of this year's mat squad, the Grunt and Groaners boast a line-up consisting of Hobie McKeever and Doug Thompson at 128 pounds; T. A. Hearn, 136; Phil Kemp, 145; Irv Zirpel, 155; Oscar Gupton, 165; Frank Mordecai, 175; and heavyweight Ray Swigart.

The squad is expected to leave Woollen gym today at 2 o'clock.

Tennis Turnout Totals 20

A turnout of 20 netters responded to the sunny weather and Coach John Kenfield's call for candidates yesterday afternoon as the official practice for the 1948 season got under way.

Four veterans of last year's campaign were among those present. The quartet, Vic Seixas, Clark Taylor, Ray Morris, and Charlie Rice, will form the nucleus of the current team and will probably play in that order.

Two other 1947 squad members, Bert Ingram and Les Dameron, were also present yesterday. Not on hand but expected to compete for the remaining singles assignments are three other lettermen, Heath Alexander, Sam Daniels, and Don Skakle.

Although the schedule is still not complete, it is definite that the opponents will include such tennis powers as William and Mary, Yale, Cornell, Kalamazoo, Harvard, Michigan, Army, and Navy. The Southern conference tournament will take place on the local courts May 13-15.

Manager of this year's team will be Bill McGuire, an assistant last season.

Doctors' Orders Bench Dickey For Initial Tourney Contest

Raleigh, March 10 —(UP)—The doctors have taken a second look at high-scoring Dick Dickey of N. C. State and have ruled that he cannot play in State's opening game in the National Invitational Basketball tournament.

But there is a secondary ray of hope. The medical men say that if the red-haired star keeps improving, he may recover from mumps in time to play next Monday night.

There is a second "if" involved, of course. That is, if State wins its Saturday night game against DePauls without Dickey.

State plans two practice sessions before it leaves for New York tomorrow night.

Coach Everett Case has switched Warren Cartier into Dickey's place as a first-string forward. Cartier was the hotshot of the championship of the Southern conference tournament, when he led State to victory over Carolina with 20 points.

To bring his traveling squad up to strength, Case has decided to take along substitute center Chester Gurski.

Case says he plans to start Cartier and Jack McComas as forwards against DePaul. Paul Horvath will play center, and the guards will be Ed Bartels and Leo Katkaveck. All except Cartier have been regular starters this season, and Cartier has seen a lot of action.

The Wolfpack will go to New York by train—in a special car.

Not much has been heard of the new member of the varsity squad, Gurski. He scored 17 points per game in 12 contests this year on the jayvee squad.

Case says State is not optimistic—but not pessimistic, either.

He says it will take great basketball to win at New York. He adds that the Wolfpack did not play great basketball in the conference tournament—but he thinks the boys are ready.

VIOLETS FAVORED

New York, March 10 —(UP)—The men who make the odds rate New York University the favorite in the National Invitational Basketball tournament, which gets underway tomorrow night. The Violets top the field at 2-to-1.

Earlier, St. Louis had been co-favorite with NYU at 3-to-1, but now the Billikens are ranked in the third slot with North Carolina State at 5-to-1.

Western Kentucky and DePaul both are listed as second choices at 9-to-2. Bowling Green is 7-to-1. Texas rates at 12-to-1, and La Salle of Philadelphia is the outsider at 15-to-1 to take the tourney.

Baseball Heads Make Two Cuts in Roster

The three-man board of Hearn, Rabb, and House have finally started to pare down the large turnout of over 100 baseball candidates with two squad cuts already having taken place this week.

A list of those players still considered possible timber for this year's varsity and jayvee squads will be posted at noon today on the basket-room bulletin board and also on the door of the baseball supply room. Some 20 men were sliced from the list after yesterday's drill.

A varsity squad will be chosen sometime before the weekend and the select group will hold daily workouts during the one-week vacation.

Mural Directors Discuss Carnival

The first of many preliminary meetings to arrange the programming, scheduling, and timing of the Intramural department's Sports carnival slated for April 1 was held Tuesday night in Woollen gym.

Also attending the meeting was Monogram president Bill Pritchard. The Club is joining with the mural department on sponsoring the event.

It was announced yesterday that Otto Jaretz, Olympic swimming star, will participate in the festival by giving a swimming exhibition. Among others Jaretz holds the American long course record for 110-yards. He excells in the shorter distances.

Several people have also been given assignments for the carnival. Betty Doss of the Women's physical education department will direct the coeds square dancing exhibition, Coach Dick Jamerson, Sam McCauley and Mike Morrow will be in charge of the swimming, Frank Murray will take care of badminton, Dave Burney basketball, and Coach Mike Ronman will direct the boxing.

Winners of boxing titles in the two divisions have been warned to keep in shape for the campus finals to be completed as part of the tournament.

Dolphins Complete Best Season Of Successful 10-year History

By Bill Kellam

With men who know Southern swimming best, for the past several years it's been Carolina, seven to one. Thus goes the approximate yearly ration of Tar Heel dual meet victories to defeats that Coach Dick Jamerson's Blue Dolphins have compiled during the 10 seasons since intercollegiate swimming was introduced at the local institution.

Never content to rest on their laurel, the Dolphins, since a mediocre start in 1939, have steadily improved from year to year and this season reached their all-time peak by overwhelming 10 dual meet foes and then turning the Southern conference championship into a rout.

Ten-Year Period

In ten years of dual and triangular meet competition against, for the most part, Southern opponents, the Dolphins have won 62 dual meets, lost nine, and ended in the middle in a pair of three-team affairs. The local mermen have stroked out enviable records against their regular foes and hold big advantages in the won-and-lost column over all their opponents except Navy and Florida. The Gator series stands at a one-all standoff while the locals hold a 4-3 edge in victories over the Middies.

This past season's unblemished record marked the fourth year that the Tar Heels have gone through an undefeated season. The Blue and White mermen were unbeaten in 1942, 1944, and 1945, and were also all-victorious in dual meet competition in 1946. In the latter year, however, the locals placed second in triangular meets with Navy and Cornell, and Ohio State and Army.

The winner of the plaque for the outstanding freshman on this year's tank team, JIM THOMAS, above, is picked as one of the brightest stars in Carolina's swimming future.

Coach Jamerson was almost lyrical in his praise of his charges' performance during the past season and commented earlier this week "This is the best college team that has ever been in the South and is probably one of the five or six best in the country in dual meet competition."

The Tar Meel mentor also had words of praise for his able aide, Ralph Casey. "Much of the success of this team is due to the fine work of Ralph, whose effort with the sprinters, backstrokers, and divers is reflected in their performances during the season," was Jamerson's outlook. Since men in these three divisions broke all kinds of records during the past year, this is quite a compliment.

All-Americans

Carolina mermen have not confined their aquatic accomplishments solely to the South, either. They have placed five men in individual events on the All-American college swimming team and also placed two medley relay trios and one freestyle relay quartet on the national all-star team.

In 1942, the locals tied for 12th place in the NCAA championships, while in 1946 they moved up to fifth. Carolina yearling swimmers hold five national collegiate long course records.

Ping Pong Tonight

Graham Memorial will stage its final one-night table tennis tournament of the quarter tonight at 7:30 in the GM game room.

Dave Boak will be out to defend the championship he won last week by defeating Tommy Scheinman, but Ray Morris, who didn't compete that night, will enter the tourney as the probable favorite. Morris defeated Boak in the finals two weeks ago.

A book of theatre tickets will be awarded to the winner.

THE DUKE PLAYERS
Presents
"ANGEL STREET"
by
Patrick Hamilton
March 11th & 12th
8:15 p.m.
Page Auditorium
Duke University
Admission $1.00
Phone 112, Extension 484 for Reservations

CHAPEL HILL CLEANERS
404 Franklin St.
Phone F-2466
BETTER CLEANING & PRESSING

THE DETROIT SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Dr. Karl Druger, Conductor
Henrietta Schumann, Pianist
Page Auditorium, Duke University, Durham
Thursday, March 18 at 8:15 P.M.
Tickets—$2.50, $3.00, and $3.50 (incl. tax).
Miss Schumann will play the Rachmanioff Concerto No. 2
For reservations; phone Durham 112 ext. 270; or, write
J. Foster Barnes, Duke University, Durham, N. C.

Capital Entertainment Co.
PRESENTS
The Poet of the Piano
CARMEN CAVALLARO

AND HIS ORCHESTRA
IN PERSON
Concert 8:30—9:30
Dance 9:30—12:30
Thrilling performance in only N. C. appearance! !
Both for only $2.00 Advance Sale tax incl. Per Person
Raleigh
Memorial Auditorium
Wed., March 17
Get Tickets from:
Jack Poole
CHI PSI HOUSE

What a Record! . . . It's ART MOONEY'S hot arrangement of
"I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover"
(An MGM release)

"Four leaf clover" has turned into a real four leaf clover for ork-pilot, Art Mooney. His record is keeping jukes in clover.
An experienced hand in the music biz—Art follows that famous experience rule in the choice of a cigarette, too. "I've smoked many different brands and compared," says Art, "and Camels suit me best."
Try Camels! Discover for yourself why, with smokers who have tried and compared, Camels are the "choice of experience"!
R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company
Winston-Salem, North Carolina
And here's another great record—
More people are smoking CAMELS than ever before!
CAMEL is my cigarette!
Art Mooney
CAMEL
TURKISH & DOMESTIC BLEND CIGARETTES
CHOICE QUALITY

Two things every college man should know!

1. This is a poet. Is naturally granted poetic license. But not in passing exams, where it would help. Would have fared better in 18th century. Today horrible fate awaits as radio jingle writer.

2. These are "Manhattan" pajamas. Many people wax poetic over them. They're tailored for real bedtime comfort . . . plenty of arm and leg room to eliminate binding and creeping. See the exclusive "Manhattan" patterns today.

CAMPUS FAVORITE—
Manhattan
THE MANHATTAN SHIRT COMPANY
Copr. 1948, The Manhattan Shirt Co.

-High School-

as the top scorer on his team.

Kinston's Bobby Hodges, a rangy youth who stands at 6-4 1-2, will bring the top scoring record into the tourney. Bobby has connected for 253 points this season and will be out to crack the 300-mark if his team can advance to the finals here.

Officials are Frank Murray, Gibsonville; Lew Hayworth, High Point; and Jim and Joe Mills, of Apex.

GREENSBORO DANCE BIDS

Tickets for the Greensboro Carolina vacation dance will continue on sale in the Y today and tomorrow from 9 to 12. The dance is to be held at the Plantation supper club in Greensboro March 19. Price of the tickets is $2.

Dr. William Kohn

OPTOMETRIST

Phone 8668

Over Carolina Coffee Shop

Office hours
9:00-1:00 Sat.
9:00-5:00 Tues. & Thurs.

VILLAGE

TODAY
Errol Flynn
Eleanor Parker
IN
"ESCAPE ME NEVER"

University Florist

"For the Best in Flowers"

Pick Theatre Bldg.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

Telephone 6816

Quick Service

DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham

A STREETCAR NAMED DESIRE
Tennessee Williams
NEW WILDFLOWER GUIDE

Ab's Intimate Bookshop

Campus Calendar

4:00 p. m.—Campus Party, Roland Parker No. 2.

5:00 p. m.—Women's Residence board. Roland Parker No. 1.

5:00 p. m.—World Federalists, Grail room.

5:15 p. m.—Lenten services, Episcopal church.

7:00 p. m.—Freshman Friendship council, Y. M. C. A.

7:30 p. m.—Student Republican club, Roland Parker No. 1.

8:00 p. m.—Philosophy club, Roland Parker lounge No. 3.

8:00 p. m.—Catholic round-table, Grail room.

8:30 p. m.—"North Carolina Viewpoint," WHHT.

8:30 p. m.—"Called Back Yesterday," Playmakers theatre.

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

TWO MILES FROM CHAPEL HILL on hard surface road one brick veneer house, several acres land. Good well water, electric pump. House has five rooms with hardwood floors plus bath. Large living room with fireplace. Extra large basement. House partly furnished and has coal fired hot air furnace. Write L. V. Grubb, box 511, Carrboro. (1c1860-2)

TRAILER, COMPLETELY FURNISHED $300. or will sell to next best offer. Must be sold this week See J. A. Berry, 235 Jackson Circle, Victory Village. (1-1856-1)

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. 1-ch1x2-1

MUST MOVE! MUST SELL! ONE Duotherm, 4-5 room circulator, complete with fan, pipe, two 55 gallon drums, fittings and about 25 feet of tubing: $125.00. One wood-coal Franklin heater; $10.00. One icebox: $5.00. Albert N. Saunders, 4.2 miles out on Pittsboro Road or 212½ Saunders, 9-10 daily 1-1861-2

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1946 PLYMOUTH TUDOR DELUXE sedan. Excellent condition, heater. $1450. A good buy! Let's talk it over. 511 Pritchard, Chapel Hill. (1-1858-1)

BLACK TUDOR MODEL A SEDAN, excellent shape. New motor, tires, and radiator. Jesse R. Langston, trailer No. 61, Pittsboro Road Trailer Court. (1-1859-1)

LATE 1946 BLUE CHRYSLER 4 DOOR sedan, perfect condition. Seat covers, radio, heater, fog-lights, back-up lights, 5 lifeguard safety tubes. Henry Golding, 9011. (1-1849-1)

1942 FORD 5-PASSENGER COUPE. Extra clean. Good condition. Reasonable price. Charles Stamey, 311 Grimes Dorm. Telephone 5091. (1-1848-1)

1938 DODGE 4-DOOR SEDAN. VERY good condition. Priced reasonably. 213 W. Franklin St., Apt. 3. (1-1862-1)

LOST 12

RHINESTONE NECKLACE AROUND Woollen Gym Saturday night. Finder please call Marilyn Strohkorb at 3071. (1-1863-1)

RIDERS WANTED 18A

LEAVING FOR NEW YORK SATURday morning, March 20th. Those interested please call Jerry Marder at 4011. (1-1864-1)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 122 West Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGBURN Furniture Co., Phone 5841. (ch 1x1)

WANTED TO RENT 24B

VETERAN AND WIFE DESIRES apartment around June 10. Write Fletcher Teel, Box 9, Old East or call 4021. (1-1855-1)

PRESCRIPTIONS

Filled Promptly

ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY
—at—
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

-Saleeby-

(Continued from page 1)

and a native of Wilmington.

A veteran student leader, Saleeby has served on numerous University committees. At present, he is a member of the Orientation committee. The candidate is a former legislator and presently a member of the Student Welfare board and the UVA of governors.

Legislator Davenport

Davenport is a rising senior from Winterville, S. C. He is a first term member of the Student Legislature and serves on the Elections committee of that body.

A transfer from Wake Forest, he participated in debating while at the Baptist school. During the war, he served in the Navy.

Since coming to Carolina, he has become chairman of the Kappa Alpha rushing committee. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha Order.

Ward-Belmont Coed

Miss Cantrell, the nominee for the class secretary's job entered Carolina last fall. She completed her junior college work at Ward-Belmont junior college for Women in Nashville, Tennessee.

A rising senior from Etowah, Tennessee, she was a member of the Student council and dormitory secretary-treasurer at Ward-Belmont. Since coming to Carolina, she has become a member of the Philanthropic assembly.

IFC Prexy

Thompson, the candidate for class social chairman, is in the Student Legislature where he is an active member of the Elections committee. He has also been nominated by the University party for this position.

A veteran, the doubly endorsed candidate is president of the Interfraternity council. A member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, he serves as president of that group.

The campus party has not yet nominated a candidate for senior class treasurer.

JOHNSTON TICKETS

Tickets for the Johnston county costume dance on March 2 may be obtained from Evelyn Turnage in Swain hall. All club members are urged to get them before the holidays.

Ridgeway's

OPTICIANS
Complete Eyeglass Service
Prompt attention to all mail orders
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
Raleigh N. C.

Whid Powell's

COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM

GRILLED TARHELLIAS

CAROLINAS
WAFFLES

Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

REHDER'S
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

The ORIENTAL
Chinese-American Restaurant

116 E. Parrish Street
Durham, N. C.

Building A Business?

Good advertising provides the stimulus to promote more trade and build a better standing for your firm.

We specialize in newspaper ad layouts and campaign program planning. Also we handle poster work, specialty and unusual advertising.

If you have an advertising problem, call on us.

COLE & PENDERGRAPH
ADVERTISERS
Phone 7816

NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

LI'L ABNER By AL CAPP

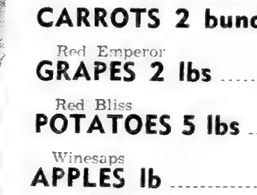
Last paper for this term — Hope you all pass — HARRY'S

EVERYDAY VALUES!

A&P SUPER MARKETS

Packer's Label or Standard Pack
PEAS . . . . . 3 No. 2 Cans 29c
Libby's or Sultana Fruit
COCKTAIL . . . . . No. 1 Can 24c
Iona Sliced or Halves Yellow Cling
PEACHES . . . . . No. 2½ Can 25c
A&P Fancy
APPLE SAUCE . . . . 2 No. 2 Cans 25c
Planters Cocktail
PEANUTS, 8 oz. can 30c
Golden Maid
MARGARINE . . . . . 1-Lb. Pkg. 33c
Sunnyfield Self-Rising
FLOUR . . . . . 10-Lb. Bag 80c
Shortening—Swift's
JEWEL . . . . . 4-Lb. Ctn. $1.30
Ann Page Salad
DRESSING . . . . . Pt. Jar 33c
Ann Page Spaghetti or
MACARONI . . . . . 3 8-Oz. Pkgs. 25c
Mild American
CHEESE . . . . . Lb. 51c
Iona White or Golden
CORN . . . . . No. 2 Can 17c
V-8 COCKTAIL . . . . . 18-Oz. Can 15c

1½ lb. loaf 18c
MARVEL Home Style Enriched WHITE BREAD
DATED "FRESH" DAILY — REMEMBER, WHEN FRESHNESS FADES, FLAVOR FADES



Jane Parker Cinnamon or Sugared
DONUTS 1-Doz. Pkg. 18c
Duff's Hot
ROLL MIX . . . . Pkg. 25c
Sunnyfield Flour For
PANCAKES . . . 20-Oz. Pkg. 13c
Ann Page Blended
SYRUP . . . . . Pt. Bot. 25c
Ann Page Prepared
SPAGHETTI 2 15¾-Oz. Cans 23c
Sunnybrook Grade A Large
FRESH EGGS 1-Doz. Ctn. 59c
Ann Page Peach
PRESERVES . . 1-Lb. Jar 23c
Comstock
PIE APPLES 2 No. 2 Cans 29c

Rich and Full Bodied
RED CIRCLE . . 1-lb. Bag 43c
Mild and Mellow
8 O'CLOCK COFFEE
1-Lb. Bag 40c • 3 Lb. Bag $1.15
BOKAR Vigorous & Winey 1-Lb. Bag 45c • 3-Lb. Bag $1.29

PERSONAL IVORY SOAP 2 Bars 15c
IVORY SOAP Med. Bar 11c
CAMAY SOAP Bar 10c
IVORY SOAP Lge. Bar 19c
RINSO Lge. Pkg. 36c
SWAN SOAP Med. Bar 11c
SWAN SOAP Lge. Bar 19c
SPRY 1-lb. Can 43c

MARCH of VALUES
at Your Friendly A&P

YOU'LL RELISH THE TASTE OF Super Right Meats

Armour Star or Swift Premium
BACON lb 63c
Armour Star or Swift Premium
HAMS lb 59c
Half or Whole Wilson Certified
PICNICS lb 49c
Small Average Boned and Rolled
RIB ROAST lb 75c

Bone in
CHUCK ROAST lb 57c
Whole or Half
LEG O LAMB lb . . 65c
Rib or Loin End
PORK ROAST lb . . 45c
Swift Premium
FRANKS lb 49c

Porterhouse, T-Bone, Club Sirloin, or Pin Bone
SUPER RIGHT STEAKS lb 79c
Thick
FAT BACK lb 25c
Lean Streaked
RIB SIDE lb 39c
Shoulder Roast
VEAL lb 59c
Shoulder Chops
VEAL lb 65c
FISH FILLETS lb 49c
HADDOCK lb 37c
H&G WHITING lb 21c
Table Dressed
HENS lb 56c

STRING BEANS 2 lbs 25c
CARROTS 2 bunches 19c
Red Emperor
GRAPES 2 lbs 29c
Red Bliss
POTATOES 5 lbs 32c
Winesaps
APPLES lb 10c
Large
GRAPEFRUIT each 5c
LETTUCE 2 heads 19c
COLLARD GREENS lb 10c
TURNIP GREENS lb 10c
MUSTARD GREENS lb 10c

CABBAGE 2 lbs 7c
BROCCOLI lb . . 19c

Nabisco Vanilla Wafers
Grape Nut Flakes .. 8-oz. Pkg. . 15c
Sunnyfield Oats ... 20-oz. Pkg. .. 15c
Sunnyfield Corn Flakes .. 8-oz. Pkg. . 12c
Iona Cocoa ... 1-lb. Pkg. . 19c

WESSON OIL Pint Bot. 39c
SNOWDRIFT 1-Lb. Can 43c
Swift Cleanser Pkg. 11c

A&P Super Markets

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Fair and warmer.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Buchan Reports
Eyes on the Scroll
Town Without People

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 123

Orientation Program Handles 100 Students

By Charlie Gibson

Counseling, lectures, physical examinations, and aptitude tests brought approximately 100 new students to a comparatively quiet campus Tuesday for two days of orientation. There were no more than ten new coeds at best.

The remainder of the orientation schedule comes this evening when all new students are required to sign honor code pledges and Saturday night when Graham Memorial sponsors a dance with the campus neophytes as special guests.

Jess Dedmond, chairman of the orientation committee, has supervised the entire program, his work beginning officially when he presided over two Gerrard hall meetings Tuesday. In the morning the new students were welcomed by Dean C. P. Spruill, Jr., and heard a brief talk by Claude Shotts, YMCA director, on Y activities here.

Reverend Henry G. Ruark held a prayer of invocation the same afternoon before further speeches by Dean Fred Weaver on honor codes, Tom Eller on student government political aspects, Charlie Long on forensic activities, Pete Gerns on campus publications, and Bill Shuford on Graham Memorial.

Other students who assisted Dedmond in counseling new students were Patsy McNutt, Page Harris, Dick Boren, Bob Kirby, Walt Arnold, Ed Davenport, Dortch Warriner, Claude Shannon, and Charlie McRae.

The honor code pledges, Dedmond insisted, must be signed by all students entering the University for the first time. They are available this evening in the Men's Council room on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Those who were oriented by the following group leaders should report there at the designated times: Warriner, Gerns, and Boren groups at 7:30; Kirby, 7:45 Davenport, 8 o'clock; and Arnold 8:15. Anyone who is not certain of his group leader's name should also come to the Men's Council room promptly at 8:15 o'clock.

The dance Saturday evening will be the second social feature in Graham Memorial for those being oriented. The first was an informal get-acquainted reception at 8 o'clock last night.

The dance this weekend is to be in the main lounge of Graham Memorial. Music will be recorded, and all men admitted at the door must wear ties and coats.

Housing Deadline Set for Thursday

Next Thursday, April 1, is the deadline for reserving University housing space for the summer and fall terms.

University Housing Officer James E. Wadsworth reiterated this announcement yesterday for the benefit of new students entering school this quarter and for all other students who have not yet made room deposits for these terms.

Separate deposits—$10 for summer school and $6 for the fall quarter—must be made, Wadsworth said.

The deadline of April 1 applies to all students now living in Miller and Nash halls and the quonset huts as well as in dormitory rooms. Students who fail to make deposits by April 1 will lose their present room space and will revert to their proper position on the housing list, he warned.

The housing officer emphasized that reservation of a room for the summer does not entitle the occupant to that space in the fall.

Five dormitories will not be available during the summer, according to Wadsworth. Students living in Stacy, Everett, Alexander, Graham, Aycock, Lewis, and Whitehead will be assigned to other dormitories if they return for the summer sessions.

Easter Services Set For Forest Theater On Sunday Morning

A combination mediaeval resurrection drama and worship service led by a choir of 200 children will transform the Easter Sunrise service into an impressive Christian celebration Sunday morning at 6:30 in the Forest theater. In the event of rain, the service will be held in the Playmaker's theater.

Co-op Program

This year, for the first time, the Easter service is a cooperative program presented by all the religious groups of Chapel Hill, as compared to previous years when the program was under the auspices of the University "Y".

According to Mrs. J. R. Nelson, chairman of the program, representatives of the churches, student religious groups, YWCA and YMCA have been planning for several months an Easter service which will express adequately and artistically praises for a risen Lord.

Wakefield Play

"The Resurrection of Christ," translated and arranged by Kai Jurgensen and Bob Schenkkan of the Playmaker faculty, is one of the Wakefield guild cycle plays produced annually in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries in England. David Samples, who is now doing graduate work in directing, staged the play.

Mrs. Fred McCall, director of elementary school music, announced that the 200-member children's choir will sing three resurrection hymns. A brass quartet directed by David Arner will accompany this group and also will prelude the worship service with Bach chorales.

Veteran actors such as James Geiger as Pilate, A. E. Westover III as Caiaphus, Edsel Huges as Jesus, Frederick and W. Pidgh-Jesus, Frederick Johnson as Centurio, and W. P. Covington III as Annas will head the cast for the play. Other actors include Patricia Palmer as Mary Jacoby, Gloria Gunn as Mary Magdalene, J. Robert Nelson as the first soldier, Robert Allen as second soldier, Robert Bunch as third soldier, Edward Buckner as fourth soldier, John Gignilliat as first angel, and Hibbard Thatcher as second angel. Margie Cameron will serve as production secretary and play the part of Mary Salome.

Martin Jacobs will supervise costumes, Harold Schiffmann will direct music for the drama, and settings will be done by Lynn Gault.

SP MEETING

The Student party will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon to consider nominations for class officers and town legislators. The meeting is scheduled in Graham Memorial.

NOT MECKLENBURG COUNTY, but Perrysburg, Ohio, was the scene of this tornado wreckage when a twister demolished the school building shown in the above picture. The tornado, which roared through seven midwestern states, was quite a bit more destructive than the one which hit the Mecklenburg area Tuesday. International Soundphoto

Group To Choose Men's Council Nominees In Session Tonight

The first meeting of the non-partisan board set up to choose nominees for Men's council positions for the spring elections will be held at 7 o'clock this evening in the Dialectic Senate hall in New West building.

Tonight's meeting will be concerned with orientation of all candidates and with consideration of candidates for senior positions on the council. Another meeting will be held tomorrow night to interview applicants for undergraduate and other positions on the judiciary group.

Bill Tate, chairman of the Men's Honor council, will sit as chairman of the selection board. Other non-voting members will be Mike Carr of the Law school and Tom Eller, president of the student body.

Voting members of the body consist of four representatives from each of the three political parties on campus. These are: Student party: Gran Childress (chairman), Dortch Warriner, Bill Mackie and Herb Alexander; University party: Thurman Williams (chairman) Charlie Loudermilk; Campus party: Bob Haire (chairman), Bob Ormand, Tom Lockhart and Walt Arnold.

The board will select a minimum of four and a maximum of five nominees for each council position. These names will go on the ballot without party endorsement and no publicity will be released except through the selection board.

The board will choose the nominees by a two-thirds vote of their membership, and it will not ask the applicants their party affiliation or where they live.

The board must complete its nominations by midnight on Saturday, since all nominations must be filed by that time, according to the Board of Elections. It was pointed out that any student who desires to run for a council position independently may do so, but that no party nominations will be made other than those released from the board with the backing of all three parties.

President Eller stated yesterday that he urged all students who are interested in running for a council post to apply to the board for a nomination.

"This plan of selection," Eller said, "will provide for qualified men running for the judiciary posts irrespective of party affiliations."

Bicameral Set-Up Scheduled For State Student Assembly

The 11th annual State Student Legislature to be held in Raleigh April 16 and 17 will definitely be a bicameral assembly and the University will be represented by 26 delegates, yesterday announced Charlie Long, chairman of the Executive council of the state legislative body.

Although the availability of the Senate chamber in the state capitol is not definite, use of the House chamber for the student legislative body is assured. If the senate group is unable to use the Senate chamber, it will meet in the Wake county court house, Long declared.

Sounding Board

Delegates representing several Negro colleges in the state will be included among representatives from approximately 40 colleges and universities throughout North Carolin. The meeting is held annually for the purpose of learning how the state general assembly operates and to act as a sounding board for student opinion.

Long, a junior from Thomasvill, was elected chairman of the Executive council of the state legislative body March 6 at a meeting held at Meredith college in Raleigh. The Legislature was begun in 1937 by the Pi Kappa Alpha debating society at State college and was carried on by that organization until the 1945 session, when the Executive council gained control of the project.

A decision was made during the 1945 meeting to admit Negro delegates to the legislature the following year. Observers have declared that the interracial group worked together harmoniously. However, the race question was admittedly a partial cause for the attempted cancellation of this year's assembly by State college students on the Executive council last fall.

Mag Literary Editor Requesting Material

Emphasizing a need for student-written material for the April issue of the Carolina Magazine, Literary Editor Bill Sessions urged yesterday that writers submit their manuscripts by Saturday.

Sessions said that all material, short stories, poems, essays, and book reviews will be given careful consideration by the Magazine's literary board. Criticism will be given by the board members, even if the material is not accepted.

Short stories, particularly, Sessions added, are needed. "Many persons have accumulated manuscripts through the creative writing courses or otherwise," Sessions said, "and these stories and poems are needed immediately."

New On-Campus Barber Shop to Open In Student Union Today, Says Shuford

Students will get their first chance to be clipped officially under University auspicies today when Graham Memorial re-opens its popular on-campus barbershop.

Bill Shuford, GM director, announced yesterday that the barbershop which operated successfully here for many years prior to the war will be re-established in the basement of Graham Memorial in answer to numerous requests.

The new clipjoint will be managed by Max Snipes, veteran of 15 years of pre-war barbery in GM now working with the University laundry of Chapel Hill. Two other tonsorial artists will keep chairs open from 8:15 to 6 o'clock Mondays through Saturdays hereafter.

Prices for haircuts, shaves, shampoos, and the finest of current controversial conversation will conform to Chapel Hill standards, all profits going to Graham Memorial.

Forensic Squads Leave to Compete In National Tests

Four debate teams left here last night for Fredericksburg, Va., to represent the University in the Grand National Forensic debate tournament to be held for three days starting today at Mary Washington college where fifty colleges and universities from all over the country will be represented in the annual tournament.

The teams from Chapel Hill will include 10 students: Merle Stevens, Emily Baker, Herman Siebet, Herbert Yates, Charles Long, Herbert Mitchell, Tom Shelton, Jim Spence, Blanton Miller, and Robert Giles. The group will be headed by Earl Fitzgerald, president of the Debate council.

Entrants from Chapel Hill will also engage in poetry reading, dramatic reading, extemporaneous speaking, address reading and oratorical contests. Fitzgerald declared yesterday that the University debate teams in past years have had several first place entrants.

"Resolves that world government should be established," is the standard resolution to be argued during the tournament. The debating tournament is sponsored annually by the Strawberry Leaf society, forensic group at Mary Washington college.

UP MEETING

The University party steering committee will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Horace Williams lounge of Graham Memorial to discuss publicity and finances for the coming election. Recent political developments will also be considered, according to UP Chairman Thurman Williams. Attendance of all representatives is urged.

Student, Campus Party Steering Groups Hold Discussion Of Merger Possibility

DTH Awarded Six Top Honors At Student Press Convention

The Daily Tar Heel took six prizes in the North Carolina Collegiate Press association convention held at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham last Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Chuck Hauser, Donald MacDonald, Roland "Foo" Giduz, Bill Carmichael, Bob Goldwater and Wilson Yarborough were the winners for the DTH, each taking top honors in his respective field.

Hauser, who is present news editor for the Daily Tar Heel, won the best news story division with his report of the Leonard Bernstein case. MacDonald, reporter who graduated last quarter with an A.B. in journalism, placed first in the humorous feature contest with his story on the visit here of Scripps-Howard Columnist Bob Ruark, a University alumnus.

Roland Giduz, who writes under the by-line "R. Foo Giduz" on the editorial page, won first honors in the editorial column line, while Bill Carmichael and Bob Goldwater, DTH co-sports editors, came out on top in the sports column and sports news story competitions, respectively.

Wilson Yarborough, staff photographer, took over the news photography division with his picture of Charlie Justice eluding a group of tacklers in the Tennessee game.

Wake Forest's Old Gold and Black placed first in the state Big Five "A" classification and the Guilfordian of Guilford college won in the all-state "B" classification.

At the convention, delegates from newspapers, magazines and yearbooks published at colleges and universities all over the state got together for panel discussions, clinics, talks by noted journalists and banquets and small social functions thrown in to ease the routine.

Principal speakers at the three-day meeting were Assistant Dean Roscoe Ellerd of the Columbia Graduate school of journalism, Jack Lait, editor of the New York Daily Mirror, Sam Eubanks of the Newspaper Guild, Sydney Stanard, news editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and William Reddig, editor of the Charlotte News.

Crisp Elected

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

Chicago, March 24 — Bill Crisp, University of North Carolina law student, was elected president of the University of Chicago Student Forum on the United Nations at the first session of the forum here today.

Crisp attended the convention as a representative of North Carolina university along with Anne Wells and John Stump, undergraduates there.

The Carolina delegation is representing the country of New Zealand in the mock set-up of the United Nations here.

Saturday Deadline Set for Candidates Wishing to Declare

Candidates who intend to file independently for the April 6 spring elections have until Saturday night at midnight to file their 25-signature nominating petitions with Elections Board Chairman Al Winn.

The signatures must be those of bona fide voters, according to Winn, who pointed out that party slates must also be filed by the Saturday deadline.

"It will be absolutely impossible," Winn stated, "for anyone to enter the race for any post unless they file before midnight on Saturday."

Failure to Return Pink Slip Is Costly

South building administrators yesterday re-emphasized the importance of notice-of-return slips to determine exactly which students are to be enrolled officially for the forthcoming term. Anyone who fails to return this card to Registration hall before Monday will have his registration cancelled Tuesday. Reinstatement once a registration has been cancelled will incur a $5 fine.

These pink cards were issued along with class tickets before the spring holidays. However, more forms are available at Registration hall for those who may have lost their original cards.

MINISTERS MEETING

Paris, March 24—(UP)—Diplomatic sources say that the foreign ministers of 16 countries will meet in Paris on the eve of the Italian elections.

Informants say that the ministers will approve the permanent administrative organization of ERP and that they will sign a treaty binding their countries economically for the next four years.

Further Discussion On Coalition Is Set For April 7 Meeting

By Chuck Hauser

A merger of two of the three campus political parties was discussed at a closed meeting of their combined steering committees one week ago last Saturday.

The steering groups of the Student and Campus parties met in closed session in Graham Memorial on March 13 to consider the possibilities of a coalition but the only decision reached was to hold a combined meeting of the two parties at 3 o'clock in the afternoon on the day after the April 6 general campus elections.

12 to 6 Vote

The meeting began at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening and continued until 10:20, when it adjourned after a 12 to 6 vote had been tabulated for the proposed April 7 session.

Tom Eller, president of the student body, who was appointed official spokesman for the group, declared that nothing had been decided at all and refused to admit that a coalition move had been discussed.

"No Decision Reached"

"It was just a friendly, healthy discussion of student government," Eller stated. His announcement that no decision had been reached by the group was backed up by others who attended.

The April 7 meeting is supposedly for the purpose of continuing the discussion and consideration of the party merger, although nothing has been confirmed by members of either of the two steering committees.

Although the meeting was closed to all persons except those steering committee members, it was learned that even though the motion to meet on April 7 was passed, any statement which might be issued would be completely non-commital.

One Year Old

Observers believe that the coalition move is natural in the light of the history of local political parties. The Campus party emerged as the third point of the political triangle just before the spring general elections last year. It was generally believed at that time that it would not last as long as it already has.

Bob Haire is present chairman of the Campus party, having succeeded Jess Dedmond, who resigned to enter the presidential race. Gran Childress, candidate for secretary-treasury of the student body, is chairman of the Student party

State Supreme Court Upholds Sentence, Reverses Conviction, Condemns Statute

Raleigh, March 24—(UP)—The State Supreme Court has upheld the death sentence of a Negro convicted of killing David Franchum last November.

The ruling automatically sets the death date for James Leroy Jackson for April 9.

Jackson was found guilty of shooting the lunch stand operator.

Another Supreme Court decision today has reversed one of two convictions of robbery with firearms. The convictions were returned last fall in Yadkin county against Glenn Bell and Millard Bell.

Both had been sentenced to 15 to 20 years in prison for each crime.

The Supreme Court's reversal of one conviction does not reduce the sentence because the Superior Court had made the sentences concurrent.

The Bells were convicted of posing as officers, stopping vehicles and collecting fines for speeding.

The high court has also upheld Judge Allen H. Gwyn and has declared a North Carolina statute unconstitutional.

The state statute made it unlawful for any person or corporation to discharge or cause to be discharged into the waters of the state anything poisonous to fish, but the statute exempted any corporation chartered before March 4, 1915.

Group of Brooklyn Citizens Are Mad About Government Stand on Palestine

Washington, March 24—(UP)—A group of citizens from Brooklyn, New York, is pretty mad about the government's change of policy on the partition of Palestine.

About 700 of them arrived in the national capital today to air their views. They formed in columns outside the railroad station, carrying a huge banner wfhich said:

"Brooklyn division of the United committee to save the Jewish state and the United Nations."

Later at the capitol they formed into small groups and began swarming through the House and Senate buildings to talk with Congressmen. However, they had to leave their banners behind. Police who took the banners explained the group did not have a parade permit.

Some of the signs read: "Mr. President, there's blood and oil on your hands," and "Stop assassination of the Jewish state."

A spokesman said most of the group were Jewish, but that some were Protestant, Italian and Negro.

This 'n That

Buchan's Report from 'The City'

By Bill Buchan

New York. . .Comes time for a Wednesday afternoon deadline and two-thirds of the editorial staff is some 500 miles from that liberal village of Chapel Hill. New York never changes. People rushing like mad to get no place in particular, husbands and wives fighting it out on street corners, friends waiting impatiently for the buddies who fail to show up at the appointed place at the appointed hour, beggars and panhandlers looking for a nickel for coffee or "just enough money to get home on."

The best shows crowded to capacity, others with a questionable success begging for ticket buyers. Fools—like us— taking standing room only to see "Streetcar" and "Mr. Roberts." Warm, spring-like sunshine one day, a cold, drizzly rain the next. Come to New York any day, any years and you'll find the same. That's the fascination of the place, they say.

After the show "tour" including Jim King's Rathskellar . . . formerly the "German American club" where all the Carolina folks were supposed to meet this week, but few showed up. A quick taxi over to Eddie Condon's club to listen to frantic raspings from Wild Bill Davison's trumpet, a couple more stops at places of questionable repute and its time to hit the hay in a small hotel on 47th street.

You save up your do-re-mi for months, carefully rationing the dimes and the quarters, then come in the big city and spend it all in one night. Most comforting thought is the train ticket in your pocket that reads Raleigh which will help you to get back in Chapel Hill barely in time to make that nine o'clock class Thursday morning.

Numerous phone calls to people that you knew years ago, but who don't appreciate the renewing of friendship at two in the morning. All the girl friends are "busy" for the next two nights. "Sooo Sorrr-ee-yy."

You sit at "30 minutes for ten cents" typewriters trying to knock out a column while the minutes tick away and you dream subconsciously of the other places where you could be having much more fun. You takes your suits down to the "press while you wait" joints and four hours later they come back, meanwhile you've decided not to wear it again anyway, so you pack it back in the grip to be wrinkled again.

Waiters, rules of the common people, demand their ten percent of the check and get mad as all-get-out if you don't come across. The town is so moneymad that Men's Room attendants demand ten cents for letting you wash your hands. What chance has a guy got against such characters?

Yet, with all the never-changing atmosphere, people flock back every chance they get, spend all their money, then go home and dream for the next six months of the things they did and the things they should have done.

You find piano players who know "Hark the Sound" and you sing at the top of your voices, then slip him a couple of dimes to play "Dixie" and all the rebels stand up strictly at attention while the damnyankees look on with sarcasm in their eyes.

Soldiers, sailors and marines still wander through the streets accompanied by women some five or ten years older than they, but who love a free drink as well as the next one. Drunkards in rags and the social elite in tails pass each other on the streets without a glance. Women, fat and ugly, dressed in slacks, move from one prospective customer to another until they finally meet success. Characters who try to offer advice on which subway to catch uptown and who don't know their nose from a hole in the ground themselves, all these people are a part of the big city of New York.

You sit here and plan, for next time, that you are really going to see the Statue of Liberty, and ride on the ferry to Staten Island and go up on the Empire State Building. . .like all good sightseerers should do. But that is next time. This time, we'll see the shows, tour the clubs and worry about financial problems, especially how you are going to eat from the twenty fifth of March until Uncle Sam comes calling on April first.

New York is a fascinating place, but Chapel Hill and classes are calling. . .so you wait until the last minute and catch the Palmland at 8:30 Wednesday night, hoping you'll get into Raleigh on time Thursday, then hope there's a bus straight over to Chapel Hill by nine. If there isn't that first class is going to be short three members.

Its a nice place to come to, this New York City, just so long as you make the visits short and sweet. Its also nice to be able to go back to the university village in North Carolina for another three month's of class routines.

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

NOMINATION FOR THE PULITZER PRIZE FOR AN OUTSTANDING CONTRIBUTION TO LITERATURE

W. Langtree, the war correspondent who didn't write a book.

Carolina Carousel

Students Leave; Town Blooms

By R. Foo Giduz

You lucky, lucky students. . . Glad to see you back.

To tell the truth, you folks have missed the best season of the year in CH during the holidays, but you probably didn't mind being home—probably!. . . Soon as school let out the town really started blooming, and is still going strong. . .The Red-Bud trees (purple); Piraeus Japonica—the bright red blossoms; the bright yellow Forsythia (Golden Bell) bushes; flowering peach, with the deep pink blooms; and the bounteous white of the wild plums, chaeries, and pears. . . Arboretumers will get a visual treat from the large lavender flowers of the Chinese Magnolias.

And the Dogwood "festival" hasn't even started.

Yep, thought it'd never come, but spring in dear old Chapel Hill is really tops. . .Great weather for studying and outdoor labs. . .Looks like a fine quarter ahead. (See you in the back booth at Jeff's!)

Cuff-note to anti-Grahamers: —You're in the same boat with the Commies!. . .They don't like him either. . .The Geneva. Switzerland, Communist newspaper, Voice, recently referred to him as "an agent of Wall Street pressure. . .brandishing an atomic bomb when necessary. . .to assist American penetration of Indonesia." —Well!—Won't Wall Street be glad to learn that!

Cheers! The "worms" turned on each other recently, when Julia Ross of Pi Phi sorority thefts fame, put a sawbuck bite on her cohort in crime, Johnny Clampitt!. . .Rumor has it, amazingly enough, that she's paid him back. . .Honor between criminals, y'know. (They're the "unholy two" who "accidentally" forgot to pay their hotel bill at the Natchelbridge Y conference.) . . .Local chapeau-philes will be gratified to know that CC had his brand new $7.50 Adams "Executive (!) felt hat ungraciously lifted recently. . .Owell, straw hat season is coming anyhow.

The Brassy Taste

The Town Without People

By Bob Sain

Ever been to Nevada? Out there they have places intriguingly entitled "ghost towns". Old villages that were born for gold mines and died when the vein ran out.

Chapel Hill was deader during the holidays.

It was better than the Christmas lay-off, however. This time there was always at least one brew emporium open at night.

(There's a gent named McPeek in the music department who considers it quite "juvenile" to sound off on beer in the DTH. To him: apologies for the sentence about brew.)

* * *

You good people missed something really fine by going home during the holidays. (But, considering the home town ladies—maybe you didn't Wicked leer!)

Chapel Aitch lit up like Times Square at six o'clock with Cherry blossoms, violets, dandelions and all sorts of spring on Saturday morning.

* * *

Jerry McDuffie, who plays fine trumpet for Johnny Satterfield's local band, says John plans to take the outfit around a group of colleges in the state. Great! The hinterlands should know about the best band in the state.

* * *

Taking bets at this post that Charlie Long will announce for student body president within the next week or so. I'm for him. Experience, ability and just the right soupcon of politics in his make up.

* * *

The Wallace-for-President crew rang the old quarter out in fine fashion with a beer bust at Mike Pochna's place in Carrboro. Finer buch of people you wouldn't want to meet.

* * *

Lois, the belle of the Campus Cafe, lost herself a weekend down in the vicinity of Jacksonville, N. C. over the holidays. Said she was happy to get back to work so she could rest a while.

* * *

Cheerful note: It would appear that we are going to get into some kind of war or another. There no longer seems the handwriting on the wall. Indeed, we have even seen the maps in the paper: little black arrows pointing to the places in Yugoslavia where Russia has set up buzz-bomb racks and submarine bases. That is the end. . .when they start printing maps. Just as sure as the crocus and the robin herald spring, so maps of "enemy fortifications indicate immediate war.

Of course I remember Eisenhower and other military gentlemen saying that no country would be ready for an aggressive war for five or ten years. But the signs are there.

March 15th having just passed but a few weeks ago, it might be apropos to point out that eighty cents in every dollar you sent to Uncle went to pay for war or preparation for a tussle. There is talk of reconversion of automobiles, and airplane factories for war production. Truman has called for conscription. American troops embarked some months ago for the Mediteranean. And, of course, Army men are being given orientation courses like mad on how to hate the Russian.

So, as Hercule Poirot might say, cherchez la guerre.

* * *

Here's a deep bow to Bob Andrew for his one p. m. Tar Heel Hits show from WDUK's Chapel Hill studio. Bob is one of the more knowing of disc jocks in the vicinity. Fine lack of inhibitions on the air.

How to Say "Fire"

If an Indian wanted to say fire, he held his clenched hand in front of him and flickered the fingers up like tongues of flame. If he wanted to say he was hungry, he drew his finger across himself like a knife cutting his stomach.

One sign Albert made use of was the one for "followed." To make that, start one index finger traveling off into space and send the other one after it.

The sign for Sioux Indians is a line drawn around the neck

"That sign doesn't mean they're cut-throats," Albert explained. "It refers to the necklaces they wore."

Albert plays a shy, inoffensive Brooklyn gunsmith in "The Tenderfoot." A good gunsmith has to be a good shot, or so the script says. But because the western bad-men judged a man's character by his marksmanship, he became known as the wildest desperado in the whole wild west.

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

—Seasonal changes have brought GM into full bloom both inside and out . . . The gal with the spring-time eye, office chief Mrs. Dorothy Cooke decked the main lounge out in large bowls of luxuriously blooming flowers, and placed a number of small potted plants around the room . . The lounge was "christened" for spring with a reception for all new students last night.

On the ground floor, both the Rendezvous and Barber shop got rejuvenations . . . Boss Bill Shuford and Rendezvous manager Arnold Wilson put in considerable hours over the holidays in redecorating and painting the campus night spot . . .

And when it gets too warm for you, remember, it is always cool in Graham Memorial!

Keep Your Eyes On The Scroll

In one of the many rooms of the Library of Congress there are statues of two scholars who have a great deal of significance to education in any era. On the left hand side of an archway is a young man with a scroll in his hand. His eyes are intently fixed on the reading matter. The guide will tell you that he is the young scholar who is gaining knowledge through reading. The other scholar is bearded. His facial expression is intent, but not on the scroll in his hand. "He is reading," the guide will tell you, "but the old scholar is also learning through observation. As a young man he had gained his background through reading."

There are many other figures portraying the various arts, the sciences, figurines honoring Emerson, Shakespeare and the great masters of literature, but these two lone figures which portray the gaining of an education seemed to impress our guide more than any other feature of the Library of Congress, with its many murals, patterns and mosaic works of art.

The North Carolina Collegiate Press association held its second convention since the war last weekend and among its notable speakers was Dean Ellard, of the Graduate School of Columbia university. Dean Ellard said many noteworthy and interesting things. He talked about his reporting days in Chicago and of his younger years on the Kansas City Star. His repertoire reached back to his schooling at Missouri and his beginnings in the news field. But out of these tales which he recalled with vivid eloquence nothing stuck in our minds like this statement: "A man in the present day world has got to be a reader."

He used the expression to apply to an embryonic newsman, but stated that this is a reading world and it takes more than just the reading of the "New Yorker" to produce the desired results of culture and education.

The genial Dean used the parable of the newspaper editor who liked to go down into the city room and discuss a new book with the young reporter. If the young reporter had not read the book, he was dismissed from his job and a man who kept abreast of the times was hired.

You are the young scholar. A new term is just beginning. Fix your gaze intently on the scroll; the observance will come through reading and you will have a background to be used for judging the contemporary with the past.

There Are Greater Days Ahead

For the past year we have successfully tried to keep the editorial columns free from back-patting, but after the North Carolina Collegiate Press convention we believe that the staff of the Daily Tar Heel deserves laurels.

The great majority of the newspaper awards at the NCCPA convention were copped by DTH staff members. Chuck Hauser won the news award for his article on the Bernstein case. Wilson Yarborough was awarded first place for his action shot of the Tennessee-Carolina game. Donald MacDonald won the feature award and Roland "Foo" Giduz won the best column award for his "Liberalism at the University." All of the Sports awards were won by the DTH. Bob Goldwater's account of the Duke-Carolina tilt was a winner and Billy Carmichael won the best sports column award.

The Daily Tar Heel and the campus can be rightly proud of the achievements in the collegiate press world and take this as a hint that we are progressing and that there are greater days ahead.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.	Complete Leased Wire of United Press	Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — NIGHT SPORTS: Bill Carmichael

Write Away

Mullinax Versus Robertson

Editor:

Since Mr. Robertson elected to make his latest column personal, I should like a chance to reply. First, congratulations to him for discovering that the Carolina Conservative Club is against the candidacy of Mr. Henry Wallace! How did he ever find out? If I threw dust in someone's eyes it was entirely unintential. I was not replying to anything Mr. Robertson wrote but merely asking why he should be retained as a Tar Heel columnist while all others were turned out by a "new policy". I contended that Mr. Robertson represents the Chapel Hill Communists and the HWFPC. He doesn't even mention much less reply to these charges. If they are true, Mr. Roberston cannot continue under the "new policy" without becoming a staff member of the Tar Heel.

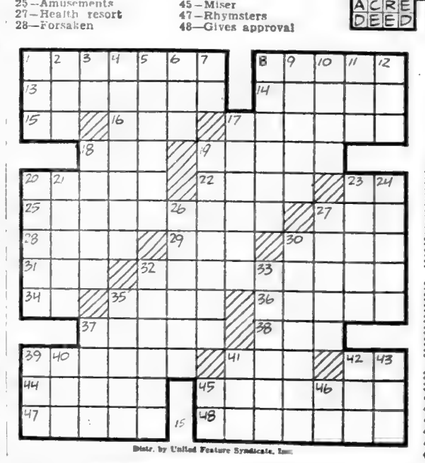
Since he brings out the old cry of discrimination against "liberals," I would like the students to notice a few things (1) The "liberals" get far and away the hogs share of publicity in the Tar Heel (2) The "liberals" have complete control of most of the bulletin boards. Their material stays up indefinitely at the Library and the Political Science departments while other material mysteriously disappears. (3) There are "liberal" professors and assistants in the Psychology, Political Science, Library, Chemistry, Physics, History, and English departments. Since I have been here (three years) I haven't heard of a single "liberal" bein fired. If the Board of Trustees is really in earnest to weed out "liberals" they are doing a very slow job and they still have a long way to go. We must be careful in taking for granted that the Board of Trustees is set up to discriminate against and frustrate the student body. It is composed of mature and intelligent men and women for the most part and its purpose is to aid the student body as well as the University.

Mr. Robertson sets up a dangerous idea in his column—that we should guarantee freedom of expression except Negro-baiting and anti-semitics. Is that the end of the list of exceptions or does it extend to other types of expression by degrees or wholeheartedly as in the Prague Communist set-up to exclude all others of which the "liberals" do not approve. I do not approve of anti-Negro, anti-Jewish sentiments but I certainly would not throw a man in jail for expressing his private opinions on the subjects. The Communists bear the cross for both groups—and if they get control they will crucify both groups! Mr. Robertson haven't you yet read the reports of official anti-semitism in the Soviet Union?

One more point. If a "liberal" professor in French, say, spends his class time expounding "liberal" philosophy and ignores to a great extent his verbs, idioms, conjugations and literature and he was discharged for that reason, would you call it justifiable discharge or would you call it discrimination against him for political reasons? The answer is plain—he is being paid to teach French, not "liberalism". Far from being discriminated against, I contend that the "liberals" are given more than an even break in some cases are actually receiving extra privileges.

Finally I must agree with Mr. Robertson that his view and Mr. Karl Marx's views of "democratic optimism" (I fail to see anything optimistic in either) are changing and dynamic. Changing so fast in fact that you can't even keep up with the "party" line. And dynamic in that they are swiftly moving—in the wrong direction!

Paul Mullinax



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Argument
8—To educate
13 Agitated
14—To elevate
15 -Mother
16—Fixed
17—Leased
18 Swine
19—Small depressions
20—Mates
22—Concludes
23—An exclamation of surprise
25—Amusements
27—Health resort
28—Forsaken
29—To cut edges off coins
30—Short ride (coll.)
31—It is (contr.)
32 Shedding
34 Test solution (abbr.)
35—Cunning
36—Musical notes
37—Ventured
38—Rage
39—Rougher
41—Literary collection
42—Paid notice
44—Helpers
45—Miser
47—Rhymsters
48—Gives approval

DOWN

1—Obstruction
2—Man's name
3—In this manner
4—Early settler
5—Practices
6—A number
7—Man's nickname
8—Movements
9—Talks wildly
10—Islets
11—Japanese shrine
12—Boy's nickname
17—To fall in promise
18—Wharfs
19—Deduced
20—To cut in half
21—Schemes
23—To cut down the middle
24—Suspends
26—Joiner
27—Backbone
30—Safekeeping
32—Compulsion
33—Bee bites
35—Student at West Point
37—Fop
39—Cover
40—River (Sp.)
41—Sloth (pl.)
42—Skill
43—Dentist's degree
45—Sodium (symb.)
46—Indefinite article

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Beecham's Music: Artistic Validity

New York —(UP)— The outstanding record event of 1948 is likely to be RCA Victor's release of Handel's "Messiah" as performed by singers and players under the baton of Sir Thomas Beecham. This reviewer has been listening to records for a long time and recalls nothing emerging from a phonograph with quite its artistic validity, which, of course, means enjoyment.

This tremendous masterpiece offers difficulties to performers that must seem, at times, insurmountable. As Sir Thomas says in an introductory talk which takes up the first record side of the set, it has been performed thousands of times but only a comparatively few times with complete devotion to the score and intentions of the composer.

Devotion is manifest everywhere in the records, also sensitive understanding. Sir Thomas could well mark this performance as a peak of his long and distinguished career. He worked with his own Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, and to achieve perfect balance, with three separate courses—two professional bodies of 42 and 65 singers, and one of 250, made up mainly of amateurs. His soloists were Heddle Nash, tenor; Marjorie Thomas, contralto; Elsie Suddaby, soprano, and Trevor Antony, bass.

The set is expensive. It totals 21 12-inch records in two albums. If you contemplate spending $23 you'll want to hear the other "Messiah" now available, for comparison. It was made by the Huddersfield Choral Society and the Liverpool Philharmonic conducted by Sir Malcolm Sargent and was released last year by Columbia. (19 12-in., two albs., $22.50) The reviewer hasn't heard it but understands it is very good.

Most pianists shudderingly rate Brahms' "Variations on a Theme by Paganini" the most difficult virtuoso music ever perpetrated on innocent pianists. Pianists don't risk their reputation often by undertaking to play them, particularly on records, because that permits other pianists an intensely close examination of the playing.

Jakob Gimpel has done two 12-inch records for and there won't be a single or howl. As an over-all performance of an incredibly difficult score, his is virtuoso playing a high rank.

Dear Mom — Don't worry, I'm eating at HARRY'S

Golfers To Play 11 Matches; Track Card Also Released

Bobbing in Sports

—with—

Bob Goldwater

Time on Our Hands

HEADING SOUTH ABOARD THE PALMLAND, March 24—Not one, not two, not three, but FOUR hours late as we "speed" toward Raleigh, we find ourself with an overabundance of time in which to consider, among other things, the sporting scene ahead of us at Chapel Hill for the next 10 weeks.

The company of varsity net aspirant Bob Luxenberg brings up a pre-season discussion of Carolina's tennis prospects for 1948. The high school doubles partner of one of the nation's up-and-coming stars, Sid Schwartz, now of Miami U., Luxenberg and a collection of other newcomers to the Tar Heel racquet club face the stiff assignment of trying to break into an all-lettermen outfit. Sad to relate—at least sad for the new candidates—the prospects appear dim indeed.

For returning from last year's Southern conference runner-up are seven varsity players, headed by the 1-2-3 combination of Vic Seixas, Clark Taylor, and Ray Morris. Scrapping for the other three singles berths are a quartet of monogram-winners, Charlie Rice, Heath Alexander, Don Skakle, and Sam Daniels. And in the face of such potential power, Bob's '48 objective is to practice a whole lot and, as he put it, "work for a spot on the team for the next three years. After all," he points out, "I'm only a freshman."

Big Time Racqueteers

AS FAR AS prospects for the year are concerned the pre-season crystal-gazing shows one fairly certain black mark against what could be an otherwise clean slate. Not that an unbeaten campaign is definitely out of the question or that the Tar Heel sextet is assured of no more than one loss. But according to advance calculations—which all too often turn out incorrect—it appears that for the third year in a row, the Tar Heels will receive their only setback at the hands—and strokes—of William and Mary. Despite the absence of intercollegiate champion Gardner Larned and Canadian Davis Cupper Bren Macken, the Indians still have what shapes up as close to the top team in the nation.

Anyway, the singles match between Seixas and either Fred Kovaaleski or Tut Bartzen—either one is capable of the number one status—ought to be a top-notch tussle.

Torn-up Turf

WITH LUXENBERG'S CHAPEL HILL residence being Emerson field house, the train talk aboard our Carolina Choo-Choo drifts to baseball and speculation regarding the condition of the Emerson diamond. The consensus of opinion among the UNC students in our ear is that only a miracle rivalling that on 34th Street will produce a playable turf for Coach Bunn Hearn's baseballers in their opener Friday. No one offered a suitable suggestion as to what to do if Emerson isn't ready. (And from what we hear upon arrival at the Hill, it isn't.)

Even temporarily without a diamond, the prospects for a successful baseball season in '48 would look bright, especially when compared with last year's showing. Experience always being a valuable addition, the Tar Heel nine will be stronger in that respect at all positions save catcher.

Not certain just what changes have been made in Friday's potential starting lineup, we do know that an infield of John Gregory, Jim Hamilton, Rip Ryan, and Jim Hayworth, along with a pasture patrol consisting of Jim Kelly, Whitey Black, and Frank Jones, would provide seven-ninths of a top-flight outfit. With Vinnie DiLorenzo on the mound, the team is strengthened that much more. All that remains is for the coaching staff to decide which of the five backstop candidates should handle DiLorenzo's southpaw slants and the opening nine will be ready to take the field. If they only had a field, that is.

Cinders and Fairways

THE PALMLAND STILL has some 20 miles of track to cover before reaching Raleigh—and we still have one fine track team to cover via the discussion route. While it may be difficult—if possible at all—to foresee a conference championship in either tennis or baseball, the picture is somewhat different in the cinder sport, where the Tar Heels loom as the team to beat for the loop diadem.

As witnessed in the Indoor Games, Carolina's clear superiority in the distance, hurdle, high jump, and weight events is enough to carry them to victory over the other circuit clubs, barring any unforeseen happenings. What's more, the outdoor tracksters will be improved in the other events, especially the sprints, with the addition of several runners not competing in the indoor circuit.

WHICH BRINGS US around to golf, the fourth and final link in the chain of varsity spring sports. And here again, the picture is bright indeed for the Tar Heel entry, who, like their track brethren, will be out to defend SC laurels. And just by way of getting in some training licks, the team's top members, Harvie Ward and Ray Taylor, finished fourth and seventh respectively among the amateurs in the Greensboro Open tourney last weekend. Ward will also be among the invited competitors to take part in the Masters' tournament at Atlanta next month.

AND THOUGH IT is definitely not a spring sport, Coach Carl Snavely and his gridders will see lots of spring action starting next Monday. Six weeks of drills will be climaxed by the Blue-White game sometime in May at which time the newly-planned card stunts will be unveiled to the Kenan populace.

So with varsity competition on four fronts, considerable jayvee action, out-of-season drills for fall and winter sports, plus frequent visits to check the swimming conditions down along the oceanside, it should be quite a springy season for those following the athletic doings of Carolina teams as well as those who cover same for ye olde campus journal. Chapel Hill and Wrightsville—here we come!

Linksmen Acquire Harvard, Virginia

Eleven dual meets, the Southern Conference tournament and the North-South Amateur affair are the bill of fare for Carolina's 1948 golf team, it was announced last week by links mentor Chuck Erickson.

The Tar Heels are currently the defending Conference champions, having won the loop affair last season after rolling up a 8-1 mark during the year, losing only to Duke.

This year, the local swingsters will have their hands filled, though, with potent Michigan and Georgetown, out-of-state holdovers from last season being joined by three newcomers, Harvard, Williams and Virginia, to present a heavy assortment of competition.

Tough Tests

On top of this, the Tar Heels must cope with their perennial nemesis, Duke, in statewide play and will also face State, Davidson, and Wake Forest in this field.

To master this heavy barrage of club wielders, Erickson has a seemingly fine array of talent, partly experienced, partly not. Harvie Ward who went to the quarter-finals of both the National Intercollegiates and the National Amateur is back, together with Bob Cox of extra point fame and Ray Taylor, who along with Ward made a fine showing last weekend in the Greensboro Open.

To fill the three remaining gaps, Erickson will look to the flock of new faces. Two of the more promising performers in early rounds have been Harvey Oliver, a sophomore from Fayetteville, and Frank Brooks, a freshman from Siler City.

Others Battling

Others battling for posts are Pete Beaudry, Roy McKenzie, David Griffith, Jack Brantley, Tom O'Shea, Jack Breakstone, H. C. Alderson, and Dan Nyimicz along with a host of others.

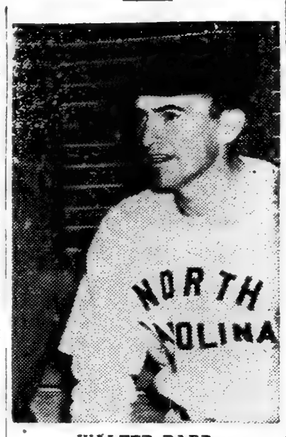
Because of the large number of candidates for the squad and the limited number of membership allowed the University at Hope Valley, where all of the Carolina home matches will be played, a team cut to a workable number will be made this weekend.

To aid Erickson in this thankless task, a 36-hole qualifying round for all candidates will be held all day Friday. From the results of this test and from the previous showings of the candidates, the squad membership will be decided.

Golf Schedule

March 30	Harvard	Here
March 31	Georgetown	Here
April 1	Davidson	Here
April 8	Williams	Here
April 9	Michigan	Here
April 15	Virginia	There
April 19-23	North-South	Pinehurst
April 27	State	Here
May 4	Duke	Hope Valley
May 8	So. Conference	Pinehurst
May 11	Wake Forest	Here
May 13	State	There
May 18	Wake Forest	Raleigh

Baseballers Show Promise After Sacrificing Vacation For Drills



While many masculine members of the local student body were basking in the sun and eyeing an assortment of curves at Southern beaches during the spring respite, the hardy Hearnmen who had remained in the village during the post-exam respite were strenuously absorbing the torrid rays of Old Sol on Emerson Field during the past week as they also strove to keep their eyes on a large variety of curves—these being of the spherical horsehide-covered variety.

The weather man was very cooperative with the plans of the Carolina coaching staff during the week's workouts and consequently the Tar Heel mentors were able to stage several intra-squad games in which every member of the 32 man squad saw considerable action.

Yesterday Coach Hearn revealed to 22 diamond aspirants that they had not exerted themselves in vain for their names were included in the list of men who'll dress for the 1948 curtain raiser with Virginia's hard-hitting Wahoos. This contest will be played somewhere on Emerson Field on Friday afternoon. The rest of the men will comprise the backbone of the 1948 junior varsity nine and they'll be given every opportunity to win themselves a spot on the varsity roster.

Heading The List

Heading the list of men who'll be in uniform for the inaugural tilt are pitchers Vinnie DiLorenzo, the stylish southpaw and workhorse of the '47 team, Frank Robinson, Tommy Andrew, Dean Cassell, Ray Blair, and George Whitted; first basemen John Gregory, Jim Hobbs, and Jack Brasington; keystoners Dallas Branch and co-captain Jim "Pappy" Hamilton; shortstops Rip Ryan and Doc Cranford; co-captain Jim Hayworth, the lone third baseman; catchers Sid Varney, Emmett Cheek, and Andy Tranavitch; and outfielders Jim Kelly, defending Big Four batting champ, Kenny Black, Frank Jones, Ott Evans, and Harry Beason.

WALTER RABB

. . . Hearn's Handy Helper

The biggest problem confronting coaches Hearn, Rabb, and House has been locating a playing field for their charges. Last week's unusually good weather for this town not only succeeded in bringing out the blossoms of the local trees, etc., but it also aroused the construction company workers from their winter-long hibernation. They have been bustling around for over a week now in a berated attempt to whip the field into shape for the opener. Whether or not they'll be successful in their task depends on the weather.

The week's workouts disclosed to most observers that although the present edition of the pelota-pelters definitely won't set the Southern Conference on fire. It will be far from a push over. DiLorenzo's curveballing performances in the practice games labeled him as perhaps the top portsider in the Big Four. Robinson has apparently shaken off the arm miseries that plagued him all last spring and the fireballing righthander will be ready to team with the New Jersey lefty to give the Tar Heels a terrific one-two mound punch.

Righthanders Andrew, bothered by a sore flipper, Blair, and Cassell are other Carolina hurlers of whom Tar Heel opponents will be seeing a lot. A pair of lefties, sore-armed Les Sharpe and freshman Bill McGinn, are also rated highly by the local mentors.

The Tar Heels should also be just about as strong in the receiving department as on the mound. Expected to guard the plate this spring as well as they guarded the Carolina goal line last fall are the potent pair of gridders, Varney and Cheek, who swing from th left and right sides, respectively. The slugging duo, who kept the outfielders busy whenever they swung in batting practice, are ably supported by the rifle-armd Tranavitch, a freshman Massachusetts Yankee.

Hobbs and Brasington have been giving smooth - working Gregory a run for his post at first while Branch and Hamilton are expected to divide the chores at second. Ryan will be opening at shortstop for the third straight year with Cranford, who moved up from last year's jayvees, ready to step in for relief.

At present, Hayworth, who handled the catching duties last season, is the only hot corner guardian. Joe Eldridge had been spelling the tobacco-chomping third sacker in the early practice sessions but he suffered a broken

(See BASEBALL, page 4)

Half of Tennis Flock Is Still Astray But Coach Not Worried by Prospectus

Genial John Kenfield was back at his post of head Tar Heel tennis coach yesterday afternoon to be greeted by about only half of his expected turnout of netters.

The truth of the matter was that some of the local racqueteers weren't back from their vacations as yet, but are to be expected in full force this afternoon.

Among those on hand were Clark Taylor, last year's No. 2 singles star, who spent part of the afternoon in practice deadlock with teammate Charlie Rice, another regular of the past season. Later in the day, Taylor, who seems to have the energy to play as long as there is daylight, squared off against Heath Alexander, the Charlotte lad who saw limited varsity service during the past campaign.

On other courts two other tried-and-true performers displayed their talents to any watchers, as Duke Wilder and Bert Ingram engaged in several sets of the felt-pounding art.

One newcomer was noticeably in attendance, that being Paul Keenan, a freshman of unknown quality and quantity from Chicago. Keenan showed signs that he would be worth watching.

From the looks and sound of things, Coach Kenfield seemed well pleased with the way the early drills were moving. With the opening match now but a few days away, the mild-mattered tutor is pushing the polishing and priming of his charges to the limit.

As to those not in attendance during the day, Kenfield felt that since the majority of the absentees were engaging in conditioning drills at their home courts, there would be little time lost in bringing them in to the general swing of things here.

SPORTS MEETING

There will be a meeting—all important—of the Daily Tar Heel sports department this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Daily Tar Heel sports ofifce. Assignments for the quarter will be made and the Stanky-Sanders trade will be openly discussed.

All old cliche-ists and any new scribes are invited to attend. Spectators are acceptable.

Runners Schedule Ten Competitions

Five large-scale competitions and five dual meets are the hurdles that Carolina's 1948 track team will be faced with this spring, according to the cinder schedule released last week by Coach Bob Fetzer.

The Tar Heel tracksters will face Georgia Tech, Virginia, State, Navy and Duke in dual competition while select units of the Blue and White track and field squad will compete in the Florida, Penn, and Carolina relays along with the Southern Conference and IC4A competition.

The local runners were undefeated in dual meet competition during the past season, edging Navy and Tech each by one point in spectatular victories and romping over neighboring Duke. The 1947 Tar Heels were also Southern conference champions.

Virginia and State, two of Carolina's traditional track rivals, return to the schedule after an absence of several years.

The complete schedule:

March 27—Florida Relays at Gainesville.

April 3—Carolina Relays, here; April 10—Georgia Tech, Here; April 17—Virginia, here; April 23-24—Penn Relays, Philadelphia; April 24—State, Raleigh.

May 1—Open; May 8—Navy, here; May 14-15—Southern conference, here; May 22—Duke, Durham; May 29—IC4A championships.

Sper to Enter NCAA Diving This Weekend

Norm Sper (rhymes with cheer), the Tar Heel diving ace, will compete in the NCAA swimming championships at the University of Michigan swimming pool at Ann Arbor this weekend.

Sper alone will carry the Carolina colors in the national event, but in the Honeywood sophomore, the Tar Heels rate a possibility of winning one if not two championships.

The two events Sper will enter are the one and three-meter diving events. Sper placed in the three meter competition last year and rules as one of the favorites in both departments this weekend.

COED BADMINTON

Today is the last day that coeds may file entries for the Women's spring badminton tourney. Those interested should contact Jo Ann Adkins before midnight tonight. Play starts March 30.

Dr. William Kohn

OPTOMETRIST

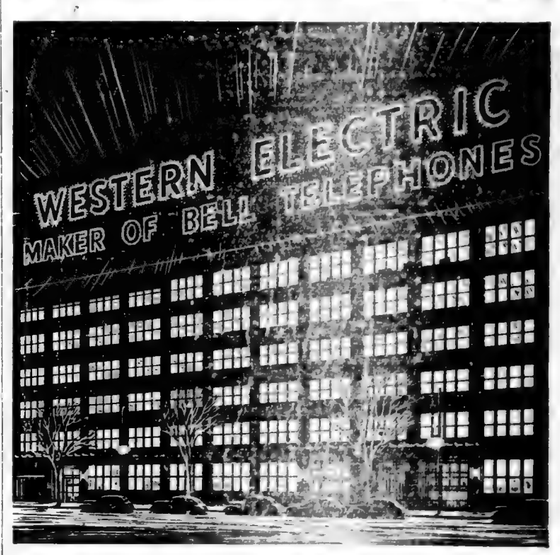
Phone 3686

Over Carolina Coffee Shop

Office hours

9:00-1:00 Sat.

9:00-5:00 Tues. & Thurs.



PRESCRIPTIONS

Filled Promptly

ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY

—at—

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

Quick Service

DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY

215 W. Main St.

Phone F-2141 Durham

CAROLINA NOW PLAYING

EVERYONE WANTS TO SEE IT AGAIN!

GONE WITH THE WIND

in Technicolor

COMPLETE! INTACT!

EXACTLY AS ORIGINALLY SHOWN

CONTINUOUS SHOWINGS

Hours of Shows

1 — 4:57 — 8:58

Welcome

Back to Carolina

and for those warm nights we have Ice Cold

Miller Highlite

Barbarosa

Schlitz

delivered to your door without extra cost

CALL 3536

K & M

BEER DELIVERY SERVICE

119 N. Columbia

REGISTRATION FOR SPRING QUARTER NOW OPEN

Ball Room Dancing

Don't leave your Dancing to chance! Be prepared for that coming dance. Assure yourself of popularity! Learn the quickest and easiest way possible—through concentrated effort and practical experience at the WHERRY STUDIO. Guaranteed progress in the minimum length of time.

Hundreds of men and women wonder why their social life is a doomed failure, so don't let the same thing happen to you. Learn the right things to say and do on a dance floor. Then your evenings at home will become exciting nights of gay parties.

If you are a good dancer popularity and dates are assured. The whispered grapevine system shouts your desirability. For women it goes like this: "A marvelous dancer—no chance of getting stuck—but I'd like to! Dances like a dream." And with men, the girls sigh: "Love than man and his dancing! He's terrific on the dance floor. I'd rather dance with him than any other man I know."

Don't delay! Register today for spring quarter.

WHERRY STUDIO

"If You Can Walk, You Can Dance

FOX TROT TANGO JITTER BUG SAMBA WALTZ RUMBA

6 Lessons $15 Small Groups — Couples — 6 Lessons $25 Per Person — 10 Lessons $15

219 E. Franklin St. For Appointments Phone 9291

What's back of that name for YOU?

Back of the name Western Electric are 130,000 men and women who help make your Bell Telephone service the world's best—at the lowest possible cost.

Where are they? What do they do?

They're in factories in 18 cities, making vast amounts of telephone equipment designed by their teammates at Bell Telephone Laboratories.

They're all over the map, buying all kinds of Bell System supplies from other manufacturers.

They're at 29 distributing houses, filling orders from Bell Telephone companies for apparatus and supplies.

More than 31,000 of them are in mobile crews installing intricate central office switchboards and equipment.

In doing this huge job—one of the most complex in industry—Western Electric people are contributing daily to the efficiency and economy of your Bell Telephone service.

Western Electric

A UNIT OF THE BELL SYSTEM SINCE 1882

Naturalist Will Show Bird Films At Pick Theater

By Donald MacDonald

When the Chapel Hill Bird club sponsors the showing of "South Along the Suwannee" in the Pick theater tonight at 8 o'clock, the nature film's author and photographer will be there in person to provide a running commentary.

Allan D. Cruickshank is the photographer's name, and he is sufficiently eminent in the field of nature photography to have been included in "Who's Who In America." Audubon scholars and ornithologists everywhere are well acquainted with his works which have appeared recently in "Life" magazine, in "Audobon" magazine, in his recent book "Wings in the Wilderness" and in the book which his wife wrote, "Bird Islands Down East."

Cruickshank's photographs have been used as illustration in a half hundred other volumes—once even in a mathematics textbook. A native New Yorker, he is the author of "Birds Around New York City", a 500-page guide of various birds in that region.

The young photographer was graduated from New York university with a unique ambition. He decided to work towards photographing creditably, and in their natural habitats, every one of the more than seven hundred species of wild birds found in the United States. His task has caused him to travel with camera more than a quarter of a million miles, and his ambition hasn't been completed yet.

His subjects—every kind of species from hummingbirds no larger than a human thumb to giant condors with eleven-feet wing spreads—have taken him over perilous cliffs, through dangerous Florida swamps, into every sort of terrain and climate. More than once, he has taken falls from high places—like the time he somersaulted to a three-point landing after a chestnut tree branch snapped fifteen feet up. Again at the Audubon Nature camp in Maine, while photographing young ospreys from the top of a fifty-feet white pine, the limb snapped and Cruickshank plummeted to the ground with two cracked ribs.

The movie tonight, for which the admission price is 50 cents or by season ticket, was filmed in the spring of 1946 during a trip down the Suwannee River in southwestern Florida.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

Fashion's "Honor Grads"
SEAM-FREE NYLONS
WITH PATENTED HEEL
Taking first place in college activities that call for smart attire, the nylons which bear the Seal of the DANCING TWINS feature the patented Gusset Heel* for snug fit, the Gussetoe for comfort...plus a care-free, seam-free beauty! Sold under leading brand names at smart college shops and stores.
*U. S. Pat. No. 2388640

Spearman and Young . . .

Local Fire Shows That Two Professors Have Nose for News, Domestic Flair

By Roland Giduz

Like most North Carolina towns, Chapel Hill has a volunteer fire department. But peculiarly, it also has an independent and possibly supplementary volunteer fire department in the persons of a pair of versatile University professors.

Evidence of this was proved by those two dignified pedagogical gentlemen in connection with a recent fire at the home of one of their fellow culture custodians.

Got a Nose, Anyway

Walter Spearman, professor of journalism, but his profession to a practical use March 7, and proved he has a true nose for news—or else phenomenal nose for smelling smoke.

Upon hearing the local fire horn sound at about 8:10 in the evening, he realized the alarm was for ward 46 in the McCauley-Pittsboro street area about a mile away from his home. Being a naturally interested person in current hot news as well as a good neighbor, he telephoned the home of the first friend he could think of in that district. Professor Foster Fitz-Simons, who lives at 208 McCauley street. Knowing that the dramatic arts teacher and his wife had left for New York scarcely two hours before, he explained the situation to the person who answered the telephone, and asked if she knew where the fire was.

It Might Be Here

"Well, the second floor is full of smoke, and the fire trucks are coming here," shot back a harried voice.

Spearman then realized that the Fitz-Simons' mothers-in-law and the three children were the only ones there, so springing into action he hastily grabbed a taxi-cab to the scene.

Upon arrival, the genial journalist and wartime Quartermaster corps lieutenant took complete domestic charge of the situation in his own inimitable professorial fireman's manner.

Young to the Rescure

In the meantime, his wife had telephoned a mutual friend, University Choral Director Paul Young and asked him to speed to the assistance of their fellow faculty member's family.

While firemen scurried through the second story windows via ladders, and ran a hose through the front door and up the stairs, Professor Spearman, the two ladies and three kiddies presented a scene of comfortable Sunday evening family life to the several hundred spectators outside as they relaxed in the living room and chatted unconcernedly about the blaze.

As smoke poured out of all second story windows in the frame dwelling, the youngsters. Gordon, four, and Shawn, six, kept up with the general proceedings while Terrence, a tot of 17 months, maintained a bored, if not annoyed look on the whole affair.

Fire Not Serious

As it turned out, Terrence was fairly justified. Firemen reported that damage was negligible and that the blaze had been extinguished in approximately 20 minutes. It appeared to have originated in the mattress in Foster and Marion's bedroom and was confined to that local area.

As the trucks pulled away from the scene, Choral Director Young pulled into it, stopped singing and started singeing. Throwing off his Sunday coat, together with Spearman he spent a good professorial period of exercise getting the water out of the second floor and generally cleaning up the mess.

After that? Of course! They sat down for a real visit. "Nothing unusual," Spearman smilingly explained. "Just trying to be good neighbors."

BRITISH THEATER

London, March 24—(UP)—The British government will ask Parliament to provide funds for a national theater worthy of Shakespearean tradition.

The announcement was made by the Chancellor of the Exchequr, Sir Stafford Cripps, before the House of Commons.

Cripps says the London county council has indicated that it will approve the building of a tax-free theater on the south bank of the Thames. The Labor government believes up to $4,000,000 will be needed to do the job.

Pre-Med Advisors

Dean Spruill, and Dean Berryhill of the Medical school, and Dean William S. Wells of the College of Arts and Sciences, are planning now to institute an advisory system for pre-medical students who have petitioned for a separate advisor.

Dean Spruill also sees the need for a special adviser for superior students who, he feels, presents a most important opportunity and obligation to the University. This adviser would study applications to discover those students with superior qualifications and would confer with them regarding the possibility of advanced standing. He could consult general College department heads in an attempt to increase University interest in superior students and, as with all students, would provide conferences with the individual student for discussion of selection of courses and formulation of programs of study.

—Baseball—

(Continued from page 3)

wrist bone last Friday when he stopped one of Robinson's high hard ones with his arm. John Senter, a freshman from Raleigh, rejoined the squad after this accident and he will probably break into the lineup later in the season.

Kelly, the stocky state batting champ, and fleet-footed "Whitey" Black head the crew of gardeners. Kelly will begin to defend his hitting crown from the left field slot while Black, the crafty leadoff man, will once again capably fill the midfield position. Jones, Beason, and Evans will fight it out for the remaining picket post.

Winter Grades To Be Ready April 1

Grades for the past quarter might not be processed and released until April 1, according to statements from South building officials yesterday. However, students in doubt may determine whether they passed all their courses by reporting to Memorial hall today through Saturday between 9 and 1 o'clock in the morning and 2 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

At that time notices of incompletion will be given to those who failed subjects, missed final examinations, or were legitimately excused. This information is necessary in order that dropping and adding of courses might be finished by Monday.

Rev. Yates Lists Episcopal Services

Holy Week services at the Episcopal church were listed yesterday by Reverend David Yates, who announced that Holy Communion would be held at 7:15 and 10 o'clock this morning, special services at 5:15 this afternoon and commemoration of the institution of the Lord's Supper at 8 o'clock this evening.

Tomorrow a three-hour service will be held for Good Friday from noon to 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Reverend Yates asked that worshippers please enter and leave the church only during the singing of hymns, so as not to disturb the services.

OIL TITLE

Washington, March 24—(UP)—A House judiciary subcommittee has approved a bill that would give the states clear title to oil-bearing tidelands, however, the federal government would keep its authority to develop navigation, flood control and reclamation projects on inland waters. The provision was not in a similar bill approved recently by a Senate judiciary subcommittee.

For Gum's Sake
Buy modern Olag Tooth Paste, oil base, soothing to gums and enemy of decay. Users report remarkably healtheir gums, whiter teeth, less tarter, and say, "my mouth feels cleaner, longer." Recommended by many dentists. Use Olag exclusively and watch results.
DENTAL HEALTH

AT ALL DRUG STORES

New And Used
TEXT BOOKS
For All Courses
At UNC
Ab's Intimate Bookshop

Buy Your BEER
By The
CASE
Delivered Free
ICE COLD
To Your Door
Within Minutes
Of Your Call
Phone 3536
K & M
BEER DELIVERY
SERVICE
119 N. Columbia

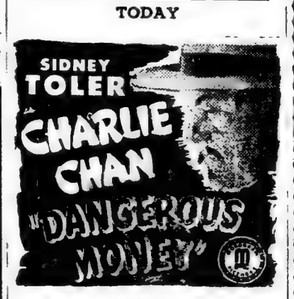
CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

TWO BEDROOM HOUSE IN CHAPEL Hill T. V. Cauble, 33 Oakwood Drive. (1-1868-1)

TWENTY-FOUR FOOT 1942 TRAILER. Red Arrow. Excellent condition. Priced for quick sale. $974.00 (reduced from $1095). No. 246 B-V-P Trailer Park. (1-1866-1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B



OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

MEN OVER TWENTY WITH ABILITY to lead and work with boys. To serve ten weeks this summer as counselors on staff at Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Good pay, wonderful environment, room and board. Only those with outstanding qualifications need apply. Apply J. Watson Holyfield, Director of Camp Sea Gull, Raleigh Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 3)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 122 West Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGBURN Furniture Co., Phone 5841. (ch 1x1)

VILLAGE
TODAY

ALSO CARTOON—NOVELTY

Trade In Your Old Ties
Send me 1 to 6 old ties and in return I will send you the same amount of different ties cleaned and blocked. You pay postman $1.00.
SWAP A TIE COMPANY
P.O. Box 85 West Durham, N. C.

Join the Parade of Thrifty Shoppers at A&P for GRAND VALUES IN FINE Easter Foods
A&P ESTABLISHED 1859
Jane Parker HOT CROSS BUNS Pkg. 25c
Jane Parker EASTER LAYER CAKE Each 69c
Paas EGG DYES 3 Pkg. 25c
Worthmore Jelly Beans Lb. Pkg. 25c
Iona Tomato JUICE No. 2 Can 10c
Fine Granulated SUGAR 5-Lb Pkg. 45c
Ann Page Salad Dressing Pt. Jar 33c
A&P Cream Style Corn No. 2 Can 19c
Duff's Hot Roll Mix Pkg. 25c
Dromadary Devil's Food Mix Pkg. 23c
Nabisco Ritz Crackers 1-Lb. Pkg. 31c
SUNNYBROOK GRADE A LARGE FRESH EGGS 1-Doz. Ctn. 49c

SKINNED HAMS Whole or String End Lb. 59c
BUTT END, Lb. 00
SULTANA APPLE BUTTER Prepared with Apples, Sugar and Spice 28-oz. Jar 19c
CHEESE Mild American Lb. 49c
APPLE SAUCE A&P Fancy 2 No. 2 Cans 25c
GRAPEFRUIT Packers Label JUICE 3 No. 2 Cans 25c
IONA PEAS Fine Flavor 3 No. 2 Cans 29c
PIE APPLES Comstock 2 No. 2 Cans 29c
SPARKLE Ann Page Gelatin Dessert 3 Pkgs 19c
PEACHES Iona Yellow Cling Sliced or Halves No. 2½ Can 25c
FRUIT COCKTAIL Sultana No. 1 Can 24c
SPAGHETTI Ann Page Prepared 2 15¾-oz Cans 23c
MILD & MELLOW COFFEE 8 O'CLOCK 1-Lb. Bag 40c • 3 1-Lb. Bag $1.15
BOKAR 1-Lb. Bag 45c
SUNNYFIELD SELF-RISING FLOUR 5-Lb. Bag 41c • 10-Lb Bag 80c
A&P's Own Vegetable Shortening dexo 3 Lb. Can $1.17
SUNNYFIELD ASSORTED CEREALS Pkg. 27c
SUNNYFIELD CORN FLAKES 8-oz. Pkg. 12c
OTHER FINE QUALITY MEATS
Whole or Half LEG O LAMB, lb. 65c
Cross cut SHOULDER LAMB, lb. 45c
Boned or Rolled RIB ROAST, lb. 79c
Short Shanked Picnic SMOKED HAMS, lb. 49c
LAMB STEW, lb. 25c
CHUCK ROAST, Bone in, lb. 57c
LONG ISLAND DUCKS, lb. 45c
Porterhouse, Pin Bone, Sirloin, T-Bone and Round SUPER RIGHT STEAKS, lb. 89c
FRYERS, Table Dressed, lb. 68c
HENS, Table Dressed, lb. 56c
FRESH SEAFOOD
ROE SHAD BUCK SHAD ROCK FISH
COOKED SHRIMP FRESH SHRIMP
SCALLOPS H & G WHITING OYSTERS
FILLETS HADDOCK FILLETS PERCH
You Save More at A & P
FRESH Fruits AND Vegetables In Great Varieties!

Fresh Tender GREEN BEANS, 2 lbs. 25c
LETTUCE, Large Iceberb, 3 heads 25c
CARROTS, Fresh & Tender, 2 bunches 23c
POTATOES, New Red Bliss, 5 lbs. 39c
WINESAP APPLES, Boxed, 2 lbs 20c
FLORIDA GRAPEFRUIT, Large, 5 for 25c
YELLOW SQUASH, Fresh, 2 lbs. 39c
FLORIDA ORANGES, Large, 2 doz. 55c
TOMATOES, Firm & Ripe, 1 lb carton 29c
IDAHO BAKING POTATOES, 10 lbs. 79c
FRESH SPRING ONIONS, 2 bunches 25c
FRESH TENDER BROCCOLI, lb. 19c
PALMOLIVE SOAP Reg. Bar 10c 2 Bath Size 29c
DUZ Lge. Pkg. 36c
SPIC and SPAN 2 Pkgs. 43c
DREFT Pkg. 33c
OCTAGON SOAP 2 Bars 19c
OCTAGON SOAP FLAKES Pkg. 36c
A&P SUPER MARKETS
MEATS AND FISH • FRUITS AND VEGETABLES • GROCERIES • BAKERY • DAIRY

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Cloudy and warm with scattered showers tonight.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
As A Citizen
Welcome Spring
Six Day Week

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, MARCH 26, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NUMBER 124

Charlie Long Announces Presidential Candidacy

One-Act Old English Play Will Highlight Early Easter Service

By Virginia Forward

With the early morning sky for a background, the Forest theater Easter sunrise service Sunday morning will include a one-act Old English play of the 15th century, music, prayers, and scripture readings.

Although in former years the service has been primarily a function of the campus YMCA and YWCA groups, this year the participation and planning are being shared with the entire community. Representatives of both student and adult groups from each of the churches in Chapel Hill form the central planning committee. Mrs. Robert Nelson heads this group.

Rutgers Press Publication

Following the formal worship program and highlighting the service will be the presentation of an Old English resurrection play translated and arranged by Kai Jurgensen and Bob Schenk. The play is one out of a book of plays to be published by Rutgers University press in the fall.

Entitled "Fourteen Plays for the Church" the book was translated into modern English by the Wakefield Trade guilds and includes plays, connected with the liturgy of the Church translated from Middle English, Middle German, Italian, Old English and Latin.

World Premiere

Judgensen, of the dramatic arts department, who worked as translator with the Wakefield guild, said, "The main purpose of the book is to provide the churches with good dramatic material. The average church play is not up to par and so these ancient plays, which are good, were assembled for use by the churches." Mr. Judgensen added that the service Sunday morning will see the first presentation of any of the 14 plays.

With basic work on the production of the play completed, the cast went into rehearsals last Monday while most students were home for spring vacations. Practices will continue each afternoon in the Forest theater according to David Samples, graduate student in drama, who is directing the production. R. J. Cameron is assistant director.

Wesley Players Support

The play, which will last around 25 minutes, has in its main parts, Jim Geiger, playing the role of Pilate, A. E. Westover as Caiaphus, Fred Johnson as Centurio, Edsel Hughes as Jesus, Gloria Gum as Mary Magdelan, Pat Palmer and Marjorie Cameron as the other two Marys, W. P. Covington III as Annus, and the Rev. Robert Nelson as Captain of the Guard. Other supporting roles will be played by members of the Wesley players.

Mrs. Fred McCall, director of elementary school music, will be in charge of a processional and recessional by school children. Music for the service will include recorded medieval music, hymns by local choirs, chimes from the bell tower played by Charles Stevens, and a brass quartet directed by David Arner.

New DTH Staff

All students interested in working on the staff of the Daily Tar Heel should report to the DTH office at 2 o'clock this afternoon. All regular staff members will also be expected to be present at that time.

Anyone interested in working who is unable to come at 2 o'clock may report later, although presence at the general staff meeting is desirable.

Students May Register For Bond Issue

Today Is Final Day For All Registration; Voting To Be April 6

By Charles Craven

Qualified students may vote in the April 6 $260,000 bond issue election to be held for the purpose of improving local sewage and street facilities, and today is the final day for registering, town officials announced yesterday.

It was pointed out that students in Chapel Hill on a temporary basis are not encouraged to register but those who have reached the age of 21 and have had residence in the state for one year and Chapel Hill for four months may register if they wish. Permanent Chapel Hill residents who have registered previously for any municipal election will not be required to register again.

An ordinance authorizing the election was passed some time ago by the local Board of Aldermen when it was apparent that sewage conditions were becoming critical. The proposed bond issue includes provisions for the paving and asphalting of nine local streets.

Sewage conditions have been described by various officials and others as being deplorable. In a statement released recently by a special committee appointed to study the proposed bond issue it was said that "the present sewage disposal plant, which was planned 25 years ago to take care of a population of 7500, is now overloaded to the extent of double its capacity. The new plant proposed the old and new plants together would provide immediately for a population of 22,500 and for a maximum population of 37,500."

The report quoted health officials as declaring, "The present plant is totally inadequate. Raw sewage is polluting our streams and serving as a source of a potential outbreak of the intestinal-born diseases which could assume alarming proportions."

An editorial appearing in the Greensboro Daily News March 23 declared that the local municipal election is of statewide concern since young people from all over the state spend the greater part of their time at the University in Chapel Hill. The state legislature has appropriated $2-25,000 to be included in the University budget and this amount will be used in support of the bond issue if it is approved by citizens who vote in the coming election.

DROP-ADD FORMS

All pre-registered students who filled out drop and add forms last quarter for spring quarter courses must pick them up in 308 South and personally take them to Venable X, registeration office, before the changes will go into effect.

Dance Tomorrow Nite Honors New Students

New Students will be given a further opportunity to become acquainted with Carolina activities and with older students at a dance to be given in their honor tomorrow night in Graham Memorial's main lounge.

The dance will be open to old as well as new students with no admission charge, and will run from 8:30 until 12 o'clock. Johnny Satterfield and his orchestra will provide music for dancing.

Under the direction of Bill Shuford, director of the student union, the dance will be planned around a spring theme, with decorations of flowers and Easter motifs. Members of the Graham Memorial staff will complete arrangements for the affair.

THIS YEAR'S selection as the "Maid of Cotten," Matilda Nail of Fort Worth, Texas, poses in front of the capitol in Washington. She came to the nation's capital for a round of celebrations.

(International)

STATE BRIEFS

New Look Hits Chain Letters

Winston-Salem, March 25 — (UP) — The postmaster at Winston-Salem says that a new version of the chain letter — one using tea towels as a come-on — is just as illegal as the original form. He says several linen towels and chain letters have been intercepted. He adds that the letters promise persons who carry on the chain that they will receive enough towels to stock a dry goods store.

Cherry Names Three

Raleigh, March 25 — (UP) — Governor Cherry has appointed three North Carolina delegates to the Third National Conference on Citizenship to be held in the nation's capital May 16 through 19. His appointees are Doctor D. J. Rose of Goldsboro, Wiley M. Pickens of Raleigh and Mrs. Walter G. Craven of Charlotte.

Negro Indicted

Sanford, March 25 — (UP) — The Lee County Grand Jury has indicted a 50-year-old Negro on charges of first-degree murder. Caleb McMillan is charged in the murder of his wife. Hattie Jane McMillan was found shot to death in bed Wednesday and her husband still has not been found.

Sheriff A. Glenn Buchanan says that a note left by McMillan gave burial instructions for his wife and himself. The sheriff says McMillan also wrote that he knew nothing about the shooting of Otis McNeill, a Negro neighbor whose body was found in the Deep river near Sanford last Saturday.

Hearing Postponed

Kinston, March 25 — (UP) — Recorder Albert W. Cooper of Kinston has postponed a hearing on bad check charges brought against candidate for Governor W. F. Stanley, Sr., of Kinston. Stanley's attorney has asked for time to permit Stanley to make restitution. Cooper has continued the case until April 26.

UVA Planning Spring Social Activities; 'Welcome-Back' Dance Is Tomorrow Night

The University Veterans association will hold a "Welcome Back" dance tomorrow night at 8:30 in the clubhouse behind Lenoir hall.

President Johnny Clampitt said yesterday that the dance floor has been refinished for the affair and the snack bar will be open.

Membership chairman Dick Cohan said yesterday that membership tickets are now being sold from a booth in the book exchange line. Tickets for the spring quarter are $1 each.

Cohan also announced that the clubhouse and snack bar will be open every night this quarter. There will also be the regular Tuesday night open houses and other social events.

Clampitt has called a Board of Governors meeting for Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The board will plan a program of UVA events for the quarter to be under the chairmanship of A. B. Coleman.

The club is planning to investigate the rumored surplus in the National life insurance for veterans, Clampitt said.

Campus Is Getting New Spring Look

The campus is currently being helped into its new spring look by the University building and grounds workmen under the direction of F. J. LeClair of the United States Department of Agriculture.

"Mr. LeClair is supervising the shrubbery trimming and replanting pobs that are now being done on campus," University Superintendent J. S. Bennett explained.

Bennett said much of the campus greenery was sadly overgrown and misshapen and was having to be cut low in order to control growth.

"We cut it way back now, and in the coming years we can trim it to our desires."

Some shrubs are being dug up completely, Bennett continued, and are to be replaced with new plants. Bushes are also being planted around Stacy dormitory for the first time.

Mag Veteran Survey Gets 1,350 Answers

The poll of veterans, "VE plus 3," conducted by the Carolina Magazine during the week preceeding vacation brought an unexpected avalanche of answers numbering more than 1,350.

Having expressed their sincere appreciation for the large representative vote, Magazine editors still face the problem of counting the results of the poll. A time saving system has been devised which lacks everything but participants. Anyone interested is asked to come to the Carolina Magazine office, Graham Memorial, 3 o'clock on Saturday.

SP Meets Tonight To Replace Baker

The Student party will meet this evening at 9 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge 1 of Graham Memorial to consider a nominee to replace Herman Baker, SP vice-presidential candidate who withdrew from school at the end of last quarter.

The party will also consider nominations for senior and sophomore class officers and also a vice-presidential nominee for the Carolina Athletic association. All SP candidates in the spring elections are urged to attend the meeting in order to discuss campaigns and publicity, according to Chairman Gran Childress.

Lehigh Faculty Approves Plan For Own Grades

Bethlehem, Pa. —(I.P.)— The Lehigh university faculty has approved a plan for student appraisal of courses and instructors originated by Arcadia, student council, as an expression of democratic cooperation and freedom.

Each student will be asked to grade his instructor "above average," "average," or unsatisfactory" on the following:

1. Clarity of presentation and interpretation;
2. Success in bringing a sound foundation in the course;
3. Preparation for class meetings;
4. Effectiveness in arousing interest and response;
5. Stimulus to critical and independent thinking;
6. Interest and effectiveness in giving individual help;
7. Definiteness in assignments, directions and outlining the requirements of the course;
8. Friendliness toward students;
9. Fairness in grading quizzes;
10. Promptness in closing and opening class periods.

In appraising the course, students will "grade" questions on previous interest in subject matter, value of assigned reading, quality of textbooks used, and the quantity, difficulty and emphasis of tests.

Hillel Features Purim In Tonight's Services

The Jewish "Purim" festival will be the theme of tonight's Hillel services in Roland Parker lounge at 7:30.

Services will be followed by a social at which the customary holiday pastries will be served.

Purim is a unique festival in that its character is social and convivial rather than religious or moral. It relates to that Biblical story of Esther, a beautiful Jewess of Susa, who was Queen by Xerxes, King of Persia.

Wine 'Em and Dine 'Em . . .

'Extra-Curricular' Activities Are Planned To Fill Off-Duty Hours Of Conventionists

Philadelphia — (UP) — Delegates and visitors to the two national political conventions this summer will have lots of recreation after business hours.

Special committees of both the Democratic and Republican parties have arranged for convention visitors to go places and see things, from baseball games and open air concerts to night-clubbing and tours of historic places.

Neither party program is definite, but the tentative schedules offer delegates and their wives enough to keep them busy with "extra-curricular" activities if they never attend a session.

The Republicans open their convention first, on June 21. However, the events actually will start the preceding Tuesday when the 106-member national committee meets to take care of last-minute details.

Many Attractions

They will be wined and dined in off-duty hours by the official host and hostess of the GOP convention — G. Mason Owlett, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, and committeewoman Mrs. Worthington Scranton. On June 18, they will attend the annual Philadelphia music festival at Municipal Stadium, followed the next evening by the dinner to be given by National Chairman Carroll Reece.

All delegates are expected to be in town in time for the special services Sunday, June 20, at historic Holy Trinity Episcopal Church on Rittenhouse Square. The services will be televised. In the afternoon the convention delegates will visit nearby Valley Forge for patriotic services.

On Monday, during the afternoon recess before the keynote address, more patriotic services will be held at Independence Hall.

To Hear Symphonies

All the activity will not be solemn, however. Both parties plan to make good use of the Robin Hood Dell symphony concerts in Fairmount Park. The Republican committee on arrangements has reserved a block of 3,000 tickets for each of four evening concerts. Democrats plan similar arrangements.

Visitors to both conventions probably will have a chance to see Philadelphia's famous "mummers' " string bands parading in the elaborate costumes they usually wear for the annual New Year's day parade.

Delegates who prefer their recreation on the sporting side will be able to see baseball games at Shibe Park. The Phillies meet Cincinnati during the Republicans' stay in town, and the Athletics meet Cleveland in a three-game series during the Democratic convention. Early arrivals will see other games.

GOP visitors can adjourn to New York 90 miles away on June 23rd for the Joe Louis-Jersey Joe Walcott fight. Racing enthusiasts among the Republicans will have to go to Deleware Park, in Stanton, Del., about 35 miles away. Democrats will have to journey to Monmouth Park in Northern New Jersey to get in a day at the races. Special trains leave Philadelphia daily for the tracks.

Both parties have arranged to est and biggest U. S. Mint, Independence Hall where the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States were signed and where the Liberty Bell reposes.

The weatherman, while not making any promises, said the temperature should stay in the low 70s for the GOP convention and the middle 70s for the Democrats.

Former SP Chairman, Speaker Pro Tem Is Seeking Presidency As Independent

By Chuck Hauser

Charlie Long, former SP chairman and speaker pro tempore of the Student Legislature, has become the third independent candidate to enter the race for the presidency of the student body in the April 6 general elections.

CHARLIE LONG

Long announced his candidacy before he left for Fredericksburg, Virginia, where he is representing the University in the Grand National Forensic debate tournament being held at Mary Washington college.

Two Legislative Terms

The candidate, a junior from Thomasville, is a member of President Tom Eller's cabinet, and has seen two terms of service in the Student Legislature, where he has served, in addition to his duties as speaker pro tem, on the Fact-Finding board, the Elections committee, the Finance committee, and in various other capacities.

Long is president of the Executive council of the State Student Legislature, which is scheduled to meet in Raleigh in the state capital on April 16 and 17. He has been both speaker and speaker pro tem of the Dialectic Senate here, having served two terms as president of that organization and one term as its vice-president.

A veteran at student government, the former Student party head resigned from that political organization recently, after he had reportedly refused their nomination for the presidency.

Editorial Column

The European theater veteran is writing an editorial column at present for the Daily Tar Heel—The Political Spotlight. Considered a potential presidential possibility before he withdrew from political activity and began writing his column, Long indicated at that time that he would not be a candidate.

In a statement announcing his intentions of running, he took a stand for redistricting and reapportionment, retention of the appeal power by students, one court system for the entire student body instead of special courts for the Law school, Medical school, etc., and a strong attorney general for the student body with powers to investigate and report any infraction of students' rights under the constitution.

Candidate Releases Formal Statement

(Following is the complete text of the statement released by Charlie Long to declare his candidacy for the presidency of the student body.)

"In entering the race for president of the student body I maintain that there are certain basic issues affecting the student body and the well-being of student government which must be considered and a workable solution reached if we are to continue with a functioning student government.

"No Stand Taken"

"I further maintain that from no quarter has a stand been taken on the issue of redistricting, appellate power of the Student council, extralegal courts for privileged groups and the overall problem of the welfare of students on this campus which will serve the best interests of the students of this University.

"It has now become essential that the executive department be completely reorganized so that it can anticipate and cope with the problems which beset the student of this campus. President Eller has done a commendable job during the past year in making the executive department serving the students, and this trend must be continued and broadened.

"Courts in Muddle"

"At the present time the court system of the campus is in a complete muddle. Out of this chaos must come a system that will assure all students justice. It is my unwavering view that every student here should have the right of appeal to a higher court.

"At the same time I feel that very close scrutiny should be given any special court that might be set up on campus. There is too much danger of creating special courts for special classes of people.

Poor Electoral System

"After a year of failing attempts the campus still does not have an electorial system whereby it can know who is being sent to the Legislature to represent it.

"It is imperative that a redistricting and reapportioning bill be put into effect immediately. Of equal importance is the necessity that the redistricting bill not be slanted so as to favor any one group.

"Finally, the need has been

(See LONG, page 4)

Dr. Sastroamidjojo Visits Dr. Graham

Dr. Ali Sastroamidjojo arrived in Chapel Hill yesterday for a visit with President Graham.

Sastroamidjojo, minister of education for the Republic of Indonesia and spokesman for the Indonesian delegation in the UN Security council, is making a month-long tour of American educational centers.

Dr. Ali is a close friend of Dr. Graham's. They met during the latter's recent service on the Committee of Good Offices which negotiated a compromise settlement in the dispute between the Indonesian Republic and the Royal Netherlands government.

Carolina is the only school in the state which Dr. Ali will visit.

Saturday Classes

The administration stressed the fact yesterday that regular classes are scheduled in all departments tomorrow. The usual Wednesday class schedule for this quarter will be followed.

Tomorrow will be the only day of Saturday classes during the quarter, however, it was pointed out. University officials explained the reason for the move was to include the correct number of hours required by the American Association of Universities.

As a Citizen of the Community

Staff members of the University Infirmary and local and county health officials have long deplored the fact that the Chapel Hill sewage plant is grossly inadequate to serve the needs of a community of 22,500. The present plant was planned 25 years ago for an estimated 15,000 citizens. Chapel Hill has lost its reputation as a healthy community. Medical authorities, who have made a survey study of the sewage disposal plant, state that on many occasions, due to the tremendous overload and strain, raw sewage has overflowed into the streets, endangering the health of the citizens.

A bond issue will be voted on by the citizens of Chapel Hill on April 6, the same date that has been designated for campus elections. The last bond issue that came up for vote in this vicinity was defeated. The Chapel Hill school system was greatly hurt by its defeat.

The sewage disposal system is something that is of interest to the whole community. It is a vital question that students should have a hand in deciding. The need for a more adequate sewage plant is evident. Students who live in dormitories, in Victory Village, in town or the college community will greatly benefit from the bond issue, if passed, because it will insure them of a more healthy invironment. If you are not a registered voter of another municipality you should feel it a duty to vote for this measure. The last day for registration is today. You will be able to register today in the Board of Alderman's room in the Town hall from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Be sure to register.

There will probably be 2,000 students from the University who will register and vote in Chapel Hill for the presidential election. You, as a citizen of Chapel Hill, should take advantage of the oportunity to supply the most immediate need of the community.

A Better Way to Welcome Spring

About this time every spring Chapel Hill is in its height of beauty. The fruit trees and shrubs of the aboretum have blossomed forth and are rendering both beauty to the nostrils and aesthetic beauty. Even the lawns have a luxuriant rug of green grass. It's up to everyone to keep the campus a thing of beauty. Annually the administration has difficulty in keeping students from walking on the grass and marring the beauty of the campus with deeply ridged paths.

Fencing in the grassy plots of the campus would be just as detrimental in destroying the beauty of the campus and so it must be left up to the individual not to kill the grass by walking on it. Each year the situation is cited as deplorable and drastic measures have been used to punish those who persist in walking on the grass. Not infrequently loud speakers have been installed in South building to bark at those who would cut across the court in front of the class buildings.

This year we hope that just a word to the wise will be sufficient to preserve the campus beauty.

Men students of the Battle-Vance-Pettigrew vicinity have been using the campus beside their dormitories as an athletic field. During examination week we noticed that two sports were taking place simultaneously. Baseball enthusiasts were taking batting practice and several persons narrowly missed being hit with a baseball. In another corner golfers were practicing with their irons. Such practices are dangerous for those passing and also harmful to the lawn. The athletic fields would be a more appropriate place to play sports.

We can think of many more pleasant ways of being made cognizant of the arrival of spring than being beaned on the head with a ball.

The Rottenness of the Status Quo

By Bill Robertson

There are times in the lives of each of us when circumstances force us to stop and look around—to think about our past and draw lessons from it in order to prepare for the future. This is especially true today in our country as we graduate from school. In theory, our training is over and we begin to apply what we have learned. In practice, we find that what we have learned in school is a small part of our education for life.

We find a society full of injustices, and crying inequalities; a society, the richest in the world, with one third of its people ill-housed, ill-clothed, and ill-fed; a society with ghettoes worse than anything in modern Europe; a society fed on a diet of cynicism and despair designed by the Luces and the Hearsts to make us accept the moral rottenness of the "status quo", and to reject the idea that there is any dignity in human beings.

And what are the effects of this diet? Here in Chapel Hill, it is more important to build an astronomical observatory to look at the moon than it is to recognize a union of campus workers, to raise their wages, and to give them a greater share in the comforts and securities which modern industry makes possible.

We read of such things as the legal massacre of 8 Negro prisoners by a drunken warden in our home state of Georgia, as it was reported in Henry A. Wallace's New Republic.

Last Saturday the Tar-Heel carried a picture of the ceremonies of the Ku Klux Klan attempting to preserve the "master-race" way of life which received such a crushing defeat in the recent war.

But this brings us to the summing up-for we have not forgotten the recent war. We have not forgotten Leningrad and Stalingrad. We have not forgotten Lidice in Czechoslovakia. We have not forgotten Tarawa, Iwo Jima, and Okinawa. We have not forgotten the achievements of Franklin Delano Roosevelt—a man, imperfect as he was, bitterly hated by the Luces, the Hearsts, and the Gerald L. K. Smiths because his policies made possible the growth of the trade union movement, greater opportunities for the Negro people and other oppressed minorities in our own country, and a victorious alliance against fascism throughout the world. As we review the past it is clear that history is on the side of the people.

Graduation? It seems like we graduated a long time ago. It may have been the night of that first bombing-raid in New Guinea when we were so scared our teeth chattered. Or perhaps it was the first time we received that V-letter from home, informing us that our best friend had been shot down over a Japanese air-base in China. Or that time in the Philippines when we sat down to write the mother of a buddy who had just been killed.

It took a war to make us finish college in the Spring—but that same war produced an outlook that goes with Spring.

Not because we are living at a time which does not require a hard and bitter struggle for the decent things of life. But rather because we now have the convictions we did not have then.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.	Complete Leased Wire of United Press	Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman — NIGHT SPORTS: Bill Kellam

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

NOMINATION FOR THE PULITZER PRIZE FOR AN OUTSTANDING CONTRIBUTION TO LITERATURE

Abigail Stubbs, who works for Eisenhower and didn't write a book.

Campus Forum

No Six Day Week Here

By Pete Gerns

The subject of Saturday classes has been the topic of conversation ever since the visiting committee of the Board of Trustees recommended them in the formal report to the Board of Trustees and the University administration some few weeks ago.

Two of the reasons given by this committee were that the accident rate on the highways could be lowered and that a corresponding increase of boning was expected to take place over the weekend; excessive time would not be spent away from school.

We will not go into the merits of these opinions except to say that greater interest in studies could be stimulated much more positively by increasing local facilities for students and providing for both an increase in pay and living space for the teaching staff, which would no doubt raise the academic level of our school.

Several students expressed their stand on the merits of Saturday classes:

"Facilities in town are not equipped to handle the number of students that would be forced to lay over and as there are very few recreational facilities, it does benefit the student to go home." Curt Clauson.

"I think that Saturday classes are frustrating to anyone who wants to go to the beach." Julia Ross.

"If the purpose of a 6-day week is to keep students off the highways on weekends it won't work. If they're set on going home, they're going home any way and will be in a greater hurry to get there, resulting in faster driving and more accidents. Some students who are not now taking "long-weekends" but are satisfied with Friday night, Saturday and Sunday at home, will start cutting these Saturday classes; and the regular "long-weekenders" will still take Saturday and Monday.

The 5-day week must be satisfactory from an academic standpoint or else the powers that be are a long time deciding otherwise. Also, the weekend offers some students an opportunity to summarize the past weeks' work and to attend to the ordinary details of living that have to be put off during the work week" Watson Suggs, Jr.

"I'm against Saturday classes and can see only one thing in their favor: a corresponding provision for a shorter quarter, giving us a longer vacation time." John Kinsey.

Saturday classes are too much like the semester system in which the courses are given on alternate days, but would not give corresponding benefits to the students with respect to credit received for courses." Kurt Weill.

"It's against my principles to study on Saturday." Bert Hawley.

"After having had two years of Saturday classes, I find that a fellow needs that extra day to do whatever he should desire to do—sleep, go home or elsewhere, or study." Bob Strickland.

"Saturday classes interfere with students desiring to go home. Five days a week are enough of school." Grey Adams.

Clifton Webb, Sophisticate

By Patricia Clary

Hollywood —(UP)— A sophisticate isn't what you think he is, says Clifton Webb, movieland's leading sophisticate. It's the most maligned word in the English language.

Webb says the word, by its Latin derivation, means worldly wisdom. It has nothing to do with snobbery.

"The length of a man's nose, and the degree to which he looks over it," sniffed Webb, "have nothing to do with his sophistication. Nobody could be more unsophisticated than a snob."

The word really refers, Webb said, to a person whose background has made him at home in all situations. Look at Webb himself, for instance. He was discussing the subject while standing on his head—all part of a scene for 20th Century-Fox's "Sitting Pretty."

Webb departs from his usual "sophisticated" roles to play a baby sitter in "Sitting Pretty." But Webb insists he is just as sophisticated, by his definition, changing a diaper as changing his cufflinks.

Should Be Adaptable

"A true sophisticate can adapt himself to any sort of situation," Webb said. "I certainly couldn't claim to be sophisticated if I let a little thing like this bother me.

"Anyway, I love it. I should have been a Keystone Kop, back when they were throwing pies."

In general usage, which Webb deplores, sophistication usually means false sophistication. Than which, he says, there is nothing deadlier or more boring.

"A man can't be false and be sophisticated," he said. "It's a thing that's natural and genuine. I'm flattered to be called a sophisticate."

With that Webb went back to standing on his head. This may or may not prove that you, too can be sophisticated if you'll just invert yourself.

Anyway, what Webb wants you to do is invert your ideas, in case you've had the wrong idea about sophistication.

TOOTHACHE NO ALIBI

Chicago —(UP)— Joseph Schwab, cab driver, said in safety court that a candy bar can cause a lot of trouble. Schwab explained that he ate a candy bar which gave him such a terrible toothache that he had to drink a pint of whiskey. He drew ten days in jail for drunken driving.

Was Hitler Right?

U. S. Leaders Aren't Liberal

(The following article is printed as a contribution from a member of the University English department.)

By Charles E. Johnson, Jr.

This is to present a case for the great martyr of the American cause as we understand it today. I quote from one of his speeches which is recorded in the Manchester Guardian, issues of September 14-15, 1936. The speech was given in two parts on September 13-14, 1936, and it was a justification of military aid to countries which were at that time believed to be in danger of communist aggression.

"I have only one fear—and I say it quite openly—that countries around us into which this Bolshevist poison is eating its way will succumb one after the other. To that we could not be indifferent, for, after all, we are a European nation.

"We fear that other nations may become the prey of that philosophy which we regard without reservation as our most deadly enemy—namely Bolshevism.

"When, in an English newspaper, a supporter of parliamentary government complains that we want to divide Europe into two parts, I am afraid that we shall have to break the unpleasant news to this Robinson Crusoe on his happy British island that this decision has already been made. Not only this, but all those states which have not sought and made a definite decision for one side or the other are inwardly divided against themselves.

"We believe that, sooner or later, no nation, whatever its bourgeois reasonableness and political wisdom, will be spared from making a clear-cut decision. For it is not our fault if Europe is divided into two parts; it is Bolshevism that has attacked the principles of our whole system of the State and of society, our culture, our beliefs, our morality. . .If this Bolshevism only fostered its doctrines in one single country, other countries would not need to trouble about it. But the first principle of this doctrine is its internationalism, that is to say, the belief that it must triumph throughout the whole world, which means turning the world as we know it upside down."

The speaker was Adolf Hitler.

What red-blooded Southern Democrat can say, after observing this reason, that Hitler was not justified in sending German military "aid" to Spain, to Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, etc.? Wasn't Hitler justified, for economic, political, and security reasons, in consolidating Germany under a strong anti-communist regime? Wasn't the Gestapo entitled to keep secret files and report men of "questionable loyalty" to the proper government authorities? . . . to discharge government employees for even associating with people of "questionable loyalty"? Why should we be amazed that Germans began to grow more and more fearful of expressing opinions or of reading books and periodicals which might have been interpreted as Un-German by the Un-German Activities Committee?

Of course, it goes without saying that Hitler's argument for racial supremacy should be applauded both on traditional and reasonable grounds by all good Southern Democrats who don't want to see the party or the country split at a crucial time like this.

The faith that America is guaranteed against Germany's fate simply by our traditions of freedom is not entirely reasonable. Germany too had many fine traditions which were not military. The conceit that America has achieved the only free and abundant way of life is manifestly absurd and somewhat disgusting. This conceit, however, is the excuse for our foreign policy (Americans ironically, believe themselves inherently just and honest). The Germans trusted their motives and culture as completely as we do ours.

To control the world ferably indirectly, but d if necessary), as the only tical" means of insuring national sovereignty, is our cal motive stripped of its crisy and sentimentality. ter our national interests satisfied, it is found that nations can enjoy a measu independence (or if we find independence serves our ate purposes) we will not b tyrants as to deny it to We will be very generou fair in the traditional A way—after we have ev we want and feel absolute cure in our possessions. national identity is inex undergoing some hideous cha in the process seems to be ping us along with the sig cance of what we are doing

If we believe in individu freedom under law we seem be faced with a dilemma ultimate intolerance and narro ness called Americanism distasteful perversion of munism from another quart While we still have the privil of speaking in America, indivi uals must begin to assert the selves as individuals.

If we believe in equality and brotherhood and not in race supremacy nor even discrimination (nor segregation), we must begin to say so, especially we must begin to practice what we believe in. If it is possible for a North Carolina student at the University of Paris to enjoy dignified friendships (in no way condescending) with North and South Carolina Negro students there why are they impossible or undesirable at the University of North Carolina, allegedly a liberal institution?

If we realize that the intimidating methods of the Un-American Activities Committee and the F. B. I. will lead to a certain debacle (one just as ugly as the one they would defend us from), we must ask these agencies, with thanks, to rechannel their efforts in our behalf.

If we have presidents, senators, governors, congressmen who shrewdly but uncourageously avoid taking a pre-election stand on controversial issues, we must ask them to take a stand. If they adroitly evade us still, we must nominate a candidate of our own.

The world situation demands a fundamental shif in loyalty. The doctrine of states' rights becomes ridiculous when the state cannot or will not guarantee its citizens equal opportunity and equal consideration of basic human dignity (it is an indignity to be segregated). Party loyalty, state loyalty, national loyalty are equally absurd when they overlook the primary loyalty of man to the human race and to individual dignity.

We shall have our say in establishing a world government there is no world government now at Washington, Moscow, or Lake Success—but there can be no time wasted. A new conference must be called and delegates chosen who represent primarily not the interests of their nation or sections but, those of the human race.

Just Here

Artificial Woodpeckers Too Noisy

By Larry Berry

We were awakened at what definitely seemed to be a non-union hour this morning by the synthetic woodpecker being used on the Planetarium. I often wonder what the woodpecker make by Nature thinks of this Machine Age intrusion. The John Henrys among the Woodpeckers probably have a very rough time in the vicinity of Chapel Hill. Since there is nothing we can do to stop this bit of progress. I have made my feeble attempt to hasten the silent riveter into actuality.

Life magazine gave a very nice spread to some new-type lenses for eye-glasses this past week. These, models are fixed in such a manner that a person from the outside world will see them only as mirrors, while the user will receive full advantage of the aid to sight offered by any other lense. A number of my friends have been telling me of the remarkable dustiness and de-hydration present in many of the lecture courses they are receiving. It seems that they have to work shifts in keeping each other awake. Now Life has given the answer to both the professor's and the student's prayer. I admit that a few professors may go crazy looking into mirrors where they once looked into eyes—open and otherwise—but students could take a legitimate nap during the more putrid lectures. The belief that war is rapidly approaching has become widespread, so please learned professors give us pre-war lectures that will be worth remembering.

With the return of students to to our brain development center, we very naturally have the return of politics to plague anew the overworked gray matter present. Any number of students seem to be under suspicion of declaring for the various campus offices before the registration deadline. While the backing of a political party is helpful to any candidate, the spirit shown by independent candidates is one of the large factors in making for a representative student government. If you believe you have the necessary qualifications for a particular office; file your candidacy and try. The experience will be enlightening if nothing more.

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

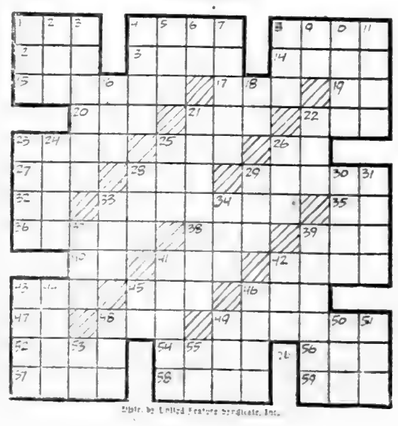
—The season seems to be bringing out the animal in students so they want to get fleeced . . .The rejuvenated barber shop did a brisk business yesterday in its first day of operation. . (Support your student union. . . Get clipped there.)

It's the John Hough trio in the Rendezvous tonight for dancing and listening. . .(twelve degrees cooler in the Rendezvous.). . . Watch for the GM all-building spring carnival, but soon.

First to come to the campus under the new Graham Memorial supervised Student Entertainment committee set-up will be the world-famous Hungarian hypnotist, Dr. Franz Polgar on April 5. . . .He's been to UNC twice before. Ask anyone who's seen him. It's a show you won't want to miss.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



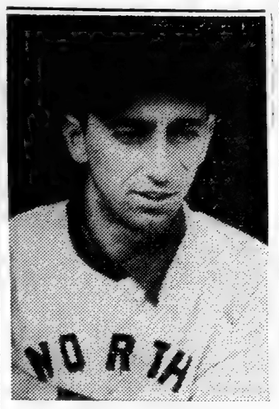
ACROSS

1—Deity
4—To mail
8—Baby horse
12—Literary scrap
13—Smell
14—Jason's ship
15—Death
17—To lunch
19—Forward!
20—To probe
21—Corrupt
22—To ripen
23—To look for
25—Place to sleep
26—Small, fresh-water fish
27—To cure leather
28—Vehicle
30—Underhand
32—Like
33—Yellow fruit (pl.)
35—That man
36—To attack
38—Male turkey
39—Tiny
40—In direction of
41—Recent
42—Flabby
43—Animal's foot
45—Seed cover
46—Girl (coll.)
47—Printer's measure
48—Cushion
49—Pertaining to society
52—It waits for no ——
54—Ireland
56—Sooner than
57—Famed garden
58—Drug
59—Crimson

DOWN

1—To wander about
2—Number
3—To moisten
4—Flower
5—Lyric poem
6—In this fashion
7—Face of tire
8—Obese
9—Conjunction
10—Excited
11—Solitary
16—To annoy
18—Notice
21—Scolded
22—Fruit drink
23—To cut with knife
24—To soothe
25—To prohibit
26—Those in power
28—Feline
29—Famed uncle
30—An interjection
31—To maintain
33—To wager
34—At once
37—Old saying
39—Trickier
41—Pained
42—Kind of resin
43—Man's nickname
44—Among
45—Father
46—Departed
48—Human
49—To drink slowly
50—Part of "to be"
51—Gordon
53—Pronoun
55—Affirmat

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.



Locals Open Baseball Season With Virginia In Lynchburg

DiLorenzo Selected for Hurling Honors; Varney Only Newcomer to Starting Lineup

By Bob Goldwater

Carolina's 1948 baseball schedule may have called for a home-game opener against Virginia on March 26 — today's date — but the only action on Emerson field this afternoon will be the continuation of repair work in restoring the grounds to playing condition.

But the lack of a field won't be enough to keep the Tar Heels from making their season's debut today. The skirmish with the Cavaliers has been shifted to the Lynchburg League park, home of the Lynchburg Cardinals in the Piedmont circuit, and though the home folks won't be in attendance, Carolina will still be considered the home team.

VINNIE DiLORENZO
. . . to get the nod

DiLorenzo on Hill

As might be expected, Vinnie DiLorenzo, ace of the '47 mound corps with a 7-2 record, will toe the rubber when the Tar Heels take to the field against the hard-hitting Cavaliers. The New Jersey southpaw has continued to show last year's fine assortment of pitches in the pre-season drills and shapes up as the bellwether of this year's staff. Scheduled for a five or six-inning stint, DiLorenzo will be followed on the mound by Ray Blair or Dean Cassell, both righthanders.

The lone newcomer to the opening nine, Sid Varney, will be seen on the receiving end of DiLorenzo's slants, a new role for the grid veteran. In emerging as the leading candidate from a field of five backstops, Varney looked especially potent in the highly-important batting department, where the portly receiver swings from the portside.

Infield Starters

Some doubt still remains concerning the infield starters, but the left side of the inner circle is definite. Co-captain Jim Hayworth will hold down the fort at third base and Rip Ryan is the top man for the shortstop assignment.

But on the other side of the keystone sack, Coaches Bunn Hearn and Walt Rabb are not quite certain just who will see the opening duty. The second-base choice lise between Co-Captain Jim Hamilton and Dallas Branch, while first base will be

(See LYNCHBURG, Page 4)

Jayvee Baseballers Begin Drills Today

Twenty nine survivors of the pre-vaction cuts will greet jayvee baseball coach Henry House on Emerson field at 3 o'clock this afternoon as the local juniors begin practice for the 1948 season.

The Blue and White "B's" will open their season sometime during the first week in April against an unnamed North State junior college nine. Home and home series with several other two year college teams are also slated for the locals. The complete schedule is expected to be released within the next week.

Included among the squad members are ten pitchers: Nicholson, Anlage, Gaston, McGinn, Turner, Bracke, Lineberger, Sharpe, Couch, and Cahoon; six outfielders: Allen, Clark, Lamb, Odum, Ward, and Watkins; four catchers: Oakes, Page, Garganus, and Walsh; and nine infielders: Senter, Qualls, Wagoner, Goodman, Carter, Kantor, Brookshire, Hardisty, and Waevil.

Spring Murals Being Readied

Not to be outdone by the various varsity sports, the Intramural department is also readying its schedule for the spring quarter and lining up prospects for the different actitivies.

Softball is first on the list and the tournament will be all set to roll after the managers' meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 in room 302 Woollen gym. Everyone who plans to enter a team in the competition is asked to be present as entrance procedure, playing rules, and eligibility restrictions will be presented.

Men interested in umpiring the games will meet in the same room at 4 o'clock Monday for the first of the clinics to be conducted by the mural department. The deadline for softball entries is Wednesday, March 31 and play will start the following Monday.

The time-table for the Intramural Sports carnival slated to be run off April Fools night in the gym was released yesterday. A total of 14 events are scheduled to be packed into the carnival that opens at 7:15.

The festival will resemble a three-ring circus when viewed as a whole. Several activities will be taking place in different parts of the gym as well as in Bowman Gray pool simultaneously.

The table tennis tournament will open the festivities at 7:25, but basketball will take over the spotlight five minutes later when Sigma Chi and the Blackballs move onto the court to decide the campus championship.

Badminton, a water ballet, volleyball, swimming, water polo, boxing, tumbling, and dancing will fill up the remainder of the schedule. Prizes will be awarded to the winners of mural titles in the winter quarter at 10:30 and there will be social dancing until the curfew tolls the knell of parting day for the coeds.

Thompson, Harbert Lead In Golf Meet

Charlotte, N. C., March 25 — (UP) — Jimmy Thompson of New York and Chick Harbert of Detroit have turned in six-under-par scores of 66 in the first round of the 10-thousand-dollar Charlotte open golf tournament. That puts them at the lead of the early finishers.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago — the pre-tournament favorite — made a 33 on the first nine holes but took a 35 after the turn for a total of 68.

Behind the leaders and ahead of Mangrum are two players with 67 — Toney Penna of Cincinnati and amateur Frank Stranahan, the Toledo, Ohio flash. Also at 68 are Henry Picard of Cleveland, Ellsworth Vines, Lawson Little and Herman Keiser.

The weather has been fine over the 64-hundred yard Myers Park course.

Eight Runners In Gator Relays; Rest Work Here

Even though eight members of the Carolina track squad departed yesterday afternoon for Gainesville, Fla. and the Relay meet that takes place there Saturday, Coach Ranson has remained in Chapel Hill to start full track operations.

Coach Ranson said yesterday that he wants all men who are candidates for freshman and varsity track to be out at Fetzer Field this afternoon to start their work.

Next weekend will be the first full test for the squad when the University plays host for the annual Carolina Relays. The following Saturday is one of the toughest meets on the schedule as Georgia Tech will invade Chapel Hill with a power laden outfit.

Florida Contingent

Coach Joe Hilton took the Florida contingent by car yesterday afternoon and they will be joined by Julian MacKenzie, who is honeymooning in the land of sunshine, and Bob Black. Black is listed as a doubtful starter due to a pulled leg muscle.

Other Carolina competitors are Jack Moody in the high jump, Bob Seligman in the shot and discus, Dick Taylor and Bob Morrow in the high hurdles, Sam Magill in the mile run and Hank Hickman in the pole vault.

This meet will give Southern track fans a look at the power not only in the southland but also from other parts of the country. Fortune Gordien, an almost certain Olympic team contestant, will be representing the University of Minnesota in the shot and discus and the records set by Seligman last year are almost certain to go by the boards.

Staff Confident

However, the coaching staff is confident that the Tar Heel entries will make a good showing and the primary problem on their collective minds is getting men to come out for the squad.

The 1948 team has lost many of the top flight stars of last year and new material has been slow in making itself shown.

Golfers to Qualify For Varsity Today

Coach Chuck Erickson will send his twenty-odd golfing candidates through a 36-hole qualifying round at neighboring Hope Valley country club today in an effort to ascertain just who will be swinging the varsity clubs for the Tar Heels this season.

The links mentor will be in search of three suitable fillers for the trio of posts left open on the starting sextet by graduation last year.

Following today's rounds the remaining golfers will settle down to preparations for the season's opener on Tuesday with Harvard.

The linksmen will begin an attempt at the iron man stunt with the Crimson as they are and Davidson on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon. All matches will be played at Hope Valley.

Weather Aids Netmen In Drills As 23 Match Slate Announced

By Dick Jenrette

Perfect tennis weather prevailed in Chapel Hill yesterday, and Coach John Kenfield and his Carolina netters took advantage of it to get in a full-afternoon of practice in preparation for their initial match against Michigan State here on Monday.

A cessation of the March winds brought the local tennis entnusiasts out in full force, and the Varsity courts were jammed throughout the afternoon. A few more afternoons similar to yesterday should put the Tar Heels into good shape for Michigan State.

The weather wasn't the only cheering note for Coach John Kenfield, the veteran Carolina mentor. Two of his top performers from last season's outfit—Heath Alexander and Stan Gruner—were declared eligible for play this year. Their playing eligibility had been in doubt prior to Thursday, but Kenfield stated that the matter had been cleared. Aleaxnder and Gruner were key performers on the 1947 team.

Tentative Lineup

Coach Kenfield listed a probable starting lineup yesterday for the Michigan State match, but he emphasized that it was subject to change. Captain Vic Seixas, the nation's ninth ranking amateur, will be in the No. 1 position and Clark Taylor, the tireless shotmaker, will hold down the No. 2 spot. Ray Morris is expected to fill the No. 3 position.

Charlie Rice, Alexander, Don Skakle, and Gruner are the other boys who are contending for the singles positions. Coach Kenfield has not determined which three of these will start.

Others working out yesterday were Bob Luxenburg, Tommy Sutherland, Paul Keenan, Guy Kirby, Charles Lambeth, Louis August, Ray Jones, Burt Ingram, Sam Daniels, and Duke Wilder.

Only four of these boys are freshmen. At present Kenfield is planning to have a freshman team which will play its own schedule, but only unless a few more candidates report to complete the squad, there will have to be a jayvee team rather than a freshman club.

Tennis Schedule

March	29—Michigan State
	31—Kalamazoo	Here
April	1—Cornell	Here
	2—Cornell	Here
	3—Yale	Here
	5—Yale	Here
	6—Yale	Here
	7—Williams	Here
	8—Williams	Here
	9—Michigan	Here
	13—State	Raleigh
	14—Virginia	Here
	16—Cincinnati	Here
	21—Duke	Durham
	22—Wake Forest	Here
	24—Davidson	Davidson
	29—Presbyterian	Here
May	1—Wm. & Mary	Williamsburg
	3—Army	West Point
	5—Navy	Annapolis
	6—Penn	Philadelphia
	7—Haverford	Haverford
	13-14-15—Southern Conference tournament	Chapel Hill

DENTAL HEALTH
OLAG TOOTH PASTE
AT ALL DRUG STORES

VILLAGE
TODAY
IDA LUPINO · DANE CLARK · WAYNE MORRIS
WARNER BROS.
"DEEP VALLEY"
FAY BAINTER · HENRY HULL
JEAN NEGULESCO · HENRY BLANKE
—Also—
NEWS - CARTOON

Local Junior Cagers Star in Tourney

Although spring has rolled in, basketball is still in the air. Saturday morning will see the Carolina Monogram Club juniors playing Wayne County in in a semi-final game in the Durham Amvet Midget Tournament.

The games are all being played in the Durham City Armory. Last Saturday the Juniors, coached by Frank Murray took a 38-33 win over Creedmoor. Frank Meadows paced the scoring with 11 points. The team played a fast breaking game and their plays around the pivot netted baskets on every attempt.

Creedmoor had won their opening game by downing the Durham All-Stars. The Carolina boys had a first round bye. The amazing part of the tourney has been the high scores turnin by these lads under 13 years of age. The games are four six-minute quarters and the teams have been averaging well over a point a minute.

Last Saturday's contest scoring was well spaced behind Meadows, with Billy Thompson garnering nine, Tommy Lloyd and Alex Shepard eight apiece. Mac Proctor scored two to complete the scoring but his play under the back boards was a big factor in the win.

Win or lose the Tar Heel entry will play again Saturday night as there will be a consolation game along with the final. The morning game is scheduled for 11 o'clock.

RABIES VACCINATION CLINIC

Dr. Nathan and Dr. Vine will be at Victory Village Coop Store for the purpose of vaccinating dogs against rabies on

Saturday March 27th

from 1:00 to 2:00

Vaccinations given at Office daily

ANNOUNCING

OUR FISHING CONTEST

Shakespeare Rod, Reel, Line And Lures To Be Given For Biggest Bass Taken From University Lake March 15th Thru July 15th

Registration Free

Visit Our Store Today For—

*Fishing Supplies
*Auto Parts and Supplies
*Hundreds of Nationally Advertised Items For The Home
*Seiberling Tires
*National Battries

You get a Better Buy at a
BLACKWOOD ASSOCIATE STORE
312 WEST FRANKLIN STREET
CHAPEL HILL

"Come back, Carrie, I'll give you all my Dentyne Chewing Gum!"

"I don't hold with hoardin', Mam, but you mighta known I'd stay—I reckon nobody can resist that delicious flavor of Dentyne Chewing Gum! And Dentyne sure helps keep my teeth white, too."

Dentyne Gum—Made Only By Adams

"Christ The Lord Is Risen!"

YOU ARE INVITED TO WORSHIP AT CHAPEL HILL'S COMMUNITY GOOD FRIDAY AND EASTER SUNRISE SERVICES

UNION GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE

MARCH 26th 12:00 until 3:00 UNIVERSITY METHODIST CHURCH

The service of worship in remembrance of the Crucifiction of Jesus Christ will be divided into six periods with intermissions between.

THESE SHARED HIS CROSS

(Meditations on the Cross as seen by those who took part)

12:00 — 12:25
Peter ..... The Rev. L. C. Bernard Munger
12:30 — 12:55
Pilate ..... The Rev. David Roston
1:00 — 1:25
Simon of Cyrene .... The Rev. J. Robert Nelson
1:30 — 1:55
The Centurion ..... The Rev. E. C. Cooper
2:00 — 2:35
The Woman..... Mrs. Arnold Nash

The climax of the service will come at 2:30 when the North Carolina College Choir of seventy voices sings "Requiem" by Gabriel U. Faure with organ and piano accompaniment.

EASTER SUNRISE SERVICE

MARCH 28th 6:30—7:30 FOREST THEATER

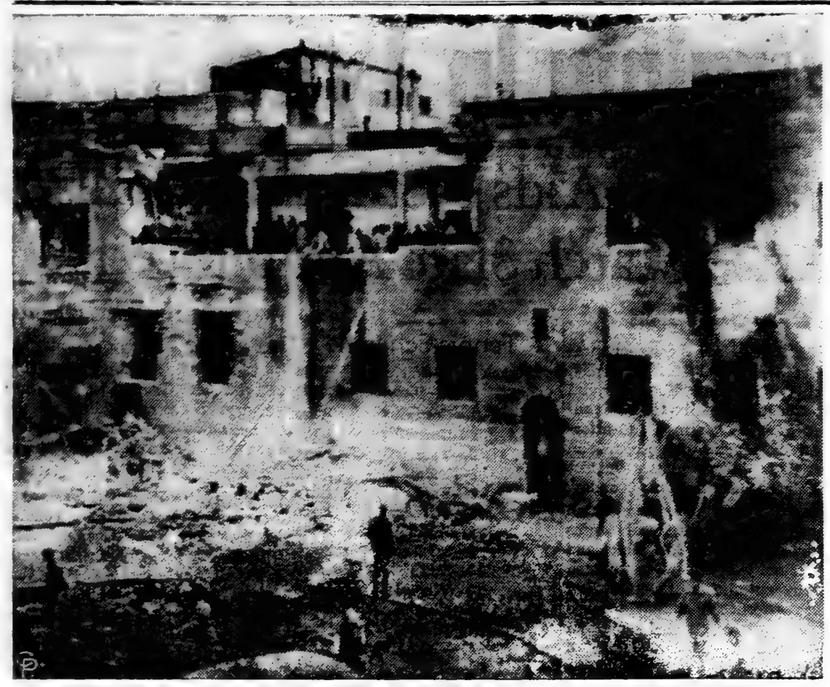
A worship service lead by Mr. Claude Shotts, The Rev. John Manley and featuring a children's choir of 200 voices accompanied by a brass quartet.

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST

A play translated and arranged by Kai Jergensen and Robert Schenkkan. This is one of the Wakefield Guild Cycle Plays given annually in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries in Wakefield, England.

Directed by M. David Samplos

CAST



Caiaphus	A. E. Westover III	Mary Jacoby	Patricia Palmer
Jesus	Edsel Hughes	Mary Salome	Margaret Cameron
Pilate	James Geiger	First Soldier	Robert Nelson
Centurio	Frederick Johnson	Second Soldier	Robert Allen
Annas	W. P. Covington III	Third Soldier	Robert Bunch
Mary Magdalene	Gloria Gunn	First Angel	John Gignilliat
		Second Angel	Hibbard Thatcher

The services will be held in the Playmakers Theater if there is rain.

The following Chapel Hill merchants recommend your participation in these services

CAROLINA PHARMACY
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
CAROLINA INN
HARRY'S
WENTWORTH & SLOAN
UNIVERSITY FLORIST
CAROLINA SPORT SHOP
JACK LIPMAN'S
TAR HEEL BARBER SHOP
ANDREWS-HENNINGER
UNIVERSITY RESTAURANT

WHERRY STUDIO OF DANCING
219 E. Franklin

RESCUE WORKERS SEARCH THROUGH THE RUINS of the Jewish agency building in Jerusalem which was partially destroyed by a bomb explosion. Eleven Jews are known to be dead and some 90 injured. Witnesses reported that the blast came shortly after a stolen U. S. consulate car, flying the American flag, gained entrance to the carefully guarded agency courtyard. News dispatches stated that a widespread hunt was under way for Anton Dauod, Arab chauffer for Consul General Robert McAffee. The American envoy was reported to have sent Dauod out to get some groceries. The "bomb car" was reported to have carried 50 pounds of explosives.

(International Radiophoto)

Forrestal Asks Three Measures

Washington, March 25—(UP)—The leaders of the nation's armed forces today asked the Senate Armed Services committee for a three-point program to strengthen President Truman's National Defense plan.

The group was led by Defense Secretary Forrestal who asked for three measures. The draft, Universal Military Training, and an increase from $11,000,000,000 to $14,000,000,000 in the President's defense budget.

Forrestal also had a surprise concerning Russia. He became the first top government official to give flat assurance that the Soviets do not yet have the atomic bomb. Moreover, he said, they do not at present have the ability to produce it.

Nevertheless, the Defense Secretary said, the armed forces needed strengthening.

Forrestal said his program would give the nation an armed force of 1,734,000 officers and men. Despite his plea, he said the odds are not yet on Russia or war.

Instead, he maintained, "The odds are on the United States and peace." The cabinet official said repeatedly that the security measures are not intended as fist-shaking gestures at Russia, but to make clear our determination to preserve the peace.

Our Secretary for Air, W Stuart Symington, told the Senate group that this country will be able to bomb any part of Russia with improved B-29s operating from Alaska and Labrador. Like the other defense chiefs, he startled committee members by naming Russia as a likely target.

LI'L ABNER

By A. C

HARRY'S — Open from 7:00 A.M. 'til 1:00 in the Morning

-Long-

(Continued from page 1)

demonstrated for the creation of the office of attorney general on the campus—an attorney general to investigate and bring to the attention of the proper officials any infraction of the students' rights under their constitution. This office would do much to safeguard the basic rights of all students on the campus.

"These are but a few of the many problems which confront the chief executive. The major requirement is that any president be prepared to face these issues without regard to his personal desires or feelings and to work for solutions which will best serve the majority of the students."

Campus Calendar

4:00—Campus Party, Roland Parker No. 1.

7:00—Wallace For President club, Roland Parker No. 2.

7:30—Hillel Foundation, Roland Parker No. 1.

8:00—Dames club knitting group, home of Mrs. Jerry Moncrief, Laurel Hill Rd.

MEN'S COUNCIL

All candidates for the Men's Honor Council will meet with the three-party non-partisan board at 7 o'clock tonight in Graham Memorial.

-Lynchburg-

(Continued from page 1)

held down by either John Gregory or Jack Brasington.

One outfielder berth is also on the still-to-be-decided list, with Frank Jones and Ott Evans vying for the right-field post. But certain to see action in center and left, respectively, are two of the Tar Heels' leading hitters in Kenny Black and Jim Kelly. Kelly, last year's Big Four batting champ, will be out to continue his heavy stickwork of the last few weeks in the '47 campaign.

Batting Order

The batting order for the Carolina crew will have Black again leading off, followed by Hayworth, the righ-fielder, Kelly, Varney, Ryan, the second baseman, the first baseman, and DiLorenzo.

Like the Tar Heels, the Virginia lineup is also studded with veteran performers. Only one newcomer is included in the infield quartet of Joe Rowell, Chuck Noe, Jim Patton, and Bob Huff, and the outfield trio of Clay Bear, Sam Ellington, and Bob Caine is a holdover unit. Dave Carr is back to handle the catching chores, and last year's top hurlers, Buddy Charles, Neil Wade, and Jack Teachman, are again on hand.

The Cavaliers warmed up for the engagement with a 15-2 triumph over Akron last Monday.

Organizations Asked To Check With GM

It is requested that all organizations which meet regularly in Graham Memorial have a representative stop by the main office and check with Assistant Director Bob Watson as to time and place for meetings.

This applies particularly to those organizations which do not meet weekly, but which meet on alternate Thursdays, etc. In order for the Graham Memorial staff to schedule meeting space to the maximum, it is necessary to know when these groups which meet other than weekly are to hold their first metings.

Foreign Subs Are Seen Off U. S.

Washington, March 25—(UP)—Foreign submarines have been sighted recently off the American coast.

That's the report from Secretary of the Navy Sullivan. He told the Senate Armed Forces committee today that foreign U-boats, not belonging to any nation west of the iron curtain as he put it, have been sighted off our shores.

"I am not prepared to evaluate the significance of these sightings," he said. "However, we all recall that an early step of the Germans in 1917 and 1941 was to deploy submarines off our coasts."

The blond, youthful-looking navy head said Russia now has 250 U-boats in operation. Ten of these are new German submarines of the latest design. The crowded Senate hearing room was pin-drop silent as Sullivan reminded the committee that Germany had only 50 submarines in action at the beginning of World War II. In spite of this small fleet, he warned, the Germans very nearly won the battle of the Atlantic.

There was other news on the defense front today.

First, Republican Senator Wherry of Nebraska has introduced a bill to return the atomic energy program to the army. In other words, to take it out of civilian control.

However, the bill is opposed by Army Secretary Royall. A member of the joint congressional atomic energy committee has called it a "serious blow" at national security. And one influential senator says atomic bombs are now being produced at a rate satisfactory to the military.

Against this backdrop of preparedness— the debate still rages on whether or not we should export military or essential goods to Russia.

During the last 25 years, about 2,000 persons have been killed in auto accidents in Minnesota.

CLASSIFIED

SPECIAL NOTICES 4

EXCHANGE NECKTIES! MAIL US one-to-six ties you're sick of—you'll receive in return the same number of handsomely cleaned different ties we got the same way. They will be sent to you C. O. D. You'll be surprised at such pretty ties. The Tie Exchange Co., Indianola, Miss. (1-c1867-2

FOR SALE 6F

TWO BEDROOM HOUSE IN CHAPEL Hill T. V. Caudle, 33 Oakwood Drive (1-1868-1

MINIATURE SPEED GRAPHIC OUTfit complete with accessories. Also Miniature Graflex, De Jur Versatile enlarger, and some darkroom equipment. Call Lester Bodden, 6071 or 6065 (1-1865-1 KODAK VIGILANT CAMERA F4.5 Mendelsohn Universal Model E speed-gun, Eveready case, lens shade, 3 rolls film; all for $85. Call Oakley 3337 after 5. p. m. (1-1873-1

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull 3 new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment comfortable living quarters, board Quarters for wife, if necessary. Appl. Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

MEN OVER TWENTY WITH ABILITY to lead and work with boys. To serve ten weeks this summer as counselors on staff at Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Good pay wonderful environment, room and board. Only those with outstanding qualifications need apply. Apply J Watson Holyfield, Director of Camp Sea Gull, Raleigh Y. M. C. A. Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 3)

JOB OPPORTUNITIES 35

MEN WORKING THEIR WAY through school and desiring an interesting and exceptionally well-paying job for summer, contact Dortch Warriner, Room No. 1, Whitehead. (1-1869-1

LOST 12

IRISH SETTER FROM FRONT OF Medical School, Wednesday afternoon of 24th. Reward $10.00. Will be in Washington Duke Hotel until Saturday J. S. Bower, M. D. Front Royal, Va (1-c1871-1

Ridgeway's
OPTICIANS
Complete Eyeglass Service
Prompt attention to all mail orders
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
Raleigh N. C.

Whid Powell's
COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM
GRILLED TARHELLIAS
CAROLINAS
WAFFLES
Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

Fraternity Work a Specialty
Charles Valentine's Cabinet Shop
FURNITURE
REPAIRED
REFINISHED
UPHOLSTERED
MADE-TO-ORDER
PHONE 9367 — PITTSBORO RD

HOT, TIRED OR THIRSTY?
Call 3536 for Prompt Delivery of
Ice Cold Beer
Delivered at Your Door
11:30 P.M.
Phone 3536
K & M
BEER DELIVERY SERVICE
119½ Columbia Street

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

Jerry the Tailor
OVER
N. C. CAFETERIA

Complete! Intact!
HOURS OF SHOWS
1 — 4:59 — 8:58
GONE WITH THE WIND
CONTINUOUS SHOWINGS!
AT OUR REGULAR POPULAR PRICES!
CAROLINA
TODAY

The ORIENTAL
116 E. Parrish Street
Durham, N. C.
CHINESE-AMERICAN RESTAURANT

REHDERS
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

"HOT WEATHER IS HERE!"
Yes, to Relieve You of Carrying—
We Deliver
Your Favorite Brand of Beer to Your Door . . .
Ice Cold
• SCHLITZ
• HIGHLIFE
• PABST
• BUDWEISER
and
OTHERS
Phone 3536
K & M
BEER DELIVERY SERVICE
119½ Columbia Street

DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR
MILE FOR MILE
A GREAT TRAVEL BUY
Examples of Low Fares

CHAPEL HILL to:	One Way
Norfolk	$3.45
Raleigh	.60
Asheville	4.10
Charlotte	2.80
Greensboro	1.00
Wash., D. C.	4.35
Jax, Fla.	8.25
New York	8.25
Knoxville	5.05
Richmond	2.85
Lynchburg	2.60

(Fed. tax to be added to all fares)
9 BUSES DAILY To GREENSBORO, CHARLOTTE & ASHEVILLE
9 BUSES DAILY To RALEIGH and Eastern Points
CHAPEL HILL BUS TERMINAL
PHONE 4281
Carolina TRAILWAYS
THE ROUTE OF THE Trailmasters

Let's Get together
PHILIP MORRIS is so much better to smoke!
PHILIP MORRIS offers the smoker an extra benefit found in no other cigarette. For PHILIP MORRIS is the ONE, the ONLY cigarette recognized by leading nose and throat specialists as definitely less irritating.
Remember: Less irritation means more smoking enjoyment for you.
Yes! If every smoker knew what PHILIP MORRIS smokers know, they'd ALL change to PHILIP MORRIS.
CALL FOR PHILIP MORRIS
TRY A PACK . . . TODAY

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Clearing, windy and cooler.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Poor Man
Inside NSA
Holler, Characters

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, MARCH 27, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 125

ALTHOUGH she hails from the city of Davenport, Iowa, Rosemary Carpenter is shown holding the winner's trophy after being chosen "Miss Miami Beach". She will represent the Flordia city at the annual Atlantic City, N. J., beauty pageant in September.
International

Non-Partisan Board Completes Selection Of Council Nominees

The non-partisan board for selecting Men's Honor council nominees closed its second and final session last night with a complete slate of candidates for seats on the Men's council.

According to board spokesmen, the names of the students chosen will be released within the next few days. No news other than the fact that the slate was complete was available last night.

The first meeting of the board was held Thursday night, at which time several applicants were considered. It was thought yesterday that a third meeting would have to be scheduled tonight to complete the nominations, but the slate was apparently quickly filled yesterday evening.

Voting members of the board consist of four representatives from each of the three political parties. These are: Student party: Gran Childress, Dortch Warriner, Bill Mackie and Herb Alexander; University party: Thurman Williams, Charlie Loudermilk, Len Butt and Anne Coop Knight; Campus party: Bob Haire, Bob Ormand, Tom Lockhart and Walt Arnold.

Two-Thirds Vote

Nominees were chosen by two-thirds vote of the board and applicants were not asked their party affiliation or where they live. A minimum of four and a maximum of five nominees for each position were chosen.

Names will go on the ballot without party endorsement and no publicity will be released except through the selection board.

It has been brought out that any student who wishes to do so may run for a council position independently but no party nominations will be made other than those released by the board with the backing of all three parties.

Bill Tate, chairman of the Men's council presides over the board. Non-voting members sitting in an advisory capacity are Tom Eller and Mike Carr.

Christ's Crucifixion Featured Tomorrow In Morning Services

Community Easter sunrise service, to be held at 6:30 Sunday morning in Forest theater, will be the second in a series of services commemorating the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ participated in and sponsored by students and by churches of the community.

Play Featured

Tomorrow's sunrise service will feature the performance of "The Resurrection of Christ," a play translated and arranged by Kai Jergenson and Robert Schenkan and directed by David Samples. Claude Shotts and the Rev. John Manley will lead a worship service, and Easter hymns will be sung by a choir composed of 125 school children.

Dressed in white and carrying candles, the children will be accompanied by a brass quartet. Other music will include chimes from the bell tower and records medieval hymns.

Breakfast Follows Service

Following the service, breakfast will be served at the Presbyterian, Baptist, and Methodist churches, to which all students, whether members of the student groups or not, are invited.

At 9:45 tomorrow morning, the Presbyterian church choir, under the direction of Paul Young, will present the Bach cantata, "Christ Lay in the Bonds of Death," with Organist John O'Steen accompanying the performance.

An Easter resurrection drama was presented first during the time of Charlemagne will be performed at the Episcopal church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, closing the Easter observance.

CORRECTION

Max Snipes, manager of the new Graham Memorial barber shop does not work with the University laundry, he says. An error in yesterday's Daily Tar Heel had transferred him from his own University barber shop on Franklin street to the UNC laundry. Our apologies, and Mr. Snipes can cut our hair anytime.

Republicans Hear Smith, Hipple Talk

Coline Smith and Bill Hipple, active members of the Young Republicans club, spoke at the state Republican convention held in Durham March 18.

Miss Smith spoke on the formation of the club here and pointed out some of the important features that the club will sponsor during the coming quarters before the election.

She explained that the club hopes to put the policy of the Republican party before the students and serve as the group which will express the desires of the students and their expectations of the coming administration.

Hipple spoke to the session on the speech in which the president requested emergency legislation as a method of combatting the Russian threat abroad. Hipple asked that every means of diplomacy be considered before any nations be committed to war and that all hopes of peace cease to exist.

Ways and Means committee Chairman Parrott Parish announced at the club meeting last Thursday night that a series of discussions on the Republican aspirants for the presidential nomination will start immediately.

UVA 'Welcome-Back' Dance Slated Tonight

The UVA wil hold its Welcome-Back dance tonight at 8:30 at the clubhouse.

This is the first function of the association for the spring quarter and is under the direction of A. B. Coleman.

The snack bar will be open under the direction of Lionel Nelsos. Music will be furnished by the house.

Dick Cohan and Gene Braswell will be on the door to sell tickets. The club will continue to sell memberships in the book line this morning and Monday.

Carolina Has First Choice . . .

Dr. Ali Wants FPG In Indonesia

By Raney Stanford

"We regret that Dr. Graham will not come back to our country, but I have come to understand in the past two days that you here at the University like him also," Dr. Ali Sastroamidjojo, Indonesian minister of education, smilingly said today in the Chapel Hill educator's office.

"Dr. Ali"

Dr. Ali, as most of his English speaking friends seem to prefer to call him, is visiting the University to survey its facilities with view of applying American methods to the educational problems of his homeland. He came to this country as Indonesia's spokesman before the United Nations Assembly in Lake Success in New York, taking part there recently in the debates over the report of the International Mediation committee between the Indonesians and the Dutch, which the University president headed.

Following the U. N. session the East Indies educator decided to look at American educational methods for as long a time as his limited stay in this country would allow him. He has visited Columbia university, Yale, and for an impression of a state-run institution, he came to Chapel Hill due to the friendship he has with Dr. Graham.

Many Visits

"I am very much impressed with the school, its teachers, its atmosphere of youth and learning, and the intimate way it works with the outside, practical world," Dr. Ali said. During his stay here he has visited the University Extension division, the Communication Center, the Playmakers, the Social Science Institute of Research, the Graduate school, the College of Arts and Sciences, and talked with all the deans and the heads of these departments.

The visiting educator seemed to be most interested in adult education and professional training. He pointed out that 90 per cent of the population of his newly-formed country is illiterate, and the critical need is there for extensive education to wipe out this illiteracy and to develop the kind of trained leaders that will help the nation assume its proper place in the world.

He expressed a hope that students from his country could soon come to the United States to attend the schools here in order to further these aims.

Back to New York

Dr. Sastroadmidjojo attended a luncheon given in his honor at the Carolina Inn yesterday, and left for New York City last night.

"I regret I cannot stay longer, for I have enjoyed, and have learned much from my stay here," he said.

Dr. Ali was disappointed in learning one thing, for he had hoped to see the UNC-Virginia baseball game scheduled for Emerson stadium yesterday, but due to the game's being shifted to Lynchburg, he will have to leave for Indonesia next week without having been initiated into this special feature of American life.

JEWISH IMMIGRANTS walk along a dock in Haifa, Palestine, after legally entering the Holy Land from detention camps on the Island of Cyprus. The new arrivals pay little attention to the drums of oil standing on the dock, although the oil is said to play an important role in their destinies and the destiny of Palestine.
(International)

SP Gives Backing to Four Candidates, Saleeby, Davenport, Keener, Seixas

By Chuck Hauser

Four more vacancies in the Student party roster were filled yesterday as the SP announced endorsement of four candidates already in the spring election race.

Emile Saleeby for president of the senior class, Ed Davenport for vice-president, Hurshell Keener for sophomore class president and Vic Seixas for president of the Carolina Athletic association were the latest to receive the SP backing.

Saleeby was nominated by the Campus party, which also backed UP nominee Ed Davenport. Keener and Seixas are CP nominees.

Saleeby, who is president of the Interdormitory council and a member of the University Veterans association Board of Governors, also serves on the Orientation committee and the Student Welfare board. He is the vice-president of the University club and the chairman of the Student Grounds committee.

Ed Davenport, who will go into the vice-presidential office unopposed, hails from Winterville, South Carolina, and is now serving as a member of the Student Legislature.

Hurshell Keener, from Lenoir, is a member of the Student Legislature and the Dialectic Senate. He held the position of student body president while in high school.

Vic Seixas, number nine amateur tennis player in the country and national intercollegiate runner-up, is the SP-backed CP candidate for GAA president. Seixas lives in Philadelphia.

The four endorsements almost close out the Student party slate for the April 6 general elections, but SP Publicity Director Fred Thompson announced yesterday that the party's Student Legislature nominations would be forthcoming soon.

Young Republicans Announce That Stassen May Come Here

Harold E. Stassen, self-announced contender for the Republican presidential nomination, announced in a letter to the Young Republican club that he might be able to appear before the student body of the University of North Carolina during the spring quarter. The organization had sent a letter to Stassen inviting him to come here and speak.

In the letter to the organization Stassen said, "I will look forward to speaking at the University of North Carolina but cannot make a definite commitment now because of an extremely heavy schedule for the next several weeks." Plans are being made to get Stassen to come here, and a calendar is being sent to him with dates that are free from too much campus activities.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, another prospective candidate, sent a letter to the organization commending the formation of the club on the Carolina campus.

At last Thursday night's meeting, plans for an open-to-all-students picnic were discussed. This will be one of the club's main social functions during the spring quarter.

The organization agreed to work with the steering committee appointed by the Dialectic Senate in the setting up of a mock political convention for all parties which will be held on the campus. Bob Nelson is serving on the steering committee from this organization.

CAMPUS PARTY

The Campus party will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Roland Parker lounge 2 to hold its final nominating session. Chairman Bob Haire urged that all party members and candidates be present.

Professor Frank W. Hanft Will Continue Christian Beliefs Lectures This Spring

Frank W. Hanft, professor in the University Law school, will continue his popular lectures of last year on Christian beliefs again this spring, Dean of Men Fred Weaver announced yesterday.

The first talk, entitled "The Essentials of Christian Belief," will be given Monday evening at 7 o'clock in Gerrard hall, and the rest of the series will come similarly on the following Mondays.

"Professor Hanft has been asked to resume the class because of its success last year," Dean Weaver explained. "An average of 200 persons attended each session then."

An outline of the procedure used in these "classes" states that the Christian religion "will be treated in the manner best suited to the needs of those who are concerned with religion in their personal lives and behavior rather than in the manner of formal scholarship or as a subject of historical or literary interest."

Professor Hanft will conduct the sessions informally, endeavoring to approach his subject in lay terms rather than theological. Student participation in the discussion is encouraged, and the classes's sponsors also urged a regular attendance of those interested, as the series will be conducted with a definite plan and continuity.

DR. HANFT

MUSIC REGISTRATION

Tuesday will be the last day for Applied Music registration the music department announced today.

Dr. Graham To Address Student Body At University Convocation Wednesday

Satterfield Will Play Tonight For Graham Memorial Dance

Johnny Satterfield and his orchestra will provide music for Graham Memorial's Easter dance tonight in the main lounge from 8:30 until midnight.

Especially in honor of new students, the dance is being given by the student union staff in cooperation with the Orientation committee. Open to old as well as new students, the affair will be free of charge.

Off-Campus Work

Satterfield's orchestra is well known on campus, having played for many campus dances as well as for a concert given last quarter. Made up of students, the band has a personnel of 15 plus the girl vocalist. Off-campus engagements for the group have included appearances at many colleges and towns throughout North Carolina and Virginia.

GM's lounge will be transformed into a virtual spring wonderland with decorations of cut flowers and plants, and the snack bar in the Rendezvous room will be open, serving soft drinks, hot and iced coffee, toasted sandwiches, candy, and other refreshments.

Newly-redecorated in keeping with the spring feeling, the Rendezvous room is open seven nights a week for dancing and refreshments. New students are especially invited to become acquainted with this and other features of the student union.

Bill Shuford, director of Graham Memorial, in announcing the dance, said, "It is my sincere hope that a large number of students will turn out for this first dance of the season. Particularly do we want them to avail themselves of the opportunity of utilizing Graham Memorial facilities more than they have done in thte past. We certainly want those students who have not been in the habit of visiting Graham Memorial to start the quarter off right."

The regular Saturday night bingo session usually held in the main lounge will not be staged tonight, Shuford said, but will be held throughout the remainder of the quarter.

"The staff of Graham Memorial," Shuford said, "is here for the sole purpose of serving the student body. Every student should feel perfectly free to call on them for assistance when needed.

Filing Deadline Set at Midnight

Midnight tonight is the deadline for filing of all candidates for office in the April 6 general elections. No one may declare his candidacy after the deadline.

Independent candidates must present petitions with the signatures of 25 qualified voters, and party chairmen must present their party slates to Al Winn, chairman of the Board of Elections. Winn lives at No. 8 Steele dormitory.

Mo. Waltz In Miss. No Longer Banned

Jackson, Miss., March 26—(UP)—Thanks to Speaker Walter Sillers of the Mississippi House of Representatives, musicians can go on playing the Missouri waltz in Mississippi.

A bill making it a crime to play or sing the tune was introduced in the House at Jackson yesterday.

Mississippi has been one of the leaders in the Southern fight against President Truman's civil rights proposals.

The measure would have made playing the Missouri waltz a felony in Mississippi, punishable by a fine of not less than $1,000 and a prison term of not less than five years, and the bill would have a special punishment for anyone playing the tune on a piano—a $10,000 fine and life in prison.

Speaker Walter Sillers, however, ruled the proposal out of order.

Chicago Demo Backs Gen. Ike

Chicago, March 26 — (UP) — A powerful man in the Democratic ranks said today that he wants General Ike Eisenhower instead of Mr. Truman as the party's presidential nominee.

The man is Jacob Arvey, chief of the strong Chicago Democratic organization who took over the big political machine when Mayor Kelly retired.

Arvey, who has just returned here after talking with Democratic National Chairman Howard McGrath in Washington, will probably be one of the most influential delegates at the Philadelphia convention.

Winning Liberal

Arvey said "as of right now" he personally likes Eisenhower over Truman. He would not say how he will vote as a delegate to the convention, but he did say, "I hope General Eisenhower is available. He is the kind of liberal with whom we could win, both nationally and locally."

The Socialist party is also wondering whom it will run for president this year. Party officials say it may be Norman Thomas again. Thomas has run for president five times already, and party spokesmen say that he may become a candidate this year because of the third party.

"Wallace has brought incredible confusion into the ranks of American liberals," they pointed out, "—American liberals many of whom would support Mr. Thomas."

Work In Indonesia To Be Discussed; Classes Suspended

By Charlie Gibson

Dr. Frank P. Graham will make his first public report on his work as the United States delegate on the U.N. Indonesian commission in a special convocation ceremony next Wednesday.

At 11 o'clock in Memorial hall the Dialectic Senate and the University convocations series will jointly present Dr. Graham, widely-known Southern educator and president of the Greater University. His speech will be recorded by the Communications Center to be rebroadcast nationally at a later time over stations yet to be announced.

No 11 O'Clocks

All 11 o'clock classes will be suspended Wednesday in order that the student body might attend the convocation. However, 12 o'clock classes will be resumed as usual.

"Dr. Frank," as he is affectionately called, will relate his experiences and observations while working with a three-man council that successfully negotiated a truce between the Dutch East Indians and their mother countries. His co-workers were Dr. Paul Van Zeelan, former prime minister of Belgium and Justice Richard Kirby of Australia.

"New Hope"

The treaty culminated four months of arbitration and won praise for Dr. Graham from President Truman in a reception at the White House. The importance of the Indonesian settlement as a trial for other current international disputes was stressed by the president when he told Dr. Graham personally, "The effectiveness of United Nations machinery as demonstrated by your work has given new hope to those who have faith that by such democratic processes this ideal can be realized."

Dr. Graham tendered his official resignation from the Security council on February 13 to resume his duties in Chapel Hill. At that time he was immediately appointed a special adviser to to the State department by Secretary George Marshall in case any further advice might be needed on Indonesian affairs.

Dr. Graham has also held many former national positions including membership on the War Labor board. He is currently president of the board of directors of the Oak Ridge institute of Nuclear Physics, an organization of 14 Southern universities that works with the atomic research authorities at the Tennessee scientific center.

Ulcers Not Increased By Hustle and Bustle

Atlanta, Ga., March 26 —(UP) —A New York clinical scientist, Dr. Stewart Wolf, says the hustle and bustle of modern life, contrary to popular belief, has not caused any particular increase in stomach ulcers.

The young doctor told the Atlanta Clinical society that worry causes stomach upsets, but different things worry different people.

For instance, Dr. Wolf has found people living in Newfoundland and New Guinea have just as much trouble with stomach ulcers as Americans. He figures they just have their own set of things to worry about.

ANTI-UMT GROUP

The Anti-UMT committee will hold another emergency meeting today at 5 o'clock in the Grail room to complete plans for the Stop-the-Draft rally next Tuesday night. All interested members—old and new—are urged to attend.

Inside NSA

In the past many colleges discussing the advisability of joining the National Student association have been confronted with the moot question: "Is the NSA Communist dominated?" Last fall, after returning from the constitutional convention, Delegate Bill Miller assured the campus through the columns of this publication that the Communist clique within the NSA had been voted down and thte few Reds in the group were powerless.

Then this month further developments occurred which corroborate this fact. The two delegates who were elected to attend the International Union of Students in Europe resigned their posts after announcing that they had substantial evidence to make them believe that the IUS is Communistic.

In Prague on Feb. 25 at least one student was killed and several wounded when police fired on a procession of 1,500 students who were marching to ask President Benes not to install the new government. According to press releases they received a volley of lead rather than an opportunity to talk with the president. The Reds took over the Czechoslovakian government and proceeded, according to a member of the NSA delegation, to dissolve the Czech National Union of Students and other student groups. Following such actions the IUS secretariat was requested to condemn the action of the present Czechoslovakian government with regard to the treatment of students in Prague. The secretariat refused and furnished the two NSA delegates ample proof that the IUS is a Red organ.

There is a great need for an organization with the motives of the NSA. If it had not taken the step which it did in breaking cleanly away from the Communistic International Union of Students it would have been helpless in this country. It would have been a death blow to the NSA.

In the meantime, until sometime next month when the complete Czech situation wil be examined by a special appointed committee, the NSA will continue its international program and will make every effort to cooperate with individual foreign student unions in non-political programs. Also in an effort to promote and strengthen international understanding, the NSA will continue student exchange, travel and relief activities.

Poor Man --- He's Persecuted

Around the Nation's Capital speculations have it that the next president of the United States will be Ike Eisenhower — on the Democratic ticket. But another military figure, "Dugout Doug" MacArthur, is not to be outdone in the scramble for publicity and the candidacy for the presidency.

The dramatic, thesaurus-mouthed General Doug has been quoted by the Hearst publications in a front-page spread last Wednesday afternoon that the reason he became an aspirant for the presidential nomination was due mainly to the active opposition of the Communist party against him.

The most outspoken critics of MacArthur are, as is to be expected, the men who served in the armed services. At universities throughout the nation chapters of VAM (Veterans Against MacArthur) have become active. One of the more-recently organized chapters against MacArthur is at SMU.

As to MacArthur's aid — Well, he has already receiver the kiss of death when the Hearst publications took up the MacArthur cause. Other MacArthur boosters are isolationists Col. McCormick and "Pappy" O'Daniels.

But we are happy to know what compelled the General to announce his candidacy. Even if it is mainly because he is hated by the Communist Party we now have a criteria by which to judge a potential candidates qualifications. We would now suggest that President Truman is compelled to seek re-election because there is an active segment, the South, working against his second visit to the White House.

Carolina Carousel

Hollar, Characters, Hollar

By R. Foo Giduz

You should holler holler about going to classes today! . . .Hah! Even with one or maybe two Saturday class days this quarter there are only 45 more days in the spring term. . .And to keep from being severely frowned upon, all accredited U. S. universities are supposed to have a minimum of 50 per quarter. . .Yeah, you should hollering about Saturday classes! . . .Better you should start packing for summer vacation!

Don't be surprised if no less than Kay Kyser & company play for the Junior - Seniors! . . . It isn't settled yet, but it's known that the old maestro, and No. 1 Carolina Cheerio of the roaring late 1920's has been wanting to bring the band down for a Hill engagement for several years now... Hardly less famous lately than K. K. is bandman Elbert "Tiny" Hutton, Tar Heelia's far-famed Mr. six-by-six of the early '40's. . . Tiny broke into the national radio spotlight last Sunday night on the 10:30 Horace Heidt talent show singing "They Don't Want Me, She Can Have Me, I'm Too Fat For Them," (or reasonable facsimile) . . . Waddled away with top honors, and will be on the same show again tomorrow night. . .Tune in; he's terrific!

The Chollies are really making themselves known these days. . . Cholly Gibson's current campaign poster in his race for Tarnation editor is one of the neatest and most subtle ever seen. . . (Hope it pays off in votes!). . . And watch for our old buddy "Chubby Cholly" Long to make things hawfully hot for the next 10 days until election time. . . Quoth Chas.: "The campaign will definitely be personal!". . .With luck he may place second. (—Giduz politix predixion gem.)

From an editorial in the Emory Wheel, weekly newspaper of Emory University, in deep southern Atlanta: "Emory could show it is one of the South's more liberal private universities. . .by the restricted admission of Negroes to some of its schools. . .Emory's faculty and student body often indicated that it is broad-minded enough to fake such a move in its stride." . . . Gentlemen, Negroes have applied for admission to nearly every great Southern university now. . . Carolina IS the greatest southern university and the leader of liberalism. . .A simple plea to Keep A Cool Head on Your Shoulders and STUDY Both Sides of The Question, when such a Negro application is made to UNC. . .Thank you.

"Why do we marry," was the rhetorical question the Marriage class prof asked his students Thursday morning.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Benson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — NIGHT SPORTS: Bob Goldwater

The Brassy Taste

Of Playmakers and Magmakers

By Bob Sain

Entertainment about campus is due to pick up soon. Marty Jacobs is hard at work with crew on a musical comedy curiously entitled "Sweep it Clean." It's due to open in less than a month.

From what I've heard of Frank Groseclose's original score the show is bound to be tuneful. Pat Palmer—probably top comedienne on campus—will work in it.

Director Jacobs, by the way, will be calling for singers and dancers any day now.

Equally fine tidings comes from the Playmaker staff for the next major production: "Cyrano de Bergerac". Foster Fitzsimmons, who can't turn out a bad show, will direct. Practically the entire male roster of the Playmakers wants the title role. We hear quite vaguely and unofficially that Sam Hirsch has the inside track.

While I'm on the Playmaker subject, I have a confession to make. My conscience has brought it to my attention that my review of "Call Back Yesterday" was anything but satisfactory.

Okay, so the same thing applies to the play.

I made my mistake in overrating McLain's script, in underrating the set and in not giving more credit to Jim Geiger, although he—like most of the others—left much to be desired in the way of good acting.

You should excuse the expression department: A Plentytarium is a place built by a man with a lot of money.

After a column about two weeks ago on what I considered the not-too-carefully laid plans for the prospective literary mag, the Carolina Quarterly, the members of the executive committee of that would-be publication declared open season on me, accusing me of printing untruths and ill considered remarks about their baby.

They said I should have waited until I read the prospectus

I've read the prospectus and learned nothing about the magazine that I didn't know when I wrote the first column in which I called for a faculty editor for what is intended to be a quality magazine. I pointed out that there was no one on campus (with the exception of John Zucker who will probably not be here after May) who could edit such a magazine.

I haven't changed my mind about that. The prospectus says that "a permanent advisory committee, consisting of three members of the English faculty and two members of the Journalism department. . .will work with and . . .advise the editorial and business staff."

Only if such a committee has the final word in choice of stories, art and matters of policy will it be of any use. And I don't believe they would have it.

The school should have a literary magazine. But why start one that would flop after two or three issues or else continue and discredit the University?

Discounts Belief

War Didn't Change Vets

Minneapolis, Minn. — (IP) — The general belief that war experiences have altered the vocational plans and ambitions of the great majority of the American veterans is discounted by the nationwide survey on veterans' education made by the American Council on Education with financial backing of Disabled American Veterans.

Results of the study indicate that more than half (51 per cent) of the veterans now enrolled in the nation's colleges and universities are preparing for the same vocations they planned to enter before they went into the armed services, according to Dean E. G. Williamson of the University of Minnesota who acted as chairman of the survey committee.

Only 35 per cent, the survey shows, have changed their vocational plans made before entering military service, while 11 per cent had not chosen vocations prior to donning uniforms.

The greatest change in vocational aims was found among the disabled veteran students, with 46 of the married students in this group and 43 per cent of the single students enrolled in programs leading to occupational goals different from those they had prior to the war.

Principal reason advanced for changing vocational choice was "change of interest." Of the 35 per cent who have changed their plans, one fourth gave this reason. Other explanations advanced for change of vocational plans included "more opportunity in second choice," 17 per cent of this group; "more aptitude for second choice," 13 per cent; "is better paying," 4 per cent; and "too long to prepare for first choice," four per cent.

One tenth of the student veterans who changed their plans, stated that they had tried the vocation of their original choice, didn't like it and had switched to another. Only 1 per cent of those who changed said they found preparing for the first choice "too tough."

Once having embarked upon training for a vocation under the G. I. Bill of Rights or the Rehabilitation program, most student veterans have remained "on course." The study shows that 86 per cent have made no change in vocational plans since starting training under government benefits. Some 12 per cent reported having switched vocational plans once since starting training, while only between 1 and 2 per cent said they had changed vocations two or more times.

Most student veterans feel that the majority of courses they are now taking are directly related to the vocations for which they are preparing. According to the survey, only 20 per cent do not consider their present college courses directly related to their chosen vocations.

Space Filler

Night Editor Thinks!

By Chuck Hauser

THOUGHTS BY THE NIGHT EDITOR, March 26, 10 p. m.—There comes a time in every newspaperman's life when he must write something just to fill up space. This is such a time.

At the top of these columns appears Bob Sain's Brassy Taste. At the top of these columns should appear a cartoon by a young man named Bill Mauldin. The cartoon never reached the printshop and we will never go to press with a big slice of white space on the edit page, so you will have to bear with us.

* * *

Tomorrow (today to the reader), instead of sitting in the sun out at the Buccaneer drinking a few brews, we will be sitting in class. The fact that we will be be sitting in class on Saturday would not be so bad, considering they will be the only Saturday classes we will have to suffer through during the quarter, but the fact that the Saturday classroom gatherings fall on Easter weekend is a crime.

Of all the Saturdays in the quarter to choose from, the University as usual picked the wrong one. Students living in the state close enough to their homes to spend this Easter weekend with their families are deprived of that privilege by the indifferent attitude of the administration toward students' feelings.

* * *

The political scene gets more interesting by the day. Five candidates are now in the race for the presidential post in the April 6 battle of the ballots—Jess Dedmond (CP-UP), Mike Rubish (SP), Charlie Long, Charlie Hodson and Dick Manning (Independents). Political observers are betting that it will be a fight in the run-off between Dedmond and Long, but remember—candidates can still enter the field up until midnight tonight (Saturday). And some politicoes are betting that a new face might show up yet.

Was Hitler Right?

Liberals Sometimes Gloat

By Randall McLeod

Mr. Charles Johnson yesterday stated a case for a "martyr of the American cause": Adolf Hitler; yet he threatens to martyr America in doing it.

One of Hitler's platforms was opposition to Bolshevism. Mr. Johnson reminds us that Hitler said: "If this Bolshevism only fostered its doctrines in one single country, other countries would not need to trouble about it. But the first principle of this doctrine is its internationalism, that is to say, the belief that it must triumph throughout the whole world" . . .That it must attack "our whole system of the State and of society, our culture, our beliefs, our morality. . . which means turning the world as we know it upside down."

Hitler rose, in the best American log-cabin-to-president tradition, from paper-hanger to head of a great nation. He sought to rebuild his nation from bankruptcy, defeat, and disruption to internal security and well-being and world wide influence. But we certainly do not extol Mr. Hitler's methods. We agree, as Mr. Johnson obviously suggests, that we could not condone Hitler's own brand of "internationalism"; that is to say, "the belief that (Nazism) must triumph throughout the whole world."

We defeated Hitler in war for trying to do less of the same thing than Soviet Russia has already done in post-war "peace."

Yet now that we are belatedly trying to weed out not mere fifth-columnists but traitors to our country—traitors who are so "liberal" that they smugly gloat as Communist totalitarianism creeps closer and closer to our western foundations of individual freedom and dignity—now, Mr. Johnson seeks to condem us because Hitler too was an enemy of the communists.

England's Cliveden set almost irretrievably appeased central Europe into the hands of Hitler totalitarianism; Western "liberalism" has already appeased half of Europe and half of Asia to Soviet totalitarianism. Does Mr. Johnson propose that we, in one last convulsion of free government, elect even more such "liberals" to appease America and the rest of the world to Soviet totalitarianism?

We agree that "equality and brotherhood", freedom of speech, press, and religion, individual freedom and dignity are all more fundamental—must go deeper than "party loyalty, state loyalty, national loyalty." We agree, too, that "the faith that America is guaranteed against Germany's fate simply by our traditions of freedom is not entirely reasonable." But would it not be an insult to Mr. Johnson to suggest that he thinks such fundamental freedoms are protected under Communist)?

With smooth "intellectualism," Mr. Johnson tries to apply his vacuum-packed absolutes to the most relative reality ever to exist; namely, the human race and individual dignity. Because America does not have perfect racial relations (what nation does?); because America does not have a perfect government; because America is so selfish that we find it in our own national interests for other nations to enjoy independence;—Are these reasons for us complacently to sit back and any totalitarian state (Nazi or allow Soviet totalitarianism to destroy our independence, simply because Hitler was an enemy of the Bolsheviks, too? Certainly we would not charge Mr. Johnson with such a nefarious purpose, but we must realize that such arguments as his are the most subtle type of "intellectual" propaganda to make American thinkers and true American liberals feel a "guilt complex" when refusing to accept the "democracy" of Communism.

We should remember Thomas Jefferson's statement that governments are founded in jealousy, not on confidence. Confidence that a dictator will protect your freedom is treason to him to destroy it. Jealousy of your freedom will make you "bind down from mischief the hands elected to govern in control of representative government.

Write Away

To Make Democracy Work

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Editor:

To make democracy work we must work at it. It's said that the best safeguard for democracy is a well informed citizenry and there's no greater opportunity for forwarding this condition than right here at our university.

It is my humble observation that the average person of normal reactions takes relatively little interest in affairs which do not directly affect himself and his own unless some stimulus is interjected—some personified manna in the wilderness to present the issues about which all of us should be concerned. This determinating medium, which can be such a beneficial influence in our dynamic scene, is in your hands in heading the south's leading instrument of the collegiate press—The Daily Tar Heel. You and your staff, in the facilitation of your tasks, are democracy strengtheners. In exploiting the issues of the day you are instilling the healthy interest in the domestic and foreign fields which we need to maintain this government for and by the people.

Be mindful of this vital opportunity Mr. Editor. History will record the success with which you and your contemporaries provide the impetus for this enlightened self-interest. Democracy is on trial and we're counting on you to contribute to our victory.

Mervyn D. Lentz

No Political End

Dear Editor:

This letter is intended as a public announcement. I would like to make it plain that I do not wish to use the Veterans Association as a means to advancing any political ends. I plan to remain in office until after elections, but the Association will continue to be a service organization to its members.

Johnny Clampitt

To Henry A. Wallace

Why, Henry, have you turned away today?
I'm sure there must be some good reason why.
Come, Henry, tell us in your natural way
What caused you to let honor pass you by?
Americans had faith once in your dreams.
Gave to you honor's second highest place.
Now from us you have turned or so it seems
To hold our opposition in warm embrace.
Don't tell us, Henry, it is your desire
To break our way of life with a Red gloom.
Can it be true you let yourself for hire
To bring us to totalitarian doom?
Ah, native son that you should come to shame.
But now I guess you'll say you aren't to blame.

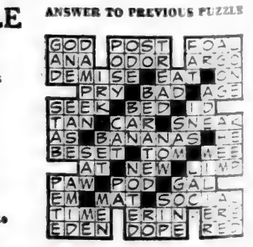
D. F. Blackwell, Jr.

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

—If the fine spring weather doesn't let up, GM staffers will start putting on more programs outdoors. . .Will probably air the 6:30-7:30 recorded dinner music concerts on the front lawn, in addition to other special musical programs. . .And possibly out door movies, too. . .

There are also a few new female faces on the campus. Meet them at the GM-Get-Together Dance tonight in the main lounge. . .Johnny Satterfield and ork, all for free. Rendezvous will be open for overflow. . .Note to new student shutterbugs: There's a complete photo darkroom on the ground floor of the union building.

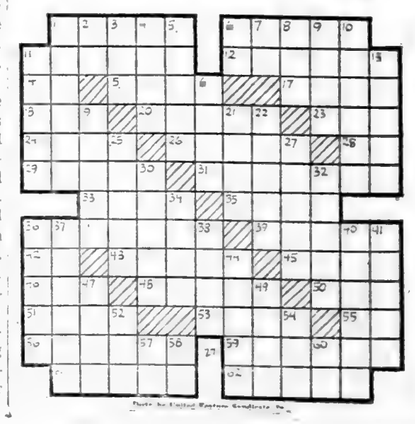
Placards posting politicoes will find a Godsend in the new 6 by 8-foot bulletin board, just built and placed on the front porch of the building.



Group Will Select Delegates Tuesday

Heads or representatives of all organizations wishing to participate in selecting UNC delegates to the state student legislature are requested to meet with Pete Gerns in Roland Parker lounge I on Tuesday at 3 o'clock.

Gerns has announced that UNC will be represented by 29 legislators in the lower house and three senators. All students interested in taking part should contact him by Monday evening at the Tarnation office.



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Frolic
6—Helpers
11—Its capital is Ottawa
12—Put on a play
14—Upon
15—What clock shows
17—To step
18—To compute
20—Fearful
23—Obstruction
24—Cleanser
26—Downy duck
28—Negative
29—To sing shrilly
31—Does over again
33—To peer
35—Soaks up
36—It's danced about
39—Seed coating
42—Notice
43—To declare
45—Cooking fat
46—Small spot
48—Storms
50—Rabid
51—Russian sea
53—Clears, as profit
55—Prefix: down
56—Fine-wooled white sheep
59—Drugged cigarette
61—Choice meat cut
62—Flight of steps

DOWN

1—Frankness
2—Indefinite article
3—Fixed
4—To revise
5—Fiber plant
6—Like
7—Pronoun
8—To skip a stone
9—An exclamation
10—Cutting
11—Shoreline
13—The people
16—Turkish officer
19—Diurnal
21—Small fish (pl.)
22—Station
25—Falls with watery sound
27—To turn back
30—Plunders
32—Province of India
34—Secret order
36—Woman's title
37—Worships
38—English school
40—Swapper
41—Viper
44—Jugs
47—Sharp to taste
49—Let it stand
52—To recline
54—Large wave
57—Sodium (symbol)
58—Sign of appr.
60—Falkland Islands (abbr.)

DiLorenzo Hurls Two-Hit Ball As Carolina Downs Virginia, 3-1, In Opener

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael III

A Definite Deficiency

THE RECENT STATE HIGH SCHOOL basketball tournaments that took place in Durham and Chapel Hill earlier in the month seem to impress upon the casual observer one point above all others—that being the fact that North Carolina secondary schools, in general, are not producing college caliber athletic performers or boys with even the potentialities in the collegiate field.

Of the 250-odd competitors that took part in the three class tourneys (AA, A, B), it was possible to count on one hand the lads who in the future might star on college hardwoods. All of which makes one wonder why North Carolina can't produce more of its own collegiate performers.

The answer does not seem to be with the boys themselves. They grow them just as big and able down here as they do in any other part of the country, and certainly the Old North State is better than average in the environmental department. The obvious remaining factor is the development of ability and talent, a skill at which the Tar Heel high school are proving themselves incapable.

Needed: Facilities

TODAY, IN NORTH CAROLINA, there are few good, well-equiped high school athletic plants. Even the bigger schools in the major cities do not have the proper facilities for the necessary development of would-be athletic stars. The majority of the smaller schools in the state have even less in the way of athletic plants, which means even less opportunity for the incubation of future headliners.

Along the coaching line, few schools have full-time athletic coaches or even physical education directors. The task of turning out a football, basketball, and baseball team in addition to providing recreational facilities and opportunities for the remainder of the student body, usually falls to a single teacher in the school. This teacher is usually not a qualified athletic man and besides his athletic duties, probably has academic tasks consuming four or five periods a day.

Thus, on limited budgets and under limited supervision athletics are being carried out in some cases with limited equipment, etc., which in the case of football can be a very dangerous practice.

At the Root: Money

THE SOLUTION TO THE PROBLEM is, of course, money. The average city school and city school system, is unable to completely support a large scale athletic program and in some cases to support much of an athletic program at all. The big pecuniary push, therefore, must come from the State as it does in numerous other states throughout the union.

North Carolina, today, is not a rich state, but on the other hand, it is not a poor one. There is a surplus of large size now acculumating in the state from which a suitable chunk could be put to no better use than improving North Carolina high schools and their athletic plants.

A little known fact to most Tar Heels is that North Carolina led all states in draft rejections during the period of wartime selective service. That is not something to be very proud of. Today, there is talk of a new draft law to prepare physically and mentally the youth of America for war should it come.

One might ask why wait until the youth of America are of draftable age to begin conditioning, why not start right in our own state high schools?

The Broad Outlook

THE BROADENING OF ANY athletic program means the increase in quality and quantity of available talent for competitive activity in sports. Increase the facilities in North Carolina and you will increase the output of stars in all sports.

Probably one of the major thoughts that warms Tar Heels hearts in watching the antelope antics of Charlie Justice is the fact that he is a North Carolinian, born and bred. Yet, the fact remains that given the opportunity, North Carolina can produce more and more like Justice, which the Lord providing, will all come to the University.

Not that North Carolina is sadly lacking in athletic stars outside of Justice. The state has the third larges representation in major league baseball today and there are other Tar Heel names like Page, Alexander, Palmer, and Simmons on the sports page daily.

Quote the Walrus

STILL THE PROOF of the pudding is in the competing and though North Carolina can produce its share of golfers and baseballers, it is sadly lacking in the development of stars in other sports. State College proved that this winter by producing one of the top cage teams of the nation right in the capital city of the state, but without the use of a native North Carolinian.

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to do more than speak of improving the athletic setup in North Carolina high schools."

Softball First . . .

Spring Mural Plans to Be Made Tuesday; DiLorenzo, Turner Lead in Point Totals

Plans will be started for the spring intramural program, which include such activities as softball, track, horseshoes, tennis, water polo, and archery, in a meeting of intramural managers scheduled by mural director Walter Rabb for next Tuesday at 7:30 in 302 Woollen.

Main topic of discussion at the manager's meeting will be plans for the forthcoming softball tournament. In connection with this meeting, Rabb announced that the deadline for softball entries will be 6 p.m., March 31.

Umpires Meeting

Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, there will be a meeting of all persons interested in umpiring softball games. The meeting is scheduled to be held in 302 Woollen and the mural office urges all aspirants to be on time for this important meeting.

One of the biggest intramural activities coming up in the near future is the annual sports carnival to be held in the gym on April 1, from 7 o'clock until 10:30. Boxing, volleyball, basketball, and table tennis championships will be decided during the course of the evening, as well as exhibitions in water polo, tumbling, and badminton.

Point Standing

The mural office recently released the individual point standings through the winter quarter. Two fraternity men, Vinnie DiLorenzo and Gene Turner, led the campus in scoring with 134 points each. Bud Ruffin, of Zeta took third spot honors with 117 points. Following close behind Ruffin in the fraternity division are Cliff Frazier, Jack Folger, Vic Seixas, Gurney Boren, Walt Haywood, and Leo Duffie.

Highest man in the dormitory division is Boo Walker, with 103 points. Grad Bill Edmundson copped second spot dorm honors with 97 points.

Harbert in Lead In Charlotte Open

Charlotte, March 26 —(UP)— Long-driving Chick Harbert of Detroit has smacked out another 66 today to lead with 132 at the halfway point of the 10-thousand dollar Charlotte Open Golf tournament.

The stocky Detroit professional repeated his opening round 66 today as he birdied five holes and was two under par on the 15th. Harbert won the Jacksonville, Fla., open this year.

Most of the other pros continued to knock par in all directions on the Meyers park course at Charlotte today.

The hottest performer of the day was Lawson Little—who turned in a 65 to pull up to 133—just one stroke behind Harbert.

The field will be trimmed tomorrow to the top 60 pros and the top 10 amateurs, including the ties for the last places.

Racqueteers Stress Doubles in Practice

Coach John Kenfield switched his coaching concentration from singles to doubles yesterday as the Tar Heel netters began rounding the edges in preparation for the season's opener on Monday.

The genial mentor found himself experimenting for the right combinations that would pay off in wins for the coming season. Vic Seixas was teamed with Ray Morris in one duo to test the talents of Clark Taylor and Charlie Rice.

On another court Stan Gruner was paired with Duke Wilder to square off against Don Skakle and Heath Alexander to complete the double competition.

From these four combos, Kenfield will probably pick the three sets that should see the majority of the action during the 23-match schedule.

Baseball Briefs

By United Press

MR. SHORTSTOP INJURED

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 26—The St. Louis Cardinals's pennant chances were dealt a severe blow today, when Marty Marion, said by many to be the best fielding shortstop in the business, injured his left knee in an exhibition contest with the Philadelphia Phillies. Preliminary examinations indicate that he may be sidelined for the entire campaign. It is believed the injury may be a recurrence if a trick knee which hampered Marion late last season.

EARLY TO SENATORS

Orlando, Fla., March 26—The Washington Senators have taken back catcher Jake Early from the St. Louis Browns for the waiver price of $10,000.

ON YOUR MARK . . .

Bradenton, Fla, March 26—Outfielder Jim Russell and rookie shortstop Alvin Dark finished in a dead heat today in a 60-yard race to determine the fastest man on the Boston Braves baseball club. Pitcher Johnny Beazley won the race for batterymen.

YANKS 7, BOSOX 2

Sarasota, Fla., March 26—The New York Yankees reached Ellis Kinder for five runs in the sixth inning today to annex their third win from the Boston Red Sox in four starts by a 7-2 count.

EXTRA INNING TILT

Tampa, Fla., March 26—Pitcher Walker Cress won his own ball game today as he drove in the winning run in the 13th inning to give the Cincinnati Reds a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Southpaw Ace Whiffs 10 in Going Route; Tar Heels Register in Second and Third

By Bill Kellam

Lynchburg, March 26 — Southpaw Vinnie Dilorenzo registered his best pitching performance in two years of collegiate competition here this afternoon as North Carolina made its 1948 baseball debut with a sparkling 3-1 triumph over Virginia.

In complete charge all the way, the Bergenfield, N. J., mound artist allowed a measly two hits in traveling the full nine-inning route. Striking out 10 Cavaliers, including three in a row in the third inning, DiLorenzo showed perfect control in giving up nary a walk. He retired the last 16 Virginians to cement the victory.

Two in Third

While the pride and joy of the Tar Heel pitching staff was mowing down the Cavalier club, his teammates, while not threatening to separate the horsehide cover from the rest of the ball, did manage to pick up two runs in the third frame, and an additional tally one inning later. DiLorenzo himself took part in the two-run stanza that provided the Carolina team with its margin of victory.

First-baseman John Gregory opened the third by gaining a free pass to first. DiLorenzo followed with a line single into left and when Whitey Black's intended sacrifice failed to produce an out on any base, the sacks were full of Tar Heels.

Hayworth Bunts

Co-Captain Jim Hayworth caught the Virginia infield napping by dumping a bunt and legging it out for a safety, Gregory scoring on the play with the first run of the game. Frank Jones flied to second-baseman Chuck Noe and DiLorenzo sped arcoss after the catch. Black was thrown out moving to third and Jim Kelly grounded out to end the inning, but Carolina possessed a two-run advantage.

The Cavaliers collected their lone tally in the very next stanza when, with one away, Clay Bear was safe on a miscue by Dallas Branch and Bob Caine came through with a double to center to drive him across. But Caine was the last Virginia player to get as far as first base and DiLorenzo breezed home the rest of the way.

Third Run

The Tar Heel batters gave him another run for good measure in the bottom of the fourth. Branch singled to center after two were out and Gregory smashed a 375-foot triple off the right-field fence to send Dallas in with Carolina's third and final tally.

Two Virginia pitchers handled the mound chores for the losers

(See BASEBALL, page 4)

Great Start!

Virginia	AB	R	H	E
Parrott, cf	4	0	0	0
Noe, 2b	4	0	0	1
Bear, rf	3	1	0	0
*Carr	1	0	0	0
Rowell, 1b	3	0	0	0
Caine, lf	3	0	1	0
Huff, 3b	3	0	0	0
Patton, ss	3	0	0	0
Berner, c	3	0	1	0
Wade, p	2	0	0	0
Leachman, p	1	0	0	0
Totals	33	1	2	1

Carolina	AB	R	H	E
Black, cf	3	0	1	0
Hayworth, 3b	4	0	2	0
Jones, rf	4	0	0	0
Kelly, lf	4	0	1	0
Varney, c	4	0	0	0
Ryan, ss	3	0	1	0
Branch, 2b	3	1	1	2
Gregory, 1b	2	1	1	0
DiLorenzo, p	3	1	1	0
Totals	30	3	8	2

*Batted for Bear in 9th.

Virginia	000	100	00—1
Carolina	002	100	00X—3

Summary: Runs batted in: Hayworth, Jones, Gregory, Caine. Three-base hits: Gregory. Two-base hits: Ryan, Caine. Stolen base: Black. Double play: Patton and Rowell. Strickouts—by: DiLorenzo 10, Wade 2. Bases on balls—off: Wade 1. Left on base: Carolina 7, Virginia 2. Umpires: Murray and Powell. Time: 1:48.

Eight Runners Enter Florida Relays Today

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

Gainesville, Fla., March 26—Coach Joe Hilton and six Tar Heel tracksters arrived here this morning and joined forces with two other squad members before going through a light drill in preparation for the Relay meet to be staged here tomorrow.

The competition this year is the finest that the games have ever seen and some 20 colleges will vie for honors. Other North Carolina schools that are on hand are N. C. State and Duke.

Carolina will seek to retain the high hurdle championship which Chunk Simmons took last year with a time of 15 seconds flat. Dick Taylor, the Southern Indoor victor, and Bob Morrow will carry the light blue in this event.

Bob "Snipe" Seligman, last year's winner and the meet record holder in the shot and discus, will try to make it two years in a row but he will be up against Fortune Gordien of Minnesota, the national champion. It is almost certain that records will go in these event.

Carolina's depleted distance ranks have Sam Magill and Julian Mackenzie in the mile run. This is a team race but the coaches have not yet found a third man.

Bob Black will take part in the relays and half mile if his leg has sufficiently recovered. Hank Hickman will be in the pole vault, in which the competition will be the same as the Indoor games with some other Southern stars also entered.

Jack Moody will be out to defend his title in the high jump and he is favored in that event. Moody took a fourth and a sixth in the Cleveland and Chicago indoor meets during the vacation.

DENTAL HEALTH
OLAG TOOTH PASTE
AT ALL DRUG STORES

Humor . . . . Social Life . . . Sports . . . . Veterans
ALL THIS AND LOVELY GIRLS TOO
in
"CAMPUS TIME"
THE NEW SOUTHERN INTERCOLLEGIATE MAGAZINE
5 Big Issues . . . . Only $1.00
Subscribe at the Y Today
SADIE PEARSON AL PETTEWAY

Cagers Begin Olympic Trials Today

New York, March 26—(UP)—Basketball continues to hold a spot in the national sports limelight with the opening of the Olympic cage trials tournament in Madison Square Garden tomorrow.

The first-day pairings in the college bracket will send Kentucky against Louisville and NYU against Baylor. Kentucky, the NCAA champion, and NYU, the Invitational runner-up, are both favored to win their opening games.

In the independent bracket, the Phillips Oilers are a top-heavy choice to eliminate the Brooklyn YMCA quintet, and the Denver Nuggets are picked over the Oakland, Cal., Bittners.

RABIES VACCINATION CLINIC
Dr. Nathan and Dr. Vine will be at Victory Village Coop Store for the purpose of vaccinating dogs against rabies on Saturday March 27th
from 1:00 to 2:00
Vaccinations given at Office daily

BALDWIN'S
Marine Room
Durham
Breakfast 7:45—10:30
Luncheon 11:00—2:30
Tea Hours 2:30—5:30
Dinner 5:00—8:00
Mrs. Jennie S. Thurston
Phone 9493

Do You Want To Sit Back And Really Enjoy Your Beer?
Let us do the work—you call 3536
and your beer by the case is immediately delivered—
Ice Cold Beer
K & M BEER DELIVERY SERVICE
119½ Columbia Street

You'll arise—and sing with this RECORD!
It's "AIRIZAY" (Arise)—RCA Victor's new platter by Ray McKinley and his band

RAY McKINLEY'S styling of the New Orleans ditty, "Airizay," is attracting lots of fans. If you ask Ray about it, he says: "I've found from long experience what style of music we do best—just as I've learned from experience that Camels suit my 'T-Zone' to a 'T.'"
Try Camels! Learn for yourself why, with smokers who have tried and compared, Camels are the "choice of experience."
And here's another great record—
More people are smoking CAMELS than ever before!

FORMER U. S. Ambassador to Japan, Joseph C. Grew (above) tells the Senate Armed Services Committee in Washington that "without the shadow of a doubt" the United States needs both universal military training and the draft. Grew charged that "one of the greatest blunders in history was the recent demobilization of our armed forces below the safety point."

International Soundphoto

New Students Must Give DTH Addresses

All newly- registered students who live in private residences should notify the Daily Tar Heel circulation department, 2nd floor Graham Memorial, of their addresses in order that they may receive copies of the paper. Those residing within the corporate limits of Chapel Hill should list their residence address, while all others should list their mailing address.

This procedure is not necessary for students residing in dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses, Victory Village, quonset huts, or in university-operated trailer courts.

Any returning off-campus students who have changed their address should notify the department of this change.

There is no charge for the Daily Tar Heel aside from the publications fee that was paid at the time of registration.

Bill Townsend To Renew Social Dancing Classes; Course Starts Wednesday, To Continue 10 Weeks

By Herb Nachman

Bill Townsend, special journalism student, has announced that he will renew his social dancing classes beginning Wednesday.

The series of classes will last for 10 weeks and will be conducted in cooperation with the intramural department.

Beginners classes will be held on Wednesday from 7 to 8, intermediate 8 to 9 and advanced from 9 to 10.

Comprehensive courses in conservative or smooth fox trot, American and Viennese waltz, Cuban rhumba and conga, continental tango, and Brazilian samba will be given.

Townsend said the free classes will be of the same type he conducted in the fall of 1946 which were attended by more than 400 students.

Coeds with some background in dancing who would like to tryout as assistants, are requested by Townsend to report to Woollen gym on Wednesday at 6 o'clock. Salary for assistants is $1 an hour.

Denver Native

A native of Denver, Colorado, Townsend has had wide experience as teacher and exhibition dancer. He will direct the classes personally.

In 1941, Townsend was reportedly the highest paid male instructor of the East Orange, N. J. Arthur Murray studio. He has had teacher's courses at Evelyn Hubbel studio, Chalif studio, LeQuorne school of dancing and Rosalie Seaber studio, all of New York City.

Hot Partners

He has entertained at various resort hotels with such famous partners as the former premier ballerina of the Chicago Grand opera, a dancer from the Shubert show, "Blossom Time," and an actress and dancer from the New York hit, "Pal Joey."

Last quarter he entertained at the Carolina hotel in Pinehurst. His classes are free to students and their wives.

N. C. Little Symphony To Collaborate With Other Groups For Easter Concert

Symphonic music at its best will be heard Monday night when the North Carolina Little Symphony combines forces with the St. Cecilia Choral club, The Raleigh Male chorus, the Oratorio society and other Raleigh choral groups, in presenting an Easter concert.

The program will include the music of Handel's "Dettinger," Te Deum, Brahms' "Ave Maria" and Debussy's "The Blessed Damozel," which is the musical setting of Rossetti's famous poem.

Soloists for the evening who will sing with the orchestra and the chorus will be Geneva Wilmot, soprano, Beatrice Donley, controlto, David Wilmot, tenor, and Edgar Vom Lehn, bass.

In addition to the concerts by the full symphony which members of this area will hear during April, this Easter program is an extra feature and all North Carolina symphony membership cards will be honored. Nonmembers may attend for the minimum price of one dollar.

The concert will be held in Pullen hall, State college, Raleigh, at 8:30 Monday and will be broadcast over station WRAL at a frequency of 1015 mc. Attention is called to FM Listeners.

'I Hate Southern Cooking' — Shane; Is Going To Virginia To Try It Anyway

Richmond, Va., March 26—(UP)—New York magazine writer Ted Shane will be accompanied by a body guard and taster when he comes to Virginia for the state's annual chef's tourney March 29 and 30.

Last year Shane penned a treatsie on Southern cooking that almost set off another regional skirmish. It's title was "I Hate Southern Cooking," and the Northern author needled the Dixie folk with comments like this:

"Their Southern chicken is immersed in cement and immolated in deep fat," and "After eating a hard-baked corn stick, you'll know what is meant by the staff of life."

In fact, Shane said the next time he came South he would take along a hamper of what he called "good old Northern chop suey or spaghetti or cold potato salad."

The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce aimed to change Shane's opinion. The chamber invited him to come to Fredericksburg and act as a judge in the Virginia chef's tourney.

Shane wired back that he couldn't be a judge. "I'm on a diet," he moaned, "no meat."

He reconsidered the offer however. He telephoned the chamber that he would arrive in Virginia Saturday and would be glad to judge the vegetables and desserts.

And who is the body guard and taster? Mrs. Shane, who'll judge the meat.

Campus Calendar

2:00 p. m.—Campus party meets in Roland Parker 2.

5:00 p. m.—Emergency meeting of Anti-UMT committee.

4:00 p. m.—Honor Council Selection board, Grail room

8:30 p. m.—UVA dance, Vets club.

8:30 p. m.—Graham Memorial dance, Main lounge.

Easter Bonnets Safe in South

By United Press

The weather man says he will be kind to Easter bonnets this year, although it will be a bit chilly in the Midwest and East.

Although it may be too cool for some of milady's Easter finery, the weather will be generally sunny throughout the nation Sunday.

The United States weather bureau says the west coast will be clear in spite of some high thin clouds. A storm is gathering in the Pacific, but is expected to wait until after the holiday to strike.

In the South, the weather will be clear with temperatures rising to the 70's. Fair weather is expected in most of the plain states, but temperatures may be in the 40's all day in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Predictions on the East coast are for fair and cooler weather, or partly cloudy and cooler.

-Baseball-

(Continued from page 3)

and gave up eight hits. Starter Neil Wade went the first five innings and Jack Leachman finished up.

Pacing the way at the plate for the Tar Heels was Hayworth, with two safeties in four trips. In addition to Gregory's triple, Rip Ryan weighed in with a two-bagger for the contest's only other extra-base blow.

CAROLINA

Now Playing

HE'S DRESSED TO KILL!

When an ex-convict turns gentleman! WOW!

M-G-M's rough-and-rowdy comedy riot!

WALLACE BEERY IN ALIAS A GENTLEMAN

TOM DRAKE • DOROTHY PATRICK

GLADYS GEORGE • LEON AMES

Screen Play by WILLIAM R. LIPMAN

Directed by HARRY BEAUMONT

Produced by NAT PERRIN

A METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PICTURE

Late Show Saturday

Sunday—Monday

A New Kind of Laughter!

Robert YOUNG

Maureen O'HARA

Clifton WEBB in

Sitting Pretty

20th CENTURY-FOX

RICHARD HAYDN • LOUISE ALLBRITTON

Directed by WALTER LANG • Produced by SAMUEL G. ENGEL

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

TWO BEDROOM HOUSE IN CHAPEL Hill T. V. Cauble, 33 Oakwood Drive. (1-1868-1)

MINIATURE SPEED GRAPHIC OUTfit complete with accessories. Also Miniature Graflex, De Jur Versatlie I enlarger, and some darkroom equipment. Call Lester Bodden, 6071 or 6066. (1-1865-1)

WOODED LOT. 125 FT. WIDE, 139 deep. Rogerson Drive, near Raleigh Road. Call 6331, afternoons. (1-1870-1)

PLAYPEN AND BABY STROLLER IN excellent condition. Call 9636 (1-1875-1)

NICE ROOM AVAILABLE FOR couple or male student. Car necessary. Call 9636. (1-1874-1)

TWO MAY FROLICS BIDS—TONY Pastor's orchestra, April 10—Phone 3031, George Trotter. (1-1872-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1942 STUDEBAKER - COMMANDER Skyway, sports coupe, radio, heater, white sidewalls, good condition. Reasonably priced. Good buy, see Shapiro, 208 Church Street. (1-1876-1)

SUPER SIX HUDSON SEDAN IN good shape with overdrive and vacuum shift, cheap. See Ben L. Rouse, 140 Daniels Road, Victory Village. (1-1877-1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

MEN OVER TWENTY WITH ABILITY to lead and work with boys. To serve ten weeks this summer as counselors on staff at Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Good pay, wonderful environment, room and board. Only those with outstanding qualifications need apply. Apply J. Watson Holyfield, Director of Camp Sea Gull, Raleigh Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 3)

LOST 12

IRISH SETTER FROM FRONT OF Medical School, Wednesday afternoon of 24th. Reward $10.00. Will be in Washington Duke Hotel until Saturday. J. S. Bower, M. D. Front Royal, Va. (1-c1871-1)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 422 W. Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

For Picnics Parties And Fun

Let the

K & M BEER DELIVERY SERVICE

Bring DRAFT Beer to You

Call 3536

Kegs and Cases

119½ Columbia Street

University Florist

"For the Best in Flowers"

Pick Theatre Bldg.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

Telephone 6816

Carleton H. Davis* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked the Finger Nail Test

ACID INDIGESTION, Brother Hippo? Feeling mentally mildewed? Wallowing in grief? What you need is a tonic. And your best bet is Wildroot Cream-Oil Hair tonic. It's "again and again the choice of men who put good grooming first!" Just a touch of Wildroot Cream-Oil grooms your hair neatly and naturally without that plastered-down look. Relieves annoying dryness and removes embarrassing loose dandruff! And Wildroot Cream-Oil is the non-alcoholic hair tonic containing soothing Lanolin. Get a tube or bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil at any drug or toilet goods counter today. And ask your barber for a professional application. See for yourself how it helps you pass the Fingernail Test!

* of 120 Forest Drive, Orchard Park, N. Y.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

Only the Oysters Get Stewed (Today) at HARRY'S

AFTER WARNING the Senate Appropriations Committee in Washington that House cuts in State Department funds will leave him "definitely weakened" for the coming year of "critical world affairs", Secretary of State George C. Marshall (left) shakes hands with Sen. Joseph Ball (R-Minn.). Marshall told the group that world conditions in recent weeks have deteriorated rather than improved. He urged that $16,000,000 cut from his original request be restored. (International Soundphoto)

Dormitory Rooms Available For 25

Twenty-five more students became eligible for dormitory space for the spring quarter, according to an announcement released by the housing office today.

In order to secure these rooms, eligible students must contact the housing office, 22 New East Annex, not later than Wednesday March 31. Any student whose name appears on the following list and who fails to contact the housing office by the above date will be dropped from the waiting list.

Robert B. Ausley, James R. Caudill, Hugh H. Ervin, Norfleet Grant, James B. Ledford, Jerome Lewis, James C. McLain, Jr., Gerald M. Murrell, Lynn Parker, Fletcher H. Roberts, David A. Smith, Robert C. Warren.

Thomas E. Blair, John H. Dagenhart, Edward L. Garner, Eugene B. Graham, James P. Greene, Laurence G. Ledford, Richard L. McIntosh, Emil R. Medicus, John H. Oliver, Rufus G. Plonk, Hugh I. Setzer, Jr., John F. Tsantes.

Holy Communion Set For Episcopal Church

Three celebrations of the Holy Communion will be held in the Episcopal church tomorrow, Rev. David Yates announced yesterday.

The services will be held at 8, 9:30, and 11 o'clock. Use of the earlier services was recommended to avoid crowding at 11 o'clock.

At 8 o'clock tomorrow evening there will be a presentation of medieval resurrection plays in the church.

RADIO EXAMS

The qualifying examination for all students entering the Department of Radio during the winter and spring Quarters 1948 will be administered in Room 201, Peabody hall, Tuesday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Students who plan to take this examination should register with the Department of Radio, Swain hall, prior to noon on Tuesday.

He's got a deadly eye for a moving target, and a roving eye for a red head!

COMET PRODUCTIONS, INC Presents

THE ADVENTURES OF DON COYOTE IN CINECOLOR

with FRANCES RAFFERTY

And Presenting RICHARD MARTIN as DON COYOTE

Produced by BUDDY ROGERS and RALPH COHN Directed by REGINALD LeBORG Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

Today

VILLAGE

VA Says Veterans Under P L 16 Must Finish School Uninterruptedly

According to a recently released memorandum from the Veterans administration all veterans under Public Law 16 must complete their training, if possible, without interruption.

The bulletin said that training must be continued through the summer sessions unless the necessary courses are not available at the present institution or at any conveniently located and acceptable institution.

Training may be temporarily interrupted if the veteran is not physically able to continue or has some other good and sufficient reason.

Withdrawal from an institution for personal reasons, such as to take a vacation or to accept temporary employment, or other reasons not approved by the VA will cause the vets file to be placed in a discontinued status, and it will be necessary for the Advisement and Guidance section to re-establish need for vocational rehabilitation under PL 16 before he can be re-entered in training.

If a trainee is placed in a discontinued status due to his own volition and his pension has been cut off he will not be able to re-enter training under PL 16; however, if he has eligibility and entitlement remaining he will be permitted to re-enter under PL 346.

The VA urged that all PL 16 vets go to the VA office in 111 Peabody and fill out a certificate of intention, telling whether they intend to attend summer school. This blank must be filled out within 10 days.

The VA also warned that all PL 16 vets should go by the VA office within 10 days and fill out a schedule blank for the spring quarter.

TARNATION STAFF

The Tarnation editorial, photography, and art staffs will meet Monday night at 7 o'clock in the Tarnation office. Those persons having submitted contributions during the last two months are also requested to be present.

TWO BLOCKS WEST OF CITY HALL

You'll Find A Solution To All Laundry Problems

HELPY-SELFY

AUTOMATIC LAUNDRY

Bendix Machines

W. Rosemary St.

Two things every college man should know!

1. This is a college professor. Very smart, but somewhat baffled by the ways of man. Theory-thinker. Popular in Washington until recently. Thinks life is something you look at through a microscope.

2. This is a "Manhattan" button-down oxford shirt. Very smart, too. Its wonderful low-slope collar rolls just right and fits just right. See this most popular of college men's shirts at your "Manhattan" dealer's now.

CAMPUS FAVORITE—

Manhattan

THE MANHATTAN SHIRT COMPANY

Copr. 1948, The Manhattan Shirt Co.

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Fair and cooler.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Bellyache
Mr. Ching
Some Good

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, MARCH 28, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 126

Non-Partisan Board Releases Council Nominees

REAL ESTATE 'ROW' IN NEW JERSEY FLOOD WATERS COMPLETELY engulf fifteen homes in Westville, N. J., after the Timber Creek, swollen by heavy spring rains, overflowed its banks and inundated the nearby area. Using a small boat, two boys row past some of the homes caught in the path of the flood. Police say they may have to evacuate the area. (International)

UNC Procures Rolling Plant For Filtering

An Army portable water filtering plant, valued at $12,000, has just been procured by the University from war surplus supplies, J. A. Branch, school purchasing agent, said yesterday.

University Business manager Claude Teague said this piece of war-time equipment will be of great service to the University community, increasing the volume of purified water from the present filter plant by 100 gallons a minute.

The school's water facilities are greatly overtaxed, he added, and it will be some time before the new plant that is to be built in Carrboro will be ready for service.

The portable plant is set up in a GI truck, obtained by the University in the same transaction, and is located beside the present filter plant. It can operate at maximum output 22 hours a day if cleaned frequently. It is driven by electricity instead of the gasoline motor used by the army.

Branch said the only expense to the university in procuring this valuable piece of equipment was an outlay of $90 and the task of driving the plant down from the war surplus equipment depot in Baltimore.

Campus Red Cross Drive Raises $943.68 With Fraternities Listed Most Generous

By Sally Woodhull

A total of $943.68 was raised in the campus Red Cross drive staged March 9, 10, and 11 as part of the national drive, according to Graham Memorial Director Bill Shuford, who headed the student drive.

Citing fraternities as particularly outstanding among organizations soliciting for the drive, Shuford named Phi Delta Theta as the top group, with a collection of $61.77. Runners-up in the fraternity division were Sigma Alpha Epsilon with $54, and Sigma Chi with $51.23.

"We wish to commend the fraternities for the part they played in helping to make the drive as successful as it was," Shuford said. The total collection in fraternities was $369.22, approximately 40 percent of the entire solicitation.

Chi O Leads Sororities

Chi Omega led the sorority collections, with $34.22 out of the total of $67.24 solicited among sororities. Women's dormitories collected $126.40. Spencer led with its collection of $25.43, and Carr followed close behind with $24.55.

Collections in the men's dormitories totaled $228.18, and Alexander led with $33.27. In Victory Village $151.64 was collected.

"I wish to thank all those who personally helped me to conduct the drive," Shuford said, "and to thank members of the Men's and Women's Interdormitory councils, Pan-Hellenic council, and Interfraternity council,—and particularly the heads of those organizations—for their extreme cooperation."

Ferguson, Ormand Aid

Assisting Shuford in the administration of the drive were Joe Ferguson and Bob Ormand, and heads of organizations who led the campaign were Jack Thompson of Interfraternity council; Emile Saleeby, Men's Interdormitory council; Ferne Hughes, Pan-Hellenic council; Bootsie MacWilliams, Women's Interdormitory council; and Mrs. Dorothy Cooke from Victory Village.

"Although the campaign was not as successful as we would like it to have been," Shuford went on, "we feel that a good job was done under the circumstances. Persons participating in the drive were extremely handicapped by the fact that the drive occurred so near exams."

Moravian Church To Hold Services

Winston-Salem, March 27—(UP)—Thousands of worshipers are gathering here tonight in preparation for the 176th annual Easter sunrise service of Moravian church.

Historic old Salem square will be roped off tonight and the throng of worshippers will be awakened early tomorrow morning by the brass bands of the Moravians parading through the streets. The multitude will gather before dawn in Salem square.

There Bishop Kenneth Pfohl will begin the service of simple dignity, which will be concluded in the Moravian graveyard nearby.

The service attracts hordes of visitors to the city annually, as well as many worshippers who live in Winston-Salem.

Some 150 policemen and 600 soldiers will help to handle the crowd tomorrow.

Names to Appear On Ballot Without Party Affiliation

By Herb Nachman

The names of fifteen Men's Honor council nominees, chosen by the first non-partisan selection board in the history of student government at the University, were released late yesterday afternoon by President Tom Eller.

The candidates are: Seniors: Herman Bryson, Rock Hill, S. C.; Paul Mengel, New Bern; Wellborn Phillips, Orlando, Fla.; Stan Smith, Asheboro; and Bill Payeff, Aiken, S. C.

Juniors, Sophomores

Juniors: Pfohla Wilmoth, Winston-Salem, Dick Borden, Goldsboro; Dick Boren, Greensboro; Charles McRae, New York city; and Charlie Loudermilk, Atlanta, Ga.

Sophomores: Bruce Sanborn, Gastonia; Roy Holsten, Glen Rock, N. J.; Garland Jonas, Ponte Vedra, Fla.; and Chuck Northend, Daytona Beach, Fla. The board chose one graduate student for nomination, Gene Jones.

These men will be backet by all three political parties for election to the council. Their names wil lbe entered without party reference.

Eller Comments

In commenting on the function of the board which was composed of four representatives of each of the parties, Eller said, "The board functioned in a highly efficient and cooperative way. This is a new thing on campus and sets a precedent for selecting non-partisan candidates to sit on a judiciary body. I hope it will be continued and improved next year."

He continued "The fact that all three parties have been able to cooperate in selecting candidates for the most responsible positions in student government is an indication that they have the interest of the Student Body at heart."

Qualifications Omitted

Eller said that the board requested that no qualifications of the candidates be mentioned, their party affiliations, or where they live in Chapel Hill. It was brought out that in mentioning qualifications it would be difficult to give each one equal space and therefore the board requested it be omitted.

Candidates were interviewed by the board in several meetings and were asked questions per-

(See COUNCIL, page 4)

Student Registration for Bond Election Is Almost Negligible as 400 Sign Rolls

Out of a total of approximately 400 registrants for the April 6 municipal bond issue election, the number of students who registered was neglible, City Manager G. W. Ray said yesterday.

Registration was closed two days ago. Those few students who signed up live mainly in town instead of on the campus and apparently expect to be residents of Chapel Hill for some time.

Ray Optimistic

Ray expressed gratification over the number of registrants and declared that he felt that the proposed $260,000 bond issue designed to finance much needed improvements for street and sewage facilities would be approved by the majority of voters in the coming election.

Public health officials have pointed out that the overloaded sewage system in Chapel Hill constitutes a serious health hazard.

Repair Nine Streets

If the majority of voters approve the bond issue April 6, work will begin soon after on a new sewage disposal plant and on nine streets in bad need of repair.

Mayor R. W. Madry has pointed out that 12 to 18 months would be required before completion of the new sewage disposal plant and the renovation of old sewage facilities was accomplished. He said that some of the street repairs would be completed before the end of spring, but that it would be necessary to wait until work is finished on the sewage system before work could be begun on some of the streets.

The bond issue also provides for the purchase of new town maintainance equipment, including a caterpillar clam-shell tractor to be used mainly for garbage disposal by the land fill method, a motor grader to be used mainly for streets, three trucks and miscellaneous items, including mowing machines, sewer cleaning equipment, and new calculator and other office equipment.

Compulsory Meet For Candidates Called Tuesday

There will be a compulsory meeting of all candidates running for office in the spring elections on Tuesday at 7 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Al Winn, chairman of the Elections board, said yesterday that the meeting is compulsory for all candidates and party chairmen, or their representatives.

Groups responsible for tabulation of ballots were also announced yesterday. These are the Elections and Rules committees of the Student Legislature, five representatives appointed by the speaker of the Coed Senate, one member from each of the three Honor councils and the Elections board.

Ballots for students who will be election day will be available confined in the infirmary on upon written request to Al Winn, No. 8 Steele, by 5 o'clock on the day preceding elections.

Party Platforms Will Be In DTH

Starting Tuesday and running through next Sunday the Daily Tar Heel will print the political platforms of the major candidates for office in the April 6 general elections.

The following schedule will be adhered to, and candidates are urged to submit their platforms immediately to avoid the possibility of losing their rights to DTH space:

Tuesday: vice-presidential and secretary-treasurer candidates; Wednesday: political platforms; Thursday: presidential candidates; Friday: nominees for Tarnation editorship; Saturday: Daily Tar Heel and Yackety Yack editorial aspirants; Sunday: candidates for head cheerleader.

Parts Are Open For New Plays

Tryouts for three new one-act plays on the Carolina Playmakers' 122nd bill of student-written experimental plays will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Playmaker theater.

The three new plays include "Spanish Moss," a comedy by Robert Barr, "The Atom Cantata," Libretto by Sam Hirsch and music by Harold Schiffman, and "Mr. Albert W. Blinke," a comedy by Robert Rolnik. Production dates for the experimental bill are April 8 and 9.

The tryouts are open to everyone, and many parts are to be cast, including sixteen singing parts for Hirsch's "Atom Cantata."

"Spanish Moss" is to be directed by graduate student Helen Brown, while graduate Frederick Johnson will direct "Mr. Albert W Blinke." Hirsch is scheduled to direct his own script, and the original music for "The Atom Cantata" will be directed by its student composer, Harold Schiffman.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED

Omaha, March 27 —(UP)—The strikebound Omaha Cold Storage company has filed suit for $160,000 damages against local 120 of the CIO. Packinghouse workers and 43 individual members. The company charges that the strike forced it to buy outside its own plant at higher prices to fulfill commitments.

NOTICE-OF-RETURN CARDS

There will be a fine of $5 for each student who fails to bring his notice-of-return card to Venable X before 5 o'clock tomorrow.

Senator Takes Back Charge Against China

Washington, March 27—(UP)—Senator Vandenberg has taken back a charge by his Foreign Relations committee that Chinese leaders are corrupt and inefficient.

In a surprise statement, Vandenberg withdrew the report. He says it "created an impression which was not intended."

He took full responsibility for the report, saying, "I regret the incident."

The report charged leaders of Chiang Kai Shek's government with what it called "ineptitude in military leadership and corruption." Vandenberg says the committee's real intentions were shown by its action in voting both civilian and military aid to the Chinese government.

Stassen Questions MacArthur's Policy

Washington, March 27 —(UP)— General MacArthur's position on Communism came up for political argument today.

In Milwaukee, Harold Stassen challenged the way General MacArthur is handling what Stassen calls the "Communist threat" in Japan and Korea.

Stassen implied a charge that Korea is what he called "one of the worst spots in the world for Communist infiltration."

Subsistence Increases Go Into Effect April 1; First Additional Pay May 1

Recent legislation increasing subsistence payments for veterans under PL346 who are carrying a full study load becomes effective on April 1 and will be included in the checks received on May 1. Veterans eligible under PL16 will receive an increase, but the scale of increase has not been released.

Full instructions on necessary steps to qualify for the increased subsistence payments will be enclosed in April 1 subsistence checks. A reasonable length of time will be provided to secure the necessary papers, but quicker action will be obtained if the veteran will have these papers in his possession when his April 1 check reaches him:

If the veteran is single with no dependents, and is carrying a full study load, no further action is necessary.

If the veteran is married and has no other dependents other than his wife, has already deposited a certified copy of his marriage license with the VA, and is carrying a full load no further action is necessary.

If the veteran is married and is claiming a second dependent, either his child or another dependent who is not his child, and is attending school full time, he must secure a birth certificate of the child to be forwarded to

(See VA, page 4)

MITCHELL HONORED

Washington, March 27—(UP)—The nation has paid in part the debt it owes to the late Brigadier General William "Billy" Mitchell. Mitchell, who was court martialed 22 years ago for demanding a strong air force, was honored today by top military officials. A special gold medal of honor was presented to his son, William Mitchell, Jr.

Candidate Gerns States Platform

Pete Gerns, nominee of Campus and Student parties for senior membership on the Publications board, submitted the following platform yesterday.

"1. Monthly open meetings sponsored by the Publications board and the editors of our publications to hear students' suggestions for improvements. This will do away with any excuse any of the editors might have for not printing what the student body wants and will provide a means by which the student body can express its opinion on its publications directly to the ones in charge.

"Don't Waste Money"

"2 Close cooperation between the Publications board and the financial committees of our student body. Let's appropriate the necessary funds to our publications, but let's not waste students' money. Close cooperation between these agencies, especially during budgeting time, will work toward better distribution of available funds.

"3. Orientation of Publication board members as to their duties shortly after their election by the student body. This feature will help those who have not had much to do with the financial side of publications become better acquainted with a publication's financial problems.

Selection by House

"4. A yearly joint meeting of the Publications board, editors and business managers, to prepare a slate of three qualified faculty members, one of whom to be selected by Chancellor House according to the provisions of our constitution. By this method of selection we will get the most qualified faculty members to sit with the Board."

Gerns, who is present business manager of Tarnation and writes the "Campus Forum" column for the Daily Tar Heel, stated that he will uphold these planks in the interest of the student body if elected to the Publications board.

STEAMER AGROUND

Norfolk, March 17 —(UP)— The Coast Guard says an excursion steamer with some 100 passengers aboard went aground off old Point Comfort, Virginia today. It is now floating free with the tide.

U. S SILENT ON PALESTINE ISSUE ALTHOUGH HE HAD BEEN EXPECTED to state the U. S. views on the proposed establishment of a trusteeship over the Holy Land, Warren Austin, (right, top) chief American delegate to the U. N., surprised the session by remaining silent. At left is Sir Alexander Cadogan, British representative. At bottom, Jewish leaders make little effort to conceal their concern. Shown (l. to r.) are Karel Lisicky, chairman, of the Palestine Commission: Raul Diez de Madina, vice-chairman and Abba Hillel Silver, the American spokesman for the Jewish Agency. (International)

Chapel To Give Medieval Plays

The Chapel of the Cross will present a series of medieval Easter Resurrection dramas tonight at 8 o'clocfl

First given in the time of Charlemagne, the plays date from varying periods between 923 and 1400. The Chapel of the Cross was the first to present these plays since that time.

They were first presented in 1941 under the direction of Dr. U. T. Holmes who is also directing tonight's play. The second time they were presented was in 1946.

The plays will be presented in the following sequence tonight: The "St Gall" play, the "Limoges," the "Winchester," the "Madrid," the "Klosterneuberg" and the "Rouen."

Members of the cast include the three Marys, played by Hilda Frances Lawrence, Louise Patrick and Elizabeth Royal; Angels, Joseph Hutchinson, William Hover and John O'Steen; Peter, Hanford Henderson; John, Terry Holmes; Jesus, the Rev. Bertram C. Cooper; chorus, Dr. U. T. Holmes, Cameron Murchison, David Harris, John O'Steen, Terry Holmes and George McMahon.

Music was transcribed from the original manuscripts by Dr. W. L. Smolden of the University of London. They will be sung in Latin. Text of the songs will be translated in the programs.

Costumes for the production are by Mrs. Joe Hull.

Triumphant Chicago Delegation Returns

The University delegation to the Intercollegiate UN conference held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday in Chicago returned to Chapel Hill last night jubilant over the election of Delegation Chairman Bill Crisp to the conference presidency.

Ann Wells and John Stump, the other two delegates, declared that Crisp's virtually unanimous election on the first ballot to the highest office available at the conference could be interpreted both as a tribute to Crisp and as a great honor for Carolina."

With the exception of Duke, the University was the only South Carolina group represented at the meeting, which was attended by 51 universities from the United States and Canada.

In accordance with the plan to make the conference a mock assembly functionin in the same manner as the United Nations, each of the universities present represented a member of the UN. The University delegation represented the Commonwealth of New Zealand.

The conference considered several problems now confronting the United Nations, and its General Assembly passed resolutions on the Palestine question, the veto, and human rights.

In the case of Palestine, a large bloc of Arab votes coupled with British desire to get out of the country as soon as possible, combined to defeat a Jewish proposal that the country be partitioned. The assembly decided to put the country under the trusteeship of the United Nations for a period of five years.

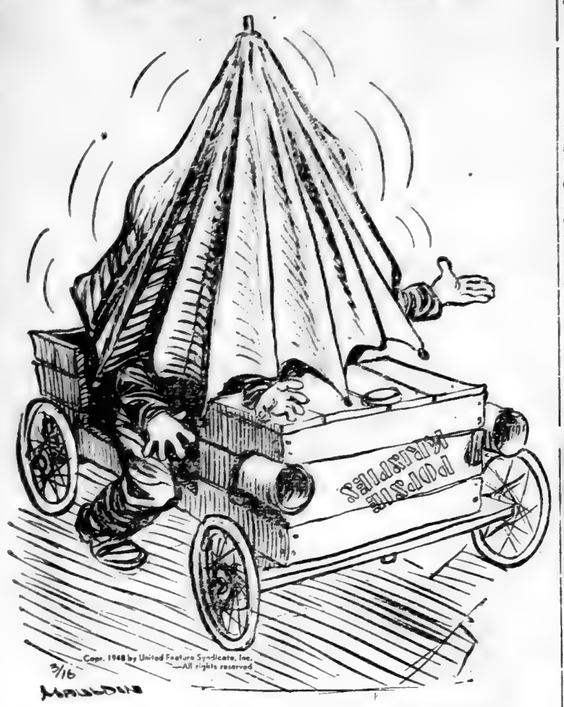
After lengthy consideration of numerous substitute measures, the conference passed a resolution giving endorsement to Truman's civil rights program.

The United Nations charter provides that no member government recognize distinction based on race, color, sex, or religion. Crisp, who worked with the Human Rights committee at the conference, promised that all phases of the resolution passed would be more fully explained later.

With respect to the veto, the conference took no stand which would definitely eliminate it. A resolution was passed calling for stringent limitation of its use.

On motion of Stump, who represented the University on the committee which considered the veto, the conference went on record as favoring eventual revision of the veto power itself. This also, the delegates promised last night will be more fully explained at a later date.

Although proponents of world government at several points during debate brought up the world federalism issue, the conference did not formally consider it.



Prominent speakers heard by the delegates during the course of the conference included Richard Winslow, assistant to Warren Austin, the US delegate to the UN, Adlai Stevenson, Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, Dr. Katz-Suchy, Polish ambassador to the US, and Senator Claude Pepper of Florida.

Pepper and Stevenson especially emphasized that although the UN has failed to reach a decision on many issues, it has reconciled national differences on as many more.

However, a conviction that the United Nations can operate as a real force for world peace and security only if it receives the confidence now withheld from it by the great powers was, according to the delegates, probably the most significant result to emerge from the conference

(See UN, page 4)

BILL MAULDIN'S CARTOON

See? All I do is push a button an' th' top comes down."

Prescription for Bellyache

You were bellyaching because you had to go to classes yesterday—two days after returning from the holidays, the day before Easter and the only Saturday class of the quarter. Well, you could have done something about it. There is a student member on the Calendar committee which schedules the class dates for the quarter. In all probability a change could have been made—if the matter had been taken to the student members of the Calendar committee several days before the holidays. Another Saturday could have been selected in its stead to make the required days of schooling.

Practically everything at the University is modeled after a democracy. And in a democracy the representative of the people is responsible to his conscience and to his constituents. We have not discussed the matter with the student member of the Calendar committee, but we would venture to state that, at most, two persons were interested enough before the vacation to see him and see if Saturdays could be switched.

This same neglect could be cited in every phase of student government. You probably do not know the men who represent you as a resident of a dormitory. In all probability you have never discussed the Student Legislature with any member and expressed your views on a particular subject that is of current interest within the Legislature. That is one of the major failures with student government—there is not enough interest in what is going on in the Legislature and the committees that are appointed to do preliminary planning and investigation. The average student looks on the Legislature with a smirk and decides that its legislation is unimportant.

But frequently its doings have a great bearing on University life. The members, as your representatives, would like to know your beliefs on a certain subject and will welcome your ideas and your criticisms. Why don't you make it a regular practice of talking with your representatives. The Legislature should make it easier for the students to know who their representatives are by posting a master list in the Y of the standing committees of the Legislature and the representatives from the various districts. These lists could be consulted from time to time for a better student government.

Industrial nursing is a field wide open to men, the American Nurses' Association reports, noting that United States industry was employing 9,354 registered nurses at the end of 1947. The pioneer industrial nurse, however, was a young woman employed by the Vermont Marble Company in 1895.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Mr. Ching and the Coal Men

By Drew Pearson

Washington — When Cyrus Ching resigned as head of the giant U. S. Rubber Company to become head of the Federal Conciliation Service, he knew he was getting into trouble. However, Ching firmly believes that every U. S. citizen owes it to his country in peace as well as in war, to spend a certain amount of time serving his nation. So he accepted the job.

Although Ching had spent a lifetime in big business, labor leaders, knowing his reputation for fairness, welcomed his appointment. However, when Ching sat down with the United Mine Workers and the coal operators last week, neither labor nor his former big-business associates gave him any cooperation.

Grimly, Ching went through the motions of bringing the disputants together.

"Our first responsibility is that of American citizens, not as representatives of either side in this dispute," he declared. "I don't need to remind you of the consequences if this costly strike continues. We are faced with an international crisis, possibly even another war.

"I hope under the circumstances that we can keep our own feelings in the background and think of the welfare of the nation in this critical hour."

Ching's appeal to patriotism produced no result. When he asked both sides if they had altered their position, northern and southern operator spokesmen replied that there was "no reason to change our position, stated in our letter to Mr. Lewis." This had charged the miners with violating their contract by striking, also that the welfare fund could not financially support Lewis's pension demands.

"It's the operators who have dishonored the contract, not us," hotly interrupted John Jones, one of the messengers sent by John L. Lewis, who would not deign to honor the meeting himself. "They've prevented the pension program from being activated."

Jones then proceeded to pull typical Lewisian theatrics by dramatically questioning the right of Southern Coal Producers Association spokesmen, led by Joseph E. Moody, to be present.

"They are not signatories to the miners' contract," Jones protested.

"The Association itself did not sign the contract, but its individual members did," replied Moody. "I represent more coal production than any other operator spokesman here."

Ching settled the dispute by announcing that Moody and his colleagues "are here as my invited guests, as individuals, not as members of a negotiating committee."

Then a fresh row developed over which side should reply first to Ching's proposal that a fact-finding board be appointed after Lewis got the miners back to work.

Phoning to their sulking leader, John L. Lewis's messengers got instructions that the operators must reply first. Apparently Lewis figured the operators would turn Ching's peace proposal down, thus letting him put the onus of failure on the other side.

However, the operators upset this strategy by unexpectedly agreeing to a fact-finding inquiry. This put Lewis in the obstructionist position of rejecting Ching's offer, which, when forced into a corner, he finally did.

Note: It was following this that President Truman invoked the Taft-Hartley Act.

President Truman wrote his message to Congress urging UMT and selective service and his St. Patrick's Day speech—in which he blasted "Henry Wallace and his Communists" — entirely by himself, scribbling out the drafts of both in longhand . . . Advisers saw both addresses before delivery, but Truman tipped off no one about his ad lib attack on Wallace, which wasn't in the transcript he took to New York.

This 'n That

Some Are Good, Some Are Bad

By Bill Buchan

It is seldom that one student is completely satisfied with all his instructors for one session. Luck smiled on me last quarter, however, and I was fortunate enough to get three of the best. (And incidentally, I do not have these instructors this quarter, nor do I anticipate having them aagin—just as a matter of record.) Their names are not important, but what is important is their methods of teaching and their obvious interest in the members of their classes. The three were in different departments, namely History, English and Language, but they, surprisingly enough, were almost identical in their presentation of material and in the conduct of the classes.

The history instructor, a young graduate student, came to class each- morning- thoroughly prepared for the assignment of the day, with his lecture carefully outlined beforehand. He presented the facts in a clear, concise manner, outlining the general headings on the blackboard beforehand. He presented the facts in a clear, concise manner, outlining the general headings on the blackboard beforehand. He livened-up the class on "restless" Mondays and Fridays with a class discussion period on such topics as the racial question and the Kinsey report. Throughout the entire quarter, he slipped in just enough humor and extra conversation to keep the class from being bored or ill-at-ease in an otherwise boring lecture course.

The English teacher, faced with teaching Chaucer, Shakespeare and Milton, had much previous preparation in the background of each of the literary figures, aided by visits to England so that she was able to add a personal touch to the course. She took pains to keep the studies of the men as interesting as possible and took a sincere interest in each class member, discovering the interests of each, if possible. She was willing to answer any and all questions asked of her and spent evenings in research for those she could not answer off hand.

The language professor is one of these few people that one might classify as "all for the students". While he maintained —and kept— high requirements of his class, he was also human enough to realize that ocassionally students do go out on week nights for a party or that sometimes they are so busy with other assignments that one particular subject can't be given the attention necessary. Just so long as a student didn't run the thing in the ground, he was agreeable to almost any excuse. He had no sympathy.

(See COLUMN, page 4)

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS Editor — HOWARD BAILEY Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman — NIGHT SPORTS: Dick Jenrette

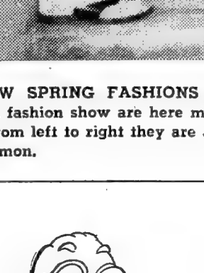
NEW SPRING FASHIONS from the recent showing of the CICA fashion show are here modeled by Carolina students. Reading from left to right they are Joe McLeod, Hut Craig, and Lillian DeArmon.

The Bold Look



By the Fashion Editor of Esquire Magazine

Leap Year or no Leap Year, this is the year when the American male—that's you, brother—comes into his own! What are we talking about? The Bold Look, of course!

There's a bold look about American men. It's a self-confident look and it's as distinctive as it is distinguished. It's as virile as football—as masculine as the Marine Corps—as American as the Sunday comics. But new as it is, it will never be known as a "new look," because it grew with this country and it's as mature as the country.

Starting with the Cavaliers' arrival in Virginia—through the days of the New England fur trappers—through the days of the men who threw the great railroads across the face of the country—American men have been doing a job with their sleeves rolled up. They were the men who established the country. Today, this country is the greatest in the world and American men are really beginning to look the part.

American men today wear their clothes with assurance and self-confidence, and the clothes reflect the men who wear them. That's the spirit of the Bold Look. It's the way you wear your clothes as much as it is the clothes themselves. But clothes are important, for they're part of your over-all appearance.

The newest styles that are appearing today — on and off the campus — exemplify the Bold Look. Ties, shirts, socks—They're designed with the accent on authority. They're unrestrained; they use wide borders, big patterns, bold colors—more colors! But they have a look of definite good taste. Wearing them, you'll have that look too.

The new shirts for instance, are made with the "command collar." This is a widespread collar with bold stitching a half-inch from the edge instead of the usual eighth of an inch. The same bold treatment is given to the center pleat and the stitching on the cuffs. This is the first new shirt fashion in years and it's especially styled for wear with the Windsor tie.

Neckties, in design and in color, are clear, sharp, bold. Checks are bigger, stripes are wider. Figures are bolder and more widely spaced. And the new polka dots are three-eighths of an inch in diameter.

There's a new hat, too. It's a snap-brim in a rich cinnamon brown with a black band and gun-metal grey binding. The binding is barely visible on the top of the brim but very prominent on the underside; seen from the side and the rear, it's a wide band of color.

And there's more definite design in socks. Ribbing is wider clocks are broader. The Bold Look in shoes is massive. And jewelry gives a man his chance to go to town with confidence. Tie clasps are wide slabs of gold. links are larger and heavier.

Even the handkerchief expresses the Bold Look. The new one has a husky border—fully an inch and three-eighths wide. And when it's worn in the chest pocket, it's not tucked away, but displayed for all to see, with its border right out there in the open.

Those are some of the characteristics of the new Bold Look—a look of self-confident good taste.

Daily Tar Heel Society

Sosiety Asides

Dances, Beach Trips Head Spring Society

By Weddy Thorp

Spring is here and with it has come the return of outdoor social life to the University. The Y court is crowded each morning with those basking in the warmth of old Sol as politicians shake a few more untouched hands while the general run of students concentrate on Spring itself.

The trends in clothes are, of course, trends to warm weather outfits. Among coeds the bright colors of cottons and prints are strictly noticeable while the men's fashions run from seersucker coats, black ties and grey flannel pants to open neck sports attire and comfortable slacks.

Floral Fantasy

Chapel Hill is in all its floral beauty and with the budding of spring comes the budding of the spring social season. Beach weather and beach talk are in the air from now until the dread call of exams rings once again, the veritably convenient beaches of North and South Carolina will get about the same pounding from Tar Heel lads and lasses as they do from the salty foam of the Atlantic.

Four big weekends are in store locally and will hold their own against Wrightsville and the rest.

The first big outing will be the much-heralded return of May Frolics to the campus on the weekend of April 10. The Frolics have been moved up from their regular May berth because the scheduled weekend turned out to be the only time a big name band could be obtained. Tony Pastor, an old favorite at Carolina, returns to the Tar Heel band stand, with his new band and new music. There will be a Friday night dance, a Saturday afternoon concert and dance that evening. Saturday festivities will be opened to the general public and those not in the May Frolics club may purchase bids through the members. These bids are available at this time.

A series of parties in connection with the weekend will be given by the member fraternities.

Spring Germans

The Spring Germans are next on the slate and that weekend (April 30-May1) promises to be one of the best dance sets in the history of ye ole school. The perennial favorite, Tex Beneke and his orchestra, will be on hand to play and music lovers, young and old, male and female, know that when the old Glenn Miller organization makes music, then music is made. It should be music both to hear and to dance to. Rumors have it that many organizations are planning accompanying parties for this weekend too, to do the affair up with all the necessary ribbons.

The other two weekends of campus notice—a little farther away –are the Senior prom and the Monogram weekend. Duke Ellington will be on hand for one of these, and it is heard that the Old Professor, Kay Kyser, will make town for the other. The Monogram weekend will be held in conjunction with the Blue-White football game (plus). So roll out the tucks and fold-ins from Aycock to Alderman and Franklin street to Frat Row. Spring and Society, like the birds, have returned.

Easter Dances Feature State Club Activity

Highlighting the spring vacation in Winston-Salem and Charlotte were the annual Easter dances held by the Carolina clubs of the respective cities.

Both dances were given on the evening of March 19 from 9 until one o'clock.

Music for the formal Winston-Salem dance was furnished by Paul Bell and his orchestra at the Robert E. Lee hotel on the Balinese roof.

Sponsors for the twin-city dance included the following: Marty Hinkle with Freddy Bonner; Margaret Hege with Bob Haire; Nancy Pendleton with Wade Surratt; Lola Shelton with Lenue James; and Betty Dixon with Jimmy Pashal.

Each sponsor was presented with a corsage of gardenias by the club. All members attending the dance were required to contribute through the club to the Easter seal drive.

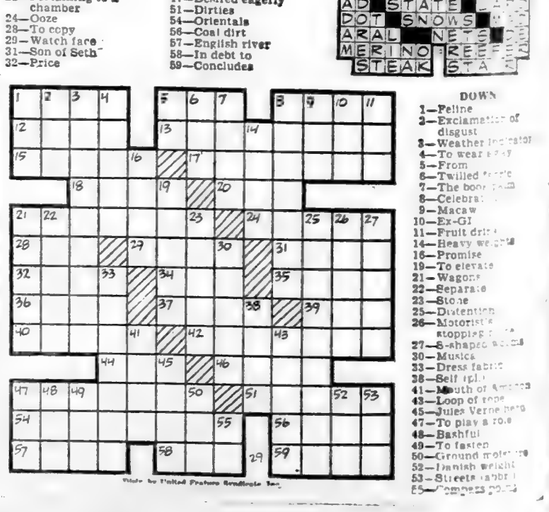
Charlotte's Carolina club dance was exclusive for Carolina students and their guests.

Bill Knauff and his orchestra played for the semi-formal affair.

Officers of the club include Monroe Landreth, president; Joe Kumpe, vice-president; Lillian DeArmon, secretary; and Lew Whittsett, treasurer.

The Social committee which had charge of the dance was headed by Charlie Burns and included the following students: Barbara DeWitt, Lucy Hill Baxter, Marion Ward, Margaret Johnson, Bob Kirby, Geor Kenyon, and John Baker.

Los Angeles, March 27 - Hank Greenberg, who at present is working out with the Cleveland Indians, has bought into the club according to President Bill Veeck. Greenberg is reported as the second largest stock-holder. Veeck himself, is the biggest.



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Six-sided figure
5—Worthless scrap
8—East Indian island
12—Seaweed
13—Made prominent
15—To hurl
17—Kind of court
18—Smelt
20—Black cuckoo
21—Pertaining to a chamber
24—Ooze
28—To copy
29—Watch face
31—Son of Seth
32—Price
34—Secret agent
35—Newts
36—Allowance for waste
37—Ireland
39—Southern general
40—Leather thong
42—Signs
44—Human being
46—Mudhen
47—Desired eagerly
51—Dirties
54—Orientals
56—Coal dirt
57—English river
58—In debt to 59—Concludes

DOWN

1—Feline
2—Exclamation of disgust
3—Weather indicator
4—To wear away
5—From
6—Twilled fabric
7—The body
8—Celebrate
9—Macaw
10—Ex-GI
11—Fruit drink
14—Heavy weight
16—Promise
19—To elevate
21—Wagons
22—Separate
23—Stone
25—Distention
26—Motorist's stopping place
27—S-shaped molding
30—Musics
33—Dress fabric
38—Self (pl.)
41—Mouth of Amazon
43—Loop of rope
45—Jules Verne hero
47—To play a role
48—Bashful
49—To fasten
50—Ground molester
52—Danish weight
53—Streets (abbr.)
55—Compass point

Tar Heel Baseball, Tennis Squads To Oppose Michigaan State Teams Tomorrow

Robinson Is Selected For Duty on Mound In Burlington Tilt

By Larry Fox

The Carolina baseball team will be gunning for its second win in as many starts tomorrow when it takes the field against the ever-dangerous Michigan State college nine in Burlington at 3:30. This will be the Tar Heel's second "home" game of the season and will be played in Elon Park, the hive of the Burlington Bees.

In the first contest of the campaign Friday, Vinnie DiLorenzo hurled a neat two-hitter as Carolina downed the Virginia baseballers, 3-1.

Coach Bunn Hearn will field practically the same lineup against thet Spartans that unhorsed the Cavaliers. Frank Robinson will start on the hill and his batterymate will be either Emmett Cheek or Andy Tranavitch, rather than Sid Varney, who did the receiving against Virginia. Co-Captain Jim Hamilton will take over at second base for the only other certain change.

Another possible switch may come at the first-base post, where Jack Brasington may take over for John Gregory. Should Robinson require relief, which could easily be the case considering it will be his first outing of the young season, either Ray Blair or Dean Cassell will finish up.

This will be the seventh game of their nine-game Southern slate for the Spartans, who rolled up a 16-1 record against Southern competition in the past two years. Previous to meeting Carolina, they played South Carolina, Newberry college, and Presbyterian. The team routed Newberry, 6-1, Thursday and defeated Presbyterian, 5-3, the next day.

The only loss on the Michigan State Dixie record was provided by Carolina the last time the two teams met. The Hearnmen edged the Spartans. 4-2, to break a two-game losing streak. In 1946 MSC took both contests of a two-game series, the first by a 5-3 count and the second, a ten-inning affair, by 3-2. The visitors hold a 4-3 edge in the rivalry that dates back to 1933.

Five Lettermen

The starting lineup of the Spartans is studded with five major lettermen. Captain Bud Erickson, who is slated to play first base batted .368 last season while the keystone sack will be guarded by a .347 hitter, Ed Barbarito.

Dick Deiters heads the six-man Michigan mound staff. The tricky righthander, the only major letterwinner of the sextet, pitched the opening game of the season against South Carolina for Coach John Kobs.

One Rookie

Although raids from the professional clubs dented the ranks of the Michigan squad, catcher George Pavlick is the only new-

(See BASEBALL, page 4)

MONDAY'S MURALS

Orientation Rifle Firing

5:00—Emerson
7:30—Nash Hall

Moody Gets Only Carolina First in Florida

Sparking the Spartans

Michigan Leads On Three Firsts

Gainesville, Fla., March 27 — Eight Carolina trackmen opened the 1948 outdoor season here today and all the men showed up well in tough competition. The Tar Heels managed to garner one first place, that in the high jump with Jack Moody clearing the bar at 6 feet 2 and five-eighths inches.

Dick Taylor took a second to Bill Pennington in the 120-yard high hurdles with Al Demica of Auburn third. The time was 15.2 seconds which is two-tenths off the record set by Chuck Simmons last year. Bob Seligman, last year's champion in the shot and discus and holder of the discus record, ran into tough weather in the form of Fortune Gordien of Minnesota who took the two weight events. He heaved the shot 49 feet 1 and one-quarter inches and the discus 157 feet 9 and three eighths inches. The discus mark was a new record. Seligman was fourth in the shot behind Gordien, Geoge Hills of Florida, and Al Coleman of Minnesota. In the discus Seligman tied for second with Spider Nolan of Georgia Tech.

Hickman Third

The pole vault went to Coleman of Minnesota with Mel Korek of Tennessee second. Hank Hickman of Carolina tied for third with ten other competitors. The winning height was 12 feet 6 inches.

The mile team race went to Tennessee, with Villanova second and Mississippi State third. The individual winner was Mac Kilty of Minnesota who was clocked in 4:28.2. Sam Magill of Carolina was fourth and Julian MacKenzie 10th.

Sper Fifth in Dive

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 27 —Norm Sper, North Carolina's ace diving star and backstroker, placed fifth in the low-board diving and eighth in the high-board competition in the NCAA swimming championships here today.

Sper was only eight-tenths of a point behind the fourth-place finisher in the former event and was the only diver to place in the low board competition who didn't hail from the midwest.

The Southern conference diving champion for the past two years, Sper was the only representative of North Carolina's swimming team to enter the NCAA competition. Michigan's powerful tank crew swam off with top honors in the team scoring.

Cards Favored In Elag Chase

St. Louis, March 27—(UP)—The man who makes the odds on the big league pennant races, James J. Carroll, has released his line on the 1948 baseball battles. Carroll makes the St. Louis Cards 8-to-5 favorites to win the National league pennant, and he ranks the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox as co-favorites in the American league at 6-to-5.

It will probably surprise Brooklyn fans, but the odds-man makes the Dodgers third choice at 3-to-1. Here is the rest of the line in the National league.

The New York Giants are fourth at 5-to-1. Pittsburgh is fifth at 15-to-1. Cincinnati and Chicago are 20-to-1 and the Philadelphia Phils are placed on the bottom at 40-to-1.

The American league race seems to be rated strictly a two-team affair. For Detroit, ranked third, is 8-to-1. Cleveland, fourth, in the line, is 20-to-1. The Athletics are 25-to-1. Washington is 40-to-1 and the Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns are co-choices for the cellar at 100-to-1.

GOLFERS PLAY TUESDAY

Carolina's 1948 golf crew will be unveiled this week when the Tar Heel linksmen open their season Tuesday afternoon against the touring Harvard team.

The local lads will get their final practice swings tomorrow afternoon and Coach Chuck Erickson will pick his starting lineup at that time.

Spring Grid Drills To Begin Tomorrow

Spring practice will begin tomorrow for Carolina's grid Tar Heels and will continue for five weeks, culminating in the annual Blue-White football classic.

Coach Carl Snavely, who returned recently from Atlantic City where he served as an instructor in the coaches' school held by Clark Shaughnessy, will be on hand to supervise the drills.

All gridders may draw their equipment tomorrow between 2 and 5 o'clock.

All in all the team held up pretty well and Coach Joe Hilton will head north with the squad tomorrow morning.

Kenfield's Netters Rate As Favorites Over Spartans in First Match of Year

By Dick Jenrette

Coach John Kenfield, Carolina's veteran tennis mentor, will take the wraps off his 1948 Tar Heel net squad tomorrow afternoon when Michigan State's Spartans invade Chapel Hill.

The Tar Heels, who traditionally rank among the best tennis clubs in the nation, will rate as favorites to cop their match Monday. Michigan State met William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va., last Thursday and absorbed a crushing 9-0 setback. The Indians won the Southern conference championship last year, and Carolina's performance against Michigan State Monday will provide a basis for determining the Tar Heels' chances of taking the title away from William and Mary.

The Carolina netters have been working out daily on the varsity courts, and good weather has aided Kenfield thus far in his efforts to get the squad in shape. There is an ample supply of lettermen in camp from last year's squad, which won 21 of 22 matches, and prospects point toward another good season.

Busy Week

Carolina will meet Kalamazoo's netters here on Wednesday afternoon, and Cornell will provide the opposition in matches on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Captain Vic Seixas, who hails from Philadelphia, will fill the number one spot in the Carolina lineup. Seixas, the ninth ranking amateur in the nation, will be facing Malaga, the Spartans' number one netter.

Clark Taylor, a long-striding performer from New Haven, Conn., is the number two man in the Carolina lineup. Recent ratings placed Taylor as the number one New England netter, and he is counted upon for many of the Tar Heel points this season.

Wide Open Scrap

Two more veterans, Ray Morris and Charlie Rice, are due to hold down the third and fourth spots respectively, and Heath Alexander will be the number five man. There is a wide open scrap for the sixth position, and either Don Skakle or Stan Gruner will get Kenfield's starting nod to go against the Spartan.

Though subject to change, the doubles lineup is expected to have Seixas and Morris on the number one court, Taylor and Rice as the second combination, with the number three duo still uncertain. Either Alexander and and Skakle or Gruner and Duke Wilder will fill the slot.

COACH JOHN KENFIELD
. . . starts 21st season . . .

Tennis Reservations

All racquet enthusiasts desiring to use the University tennis courts tomorrow must make reservations in advance, the physical education department announced yesterday.

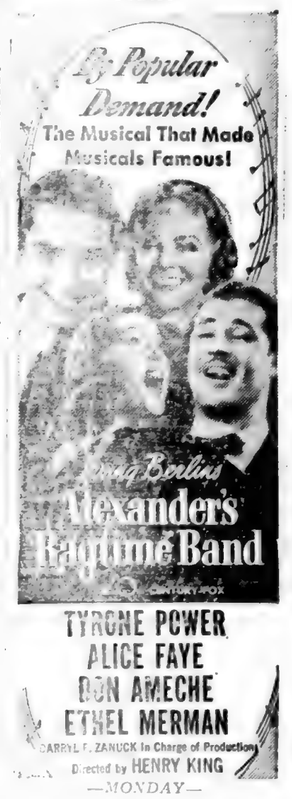
Reservations must be requested on the day the court is to be used, and can be made at the basket room of Woollen gym or by phoning 9426. The reservation slips may then be picked up at the basket room.

Sports Shorts

By United Press

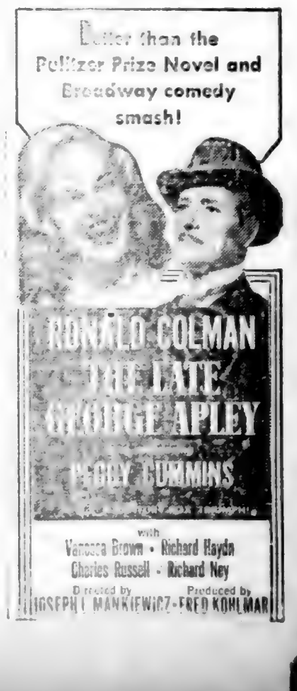
New York, March 17 — Baylor's Bears and the Denver Nuggets were victorious in their first round games in the Olympic basketball trials tourney in Madison Square Garden here today. Baylor defeated NYU, 59-57, in a real thriller, and the Denver club eliminated the Oakland Bittners, 57-55.

Charlotte, March 27 — The third round of the $10,000 Charlotte Open golf tournament has been washed out. The remaining 36 holes are scheduled for tomorrow. Chick Harbert of Detroit is the present leader at the halfway mark with 132.



New York, March 27 — The top-ranking women tennis players in the country have been named to the Wightman Cup team which will play a British squad on June 11 and 12 at Wimbledon, England. Those selected are Louise Brough, Margaret Osborne DuPont, Doris Hart, and Patricia Canning Todd.

Midgets Are Defeated In Durham Cage Event



Basketball made a belated final bow last night in the finals of the first annual Midget Basketball Tournament staged by the Durham AMVets in the Durham City Armory. Carr Junior High School took the team title by defeating Kinston.

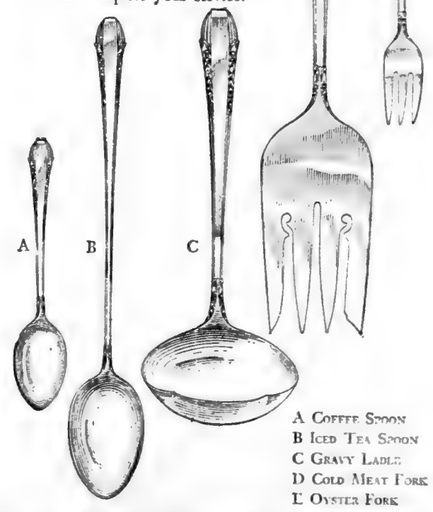
Carolina's Monogram juniors, after winning their opener last Saturday, bowed to Kinston in a morning game, 23-17, and lost to Red Shield of Durham in the consolation round, 44-31.

VILLAGE
TODAY

TYRONE POWER
ALICE FAYE
DON AMECHE
ETHEL MERMAN
DARRYL F. ZANUCK In Charge of Production
Directed by HENRY KING
—MONDAY—

DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham
Quick Service

Again Available!



MATCHING PIECES IN INTERNATIONAL STERLING PATTERNS!

Now you can fill in your set of International Sterling!

Additional pieces are coming back — cold meat forks, ladles, oyster forks, iced tea spoons, coffee spoons and all those pieces that you had to do without because they weren't made during war years.

You needn't wait a day longer to see your table agleam with all the right pieces. The items listed below are again available in International Sterling patterns.

If you've been struggling along without any of the following pieces, phone us or come in and order them now! Be among the first to complete your service!

A Coffee Spoon
B Iced Tea Spoon
C Gravy Ladle
D Cold Meat Fork
E Oyster Fork

WENTWORTH AND SLOAN

Even Dancing . . .

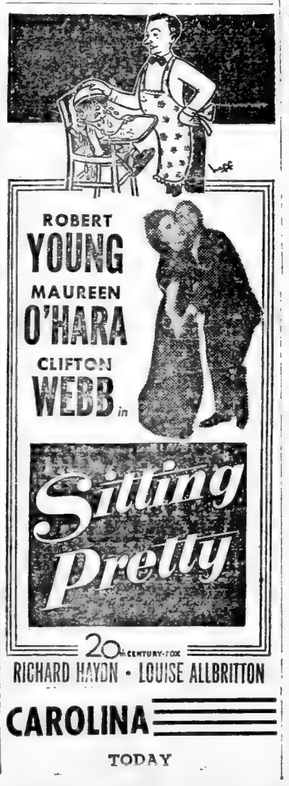
Gala Program Being Planned At Sports Carnival Thursday

Several state champions in various sports events and many popular Tar Heel athletes will highlight the annual intramural sports carnival to be held in Woollen gym Thursday evening from 7:15 to 10:30.

Among some of the outstanding events scheduled are the clown diving exhibition by Otto Tavetz, noted expert from Fort Bragg; a water polo exhibition by the members of the championship Tar Heel swimming team, a tumbling exhibition by Bob Hurley's crew, and a water ballet, directed by Mary Kellam.

A separate table tennis tournament is slated to get under way at 7:25 and the final round will be run off two hours later.

The all-campus basketball championship will be decided when fraternity champs Sigma Chi meet the Blackballs, dormitory winners. During the halftime period of this game there will be a badminton exhibition put on by C. R. Council and Glenn Anderson, state doubles champions, and Watson Pugh and Jack Lupton, members of the Carolina badminton club.



Also during the halftime on the main floor will be a volleyball game between campus champions Phi Gam and the Guilford college mural champs.

Later in the evening, campus championships will be decided in all weight classes in the boxing tourney.

Climaxing the evening's festivities will be a social dance and the awarding of prizes to the winners in the various events.

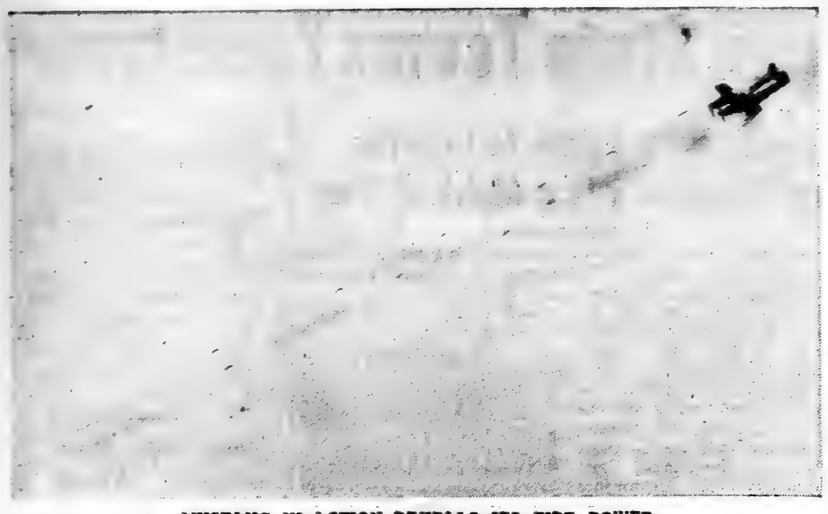
There will be an important meeting of all persons interested in umpiring intramural softball games during the spring quarter tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in 302 Woollen.

CAROLINA
TODAY

Van Heusen pulls white magic out of the hat for you —with fine, smooth white broadcloth and oxford shirts in all your favorite collar models. These shirts feature the wizardry of Van Heusen's sewmanship in every detail: the new low-setting "Comfort Contour" collar styling, action-room tailoring, tapered fit, tug-proof pearl buttons. They're Sanforized, too—a new shirt free if your Van Heusen shrinks out of size. Make like a bunny to your nearest dealer. $3.50, $3.95 and $4.95. Phillips-Jones Corp., New York 1, New York.

You're the man most likely to succeed in

Van Heusen Shirts



TIES · SPORT SHIRTS · PAJAMAS

TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

DOWN

1—Feline
2—Exclamation of disgust
3—Weather indicator
4—To wear away
5—From
6—Twilled fabric
7—The book palm
8—Celebration
9—Macaw
10—Ex-Ol
11—Fruit drink
14—Heavy weight
15—Promise
19—To elevate
21—Wagons
23—Separate
24—Stone
25—Distention
26—Motorist's stopping place
27—S-shaped worms
30—Musical
32—Dress fabric
38—Self (pl.)
41—Mouth of Amazon
43—Loop of rope
45—Jules Verne hero
47—To play a role
48—Bashful
49—To fasten
50—Ground moisture
52—Danish weight
53—Streets (abbr.)
54—Compass point

MUSTANG IN ACTION REVEALS ITS FIRE POWER

FOURTEEN ROCKETS with flaming tails speed toward the target during a demonstration at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., of the fire power of a P-82 Twin Mustang plane. The plane's missiles were released in rapid succession, completely demolishing the target. Air Force Photo.

(International)

-Baseball-

(Continued from page 3)

comer playing first string. Pavlick played jayvee ball last season and moved up when Bucky Walsh graduated, leaving the Kobsmen without any varsity receivers.

Pat Peppler, left field; Dan, Urbanik, third base; and Ed Sobczak, center field all won major letters last year. Shortstop Frank Bagdon and right-fielder Joe Bechard earned minor awards.

The probably starting lineups:

After leaving Chapel Hill, the Spartans will drive to Wake Forest to meet the Deacons and will engege the Duke Blue Devils in Durham the next day.

Tuesday, the Tar Heels will face the University of Pennsylvania Quakers in Burlington.

BOSTON WELCOME

Boston, March 27 —(UP)—The city of Boston is giving a tumultous welcome to former Prime Minister De Valera Qfeire, who has returned to visit after an 18-year absence. De Valc a is spending the Easter week-en.I in Boston before returning to Ireland, by way of Washington. He says, "I never expected anything like this."

Carolina	Michigan State
Black, cf	Peppler, lf
Hayworth, 3b	Urbanik 3b
Jones, rf	Barbarito, 2b
Kelly, lf	Erickson, 1b
Cheek or	Bagdon, ss
Tranavitch, c	Bechard, rf
Ryan, ss	Sobczak, cf
Hamilton, 2b	Pavlick, c
Brasington 1b
Gregory or
Robinson, p

-VA-

(Continued from page 1)

the VA, and or write the VA for the proper affidavits to be completed for a person or persons other than his legal off-spring.

Full instructions as to information and documents necessary to establish dependency will be enclosed with the subsistence allowance check for March for the benefit of those eligible veteran students who desire to establish additional dependents not previously established but existing as of April 1, 1948.

If veteran students submit evidence of dependency prior to July 1, they will receive retroactive payments at the new rates back to April 1, or the date dependency was acquired, whichever is later.

-UN-

(Continued from page 1)

Particularly in respect to the veto, the delegates said the conferees again and again ran up against a "brick wall" of U. S. and Russian opposition to any constructive proposal.

Each of the delegates pointed out the reiterated statements of both speakers and deleates to the assembly that such problems must be solved because "the United Nations idea is the world's only hope for peace and only guarantee against self-destruction."

Sub Is Sighted Off California

Washington, March 27—(UP)—Navy submarines are searching the waters off the northern California coast tonight for a submarine of unknown nationality which crash-dived less than 60 miles off the Golden Gate today, at the approach of a transpacific airliner.

The sub was reported by Captain Jack Myers, pilot of a Pan-American airliner, enroue to San Francisco from Honolulu.

Spotted at Sunrise

He said he and the two crew members spotted the undersea vessel at sunrise from an altitude of 7,000 feet. "When we started to go lower," said Myers, "It submerged immediately, in less than half a minute."

A Navy spokesman says the sub cannot be identified as American, althouh it is conceivably possible that it might have been one of ours.

Not Fooling Around

Commander George M. Hall, spokesman for the 12th Naval District, says, "We're not trying to submarine scare, but we're looking into this without fooling around." He says it could be one of ours but that if the report on the sub is accurate, the sub belongs to another country.

Two Navy planes were sent to criss-cross the area in which the sub was reported and make a systematic search. Commander Hall says, "If it's there we should find it."

-Council-

(Continued from page 1)

taining to the honor system and the candidates specifically as to their willingness to abide by the student constitution.

The board constructed hypothetical cases an dthe prospective candidates were asked questions concerning them. Eller said that all candidates listed acquitted themselves to the satisfaction of the board.

Regarding publicity, no handbills will be circulated by the candidates, it was pointed out. At no time will a nominee's name be associated with any political party. Eller said that when one of the candidates is mentioned all will be mentioned.

It was brought out by Eller that the board believes the 15 nominees to be the most qualified. The additional names were selected so as to give the student body a choice of candidates, he said.

Eller pointed out that the board had decided that the number of students turned down would not be mentioned.

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

Steak Yourself to a Good Meal at HARRY'S

-Column-

however, for any who obviously were lazy and trying to take advantage of his "liberalism". He mixed with the class members before and after classes, enabling the students to know him better and giving them an opportunity to know him.

Undoubtedly, there are dozens of such teachers on the campus. But there are also others like the one we heard of in the Commerce department Thursday who ordered a student out of the class for talking to his neighbor. The action came completely without notice. The instructor explained that "any talking that is done in this class is done to me." In high school such actions might be acceptable, but they seem a little out of place on a university campus.

That's why I am pointing out the examples of these three teachers. Examples that could well be followed by others who really have a sincere interest in the welfare of their students. Surely the students in their classes will come away with a better impression of the instructor than those who are i n the class of the "no talking" kind.

ELEANOR WILL STAY OUT

New York, March 27—(UP)—The widow of the late President Roosevelt says she will stay out of partisan politics as long as she is connected with the United Nations. Mrs. Roosevelt said she would stay out of politics after she was asked to comment on the support pledged to General Eisenhower by two of her two sons, Franklin, Jr., and Elliott.

Campus Calendar

Sunday:
12:00—Editorially Speaking WDUK.
1:30—University Hour, WPTF.
7:30—Law Seminar, YMCA Library.
8:00—CPU, Grail Room.

Monday:
4:00—Michigan State vs UNC, baseball.
4:30—Hillel meeting, Blueroom YMCA.
7:00—Order of the Grail, Grail
7:00—Men's Interdorm council, Horace Williams lounge.
7:15—IFC, Roland Parker No. 1.
7:30—University club, Roland Parker No. 3.
7:30—Bridge Instruction, GM main lounge.
8:00—Pep ' rally committee, Horace Williams lounge.
8:30—Dance committee, Grail room.
9:00—SP, Roland Parker No. 1.

DENTAL HEALTH
OLAG TOOTH PASTE
AT ALL DRUG STORES

All Occasions
Flowers say it better
REHDERS
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office corner

Emergency! Hold Tuesday Open!
STOP THE DRAFT RALLY
Tuesday — 8 P.M. — Gerrard Hall
• PROMINENT SPEAKERS
• FREE MOVIE:
"One World or None"
Sponsored by Campus Committee Against UMT

A JOYOUS EASTER
May the joys and happiness of the Easter season be with you as you join men the world over in solemn worship.
Bennett & Blocksidge, Inc.
105 E. Franklin Street

CLASSIFIED

FOR RENT 6A

NICE ROOM AVAILABLE FOR couple or male student. Car necessary. Call 9636. (1-1874-1)

FOR SALE 6B

TWO BEDROOM HOUSE IN CHAPEL Hill T. V. Cauble, 33 Oakwood Drive. (1-1879-1)

PLAYPEN AND BABY STROLLER IN excellent condition. Call 9636 (1-1875-1)

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive.Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1942 STUDEBAKER - COMMANDER Skyway, sports coupe, radio, heater, white sidewalls, good condition. Reasonably priced. Good buy, see Shapiro, 208 Church Street. (1-1876-1)

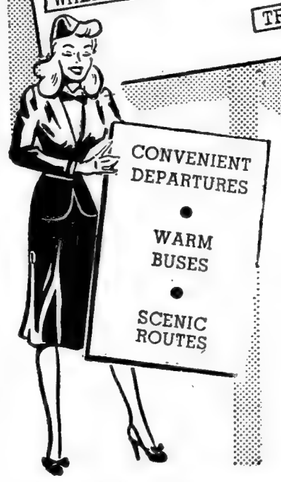
SUPER SIX HUDSON SEDAN IN good shape with overdrive and vacuum shift, cheap. See Ben L. Rouse, 140 Daniels Road, Victory Village. (1-1877-1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

MEN OVER TWENTY WITH ABILITY to lead and work with boys. To serve ten weeks this summer as counselors on staff at Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Good pay, wonderful environment, room and board. Only those with outstanding qualifications need apply. Apply J. Watson Holyfield, Director of Camp Sea Gull, Raleigh Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 3)

LOST 12



A BLACK PARKER FOUNTAIN PEN. I need it urgently. If found please return to Rita Loeb, 319 Alderman. (1-1878-1)

Presenting . . .
Cum Laude
SEAM-FREE NYLONS
WITH PATENTED HEEL

Here are the nylons that lend distinction to your important occasions—on campus and off. The Seal of the Dancing Twins identifies their exclusive Gusset Heel* for ankle-hugging fit, their Gussetoe for comfort . . . their sleek, seam-free loveliness. Sold under leading brand names at smart college shops and stores.
*U. S. Pat. No. 2386649

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

EASTER GREETINGS
It is our pleasure to wish you, your family and friends a most joyous and glorious Easter.
Electric Construction Co.
169 E. Franklin Street

Cost of Living Report
FLASH!
TRAVELERS ARE STILL LUCKY! CAROLINA
TRAILWAYS BUS FARES ARE LOW!!!
YOUR DOLLAR IS STILL WORTH 100 CENTS
WHENEVER YOU TRAVEL BY CAROLINA
TRAILWAYS BUSES.

CONVENIENT DEPARTURES
• WARM BUSES
• SCENIC ROUTES
Simple Low Fares

CHAPEL HILL to:	one way
Raleigh	.60
Charlotte	2.80
Greensboro	1.00
Richmond	2.85
Norfolk	3.45
Charlottesville	3.80
Washington	4.85
New York	8.25

(Plus Fed. tax)
CHAPEL HILL BUS STATION
Cor. Franklin and Kenan St.
Phone 4281

Carolina TRAILWAYS
THE ROUTE OF THE Trailmasters

DU PONT Digest
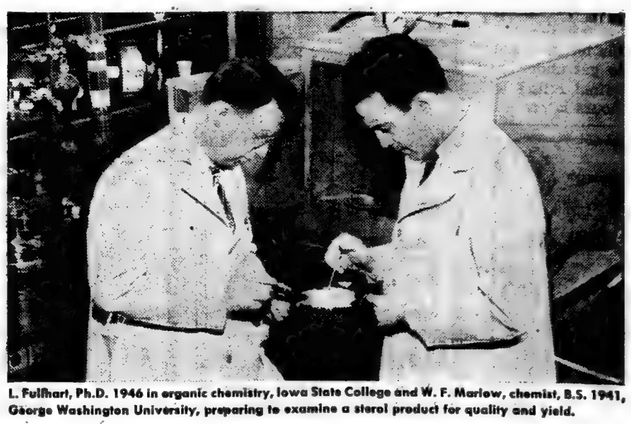
For Students of Science and Engineering

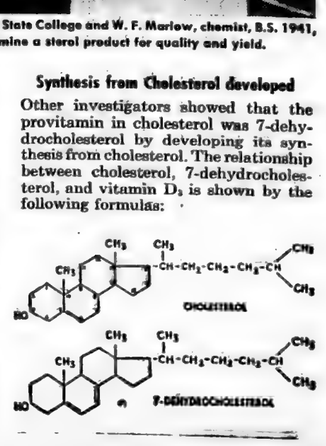
Experimental research results in better Vitamin D source for poultry industry



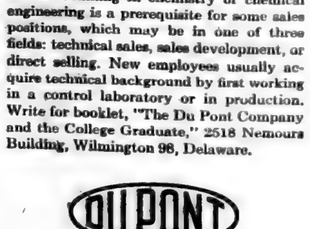
Fifteen years of work by Du Pont chemists, biochemists, physicists, and engineers behind development of "DELSTEROL"

In 1922, it was shown that vitamin D controls the utilization of calcium and phosphorus in the body, especially in the bones of growing animals. This led to the discovery that leg weakness in chicks, poor production, low hatchability of eggs, and other disturbances were caused by a deficiency of this vitamin.

Scientists subsequently discovered that vitamin D could be made by irradiating plant or animal tissues with ultraviolet light. This reaction has since been shown to consist of transforming certain provitamins from the group known as sterols, into vitamin D. The final result of these discoveries was the present large-scale commercial production of the vitamin by a series of complex chemical and photo-chemical reactions which require careful control by chemists, biochemists, physicists, and engineers. In this development, Du Pont scientists played an important part.



Ergosterol once the only source



For years before 1934 it was assumed that ergosterol, a sterol first isolated from vegetable sources, was the only provitamin that yielded vitamin D. In that year, Du Pont research men—who had been studying the chemistry and biochemistry of vitamin D for almost four years—announced that the provitamin in animal cholesterol was not ergosterol. They showed that the activated provitamin in cholesterol gave a vitamin D much more effective for chicks than that of irradiated ergosterol. This fact was based on many comparative assays of irradiated cholesterol, irradiated ergosterol, and irradiated mixtures of these substances on rats and chicks.

L. Fulfhart, Ph.D. 1946 in organic chemistry, Iowa State College and W. F. Marlow, chemist, B.S. 1941, George Washington University, preparing to examine a sterol product for quality and yield.

Synthesis from Cholesterol developed

Other investigators showed that the provitamin in cholesterol was 7-dehydrocholesterol by developing its synthesis from cholesterol. The relationship between cholesterol, 7-dehydrocholesterol, and vitamin D_3 is shown by the following formulas:

Bones at top, from birds fed no vitamin D, are shorter, poorly developed, and fragile, compared with bones at bottom from birds fed Du Pont "Delsterol."

Du Pont chemists and engineers carried this forward by devising a successful commercial process for making 7-dehydrocholesterol and irradiating it to vitamin D_3. Several forms of vitamin D are now manufactured by Du Pont, ranging from oil and dry powder concentrates—used by the poultry trade under the trademark "Delsterol"—to vitamin D_3 crystals of the highest purity.

Today's chickens are healthier, and the average annual egg yield over the last eight years has increased from 134 to 159 per bird. To a considerable degree, this is a result of the fifteen years of research devoted by Du Pont scientists to the development of "Delsterol" "D"-activated animal sterol.

Questions College Men ask about working with Du Pont

What are the opportunities in sales?

Separate sales staffs are maintained by each of Du Pont's ten manufacturing departments. Training in chemistry or chemical engineering is a prerequisite for some sales positions, which may be in one of three fields: technical sales, sales development, or direct selling. New employees usually acquire technical background by first working in a control laboratory or in production. Write for booklet, "The Du Pont Company and the College Graduate," 2518 Nemours Building, Wilmington 98, Delaware.

DU PONT
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
BETTER THINGS FOR BETTER LIVING ...THROUGH CHEMISTRY

More facts about Du Pont—Listen to "Cavalcade of America," Mondays, 8 P.M., EST on NBC

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Fair and continued warm.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Dedmond and Long
Words Of Clay
Satchmo Steals

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, MARCH 30, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 127

SP Endorses Godwin For Vice President

By John Stump

The Student party yesterday announced that it is endorsing CP nominee Jim Godwin for vice president of the student body.

The move came as a surprise to many observers, because the SP had previously nominated Herman Baker to run against Godwin and John Clampitt, the UP nominee for the position.

However, it became necessary for the party to make another nomination when Baker failed to return to school this quarter. Spokesmen for the party explained yesterday that they decided to endorse Godwin, "because of his outstanding qualifications for the post."

The doubly endorsed candidate is a rising senior from Tillman, South Carolina. He has had experience in each of the three branches of student government.

He transferred from State college to this campus in 1943. At the time, he was affiliated with the wartime Marine training program at the University, subsequently, he spent two years in the service, returning to the campus in 1946.

At State, Godwin held the position of secretary of the student body. Previous to that, he served as vice president of the sophomore class, secretary of the forestry school, and as a member of the student council.

Since coming to Carolina, the nominee has been on the Men's honor council and has served in the Student Legislature. He earned his varsity football letter here and is vice president of the Monogram club.

Eller "wholeheartedly" endorsed Godwin some weeks ago. At that time, the student body president commented that "Jim Godwin has all the attributes of an excellent vice president. The

(See GODWIN, page 4)

Student Party Releases Nominee List For Town District Posts in Legislature

Student party spokesman released yesterday the names of the following men as their candidates for the Student Legislature from the town district: D. F. Blackwell, Gil Burnett, Joe Byrd, Irwin Danziger, Earl Hartsell, Tom Kerr, Dick Murphy, Ed Tenney, and Carter Woolfolk.

D. F. Blackwell, transfer from Brevard, was active in campus activities there. He served as president of the International Relations club, chairman of Social committee of the Veterans club, and as chairman of the Chapel Program committee at the Methodist school.

Gil Burnett was a member of the runner-up team in the intramural debates. Joe Byrd, of the Law School, is a former member of the Student Legislature.

Erwin Danziger, native of Chapel Hill, has served as business manager of Sound and Fury and as treasurer of the Freshman Friendship council. He is also a member of the Carolina Political union. Danziger announced that his platform included the following points: (1) For the Student council and the appeal power, (2) For redistricting of town, (3) For a community center in Victory Village, (4) For the completion of the brick sidewalks.

Also a native of Chapel Hill is Earl Hartsell, who was very active at Chapel Hill high school. Hartsell served in the Armed Forces and will be a junior next year. Tom Kerr, who has shown definite interest in publications and student politics, is also seeking a seat in the Legislature from town. At present, Kerr is serving as assistant editor on the Tarnation staff.

Carter Wollfolk, a brother of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, is a rising junior and a commerce major from Columbus, Georgia.

Rounding out the slate are two members of the freshman class. They are Ed Tenney, resident of Chapel Hill, and Dick Murphy, native of Baltimore, Maryland. Both Murphy and Tenney were outstanding in student government in their respective high schools. Murphy is a member of the Phi Eta Sigma fraternity.

TRYOUTS

Tryouts for the chorus of the new musical "Sweep It Clean" will be held in Memorial Hall, Wednesday at 7:30. Alarge number of singers and dancers are needed for the political musical-comedy to be presented on April 20 and 21 for the Koch Memorial Fund. Although all of the major parts have been cast the chorus forms a large part in the presentation of the 14 original songs. Directed by Marty Jacobs the music was written by Frank Groseclose around the script of Bob Barr and Louise Myers. Music will be provided at Memorial Hall.

Forensic Honors Won by Stevens

Carolina coed, Merle Stevens, former national women's debate champion, ranked among the top six in two contests of the National forensic tournament held at Fredericksburg, Va. last week. Sixty-six colleges and universities representing almost every state in the nation had participants in the tournament.

Miss Stevens' outstanding performance earned for her certificate awards in extemporaneous speaking and response to the occasion competition.

Among the Carolina debaters who earned distinction in other fields were Tom Shelton Chi Phi and senior from Atlanta, who was awarded fourth place in the discussion leaders' competition, and Herman Sieber and Blanton Miller who reached the semi-finals in dramatic reading with the latter also gaining the semi-finals in poetry-reading.

Other contestants from Carolina who performed with merit were Bob Giles, Herbert Yates, Herbert Mitchell, and Charlie Long.

Carolina sent Jim Taylor, 2nd year law student, in the important capacity of a judge for the debates.

Two Carolina debate teams entered the finals with Merle

(See STEVENS, page 4)

EARL FITZGERALD has been prominently associated with every forensic activity held in this vicinty during the past few years. Recently, he has become a candidate for Secretary-Treasurer of the student body on the Campus party ticket.

Phi Will Discuss Selective Service

President Truman's proposed reinstatement of selective service will be the main item to come before the Philanthropic assembly in their regular meeting tonight at 7:30 in New East building.

Preceding the bill an installation of the spring quarter officers will be held. The officers to be installed are Ernie House, speaker, Bill Duncan, speaker pro tem, Chester Zum Brunnen, parliamentarian, Pete Gerns, treasurer, David Sharpe, recording secretary, Charles Dixon, sergeant-at-arms, and Emily Baker, critic.

Three new members will be initiated at the meeting. They are Herbert Yates from Rockingham, Forest R. Willard from High Point, and Walter Montgomery, from Spartanburg, S. C.

Bill Duncan wants all applicants for membership to make their initial speech as soon as possible.

PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL

The Panhellenic council including newly elected members meets this afternoon at 5 in the Women's Government room at Graham Memorial. The Executive board will meet prior to the regular meeting at 4:30.

WOMEN's GLEE CLUB

All old members, and persons interested in joining the Women's Glee Club will meet at Hill hall this afternoon at 5.

EXHIBITION BASEBALL

New York (A) 2, Boston (A) 2 (17 inning tie)
New York (N) 2, Pittsburgh 0
Cleveland 2, St. Louis (A) 0

Fred Burgess Seeking Tarnation Editorship

Candidate's Meet In Gerrard To Be Compulsory—Winn

All candidates for office in the April 6 spring elections must attend a meeting in Gerrard hall this evening at 7 o'clock, according to Elections Board Chairman Al Winn.

The meeting is compulsory for all those running for election, regardless of whether they are endorsed by a party or not.

This meeting is called only for candidates, Winn pointed out. A meeting will be held later to introduce the candidates to the student body as a whole.

Medieval Drama Highlights Service

Before an audience that overtaked the facilities of beautiful Forest theater in the frosty early morning air of Easter Sunday, the first of Chapel Hill's community Easter sunrise services was presented at 6:30 Sunday morning.

Feature of the service was the presentation of the Easter drama, "The Resurrection of Christ," a play of the Wakefield Guild cycle of the 14th and 15 centuries, translated and arranged by Kai Jurgensen and Robert Schenkkan.

The play was directed by M. David Samples, and had costumes done by Martin Jacobs, set by Lynn Gault, and background music procured by Harold Schiffman. Margaret Cameron served as production secretary.

Arranged by a committee from community churches, student groups, and the YMCA and YWCA, the program included a worship service by Claude Shotts, the Rev. John Manley, and Bill Lane, and Easter hymns sung by a chorus of children led by Mrs. Fred McCall. A brass quartet led by David Arner accompanied the sinin and played several Bach chorales.

Mrs. J. R. Nelson was chairman of the committee arranging the prorgam and other members of the committee included Peter Burks, W. M. Wells, Pat Carruthers, Mrs. Guy Phillips, Gertrude Osborne, Mrs. Arthur R. Bennett, Martha Mendenhall, Mrs. Ruby Jones, the Rev. David Roston, the Rev. J. Robert Nelson, and the Rev. Bernard Munger.

Sue Stokes was chairman of the publicity committee, composed of Mrs. Ruth Ferguson. John Sloop, Mrs. Olan Mouzon, Helen Neighbors, Carolina Homan, Robert Bunch, Margaret Cameron, and Sally Woodhull.

Anti-UMT Group To Present Speakers At Rally Tonight

A public meeting against conscription will be held in Gerrard hall at 8 o'clock tonight. The rally is sponsored by the Chapel Hill Committee against Conscription, a group composed of representatives of various campus and town organizations opposed to UMT and the draft.

A panel of speakers will be presented, incluing the Rev. Charles M. Jones and the Rev. Henry Ruark, ministers of the Presbyterian and Methordist churches respectively; Dr. Howard K. Beale, professor of history; and Dr. Joseph Straley, professor of physics, from the University faculty; Louise E. Austin, editor of the Carolina Times, Durham; Jehan van de Velde, chairman of the Chapel Hill chapter of AVC; Al Lowenstein and others. An effort is being made to have a wide representation of the opposition to the two measures.

Both ministers have spoken against military training. The faculty members will present the specialized viewpoint, one as historian and one as atomic physicist. Austin is a prominent Durham citizen, and Van de Velde is head of the only veterans organization which has gone on record against UMT and the draft.

A question-and-answer period will follow presentation of the speakers.

Facilities will be provided for writing letters to members of Congress. The sponsors urge all students and townspeople to attend whether or not their minds are already made up on the matters to be discussed. John Myers, chairman of the Committee against Conscription, stated, "If you're for us, come and work for peace; if you're against us, come and let us convince you that we must all work to stop the further spread of militarism in America."

Keener Heads CP Sophomore Slate As Party Moves To Complete Ticket

Campus party officials yesterday made public the names of their nominees for sophomore class officers.

Heading the ticket will be CP nominee Hurshell Keener, whose endorsement by the Student party was announced earlier. Keener will run for president of the class.

In addition to Keener, the party is offering Marvin Nathan for vice president, Bobby Best for secretary, Dick Jenrette for treasurer, and Jake Lambeth for social chairman.

Keener is a member of the Student Legislature and hails from Lenoir. During his two quarters at Carolina, he has been affiliated with the Dialectic Senate and Sound and Fury.

Nathan from Norfolk, Virigina, has been nominated by the Universtiy party for the vice presidency and is being endorsed by the CP. He is a member of the freshman basketball squad, of the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity, and of the Carolina Political union.

Best, a rising sophomore from Sylva, is a former member of Sound and Fury. Jenrette, the candidate for class treasure is a member of Phi Eta Sigma and a Daily Tar Heel sports staffer.

The candidate serves as a night editor for the paper and as sports correspondent for the Raleigh

(See KEENER, page 4)

JACK GIRARD, University party candidate for president of the senior class, is a member of the Student legislature elections committee and of the Interfraternity council.

The nominee is a member of the Graham Memorial entertainment committee and has served as president of the Chi Phi fraternity for two terms.

Anti-anti-UMT Group to Stage Pro-Draft Rally

Pro-draft and pro-defense veteran and civilian students will stage a protest demonstration in the Y court tonight at 7:45 against the "Stop the Draft" meeting to be held in Gerrard hall at 8 o'clock.

This announcement was made last night by Bill Corley, veteran student from Atlanta, Georgia. Corley said, "We are sick and tired of these so-called pacifists and would-be quislings running around shouting for disarmament at a time when such a policy might well lead to national suicide.

"We ask all veterans and other

(See PRO-UMT, page 4)

Albright, Barker Will Speak in Hill Hall; Two Speakers Slated To Appear Wednesday

By Stuart McKeel

For the first time since they began their whirlwind campaign tours Mayne Albright and Oscar Barker, two of North Carolina's gubernatorial candidates, will make public appearances on the same program. The two will speak Wednesday night in Hill Hall.

Starting at 8 o'clock each candidate will speak for 20 minutes. The talks will be followed by an open forum and a question period. Spokesmen for the Carolina Political union, non-partisan campus political discussion group, and sponsors of the appearance said that it is not yet known definitely what the topics of discussion will be, but they will supposedly be on the candidates' respective platforms.

A third candidate, Charles M. Johnson, state treasure, who was supposed to appear, telephoned that he would not be able to be present.

Albright, 38-year-old-veteran of World War II, and a 1931 graduate of the University, has been conducting his tour in his trailer field headquarters, the "Challenger."

Students interested in an Albright-For-Governor club may meet with the candidate tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock in the lobby of the Carolina Inn to discuss plans for such an organization. Albright-For-Governor clubs are now functioning on campuses of other colleges in the

(See ALBRIGHT, page 4)

Cartoonist-Writer Runs Independently In Four-Way Race

By Gordon Huffines

Fred Burgess, 18-year-old sophomore, announced his candidacy yesterday for editorship of Tarnation in the forthcoming elections. Burgess, who is from South Mills, will run on an independent ticket.

Burgess stated that he was in favor of a larger humor magazine featuring more original material. He added that he wants to put out a magazine with a professional make-up but with more student appeal.

A cartoonist and writer, the candidate entered the University in the summer of 1946 and plans to major in English, journalism, and education. Several of his illustrations will appear in the next issue of Tarnation.

The new candidate has had four years of publications experience as editor and managing editor of high school newspapers and magazines. Burgess has also published an amateur fiction magazine, "Scarab," for the past three years. Specializing in science-fiction, he illustrates his own stories.

Burgess stated that he favors the use of more original material in Tarnation with less reprints from other college humor mags. "There is plenty of original talent on this campus," he said. "Of the 7,500 students here I know that at least 6,000 of them have something original to contribute to a campus humor magazine. And I believe that I can get it out of them," he added.

Asked about the present standards of Tarnation, Burgess praised the staff and stated that if elected he would atempt to maintain the present standards of the humor mag while enlarging it. He said that he was definitely in favor of including more illustrations, drawings, and photographs. Burgess also said that he was interested in the type of humor portrayed by the "Post-Scripts" of the Saturday Evening Post.

YW Nominations To Be Revealed

Nominations for YWCA officers for next year will be tomorrow afternoon's Coed Get-Together at 5 o'clock in the main lounge of Graham Memorial, and a program explaining fundamental policies of the Y will be presented under the direction of Sally Lee, membership chairman.

Entitled "Highlights—Camera—Action," the program is derived from the "Actions" of the Student assembly at Urbana, Illinois, in December of 1946, at which time policies of the organization were determined. Candidates will be introduced and their qualifications given, after which there will be an opportunity for nominations from the floor. Two names each for the offices of president, secretary, treasurer, and membership chairman have been chosen by the nominating committee, and the person not elected president is to become vice president. Candidates for new adult members of the advisory board will also be announced. Elections will be held Thursday night in women's dormitories and sorority houses, at which timbe a representative from the Y cabinet will present qualifications of all candidates. Town girls will vote in the Y office on Thursday from 10 to 1 from 2 to5.

All coeds who have paid their $2 membership fee to the YWCA are eligible to vote in this election, but must check their names on the membership list which

(See GET-TOGETHER, page 4)

MUSIC REGISTRATION

Today will be the last day for Applied Music registration the music department announced.

Vice President, Secretary-Treasurer Platforms Are Released

First Pre-election Platforms Appear

This is the first in a series of political platforms of major candidates for next Tuesday's election. Tomorrow the Daily Tar Heel will run the platforms of presidential candidates, Friday those of the three political parties, Saturday those of candidates for editorships of Tarnation, Yackety Yack and the DTH, and on Sunday the platforms of head cheerleaders aspirants.

In regard to the publication of candidates' pictures, the DTH policy will be to print as many pictures as possible from now through Sunday, if cuts are brought to this office by the candidates. It is urged that these engravings be turned in as soon as possible, to avoid the possibility of anyone being left out.

No pictures, platforms, or news stories concerning separate candidates will appear in next Tuesday's election issue of the paper.

John Clampitt

"First, I would like to say that I can not state in a few words what I plan to do if elected. There would be a year to help the student government pull its head out of the sand and problems must be met as they arise. As I see it now, I can promise:

"(1) To work with the executive branch so as to assure a oneness of purpose:

"(2) To continue the work of establishing a student post office to assure better mail service;

"(3) To follow up any possibilities for better banking system on the campus;

"(4) To continue the practice of giving tests on parliamentary procedure to the leislators so that they can understand the functions of their office.

"(5) To help in any way possible the orientation program for incoming students.

"(6) To work toward making the Student Legislature an active legislative body and not a debate society.

"I am familiar with the powers

(See CLAMPITT, page 4)

Jim Godwin

"If I am elected, I believe that what I have learned and the experience I have gained on this and another campus will enable me to conduct any student meeting with sufficient decorum in accord with the established rules of parliamentary procedure.

"I feel certain that I can lend valuable assistance to the president of the student body in student government affairs."

Gerns and Gallup

Not the Gallup Poll, but the Campus Forum, featured on today's editorial page, will give the latest on how the campus is thinking on candidates for five of the top offices in next Tuesday's election.

On Friday, again next Tuesday, the following Friday, and the following Tuesday, the Forum will carry on the popularity poll on the top candidates in the first elections and in the run-off.

Gran Childress

"As candidate for secretary-treasurer of the student body and also as chairman of the Student party, I will attempt to use this position, if elected, to further not only those elements which have to do with the financial aspects of our student government but also those which are actually more basic so far as students and their betterment is concerned.

"The Student party platform which I will use as a guide to the things which are necessary at the pressing time includes such planks as: (1) Payment of Lenoir hall by the General Assembly appropriation and not by the student, (2) Telephones on every dormitory floor or either the installation of a call system in all dorms, (3) An equitable, proportional, and unprejudiced redistricting bill as soon as possible.

"(4) Better orientation of transfer students and new students alike with a complete explanation of the honor system, (5) More sidewalks, and other things of this general nature which are vital to the well-being of all students. A person with an executive office who has the will to work and originality can be a great asset in the attainment of these ends. I will pledge myself to this task.

"My platform as an individual candidate for secretary-treasurer consists of: (1) Requisitions for

(See CHILDRESS, page 4)

Earl Fitzgerald

"Student government at Carolina is like any other organization in that in order to progress, and operate smoothly, those in charge of it should be persons who know their government, and are willing to put into their office, not just the required time to keep it rolling, but also their interest and abilities.

"I am familiar with the operation of student government, both from the angle of campus organizations, and from within the government itself. If I am selected, I shall endeavor to put into the office of secretary-treasurer the same type of sincerity and efforts that I have expended on other types of activity here at Carolina."

Bob Kirby

"If elected, I will as chairman of the Budget committee, keep an eye on the student's money and make full reports to the students concerning the expenditures of various campus organizations.

"These are the major duties of the secretary-treasure of the student body. The position is a job that I feel I can handle and, if elected, I promise to execute the duties of the office to the best of my ability.

"I feel that the commerce courses I have taken will supply me with the ability necessary to do this, and I pledge that I will devote the time necessary."

ARCHERY MEETING

The Women's Archery Club will meet Wednesday, March 31, in the Women's Gym at 4 o'clock.

This club will meet each Wednesday at 4. All interested should be at the first meeting.

CP MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Campus party this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Roland Parker 2 of Graham Memorial.

Mill-Stones

Words of Clay Can Be Molded Into MudBalls

By Barron Mills

When it gets open season every four years you can count on hearing one phrase over and over again. Everybody in the business is trying to capitalize on a few words that Henry Clay molded years ago and when you get right down to it those words just don't mean a happy damn to the layman. Henry Clay's words have been used as mud balls in counter attacks for years: "I'd rather be right than President."

Earl Heffner wrote on this editorial page last year under the title "I'd Rather Be Right." And I was mighty thankful for seeing those words playing around out of their habitat. They were mighty appropriate symbols that could be used for most any occasion. When he wrote about the Commies He concluded: "I'd rather be Right." And then on one eventful occasion after the Duke Chronical-Daily Tar Heel Beer chug-a-lug contest he wrote, "I'd rather be tight."

The other day the newspapers publicized the fact that a reporter asked Mr. Truman something like this: "Mr. Truman is it true that you would rather be right than President?" At this remark the President merely chuckled. Can you imagine the President of the United States snickering at such a question. Think of his reputation—that pint-sized guffaw alone is enough to cost him the Democratic nomination for a second term.

Just think—he missed the opportunity of a lifetime. His answer should have been, "Young man, I'm from Missouri."

After such an appropriate statement he should have gone into a long dissertation. "I'm through with these petty party politics. Election year or no election year I'm letting my conscience be my guide. Take my reversing our decision on the Palestine question. I lost votes in New York by changing our minds on that one. Then you can take the Civil Rights proposals. You southerners got hot under the collar on that one. We just about ended up with another War for Southern Independence. And all the time most of those proposals were planks in both the Democratic and Republican platforms of '44. No sir, I'm from Missouri—we're allus right."

But even the Quiz Kid recognize the importance of that one immortal statement, those words of quadrennial importance. For their last program a member of the radio audience sent in the question, "What kind of pipe would you send the authors of these words: "I'd rather be right than President." Joel Kupperman answered without any deliberation "A Clay pipe." Why couldn't he have added a little ingenuity and said in the words of this prodigy, "A Meerschaum."

* * *

Of course when considering that you have a multitude of candidates jockeying for the nomination you must always remember that a man does not want to be President just because of his own personal satisfaction or because he believes that he can gain laurels for himself. Perhaps there is not a case on record where a man ran for President just to satisfy selfish motive. Each time they dust off one of the old stereotype statements: I am not a candidate unless my constituents demand it of me." Naturally the public always drafts him.

And when you look over the campus scene of political action you have to alter this statement just a trifle and say: "I am not a constituent unless the candidates demand it of me."

Campus Calendar

3:00 p.m.—Debate council, Roland Parker No. 1
5:00 p. m.—Pan Hellenic council Grail room.
7:00 p.m.—Bridge tournament, Main lounge.
7:00 p.m.—S.K.E., Grail room
4:00 p. m.—Campus party, Roland Parker No. 3
7:30 p.m.—Le Cercle Francais, Caldwell "Y"
8:00 p.m.—Anti UMT meeting, Gerrard hall
8:00 p.m.—Delta Tau Delta, Grail room
9:00 p.m.—A.E.D., Grail room

A Prolonged Talk with the President

Convocations are nothing new around the University of North Carolina. One is quietly planned and goes off as scheduled every quarter. They rarely create an exuberant spirit within the student body except for the prospects of not having to attend class because of the event. Tomorrow's convocation will be different—Dr. Frank P. Graham will have his first chat with the students since his departure from the campus last fall.

Perhaps all of the official information concerning the report offered by the three-man delegation which went to the Dutch East Indies to mediate at the Dutch-Indonesian quibble has been released through the proper channels to the public. But no matter how much information has been dispersed through the public relations sources, it is not comparable to the same material that is colorfully related by Dr. Graham.

Dr. Graham, one of the University community, one of our number, and a member of the delegation, will give his report to the campus tomorrow morning.

This, the first public appearance of the President since his return, could be looked upon as his report to the student body of his accomplishments since his departure from Chapel Hill.

As those Alumni who attended the Alumni meeting in Washington over the holidays can verify, much has happened since Dr. Graham-left. A complete study of past and contemporary history and economic problems of Dutch East Indies had to be studied. There were long hours of consultation and reports to be made to the UN.

This is not a convocation made by an outsider on a subject that is not of interest except to a few economists or a select group. Rather it is just a prolonged chat from the President of the University—on a subject that is of interest to the world and to every student at the University.

An Amendment to Clarify The Constitution

One of the amendments that will be submitted to the Student body for final approval in the elections next month will bring the wording of the constitution up to date with the.. actual.. practice... The phrasing of the constitution which delegates the authority to the Interfraternity council to try cases that are direct violations of the Coed Visiting agreement is nebulous and has been a bone of contention since the constitution was adopted. The proposed amendment will not change the actual practice of the working agreement between the Coeds and the fraternities; nor does it change the provisions for trial. It merely clarifies that section of the constitution in order to cease any future debating on the subject.

The sole function of the Interfraternity court is to try violations of the Visiting agreement between the fraternities and the coeds. Its power is held intact by explicit wording in the amendment. The Interfraternity court has jurisdiction only in those cases which involve the individual fraternities as organizations. Violations which occur on fraternity property and do not involve the fraternity as a whole will continue to be within the jurisdiction of the Honor Council—the same as any other individual. Such a set-up is feasible and sensible since the fraternities and the coeds sign a contract at the beginning of each school year. If this contract is violated in any manner then the Interfraternity court is the organization which should hear the case, analyze it and pass sentence on the offense.

Write Away

Food For Thought At Easter

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Dear Editor:

In a democracy it is the duty of every citizen to take an active interest in the policies of his country. For that reason the students of the UNC should be encouraged in their political discussions. But, to my mind, there is something higher and more important than mere party politics. That is: the sanctity of human life and welfare of mankind. When we talk of a possible war we largely disregard those two important points.

Certainly, the fact that we consider another war necessary to settle the affairs of the world proves conclusively that the last war was fought in vain. Furthermore the usual steps taken by the leaders in preparation for war are undemocratic for they do not represent the will of the people involved. When consulted, the majority of the people express the desire for security and plenty and they know from experience that war robs them invariably of those precious advantages.

We are led to believe that we will win again in the event of a third world war. We ought to be reminded that this war will, with the means of destruction known to science, destroy on third of the population of the world. Can we be sure that this country will not be part of the blighted area?

If we really believe in the democratic way of life we are going to allow ourselves to be led into war as the people of Japan and Germany were led before us with such disastrous results to themselves and the world?

In our present stage of civilization no war can be called a righteous war. There is no colorful pageantry left in it, no trophies to bring home. It has become a vast crime against women and children which is condemned by every word of the teachings of Christ. As Christians we were told to refuse to take arms against our fellow men regardless of our motives, righteous or unrighteous.

The American people have been chosen to decide whether the atomic energy shall be used to destroy the world or to make it the Paradise it was intended to be.

Now is the supreme test of our Christianity.

Charlotte V. Huse

Appeal To Vote

Dear Editor:

In a couple of weeks, on April 6 to be exact, general elections will once more be with the campus. It will be the first spring election that many freshman students like myself have seen. I don't know how many voters there will be. I understand that student government leaders were very, very elated with the election success of last year, when a little over half of the students voted. Perhaps it's just a temporary freshman enthusiasm; but I can't quite understand why so few people take the trouble to vote.

Some say that it is the fault of the leaders who keep student government monopolized in a small group. But after all, it is the government of the students, and certainly it is

(See WRITE AWAY page 4)

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Srow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: John Stump — NIGHT SPORTS: Dick Jenrette

Carousel

Coed In Sweater Deserts Campus Marriage Course

By R. Foo Giduz

"Why do we marry?," was the rhetorical question the prof asked in beginning his first lecture before the seniors' marriage and courtship class last Thursday . . . (Edit page butchers cut us off in the middle of this funny in Sat's col.). . .

—Whereupon the cute li'l coed in the yellow sweater who was sitting right up front of us, figuratively folded up her tent, picked up her books, and quietly walked out of the room!

—A subtle, silent protest against the institution. maybe?

The local hell-week high moguls of one fraternity hit a new high in something-or-other this past week-end. . . when a couple of pledges got to acting up a bit Saturday night, the "brothers" sent them off to the city of Baltimore to the Oasis club, to get the autographs of two chorus cuties on their brassieres, and bring them back. . .P. S.: They did it!. . .Though for bitter contemplation: At the Forest theater Easter sunrise service Resurrection play, the name of Christ, played by Edsel Hughes, was the only one left off the program.

Tuneful Tiny Hutton, Tar Heelia's madcap musical alumnus of '42 got the tough breaks Sunday evening. . .The 330-pound fatterweight lost out on the Horace Heidt radio talent show to a banjo player, of all things . . .His "Too Fat Polka" won out Sunday before last, but his "Laughing Polka" wasn't chuckly enough. . .Anyhow, Tiny took a several hundred dollar stash back to Richmond as compensation for his efforts.

So we're plugging R. Mayne Albright, "The Challenger," for governor of North Carolina. . . The young Raleigh lawyer and UNC alumnus has taken on the phenomenal task of trying to lick the NC machine single-handed, and is coming dern near doing it, from pre-election prognostications. Most students are either for W. Kerr Scott (a mighty good man) or Albright

Here's why Albright: Scott and Johnson are currently running neck-and-neck. . .Albright in third. . .A second primary between two out of these three looks quite likely. . .And we'd certainly rather choose between Albright and Scott, than Scott and Johnson, in this second primary. . .

In the event either Albright or Johnson is defeated in the first primary, they'll probably throw their support to the other . . .So on May 28, "Vote Right—For Albright!"

Can't Find House? Just Get Aboard

SEATTLE (UP)—John and Virginia Murray were looking desperately for a place to live last August, just like many other veteran couples in Seattle.

Glancing through the classified ads in a local newspaper one day, they saw this:

"Houseboat. Three bedrooms. Three baths. Large living room. Large utility room. Kitchen with breakfast nook."

It sounded a little unusual but good. Particularly because it was moored in Portage Bay on the south edge of the University of Washington campus, where John was going to school.

It wasn't exactly as luxurious and spacious as the ad implied. The only plumbing consisted of one cold water faucet and the vessel needed a heating system.

But the Murrays were resourceful. They saw possibilities in the old boat, which by this time had become almost a museum piece in the Pacific Northwest.

So they bought the Ariel for $2.300. The Murrays and another college veteran couple, Joe and Ann Melusky, moved into the boat Sept. 1.

After they put in a new stove and a refrigerator, the Ariel developed a list to port. Both had to be put on the same side because of space limitations.

The favorite story of life aboard the Ariel is about the morning John nearly fell into the lake while dashing off the boat to an 8 o'clock class.

Campus Forum

Dedmond, Long Lead In Poll

By Pete Gerns

Campus elections are just around the corner. Next Tuesday you will go to the polls to cast your vote in favor of the man you want to see in office.

Campus Forum picked 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. of Monday as the most opportune time to search out student opinion in an effort to predict a trend on how the vote will be going next week

One hundred students were approached with the question "How would you cast your ballot if elections were held today?" 86 boys and 14 girls were questioned to keep within the prevailing ratio. Here is the tabulation of votes cast for student government's three top-offices and the offices of cheerleader and Yackety Yack editor picked at random:

Student Body president:

	Pct
Dedmond (CP-UP	42
Long (Ind)	25
Rubish (SP)	20
Manning (Ind)	3
Hodson (Ind)	2
Don't Know	8

On the basis of these results we could predict a run-off between Dedmond and Long or Rubish.

Vice-President:

	Pct.
Clampitt (UP)	50
Godwin (CP-SP)	33
Don't Know	17

Secretary-Treasurer:

	Pct.
Childress (SP)	26
Kirby (UP)	23
Fitzgerald (CP)	13
Don't Know	38

Unless there'll be much of a change, there'll be a run-off between Childress and Kirby.

Head-Cheerleader:

	Pct.
Stancill (UP)	36
Sper (SP)	28
Pence (Ind)	7
Wofford (CP)	5
Don't Know	24

Stancill and Sper will be fighting it out for this one.

Yackety Yack editor:

	Pct.
Duncan (UP)	27
Blake (SP-CP)	25
Don't Know	48

All candidates were listed on the poll sheet in alphabetical order as they will be on the election ballots. All voters were told that their vote will remain in strict confidence.

In taking the poll, Campus Forum noticed that only few of the voters were actually voting along party lines. One voter made the statement that he followed party lines all the way because he was accustomed to do so. Girls generally took more time out to think; only a couple of them voted along party line.

Most students put down "Don't Know" if they had not heard of the candidates in question. Aspirants to office who already had come out with their publicity were usually picked if the voter did not know the other candidate personally.

In an effort to find out what made the candidates for student government's highest office tick, the Forum asked several voters for their reasons in voting as they did an is quoting two reasons given for votes cast for each of the top candidates.

Dedmond: "He is sponsored by two political parties and he has more publicity so far." Norman Booker.

"Lots of my friends who know a little more about politics than I do have recommended him to me." Don Maynard.

Hodson: I know only two of the candidates. I think Hodson has the personality and ability to go with the job." Gales Perry.

"He sounds like a pretty nice fellow to me and will be good for the job from what I've heard of him." John Stuart.

Long: "Long is very capable and sincere; he is very well informed of the intricacies of student government." Ann Tucker.

"I consider him best fitted for the job due to his political experience." John C. Taylor.

Manning: "I vote for Manning because I know him personally." Decatur Cunningham.

"He is very intelligent and suited for the job." Bill Stephenson

Rubish: "Rubish is the most conscientious of the three candidates I know; I think he wants the position to help the school rather than gain prestige for himself." Marion Parker.

"He's one of the boys and it looks to me that he'd work for the student body." Lester Hill

On the basis of some of the above results we would like to advise candidates to get their literature out, but pronto. A lot can be done in a week.

To the voters: It's your responsibility to vote next Tuesday. Many of you stated that you wanted to do the right thing in the candidates but didn't know any of them. Perhaps you'll find an opportunity to meet them before you go to the polls.

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

—Tuesday night and it's contract bridge tournament time. . . The play, open to novices as well as addicts, pays off in Nationally-honored master points. . .That's 7 o'clock, main lounge. . .Come with or without partners. . .GM staffers pass on congratulations to newlyweds Bob and Virginia "Ginger" Callahan. . .Bob used to keep the office at nights.

Poster-posting students are requested to leave the two small bulletin boards in the main hall free for GM notices. . .There's a huge billboard on the front porch for big and little posters of every type.

—Get "clipped" at your Student Union barber shop!

Movie Music

Satchmo Steals the Show

By Sandy Grady

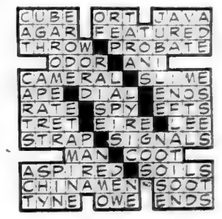
Like sex, psycho-analysis, and spital stair-cases, there is something fascinating to Hollywood producers about jazz music. Every couple of years they put out a movie called "Basin Street" or "Birth of the Blues," announcing with quirt reserve that it is the "jazz epic of the century." Perhaps they can't help themselves and simply want to make money.

Anyway, the same picture that you saw two years ago may come to Chapel Hill one of these days. On this run through the hinterlands, it has been aptly entitled "New Orleans." All of these jazz epics take place in New Orleans and are much concerned with basement bistroes, river boats, and trick shots down a trumpet bell. What they ought to do is shoot a whole movie out of a trumpet bell and forget it; purge themselves.

I saw this "New Orleans" in my home town over the holidays and it wouldn't be worthy talking about in a newspaper, much less paying 36 cents to see, if it were not for a man in it. The plot is very simple: this opera singer is in love with a gambler but he has to go to Chicago so she goes to Paris because she thinks her mother has given him this bracelet because her mother — well, you can see how simple it is. Every once in a while, amidst all of this bushwah, they let you hear some honest-to-God music and see this man. It feels like a half-bottle of Millers High Life in the Mojave Desert.

The man? Louis Armstrong.

If you are in the semi-darkness as I was, and have only heard snatches of Armstrong's records and seen his name around, you have a revelation ahead. It is the vision of the mount, only this vision is a little black guy who never quits grinning, even when he's blue, probably even when he's blowing the horn. This Armstrong is a small piece of phenonoma something Hollywood couldn't manage to pervert. You may have heard his horn on records and know of its savage, clean power, but that can't compare with seeing the man sweat the music out of himself and his cornet. It is visible creation. You get glimpses of other fine musicians—Barney Bigard, Kid Ory—in the picture, but Armstrong is the bicep, he makes the thing move.



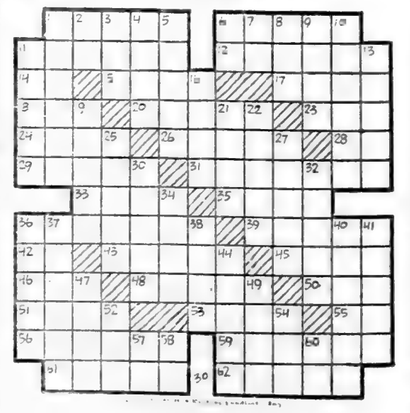
They said of Charlie Chaplin in decades gone past that he was the only American genius, that in his comedy was all of the genuine tragedy and laughter of this country. If they had shut up and hadn't said the same thing of Mickey Mouse, it wouldn't have sounded foolish. Armstrong is in Chaplin's shoes; he's a terrific natural actor and comedian, but for different reasons. People laughed at Charlie for his blunders—Armstrong makes no blunders. He does everything so right, exudes such amounts of good will that you have to laugh. He wouldn't be pushed into the shuffling Negro role that people find comical, because he's a musician, a man, and then maybe a Negro.

I don't want to wax too ecstatic and take off like a bird about Satchmo (they called him, trickily, by his own name in the picture), because this movie is mostly about blond opera singers, sleek gamblers, and a symphony orchestra. Any minute, I expected to see a room with a dozen machine-gunned bodies and to hear Mr. North say to Mrs. North, "Don't look Pamela. I think there's been dirty work here." It would have made as much sense. Billie Holiday also has a bit in the show, but her usually fine singing sounds more like Martha Tilton or somebody, and she is incongrously in love with Satchmo.

Incidentally, across the street from "New Orleans" was playing a movie called "Mom and Dad," which the billboard described as the "bold, vital truth about sex hygiene . . . personal lecture . . nurse on duty every performance." If Freud could have seen the block-long line of guys waiting out front it would have warmed the cockles of his libido—New Orleans didn't get half the attention. When it's a choice between hygiene and jazz Satchmo looses hands down.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE



ACROSS

1—Wading bird
6—"Regent of the Sun"
11—Demonstrated
12—Talking bird
14—Conjunction
15—Vein of metal
17—Flying toy
18—To cut off
20—Pert to birth
23—Wrong
24—Portent
26—Compact
28—Unit of energy
29—Stitched
31—United ——
33—Level
35—To tear
36—Railroad car
39—Tall grasses
42—Geometrical ratio
43—What Nero was 44—Certain
46—Collection of sayings
48—Pertaining to tone
50—Plan
51—Eskimo's home (var.)
53—British streetcar
55—Father
56—Centaur
59—Glossy coating
61—Cries like lion
62—Seamstress

DOWN

1—Chromium (coll.)
2—Artificial language
3—Boring tool
4—Display sign
5—Norse poems
6—Toward top
7—Sun god
8—To annoy
9—Goddess of discord
10—Wash
11—Flights alone
13—Minds
16—Short jacket
19—Wood bird
21—Winged
22—Metric measure
25—At no time
27—Rate
30—Station
32—Greek theater
34—Jules Verne hero
36—France's county
37—To daily
38—To talk wildly
40—Decorator
41—Part of flower
44—Nostrils
47—Too
49—Path
52—Our country's initials
54—Beast's stomach
57—Biblical land
58—Steamship (abbr.)
60—Pronoun

Tar Heels Register Tennis, Baseball Victories Over Michigan State Teams

Netmen Open Season With Easy 9-0 Win; Harvard Here Today

By Bob Goldwater

Losing only three sets while registering a clean sweep of all singles and doubles engagements, Carolina's ever-potent tennis team started its 1948 campaign in fine fashion yesterday afternoon on the local courts with an easy 9-0 decision over Michigan State's touring racquetmen.

The Tar Heels continue their match-a-day schedule this afternoon when they play host to another net outfit touring the Southland, this one from Harvard. Starting time will come at 3 o'clock.

Second Thermopylae

In losing, the Spartans ran into their second Thermopylae within a week, having been blanked by another Southern conference team, William and Mary, last Thursday. Yesterday's match was played before an audience numbering close to 800.

In the feature clash of the afternoon, Vic Seixas, Carolina's top luminary and the nation's ninth ranking amateur, breezed to a 6-2, 6-3 triumph over Al Reynolds. Flashing brilliant ground strokes and a powerful net attack, the Blue and White net captain showed much better form than in his initial outing last year.

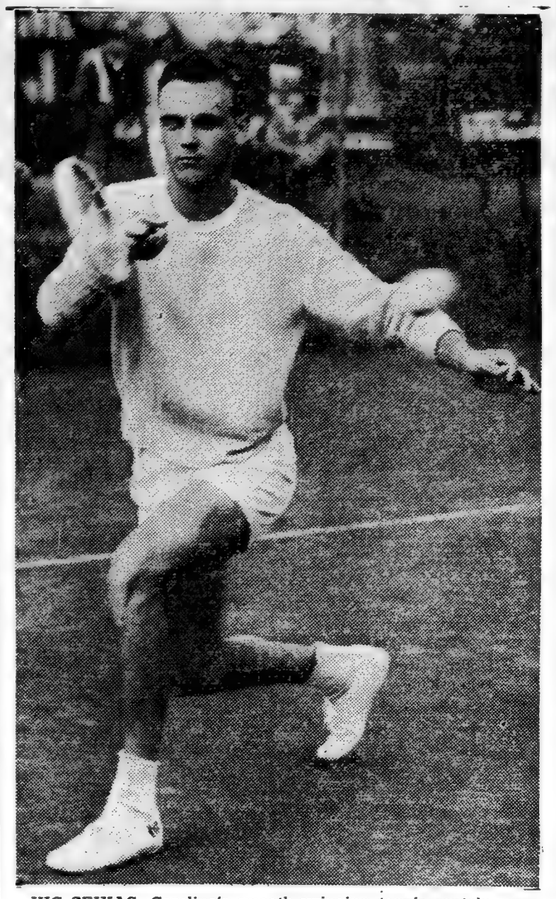
After losing the first set, Reynolds did manage to battle Seixas on even terms in the first six games of the second canto, both players holding their own service. Seixas continued to hold service in the seventh game, then broke through in the eighth to pave the way for his victory.

Identical Scores

Two other Tar Heels also turn-in wins by 6-2, 6-3 scores. Clark Taylor, playing on court two, held the offensive all the way to emerge the victor over Jack Shingleton by that margin. And Charlie Rice, in the number four assignment, was the day's first winner in downing Bob Chuck with the loss of the same number of games.

The other three singles duels all went into overtime, two reaching three sets. At the number three post, Ray Morris trimmed Bob Malaga, 6-4, 10-8, narrowly escaping the troubles of a third set by pulling out of an 8-7, 40-love deficit..

In the longest match of the day, Don Skakle outlasted Bob Fleischmann, 3-6, 7-5, 9-7, on the number five court. The number six contest resulted in a 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 triumph for Duke Wilder over the visitors' Don Waldron. Behind 4-2 in the decisive set, Wilder reeled off four straight games to gain his win.



Doubles Sweep

With victory already assured, Coach John Kenfield's charges continued their winning ways in all three doubles engagements. Only one match went as far as three sets, Taylor and Rice being pushed to that limit to defeat Shingleton and Chuck. The scores were 8-6, 5-7, 6-2.

The court two tandem of Seixas and Stan Gruner registered the lone love set of the day's proceedings by making up a 6-0 count over Reynolds and Malaga in the initial canto. The Michigan State duo fought back in the second set to push it into overtime, but the result was the same, the home forces coming through by an 8-6 margin.

In the third doubles skirmish, Heath Alexander and Sam Daniels drubbed Waldron and Tom Martin, 6-2, 6-4.

Off to a Good Start

VIC SEIXAS, Carolina's smooth-swinging tennis captain, came through in fine style yesterday, scoring a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Al Reynolds as the Tar Heels defeated Michigan State, 9-0. Vic is the nation's ninth ranking amateur.

Football Squad Begins Drills As 100 Boys Report For Work

Football season may be a long way off yet, but Carolina Coach Carl Snavely, realizing that his Tar Heels will be playing the hardest grid slate in the University's history next fall, issued the initial call for Spring practice yesterday.

A group of some 100 huskies, including a large number of lettermen, were on hand for the first drills. Several of the veteran performers slated to return are members of other teams this spring and were not present for the workout.

Bob Cox, the extra point specialist who also plays a good game at end, is a member of the golf team now; and Sid Varney, a scrappy guard on Snavely's grid club, is the regular catcher for the baseball team.

Lots of Experience

There were still plenty of experienced players on hand, however. Of the 37 boys who won monograms last year, at least 27 are expected to return for action next fall, and there is a possibility that there will be even more than this number.

There was nothing but light work during the afternoon's activities, and there probably won't be any rough action for a couple of weeks. Coach Snavely is planning to continue these drills for five or six weeks.

Blue-White Game

The second annual Blue-White intrasquad football game will culminate the practices. This event is sponsored by the Monogram club, and affords the Carolina grid followers an opportunity to get a view of the propects for next season.

The University of Texas, a team that the Tar Heels will be particularly anxious to defeat, will provide the opposition in Carolina's first game of the season next fall. That tilt will be played in Chapel Hill on September 25. Other home games include N. C. State, Lousiana State, William and Mary, and Duke. Out-of-town games will be against Georgia, Wake Forest, Tennessee, Maryland, and Virginia.

Plans Go Forward For Big Carnival

Carolina's intramural department yesterday was busy making final arrangements for the big sports carnival which will be held in Woollen gymnasium on Thursday of this week. The event will be the biggest item on the mural program this year.

The latest addition to the carnival is a table tennis tourney. Plans for this event call for participation by the first 32 students who report to Woollen on Thursday night and who desire to play. There will be no registration for the tourney before Thursday night, and competition will be limited to singles.

The intramural department requested that all students planning to be in the table tennis event be on hand at 7:15.

Another feature which the carnival officials feel will lure out Carolina's male population is the show in which 21 girls, all of whom are majoring in physical education, will participate. The girls have a tumbling and gymnastic act planned.

Some of the Monogram Club members and physical education major girls will stage an exhibition square dance during the latter part of the program, and a social dance at 10 o'clock will conclude the activities.

Golfers Inaugurate Season Today Against Harvard At Hope Valley

By Billy Carmichael

Coach Chuck Erickson's Tar Heel golf team will open its 1948 season this afternoon at Hope Valley country club in neighboring Durham against the highly-rated Crimson of Harvard University. The first foursome will tee off at 1:30.

The local linksmen, defending Southern conference champions, will have their work laid out for them from the first tee to the eighteenth green since there are but two holdovers from last year's winning combination among the six starters.

Three have left by the graduation route—Dick Doeschler, Junie Bailey, and Ed Ashby—but the real blow came this week when Ray Taylor, the smooth-swinger from Greensboro who had been heavily counted on, did not return for the spring term.

Counting on Ward

Without Taylor, Erickson will have to count on veterans Harvey Ward, who advanced to the quarter-finals of both the National Intercollegiate and the National Amateur last year, and Bob Cox, the football extra point specialist.

To fill the gaps, there are a large quantity of promising newcomers, all of untried quality. On their performances will probably rest the outcome of not only today's match, but the rest of the competitions listed on the schedule.

Thus, Ward will probably be started at the No. 1 position, to be teamed with Roy McKenzie, a newcomer to varsity competition, but a lad who saw some action with the Tar Heels last year, playing as an unlisted competitor in the Conference meet at Winston-Salem.

A Steady Hand

Cox will be dropped to the No. 3 spot for the sake of putting a steady hand on the best ball in the second foursome. At the No. 4 post, Harvey Oliver of Fayetteville, a sophomore newcomer, will break into the line-up.

In the last foursome, it will be all new faces. Jack Brantley of Greensboro will hold down the No. 5 slot. The No. 6 position is still in doubt and will probably remain so up until match time, but it looks as if Frank Brooks, the Siler City freshman, will get the nod over Pete Beaudry for the day's match at least.

The 6,000-odd yard Hope Valley course looks to be in the best of condition for this time of year and should make for the best of performances from both of the competing teams.

Little is known of the visiting six from Harvard, except that they were an Ivy League threat throughout last season and have most of their 1947 team back intact.

The match will be open to any and all spectators and those interested are invited to follow the golfers around the 18-hole grind. The normal gallery rules will be observed.

Coeds Resume Play In Badminton

The Women's Intramural Badminton Tournament swings back into action this week with 38 racquet-weilding coeds taking the court.

Matches which must be completed by Tuesday, April 6, are as follows: Emily Baker vs. Martha Witner; Nancy Pendleton vs. Nancy Walker; Corinne Grimsley vs. Nancy Black; Betty Ann Cooper vs. Jean Sommervel; Estella Lassiter vs. Bunny Davis; Lesty Pearson vs. Molly Blackburn; Estelle Jones vs. Reet Aldrich; Carolyn Driver vs. Jane Pointer; and Faith Adams vs. Dabney Little.

Also Pat Winslow vs. Emily Von Borries; Ida Constable vs. Doris Beasley; Alice Jones vs. Mildred Tilson; Nell Griffin vs. Teny Royal; Lucille Arnott vs. Ann Anderson; Marshal Spears vs. Katie Guion; Helen Crockford vs. Betsy Tom Lawrence; Barbara Dalton vs. Lynn Blanchard; Rebecca Holton vs. Katie Davis; and Marge Yokely vs. Emily Ogburn.

Entries with their addresses are posted in Women's Gym. All the participants should read the rules and report results of all matches. Any match which is not played in time will result in a default. The badminton courts are available on Tuesday on Tuesday and Thursday from 4 to 6 o'clock.

MANAGERS MEET

There will be an important meeting for all spring quarter intramural managers tonight at 7:30 in room 302 Wollen Gym.

All independent softball teams who are interested in entering intramural play should be represented at this meeting as the final plans for the tournament will be discussed.

Ranson to Unveil Track Team Before Tough Field Saturday

The 1948 Carolina track squad will get its first unveiling this Saturday when Carlina plays host for the third annual Carolina relays.

There are 15 events in the Freshmen and varsity program. Six schools have definitely entered and the Universityof Maryland will send a team if they can eliminate a schedule conflict. The six definite starters are Carolina, Duke, State, Davidson, Yale and VPI.

Yale lists an entry of nine men including their top hurdling star, George Cook. Cook was the winner of the IC4A indoor title in the high hurdles. Vic Frank and Stan Fuchs are entered in both the shot and discus and both these men are up on top of the list of Eastern weight men.

Carolina Counters

Carolina will counter with Bob Seligman, conference weight champion, and Dick Taylor, indoor hurdle winner and second place finisher in the Florida Relays.

State will try to defend its shot put championship with Jim Byler. The Wolfpack will also bring several basketball stars who double in the conder sport. They include Dick Dickey in the high jump, broad jump and javelin. Vic Bubas in the broad jump and Warren Cartier and Ed Bartels in the shot put.

Duke will be led by their middle distance star Roger Neighborgal. The Blue Devils swept most of the relay events last year and will be favored again with Neighborgal getting support from Loren Young, Doug Ausbon and John Grisso. The Durham crew is loaded in the pole vault with John Colvin, Ed Jackson, John Bowles and swimming star John Connor. Jim O'Leary will also add strength to the Devils' weight events.

VPI will be led by sprint champion Stirling Wingo and middle distance star Frank Magill, brother of Carolina's Sam.

Davidson has entered John Gray in the mile and Jim Vann in the discus and both these lads are up with the best in the conference.

If Maryland is able to attend they will feature such stars as Bob Palmer in the mile, Rube Ruback and Mario Salvenelli in the hurdles plus strong relay teams paced by Ed Matthews.

All in all the meet is shaping up to be a gala affair and the starting time is listed for two o'clock Saturday afternoon at Fetzer Field.

Monogram Meeting

There will be a meeting of the Monogram club tonight at 7:30 in 304 Woollen.

President Bill Pritchard announced that the new constitution will be brought up before the group for ratification. All members are urged to attend.

Frank Robinson Gets Credit for Win As Carolina Club Captures 5-2 Victory

By Larry Fox

Burlington, March 29—Scoring all of their runs in four of the five final innings, Carolina's baseballers pounded three Michigan State hurlers for 11 hits, four for extra bases, as they came from behind to annex a 5-2 victory—their second tsraight.

Frank Robinson started on the hill for the Tar Heels and, after a shaky start, settled down to pitch two-hit ball until the eighth inning when fatigue forced him to turn over the mound chores to Vinnie DiLorenzo.

The Spartans started the scoring in Elon Park with an unearned run that resulted from a bit of confusion in the infield.

The Tar Heels will put their youthful winning streak on the line this afternoon against the University of Pennsylvania at 3:30 in the Burlington ball park. Tommy Andrew is expected to pitch.

With two out and Joe Bechard on second as a result of a walk and a stolen base, Captain Bud Erickson lofted a high infield fly. Both firstbaseman Jack Brasington and thirdsacker Jim Hayworth thought they were to get the ball and Hayworth was charged with an error when the ball popped out of his mit in the collision. A walk, base knock, and scoring fly were converted into the Spartan's second and final run in the third inning.

No-Hitter Thereafter

From then until the eighth inning, Robinson was untouchable, setting the Michiganders down without a single safety.

Kenny Black and Co-captain Hayworth combined for the first Tar Heel run in the fourth frame. Black singled and was sent home on Hayworth's double, the first of his three hits. Sid Varney tripled to open the next chapter but had to remain glued to the base until Co-captain Jim Hamilton reached base on a miscue by Joe Barta, MSC shortstop, after two men were out.

The seventh inning was scoreless, but the Tar Heels came to life in their final turn at bat, notching two runs on four hits and leaving the bases jammed when they went to take the field. Hayworth singled, John Gregory,

(See BASEBALL, page 4)

Two in a Row

Michigan State	AB	R	H	PO	A
Peppler, lf	4	0	1	3	0
Urbanik, 3b	3	0	1	1	2
Mineweaser, 3b	1	0	0	0	0
Bechard, rf	2	1	0	0	0
Erickson, 1b	4	0	0	11	1
Barta, ss	2	0	0	3	2
Bagdon, ss	2	0	0	0	0
Rutunbar, cf	3	0	0	2	0
a Sobczak	1	0	1	0	0
Dillon, 2b	2	0	0	1	3
Barbirito, 2b	1	0	0	0	0
Zbiciak, c	2	0	0	2	0
Pavlick, c	1	0	0	1	0
Krestel, p	1	1	0	0	1
b Mansfield	1	0	0	0	0
Glick, p	0	0	0	0	0
Dietrich, p	1	0	0	0	0
Totals	31	2	3	24	9

Carolina	AB	R	H	PO	A
Black, cf	4	1	1	2	0
Hayworth, 3b	4	2	3	1	1
Evans, rf	3	0	0	0	0
Gregory, 1b	1	0	0	1	0
Kelly, lf	4	1	2	0	0
Varney, c	4	1	2	12	1
Ryan, ss	3	0	0	2	1
Brasington, 1b	2	0	0	9	0
Jones, rf	2	0	1	0	0
Hamilton, 2b	4	0	1	0	4
Robinson, p	3	0	1	0	3
DiLorenzo, p	1	0	0	0	1
Totals	35	5	11	27	11

a—batted for Rutunbar in 9th.
b—batted for Krestel in 7th.

Mich. State	101	000	000—2
Carolina	000	111	02x—5

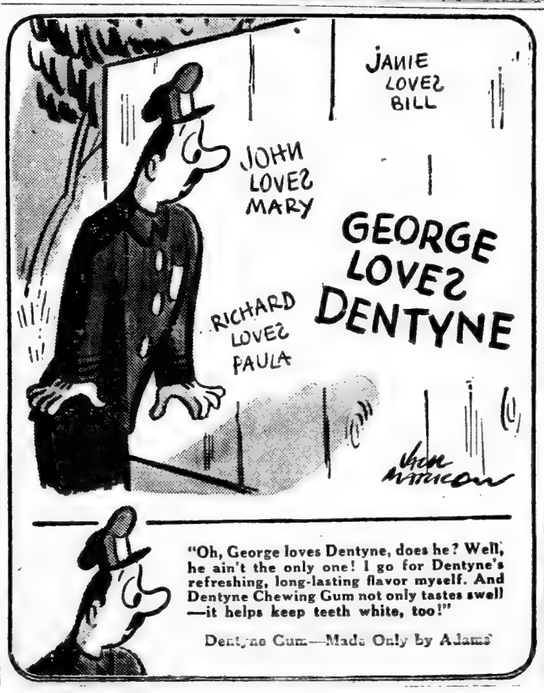
Summary: Errors Barta, Rutanbar. Runs batted in Bechard, Hayworth, Kelly 2. Three-base hits Varney, Hayworth, Kelly. Two-base hit Hayworth Stolen bases Bechard 2. Double plays—DiLorenzo, Varney, and Gregory. Base on balls—off Robinson 4; off DiLorenzo 1; off Glick 1. Struck out—By Robinson 8; Krestal 2; by Dietrich 1; by DiLorenzo 3. Hits off Robinson 2 in 7 1-3; off Krestal 6 in 6; off Dietrich 0 in 2-3; off DiLorenzo 1 in 1 1-3; off Glick 5 in 1 1-3. Opening pitcher Robinson; losing pitcher Krestall. Umpires Powell and Murray; time 2:20.

YOU WANT K. P. AGAIN?

Get the Facts
On Conscription
Tonight

See details on page 4.

COEDS OR CARBINES?



Discuss
Conscription
Tonight

See details on page 4.

TWO BLOCKS WEST OF CITY HALL
You'll Find A Solution To All Laundry Problems
HELPY-SELFY
AUTOMATIC LAUNDRY
Bendix Machines
W. Rosemary St.

Bull's Head Bookshop
H. L. Mencken's Supplement Two: American Language
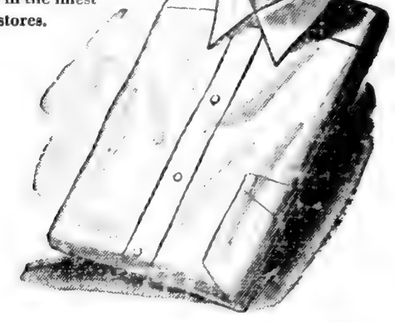
Browse — Rent — Buy

EUBANKS DRUG COMPANY
SERVICE
EXPERIENCE
CONSIDERATION
Dependable Druggists
Since 1892



"Oh, George loves Dentyne, does he? Well, he ain't the only one! I go for Dentyne's refreshing, long-lasting flavor myself. And Dentyne Chewing Gum not only tastes swell—it helps keep teeth white, too!"

Dentyne Gum—Made Only by Adams

The Best Known and Best Liked White Shirt in the World Bears This Label

ARROW
SANFORIZED

From Cairo to Mexico City and from Stockholm to Shanghai, Arrow white shirts are known in the finest men's stores.

With U. S. demand for Arrow whites still far from filled, we cannot yet supply the stores in 100 foreign countries that carried Arrow before the war.

But when we can, you may be sure that Arrow white shirts will still be an export America may be proud of and that the Arrow label will continue to mean style, quality, and value in the American manner!

ARROW SHIRTS and TIES
UNDERWEAR • HANDKERCHIEFS • SPORTS SHIRTS

Follow the ARROW TO Varsity

PREVIOUS PUZZLE

DOWN
1—Chromium (coll.)
2—Artificial language
3—Boring tool
4—Display sign
5—Norse poems
6—Toward top
7—Sun god
8—To annoy
9—Goddess of discord
10—Wash
11—Flights alone
12—Minds
13—Short jacket
14—Wood bird
15—Winged
16—Metric measure
17—At no time
18—Eats
19—Station
20—Greek theater
21—Jules Verne hero
22—France's country
23—To daily
24—To talk wildly
25—Decorator
26—Part of flower
27—Nostrils
28—Tree
29—Path
30—Our country's initials
31—Beast's stomach
32—Biblical land
33—Steamship (abbr.)
34—Harmony

PLANT WIPED OUT BY FIRE

ROARING FLAMES eat through the Venetian Glass Company plant (top) at Rochester, Pa., after a blast in the Kiln set fire to the structure. At bottom, the main wall umbles earthward as supports burn out completely. Damage was estimated at $80,000. (International)

-Get-Together-

the cabinet member will have at each pollinfg place.

Ruth Evans, president of the Y this year, was cairman of the nominating committee, and other members were Emily Von Borries, Jo Fiscel, and Gray Simpson, from the cabinet; Mrs. Robert Swain from the advisory board; and Mrs. Betty Rose Dowden, executive secretary.

Durham, March 29 —(UP)— Coach Jack Coomb's Duke Blue Devils scored a one-run victory over the University of Pennsylvania here today in an Easter Monday game.

-Pro-UMT-

(Continued from page 1)

students who feel the same way to join us in this demonstration. We wish to show the campus and the public that not all of this campus belongs to the schools of pacifism and isolationism which have done more to fill up our national military cemeteries than any enemy we have ever fought."

The demonstration group will meet in front of Graham Memorial at 7:30 tonight.

Dormitory Rooms Available For 28

Twenty-eight more students have room assignment that must be called for not later than Friday, 2 April 1948, according to an announcement released by the Housing office today. Any eligible student whose name appears in the following list and who fails to call for his reservation will be dropped from the waiting list.

Joseph L. Albright, Arthur C. Batson, Charles Douglas Carter, Harper Sheppard Darden, James C. Gabriel, Donald Gilliam, Dennis Morelaand Harris, Graham Eugene Jones, Charles Obed Morrell, William Taylor Newton, Fred Manahan Phipps, Jr., Joseph Salem, William L. Stark, Marion Gray Tucker.

Thomas W. Allred, John Hayden Beard, John Allen Cates, eGorge Dudley Daughtry, James Gorden Grantham, Thomas Roy Hall, Charles Franklin Hughes, Alex Wade Marsh, Jr., John Norman Newton, John George Oldenbuttel, William Claude Oliver, Jr., Farrel F. Potts, John Lassiter Saunders, William Turner Stephenson.

-Baseball-

(Continued from page 3)

who was playing first went down to his opposite number, but that only afforded the visitors a temporary respite for Jim Kelly then weighed in with a tremendous three-bagger to centerfield. Kelly scored when George Rutunbar, Spartan middle gardener, juggled the ball. It was a close play at the plate nevertheless, and catcher Ed Zbiciak was ejected from the ball game for objecting too strenuously to the decision.

Carolina then loaded the sacks on a single by Varney, a pass to Rip Ryan, and a one-base knock by Frank Jones, but couldn't dent the plate for any more tallies.

Scare for Tar Heels

Michigan threw a scare into the Tar Heel supporters in the final stanza when they loaded the bases on DiLorenzo, who had gone in for Robertson in the previous frame, before any men were retired. However, the star southpaw put a big "K" in the score book opposite George Pavlick's name and forced pitcher Chuck Dietrich to hit into a double play to end the contest.

Robinson showed fine form in his initial starting assignment, but he tired and Coach Bunn Hearn thought it best to relieve him. While in the righthander struck out eight men, three of them in the sixth inning while walking four and giving up two of the three hits the Spartans were able to count.

-Childress-

(Continued from page 1)

all monies made to the secretary-treasurer particularly when the expenditure involves large sums, and personal advice of someone better acquainted with the financial standing, (2) A travel expense standard for all persons traveling on student monies. "(3) All bills sent to the Student Activities fund office directly from the merchant, (4) Closer contact between the secretary-treasurer and the Legislature. (5) Budget committee and Finance committee meetings open to all interested persons."

-Godwin-

(Continued from page 1)

electorate will do itself credit by meeting him and investigating his qualifications."

SP publicity chairman, Fred Thompson yesterday pointed out that those qualifications have caused the candidate to be selected for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" and added, "Although we are naturally sorry to lose Baker as a candidate, we feel that in Godwin we are offering to the students a man who is well able to fulfill the duties of the office and who will brin to the job an extraordinarily distinguished list of accomplishments."

Godwin is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

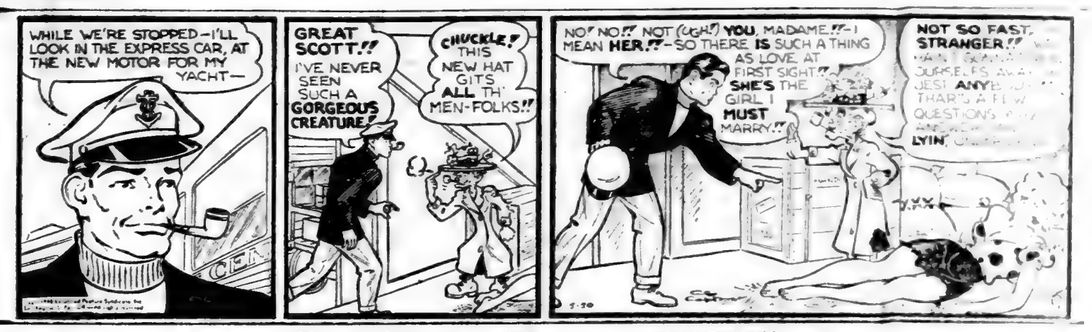
Room Reservations For Coeds Due Soon

Application for room reservations for summer session and for fall quarter are now being made in the office of the Dean of Women, 104 C, South Building. Rooms for students now in residence will be held through April 5. If by that date a student has not made her room reservation for summer or fall, it will be assumed that she does not expect to return and her space in the dormitory will be available for assignment to some new student.

Women students are requested to go to the Cashier's window in the basement of South Biulding and pay a $6 deposit for the fall quarter and another $6 deposit for the summer if she intends to be here for that session.

The student must then bring receipt or receipts to Miss Carmichael's office, 104 C, South Building and fill out application blanks for the fall and summer sessions.

-Clampitt-



of the Leislature (such as the allocating of $109.00 in student funds) and will discourage voting on a party line in such important matters. My main platform plank is a promise to do the best possible job on every situation, as it arises."

-Stevens-

(Continued from page 1)

Stevens and Emily Baker composing the affirmative team and Jim Spence and Tom Shelton the negative. The quality of these teams which participated in the finals for two rounds was highly lauded by both the judges and the audience reported the manager of the Carolina debating teams, and he went on to say that the competition among the contestants was extremely keen.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

Ham what am—with eggs— at HARRY'S

-Albright-

(Continued from page 1)

state.

Orange county will be the 81st county visited by the "Challenger" in its 100-county "Take It to The People" tour of North Carolina. Albright plans to talk personally with more individuals on his tour than any other candidate. The "Challenger" will be parked downtown in Chapel Hill Wednesday afternoon and will be open for visitors.

The speeches will be preceeded by a luncheon for members of the union, the speakers, and specially invited guests at Danziger's at 6:30 Wednesday.

Following the talks and the question period there will be a reception at Graham Memorial, main lounge, for the entire student body. Further discussion will be held and the students will be given a chance to talk personally with and become better acquainted with the candidates.

-Keener-

(Continued from page 1)

News and Observer. He is a pledge of the Chi Phi fraternity.

Lambeth, the candidate for social chairman is also a member of Phi Eta Sigma. From Brodnax, Virginia, he is an SPE pledge.

-Write Away-

(Continued from page 2)

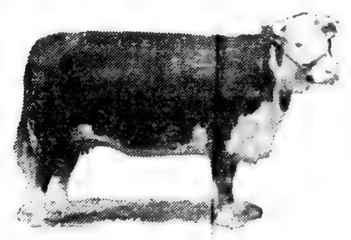
their duty to see that it is run the way that suits them. Maybe it has been quite a long time, but did that application blank you filled in have the last line or two given over to a question about supporting the Honor System of Carolina? Mine did; and I frequently wonder if the signature called for just below meant that we were pledging to support the Honor System, which is the central of our student government. I sort of think it did.

This is an appeal to vote. Remember that just the Student Legislature this year has control over $119.000 of our funds. Perhaps veteran campus statesmen will say that it is idealistic to hope for a large vot. Why?

Listen. By April 6, let's have decided upon someone that we are going to vote for. It doesn't matter much who, as long as you use your common sense. Nobody will ever have the right to contest an election, or raise a gripe later, when the will of all of those concerned is manifest. Let's have a revolution in elections. Everybody vote; put some concrete truth in the wide-spread information that U. N. C. has a good government of the students. by the students, and for the students. Vote, for someone!

Erie Cofield



PRESCRIPTIONS

Filled Promptly

ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY

—at—

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

This Aint No Bull

We have two openings on the Daily Tar Heel Advertising Staff

Call at Business Office

DAILY TAR HEEL

CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

SUBSCRIBE TO THE CHARLOTTE Observer. Daily delivery to your door anywhere in Chapel Hill. Phone 4743 or write 3 Bryon Lane. Rates 35 cents weekly. (1-1880-1)

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive.Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1942 STUDEBAKER - COMMANDER Skyway, sports coupe, radio, heater, white sidewalls, good condition. Reasonably priced. Good buy, see Shapiro, 208 Church Street. (1-1876-1)

SUPER SIX HUDSON SEDAN IN good shape with overdrive and vacuum shift, cheap. See Ben L. Rouse, 140 Daniels Road, Victory Village. (1-1877-1)

HELP WANTED 8

PART TIME HELP. MUST BE AVAILable from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. See Whid Powell, Colonial House. (ch 1x1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

MEN OVER TWENTY WITH ABILITY to lead and work with boys. To serve ten weeks this summer as counselors on staff at Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Good pay, wonderful environment, room and board. Only those with outstanding qualifications need apply. Apply J. Watson Holyfield, Director of Camp Sea Gull, Raleigh Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 3)

LOST 12

A BLACK PARKER FOUNTAIN PEN. I need it urgently. If found please return to Rita Loeb, 319 Alderman. (1-1878-1)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 422 W. Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGBURN Furniture Co., Phone 5841. (ch 1x1)

JOB OPPORTUNITIES 35

MEN WORKING THEIR WAY through school and desiring an interesting and exceptionally well-paying job for summer, contact Dortch Warriner, Room No. 1, Whitehead. (1-1863-1)

Fraternity Work a Specialty

Charles Valentine's Cabinet Shop

FURNITURE
REPAIRED
REFINISHED
UPHOLSTERED
MADE-TO-ORDER

PHONE 9367 —PITTSBORO RD

Planning Any Week-Ends at the Beach in April & May

We have 16 Apts. and a ten room house for house parties at Writesville up until June 1st.

For Rates-Reservations Write

ALLEN BARBEE
Box 243
Spring Hope, N. C.

BALDWIN'S

Marine Room

Durham

Breakfast 7:45—10:30
Luncheon 11:00—2:30
Tea Hours 2:30—5:30
Dinner 5:00—8:00

Mrs. Jennie S. Thurston
Phone 9493

University Florist

"For the Best in Flowers"

Pick Theatre Bldg.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

Telephone 6816

RECORDS

Khachaturian—
Gayne
Ballet Suite No. 2
FIRST AT——

Ab's Intimate Bookshop

TONIGHT

OPEN MEETING

AGAINST

Conscription

Gerrard Hall
8 P. M.

Speakers:

Rev. Charles Jones
Rev. Henry Ruark
Dr. Joseh Straley
Louis Austin
Dr. Howard K. Beale

Whether you're for or against conscription come, get facts and opinion from these responsible citizens.

SPONSORED BY COMMITTEE AGAINST CONSCRIPTION

Let's Get together

PHILIP MORRIS is so much better to smoke!

PHILIP MORRIS offers the smoker an extra benefit found in no other cigarette. For PHILIP MORRIS is the ONE, the ONLY cigarette recognized by leading nose and throat specialists as definitely less irritating.

Remember: Less irritation means more smoking enjoyment for you.

Yes! If every smoker knew what PHILIP MORRIS smokers know, they'd all change to PHILIP MORRIS.

CALL FOR PHILIP MORRIS

TRY A PACK... TODAY

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Cloudy, windy, and warm.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Know Your Candidates
Room Deadlines
Spring Songs

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 31, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 128

Burning Cross Greets Anti-UMT Groups

By Bill Buchan

A burning cross, cat tails, placards and fraternity pledges cheering for UMT greeted the members of the "Committee Against Conscription" at their scheduled "Stop The Draft" rally in Gerrard hall last night.

Members of Bill Corley's "Anti-Anti-UMT Committee" formed around the doors of the building carrying placards calling for UMT, the draft and adequate defense measures to "Stop Russian Aggression." As each member of the committee sponsoring the meeting entered the hall, he was greeted with loud boos. "Stop Russia Now" and "Drop Dead Wallace" cheers. The burning cross, lighted outside the building after the meeting began, was set by unknown persons and was sponsored by neither group.

Corley opened the meeting of over 600 people officially with a plea for quiet while the Anti-UMT group made their scheduled talks. Featured on the program were Dr. Joseph Straley of the University Physics department; Martha Aiken, and Al Lowenstein, students; Lewis E. Austin, editor of the Carolina Times, Durham; Johan Van de Velde, chairman of the local AVC chapter; Rev. Henry Ruark, pastor of the Chapel Hill Methodist church and Rev. Charles Jones, pastor of the local Presbyterian church. Dr. William Demareth acted as moderator.

In their addresses, the speakers differed in points of view as why they opposed UMT. Ruark, Jones and Austin pleaded for world peace through understanding of our fellowmen. Others argued that involuntary conscription was against American tradition and would serve as a strengthening point for Russian aggression. Only Lowenstein and Austin were able to deliver their talks in comparative quiet, and both were greeted with a large round of applause when they concluded.

The light switch was pulled during Rev. Jones' speech, but the minister continued his argument in the dark without any sign of a break. Austin's talk was interrupted once by a bugler blowing taps and reveille outside the windows.

Throughout the talks, most of the speakers were harrassed with numerous comments, boos and ad-libbing from the audience. A question-and-answer period at the end of the talks brought additional jeers from the predominantly "anti-anti" audience who were continuously dissatisfied with answers from the platform.

The meeting, which began at 8 o'clock, finally broke up at 10:35 with a resounding vote of 394 for UMT against 95 opposing it.

Coeds Schedule Compulsory Meet

Candidates running for speaker of the Coed Senate and president of WAA will speak to coeds at a compulsory meeting in Memorial hall Thursday at 5 o'clock, Barbara Cashion, speaker of the Senate, announced yesterday.

Candidates for speaker include Frances Angus, Barbara Pope, and Katherine Royall.

Candidates for President of WAA include Randall Hudson, Barbara Ann Covington and Becky Holton.

Mackie To Speak Before Di Tonight

E. L. Mackie, dean of students, will be the principle speaker this evening when the Dialectic Senate holds an inauguration of its new officer for the present quarter in the Di hall, third floor, New West, at 9 o'clock.

There will be an informal reception in the main lounge of Graham Memorial shortly after Dean Mackie's address to honor the following new officers: John Zucker, speaker; Charles O. Long, speaker-pro-tempore; Jerry Pettigrew, sergeant-at-arms; "Mickey" McNutt, clerk; Merle Stevens, Debate council representative; Bill Harding, chaplain.

Melton To Meet Staff Aspirants

Art Melton, candidate for Daily Tar Heel editor in the forthcoming elections, announced today that there will be a meeting at 4:30 in room 306 of Bynum Hall, Journalism Building, of all students interested in working on the Daily Tar Heel staff next quarter and the rest of the year.

"A tentative staff will be selected to take over if I am elected to the editorship," said Melton. "The meeting is expected to last about an hour and discussion will be held to decide what should be done about the present state of the Daily Tar Heel. I am inviting Professor Stuart Sechriest, publication board faculty advisor to be present and any other of the Journalism professors that can, to give suggestions," declared Melton.

Mary Daniel, Maria Davis Selected As Nominees For President of YWCA

Mary Anne Daniel and Maria Davis, nominees for president of next year's YWCA, will be presented, along with candidates for other offices, this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Coed Get-Together in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

A program of fundamental polces of the YWCA, entitled "The Voice of Carolina," will also be presented at the affair, regular monthly meeting of the Y which has this month been moved from Monday to Wednesday because of the Easter holiday.

Other nominees to be presented include Hilda Sharkey and Sally Woodhull for secretary; Virginia Nash and Mary Glen Slater for treasurer; and Weddy Thorpe and Peggy Egerton for membership chairman. The office of vice president will be filled by the girl not elected as president.

Planning the program, which will present attitudes on the Y in such areas as education, Christian vocation, labor problems, and racial discrimination, were Mary Glen Slater, Marjorie Yokely, Sue Stokes, Ida Constable, Virginia Nash, Peggy Egerton, and Elizabeth Myatt. Sally Lee, membership chairman, was in general charge of the planning and Mary Ann Taber acted as publicity chairman.

Mary Anne Daniel, a native of Weldon, is a transfer from Woman's college, where she was active in the College Choir, the Recreation association, the YWCA, Classical club, International Relations club, and Adelphian society.

Active in the YWCA at Carolina, she served as secretary of the public affairs committee, as representative to the Community club, and on the Junior council. She has also been active in the CCUN and the Glee club has served on the layout staff of the Carolina Magazine, and on the Sadie Hawkins Day committee. She is a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta.

Maria is from Wilmington and attended Georgia State Teachers college her first two years. She attended the Assemblies Training school for religious education, and has worked as receptionist, secretary and program director with USO, Atlantic Coastline railroad and Building Management corporation.

At Carolina she has served on the YWCA junior council and with the World Student Service fund committee. She works in Dr. Geer's office in the social

(See MARY, page 4)

Graham To Report On Indonesia Today

By Charlie Gibson

Dr. Frank P. Graham will deliver a special convocation speech in Memorial hall today at 11 o'clock, reporting publicly for the first time on his findings as the United States delegate on the U. N. Indonesian commission.

Dr. Graham will be presented under the joint auspices of the Dialectic Senate and the University convocation series. He will be introduced by Chancellor Robert B. House at the ceremonies over which Charles O. Long, speaker of the Di Senate, will preside.

The Graham speech, "The UN Committee in Indonesia", will be recorded by the Communications Center to be rebroadcast throughout the State at a later time over stations yet to be announced.

All 11 o'clock classes will be suspended today in order that the entire student body can attend the convocation. However, 12 o'clock classes will be resumed as usual.

The experiences and observations of a three-man council that successfully negotiated a truce between the Dutch East Indies and their mother countries in February will be related first-hand by Dr. Graham. He is expected to tell, too, of his return to this country and a congratulatory reception at the White House.

President Truman personally thanked the President of the Greater University and his co-councilors, Dr. Paul Van Zeelan, former prime minister of Belgium, and Justice Richard Kirby of Australia. He praised all three for accomplishing arbitration in four months of study on an international dispute which tested "the effectiveness of United Nations machinery" beneficially.

Dr. Graham tendered his official resignation on February 13 to resume his duties in Chapel Hill. He was welcomed back to the campus by a grand-scale student parade.

Since his return, Dr. Graham has continued national services along with his University responsibilities. Secretary George Marshall appointed him a special adviser to the State Department in case further advice is ever required on Indonesia.

A rumored candidate for the Democratic nomination to the United States vice-presidency, Dr. Graham is also president of the board of directors of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Physics, an organization of 14 Southern universities working with atomic research authorities.

UVA Board Votes To Investigate Village Rent Rates

The University Veterans association Board of Governors last night said that they plan to investigate the rent raise in Victory Village.

The order for such a raise, $5 to $7, came from the Public Housing administration. The board plans to get in touch with the PHA office in Atlanta and check on the raise.

The board also announced that an extensive drive will be held to obtain new members in UVA.

Several dances were planned with a square dance and a masquerade ball getting the most attention.

Membership booths will be set up in the "Y" on Thursday and Friday of this week to sell membership cards to any veterans. The booth will be open Thursday from 11 to 1 o'clock, and from 2 to 5 o'clock on Friday the booth will be open from 10 o'clock to 12 noon.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS CLUB

The regular monthly business meeting of the Young Democrats club will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in Roland Parker lounges 1 and 2. All members are urged to be present.

FRED THOMPSON AND CARTER WOOLFOLK are candidates for seats on the Student council and Student Legislature, respectively. Both are running on the Student party ticket. Thompson is a present member of the Legislature, secretary-treasurer of Alexander dormitory, a member of the Elections board and a member of the Freshman Friendship council. Carter Woolfolk, who is running from the town district, is the head manager of the varsity tennis squad and a member of Phi Delta Theta.

Final SP Nominations Issued As Party Slate Is Completed

The Student party has made final nominations which complete their slate for the campus-wide elections to be held next Tuesday.

Having already endorsed Emile Saleeby and Ed Davenport for the offices of president and vice-president of the senior class, the party nominated Jacque Goodwin, native of Apex, for the post of secretary and endorsed Minnie Cantrell, Campus party nominee, for the office of treasurer.

Miss Goodwin is a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and lives at Spencer dormitory. She has served on the Student Activities committee.

Miss Cantrell attended the Ward-Belmont Junior college of Nashville, Tennessee, before transferring here. At the Nashville college, she was secretary-treasurer of her dormitory and a member of the Student council. Miss Cantrell is a member of the Philanthropic Assembly here.

For president of the sophomore class, the SP endorsed Hurshell Keener, who was nominated by the Campus party. To fill the sophomore class slate, the party nominated Bill Swaim for vice-president; and Charlie Ufen for treasurer. Ted Leonard nominated by the party for the position of social chairman has

(See SP, page 4)

Landreth, Brenegan, Martin Head Slate Of CP Nominations for Student Council

Monroe Landreth, Dan Martin, and Wayne Brenegan head the Campus party students council slate, party officials announced yesterday.

The three are running for the at-large positions on the council. Other party nominees for the council are John Miles, Fred Fussel, and Garland "Doc" Scruggs for men's positions and Eloise Jacobi, Betty Webb, and Becky Holton for the women's posts.

Landreth is chairman of the Student Audit board and president of the Charlotte-Carolina club. A commerce major, the candidate is a member of the commerce honorary, Delta Sigma Pi.

Martin, a rising junior from Raleigh, is a member of the track team. He is a pre-med student and has served as an orientation councilor.

Brenegan, who is from La-Crosse, Wisconsin, has been co-nominated by the University party. He is a member of the University dance committee and of the Grail.

Brenegan is an incumbent member of the council.

Miles is a rising junior from Winston-Salem. He is a resident of Winston-Salem. Fussel, a rising senior from Rose Hill, is a physical education major and resides in Manly dormitory.

Jacobi is a member of the Wilmington-Carolina club. A transfer from Women's college, she was a member of the Square circle and a hall proctor there. While in the Greensboro school, she was active on the Carolinian staff and a member of the mathematics and chemistry clubs.

Wally Robinson To Head CCUN State Committee

In conformance with plans of the North Carolina division of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations to conduct a concerted program throughout the state in support of the United Nations, CCUN's state headquarters announces the appointment of UNC student Wally Robinson to the chairmanship of the state campus organization board.

Robinson will be concerned with an all-out membership drive both on campus and throughout the state, as well as assisting in every way possible the closer co-ordination of the states twenty-eight individual chapters.

Appointed to the CCUN treasurership was Sherman Levine, also a Carolina student.

Until further notice, state headquarters plans to hold a meeting every Tuesday at 3 o'clock to discuss plans for programs in the coming quarter with the state staff and interested parties.

Governor Aspirants Will Speak Tonight

MAYNE ALBRIGHT, gubernatorial candidate, and his wife, Frances stand beside Albright's trailer field headquarters, the "Challenger." The "Challenger" has already toured 80 of the state's 100 counties in Albright's "Take It to the People" tour of North Carolina.

By Stewart McKeel

Two of North Carolina's gubernatorial candidates will appear here tonight at 8 o'clock in Hill hall for a speech and open forum program.

The appearance will mark the first time that any of the candidates have appeared at the same time on the same program.

Of the three candidates, Oscar Barker, Mayne Albright, and Charles M. Johnson, who were originally scheduled to appear, only two will be present. Johnson, state treasurer, said that he will not be able to appear.

Barker will appear with some of the faculty members of the University on an Open Forum program this afternoon. A transcript will be made of this program and will later be broadcast under the auspices of the Radio department of the University.

Barker, Durham county's Democratic entry in the gubernatorial race, is widely known for his fight for the 30 percent increase in teacher's salaries.

North Carolina students interested in the formation of Mayne Albright-for-Governor club are requested to meet in the lobby of the Carolina Inn at 6 o'clock this evening.

The young Raleigh lawyer and his wife will meet the group there and discuss campaign plans. Albright clubs are already functioning in three other North Carolina college campuses.

Regarded in political circles as a progressive liberal, Barker has advocated equal opportunity for the people of North Carolina in public schools, health, and roads. He also urged the use of the government for the many instead of the few.

Carolina To Have 32 Representatives At Raleigh State Student Legislature

Presidents and representatives of the YMCA, YWCA, Phi assembly, Di Senate, World Federalists, Carolina Political union, Debate council and International Relations club have selected the following students to attend the April session of the State Student Legislature in Raleigh, which is to take place on April 16 and 17.

Nominated by the House of Representatives have been Charles Long, Pete Gerns, James Southerland, Hurshell Keener, Al Lowenstein, Bill Jernigan, John Giles, Bill Duncan, Tom Shelton, Herb Mitchell, Wayne Brenegan, Russell Baldwin, Herb Alexander, Tom Eller, Jack Folger, Ed Davenport, Jake Wicker, Jess Dedmond, Bob Kirby, John Zucker, Ernest House, George Drew, Chuck Hauser, Bill Buchan, and Roland Giduz. UNC will be represented in the Senate by Earl Fitzgerald and Chet Zum-Brunnen.

Girls named to attend the lower house will be Emily Baker, Annie Ben Beale, Mary Anne Daniels, and Patsy McNutt. Sally Woodhull will be a member of the Senate.

Pete Gerns, who is heading the UNC delegation, has announced that the following resolutions to be introduced at Raleigh have been sent to the Committee on Legislation for clearance: "Selective Service (In opposition): "North Carolina Highways" (distribution of funds and bond issue for highways); "Korea" (urging agreement on Korean policy between U. S. and Russia; "N. C. County Tax Reform" (Central assessment to property tax); "World Government" (Strengthening UN into a limited Federal World Government); Short Ballot" (Calling for appointment of State officers of Council rank and below); "Palestine" (condemnation of the reversal of U. S. policy concerning partitioning of Palestine); "U. M. T." (in favor); "Federal Aid to Education" (On the basis of need and population).

Jacobson Announces Deadline of April 9 In Carolina Magazine Photo Contest

April 9 was announced yesterday by Carolina Magazine Editor Fred Jacobson as the closing date of the Mag photography contest.

First prize in the competition is $25 in merchandise from Foister's camera store. Foister's has donated the prize for the purpose of increasing student interest in photography.

The contest is being run by the magazine. Its staff will judge the pictures submitted and will publish the winning photo and the 12 shots chosen for honorable mention.

Any student on the campus is eligible to compete. Entries may be of any size although Jacobson stated that the Mag would prefer to receive 8 x 10 snaps. Jacobson also revealed that even if a picture was taken several years ago, it may be entered in the contest.

Judging will be on the excellence of the pictures alone. Entries may be submitted to the mag office any afternoon in the working week. They should be placed in an envelope and the envelope should be marked with the name and address of the person submitting the picture.

Winning pictures will be published in the May issue of the magazine.

Jacobson yesterday referred to the particular beauty of the campus at the present time in commenting on the large number of good subjects for shots now available.

He claimed that the blooming of the cherry, Judas, magnolia, and other trees and shrubs make the selection of subject matter for pictures "no job at all."

"Ties will be awarded duplicate prizes", Jacobson concluded. He said that a large number of entries are expected.

Presidential Candidates Release Platforms, Political Stands

Jess Dedmond

"The time has come for a student government transition from the hands of an older, more experienced veteran element to the hands of the younger students now entering our University. This transition must be completed within the next 12 months. Therefore a program must be provided by which this may be made effective to the extent that these younger students may be made capable of ably handling our student government functions. For this purpose the following program is needed:

"1. A freshman chapel series designed to introduce the new students to campus forensic, social, and religious life and to

(See DEDMOND, page 4)

Charlie Hodson

"As an independent candidate, I am running purely on my merits and on my platform. I have no party affiliations, and do not in any way have to depend on power politics. If elected, I will be able to carry out the duties of president for the benefit of the student body as a whole, and not for any party or groups, for it has been unnecesssary for me to make any backroom promises. Unlike many of the candidates, I still own my right arm. Instead of a lot of further generalities and beating around the bush, here are the specific things I want to do if elected. Let the voters compare these definite proposals with the platforms of

(See HODSON, page 4)

Charlie Long

"As a candidate for the presidency of the student body I want to say that it is my conviction that certain policies must be established by the executive department of our government if the students are to continue to have faith in their elected represenatives. I am basing my race upon those major issues so that no students can mistake where I will stand if elected.

"I Believe:

"1. That the executive department needs a complete overhauling to insure that the best interest of the students will be served. This means not only a correction of faults existent on the campus but prompt action on

(See LONG, page 4)

Dick Manning

"Herein is submitted to this Student Body the most important points of the program which I intend to follow if elected.

"1. This campus has long needed University-sponsored clothing, grocery, and drug stores, the establishment of which would result in substantially reduced prices. The so-called "Umstead Act" prevents this; therefore an earnest endeavor will be made to have this act repealed in the 1949 session of the General Assembly.

"2. Absolute reaistance to both Saturday classes and restrictions on the use of automobiles.

"3. Party politics in the Student Legislature have resulted in ridicule of student government.

(See MANNING, page 4)

Mike Rubish

"I had rather do and no promise, than promise and not do. I can't righteously promise the campus a new redistricting bill, nor can I promise a better court system.

"I can only promise the will to work for a better student government that will best benefit the student body.

"Here are some of the things that, if elected, I will work to the utmost of my ability to achieve:

"1. The establishment for a separate school within the University itself for those students who wish an education in the finer points of liberal arts. I think that this is long overdue, and there is no reason why it

(See RUBISH, page 4)

Know Your Candidates

The plan to present the candidates for Men's council to the campus void of any political affiliations has reached reality with the April 6 election. The three campus political parties collectively have agreed to declare the Men's council membership out-of-bounds and to substitute a board composed of representatives of the three parties to interview all candidates for the Men's council and decide on the 15 men who they believe experienced and qualified to serve. The 15 men have been chosen and their names were released in this publication on Sunday.

Those who devised the non-partisian plan are to be congratulated for their interest in promoting a Council which will have no cause to act in a partisian manner. The political parties should be recognized for their broad-mindedness in meeting on mutual grounds to consider what will be best for student government and the individual students of the University.

A court system must be free from all accusations of coercion and intimidation from any quarter. In the past the Council has met opposition on several occasions because of accusations of partisianship. A selection board would tend to remove any such acqusations.

This first selection board could well set a precedent in student government that could be followed by the other Councils in coming elections.

One detail which must not be overlooked is that the students must be familiarized with the candidates. A satisfactory plan for publicizing each of the candidates equally must be devised. Perhaps a large display poster carrying a picture of each of the 15 candidates and a thumbnail sketch of each man could be printed and exhibited in prominent places. Others have suggested that it would be sufficient publicity to purchase advertising space in this publication to print the qualifications of the candidates.

The medium of getting the candidates before the student body is not important. What is important is to see that the student body becomes acquainted with the merits of the candidates so that they can vote intelligenty on election day.

Room Deadline Should Be Moved

The setting of April 1 as a deadline for the payment of room reservations was unfortunate inasmuch as many veterans will not receive their checks until possible late Thursday afternoon, making it impossible to cash them in time to meet the time limit.

It would be advisable if the Housing office or the Cashier's office moved the deadline up one day, thereby insuring payment in time for all who desire dormitory rooms this summer and next fall. —B. B.

Spring Song, War Talk

We sat on the grass yesterday.

Admittedly it was not a very practical move. We have a mild cold this morning.

It may not have been practical but we feel it was very wise. We have renewed our acquaintance with the earth.

Every winter we look forward to spring . . . just so we can sit on the grass and renew our acquaintance. As we were sitting we heard a lawn mower clattering in the next yard and smelled the sour, onion smell of new spring grass being trimmed. A woodpecker made noise in the tree over us and bees buzzed around some yellow flowers and everything was fine.

Everything was fine except that this particular spring is fouled up with war talk. There have been crises and there will be crises but it is a dirty shame that they have to come in spring and ruin the fine feeling of rebirth.

We don't know whether there is going to be a war. It will be bad if there is one and it will be nervewracking if there isn't one. The trouble is that we are sitting on the fence — knowing that we are going to fall but not knowing which way.

It's nerve wracking and no amount of spring or sitting on the grass nor any number of woodpeckers or bees will make this the kind of spring it should be.

It we may paraphrase Don Marquis: Political problems that cannot be otherwise solved should be abolished.—B.S.

Carolina Carousel

Fearless Giduz Gets Lowdown On UNC Females

By R. Foo Giduz

We are sitting on South building steps yesterday engaging in our favorite sport, and talking of nothing in particular when a sharp-eared and my-tee sharp looking chic li'l coed saunters over and challenges authoritatively: "So! You peasants talk of the Carolina coed! Well, listen to me, characters! I also have a thing or two I will care to tell you about those worthless blobs of femininity. . ."

And out she orates with a few candid and uncanny impressions of her fellow great questioned-marked Carolina coeds, which are indeed startling to repeat . . .So startling and yet so sincerely said that we get her to write them down for publications posterity herewith . . . (As the chick is plumb on the level, she must obviously remain anonymous for reasons of personal safety.):

"Carolina coeds are like women in all other universities except for one thing: They are all completely desirable and beautiful. Statistics prove that nine out of ten college coeds are lovely creatures. The 10th ones to Carolina.

"However, they do have charming little minds—possibly one or two eensy-weensy brain cells. Within these several vacuums they keep such instructive thoughts as the last beer party, the next P. J. party, who in the heck they pray will ask them for a date for the weekend (after all, poor things, they couldn't hope for week-night dates), and how many classes they can cut and still maintain their gentlewomanly D average.

"In the musty storage space of these cells are the memories of that one good book they once read, and their one conversation on the meaning of life which they didn't comprehend.

"Which brings us to men—Ah men. The coeds once had a very strange date. Naturally she never went out with him again. Wretched lad; an IQ of 150, wrote short stories for Harpers, acted in summer stock, had had one art exhibition in New York. . . But goodness me, he had no muscles, didn't belong to any fraternity, and it was said that his father didn't have even half-a-million beetles.—Completely insipid, irritating, and infinitely dull and undesirable.

"So whether the coeds usually come to Carolina to get an MRS or BS can usually be shown by the number which return to aim for a mister of a masters." (thutty!).

And that, good buddies, is what a Carolina Coed thinks of Carolina Coeds!

SOUND AND FURY

There will be a meeting of Sound and Fury with a party following tonight in Gerrard hall at 7:30.

"Why shouldn't we come out of hiding, Herr General? I hear there's a great demand for ALL types of anti-Communists."

Of Students in Quandaries

Let's Hope It's Seasonal

By Sergei Burgess

Spring is here, the littl' stoodents are settling down to the joys of Chapel Hill in spring, professors are beginning to drone lazily to dreaming students—I'm one—, Wallacites are pulling out their mimeographed blanks and asking questings, squirrels are chasing other squirrels, coeds are beginning to don their spring apparel, and once again we're in the swing.

Politics are beginning to blossom forth in its fullest splendor—witness the abundance of posters—how didja like mine? Candidates tried to file their petitions Saturday night and discovered that Al "Try and find me" Winn was darned hard to locate. I went by his room no less than six times that day and finally caught him down at Graham Memorial that night. . .At eleven thirty p. m. Ed Joyner was just getting his petition started. . .I was number six or seven; can't remember which. Pete Gerns was preparing to spend all night in the Tarnation office to do advert illustrations, and I was accidentally tricked into doing the work. Reminds me: where's Terrible Tookie the Hodgson these days. Haven't seen 'im around lately.

Coeds! Are you looking for a date? I know just the guy you're looking for, then. (My roommate, B. B. Butler, is now making me write this) This guy's got looks money (Once a month), personality, an' evahthing but a new car. We still use a 31 Ford.

Speaking of Coeds remind me. After the visit of a distinguished Washington Dee Cee visitor to Spencer and surroundings, the former Jacque Goodwin is still the former Jacque Goodwin. And she still can't play a decent game of ping pong.

This looks unusual to use this many people in one column, but to continue. . .I've been told by Chuck Houghton not to call his latest "Love-of-my-life" "Whatshername" again. That's all very nice, but what the devil is her name? Help wanted. . .help wanted. . .

It' good to see a Stop the Stop the Draft meeting. . .I must be sure to attend last night. It gets confusing writing things a day in advance.

The question this past week was: Should the University sub-Sixty-four answers thusly: 12 yes, 48 nay, and four "what the devil?"

By necessity this is short. Deadline time is near and I've got lots to do. No question this week, except this'un: Who will win the campaign for prexy of the student body?

Write Away

Hodgson Looks at the Record

To the Editor:

Just to keep the record straight in the face of pre-election exuberance on the part of TARNATION editorial candidates, I should like to submit the following list of contributions made by each of the humor mag aspirants, and when they were published.

Charlie Gibson—One article, February issue. Nothing else submitted.

Fred Burgess—No articles or cartoons ever accepted or published. Any statement to the contrary is false.

Tom Wharton—Art Editor of TARNATION. Approximately 20 cartoons accepted and published. General supervision of art work.

Bob Smith—Literary Editor of TARNATION. Several contributions in each issue. Rewriting and editing on mass of copy used throughout magazine.

Tom Kerr—TARNATION managing editor. Directs lay-out. Has been in charge of editorial staff since first issue. Writes editorials, captions, etc.

Tookie Hodgson

As Chairman of the Orientation Committee his capable guidance and leadership have made orientation more and more important and valuable part of our student life. His work with this committee has shown that Jess possesses the qualities of leadership ability to co-ordinate action and secure the co-operation of others and the interest in spark-pluging a worthy project that are such vital characteristics for the executive of our student government.

In his work as Chairman of the Elections Committee of the Student Legislature we have seen that Jess has the diligence and untiring attention to detail which was necessitated by the survey for re-apportionment. His overall cognizance and understanding of the campus' governmental requirements is demonstrated in the comprehensive character of the elections bill as written by his committee.

Jess does not leap into things hap-hazardly. He is methodical in his thinking and careful in planning student projects and programs. Our new Student Activities Center is largely the product of his visionary thinking and planning for our needs.

His excellent work in the organization and subsequent service as President of the new Freshman Scholastic Honor Society, Phi Eta Sigma, is a further evidence of his ability to organize and carry out administrative activity.

Jess is a well rounded man. He served 1 1-2 years in the Army Air Forces and at Carolina he is, in addition to being an excellent Scholar, a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity and advisor to Aycock dormitory. He is conscientious, friendly, and interested in all phases of student life.

In view of these considerations, we the undersigned, believe that Jess Dedmond can give the campus the best in student government administration and urge all students to strongly consider his abilities and qualifications for this—the most important office in our student life.

Ernest House
Wayne K. Brenengen
Laurie Hooper
Bob Studley

Jess's Backers Give Him a Pat On The Back

Editor:

In the best interests of student government we believe that the campus should consider the following facts about Jess Dedmond which we feel make him the best candidate for the Presidency of the Student Body.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Navajos Are In The Money

By Drew Pearson

Washington.—It now looks as if the poverty-stricken Navajo Indians, trying to scrtach a precarious living from the wastelands of Arizona and New Mexico, may own one of the most priceless pieces of property in the U.S.A.

For some time our chief worry in the production of atomic energy was the fact that all uranium deposits lay outside the United States. However, it now appears that the Navajos have been tending their pitiful flocks above a hidden atomic treasure. For, upon the Navajo reservation in the upper corner of Arizona and New Mexico, the Vanadium Corporation of America has been quietly extracting uranium.

Further detils regarding this operation must remain a military secret. However, one amazing fact can be revealed. So far, the Navajos haven't received one penny for the unraium taken from their land. Instead, the profits have been raked in by the Vanadium Corporation.

The price which the Atomic Energy Commission is paying the Vanadium Corporation for uranium is also secret, but a member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy predicted that the metal may become almost as precious as diamonds. Since the richest deposits are all outside the United States and could be cut off in case of war, this domestic supply becomes all the more valuable.

But the Navajos, sitting on one of nature's jackpots, so far haven't been able to collect a cent. Reason for this again is largely obscured by secrecy, and only part of the story can be told within the limits of national security.

For one thing, uranium does not exist in its pure form on the reservation but must be extracted as a by-product from vanadium. The only leases to dig for vanadium on Navajo territory—six in all—are held by the Vanadium Corporation. These leases specify that the Indians will be paid 10 per cent royalty on all mineral compounds—except vanadium compounds. In the latter case, the royalty is stipulated as 10 per cent of the vanadium oxide, a metal used to toughen steel. Since uranium is part of the raw vanadium ore until processed, the company conceivably might get away with paying royalty only on the comparatively valueless vanadium oxide, not on the other raw vanadium out of which uranium comes.

However, the Indian Service takes the view that uranium is a separate metal apart from vanadium, therefore is subject to the full 10 per cent royalty fee. But the amount of uranium taken from the reservation is unknown to the Indian Service which hasn't any record of a single payment to the Navajos for uranium. Yet the Vanadium Corporation is known to have been extracting it for several years.

The Vanadium Corporation declined all comment on the grounds that it uranium project is top secret. But the Atomic Energy Commission informed this columnist that on the amount of royalty payments no secrecy is involved.

John L. Lewis has told close friends that he is set to go to the Supreme Court to test the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Lewis firmly believes that the Taft-Hartley provision compelling workers to return to their jobs by injunction—if a strike endangers the nation's welfare—is unconstitutional.

Therefore, if an injunction is obtained against Lewis's striking United Mine Workers members, the mine labor boss intends to fight it right up to the Supreme Court.

"This is not so much a fight against mine operators," Lewis told an intimate. "It's a fight against the Taft-Hartley act. I want a showdown and I won't give up until I get one."

When Harry Truman was chairman of the Senate War Investigating committee he came near blasting one piece of wartime censorship. If he had, it would have cast a somewhat different light on one of his present political opponents —Douglas MacArthur. But he didn't.

Wartime censorship sometimes operated in a peculiar manner. The manner in which U S planes were caught napping and burned on the ground at Pearl Harbor was known to the world and the military commanders responsible were severely reprimanded. But the manner in which General MacArthur's bombers were also caught napping at Manila and burned on the ground was censored.

Three hundred planes, sent to Manila at great sacrifice to US air forces in other areas, were lost as a result. MacArthur had been demanding that planes be sent him instead of going to beleaguered England, at that time unmercifully pounded by Nazi air attacks.

But though MacArthur had a special warning that the Japs were attacking, while Pearl Harbor didn't, he left his 300 planes helpless on the ground.

The Truman Committee, discovering this fact, devoted two paragraphs to it in a quarterly report dated March 4, 1944. The copies of the report were in type and circulated confidentially to committee members, when three senators—Hatch of New Mexico and Connally of Texas, Democrats; with Ball of Minnesota, Republican — objected. Truman yielded to their objection and withdrew the criticism of MacArthur.

The two censored paragraphs read:

"Censorship is an insult to the patriotism and intelligence of the American people. In the past, it has led to many unwise acts, such as the concealing of facts known to the enemy, and even the dissemination of distorted information. For example, the Japanese knew perfectly well the destruction they had wreaked upon our airplanes in the Philippines, but for two years the War Department requested that it be kept secret from the public that 300 planes were destroyed on Philippine airfields a number of hours after the attack on Pearl Harbor was known.

"The loss was only recently made public, and there is at least a suspicion that part of the reason for requesting the committee to consider the information 'secret' was the desire to avoid resentment by the public of the loss of 300 planes which would have been so valuable to the defense of the Philippines."

Quoth ex-Congressman Maury Maverick after returning to San Antonio following several months in Los Angeles: "I love my worst Texas enemy more than my best California friend." . . Payne Ratner, ex-Governor of Kansas, recently dropped in to see Capt. Howard Yeager, efficient aide to chief of naval operations Adm. Louis Denfield, asked Yeager to use his influence with his father-in-law, Roy Bailey, publisher of the Salina, Kans., Journal, in favor of Sen. Arthur Capper. Ratner admitted Kansas didn't have much of a choice between Capper and his GOP primary opponent, Andy Schoeppel, but claimed Capper was the lesser of two evils. Replied Captain Yeager: "My job is the Navy, not running my father-in-law's politics."

Hollywood

Stanwyck Stars With Telephone

By Patricia Clary

Hollywood —(UP)— Barbara Stanwyck, who used to make out the monthly bills the New York Telephone Company sends its customers, is fooling around with a telephone again and getting about 200 times as much money for it.

The ex-billing clerk, playing an invalid wife who accidently overhears her own murder being plotted on the telephone, spends about three-fourths of her time in the picture, Sorry, Wrong Number," emoting into the telephone.

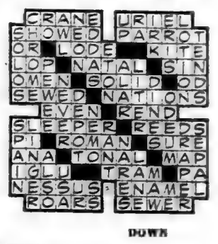
"I'm practically playing opposite a telephone when I'm not in a scene with Burt Lancaster," Miss Stanwyck said. "Naturally, I find Mr. Lancaster a more stimulating partner. I never could figure out the workings of a telephone."

Off the screen, Miss Stanwyck doesn't care much for telephoning.

"I'm one of those people who hate to answer the phone," she said. "I'm no good at gabbing. My telephone talk is mostly: 'Yes, no, sure, glad to hear from you, goodbye'."

No Dubbing In

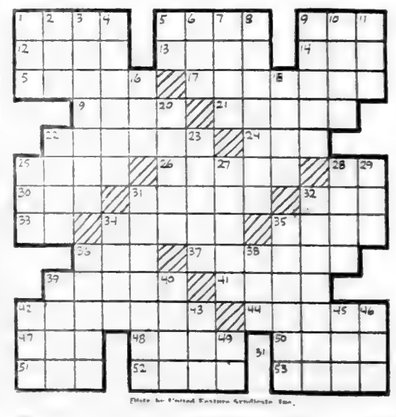
Miss Stanwyck not only is playing her most importan scenes with a telephone cupped in her hands but also is delivering all her off-stage lines over the wire. Paramount decided on the method to achieve a more natural flow of conversation than by the usual procedure of dubbing in voices later.



A studio executive the other day suggested that Miss Stanwyck's performance with the telephone looked as though it were worth an Academy Award

Miss Stanwyck, a runner up three times in the Oscar derby but never a winner, promptly cracked:

"They'll have to make it look like a French phone."



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Gone by
5—Female sheep (pl.)
9—Torrid
12—To assert
13—To venture
14—Suffix: adherent of
15—Prying tool
17—Girl's name
19—Son of Seth
21—House timbers
22—Fervent
24—Greek letter
25—Arabs' cloaks
26—Muse of lyric poetry
28—Hobo (slang)
30—Sick
31—Wise men
32—To spoil
33—Prefix: down
34—Fathered
35—Went by horseback
36—The sun
37—To strip bare
39—Tricks
41—Knot
42—Rhythm
44—Hard coating
47—Lyric poem
48—Shallow bay
50—To hail
51—To marry
52—Jug
53—To sound whistle

DOWN

1—Chum
2—Hail!
3—A few
4—Drifts
5—Man's nickname
6—Strife
7—God of love
8—Sextets
9—Girl's name
10—Genus of bustard
11—Pipe joint
16—Grain in mahogany
18—Car
20—To mock
22—Capable
23—Trapped
25—To help
27—Forest in "As You Like It"
28—Ordered
29—Native metal
31—Quiet
32—City in California
34—Only
35—Most impolite
36—Agreed with
38—Negative
39—To walk in water
40—Barge
42—To abash
43—Night before
45—Also
46—Quick to learn
49—Hesitant expression

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman — NIGHT SPORTS: Buddy Vaden

Penn Edges Baseball Nine, But Tennis, Golf Teams Win; All Play Here Today

Ninth Inning Rally Breaks Win Streak; Cornell Here Today

By Dick Jenrette

Burlington, March 30' — Pennsylvania's Quakers rallied for three runs in the ninth inning here this afternoon to take a hard-fought 7-5 victory over Carolina, thereby spoiling the Tar Heels undefeated record.

A last inning seige of bad luck was the Tar Heels downfall today, and the team is determined to make a better showing against Cornell on Wednesday. Ray Blair is scheduled to take the mound for Carolina, and for the first time this season the Tar Heels will be playing at home. Local officials stated this afternoon that Emerson field is in bad shape, but nevertheless the Cornell game will be played there. Game time is 4 o'clock.

All three of Pennsylvania's ninth inning runs were unearned. The luckless Tar Heels went into the final frame with a 5-4 lead, but the Quakers tied the score with a run which came in on a passed ball. And a wild pitch accounted for the sixth and winning run of the game.

Little Luck

Slim Tommy Andrew, who relieved Starter Dean Cassell in the sixth inning, was charged with the loss, but with a little better luck, Tommy would have been the winner. A two-run Carolina rally in the lucky seventh gave the Tar Heels a 5-4 lead going into the ninth, but the team fell apart in the field then.

Penn's Jim Smith, who earlier in the afternoon had belted two lengthy triples, went down swinging before Aendrew as the ninth opened, but Catcher Emnett Cheek dropped the third trike and Smith gained life on irst. Cheek protested vigorously that he caught the ball in the air, but the umpires denied his claim. Jerry McCarthy then laid down a neat bunt, reaching first safely to place runners on first and second. Frank Cooney dropped another bunt down the first base line. Carolina's initial-sacker John Gregory fielded the ball perfectly but threw wildly past third base in an attempt to get an out there. Luckily Jim Kelly was backing up the base and a perfect throw cut down Smith at the plate. McCarthy and Cooney advanced to third and second base, respectively, on the play.

Tie Score

McCarthy scored the tying run when one of Andrew's pitches got by Catcher Cheek for a passed ball, with Cooney going to third. Ray Dooney popped up for what should have been the third out, but Dave Boney walked. A wild pitch brought in Cooney with the winning run. Penn clinched the decision a few minutes later with a final tally on Bob Baumler's single which scored Boney.

The lead changed hands several times during the game. Penn took an early lead with a run in the first frame, but Carolina rallied for three in the third. The Quakers tied it up with two of their own in the fifth and moved into the lead in the seventh on a tremendous home run by first-baseman McCarthy. The blow cleared the 350-foot rightfield fence with plenty to spare.

With two out in the seventh, the Tar Heels' Frank Jones lined a single to left and went to second when the shortstop muffed the throw in. Kelly who successfully fulfilled his duties as clean-up batter, then drove a triple to the fence in left center to score Jones and tie up the game at 4-4. Kelly romped home a few moments later on Cheek's one-baser over second base.

Unable to Rally

Carolina was unable to rally after Penn got its three ninth-inning runs. Co-captain Jim Hayworth did manage a walk in that last staza, but the Quakers executed a snappy double play to end the game.

Kelly and Jones each produced two of the eight Carolina hits. McCarthy, with a home run and two singles led the visitors, along with Smith, who had a pair of triples.

The Tar Heels of Coach Bunn Hearn and assistant Walter Rabb played good ball with the exception of that last inning. Whitey Black, in centerfield, turned in several beautiful catches of hits that would have gotten by many fielders. Kelly's throw to home, which temporarily averted the ninth-inning disaster, was also excellent.

Both Andrew and Cassell indicated by their work that they will be useful to the Tar Heels when the Big Four slate gets underway. Pennsylvania displayed great batting power, and the fact that only four Quaker runs were earned reflects creditiably on the Tar Heel hurlers.

First Loss

Pennsylvania	AB	R	H	PO	A
Gulla, 2b	5	1	1	3	4
Smith, cf	4	2	2	0	0
McCarthy, 1b	5	2	3	12	0
Cooney, rf	4	1	2	2	0
Newpher, rf	0	0	0	0	0
Dooney, 3b	5	0	2	1	2
Boney, lf	4	0	1	4	0
Uehlein, lf	0	1	0	0	0
Baumler, ss	4	0	1	2	3
Graham, c	2	0	0	2	0
Antoni, c	2	0	0	1	0
Lukievics, p	2	0	0	0	1
Guthrie, p	1	0	0	0	0
Totals	38	7	12	27	10
Carolina	AB	R	H	PO	A
Black, cf	4	1	0	4	0
Hayworth, 3b	4	1	1	1	2
Jones, rf	4	1	2	1	0
Kelly, lf	4	1	2	1	1
Cheek, c	3	0	1	6	2
Ryan, ss	3	0	0	1	2
Branch, 2b	4	0	0	1	6
Gregory, 1b	4	1	1	12	0
Cassell, p	1	0	1	0	0
Andrew, p	2	0	0	0	1
Totals	33	5	8	27	14

Pennsylvania	100	020	103—7
Carolina	003	000	200—5

Summary: Errors: Baumler, Kelly, Cheek 2, Gregory. Runs batted in: Hayworth, Jones, Kelly 2, Cheek, Smith, McCarthy 3, Baumler. Home runs: McCarthy. Three-base hits: Smith 2, Kelly. Two-base hits: Cassell. Stolen bases: Kelly, Cheek. Sacrifice: Cassell. Double plays: Gulla and McCarthy. Base on balls—off Cassell 3, Andrew 2, Lukievics 3, Guthrie 1. Struck out—by Cassell 2, Lukievics 2, Andrew 3, Guthrie 1. Hits off: Cassell 7 in 5 inn., Lukievics 5 in 5 inn., Andrew 5 in 4 inn., Guthrie 3 in 4 inn. Left on bases: Carolina 7, Pennsylvania 10. Wild pitch: Lukievics, Andrew. Passed ball: Graham, Cheek. Hit by pitcher: By Lukievics (Jones). Winning pitcher: Guthrie. Losing pitcher: Andrew. Umpires: Powell and Murray. Time: 2:30.

WRESTLERS TO MEET

The wrestling squad will hold an important meeting in Woollen gym this evening, Coach Chuck Quinlan announced yesterday. All members of the team are asked to meet in the gym lobby at 7 o'clock.

CINCINNATI WINS

Tampa, Fla., March 30—The Cincinnati Reds blasted Schoolboy Rowe from the mound today as they swamped the Philadelphia Phils, 11-0.

Everyone Welcome!

Sports Carnival Set For Woollen April 1

By Bill Gallagher

The Intramural department's star-studded Sports Carnival comes into the limelight in campus activities tomorrow night at 7:15 in Woollen gym with over a dozen events featured on the program.

Sponsored by the mural department and conducted by the Physical Education staff and the University Monogram club, the big show is free and open to everyone.

Table tennis is the first event and it starts promptly at 7:15 at the rear of the main floor. It is an open tournament and is limited to 32 entrants. The best racquet-wielding students undoubtedly will be out swinging for the all-campus championship.

Campus Cage Title

At 7:30 on the varsity court, the Fraternity basketball champions, Sigma Chi, will tangle with the dormitory victors, the Blackballs, in what is expected to be a top notch battle.

Half-time of the basketball game will see a triple feature move into the spotlight. Clark Taylor, varsity net star, will conduct a badminton exhibition on the varsity court. At the same time on the main floor, the undefeated Phi Gamma Delta team will engage a squad from Guilford college in a volleyball tilt. And over in Bowman Gray pool, there will be a water carnival.

Three Tank Events

The two cage kings then return to finish their scrap. Three big events in swimming are next on the show. A 50-yard challenge race between Otto Jaretz, famous "swimming around the world" routine man and Carolina's Floyd Drew, Southern conference champ, a clown diving exhibition by Norm Sper and Coy Lewis, and a water polo match between the "Ins" and the "Outs", head the gigantic aquatic card.

Boxing is next with the intramural finals in the 121, 127, and 135 pound classes. Mike Ronman will supervise the fisticuffs on the varsity court.

Deadline for entries in the spring intramural softball tournament is this afternoon at 6 o'clock, the mural office announced yesterday.

A special women's tumbling exhibition follows this and then boxing returns with the championship bouts in the 145, 155, and 165-pound divisions.

The men's tumbling is next and then the finals of the boxing tournament with the 175 and the heavyweight matches. Table tennis comes back with the finals to take place on the main floor.

Dancing Takes Over

Dancing takes over with a square dance exhibition, a folk dance with 16 lightfooted performers, and then a special duet number. The special number will have Miss Betty Doss and Bob "Educated Toe" Cox doing a social dancing routine.

Social dancing by all the spectators will follow. All prizes will be awarded during the dance time by Intramural director Walter Rabb and Mary Frances Kellam. Then it is back to dance time the coed closing hour.

OTHER EXHIBITIONS

Boston 13	Louisville 0
Detroit 7	Lakeland 0

Netmen Top Harvard In Second 9-0 Win; To Play Kalamazoo

By Bob Goldwater

The same old story of a whitewash triumph was the decision handed down by Carolina's racqueteers yesterday afternoon on the local courts when the Tar Heels trounced Harvard, 9-0, for their second shutout victory in as many days.

The Blue and White netters will try to make it three wins in a row—and a third whitewash would not be unwelcome—this afternoon at 3 o'clock when Kalamazoo provides the oppisition. The two teams met here last year and Coach John Kenfield's charges blanked the Michiganders on that occasion by a 6-0 count.

Lose Two Sets

In scoring yesterday's shutout the Carolina outfit improved on its Monday performance of losing only three sets by dropping a mere two cantos to the Crimson. The lost units came in the initial sets on the third and fourth courts, but Tar Heels Ray Morris and Charlie Rice both roared bach with two straight sets to register their second wins of the year.

Neither of Carolina's two top court artists had any trouble in disposing of their rivals. Vic Seixas blanked Ted Backe in the first set, then coasted in the second to turn in a 6-0, 6-3 success. On court two, Clark Taylor easily set back Vince Brandt by consecutive 6-2 scores.

First Singles Tilts

The other singles victories were chalked up by Stan Gruner and Heath Alexander, both filling their first singles assignments of the season. Both boys looked impressive in rolling to straight-set triumphs.

Coach Kenfield employed two different doubles combinations from Monday's lineup but the results were exactly the same. Seixas teamed with Duke Wilder for the number one victory, Taylor and Rice scored their second tandem win at the number two post, and Alexander and Don Skakle formed the third triumphant duo.

The complete results:

Singles: Seixas over Backe, 6-0, 6-3; Taylor over Brandt, 6-2, 6-2; Morris over Wrightman, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3; Rice over Pratt, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, Grunner over Ager, 6-2, 7-5; Alexander over Bullard, 6-0, 6-3.

Doubles: Seixas-Wilder over Backe Brandt, 6-2, 6-3; Taylor-Rice over Wrightman-Pratt, 6-1, 6-1; Alexander-Skakle over Ager-Bullard, 7-5, 6-4.

FIRST NO-HITTER

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 30—Slender Murry Dickson set the New York Yankees down without a hit today as the Cardinals romped to a 7-0 triumph over the World's champions. The right-hander gave up five walks and hit one batter, but otherwise he had the hard-hitting Yankess under control for the full nine innings.

Dickson is the first pitcher in the history of major league spring training to go all the way and toss a no-hitter. Cincinnati's Johnny Vander Meer and Junior Thompson joined for a no-hitter back in 1941 and last spring three St. Louis Browns pitchers held the Boston Braves without a hit—but the Browns lost 2-1, just the same.

Hole-in-One

The golfers of Georgetown University will furnish fresh competition for the linksmen of Carolina this afternoon at Hope Valley beginning at 12:30.

The Hoyas were quite impressive in their warmup round at the Durham club yesterday, climaxing their day with golf's most thrilling shot, the hole-in-one. The ace was turned in by Captain John King, who accomplished the feat with a No. 3 wood on the 210-yard 18th hole.

The feat came right after a teammate, playing in the same threesome, had driven his tee shot to within two and a half feet of the pin. King's shot hit the cup and flag on the fly and stuck for a perfect shot.

Bob Cox, Tar Heel links performer who will compete against King this afternoon, did the same trick on the same hole last season.

Dillon to Play With All-Stars In Denver Tilt

John "Hook" Dillon will once again play under Coach Ben Carnevale with whom he gained All-American recognition in 1946. The Carolina center was invited yesterday to join the Eastern All-Stars in Denver where they will meet the Denver Nuggets Sunday night.

Dillon will fly out to Denver tomorrow to join the aggregation that whipped the Western All-Stars, 66-59, in Madison Square Garden one week ago.

The Nuggets reached the semi-finals of the Olympic trials in New York only to be eliminated by the Phillips Oilers, 69-40, Monday night. They are sparked by Vince Boryla, start center, who played his college ball at Notre Dame.

Besides Carnevale, Dillon will find at least two other familiar faces among the All-Stars. One will belong to Leo Katkaveck, N. C. State's all-conference guard and the only other cager from the Old North State on the team. Dolph Shayes, NYU center whom Dillon opposed many times, is also on the squad and was one of the big guns in the East's win over the Western luminaries.

Dillon had his best year under Carnevale when the latter coached the White Phantoms to the eastern championship in the NCAA tournament in 1946. The hookshot artist counted over 450 points to win a position on the '46 All-American team.

The past season was Dillon's final season of play at Carolina.

Golfers Whitewash Harvard; McKenzie Turns in Top Score

By Billy Carmichael III

Carolina's "New Look" golf team, playing with only two old faces in the lineup, gave strong notice of things to come yesterday afternoon at Hope Valley country club when the local linksmen turned in a 27-0 whitewash victory over an ill-prepared Harvard university six.

The Crimson lads from the North, who hadn't seen green fairways until their trip south this week, just hadn't played enough golf to be at the best of their game, but there was some doubt that even peak performance would have taken the Tar Heels yesterday.

Carolina newcomers Roy McKenzie, Jack Brantley, Harvey Oliver, and Frank Brooks teamed with the old veterans, Harvie Ward and Bob Cox to score an easy shutout win over the John Harvards.

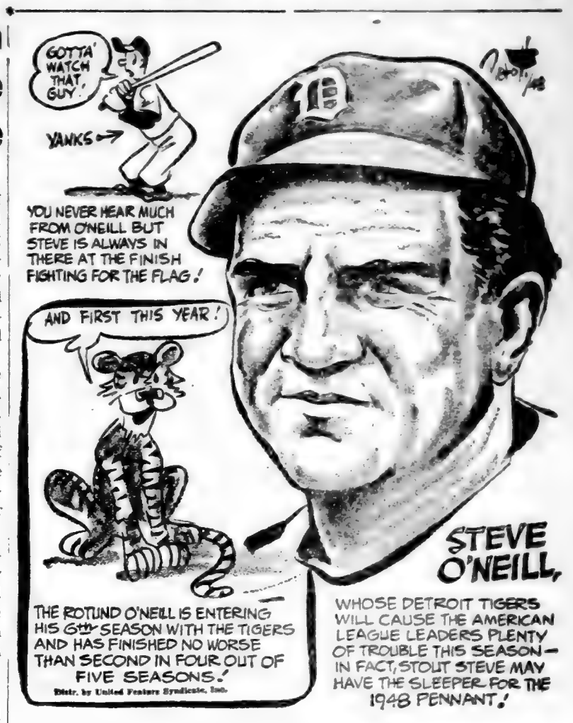
McKenzie Leads

McKenzie was the individual star of the afternoon, carding a 36-36-72 for a two-over-par medal winning score. Ward and Cox were right behind the leader hanging up a pair of 73's. Oliver, Brantley, and Brooks completed the Tar Heel tally with 76, 77, and 84 respectively.

The earliness of the season did not affect Harvard's game alone. The lads of Coach Chuck Erickson hit the ball well for most of the afternoon, but showed there was still room for improvement before the critical tests of the season roll around.

Among those breaking into the Tar Heel line-up for the first time, a touch of nerveness took a slight toll of scores. McKenzie, playing his first varsity match, looked good all the way, especially on the 8th and 9th holes which he birdied in succession, the latter with a 20-foot chip shot.

Masters-Bound



Masters-bound Harvie Ward was not at the top of his game, but his round was easily satisfactory and made for an easy victory against Bill Rickenbacker. Harvard No. 1 man, who is also the son of air ace Eddie Rickenbacker.

The summary:

Ward (C) defeated Rickenbacker, 3-0. McKenzie (C) defeated Keiver, 3-0. Best ball to Carolina, 3-0.

Cox (C) defeated Kinnicutt, 3-0. Brantley (C) defeated Savidge, 3-0. Best ball to Carolina, 3-0.

Oliver (C) defeated Matson, 3-0. Brooks (C) defeated Denton. Best ball to Carolina 3-0.

Jayvees in Intrasquad Game; Sharpe, McGinn Star on Hill

Coach Henry House unveiled his 1948 jayvee baseball team on Southwest Emerson yesterday afternoon and his eager youngsters displayed a lot of hustle, some good pitching, and—considering the small amount of batting practice under their belts—some pretty fair hitting.

The chunkers dominated the action of the regulation length game which wound up with the regulars on top, 4-0. A pair of hooking portsiders, sophomore Les Sharpe and freshman Bill McGinn, teamed to limit the yannigans to two scratch hits.

Left fielder Don Ward stole the hitting honors yesterday with three singles in four trips to the plate. Rightfielder Ed Lamb and smooth-working shortstop Joe Brookshire came through with a pair of safeties apiece. Ward turned in several nice catches in the outfield while Brookshire and keystoner Stan Goodman appear to form an ever better double play combination than anything that the varsity posseses.

Yearling righthand hurler Ralph Bracke's five innings five-hit shutout of the regulars was the only bright spot in the losers' showing. Using his sharp breaking curve to advantage, Bracke whiffed four men before retiring in favor of righthander Ed Gaston, who was tagged for the four runs and the loss.

The juniors will tentatively open their 1948 schedule against Greensboro high school in the Gate City on Saturday afternoon. An 18-game card, featuring four games with the jayvee nines of State and Duke and two games each with the high schools of High Point, Reynolds High of Winston-Salem, Salisbury, Greensboro, and another foe yet to be named, will be announced later this week.

DOES YOUR RADIO SOUND GOOD?
—see—
D. W. ANDERSON
—at—
Lloyd Electric Company
Carrboro, N. C.
—for—
Fine Radio Repairing

Whid Powell's
COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM
GRILLED TARHELLIAS
CAROLINAS
WAFFLES
Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

NOW PLAYING
VILLAGE

EXHIBITION
Wednesday & Thursday
March 31 April 1
At Varsity Store

GENTLEMEN'S APPAREL FOR SPRING AND SUMMER USAGE HAS BEEN EXECUTED IN THE FAMOUS FINCHLEY MANNER WITH FULL REGARD ACCORDED DEPENDABILITY AND TASTEFUL, EXCLUSIVE STYLING.

GENTLEMEN'S SUITS
TOPCOATS • TUXEDOS • SPORTSWEAR
HATS • HABERDASHERY • SHOES

Finchley

FIFTH AVE., AT 46th ST., NEW YORK

---Not Only--- is Hazzard Motor Co. equipped to offer you mechanical repairs to any make car—
BUT, ALSO—

EXPERT:
Lubrication
Washing, Polishing and Waxing
Headlight Testing
Glass Replacement
Body and Fender Repair
Painting
Rebuilding of Wrecks
Radiator Repair Service
Complete Rear wheel alignment service

In addition, we can supply you with new motors for most any popular make car.

– OUR PRIDE –
Factory-trained mechanics
Prompt service
Expert service

Open from 7:30 A.M. to 6 P.M.

Hazzard Motor Co.
"Where Courtesy Costs No More"
General Motors Dealers
W. Franklin St. Tel. 4771

-Rubish-

(Continued from page 1)

cannot be established.

"2. Lower prices and better service at Lenoir hall to be attained by approaching the Board of Trustees Visiting committee and asking that Lenoir hall be paid for by appropriation from the state legislature.

"3. A thorough study of students' curriculum with the intent of bettering it for more interesting and more useful studies.

"4. Better orientation of transfer students as well as new students with the intent of defining the Honor and Campus codes.

"5 A telephone on every dormitory floor or the installation of a call system in every dorm.

"Since I believe that silence is sometimes the severest wrong a candidate can do to the voters. here is how I stand on some of the controversial issues on the campus:

"I am for keeping the House Privileges board. I am for taking the election of editors of the campus publications out of politics and to work for a non-partisan Student council, Men's council and Women's council."

-SP-

(Continued from page 1)

withdrawn his candidacy. For the post of secretary, the party endorsed Bobby Best, a Campus party nominee.

Swaim, a native of Atlanta, is vice-president of the freshman class, a member of the Student Legislature, and advertising manager of Tarnation. Ufen is the national secretary-treasurer of the Century association, the alumni group of the 100th Infantry Division, and is also a Chesterfield representative on campus. Bobby Best is from Sylva and was a member of Sound and Fury.

Completing the roster for dormitory men legislators are Bob Hennessee and Erie Cofield. Hennessee is a former member of the Student Legislature. Cofield was nominated by the Campus party.

ADPi ALUMNI

All Alpha Delta Pi alumnae on campus or living in Chapel Hill are asked to contact Jeanne Stanley, 209 West Franklin, Phone 8276.

There will be a meeting of the ADPi Alumns Wednesday night, March 31st at the ADPi house at 8:00. All members are urged to be present.

-Manning-

(Continued from page 1)

This will no longer be tolerated.

"4. The establishment of a University-sponsored busline to outlying districts for the benefit of those students who lack transportation.

"5. Continuing campus improvements including the completion of the bricking of the sidewalks.

"6. An improved and enlarged student self-help program.

"7. Recreation rooms and dorm stores in all dormitories.

"8. An open mind to all student problems and a promise to alleviate these problems if at all possible."

-Long-

(Continued from page 1)

every problem that arises.

"2. That every student should have the right of appeal to a higher court and that the appellate power of the Student council should not be removed. That every attempt to set up special courts should receive the closest scrutiny and a thorough investigation before being set up. There is an inherant danger that our court system might evolve into a series of special courts for special classes and categories of students.

"3. That a complete redistricting and reapportioning bill should be enacted by the Legislature. This bill to be based on the true facts and without regard to special categories.

"4. That the office of attorney general should be set up to coordinate all phases of student government and to safeguard the rights of students under the constitution.

"As a presidential candidate I have pledged myself to the above listed courses of action. Without regard to any special interest on the campus I will work to see that the best interests of every student is served. My allegiance, if elected will be to students and not to political parties."

ROOM RESERVATIONS

Application for room reservations for summer sessions and for fall quarter must be made by April 5. Any woman student failing to comply with this will not be eligible for a room during the summer session or fall quarter.

-Dedmond-

(Continued from page 1)

make their entrance into student affairs easier. Such a series would enable the freshman class each year to know a sense of unity in the organization of their social and campus life and in the selection of their officers which has hitherto been unknown. This plan would eliminate the disgraceful type of elections which the freshmen have experienced in the past two years. Despite present faculty objections this objective must be reached.

"2. The revision of our councils to provide the simplicity necessary to efficient functioning. This revision calls for a strong Student council, composed of both men and women students, which would hear Honor code cases and constitutional and political cases, and separate men's and women's councils to hear Campus code and social cases. This system would make the present appeal system unnecessary.

"3. The extension of the non-partisan board system of selection of candidates for those councils provided.

"4. The provision of a similiar non-partisan board to offer to the campus qualified candidates for the editorships of student publications. This plan would leave candidates selected completely free in the conduct of their individual campaigns. This is a must if we are to have publications which are not political footballs subject to booting by political parties or pressure groups.

"I pledge myself to these objectives with the realization that some are difficult of attainment but that they must be attained. I pledge myself to the platforms of the parties supporting me and shall insist that those parties do all things possible toward their objectives rather than those things convenient for themselves. By making a fuller use of the right of representation which students have under a functioning Student Welfare board we shall carry student opinions and desires where they may be heard and acted upon.

"I further pledge my cooperation to that portion of student government operated by and for the coeds. Within the framework of the student constitution I shall strive for a closer cooperation and understanding between the executive department of Student Government, the Student Legislature, and those organizations now handling the affairs of the coeds."

Jess Dedmond

Campus Calendar

5:00 p. m.—YWCA Coed Get-together, Main lounge of Graham Memorial.

5:00 p. m.—Chi Delta Phi, Grail room.

7:30 p. m.—Sound and Fury, Gerrard hall.

8:00 p. m.—Alpha Delta Pi Alumnae, ADPi house.

9:45 p. m.—CPU reception. Horace Williams lounge.

-Hodson-

(Continued from page 1)

other candidates, and remember that wild promises of a political utopia are less often carried out than simple, plain measures which fit the needs of the time.

"Points for Dormitory Men:

"1. To put the entire pressure of student government on the phone company to try to improve the phone system which has been allowed to run down over the past several years.

"2. To hold a vote in each separate dormitory to determine whether the individual dormitories wish to adopt a system of hiring their own janitors out of a dormitory fund, in order to secure better and more efficient janitor service, men who will return to the old idea of sweeping rooms and halls out properly and making up the beds in the morning.

"3. To do everything possible to secure the reinstatement of the dormitory small stores in the basement of every dormitory, for the comfort of the dormitory students.

"Points for Coeds:

"1. To make every effort to see that purely coed affairs are placed under the jurisdiction of the Coed Senate only.

"2. To do everything possible to obtain permission for coeds belonging to recognized campus organizations which hold their meetings after checking-in time.

"3. To set up on the campus a woman's organization similar to the veteran's organization through which the coeds can organize their own social and other activities.

"Points for Town Men and Women:

"1. I want to announce that I stand fully behind and will work in every way possible to see that the proper kind of redistricting and reapportionment bill is passed speedily by the student legislature, to defend in every way with the full power of the executive office the full right of every student whether he lives on the campus or not. In this way every student can know who his representative in student legislature is, and hold him responsible during his term of office. At the present time the individual student is charged an exorbitant student fee for which the average town man is receiving no representation. I will fight in every way TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION.

"Points for Victory Village and Trailer Courts:

"Being a married man living off the campus, on the G. I. bill, I am the only candidate who can fully realize the problems faced by the present occupants of Mudville and the trailer courts. Too long have the residents of these two districts paid the high student fees without receiving one iota of representation of thought by the legislature of their present needs and problems.

"Too long have the big wheels of the campus indiscriminately spent every cent of the student fees paid by the residents of these two areas while opposing every attempt to give them their just amount of representation and service.

"1. To see to it that the Tar Heel is delivered promptly and daily to every one of these students as it is to other students living on the campus.

"2. To do everything possible to make sure that the inexcusable shortage of fuel oil which occurred this past winter never happens again to endanger the health of these students and their families and children.

"3. To put the full pressure of student government behind the administration to get permission for all residents of the trailer court to continue to sell their trailers on the lots on which they are located.

"4. To apply immediately for a reduction of lot rents for the residents of the trailer courts.

"Points for All Students:

"1. I pledge to urge, if elected, a policy of careful spending on the legislature in its handling of student funds. I see no reason why the budget should be expanded to spend all the fees collected. I favor a policy which uses only as much of these funds as is needed to bring a maximum of really useful services to the student body as a whole, and leaves out the frills and the special interest groups. In other words, no appropriations for expensive trips from which the body benefits not at all, no funds for expenditures for the use of small special groups only.

"2. I pledge not to forget this platform after election day, whether I am elected or not."

-Mary-

(Continued from page 1)

work division.

Nominee for secretary Hilda Sharkey is a Chapel Hill girl and spent her first two years of college at W. C., where she served on dorm committees, on the social committee and the Freshman motto committee, and was a member of the Dolphin-Seal club.

At Carolina she has worked on the Yackety Yack staff, and has served on the Town Girls association executive committee and as their representative to University party. A member of the Y junior council, she has also been elected as president of Delta Delta Delta sorority for next year.

Sally Woodhull, second secretarial candidate, is also a transfer from W. C., and is a native of Bethlehem, Pennsylvaina. At W. C. she was reporter, make-up editor, and news editor of the Carolinian, and a member of the YWCA, University sermon committee, Square Circle club, and Square Dance club.

A reporter on the Daily Tar Heel ,she is also advertising layout manager for the Carolina Magazine, publicity chairman for the YWCA, on the staff of the Woman's Handbook, and a member of Chi Delta Phi and Pi Beta Phi.

Virginia Nash of Raleigh, nominated for treasurer, attended Randolph-Macon Woman's college where she participated in the YWCA on the social work committee and the vesper program committee and was a member of the Glee club.

At Carolina she is on the social service committee of the YW CA, served on the Junior council and on the clothing drive committee, and is a member of the Glee club and of Pi Beta Phi.

A graduate of St. Mary's Junior college, Mary Glen Slater was active there as a member of hall council and as hall president and vice president. She was managing editor of the school paper, dance marshall and cheer leader, and was a member of the Dramatics club, the Granddaughter's club, the Altar guild, the Circle, and Orchesis.

A member of the Carolina M... azine layout staff, she has al... served at Carolina on the Y ... ior council.

Peggy Egerton, nominee for membership chairman, is from Hendersonville, and is a transfer from Erskine college. At Erskine she was social vice president of the Baptist Student union, on the Woman's Athletic association board, in the Dramatics club and IRC.

At Carolina she was chosen for the Y junior council and is a member of Chi Omega sorority.

Second nominee for membership chairman, Henrietta "Weddy" Thorpe, is a native of Rocky Mount and a graduate of St Mary's. There she was hall president, marshall, member of the literary society and the staff of the magazine. She was active in hall council, the political science club, Granddaughter's club, Altar guild, Woman's auxiliary and the Athletic society.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

Cheese Blintzes Today—At HARRY'S

Ridgeway's
OPTICIANS
Complete Eyeglass Service
Prompt attention to all mail orders
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
Raleigh N. C.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6816

CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

SUBSCRIBE TO THE CHARLOTTE Observer. Daily delivery to your door anywhere in Chapel Hill. Phone 4743 or write 3 Bryon Lane. Rates 35 cents weekly (1-1880-1)

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive.Priced right with attractive term arrangements Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

DIAMOND SOLITAIRE, ONE-FOURth carat, in new 14 carat gold mounting—$60. Call 4726 after 6 p. m. (1-c1881-1)

24 FOOT GLIDER HOUSE TRAILER. Inquire Lot No. 76, University Trailer Court, after 6 p. m. (1-1882-1)

SMALL HOUSE LOCATED ON large lot. Two bedrooms. 33 Oakwood Drive, T. V. Cauble. Telephone F-3217. (1-1883-1)

"HANDYHOT" PORTABLE ELECTRIC washer. Excellent condition. Priced reasonable. Call Mrs. Young F2566 before five, 9977 after five. (1-1885-11)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

SUPER SIX HUDSON SEDAN IN good shape with overdrive and vacuum shift, cheap. See Ben L. Rouse, 140 Daniels Road, Victory Village. (1-1877-1)

WANTED

SOMEONE TO SHARE ROOM IN town. Call F-3872. (1-1884-1)

HELP WANTED 8

PART TIME HELP. MUST BE AVAILable from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. See Whid Powell, Colonial House. (ch 1x1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

MEN OVER TWENTY WITH ABILITY to lead and work with boys. To serve ten weeks this summer as counselors on staff at Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Good pay, wonderful environment, room and board. Only those with outstanding qualifications need apply. Apply J. Watson Holyfield, Director of Camp Sea Gull, Raleigh Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 3)

REHDERS
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

Dr. William T. Kohn
announces the opening of his office
for the purpose of
OPTOMETRY
Visual Training
Contact Lenses
Call 3686
Office Hours Daily and by Appointment
Monday-Friday 9:00-5:00
Saturday 9:00-1:00
Chapel Hill
over Carolina Coffee Shop

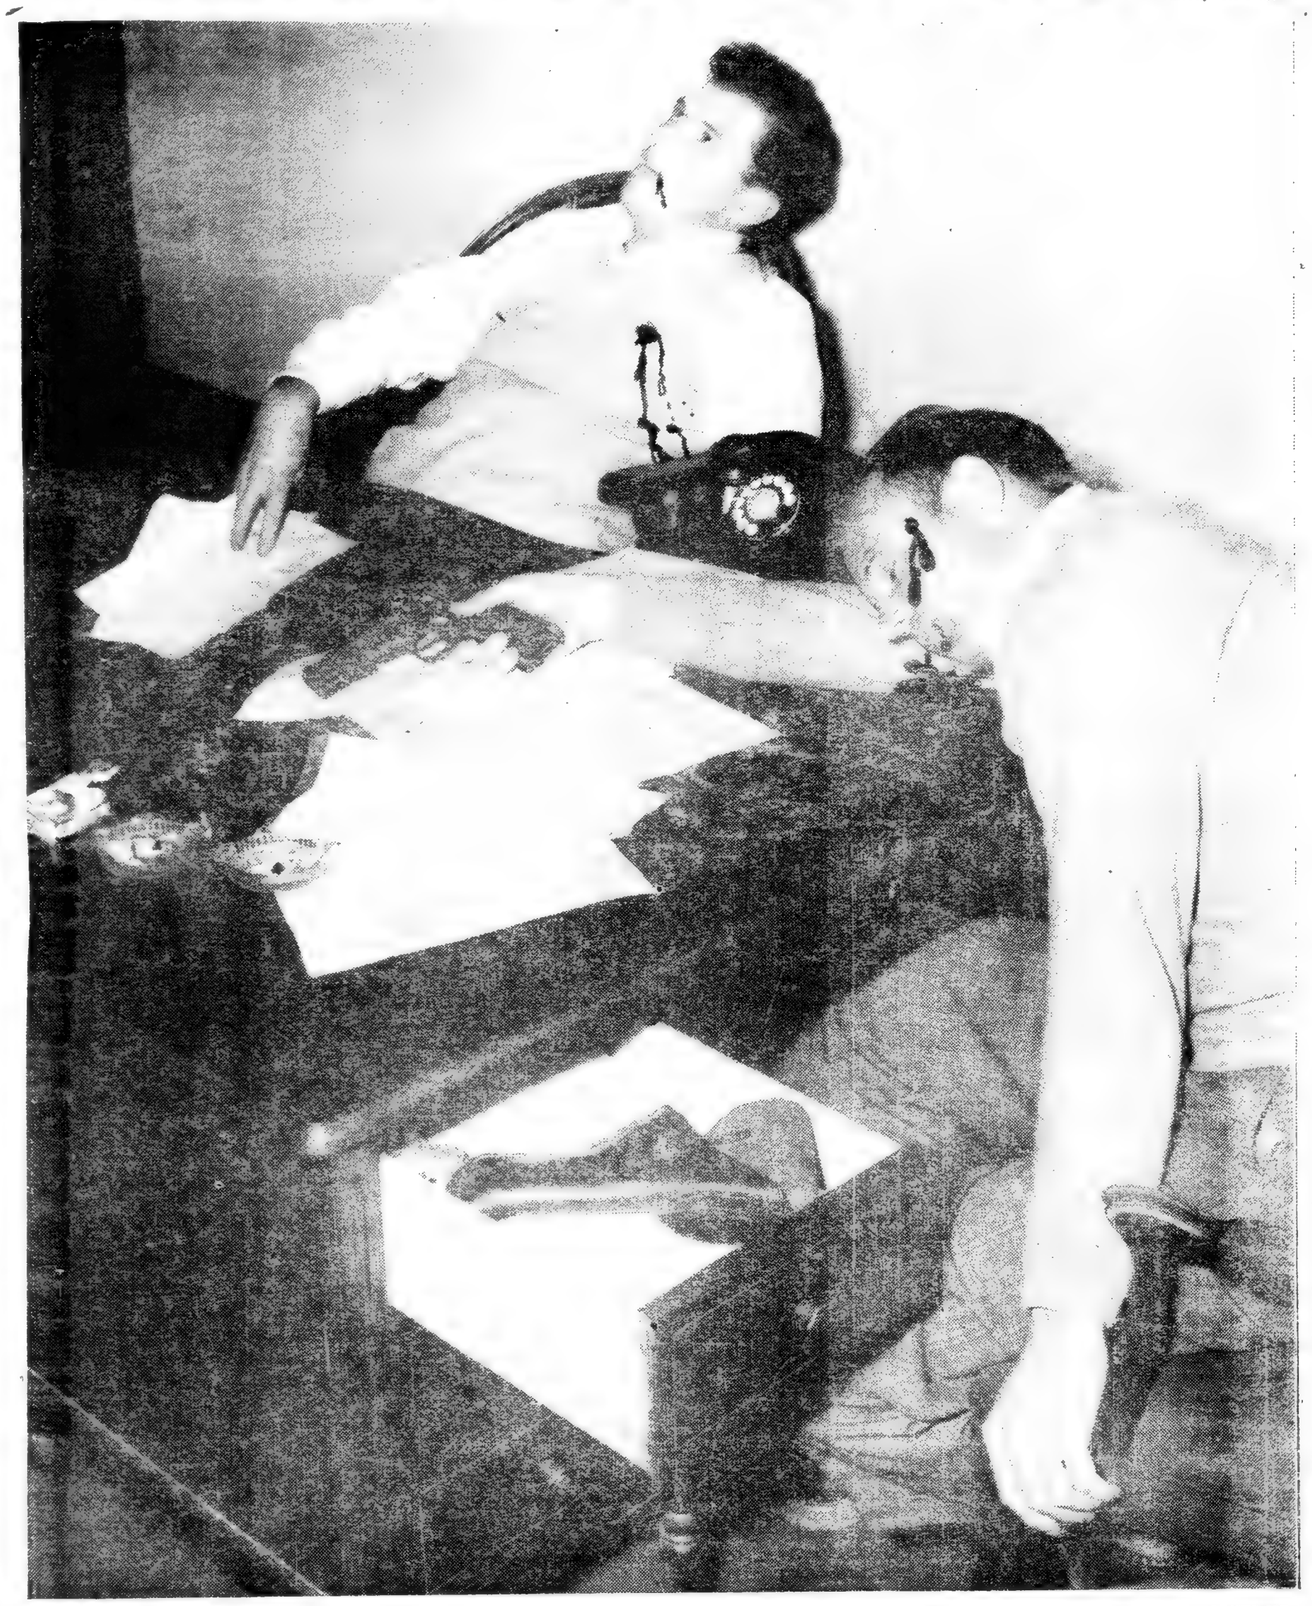
FOUR WHISPERED WORDS... that led to the screen's most rousing adventure... and dangerous amours!
Meet me at Dawn
starring
WILLIAM EYTHE
and
HAZEL COURT • MARGARET RUTHERFORD
STANLEY HOLLOWAY • BASIL SYDNEY
Today
An Excelsior Film Production Released by 20th Century-Fox
CAROLINA

Let's Get together
PHILIP MORRIS is so much better to smoke!
PHILIP MORRIS & Co. Ltd. Inc.
MADE IN U.S.A.
PHILIP MORRIS offers the smoker an extra benefit found in no other cigarette. For PHILIP MORRIS is the ONE, the ONLY cigarette recognized by leading nose and throat specialists as definitely less irritating.
Remember: Less irritation means more smoking enjoyment for you.
Yes! If every smoker knew what PHILIP MORRIS smokers know, they'd all change to PHILIP MORRIS.
CALL FOR PHILIP MORRIS
TRY A PACK... TODAY

LIBRARY (Pol...
...ers. / of North Carolina
Chapel Hill... C.
1-31-48



THE DAILY TAR HEARST

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS WE PRINT

VOL. ? NO. ? CHAPEL HILL, THURSDAY, APRIL 1, 1948 YOU COUNT THE PAGES

TRAGEDY EXPOSES FINANCIAL SCANDAL

Story on Page 3

FOUL PLAY IS SUSPECTED IN THE BLOODY DEATHS OF TOM ELLER (RIGHT) AND ERNEST HOUSE. (PHOTO BY FLASH YARBOROUGH)

ORGY ENDS WITH WRECK

By SCOOP JOYNER

A sordid tale of lust and drunken orgies which culminated in the wrecking of a stolen car came to light here yesterday with the arrest of two prominent student government officials.

The two, Donleen MacDonald, head of the Women's Honor council and Jack Folger, vice-president of the student body were discovered in a drunken stupor amid the wreckage of their stolen vehicle on a suburban Chapel Hill street yesterday afternoon.

Daily Tar Hearst photographer "Flash" Yarborough, owner of the 1948 Dodge convertible in which the pair was "joy riding" made the discovery when he went in search of his car, missing from its parking spot beside Graham Memorial.

The quick thinking photographer snapped a picture (right) of the pair sprawled in the wrecked car and surrounded by empty whiskey bottles before he called in local police.

As the ever-alert defectives investigated the affair they slowly unraveled a story of secret weekend trips and wild beach parties dating back to the summer of 1947. Both Folger and the MacDonald woman heretofore had had unblemished reputations. They were considered by their associates to be outstanding examples of sobriety and propriety.

The evidence, however, told a different story and the pair are now lodged in the Orange County jail in default of $2,000 bond each while awaiting trial on charges including drunken driving and automobile theft.

WRECK DISCLOSES SECRET LIVES—A telephone pole put an end to this drunken joy ride for Student Body Vice President Jack Folger and Women's Honor Council President Donleen MacDonald. Arrest by police for theft of the automobile uncovered a sordid story of wild orgies in the secret double existence of the two student officials.
(Photo by Flash Yarborough)

Coed Compulsory Meeting

A compulsory meeting of all coeds will be held today in Memorial hall at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Candidates will be presented and the bill for abolishment of the Coed Senate will be discussed.

Coed Wins Acclaim With Book on Males

By SCOOP GIBSON

Miriam Evans, coed from the outlying hills of Asheville, will soon win national acclaim and a place on non-fiction best seller lists for her forthcoming "The Date Behavior of the Carolina Male", according to advance sales announced by Ransome House publishers today.

"The Mensey Report", as Miss Evans' expose is commonly called, was written under the penname of Lynn Belvacuss. The clever authoress masqueraded as the innocent president of Smith dormitory in cahoots with Mrs. Elmer C. Dali, housemother and survivor of three husbands.

At last she obtained inside information to reveal how a coed thinks with accompanying figures.

By noting what every female student in Smith dormitory told her roommate not to dare tell anyone else, Miss Evans compiled some shocking facts to enlighten the public.

Her statistics proved without doubt that 99.99 per cent of the female students considered liked men, Nan Reid refusing to make the answer unanimous. Another 23 per cent did not care what model '48 automobile their dates own.

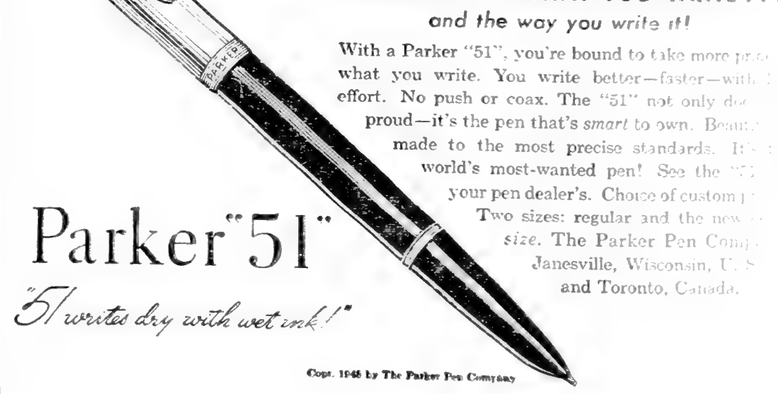
Ransome House would release no further data but hinted that Kathleen Winsor was intensly jealous. Julia Ross, Pi Phi literite, has already planned to sue for $69,000,000, charging plagiarism on the basis that handling "Men and What We Women Want" was originally her idea.

Miss Evans is active on campus as an adviser on the Women's Dishonor council; a member of the Frail, honorary society; and intermural tiddlewinks champion. She transferred from Piece College in Raleigh and is now a senior majoring in archeology and Spanish 1.

CANDIDATES MEETING

Elections board chairman, Al Winn, has announced that candidates who missed Tuesday's compulsory meeting may qualify by attending a meeting this afternoon at 4:30 in Gerrard hall. The candidates must pay a $1 fine and present a written excuse.

Scales Names Commies



By SCOOP [illegible]

[illegible]

student [illegible]
business [illegible]
Lindsay [illegible]
member [illegible]
literary [illegible]
Magazine [illegible]

CAUSE FOR AMERICAN PRIDE

JEFFERSON'S ROUGH DRAFT OF THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

A Declaration By the Representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in General Congress assembled

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature & of nature's god entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal & independent that from that equal creation they derive rights inherent & inalienable, among which are the preservation of life, & liberty, & the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, & to institute new government, laying it's foundation on such principles & organising it's powers in such form, as to them

Part of the original manuscript of the Declaration of Independence written by Thomas Jefferson. It is now on display aboard the "Freedom Train." The revisions shown were included in the document finally presented to the Continental Congress.

BE PROUD OF WHAT YOU WRITE . . .
and the way you write it!

With a Parker "51", you're bound to take more pride in what you write. You write better—faster—with less effort. No push or coax. The "51" not only does the proud—it's the pen that's smart to own. Beautifully made to the most precise standards. It's the world's most-wanted pen! See the "51" at your pen dealer's. Choice of custom points. Two sizes: regular and the new demi-size. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin, U.S.A. and Toronto, Canada.

Parker "51"

"51" writes dry with wet ink!"

Copr. 1948 by The Parker Pen Company

X MARKS THE SPOT where Dean K. K. Carmichael stood when Ogler Shotts ogled her from nearby bush (X marks the spot). Shotts has been apprehended for his criminal act.

UNC Dean of Women Ogled in Arboretum

By SCOOP STANFORD

Claude Shotts, formerly the esteemed secretary of the [illegible] YMCA, was today [illegible] astute and shrewd detective [illegible] the Chapel Hill police department, recalled [illegible] "Claude the Clipper," infamous ogler of fe[illegible] wanted by the police [illegible] and one half states, in[illegible]

"The Clipper" was caught red-handed in the outskirts of the Arboretum in the act of ogling University Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael while she was tripping through the glen en route to a coed beer party being held in her honor on the [illegible] of Alderman.

[illegible] coming aware of [illegible] distressful dean fled [illegible] and reported the [illegible] Officer John Q [illegible]

KATHERINE CARMICHAEL
Eyed in Arboretum

CLAUDE SHOTTS
He Ogled Dean

[illegible] efficient former Confederate soldier now directing [illegible] traffic in front of the Y court, Officer Nimblefoot immediately [illegible] the ace sleuths of the city force, and by following [illegible] trail of discarded [illegible] they arrested "Claude the Clipper" while he was adjusting his binoculars and preparing to feast himself on the [illegible] of ELIZ P.

[illegible] submitted [illegible] peaceably [illegible] ter a 45-[illegible] his true [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of Shotts [illegible] S. Adolf [illegible] reer [illegible] the looks [illegible] to all the [illegible]

[illegible] the face of this overwhelming evidence, the despicable broke down and confessed. He pleaded for mercy and was alleged to have insisted that this was his first offense for some years as he had been "going straight."

"It was just spring, fellows," he said. "I lost control."

The kind johns, touched by the explanation, gave the fallen youth leader a cell overlooking the street and let him keep his binoculars while

Rubish Weds Aiken

By SCOOP NACHMAN

YORK, S. C., March 31—Miss Martha Aiken was married this morning, but the Wallace club still goes on.

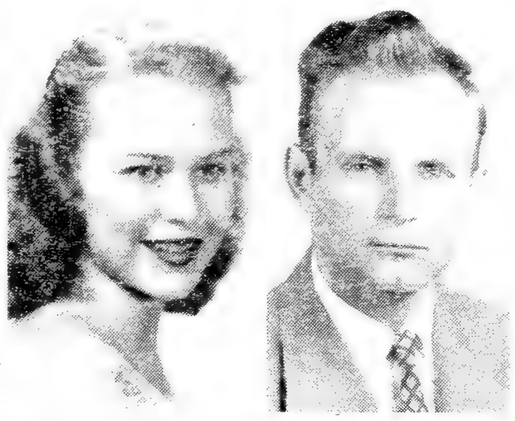
In a simple but quiet ceremony held in the Gretna Green of the South, Miss Martha Aiken became Mrs. Michael Rubish. The wedding was attended only by a few close friends and political enemies. Mother of the wedding was [illegible] early this morning in an exclusive interview with [illegible] Miss Aiken by a Tar Heel Hearst reporter, in which the bride wore pink.

[illegible] commenting on the quick marriage, Mrs. Rubish said, "This is definitely a political move."

Double Death Exposes Eller, House, Hazlett In Financial Scandal

By SCOOP HAUSER

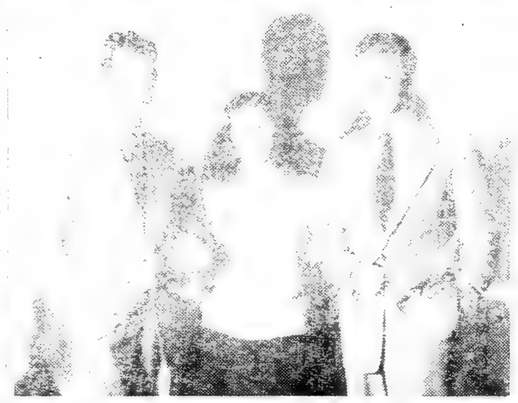
Death sat in the student government offices last night. He sat and watched over the bodies of two high officers in the local executive and legislative set-up — President Tom Eller and Ernest House, chairman of the Legislature Finance committee.



As curiosity-seekers tiptoed into the office to catch a glimpse of the ghastly scene of horror, a scandal gradually uncovered itself — a scandal like of which has not struck the Carolina campus since William Richardson Davie tied his horse to the poplar tree which now bears his name, threw a beer bust, and decided to establish a state university — all in the year 1789.

House, investigating officers discovered, had been embezzling student funds in his capacity as Finance committee chairman. Eller, while making a routine check of student government books, had run across the theft and confronted the guilty party. House apparently threatened Eller with blackmail about the president's Graham Memorial love life, resulting in the campus chief executive's shooting the financier in the chest with a Colt .45 automatic (suspected to be surrepticiously stolen from the U. S. government) and then putting the weapon to his own temple and pulling the trigger a second time.

In an exclusive interview with the local coroner, the Daily Tar Hearst learned that even though a murder-suicide was indicated by the evidence, that a possible double-murder was suspected. The coroner pointed out that two lipstick-stained cigaret butts were in ashtrays on the desk over which Eller's body was slumped.



"If there's a woman involved, there's bound to be foul play," he declared. The name of one Liz Hazlett, known criminal convicted of three axe-murders, was mentioned, but the coroner added that an empty Camel cigaret pack was found on the desk also (See picture, page 1), and that Winston-Salem police had been alerted to keep an eye out for the alleged murderess. The coroner would not reveal any more facts on the case. Local police were also silent.

They Figure In Killings

WHEN STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT Tom Eller (right) confronted Ernie House, chairman of the legislature finance committee with evidence of book juggling, House threatened him with blackmail involving beautiful blonde Liz Hazlett. The incident led to gunplay in which Eller killed House, then committed suicide.

Candidates, Redhead Involved in Triangle

THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE is pictured by Jess Dedmond (left), Charlie Long (right), and Annie Ben Beale. The three figured in a sordid civil suit filled in Superior Court in Hillsboro yesterday morning.

By SCOOP WHITEHALL

HILLSBORO, March 31—A tangled-up triangle between two Carolina presidential candidates and an alleged gold-digger came to light in Superior Court here this morning when charitable Charlie Long and generous Jess Dedmond presented suit against the fickle Annie Ben Beale for the return of numerous bracelets, necklaces, car rings and various cash gifts they say they have given to her during the past year.

Beale, who is reported to have a record on file as long as the Bell Tower, was only recently acquitted of a murder in Tintop. The hardened red-head had been charged by an anonymous stool pigeon, with rubbing out her roommate. The acquittal came through lack of corpus dilecti, but not before the prosecution had subtly pointed out that Beale had been seen skulking around the University incinerator the day the victim disappeared.

"This whole business is entirely too sordid for my court room," the judge declared, after he had heard testimony on methods of payment for the Long-Dedmond gifts.

"Nol pros," the judge concluded, "and you my dear Miss Beale, may see me in my chambers after court."

Campus Calendar

—THIS IS AUTHENTIC—

2:30 p.m. — Grail, Grail room
4:00 p.m. — Young Democrats, Roland Parker lounge
5:00 p.m. — World Federalists, Grail
5:00 p.m. — Women's Glee club, Hill hall
7:00 p.m. — World Federalists, 203 Alumnae
7:30 p.m. — Law Wives Bridge club, Horace Williams house
7:30 p.m. — WNC, Roland Parker No. 1 and 2
7:30 p.m. — Gastonia club, Roland Parker No. 3
7:30 p.m. — Young Republican club, Graham Memorial

Miss Puddles

By PUDDLES GASTON

Dear Miss Puddles,

Do you think the atomic bomb will ever replace sex?

Worried

Dear Worried,

I hear that liquor is here to stay, and women are on their way out — I haven't thought about the bomb. My only advice is to make merry while you can.

Dear Miss Puddles,

I am a woman with ten children. My husband doesn't love me. What shall I do?

Forsaken

Dear Forsaken,

Do nothing. Just think if he did love you.

Dear Miss Puddles,

I am a" lady in waiting" of 65. Some even refer to me as old maid. What shall I do?

Horrified

Dear Horrified,

What can you do?

Dear Miss Puddles,

I am 18-years-old, and I still can't wear lipstick. Do you think my mother is being fair about the matter?

Disgusted

Dear Disgusted,

She is being considerate — I'm sure your dates will agree with me.

Dear Miss Puddles,

Should I get married?

Friendly

Dear Friendly,

More facts are necessary before I can answer that question. Probably yes.

Dear Miss Puddles,

My hair looks terrible. What should I do?

Perplexed

Dear Perplexed,

Comb it.

Dear Miss Puddles,

I am young, beautiful, and I use soap. I am dated up for months to come. But alas, I have no problems, and I am bored.

Bored

My Dearest Bored,

What kind of soap do you use?

Miss Puddles.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

Sorry — No Ad Today — We're Closed Thursdays — HARRY'S

Eat at Dentzler's—And You'll Be Filled—Not Fooled

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVeral more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Prices right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

24 FOOT GLIDER HOUSE TRAILer. Inquire Lot No. 76, University Trailer Court, after 6 p. m. (1-1882-1)

SMALL HOUSE LOCATED ON large lot. Two bedrooms. 33 Oakwood Drive, T. V. Cauble. Telephone F-3217. (1-1883-1)

SMALL REMINGTON PORTABLE typewriter. Excellent condition. $30, 309 Whitehead. (1-1886-1)

TONY PASTOR'S ORCHESTRA here April 10th. Anyone desiring May Frolics bids, contact George Trotter. Phone No. 3031. (1-1390-1)

24 FOOT AMERICAN HOUSE trailer. Excellent for couple with children. 207 Swain Hall Trailer Park. (1-1891-1)

23 FOOT LA SALLE HOUSE trailer in good condition. Ideal location. Inquire at No. 26 University Trailer Court. (1-1891-1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMbers with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, YMCA. Raleigh, N C (ch 1x2)

MEN OVER TWENTY WITH ability to lead and work with boys. To serve ten weeks this summer as counselors on staff at Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Good pay, wonderful environment, room and board. Only those with outstanding qualifications need apply. Apply J. Watson Holyfield, Director of Camp Sea Gull, Raleigh Y. M. C. A. Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1x3)

HELP WANTED 8

PART TIME HELP. MUST BE available from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. See Whid Powell, Colonial House. (ch 1x1)

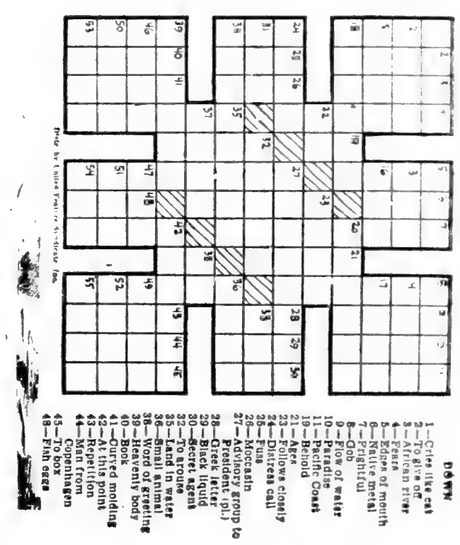
SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 122 West Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGburn Furniture Co., Phone 5841 (ch 1x1)

WANTED 24

SOMEONE TO SHARE ROOM IN town. Call F-3872. (1-1884-1)

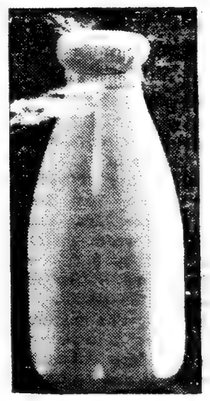


LOST 12

SMALL WHITE GOLD LADIES watch. Black cord band with safety chain guard on clasp. Lost Thursday near Carolina Theater. Reward. Mrs. S. A. Nathan, Phone 4831. (ch 1x1)

LOST STRAYED, OR STOLEN one friendly yellow male cat. If you have any information contact L. F. Fuller, 118 Daniels Road. (1-1887-1)

For Sale Automotive 6BB



BUICK 1938 FOURDOOR SEDAN in good condition. Original owner, paint, excellent, interior clean, engine sound. Heater. F-2312. (1-C1888-1)

Jerry the Tailor
OVER
N. C. CAFETERIA

REHDERS
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

PRESCRIPTIONS
Filled Promptly
ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY
—at—
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

SPRING TONIC

The best in the world— for young and old alike Rich creamy milk bottled with our special "sealed hood" caps.

TRY IT TODAY

Durham Road Dairy
SERVING CHAPEL HILL 34 YEARS

Peace of Mind
—JOSHUA LOTH LIEBMAN

The Great Snow
—HENRY MORTON ROBINSON

Ab's Intimate Bookshop

HAVE YOU TRIED OUR PLATE LUNCH?

11 AM to 2 PM

Dinner from 5 to 8 PM

VILLAGE GRILL

SANDWICHES DRINKS SNACKS

DAILY TAR HEARST

The Chapel Hill Newspaper

...ril Fool Tel. NOrthside 777

...ued once in a lifetime by the Mills and Stone Syndicate Co. ...200 Graham Memorial, Chapel Hill 1, N. C. Mail Subscription ... one case Blatz, Canada, Canadian Club. For the Centennial ... April Fool editions: two cases Blatz. Three cases Canadian ... President and general manager, Cove M. Skin; executive editor ... Bu...

Member of the Press

...is entitled exclusively to the use of reproduction of all ...printed in this newspaper as well as all Press dispatches.

NO MORE BATCHELOR BUTTONS

A time-worn phrase is the one that states: "A man's best friend is his mother." In an era in which women are homemakers, police, cab drivers, barbers, doctors and even truck drivers all we can say is, "The army's for the women." Mothers, and females in general, are the ones to train in the wars of tomorrow.

Pushbutton warfare was made for the women. They have been pushing baby carriages around for centuries; now is their chance to give them the glory of wars.

Take the word of the experts. The men who know. Each of them will tell you that the army of yesterday is antiquated. As was brought to the attention of the public recently, warfare has changed from the days when the army which got there "fustest with the mostest" had the advantage and would be the victor. Now, in this age of atomic power, robot planes and fountain pens that write under molten metal, the female gender is best qualified to buckle down to the task of pushing buttons. No longer is there a need for batchelor buttons.

Another reason that adds strength to our beliefs is the fact that this, leap year, is geared for the women. On all fronts the women should be given plenty to push buttons during the next war. ...ed on this "Cold War." Currently President ... requesting that Congress give him the ... all the draft machinery and Universal ...ing. Now would be the time to install ...s for the Women only. Turn about is ... anything is fair in love and war.

...ding the calculations of some of the more ...ed scientists and mathematicians, it has been ... women of the United States could learn ...ne warfare of pushing buttons in eleven ...ys it would save the government billions of ... because it cuts off one month training period ...e proposed 12-month UMT for men.

...experts contribute this "feel for the buttons" ... fact that women have been handling buttons ...ars. They've sewed them, yanked them, crushed ...and button-holed men. Now let them push them.

...don't you use your head?

...mean why don't you use some part of it except teeth. You can't chew gum forever.

...'d be a fool.

Use Your Head Don't Fret

You think this mud is all the work of God almighty, don't you?

It's the damned Communists who are doing it.

...the sleep out of your eyes and get your head ...What's the matter? Didn't you ever go to school? ...sure it's the Communists. Who else but a dirty ...Red would think of spreading a lot of slime on ...walk. Nobody. Of course Ask Frank Graham. ...tell you.

...better than that. Ask General MacArthur. He's our man.

If you need any further proof. Look at these words: Moscow. Mud.

See, the first letter in each word is M.

What do you want? An affidavit?

(We don't know who was king before Solomon, but we know who was king affidavit.)

Requiring Pornographer

By Scoop Brassy

The Tar Hearst will print every timely, interesting question submitted and used in this column if $5 is enclosed with the question.

THE QUESTION

Do You think it will rain?

THE PLACE

Barber Shop, Graham Memorial.

THE ANSWERS

Johnny Clampitt, casanova: It's springtime and it always rains in the springtime. I know it's springtime because even the trees are putting out. Don't tell anybody I said this, now.

Junius Scales, chairman of the Communist party of Chapel Hill: Historically, it must rain. Think of the farmers. Think of the working man on his way home from the factory. Don't you think the farmer needs rain? Don't you think the workingman should have a gentle shower to wash the capitalist-tortured perspiration off his brow. You don't? You wait. Comes the revolution, we'll have rain every day. Just you wait. Doggone your vampire-like hide Joe will make it rain.

Walter Spearman, journalism professor: "Yep, believe it will. I was thinking just this morning that it was going to rain because I was getting stiff in the joints. My rheumatism never fails. Reliable as a barometer.

John Van Hecke, joker: Yeah, like Walter I was getting stiff in the joints. Just last night, as a matter of fact. Went to Harry's, the Campus, University, Jeff's. If it does rain, and I say it will, it'll rain 3.2 beer. Pretty sure sign is when my yellow tie turns purple. Even surer sign is when I turn purple.

Julia Ross, Poetess and belle: "Well, I think it would be real nice if it did. Rain is so pretty. I mean on the grass and everything. Really, I think it would be awfully nice. Don't you, Charlie? Oh, but you know you do. Just think of the small rain. It's so sweet.

VICE OF THE PEOPLE

Please give name and address with your letter. We will uphold both in request.

ARMED THE HORSE

CARRBORO: With the national presidential elections coming up and all old-line parties in a dither as to who to run, I think the time has come to consider Armed, who is the undoubtedly the fastest dark horse in the field. Besides, he is whole horse, not just a portion of one, like the rest of the candidates.

Yours for dirtier politics

Name witheld due to lack of spelling ability.

WHY THE FISH

ALDERMAN: I am just a l'il ole thing who's jist come ovah from WC. I don't know nothin' about sex or anything. So I just thought I would ask you if you could tell us why all these boys are going around wearin' fish on their chests.

Innocently,

Millicent Midol

Editor's note: Just for the hallibut, Millicent, just for the hallibut.

ABOVE CALIBER

Tintop: I just want to know why we don't have more April Fool Issues like this one we are having today?

I realize people often write in and ask silly questions but I feel this is above the usual caliber, don't you?

Anxiously awaiting your reply (I shall even get up five minutes earlier to get the Tar Heel.)

Eager Evelyn

Editor's Note: Yes.

WARNING

QUONSET NO. 22: I am flat on my stomach in Fetzer Field. I have staggered here and fallen to scratch out this message on the back of a Tums container. I am dying but my last thought is of my fellow students. As I writhe in pain here on the muddy turf, I beseech you. Stay away from Lenoir hall.

A Late Friend

to comment on such a ridiculous statement in the first place.

The Buildings Department has been notified of the leak.

LOTTA BUNKS

Stacy Dormitory. . . .We here in Stacy have several extra bunks. President Saleeby asked that I write and notify you of this fact. We will accept applications from any females, age limit 24, height 5'5", weight 105, hair preferably blonde. No others need apply. These bunks are in rooms with some of the most congenial Carolina gentlemen. Applications shold be delivered in person to Room 312, Stacy.

Congenial Charlie McGillicudy

BEER LOWERED

Chapel Beer Co. Inc. . . .As of April 2, the price of beer per bottle will be lowered to eight cents each. We feel that this is only fair since the students have already purchased enough beer from local cafes this year to more than insure local owners a million dollar profit. The merchants request the cooperation of all patrons in not forcing them to accept more than eight cents.

Blatz Schlitz Budwieser

WOMEN ASSIGNMENTS

Housing Office. . . .The University housing office wishes to announce a new room assignment policy whereby the women's dorms will be turned into recreation halls and coeds will live in tents in the Arboretum. This policy will go into effect immediately. Space in the former dormitories will be allotted on a first come, first serve basis.

Johnathan J. Jabcoski

-Booters-

(Continued from page 6)

the ball the length and breadth of the field out of reach of any opponents.

For goalies, Allen is planning still another perfect man. The goaltender of the future will stand at least seven feet tall and will measure no less than six feet from shoulder to shoulder. He will have three legs, one for propelling goal kicks over the heads of the opposition. The other two will be webbed to make it impossible for errant balls to slip into the goal mouth.

To Award First Bone

DAN THE DOG

Gertie's Garter Will Bear Watching At Carrboro Dog Race Track Opening

By SCOOP VADEN

The Carrboro Association for the Advancement of Dog Races announced yesterday the opening of Saradoga, a new six-furlong, million dollar race track, situated on the outskirts of Carrboro, five miles from the nearest fire plug.

With the announcement of the opening came a statement concerning the track's policy. It is the intention of the owners to admit all popular dogs on the University of North Carolina's campus to enter any one of the four daily races.

Today's opening race at the new mud-path is the ever popular claiming race for strays. A big favorite in this event is Wallace Club, running under Crimson and black colors and managed by Widely Red. Kollege Boy, a definite sleeper who bears watching in neck and neck affairs, will be running in the post position with the DTH Kennels colors.

The second race, with eight entries scheduled, will feature Cockers, two years and up. Gertie's Garter, owned by Fond Recollection Kennels, bears watching and should finish right up near the top, if the going is smooth.

The third and feature race of the day, Feline Fillies, is slated to be one of the closest affairs of the day, with such famous names as Coed Charm, sired by Eager Beaver, Cash Register, who might end up in the money, and Bowler Boy Dannie, a fast mudder, entered.

The last race on the card, the Human Race, will feature many of the big dogs from the Chapel Hill Kennels. Post time is scheduled for 4:45.

Olympics Here?

A notoriously reliable source revealed yesterday afternoon that Chapel Hill is in the running for the 1952 Olympic games.

This leak did not come as a surprise to many as leak are very common nowadays and are to be expected. No one in the local athletic department was available for comment at presstime as no one ever knows what time the paper will go to press anyhow.

It was doubted that anyone would be stupid enough to comment anyway.

ARENA GRAPPLERS

Battling Bill Kemp took a hard-earned decision from Marvin Wilson last night in the Woollen Arena. The two battled on even terms through the first two hour periods, but Kemp pulled a railway switch on his adversary in the final stanza for the victory. Kemp weighed in at 175 pounds, Wilson at 121.

George Barclay . . . . Of 1934 Vintage

All-American Guard May Return

By SCOOP SCHAAP

The startling announcement that Carolina's 1934 All-American guard, George Barclay, may play football next fall for Coach Carl Snavely's Tar Heels, came yesterday afternoon from the Athletic department.

The reason that Barclay may play said the announcement is that a recent check on the record books of the University show that the one-time great has one more year of eligibility left at Caro'ina which he may take advantage of next season.

George Barclay

Barclay, reached at his Maryland home yesterday in a thrilling person-to-person call, revealed that he was seriously considering returning to his alma mater and pooling his talents with that of Charlie Justice and company for one more fling as he put it, "at fame and glory."

Barclay was the first All-American in the history of the school. He is now coaching at the University of Maryland, but as far as the AAU is concerned, Barclay is still an amateur. "We have heard he plays dime seats," an AAU spokesman told a Hearst hireling, "but this report has never been substantiated."

Sports Writers Exchange Portables For Pigskins

By TWO BIG SCOOPS

The result of covering Carolina football games for the past few years has finally caught up with two Daily Tar Hearst sports scribes who, according to Coach Carl Snavely, will take over the tailback and fullback positions on next season's Tar Heel eleven.

Such was the startling announcement coming forth from yesterday's rainy-day practice, the third session of the Spring drills. The rising grid luminaries took part in their initial workouts on Tuesday, but Cagey Fox withheld names of the new stars until yesterday to allow for the necessary press releases to be prepared.

Forming the Tar Heel's Touchdown Twin duo will be Get-it-and-Go Goldwater, a triple-threat tailback terror, and Chug-Chug Carmichael, a triple-threat fullback fiend. Noting their ability to toss footballs around on the sports page and never one to pass up talent, Snavely ordered the lads into uniform when they came down to report on Tuesday's drill. The rest of the story will go down in history.

Both boys, according to the coaching staff, are naturals at their positions. Get-it-and-Go Goldwater ,a marvel at sizing up the terrain, will be the Mr. Outside of the combination and earned early fame as the Broom Man with his end-sweep runs. He is supposedly the greatest ground-gainer since General Patton.

Chug-Chug Carmichael, sonsidered the Human Cyclotron, is the Inside Man on the skunk-the-opposition works and is renowned for his bone-crushing atomized smashes through the middle. He was named the Hit-and-Run Pile Driver of the Gridiron in prep-school

The acquisition of the pair, Snavely pointed out, will be the biggest thing that has happened to Carolina athletics "since my return to Chapel Hill." Predicting that "We ought to win every game by 30 points with the Twins in the lineup," the Cagey Fox went on to say that both players loom as certain All-Americans.

Several lineup changes will be needed to make room for

(See T-TWINS, page 7)

Hearnmen Won't Play For Peanuts

By SCOOP JENRETTE

"We Won't Play For Peanuts".

That was the cry of the North Carolina baseball team as they returned home from spring training in Burlington Tuesday. The players were sick and tired of the way that things were being handled and yesterday they decided to say something about it.

It seems the baseballers don't like the playing conditions. And don't like the idea of playing for peanuts. As one player put it, "You get tired of eating those damn gubbers all the time. Either we get Wheaties, or we don't play."

Among the rest of the performers, the story was the same. Rip Ryan, star infielder doesn't like playing conditions around second base. "It looks like a rock pile at San Quentin," he confided to this reporter. "Especially when I'm playing for peanuts."

Still Others

Still other players were up in arms about the locker room facilities. Pitcher Vinnie the Vinner DiLorenzo whined that the shower water was not half as hot as that he had gotten into out on the mound that afternoon, while catcher Sid Varney complained about the lack of mild toilet soap in the showers. And first baseman John Gregory claimed that base runners had shunned him since the supply of deodorant had given out. All complained of playing for paltry peanuts.

The consensus was that a change was needed and signs of "Grab Rabb" and "Dog House" have appeared around the dressing room. Another asked for "No More Peanuts".

The players' demands did not stop there. Some others wanted the dugouts equipped with life jackets in case of sudden cloud bursts, while it was suggested that the dugouts be reinforced to protect the players against flying bottles, cliches, and peanut shells.

If Don't

If the diamond men don't get their demands, they may turn to drastic action it was indicated. Some of the players suggested a walkout, to which slugger Kenny Black remarked, "I've walked so much of late, one more time won't hurt me." And that seems to be the general feeling it was a different story for veteran Coach Bunn Hearn.

From the management prepared to change its honored words to a new ring. "From now on," he "We'll win some, we'll some, and some they'll out."

Field manager Walter Wimp Rabb was silent the whole question, but no experts doubted that Bunn Hearn, being experienced baseball men, would many called strike.

Allen, Genetics Boys Raising Soccer Stars

By SCOOP FOX

Queried yesterday about his nocturnal conferences with genetics experts from the zoology and biology departments, soccer Coach Marvin Allen revealed that he is attempting to develop a process whereby he could develop a strain of left-footed players.

That was only one of the many experiments that the mastermind of the shinbusters is conducting in his subterranean laboratory, deep in the sub-basement of Venable hall.

The need for a steady stream of "wrong-footed" booters was emphasized recently by the graduation of the few men whom Allen had been able to corral for his aggregation. The mentor realized that he couldn't depend on nature taking her course and would have to supplement Ma whenever possible to remove any possibility of a shortage at any time in the future.

Next on the list of pr to strengthen Carolina's soc prospects is to develop a bre of players with tremendo legs, chests, and heads would be regulated to position of the objects would soon wither away.

The need of the tre mentioned parts of the tomy are obvious to dents of the sport with massive leg head-like torsos were hard to beat, but when the tion is equipped with that extend for three feet above the shoulders team would be able to (See BOOTERS, page

Today's Racing Form

BY SCOOP TOUT

Saradoga

April 1, 1948

WEATHER: Doggy and Damp TRACK: Possibly

FIRST RACE—Claiming Race, For all strays—Post time: When nature calls—Distance: actual—Prize: Going to dogs.

Post Pos.	Entry	Comment
1	Morning Yawning	Good in the Stretch
2	Wallace Club	To be Heard From
3	Eight O'Clock	Slow Starter
4	Student Party	Great in the Mud
5	Cashmere	Shows possibilities
6	Mellow Melton	In Every Race
7	College Man	Sleeper
8	Temptation	Hard to Overcome

SECOND RACE—For Cocker Spaniels—Two year olds up—Distance: normal—Prize: Crockery.

Post Pos.	Entry	Comment
	Coed Queen	Neck and Neck
	Bottle Beer	May Get Ahead
	Gertie's Garter	Bears Watching
4	Civil Rights	Horse of a Different color
	Perfect Prof	Knows His Oats
	Import	Always First Choice
	Mosquito Bite	May Be Scratched
	Stuffy Nose	Continually Running

THIRD RACE—Feline Phillies—Post time: when [illegible]—Stake: Medium Rare.

Post Pos.	Entry	Comment
	[illegible] Machine	Running Well Lately
	[illegible]	Another Sleeper
	[illegible]	May Not Leave Stall
4	[illegible]	Good Finisher
	[illegible]	Might Not Show
	Cash Register	Always in the Money
	Fuse Button	Should Ring the Bell

FOURTH RACE—The CANINE CUP—Post time: Yes—Race: Country mile—Prize: Pick of bones at Lenoir Hall [illegible] shoe from Julians.

Post Pos.	Entry	Comment
	Staff Photographer	May Develop
	Party Pooper	Tires Fast
	Hole-in-One	Long Shot
4	Fairy Tale	Odd Bet
	Moonshine	Sure to Finish
	Locomotive	Good on the rail
	Coed Charm	Always Out in Front

[illegible] BET: Don't

FOWLER'S FOOD STORE

Dial F-416

East Franklin Street

We Deliver

-T-Twins-

(Continued from page 6)

the new players. Snavely indicated that last year's tailback, Chas Justice, would be shifted to blocking back where he might amount to something." Hose Rodgers will plug the center position in the cheery [illegible] stated.

[illegible] on the loss of [illegible] Daily Tar [illegible] Sports Minister [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE DAILY TAR HEARST

GRAY FOX SNARES TOUCHDOWN TWINS

Story on P

BICEPS BARBARA LYNN, Dolphin swimming damsel, displays her winning freestyle form while receiving the most valuable trophy at the National Amateur swimming competition at Leech Beach, Cal. Miss Lynn was easily the best in her class and won the honors hands down as shown in the picture. (Complete story on page 10).

TOUCHDOWN TWINS Bullet Ball Carmichael, left, and Southpaw B[illegible] C[illegible] water practice hitting dimes at 50 yards in Spring grid drills. (Photo by F[illegible])

CAROLINA'S CRACK COED field hockey squad is shown preparing for their rugged 36-game schedule this spring. In the middle of the fast and furious action above is Marge "Deadeye" Goodplayer. "Deadeye" was recently cleared by the Southern conference eligibility board despite charges of unethical playing by Duke athletic officials. Last season, she scored an amazing total of 447 goals in 21 contests

"IF I DON[illegible] [illegible] peanuts, "[illegible] basketball." [illegible] declaration [illegible] day afternoon [illegible] Lorenzo, se[illegible] of the Hee[illegible] 'Besides," [illegible] can go back [illegible] baseball um[illegible] Kitten Brecheen.

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER

Partly cloudy and cooler.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS

Election Poll
Mudville Mutterings
Pro and Anti-UMT

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, APRIL 2, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 130

Graham Gives First Indonesian Report; Talk Gets Ovation From Capacity Crowd

Deafening Applause Greets President After Introduction

By Charlie Gibson

Dr. Frank P. Graham won an ovation from a capacity crowd in Memorial hall Wednesday morning with his first public report on his trip to Indonesia as an envoy of peace.

The auditorium was filled to overflowing with many students, faculty members, and townspeople standing throughout the convocation ceremonies to welcome Dr. Graham back to the campus. Deafening applause met the president of the Greater University when Chancellor Robert B. House introduced him with assurance that, "we love him and we feel at our best when he is around."

Di Praised

Chancellor House also praised the Dialectic Senate for asking that Dr. Graham be presented in the regular University series. Charlie Long, speaker of the Di, presided over the program which the Reverend B. C. Cooper began with an invocation.

Dr. Graham spoke very informally on the problems he faced as the U. S. representative on a three-man Committee of Good Offices, appointed by the UN Security council to effect a truce between Indonesia and the Netherlands. He paid high tribute to Henry Brandis of the University law school who accompanied him as a special adviser and played an important role in treaty negotiations.

Don't Breathe

One of the most well-received incidents of the Graham speech came when "Dr. Frank," as he is affectionately called, explained that a "Good Officer" is not supposed to have any public opinions. "In fact, he is not supposed to breathe without permission of both governments."

Tracing a brief history of Indonesia, a "land of stubborn dikes and generous blood", Dr. Graham told how withstanding and then enduring Japanese invasion in the last war had given the 70,000,000 people a feeling that they should be independent. He told of a somewhat vain revolution against the Netherlands that led the UN to step into the one-sided fracas as a last resort to stop hostilities.

Rendezvous With Destiny

Of the treaty finally reached to promise Indonesia independence on January 1, 1949, Dr. Graham said, "In this truce and in these principles, the people of the Netherlands, the people of the Republic and all of the people of Indonesia have, under God, a rendezvous with a larger destiny of creative cooperation in a time and in a world in need of the best which these historic peoples can give together."

TOM KERR AND CHUCK HAUSER (left to right) are running on the Student party ticket for publications positions—Kerr for editor of Tarnation and Hauser for junior member to the Publications board. The former is present assistant editor of Tarnation while Hauser is working as news editor of the Daily Tar Heel.

Winn Says Candidates Missing Meet To Have Final Qualifying Opportunity

A compulsory meeting of all candidates who missed Tuesday's mass meeting is scheduled for 3 o'clock today in the student government office in Graham Memorial.

Al Winn, chairman of the Elections board, said yesterday that it is compulsory for all candidates who missed the first meeting to appear, prepared to submit a valid excuse and pay the $1 fine necessary for qualification.

Winn said that this will be the candidates' last chance to qualify for the coming elections.

Those required to be present are: Campus party, John Miles, Dan Martin and Jake Lambert; Student party, Jack Park and Gil Burnett; University party, George Sibold, Dick Bunting, George Dunlop, Gene Turner, Bill Benbow and Willie Marjorie Riddick. One independent candidate is required to appear, Charlie Smith.

Non-Partisan board candidate: Gene Jones.

Coeds who must attend the meeting are: Carolyn Guthrie, Sibyl Mitchell, Catherine Hovis, Lucille Olive, Meg Healy, Ruth Lassiter, Ruth Manning, Gloria Peters, Conner Reed, Mary Louise Powe, Simone Basset, Jo Benton, Dot Knott, Lola Mustard, Edith Semat, Betsy Tom Lawrence and Nancy Pendleton.

YACK COPY FINISHED

Yackety Yack staffers yesterday sent the last of its 1948 Yack copy to the engraver and announced that all but the printing of the 531-page annual had been officially completed.

The job just completed involved filling square 57,348 inches of space.

PETE GERNS, candidate for senior member to the Publications board, is present business manager of Tarnation, an editorial columnist for the Daily Tar Heel, and also parliamentarian of the Student Legislature. Gerns is running on a double endorsement by the Student and Campus parties.

Models Featured In Carolina Mag

A bigger and better Carolina magazine is scheduled to be distributed over the campus today and tomorrow.

Editor Fred Jacobson yesterday indicated that it will be four pages larger than usual and that a concentration on variety "should make it considerably better."

Featuring Ferne Hughes on the cover, a fashion spread with ten coed models, another campus quiz, and advice from successful Carolina alumni as to what in college was most helpful to them, this issue should, Jacobson feels, qualify as the most variegated one to appear this year.

The fashion spread occupies a prominent double page position in the middle of the magazine. Photography for it was handled by Francis Lavergne Johnson.

The advice from alumni carries the answers to a series of questions submitted to graduates who have made names for themselves in business, politics and the professions. It is titled "What About Tomorrow?"

"A Length Beneath the Sky" by Sandy Grady is the outstanding fiction appearing in the issue. It is an unusual treatment of modret auto racers and the men that drive them.

TWO OF NORTH CAROLINA'S gubernatorial candidates, Oscar Barker, left, and Mayne Albright, right, spoke on an open forum program in Hill hall Wednesday night. It was the third time that the two candidates have appeared together on an open forum during the present campaign.

Albright, Barker State Platforms Before CPU

By Sam McKeel

"Now is the time to give a death blow to a political machine that is dead and doesn't know it," Mayne Albright, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, said last night.

Albright and Oscar Barker, Durham county's Democratic entry in the race, were guest speakers on an open forum program sponsored by the Carolina Political union.

Underlying Issue

"There are many issue in this campaign, but the underlying issue is politics itself. The real question before the people of North Carolina is machine control and whether elections are to be won by votes or dollars," said Albright. "The greatest roadblock in the way of progress in North Carolina is the state political machine—flush with money, but bankrupt in vision and ruled by the dead hand of the past."

Albright stated that "under machine control, North Carolina is moving backward instead of forward."

Both Barker and Albright advocate better roads, health, and public welfare.

Barker said that if the services of government are evenly distributed in North Carolina, most of the state's problems will be solved.

"Our public schools have been neglected to a point where the welfare of the children of the state is at stake. We have, likewise, failed to adequately recognize the physical well being of our people," Barker said.

State Failure

He asserted that the primary reason surplus funds have accumulated in the highway and general funds, has been the failure on the part of the state to keep the wages of school teachers and state employees' on a par with the inflated cost of living.

Orange county is the 81st county that Albright has visited on his present campaign tour, made in his trailer field headquarters, the "Challenger." Albright plans to conduct a whirlwind tour of re-visits and speeches during the ast two months of the campaign.

Tony Pastor Band Will Provide Music For May Frolics Weekend, April 9, 10

The nationally famous orchestra of Tony Pastor will furnish music for a concert and two dances during the May Frolics weekend here on April 9 and 10, yesterday announced Bob Beasley, president of the May Frolics and a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Both dances will be in Woollen Gym on the evenings of the ninth and tenth. The concert will be held in Memorial hall Saturday afternoon on the tenth.

Pastor's popular aggregation is currently on a coast-to-coast tour which began with engagements at New York's Paramount Theatre and The Hotel Pennsylvana. The tour will end at the famed Palladium in Hollywood.

Seven fraternities sponsoring the May Frolics are the original members of the German club. They are: Sigma Nu, Kappa Sig, DKE, SAE, Beta, Sigma Chi, and Zeta Psi. They constitute the total of 540 members of the May Frolics who have bids to the concert and dances.

Pastor's rise to fame began when he was a vocalist and saxophone player with Artie Shaw. He left Shaw's band and organized his own. Now Tony Pastor is regarded as one of the great stylists in the music field. Combined with his saxophone talents, the combination rates as a powerful force in dancing.

Debator Jim Spence announced yesterday that a debate tournament with the University of West Virginia would be held here April 6.

Parties Release Platform Planks

Campus Party

In the belief that the objectives contained in the platform appearing below are desirable, the Campus party pledges itself to work towards their achievement.

1. Disapproves and will work to prevent limitation of student automobiles.
2. Disapproves and will represent the students in disapproving Saturday classes.
3. Will continue to make qualifications the sole consideration for choosing candidates.
4. Will support clear, separate honor code and campus code.
5. Advocates re-instatement of freshman chapels for better orientation.
6. Will work for establishment of on-campus barbershop.
7. Telephone for every dormitory floor in quadrangles.
8. Attempt to vacate quonset huts in fall.
9. Establishment of student entertainment series on a sound ap-

(See CAMPUS, page 4)

Student Party

The Student party has worked hard in drawing up this platform and feels that they are planks that effect the student body in every phase of activities.

1. Lower prices and better service at Lenoir Hall; attained by approaching the Board of Trustee's Visiting Committee and asking that Lenoir Hall be paid for by appropriation from the State Legislature.
2. Student-faculty study of curriculum with the intent of bettering said subject for more interesting and more useful studies.
3. A fair, equitable, and proportional redistricting bill due to the students under the Constitution.
4. Non-partisan and working judicial system, within which the student's power to appeal is not denied.
5. A telephone on every dormitory floor or the installation of a call system in all dorms.

(See STUDENT, page 4)

University Party

The University party in order to better serve the interests of the student body does sincerely promise you that it will

PROVIDE:

1. A better student entertainment program such as frequent "Y" Court dances and revival of Music Under The Stars.
2. Student publications representative of popular student opinion.

GIVE:

1. Present students new dormitory preferences over incoming freshmen.
2. Full consideration to student comments and suggestions placed in University Party Suggestion Boxes.

PLAN:

1. A freshman chapel series.
2. A student Post Office.
3. A Student Bank.

This platform was adopted not for wishful thinking but for practicability.

Appellate Jurisdiction Amendment Is Defeated As Group Retains Appeal

Body Passes Measure To Put Unused Money Back In General Fund

By Chuck Hauser

The appellate jurisdiction amendment to the constitution was defeated by a strong negative vote of the Student Legislature last night.

The amendment would have given the Student council sole power to try Honor code violation cases, the Men's and Women's councils sole power to try social violation cases under the Campus code and would have removed the appeal system from student government if it had been passed by the Legislature and afterwards ratified by the student body in Tuesday's general elections.

Weakened Government

Proponents of the bill, Women's Honor council Chairman Donleen MacDonald, presidential candidate Jess Dedmond and former student body president Dewey Dorsett, argued that the present appeal system weakened campus government and the honor system.

Charlie Long, another presidential candidate and former member and speaker pro tem of the legislative body, made a quick rebuttal to their statements on the grounds that the appeal system had never been tried on the campus.

"How Can We Know?"

"An appellate system has never been put into effect, so how can we know whether it will work or not?" Long asked, explaining that a correct appeal procedure had never been put into practice to determine whether or not it could work.

Parliamentarian Pete Gerns attacked the proposed amendment from another angle, pointing out that if the bill were passed, a faculty board of review would be the only appeal outlet to which a student could turn.

Discussing a past run-in with Dean Carroll of the Commerce school, Gerns explained that he had transferred to the School of Political Science.

"And if Mr. Dudley DeWitt Carroll were sitting on the board reviewing my appeal case, I would never have a chance!" Gerns charged.

Following the constitutional amendment's defeat, Finance committee Chairman Ernie House presented a motion to establish definite rules of procedure for the appeal system, but the Legislature would not vote to suspend the rules to bring the bill under consideration last night.

Also passed last night was a bill which would cause all unused portions of monies appropriated by the Legislature to campus organizations to be returned to the general fund.

Under new business, a bill was introduced by Fred Thompson to clarify the number of officers to be elected in all class officer elections on campus. Thompson withdrew his motion after Ed Davenport had offered a bill to provide for five officers in each class election: president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and social chairman. The bill went to committee.

Also sent to committee was a resolution proposed by Herb Alexander to provide for a public "disapproval" of the actions of 'some persons involved" in Tuesday night's anti-anti-UMT demonstration.

WAYNE BRENEGAN AND JOHNNY CLAMPITT (left to right) are on the University party slate for Student council member and vice president of the student body, respectively. Brenegan has served on both the Men's and Student council before, while Clampitt is performing duties now as president of the University Veterans association.

University Party Releases Candidates Seeking Student Council Positions

The University party yesterday released the names of Student council candidates for the coming elections.

Council Nominees May Use Publicity

Candidates nominated for Men's council posts by the Non-Partisan Selection board may put as much personal publicity as they please, up to their legal $10 limit, Elections Board Chairman Al Winn pointed out yesterday.

"Any publicity the board handles," Winn stated, "will include the names of all the candidates it nominated, but the individual nominees may disperse any personal publicity they wish, so long as the cost does not run over the $10 limit provided for in the elections laws."

Cuts of board nominees may also be printed in the Daily Tar Heel if the candidates bring them to the DTH news office. This applies only so far as space permits. Cuts will also be run in the order they are brought in.

CHARLIE LOUDERMILK is a candidate for the Men's Honor council nominated by the Non-Partisan Selection board. Loudermilk is vice chairman of the University party and the only man running for the council who has previously served on it.

Sam Magill, Stuart Bondurant and Weddy Thorpe were nominated by the party for the positions of members-at-large.

Magill, a rising junior, was born in Shanghai, China, while his parents were residing there. He is vice-president of the YM CA, a member of the GM board of directors, co-chairman of WS SF, a member of the track team. He is a member of Delta Psi fraternity and a sociology major.

Bondurant Is Pre-Med

Stuart Bondurant, another rising junior, is a pre-med student from Winston-Salem. He was secretary-treasurer of the freshman class of 1947. A member of the Interfraternity council, Sigma Chi, and AED pre-med fraternity, he has had four years experience on the student council in his high school.

Weddy Thorp is a journalism major from Rocky Mount, N. C. She attended St. Mary's in Raleigh before entering Carolina last fall and is a member of the Coed Senate, the Glee club, the YWCA junior council and society editor of the DTH. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Carmichael, Brenegan, Sibold

Men candidates running on the UP ticket are Martin Carmichael, Wayne Brenegan and George Sibold.

Carmichael is a rising senior from Fairfield, Conn. At Carolina he has served both on the Student council and Men's council. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Wayne Brenegan, from La Crosse, Va., has been co-nominated for the council position by both UP and CP. He is a member of the University Dance committee, the Grail, an incumbent member of the Student council and is in Phi Delta Theta.

George Sibold is a rising senior from Clearwater, Fla.

Hughes, Myatt, Yokley

Nominees for the coed positions on the board are Ferne Hughes, Liddy Bet Myatt and Marjorie Yokely.

Ferne Hughes is a music major from Rainelle, W. Va. She attended Greenbrier Junior college

(See UP, page 4)

Friendship Group To Entertain 150 WC Girls Here

Tomorrow afternoon and evening 150 freshmen from Women's college at Greensboro will visit the campus as guests of the Freshman Friendship council.

The girls will be entertained at a picnic in the afternoon and at an informal dance at night. Tickets for both the picnic and dance combined are one dollar. They may be obtained from members of the Freshman Friendship council or in the "Y" information office today and tomorrow until they have been sold out.

Freshmen are encouraged to atend this affair, but it is open to all upper classmen. There are only 200 tickets available.

The picnic will begin with entertainment at 4:30 in the Forest theater picnic grounds. Supper will be served at 5:30. In case of rain, the picnic will be held in the Pine room of Lenoir hall at the same time.

The dance is scheduled to get underway at 8:30 in Woollen gym. The music will be furnished by recordings.

Dates may be made beforehand or arranged at the picnic.

Both Sides Were at Fault

To date we have received four letters from students commenting on the anti-UMT rally and the pro-UMT protest demonstration. Because of space limitations and because none of the letters conformed to our stipulations concerning the number of words we will accept as contributions to the column, we have printed only one letter in its entirety and taken excerpts from the other letters.

All, except one, of these letters are in the same vein. Three mention of the Hitler Youth movement and compare the behavior of the pro-UMT group to the little Hitlers. The third letter makes a supposition on which he has no fact to base its remarks. Two of the letters, written on the same typewriter and the same brand of typewriter paper intimate that the only reason they went to the rally was because they are students of psychology and they wanted to test their textbook data with the actual practice. They implied that they found what they sought — "in a mob the behavior degenerates to the level of the least civilized and the most emotional members of that mob."

We do not deny the fact that the members of the mob did not file in the building and sit like Eton lads in their stiff white collars. Yes, there were rude remarks and interruptions which we do not condone, but there was also these same things being done by the anti-UMT members of the audience. We can cite incidents substantiating this. There was more rudeness on the part of the pro UMT bunch because there was four times as many as the Anti's.

But during the complete program, which lasted more that two hours, there was not one instant when the group could not have been controlled. They recognized Bill Corley as their leader and when he arose from his seat to go on the platform, the noise subsided even before he raised his hands for silence. We are not a student of psychology, but it did not take a psychologist to realize that the group present was willing to give the speakers on the program a chance to express their beliefs.

Both factions were in the wrong. This time the University has, to date, been lucky enough to escape a black eye and a smutty reputation from the incident. The meeting which has been termed as "healthy" by some of the audience was not a "rough and ready" demonstration of an uncontrolable mob. There were individuals on both sides of the fence who terribly violated the manner which befits a Carolina Gentleman. This time the damage has been slight and the State press has not been as greedy in gobbling up any off-color behavior of University students. Next time we may not be so lucky.

There must not be a next time.

Write Away

Are You Anti Or Pro-UMT?

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Editor:

The anti-anti-UMT group will undoubtedly be subject to considerable abuse as a result of their childish display on Tuesday night. Parallels will certainly be drawn with the disruptive methods of the Nazis during the early days of the Hitler regime. This abuse should instead be turned into kindly attempts to enlighten the demonstrators.

It might be explained that an atomic bomb, or even an old rifle, will not turn a Communist into a democrat. It will turn him into a dead Communist, and his brother into a hate-filled enemy. Perhaps the "anti-anti" group does not realize the intimate connection between the late war and the present spread of Communism through Europe. Communist organizers, whether direct agents of the Kremlin or not, find it easy sledding to enlist thousands, in Italy, France, even in Czechoslovakia—without Russian troops. Why? Because in the moral, political, and economic vacuum left by the war people were willing to return to any strong leaders, any promise of security. Just as the economic distintegration following the depression catapulted Hitler into power.

Another war will do nothing to remedy the conditions which are encouraging Communism. On the contrary, it will destroy, through extremes of misery never before imagined, the last resistance to totalitarianism, the last of the desire for human dignity and its concomitant respect for civil liberties.

The U. S. cannot encourage democracy in Europe by sending troops as imbued with democratic principles as the misguided boys of the anti-anti-UMT group. Nor can it do so by restricting all efforts and expenditures in one gigantic preparation for war. The one last chance seems to be to offer the people of Europe something besides the destruction and privation they have known for the past 10 years. We can offer them something more than token economic assistance reluctantly spared from rearmament expenditures. We can send dollars, goods, services, and trained administrators. We can send hope, that America is not preparing for war, but for peace.

Rachelle Marshall

Ill-Bred, Dangerous

Editor:

". . . I understand that during the meeting a cross was burned in the YMCA courtyard and I myself heard some non-musical bugler essaying "Taps" and other bugle-calls outside the open windows. Whether or not these were intended to be a commentary on the proceedings in Gerrard hall or not I do not know, but such action, done even in jest (as has been implied), is extremely ill-bred and dangerous. If it was done because Mr. Austin (perhaps the best speaker of the evening) was a Negro I can only feel deep shame for any organization of individuals in my University who would publicly and in such a crass manner evince its (or their) bigotry and chauvinism.

The Students inside Gerrard hall, whatever their views, listened quietly and respectfully to what Mr. Austin had to say I personally was impressed by his speaking manner and the intelligence with which he handled a hostile audience. If anyone feels called upon to object to a Negro speaking at our University, then there are far more intelligent ways of handling such a situation than by resorting to those terroristic manifestations of savagery.

Nor am I, as will inevitably be claimed, a "nigger-lover.." I merely believe in accepting a human being, regardless of pigmentation, on his worth as an individual, an in sustaining his right to be heard in any peacefully conducted assemblage of free men. I did not agree with Mr. Austin; I disagree even more with his deframers. . ."

C. D. McIntyre

Loss Of Identity

"The University of North Carolina stands throughout the South and the United States as an institution of thought, of integrety, and of courtesy. Tuesday night, there was an exhibition on this campus which seems to have been directed toward the destruction of thought, integrity, and courtesy, which seemed to have as its goal the destruction of thoughtful consideration of any problem; an exhibition of mass behavior which I found it difficult to believe would or could occur in a country supposedly opposed to fascist behavior. I am of course speaking of the demonstration which took place in the Y court, preceding the Stop-the-Draft meeting which was scheduled to occur in Gerrard hall. As a student of social psychology, I found the mob behavior extremely interesting, because it illustrated the text-book material concerning the fact that in a mob, individuals lose their identity, and the fact that in a mob the behavior degenerates to the level of the least civilized and the most emotional member of that mob. . . ."

M. Peachee

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS Editor

HOWARD BAILEY Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Batton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman NIGHT SPORTS: Bill Kellam

"I said I HEAR YOU HAD A BURST OF ENTHUSIASM LAST WEEK AND OFFERED YOUR MILITARY SERVICES TO MR. FORRESTAL!"

Campus Forum

Poll Shows Losses, Gains

By Pete Gerns

In following up last Tuesday's poll on how the student body may vote in the coming campus elections, Campus Forum interviewed 100 students, 86 of them, to predict a possible trend in campus political thought. The YMCA and Lenoir hall were used as bases for tabulation. The voters were asked the following question: "How would you vote if campus elections were held today?"

Here are the results:

Position	Total This Week	Pct. Last Week
President of Student Body
Dedmond (CP-UP)	35	42
Hodson (Ind)	6	2
Long (Ind.)	25	25
Manning (Ind)	9	3
Rubish (SP)	22	20
Don't Know	3	8
Vice-President
Clampitt (UP)	46	50
Godwin (CP-SP)	38	33
Don't Know	16	17
Secretary-Treasurer
Childress (SP)	25	26
Fitzgerald (CP)	18	13
Kirby (UP)	42	23
Don't Know	15	38
Cheerleader
Pence (Ind)	5	7
Sper (SP)	19	28
Stancill (UP)	29	36
Wofford (CP)	15	5
Don't Know	32	24
Yackety Yack Editor
Blake (SP-CP)	29	25
Duncan (UP)	44	27
Don't Know	27	48

The respective position of the candidates remains largely the same. Dedmond is still leading Long and Rubish in the presidential race. Clampitt is in the favored position to take the vice-presidency. There's a change in the fight for the secretary-treasurership. Kirby has overtaken Childress, but it still looks likely that both will be in the run-off. Wofford has been advancing in the race for Cheerleader and has taken away votes from both Stancill and Sper. Duncan has increased his margin over Blake since the last poll.

Several of the candidates have told us that they have made use of the Forum and have distributed literature especially when there was a large "Don't Know" faction indicated for their aspired position.

The following individual comment was made on the vice-presidential candidates:

Clampitt: "My friends have recommended me to vote for Johnny." Walt Bakes.

"I think he is the best suited for the job." James Lewis.

Godwin: "I've known Jim since I've been in school and I've seen his ability to speak in classroom. I think he has pretty sound judgment." Bob Vaughn.

"His past record at NC State and on this campus during and after the war qualify him for the position. Anybody who knows him personally would vote for him." Adrian Smith.

The following comment was made on the candidates for Secretary-Treasurer:

Childress: "I think he's got the qualifications for the position of secretary-treasurer." Fred "Rip" Ryan.

"He's well suited for the office as far as I know." Bob Towe.

Fitzgerald: "I've heard most about him; a friend of mine knows him very well." John Barkley.

"I believe he's a good man because he's been connected with the Di Senate and Debating squads." H. D. Coulter.

Kirby: "He is a very good friend of mine and I think he is very capable of filling the office of secretary-treasurer." Joe Combs.

"I think he is a fine fellow. He seems to know what the score is. He'll be a good man for that position." Lyn Hobbs.

This Changing World

Horrors! Danger Lurks Along Wall Street

By Bill Robertson

We hase just been reading a novel entitled "Looking Backward" by Edward Bellamy. It concerns the experiences of a man, born and reared in the latter part of the last century, who goes to sleep one night, and wakes up in the year 2,000 A. D. Like not a few people before him the author portrays Utopian social conditions by simply eliminating the evils of the society in which he lives.

We agree with the implications of the author that a bright future lies ahead for the whole human race for it is quite obvious that capitalism, with its multi-millionaires and billionaires, is dying all over the world. However, there is one problem which is not solved in this book. It is the problem of whether individuals shall work with their hands or their brains. It never occurs to the author that the natural solution is for every one to use both hands and brains.

As yet the only students in our colleges and universities who have to do both physical and mental labor are those from poor families—and this provides the key to the solution of the problem. For it is only by raising the cultural and educational level of the working people (who already know very well how to use their hands) that we can expect the proper training of large numbers of well-balanced human beings.

Obviously such a situation can come about only after political power is taken out of the hands of those men who have their offices on a certain street in the lower part of Manhattan Island. Then we shall be able to throw back in their teeth the arguments that educational benefits for G. I.s (who are mostly from poor families) are "a big waste of money". More than that, we shall be able to provide an opportunity for a free college education for all qualified young people.

Playing It To The Chapel Hilt

Referendum Was False, Says He

By Morty Seif

Writing a column for the DTH is like letting your beard grow. If it become too long or brash, you are suspected of being some species of queer. Since my beard is red and my columns bold, you can redily understand the periodical hibernation of Playing It to the Chapel Hilt.

If I were in a poetic mood, I could attribute these current columns to the season—as the trees put forth blooms, so do writers record the flowering of their minds on paper. But I am not in a poetic mood. I am in an angry mood. I have been doing research for the past two months on the Carolina publications situation, and the material I have gathered contains more suggestions of filth and crime than the Kinsey Report.

So before my UMT friends draft me back into the Ah-me or I look an atom bomb in the nucleus, I feel it my duty to expose the personalities and partisan politics that have infiltrated the campus literary scene.

I hope that those "in the know" will respond to this article by coming to its support. My aims are constructive, but first the rubbish must be thrown out. If the University of of North Carolina does not have a magazine which prints "literary" stuff next year, it will suffer the disgrace of being the only American college in that sorry situation. I intend to show you the forces that have been working towards that end and how they must be thwarted.

Simmer down this storm in a sauerkraut bowl and the following unsavory odors emerge: later issues of the Tar Heel shall amplify these facts. They are true and should be acted on now.

1. The Mag referendum of last quarter was rigged, that is, it was not the expression of the student body and is therefore constitutionally invalid.

2. There is room (and need) for two or more magazines on campus and no conflict would actually existed between the interests of Fred Jacobson's Carolina Mag and Tookie Hodges' Tarnation except in Jacobson's mind.

3. The Carolina Mag has been consistently rejecting top-notch material from the best writers on campus in favor of contributions by their own staff members. The arch-villain of the piece is the Mag's editor, Fred Jacobson, who should have stuck to his knitting, in this instance some fair talent for layout. He rules his staff with an iron hand and his literary senses with an iron skull.

4. All this talk about a new literary quarterly is futile, the interested parties are motley fugitives from the jettisoned Mag and idealists.

Mudville Mutterings

Windows Wink At Washers

By Dan Sapp

The village has a brand new shiny spring face this week, after vacation. According to suffering husbands there was darn little vacation involved, with floors to mop, windows to wash and babies to change it was a rather soggy affair. Speaking of windows if you live in a two story dwelling and haven't washed your windows, don't; you'll be risking life and limb. Adding insult to injury the net result is nil. After hanging his body over a broad expanse of beaten earth and for some hours, one resident, who shall be nameless, discovered that due to the nature of said windows he only cleaned the bottom half of the bottom and the top half of the top, whatever that means. In his own words "The darned things were winking at me."

To go to matters of more importance, the rent hike which has been causing much anguish this week has a logical basis. The rent for the lowest bracket was made out for those who are living on the $90 per month. Now that the salaries from the government are to be increased those people will have incomes sufficient to put them into the next, intermediate bracket unless some new rent adjustment is made. Let us hope for an adjustment.

A word of cheer for those who are longing to see green grass growing all around. If one may believe one's eyes, there will be greenery in abundance one of these days. Work has been started on breaking up the earth and distributing the top soil that has been piled up for some months.

Ken Blodgett unfolded a sad story the other night. Ken, who is very interested in beautification of his premises got some logs for a fence just before the short break laughingly referred to as spring holidays. He says that he left for the first vacation he's had in two years and when he returned the garbage collectors must have gotten carried away with their work because they not only collected the garbage but the logs as well. All of which shows to go you.

But we are running a little ahead of ourselves. After all, there is an economic crisis brewing around the corner. This crisis won't make the educational set-up in our country more democratic unless we fight to make it so. On the contrary, the clearer it becomes that our present economic system just won't work the more frightened and panicky will the big shots become about the growth of "radical ideas" on college campusses.

But the "radical ideas" will grow-and grow-and grow. And most importantly, the strength and numbers of those fighting the corrupt politicians and the big business interests they represent, will grow-and grow-and grow.

It is certain that long before 2,000 A. D. we shall have a very different and very much better America.

MED, DENTAL SCHOOLS

All students who are planning to enter Medical or Dental schools are cordially invited to attend a meeting with Dean Berryhill to be held in Gerrard hall Monday night at 8:30. Pre-medical and pre-dental requirements will be discussed and questions about standings will be answered.

ALL CHEERLEADERS

All members of the cheerleading squad must turn in all uniforms, megaphones and other equipment to Myrt Sherard at the ATO house by 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, it was announced yesterday. Sherard stressed the fact that the Athletic department was giving him a hard time about them.

Just Here

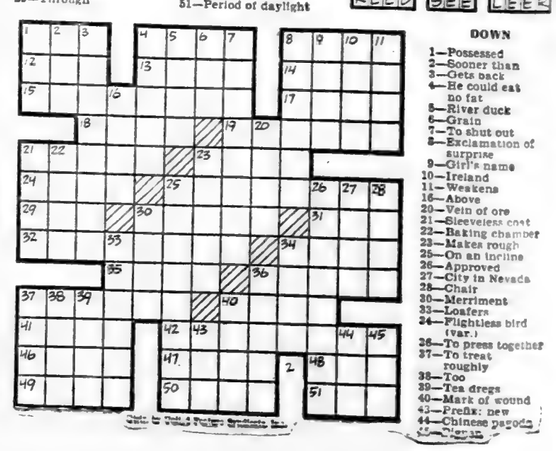
Tutor System Would Help

By Larry Berry

"Very quickly there will be an end of thee here" is a phrase that can be easily applied to a large number of students at Carolina. As the standards of the University are dragged up, many of the students who came here in more lenient times are forced out with limp sails after trying to tack into a degree. This school has changed very much in the last year and even now many of us do not realize the change. Our school has reached the complexity of classroom work caused by overcrowding and the raising of the educational standards to benefit from a tutorial system. In a class of fifty people instead of twenty the instructor will try to give the students the work (?) of the course, but he will be handicapped by just too many people.

A tutor meeting with a small number of the students three times a week could clarify many of the points that the instructor does not have the time for in class. In our system as it stands, we have the instructor giving the material to the student without conditions favorable for the reasoning of the student on the given material. A class of ten persons meeting to discuss the work covered would encourage the exchange of opinions and more understanding of the subject would result. I do not think that a tutorial system should be compulsory, but I do think that it should be offered to students. This is something for all of us to consider because it might be nice to have an education ten years from now.

Another thing accounting for the many failures is our pre-determined judgment of instructors. Many of us resolve not to learn a subject under some particular instructor because our friends have told us how inefifcient the man was. Our best procedure is to judge the man for ourselvs, because while he might have been unable to penetrate our friend's cranium, his manner might be made to order for us to digest. Of course I realize I am being a great optimist in this paragraph, but until the art of friendly criticism is rediscovered our professors will reign unaware of their faults. I understand that at one time consistently poor professors were bumped by not having students sign for their courses. This is impossible at the present time, and I believe a method of friendly, constructive criticism would help toward more education. My space has run out, but I hope that you will think about the tutorial system and a means toward criticism in order that more of us may go out of the front door of the University with an education than at present.



Enough has been said on campus politics to make anything I would say merely superfluous. At least do us (the Student Body) the favor of going out with the intention to vote.

MAG NEEDS TYPISTS

Meleville Cohen, business manager of Carolina Magazine announced that the Mag is in need of typists, and that all coeds who are interested are asked to see him today between 4 o'clock and 4:30 in the Mag office. Cohen pointed out that this work gives the coeds an opportunity to become familiar with publications work and increases their efficiency as typists.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—That woman
4—To bait
8—Fateful date
12—Part of "to be"
13—A fruit
14—Girl's name
15—To embellish
17—To fall in drops
18—Egg-shaped
19—Scrubs
21—To desire
23—Kind of berry
24—To assert
25—Shakes with fright
29—Through
30—Open place in woods
31—Born
32—Fodder
34—Girl's name
35—Hideouts
36—American tariff maker
37—Wooden hammer
40—Wise man
41—Away from wind
42—Forms a crust
46—Employer
47—Close
48—To corrode
49—Misfortune
50—Bloody
51—Period of daylight

DOWN

1—Possessed
2—Sooner than
3—Gets back
4—He could eat no fat
5—River duck
6—Grain
7—To shut out
8—Exclamation of surprise
9—Girl's name
10—Ireland
11—Weakens
16—Above
20—Vein of ore
21—Sleeveless coat
22—Baking chamber
23—Makes rough
25—On an incline
26—Approved
27—City in Nevada
28—Chair
30—Merriment
33—Loafers
34—Flightless bird (var.)
36—To press together
37—To treat roughly
38—Too
39—Tea dregs
40—Mark of wound
43—Prefix: new
44—Chinese pagoda

Golf, Tennis, & Baseball Teams See Home Action Today, Weather Permitting

Unbeaten Linksmen Encounter Davidson Seeking Third Win

By Billy Carmichael III

Due to a mix-up in schedules, the slated golf match between the high-flying Carolina Tar Heels and the highly-rated linksmen of Davidson college was postponed yesterday and will be played today. Tee off time at Hope Valley is 1:30.

The apparent misunderstanding came at an opportune time though, for the weather yesterday was definitely not suited for outdoor sports. On top of that the Tar Heels would have had to play their third match in a like number of days.

Ward Shines

The round, which was three under par for the 6200 yard Hope Valley layout, was one of the best rounds of Ward's career considering the conditions. The Tar Heel star carded a total of five birdies for the afternoon's work.

In today's match, Ward will be back in the No. 1 slot with his now-familiar gunning mate, Roy McKenzie. McKenzie has developed into a creditable performer since his first appearance with the team last year and is fast becoming a veteran swingster.

Though he does not hit an extremely long ball from the tee, the Winston-Salm sophomore invaritibly splits the middle of the fairway, leaving himself a good position for his second shots which he handles equally as well. Around the greens and on them, McKenzie is at his best and displays point-winning golf.

Cox, Brantley Open

The rest of the Tar Heel lineup today will find Bob Cox, the old faithful performer at the No. 3 spot playing with Jack Brantley, the N. 4 man.

In the last foursome it will be Harvey Oliver at No. 5 coupled with either Frank Brooks, the Siler City freshman who has showed up well in the opening matches, or Pete Beaudry, another from Homer, N. Y.

Coach Chuck Erickson again expresses the fact yesterday that all persons interested in following the golfers around the course are welcome to do so.

Everybody Got In The Act . . .

Blackballs Take Cage Title In Mural Fair

By Bill Gallagher

Action was fast and furious last night in Woollen Gym as the Intramural Department put on a Winter Sports Carnival before some six hundred people.

Everything was off to a terrific pace with a field of 16 players swinging for the open ping pong championship. Before the fans really got settled in their seats, the all-campus basketball finals started with the dorm champs, the Blackballs, taking the floor against the fraternity champs, Sigma Chi, and finally winning, 31-21.

The victors really took over and before the 10 minute mark had racked up a 10-2 lead on the Sigs. The fratmen began to surge back to pull to within two points of the taller and sharper dorm winners. Leading by only 12-10 must have worried the Blackballs for they piled in two more quick baskets to leave the floor at the half leading by a count of 16-10.

During the intermission everyone dashed to Bowman Gray pool to see the aquatic show. A water ballet featuring four lovely coeds was the first event. Then in a special 50 yard sprint Mr. Otto Jaretz, former A. A. U. titlest and Olympic star defeated three of Carolina's Blue Dolphins. He splashed his way through in the excellent time of 23.5 sec., ahead of Pritchard, Osborne and Greenbaum. He then gave his famous "round the world swim" routine.

Jareiz Triumphs

Norm Sper and Steve Osborne then went into a sparkling diving act. Sper shook the house with cheers when he did a back flip and landed on the board and then went into a front flip into the water.

All the time the volley ball squads and the badminton stars were putting on their show. Phi Gamma Delta continued undefeated over a two year span as they swamped a team from Guilford College.

Birdie Flies

The State men's doubles champions, C. R. Council and Glen Anderson, played Ham Strayhorn and Mac McGinty in an exhibition match. Miss Doris Beasley and Frances Burns played a singles match.

A top match of the table tennis tournament saw Andy Lavin edged by Craig Murphy in a tight three game set, 20-22, 22-20, and 21-19.

In the second half, the Sigma Chis tried to pull up even but the closest they ever got was 20-18. Two baskets by Bernie McKierman, who led with nine points, and one by Mitchell put the Blackballs out in front to stay.

Boxing was next with two fast bouts in the light weight classes won by M. Wilson (Zetes) 121 lbs. and T. Gregory (Zetes) 127 lbs. An exhibition match was held in the 135 lb. class.

After a women's tumbling act, it was back to the ringside for more action. J. Stewart stopped J. Murchison (SAE) with a t.k.o. called by referee Ed McGee. D. Fleming of Phi Gam stopped D. Snow in the middleweight scrap. The 165 bout was fast with Charlie Kipp (Sigma Chi) getting the nod over Dick Bunting of Emerson. It was a close one. Jack Folger was forced to default to F. Cahoon of Lewis in the 175 lb. division.

The heavyweight match was a fast one, Roscoe Hanson of Emerson decisioning H. Weinstein of the TEP's.

Razz Berry, Bob Hurley, and Darrell Byerly put on a tumbling and gymnastic act that was something to see. It included Berry holding a long steel pole like a flag bearer in a parade and having Byerly go up to the top

GRIDDERS TO DRILL

Yesterday's April shower resulted in football practice being washed out, but the springtime gridders will resume activities this afternoon, Coach Snavely announced yesterday.

Today's drill will start at 4 o'clock and the usual Saturday morning session will get under way at 10 o'clock. Promptness is expected, the grid mentor emphasized.

Cornell Here Again For Second Attempt To Play Net Clash

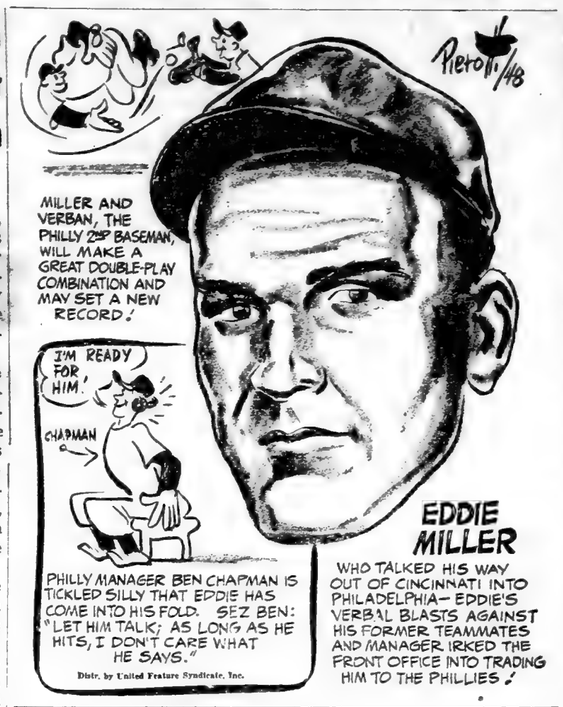
By Dick Jenrette

For the second straight day, rain intrevened in the tennis activities of Carolina's Tar Heels. The scheduled encounter with Cornell yesterday was halted before either of the first two matches could be completed.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock the Tar Heels will make another attempt to continue their schedule. Cornell again will provide the opposition, and if the results of yesterday's abbreviated Carolina-Cornell affair is any indication of the visitors' strength, then the match this afternoon should shape up as one of the closest of the season.

Dick Savitt, the number one Cornell performer, turned in a surprise 6-4 win over Vic Seixas in a weird opening to the feature match of the day. The second set was all even at 2-2 when the rains came. Of the 14 games that the two boys played, on 13 occasions the server was the victor.

Concrete Courts



The match was played on the concrete courts since the morning rain had left the varsity courts in poor condition. The white background and increased bounce of the ball which the concrete created were largely responsible for the effective service which both Savitt and Seixas displayed. The Cornell star did manage to break through Seixas' service in the third game of the first set, and this accomplishment proved to be his victory margin.

Weather permitting, the Seixas-Savitt match this afternoon should produce plenty of thrils and fast action.

Clark Taylor, Carolina's number two man, got off to a good start in his meeting with Len Steiner, gaining a 6-2 victory in the first set. However, Steiner showed steady improvement as the second set began, and he held a 5-2 lead over Taylor before the match was halted.

Calls For Frosh

Carolina Coach John Kenfield yesterday issued a call for additional freshmen candidates to report. There are only four first-year men in camp at present—not enough for a team. A schedule has been arranged for the frosh squad, beginning next weekend against Duke, and Kenfield is anxious to have more boys report to him between 2 and 2:30 this afternoon at the tennis courts before the Cornell match gets underway.

Jayvee Baseballers Open Card Against Greensboro Tomorrow

Carolina's 1948 junior varsity baseball team will make its debut before the local diamond enthusiasts tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock when—barring future deluges—they face Greensboro high school's potent nine on Emerson field. The weekend clash will open a 14-game schedule for the locals. Two or three more games may be added later.

The rains came to the village during the past week and consequently Coach Henry House and his charges went indoors. The jayvees took Wednesday afternoon off and yesterday the 32-man squad was outfitted with their regular game uniforms.

Coach House also released his probable starting lineup for the opening contest. Charlie Garganus or Bill Walsh will start behind the plate, Jake Carter at first, Stan Goodman at second, Joe Brookshire at short, John Senter at third, Don Ward in left, Jerry Allen in center, Ed Lamb in right, and either Bill McGinn, Les Sharpe, Ralph Brake, or Ed Gaston on the mound.

Others who are slated to dress for the contest include Cahoon, Couch, Lineberger, Turner, Anlage, Nicholson, Oakes, Page, Quarls, Wagoner, Kantor, Hardisty, Waevil, Clark, Odum, Watkins, and Gregory.

The jayvee schedule:

April	3	Greensboro high	Here
	6	High Point high	There
	10	Presbyterian	Here
	17	High Point high	There
	21	Duke	Here
	24	N. C. State	Here
	29	N. C. State	There
May	4	Duke	There
	8	Greensboro high	There
	10	Presbyterian	There
	13	N. C. State	There
	15	Duke	Here
	22	Duke	There
	26	N. C. State	Here

Olympic Cage Group Names 14-Man Squad

New York, April 1 —(UP)— The Olympic Basketball Committee has named the 14-man squad that will represent the United States in the Olympic cage playoffs in London next summer.

In addition to the five men placed on the squad by each of the finalists, Phillips 66 and Kentucky, one man each from the Oakland Bittners, Baylor university, NYU, and the Denver Nuggets were selected for the squad.

The victorious Phillips Oilers placed Bob Kurland, Jesse Renick, R-C Pitts, Lew Beck, and Gordon Carpenter on the team while Alex Groza, Kenny Rollins, Ralph Beard, Wah Wah Jones, and Cliff Barker of the runner-up Kentucky Wildcats were named to the squad.

Also included were Ray Lumpp of NYU, Jack Robinson of Baylor, Don Barksdale of Oakland, and Vince Boryla of Denver.

Playing Conditions Make Diamond Clash Against Powerful Yale Outfit Unlikely

By Bob Goldwater

Skies above and ground conditions underfoot permitting, a powerful Yale baseball nine will give Carolina a helping hand this afternoon in the Tar Heels' second attempt to play one of their home games in the friendly surroundings of Emerson stadium. Game time, should it be forthcoming, will be at 4 o'clock.

Weather conditions yesterday made it extremely unlikely, however, that such an event will be on today's list of campus activities. The downpour caused the field to become very soft, and unless a hot sun dries the turf into playable condition this morning a second contest will be stricken from the locals' diamond card.

Similar weather Wednesday resulted in the Carolina-Cornell clash being cancelled. If today's tussel suffers a similar fate, the Tar Heels will not be seen in home-action until April 13, following three road games in South Carolina late next week.

NCAA Finalists

Today's skirmish looms as one of the toughest of the season for the Blue and White boys. The Eli lads were among the top teams in the nation last year, reaching the NCAA diamond finals before losing out to California. And in Frank Quinn, who is slated to face the Tar Heels should the elements allow it, Yale has a righthander acclaimed to be one of the outstanding hurlers in the country.

Against the visitors' mound artist, Coach Bunn Hearn will employ southpaw Vinnie DiLorenzo, whose hurling achievements are also noteworthy. The New Jersey junior, winner of seven games with last years' Tar Heel crew and victor in Carolina's opener against Virginia last week, will go after victory number two against the Eli. It should be quite a pitching duel — if the game is played.

The rest of the Tar Heel's lineup will have Sid Varney behind the plate, John Gregory, Rip Ryan, and Co-Captains Jim Hamilton and Jim Hayworth around the infield, and Jim Kelly, Whitey Black, and Frank Jones as the outer defense and bulwark of the offense.

Kelly, the 1947 Big Four batting champion, and Hayworth are currently pacing the team at the plate. Each has managed five hits in 12 trips. Kelly has also punched out two triples and has driven in four runners. Hayworth is one behind the chunky outfielder in both departments.

KENNY BLACK
. . . leadoff man deluxe.

Diamond Dust

The Tar Heels will be seeking their third win of the year. They have dropped one, a ninth-inning rally by Pennsylvania last Tuesday spoiling their otherwise perfect slate.

Maryland Track Team Enters Carolina Relays To Raise Field in Event Tomorrow to Seven

The field in tomorrow's annual Carolina Relays reached seven teams Wednesday when the University of Maryland entered a team in the cinder classic.

Of the seven teams, six hail from the Southern conference. The Elis from Yale, who scored one first place last year, are the lone outsiders.

Duke, N. C. State, VPI, Davidson, Maryland, and Carolina complete the entries. Last spring the Tar Heels copped six first to win the meet.

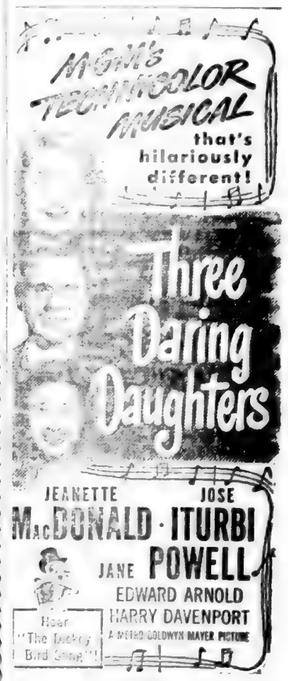
Roger Neighborgall, Doug Ausbon, and Loren Young will be back this year and will probably dominate the relay events again this year. Neighborgall, who broke records for the 440 and 880 in the Indoor games here this year, will probably run a strong anchor leg for the Devils. Ausbon captured the broad jump title in the indoor games.

Jim Byler, defending shot put champ, Charlie Chambers, and Dick Dickey, co-holder of the high jump crown, are among the stars on the Wolfpack squad.

Sterling Wingo and Frank Magill head the VPI entry. Wingo will be one of the favorites in the 100-yard dash while Magill, brother of Carolina's Sam, will run in the relays.

The Terrapins from Maryland are expected to enter a strong team featured by middle-distance star Ed Mathews, miler Bob Palmer, who is the conference cross-country champion, and Carl Rhuback, stellar timber-topper.

The Tar Heels, who captured the title in the Indoor meet, hope to make the change from the boards to the cinder without any loss in efficiency. Jack Moody tied with Dickey of State in the high jump at 6-2 last year, but, if he reaches the heights outdoors that he did in the Invitation meet, he ought to cop the laurels with a little to spare.



Bob Seligman, Jimmy Miller, Dick Taylor, Sam Magill, and Don Nelson are expected to carry most of the burden for the host team.

WE SERVE YOU
FASTER
BETTER
More economically with excellent food
Come in and taste the difference
CAROLINA COFFEE SHOP

Quick Service
DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham

NATIONAL BOHEMIAN BEER
Bottle 17c
Case 3.75
Also
Potato Chips
Cigarettes
Sandwiches
THE SHACK
Just a whisper off Franklin Street

TODAY
CAROLINA

BACHELOR BOON or
MAID'S DELIGHT

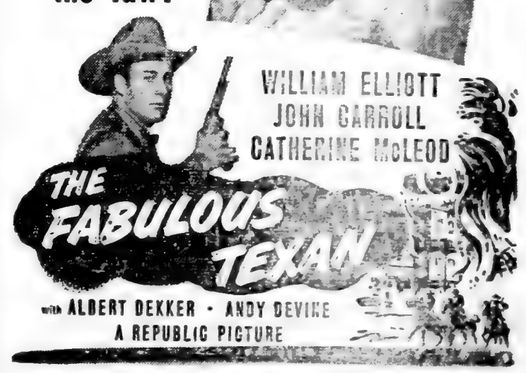
The obvious answer is a man who wears clean white shirts

Try our service today—your clothes are returned promptly—looking like new—clean as a whistle

TWIN VILLAGE LAUNDRY & CLEANERS
Carrboro Phone F-3541

OUR SPECIAL DAIRYLAND ICE CREAM FOR APRIL
Ice Cream — TOASTED BUTTER PECAN — Ice Cream

Our rich, smooth, tasty ice cream generously flavored with fresh roasted buttered pecans



You'll like it!

Call for it at our dealers in Chapel Hill and Carrboro or buy it at our retail store

Farmers Dairy Cooperative, Inc.

IN HER ARMS...
he forgot he was outside the law!

VILLAGE TODAY AND SATURDAY

-UP-

(Continued from page 1)

where she was outstanding in student government. She is a member of the Legislature, president of the Women't Glee club and the Panhellenic council, a member of the Yack beauty court and the Y cabinet. She is in Delta Delta Delta.

Liddy Bet Myatt is a rising senior from Goldsboro. She attended St. Mary's college where she was a member of the Honor council, the legislative body, treasurer of the junior class and secretary of the Circle, honorary society.

Marjorie Yokley is a sociology major from Mt. Airy. She has served on the Woman's council and is secretary of the Chi Omega sorority.

-Student-

(Continued from page 1)

6. Social rooms and stores in dormitories as soon as possible.

7. Better fire escape system on all dorms.

8. More and better convocations and freshman chapel.

9. Investigation of the rent system in Trailer Courts.

10. Better orientation of transfer students as well as new students with the intention of defining the Honor System and Campus Code.

11. More brick sidewalks.

-Campus-

(Continued from page 1)

pealing basis.

10. Experiment in mass meetings of the student body for a return of campus spirit.

11. More careful handling of referendum issues.

12. Will push provision for visiting quarters for use of Carolina alumni.

13. Abolition of House Privileges board.

Famed Hypnotist, Mental Telepathist To Appear Monday In Memorial Hall

Dr. Franz J. Polgar, eminent hypnotist and mental telepathist acclaimed throughout this country and Europe, will appear on the stage of Memorial hall on Monday at 8 o'clock with his fascinating demonstrations of hypnotism and mental telepathy.

Sponsored by the Student Entertainment committee, the show is an attempt to pay off the debt of the group as well as provide top rate entertainment for the campus. Tickets will go on sale in the Graham Memorial office tomorrow at a price of 50 cents.

"Audiences gasp at this mental wizard," says Penee James in the Saturday Evening Post," who reads your mind, puts you to sleep, and can find any hidden object, including one secreted under a man's upper plate."

Hypnotic demonstrations presented on the stage in the last few years have usually been branded as "hokum" when reviewers revealed the exhibitions were really put on by vaudeville actors working with well trained "stooges."

But if there's a trick to Dr. Polgar, according to the Post write-up, "It must be an incredibly ingenious one, for there is no record of anyone ever detecting it." Polgar has put his powers to the test before some aggresively unbelievng skeptics, and sent them away converts.

Basically scientific in character, Polgar's program is designed both for education and entertainment. With the ease of the expert showman, he now holds his audience in a fever of suspense and then plunges them into howls of laughter with his quick wit and unexpected pranks.

He has appeared twice before on the Carolina campus, once in 1940 and again in 1944.

Campus Calendar

5:00 p. m.—Anti-UMT group, Grail room.

7:00 p. m.—Wallace for President club, Roland Parker lounge, No. 2.

7:30 p. m.—Hillel services, Roland Parker No. 1.

Students Organize To Back Albright

30 students met Wednesday night and organized an Albright-for-Governor club on campus.

Meeting after gubernatorial candidates R. Mayne Albright and J. Oscar Barker spoke on a program here sponsored by the Carolina Political union, the students discussed plans for a club similar to organizations already active in several other North Carolina colleges, including Duke, Wingate, Biltmore and Wake Forest.

Objective of the Carolina group will be to secure support for Albright here and to influence voters throughout the state.

Room Reservation Date Is Extended

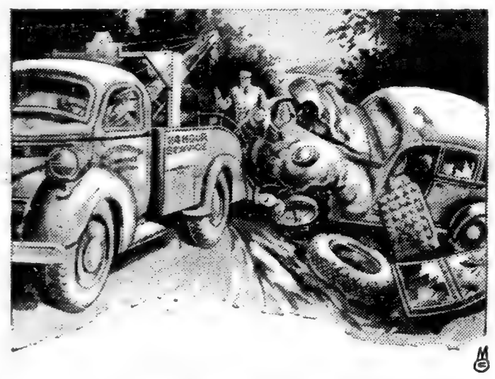
The Housing office announced today that the deadline for room reservations has been extended until tomorrow in order that the veterans whose checks are delayed may have an opportunity to reserve space in the dormitory for the summer and fall terms.

Reservations may be made at the cashier's office in the basement of South building.

Bill For Fair UMT

The Phi assembly by a 16-5 vote passed a bill for a fair and just system of selective compulsory military training and service Tuesday night. A vote taken of visitors showed a 19-5 majority favoring the bill.

Quarterly Backers Will Hold Meeting



Jonathon Marshall, who is heading the efforts towards getting a Carolina Quarterly, has called a meeting of all interested persons for 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Grail room.

At that time, the executive committtee will report on what hase been accomplished to date, and a future course of action will be charted.

Ridgeway's
OPTICIANS
Complete Eyeglass Service
Prompt attention to all mail orders
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
Raleigh N. C.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 6316

The ORIENTAL
116 E. Parrish Street
Durham, N. C.
CHINESE-AMERICAN RESTAURANT

EMERGENCY SERVICE
24 hours a day our tow service stands ready to help in any emergency
CALL 5161 NIGHT F-3947
STROWD MOTOR CO.

Whid Powell's
COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM
GRILLED TARHELLIAS
CAROLINAS
WAFFLES
Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

Fraternity Work a Specialty
Charles Valentine's Cabinet Shop
FURNITURE
REPAIRED
REFINISHED
UPHOLSTERED
MADE-TO-ORDER
PHONE 9367 — PITTSBORO RD.

This man is your registered pharmacist. When you bring your prescriptions here, you can depend on him to fill them with the finest ingredients.
SLOAN
Drug Co.

CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

HILLEL FOUNDATION CORDIALLY invites you to attend Max Helfman's delightful program 8:00 p. m. Sunday, Hill Hall. "A memorable experience with an impelling and important message." (1-ch1x1-1)

FOR SALE ..... 6 B .....
18 FOOT ROYCRAFT HOUSE TRAILer. Ready for immediate occupancy. See J. W. Curlee, 315 Aycock. (1-1892-1)

FIVE ROOM HOUSE ON JUSTICE Street. Floor furnace, gas stove and automatic hot water heater. Large lot; immediate occupancy. John Foushee, Real Estate. (1-ch1x1-1)

HOUSE TRAILER COMPLETE WITH bed, table, sink, new stove, ice box, dish cabinets, etc. A sacrifice for $300.00. Inquire at 235 Jackson Circle after 12:00. (1-1897-1)

STEARMAN N2S5. FABRIC 1946. LYcoming engine 296 S. O. H. Hangered University Airport. Fine sports plane. Excellent condition. Reasonably priced at $750.00. Walt Arnold, 218 Stacy. (1-1898-1)

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive.Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

28 FOOT LA SALLE HOUSE TRAILer in good condition. Ideal location. Inquire at No. 26 University Trailer Court. (1-1891-1)

24 FOOT AMERICAN HOUSE TRAILer. Excellent for couple with children. 207 Swain Hall Trailer Park. (1-1891-1)

SMALL HOUSE LOCATED ON large lot. Two bedrooms. 33 Oakwood Drive. T. V. Cauble. Telephone F-3217. (1-1883-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1947 FORD CONVERTIBLE. LOW milage, radio, heater. See Joe Clawson at Phi Kappa Sigma house. (1-1893-1)

1941 PACKARD CLIPPER. MODEL 1951. New paint, king bolts, brakes. Just overhauled. Guaranteed radio, uninstalled heater. $900.00. Contact "Doc" Clark, 308 Lewis or P. O. box 716. (1-1894-1)

BUICK 1938 FOURDOOR SEDAN IN good condition. Original owner, paint, excellent, interior clean, engine sound. Heater. F-2312. (1-C1888-1)

HELP WANTED 8

PART TIME HELP. MUST BE AVAILable from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. See Whid Powell, Colonial House. (ch 1x1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

LOST 12

WOULD THE PERSON WHO BORrowed two textbooks from radiator on ground floor of Saunders please return same or at least the checks totaling $25.00 contained in one book to R. Price, 117 Kenan Street or return them to place taken. No questions asked. Money needed. (1-1895-2)

RIDERS WANTED 18A

DRIVING TO WASHINGTON AND Philadelphia Friday, April 2. Leave 1:30 p. m.; return Sunday evening. Contact Norman Jacobson, phone 7036. (1-1896-1)

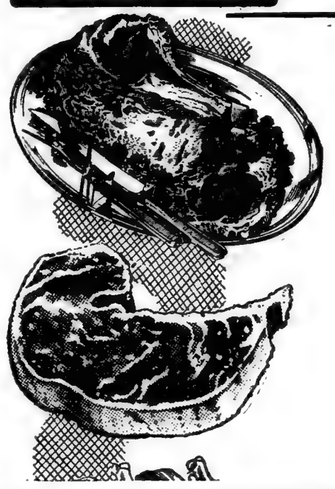
WANTED

SOMEONE TO SHARE ROOM IN town. Call F-3872. (1-1884-1)

FRESH CROPS AT REFRESHING PRICES

"Naturally fresher—naturally better!"—that's what you'll call the fresh fruits and vegetables at your A&P Super Market. For they're harvested fresh, delivered fresh, sold fresh! Come see the wide variety today and note the refreshing prices—as low as we can possibly make them!

GREEN BEANS, Fresh Tender,	2 lbs.	25c
FLORIDA GRAPEFRUIT, Large,	5 for	25c
CARROTS, New Texas, Fresh	2 bunches	23c
YELLOW SQUASH, Fresh & Tender	2 lbs.	25c
TOMATOES, U. S. No. 1	1 lb. carton	29c
LETTUCE, Large, firm heads	2 for	25c
Large, bleached CELERY	Stalk	10c
CUCUMBERS, Fresh, green	2 lbs.	35c
New RED BLISS POTATOES	5 lbs.	43c
Large Juicy ORANGES	2 doz.	55c
CABBAGE, New, Green	3 lbs.	18c



A&P ESTABLISHED 1859 FOOD STORES

MARVEL BREAD
HOME STYLE 1½-Lb. Loaf 18c

Jane Parker Sugared or Cinnamon
Donuts 1-Doz. Pkg. 18c

Regular Pan or Sandwich
Marvel Bread 18-Oz. Loaf 14c

THINK OF IT
A BIG QUART BOTTLE, 23c
LANG'S SWEET MIXED
PICKLES Qt. Bot. 23c

SUPER RIGHT

Whole or Half, Swift premium LEG O LAMB	65c lb.
Square Cut, Swift premium SHOULDER LAMB	49c lb.
PORTER house steak	89c lb.
T-BONE steak	89c lb.
CLUB steak	89c lb.
PIN BONE steak	89c lb.
SIRLOIN steak	89c lb.
ROUND BONELESS steak	89c lb.
FRESH GROUND BEEF	45c lb.
PORK ROAST	55c lb.
PORK CHOPS	69c lb.
VEAL SHOULDER ROAST	59c lb.
Morrell pride, Swift premium BACON	69 c lb.
FRYERS, table dressed	68c lb.
HENS, table dressed	56c lb.
FAT BACK, thick	25c lb.

FRESH SEAFOOD

CROAKERS	25c lb.
ROE SHAD	49c lb.
FILLET SALT MACKEREL	39c lb
H & G WHITING	21c lb.
HADDOCK	49c lb.
PERCH FILLETS	37c lb.

Fine Flavor IONA PEAS 3 No. 2 Cans 29c
Sultana APPLE BUTTER 28-Oz. Jar 19c
Deep South AMBROSIA No. 2 Can 33c
A&P Fancy APPLE SAUCE 2 No. 2 Cans 25c
Iona Sliced or Halves Yellow Cling PEACHES No. 2½ Can 25c
Libby's or Sultana Fruit COCKTAIL No. 1 Can 24c
White House EVAP. MILK 3 Tall Cans 39c
Mild American CHEESE Lb. 49c
Ann Page Spaghetti or MACARONI 3 8-Oz. Pkgs. 25c

CRISCO 3-Lb. Can $1.17
NABISCO PREMIUM CRACKERS 1-Lb. Pkg. 25c
CORN FLAKES KELLOGG'S 8-Oz. Pkg. 14c
STALEY'S SWEETOSE SYRUP No. 1½ Glass 21c
STALEY'S CUBE STARCH 2 7-Oz. Pkgs. 13c
DIXIE DEW SYRUP No. 2½ Glass 33c
ANN PAGE SALAD DRESSING Pt. Jar 33c

MILD & MELLOW COFFEE
8 O'CLOCK 1-Lb. Bag 40c • 3 Lb. Bag $1.15
Red Circle 1-Lb. Bag 43c 3-Lb. Bag $1.24
Bokar 1-Lb. Bag 45c 3-Lb. Bag $1.29

POST GRAPENUT FLAKES 8-Oz. Pkg. 15c
SUNNYFIELD RICE GEMS Pkg. 13c
ANN PAGE PREPARED SPAGHETTI 2 15¾-Oz. Can 23c
ARMOUR'S STAR TREET 12-Oz. Can 49c
ARMOUR'S STAR VIENNA SAUSAGE 4-Oz. Can 17c

SUPER SUDS Lge. Pkg. 36c
CASHMERE BOUQUET SOAP 2 Bars 25c
OCTAGON CLEANSER Pkg. 7c
OCTAGON SOAP POWDER Pkg. 8c
AJAX CLEANSER Pkg. 11c
OCTAGON SOAP POWDER Lge. Pkg. 24c
CAMAY SOAP 2 Bath Size 29c

A&P SUPER MARKETS
MEATS AND FISH • FRUITS AND VEGETABLES • GROCERIES • BAKERY • DAIRY

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

For your date — "Schlitz No. 5" — at HARRY'S

APRIL 2, 1943

AST . 59c lb.
um
..... 69 c lb.
..... 68c lb.
..... 56c lb.
..... 25c lb.
OOD
..... 25c lb.
..... 49c lb.
REL . 39c lb
..... 21c lb.
..... 49c lb.
..... 37c lb.
SUDS
36c
BOUQUET
AP
25c
GON
NSER
7c
N SOAP
DER
8c
X
NSER
11c
N SOAP
DER
24c
AY,
AP
29c
ETS
Y • DAIRY

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER

Fair and continued warm.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS

Mud in Your Quonset
Letter to Dedmond
Seif's Fury

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, APRIL 3, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 131

MARY ANNE DANIEL AND MARIA DAVIS (left to right) are the new president and vice-president of the YWCA, respectively. The two coeds were elected in the Y balloting held Thursday. The two replace out-going officers Ruth Evans and Emily Von Borries.

Daniel Elected YW President; Davis to Be Vice-President

Mary Anne Daniel, junior political science major from Weldon, was elected president of the YMCA for the coming year in Thursday night's election. Maria Davis of Wilmington will serve as vice president next year.

They will succeed Ruth Evans and Emily Von Borries, respectively.

Other officers elected include Sally Woodhull, secretary; Virginia Nash, treasurer; and Peggy Egerton, membership chairman

These officers will make up the executive council, and will be installed, with other coed officers, at a ceremony to be held April 12 in the Presbyterian church.

Within the next few weeks the incoming president will select her cabinet, made up of approximately 30 committee chairmen, and other committees such as the Religion in Life, World Student Service fund, Clothing drive, Y-teen, and office assistants.

Cabinet members, as well as the executive committee, were chosen from the Y junior council, a group of about 50 outstanding junior girls who received training and orientation in Y program and ideals in a six-week course during winter quarter.

Some of the newly-elected officers will attend the leadership training conference in Greensboro today sponsored by the Southern division of the National Student YWCA. To be held at the Greensboro YW, the conference will have as its theme "The Christian Student at Grips with the Issues of Today," and will be attended by colleges throughout this area.

Civil rights and responsibilities, European Recovery Plan, Atomic energy, and southern economy will be discussed in workshop groups at the conference, and reports will be given on summer projects.

Burwell to Head IRC This Quarter

International Relations club officers for the spring quarter have been elected and delegates chosen to attend the state IRC meeting to be held at Queens college in Charlotte April 17, according to an announcement yesterday.

New officers are as follows: James Burwell, president; John Sanders, vice president; Mary Bates Sherwood, secretary; Francis Winslow, treasurer; Banks Tally, speaker and forum chairman; John Bristow, membership chairman; Ann Beale and Peggy McKinley, social chairmen.

At an organizational meeting last Monday plans were made to hold a membership campaign during the spring quarter.

Spring Attendance Falls Below 7,000 In Sub-Normal Drop

The number of students at the University this spring has dropped from last quarter's total of 7,116 to 6,974, according to the official registration figures released yesterday by Chancellor House. Even this decrease in enrollment, though, is "far less than was customary during pre-war years," Central Records Director Edwin Lanier commented.

A partial breakdown of this figure shows that 500 of the total are in the professional schools; with 270 in law, 94 in medicine, 106 in public health and 30 in library science.

The registration office enrolled 6,699 before the opening of the quarter and picked up 557 during the March 24-29 registration period. Cancellations and students failing to return reduced this total to its current 6,794.

The enrollment has been decreasing since its all-time high of 7,528 this past fall.

Brockmann Reveals Some Tickets Left

John Brockmann, who is in charge of arrangements for the Freshman Friendship council-Women's college freshman picnic and dance to be held here this afternoon and tonight, said yesterday that a few tickets were still available. Tickets will be on sale in the Y information office until 1 o'clock today. Tickets for both the picnic and dance combined are one dollar.

The gir smf.C Wrl. 'P' A(b4fl

The girls from W. C. are expected to arrive at 4 o'clock by bus. Local students with tickets are asked to be at the Forest Theater picnic ground by 4:30.

After the picnic supper is served the group will move on to Woollen gym at 8:30 for informal dancing.

FRED BLACKWELL is running for the junior seat on the Men's Honor council. Blackwell, nominated by the non-partisan selection board, is a transfer from Brevard college and a veteran of four years service in the navy.

Grades Held Up By Official Snarl

The distribution of last quarter's grades to the student body has had to be postponed, Central Records Director Edwin Lanier said today, due to the regular registration and the extensive drop and add work that is being done by the staff of the registration office.

"We are recording the grades now," Lanier explained, "and we hope they should be ready for distribution next week."

The exact date and time when students may pick up this information will be announced later.

STUDENTS FOR STASSEN

All students who are interested in forming a Students-for-Stassen club here on campus are requested to come to the Horace Williams lounge on the first floor of Graham Memorial, on Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock.

Eighteen Candidates Are Disqualified By Elections Board

Eighteen candidates for office in the spring elections have been unconditionally disqualified, according to Al Winn, chairman of the Board of Elections.

The 18 listed were absent from each of the three compulsory candidates' meetings held in Gerrard hall Tuesday, Thursday and yesterday.

The disqualified people are: C P: John Miles, Dan Martin, Jake Lamberts: UP: Dick Bunting Gene Turner.

Coeds: Sybil Mitchell, Meg Healy, Ruth Manning, Gloria Peters, Conner Reed, Mary Louise Powe, Simon Bassett, Jo Benton, Dot Knott, Lola Mustard, Edith Semat, Betsy Tom Lawrence, Nancy Pendleton.

Compulsory Meeting For SP Candidates

Chairman Gran Childress has announced a meeting of the Student party tomorrow night at 7:30 in Graham Memorial Roland Parker lounge 1. Childress emphasized that the meeting is compulsory for all candidates of the Student party in the elections on Tuesday. There are several matters concerning party literature that must be attended to and worked out. Childress requested that all candidates endorsed by the Student party also be present at this meeting. Also announced was the regular meeting of the Student party on Monday night at 9 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge 1.

High Wind Forecast For Monday in Hill

A band and high-powered politics will reign supreme in Hill hall Monday evening at 7 o'clock, according to Elections Board Chairman Al Winn.

Short talks will be made by candidates for president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer and for campus publications. The entire meeting will last only one hour.

All candidates for other offices will be present, but will not address the meeting, which is open to everyone on campus.

PARLIAMENTARY COURSE

A non-credit course in parliamentary procedure, given under the auspices of the Political Science department, meets every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in Caldwell hall.

Although the course is open to all students, it is particularly urged upon student leaders and fraternity officers.

It was explained yesterday that the course is authorized on a contingent basis only and may not be given if interest is not high enough.

Head Cheerleader Race Reduced To Three As Wofford Withdraws

BILL BUCHAN AND CAM WEST are Student party nominees for member-at-large to the Publications board and Student council, respectively. Buchan is writing for the Daily Tar Heel editorial page at present, while West is a member of the Dialectic Senate and the Elections committee of the Student Legislature.

Former Candidate Expresses Regret, Thanks to Friends

By Chuck Hauser

Only three candidates for head cheerleader out of the original four now remain in the race, it was learned yesterday as Dick Wofford, Campus party aspirant to the post announced his withdrawal.

Tuesday's general elections battle will now feature a three-cornered fight between Jerry Pence (Ind.), Norm Sper (SP) and Charlie Stancell (UP).

Wofford, a member of this year's squad under the direction of Head Cheerleader Myrt Sherard, stated that he did not plan to back any of his former opponents at the present time.

Although Bob Haire, chairman of the Campus party, could not be located last night, it was learned that the CP has made no plans to endorse any of the three candidates still running.

In a statement released to the Daily Tar Heel yesterday, Wofford stated, "Although reluctant to do so, I am forced to withdraw from the race for head cheerleader due to recently arising circumstances which make me ineligible to hold the position.

"I wish to express my sincere gratitude to the Campus party," Wofford continued, "and to all my friends for the support given me during my recent campaign."

BINGO TONIGHT

"Joker John" Van Hecke will be on hand to call for the weekly Saturday night session of the popular game of Bingo in the Graham Memorial main lounge at 8 o'clock tonight.

Philharmonic Conductor Helfman to Give Recital-Speech Under Hillel Sponsorship

Max Helfman, distinguished composer, lecturer, and conductor of the People's Philharmonic Choral society of New York, will give a unique lecture recital in Hill hall tomorrow.

Sponsored by the local Hillel foundation, Helfman's program is entitled "Jewish Music and Jewish Survival."

His program is not a lecture in the usual sense of the term. He illustrates at the piano a running dialogue, comprising early Bible cantillations, old synagogue chants, tunes of Jewish folk life, as well as from modern works of contemporary Jewish composers. Described by critics as a "memorable experience with an impelling message," the program points up the significance of music in Jewish history.

In addition to being a conductor of the People's Philharmonic society of New York, Helfman is nationally known as music director of the Brandeis Camp institute and Music Director of Temple B'noi Abraham of Newark, N. J.

Mind-Reading and Mirth Billed as Features Of SEC-Sponsored Polgar Appearance Here

By Sally Woodhull

"Miracles of the Mind," a unique exhibition of mind reading, mystification and mirth, will be presented Monday night at 8 o'clock in Memorial hall by Dr. Franz J. Polgar, renowned hypnotists and mental telepathist.

Sponsored by the Student Entertainment committee, the show is an attempt to pay off the debt incurred by the group earlier in the year when students failed to support their shows. Graham Memorial Director Bill Shuford is supervising ticket sales for the committee.

Admission price to the entertainment will be 50 cents, and tickets may be obtained at the Graham Memorial office as well as at the door.

Called the "most perplexing personality on the stage," Polgar presents a program made up of telepathy, amazing demonstrations in though transference; memory feats, exhibiting the photographic mind in a series of rapid fire tests; and power of suggestion, with volunteer subjects from the audience.

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, James Pence tells how the doctor hypnotised the Georgia Tech football team the day before they were slated to play Alabama. Georgia Tech won the game. The next Saturday, Polgar was hundreds of miles away, filling an engagement. The Georgia Tech team lost. "Coincidence, no doubt" says the Post, "but for the remainder of the season Atlanta papers were crying, 'The Team needs Polgar'."

Polgar is the son of a small-town school principal of Enying, Hungary. He grew up a shy youth, selecting his companions from among the peasant class. Given a great deal to dreaming as a boy, Polgar says he was haunted continually by the thoughts of great mental and psychic powers, but he hadn't

(See POLGAR, page 4)

Playmakers Co-Sponsoring Theater Meeting Beginning Here April 12

By Mark Sumner

University and community theater leaders from 14 southern states will meet here April 12 and 13 for the Southeastern theater meeting sponsored by the Carolina Playmakers in collaboration with the National Theater Conference, according to an announcement released today by Samuel Selden, director of the Playmakers.

The states to be represented are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West. Virginia, and also from Washington, D. C. Selden said that small colleges, as well as large universities, have been invited.

"Purpose of the meeting is to compare notes and exchange information about theater activities in the South," he said, "but we also intend to explore the possibilities of founding a Southeastern Theater conference."

The two-day program which will open with a luncheon address by Margo Jones, Theater 48, Dallas, Texas, on April 12, will be followed by the four-day drama festival of the Carolina Dramatic association.

Other features of the program will include reports on Southern theater activities by Leo Brady, Catholic university, and Howard W. Bailey, Rollins college. Playwright Paul Green will speak on "Our Opportunities".

On the evening of April 12, the Playmakers will present a new play, "Call Back Yesterday," by Gene McLain, as an example of experimental staging.

The second day's program will include a panel discussion by Selden, Harry E. Davis of the

(See THEATER, page 4)

Aims, Plans of Yack Nominees Published

Gene Blake

"A yearbook, in order to be a successful publication, must contain those essentials which create enjoyment when looking over it after it is first received by the student; give additional pleasure a few years from then; and, in later life, stand as a lasting testimony to past pleasantries. I believe that I can give the rising senior class and other classes such an annual — a yearbook of which they can be proud.

"If elected to the position of Yackety Yack editor, I shall, with eager endeavor:

"1 Apply close scrutiny to the spending of Yack funds, eliminating wasteful spending where found, and exercising general over-all economical spending.

"2 Enlarge the Yack staff so as to obtain more and varied opinions and ideas.

"3 Award staff positions on a basis of individual initiative and qualification, rather than on a 'friendly' or organizational-affiliation basis.

"4 Make scheduled (in the full sense of the word) appointments for individual Yack photos at the beginning of the new school year, in order that the publication may be completed and distributed before the last few days of the school year.

"5 Work diligently and unceasingly for our mutual benefit in giving all of us a 'book of memories' of which we can be proud."

Bill Duncan

"In order to present an annual which will not just be stored in an attic, I promise, if elected, to publish a complete book with the accent on human interest.

"I believe that it requires experience to compile such a book. Believing that, I should like to present to the students the following qualification:

"Coordinator for the 1948 Yackety Yack.

"Personnel manager for the U. S. Civil Service.

"A years study at the Philadelphia school of Industrial Art.

"Associate editor of the Catawba college Pioneer.

"Active part in high school publications.

"Because I believe that the students have a right to know just what I intend to do if elected editor, I present as my platform the following specific aims.

"1. I will give more space to informal snaps, encouraging equal representation of all groups.

"2. I will strive to have a large capable staff thus training others to be able to edit subsequent books.

"3. I will not set deadlines that the staff cannot meet but will require delivery of the annual in May.

"4 I Will do my utmost to give the students a book of which they will be proud."

Tarnation Candidates Release Platforms

Fred Burgess

"In submitting this platform I feel that it is necessary to herein define my intentions concerning the humor magazine.

"I shall endeavor to present to the students of UNC a well-rounded magazine of all possible types of humorous material. I will use many large photographs and artistic features in the belief that "one picture is worth ten thousand words." I shall use many informal snapshots and many cartoons.

"I will use more written humor material in the form of short stories and incidents. I will use poetry to some extent, and I will stress originality in all material used — be it written or illustrative. I will reprint as little as possible from other magazines as has been so often the practice in the past.

"I do not promise anything. I

(See BURGESS, page 4)

Charlie Gibson

"Now is the time for life in Tarnation. If this University is finally to enjoy a humor magazine that laughs and lasts, fresh talent and new approaches to wit are what voters and readers digest.

"The task facing next year's Tarnation editor will require more that writing alone. While feature articles and fine cartoons can be left to a competent, undedicated staff, a few non-writing chores at which the editor of a good humor monthly might spend twenty-five hours a day are as follows:

"1. Pleasing the public by considering all worthwhile suggestions and criticisms for its magazine.

"2. Enlarging a staff that is already commendable by welcoming anyone else willing to work conscientiously and congenially.

(See GIBSON, page 4)

Tom Kerr

"As a platform for my campaign for the editorship of Tarnation, I submit the following:

"I do not promise more pinups, jokes, picture-storys, or the dabbling of dilantantes, Rather, I pledge myself to publish what I consider (in light of student opinion) a well-organized, balanced magazine.

"Throughout this year it has been Tarnation's editorial policy to find the campus sense of humor and please it. This task is far from complete. In running for the editorship of Tarnation I pledge myself to continue this policy with the support I have thus far given it in my capacity as assistant editor.

"Tarnation is now a growing magazine; it should continue to be a growing magazine next year. I promise to edit Tarnation as such, a new, young, and

(See KERR, page 4)

Bob Smith and Tom Wharton

"We contend that Tarnation is and ought to be a magazine for the entertainment of the students of the University of North Carolina. We all pay for such a publication, and over five hundred of us voted for it as such in last quarter's referendum. For this and other reasons we present the three most important points of our goal as follows:

"1. Our main point is to keep Tarnation as it is, a humor magazine of, by, and for the students of the University of North Carolina, not the exchange readers of Dook, Princeton, or Meredith.

"2. We intend to interpret to the best of our ability Carolina campus humor, and to publish the best of it.

"3. We are determined to keep Tarnation on the ball and to improve it with each issue,

DTH Editorial Aspirants State Planks

Ed Joyner

"My platform as a candidate for the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel is one of practicality rather than wild promises which cannot be fulfilled.

"The only promise I will make to anyone is this:

"If you, the students of this University, select me to edit your newspaper for the coming year, I shall do my best to give you the best newspaper I can.

"Entailed in this promise are the following points:

"1. Assembly of the best staff possible to give you the best paper possible.

"2. Complete coverage of campus news, accurately reported and impartially presented.

"3. Complete and interesting coverage of news in sports.

"4. A strong editorial stand on all campus questions. In contrast to the news pages the editorial page will be as partial as I can make it. This partiality will be directed not for or against individual persons and organizations as such, but for or against the individual actions — or inaction — of those persons and organizations.

"5 The staff of the Daily Tar Heel shall always bear in mind that this paper belongs to every student at the University and that we, the staff, are here to serve you, the students."

Art Melton

"I pledge to the students this:

"I will make the Daily Tar Heel a good paper by the students and should I fail to rally or find sufficient talented students to publish the quality of paper the student body is entitled to I will resign as editor.

"The Daily Tar Heel shall carry the news of interest to the students, that is, if enough students desire two crossword puzzles daily — they'll get the two crossword puzzles daily.

"I pledge to the men students —a sports page that is a real sports page — not so much canned Carmichael-Goldwater stuff.

"I pledge to the women students — a coverage of women's sports and a decent prominence in print and recognition of the women's athletic association.

"I pledge to the students — I will use more pictures in next years paper and will try during the year to carry at least one item containing the name of each student. Space will not be delegated to just a few students.

"I will fire both Carmichael and Goldwater from the staff of the Daily Tar Heel.

"Publishing the Daily Tar Heel under the above pledges will not be a one-man job and it will only be with the help and ability of the many outstanding journalists on the campus that such can

(See MELTON, page 4)

Mill-Stones

Here's Mud In Your Quonset

By Barron Mills

A single visit over to the Quonset hut area Thursday night during the down-pour is enough to convince anyone that the UNC Quonsets are still in their natural habitat. Whenever a body thinks of Q. huts he must visualize mud—a quadmire with the Quonset huts little islands anchored in a muddy sea.

It was amazing and disgusting to see all of the mud. Old-time Quonset hut residents merely sighed, rolled up their trousers, displayed their hip-boots and paddled through the goo. It was a test of the old theory of survival of the fittest.

During a rainy spell, and there are few dry days in Chapel Hill, the Quonset hut area is inaccessible to all but three categories of individuals—stork-legged Quonset hut residents, men on stilts and owners of Amphibs. And the mud did not collect just because the three political camps are located in abandoned Q. huts. We are told that the mud was there even before the slinging began. The politico Petes moved down to the Quonsets because of plenty of custard for their famous mud-pies was, and is, available.

And while we are talking about mud. On many a balmy, perfectly-fair night we have heard a chant from fraternity court: "Here's mud in your eye."

* * *

Gran Childress, local yokel, who is chairman of the Student party and candidate for Secretary-treasurer of the student body, reassured our belief that there is a jinx on this columnist.

We had to wait fully five minutes to cross the street in front of the postoffice the other day. Drivers tooted horns, waved to would-be friends, made U-turns and tried out the reverse to see if they would be able to back out of the driveway if they got home safely.

Finally Gran could stand it no longer. Turning to me he says: "Listen Mills, you're a jinx, never before have I had all this trouble crossing the street."

The only reply? "It's all in a day's walk."

Gubernatorial candidate Mayne Albright and Oscar Barker were guests of the Carolina Political Union at a Danziger supper the other night, Mrs. Albright was asked by Bill Kemp to say a few words to the supper group. The wife of the gubernatorial candidate declined, but offered to sing their campaign song. Albright and the missus then tested their pipes and invited Barker to join in on the song.

Barker, leaned back in his chair, lighted his cigar. "Well, it takes just as much effort to listen as sing, so I'll just listen."

Comments on Dr. Frank's convocation address: "That man was slow getting started, but what a wallop he packs." "I have been trying to find out for years what is the complexion of Dr. Frank that makes him the man he is. I have just come to the conclusion—its his humility."

AUTO INSPECTION

State auto inspection teams will be in Chapel Hill from April 6 until April 15. The location of the inspection lane is indefinite, but will be announced later. April 6, 7, and 8 have been set aside for the inspection of public-owned vehicles.

UMT Events Call for Action

As more and more of the anti-UMT and pro-UMT balls of yarn become unravelled there seems to be a multitude of facts and events which should not be overlooked. They must not be passed with a shrug of the shoulder because there must never be another occurance of this nature that meets an eye of disapproval from the public.

The picture of a flaming cross on the front page of yesterday morning's edition of the Durham and the distorted cutline underneath was anything but desirable publicity for the University. A flaming cross carries nothing but the wrong connotation and bad reputation for a liberal University.

In view of these facts we call upon Tom Eller and student government officers to appoint a special committee to investigate the exact happenings, to make a report to the campus, to write a letter containing the correct facts to the Durham Herald, and to take measures to prevent any future demonstrations of a shady nature. The time is now, with the first happening, to get the matter straight, and discourage any more displays.

The burning cross and its significance is a moot question. We are of the opinion that it was merely the work of some prankster. Bill Corley states that he is unaware that it was planned and executed by a member of his group. Some are of the opinion that it would be foolish to assume that there is not a student on the campus who has not been a member of the KKK at some time in his life. They reason that out of a student body of 7,000, it is quite possible that there could be Klansmen on campus. The cutlines under the cross carried in the Herald state that there have been two other such crosses. The committee should investigate this.

The time for action is now. We have a blemish on the reputation of the University of North Carolina. It can be rectified only through the students.

The behavior on the part of both factions at the meeting was anything but enviable. There was evidence that members of both groups behaved in a manner that would antagonize others who did not agree with them. This is not the type meeting in which the participants can conduct a meeting in an orthodox fashion and expect any good to come of it.

This, too, should not be overlooked in an investigation.

No Time for Education

The Senate has passed and sent to the House a bill to give $300,000,000 in Federal aid to grade and high schools per year. North Carolina's school children, if the House passes the bill also, will profit more than any other state in the union. We stand to receive $22,825,000, which amounts to $23.40 per year for every child between the ages of five and 17 years in the state.

Of course, North Carolina must continue to spend as much per child as it does this year.

Such a bill is welcome. While North Carolina's has not been the worst school system in the country, it certainly has not been the best.

And though Senator Byrd of Virginia, long noted for his Federal economy ideas, says this is no time to spend money on education, the Senator apparently thinks it is.

Perhaps the House will be influenced by Senator Byrd's views — but it might also realize that there never was and never will be a time when money should not be spent on education.

Perhaps if more money had been spent on education in the past, we might have learned how to stop the approaching war.

At any rate, North Carolina can be grateful for Federal aid. If it gets it.

— B. S.

"How can you criticize that brave little government when its busy fighting for its life?"

Carolina Carousel

Rally Makes Folks Happy

By R. Foo Giduz

Reaction to the Anti-UMT rally has been most interesting indeed . . . And surprisingly enough, many parties on both sides of the fence seem quite happy with the net results. . . About one minute before the Gerrard hall meeting began one of the chief Anti-UMT backers commented to us that he didn't see their group "had much to lose either way." . . ."If the Anti-Umtyers try to break up our meeting, they will be the only ones to suffer from the resulting reaction," he deduced. "And on the other had, if they sit quietly and listen to our speakers, that's all we ask," he said . . . And so right he was.

So with the exception of a few noisy brats who have no business being in a free university, the Corleymen did listen and sit relatively quietly for over 90 minutes. . . And they benefited from what they heard . . . (—It's always good to know your opponents' talking points!) . . . Many agreed that a number of good arguments against UMT were presented, although most certainly no one's stand on that question was altered by what they heard at the meeting.

The significant talking point of that while they agreed to the faults of UMT (Read Senate Bills No. 651-2 and yau'll be forced to agree,too!), they could not come to believe that anything will be accomplished practically by accepting the "lofty idealistic proposals" of the Anti Umtyers, true though their charges are. . .They could not believe that peace will be kept now as the Anti-UMT crowd maintained through (1) The United Nations alone; (2) A re-declaration of faith in Christian ideals; (3) Weaning our minds away from war thouhts; (4) A half-dozen other reasons which indignant Anti-Umtyers and Martha Aiken will swear we have left out here.

The above we do not claim to be the Gospel, and you may interpret it just as differently as you interpreted the results of the meeting itself. . .It's simply the Carouseler's humble view of what seemed to be the attitude of most in attendance . . .Sure, sure, we support an immediate temporary draft and maybe even UMT itself—negatively!. . .We regretfully support them because—and it's hard to say it in a line—we do not believe the alternative will maintain peace. We do not assure that UMT or a draft will, either, but we hope it will, and shall put all of our efforts constructively toward trying to make it do so. To us it seems to be the only practical positive step left, imperfect as it is. . .

The Brassy Taste

Seif's Fury, Signifying Nothing

By Bob Sain

It has to be done. Much as I dislike giving Sour Grapes Seif any publicity, it has to be done.

Sour Grapes said in a column on this page yesterday that he had spent two months "doing research. . . on the Carolina publications situation."

Poor Joker. He wasted his time.

In attempting, Pegler-style, to "expose the personalities and partisan politics that have infiltrated the campus literary scene" he succeeded only in giving the campus a quick and somewhat nauseating look at his own childish fury at not being the toast of the Mag. (He, by the way, is having a poem published in next month's mag—his first this year.)

"I am in an angry mood," he wrote. And so he might be. He has probably had more mediocre poems and short stories turned down this year than anyone except myself.

About those two months he spent in "research." The fruit of those 60 days, published here yesterday, is a three-point attack on the Mag, its editor, and on its literary board. He added, for icing, a charge that the recent referendum was "rigged." He has promised to bring facts to prove it. For his sake, let's hope he does.

As for the other three points two were definitely matters of opinion, the other an outright lie.

The first point: (Opinion) that there is room on campus for both Tarnation and the Mag and that Jacobson precipitated the referedum because there was no conflict between the two magazines "except in Jacobson's mind."

Why would Jacobson cut his own throat?

The second point: (Opinion) that "all this talk about a new literary quarterly is futile" and that quarterly workers are "fugitives from the jettisoned Mag and idealists."

If the talk about the quarterly is "futile" why did the legislature underwrite the publication to the tune of $2,000. And how do they get to be "fugitives from . . . idealists."? Sour Grapes insists that we must have a literary mag but calls the effort to get one "futile. Who's futile now?

The lie: that the Mag . . . "top notch material from the writers on campus in favor of tributions by their own members" and that Fred J. son rules his staff "with an hand."

As a member of the Mag literary board, I know that "top-notch material is publish ed when and where we find it. I grant that it is not often found. And, so far as I know, Sour Grapes has submitted none. As for Jacobson, he has nothing to do with the literary board and rules not one member of it.

Sour Grapes says writing a column for the DTH "is like letting your beard grow." I suggest that Sour Grapes content himself with letting his beard grow.

Write Away

An Open Letter To Dedmond

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Dear Mr. Dedmond:

As the time of election draws near, the days become fewer and fewer, many of us are becoming more and more tired of waiting for you, Mr .Dedmond, to explain your actions during the last few weeks.

It seems to me, Mr. Dedmond, that you had a choice to make over a month ago, a choice between fighting for decent representative government, and the tempting plum, the highest office on the campus, the presidency of the student body.

And we are NOT resigned to a third world war! . . .And that, one and all, is that!. . .Finis to Umtee-Anteeumtee!

—Except for a final Amen-P. S.: We are ashamed to admit that we are in the same boat on the UMT question as the stupid, Klan-kopying, high-s c h o o l i s h, brainless dolts who resorted to petty violence, ungentlemanly heckling, bugle-blowing, and blatant impoliteness toward the Anti-Umtyers before, after, and during THEIR meeting!

—Hope you idiots are the first to be drafted!

Why have you not answered the legitimate questions Charlie Long and Lindsay Tate asked you in the columns of the Tar Heel? There were questions about your behavior when you shelved the only decent redistricting bill which has ever been presented. You told me the day before you pulled the about-face drama in the legislature that you were going to bring out of your committee the original redistricting bill, and then one day later you brought out a weak, watered-down form that was at best a poor substitute. Then, as soon as opposition developed, you voted against even this emasculated version. Mr. Dedmond, surely a man of your experience realizes that what you voted for was taxation of a large part of the student body without representation.

Mr. Dedmond, from the beginning of your campus political life you have been a member of the Campus Party, and I have heard you say repeatedly that party represented your political philosophy on this campus. The question that bothers me is: why did you accept, fully realizing in advance that you would receive your own party's nomination, the University Party's nomination even before you accepted your own? Many of us cannot help but believe that a great number of the Campus Party members and the independent voters who believed in you can now be found floating down the river. Do you believe that the University Party and the Campus Party stand, or have ever stood, for the same philosophy?

Mr. Dedmond, the reason I am running as an independent candidate is that I feel that voters and not parties ought to be represeted in student government, and it is for this reason that I feel at liberty to ask you these questions openly, before the voters. I hope you will not put off too long your answers to them.

Charlie Hodson

Editor:

So your publication, the Daily Tar Heel, is for the student? I am sure that I am at the present a student also; however, a letter which I submitted to your Write Away column two weeks ago, has not ventured forth in print. Why hasn't the above mentioned letter been received as the letters of others. Could it be that I do not belong to the right political party? If this is true, please return my publication fee as I wish to subscribe to any Vassar publication, knowing now that even their want ads would prove to be more interesting reading than the present Daily Tar Heel: excluding, of course, Fearless Fosdick.

J. P. Brady

Ed. Note: Mr. Brady, your letter we remember well; it was received after we had published the final issue for last quarter. It was handed to us by carrier. We brought it back to the office, but in the shuffle of exams and everything it was lost. If you have a carbon copy of the letter we will be delighted to print it on this page.

Politicians Warned By Dorm Managers

Campus campaign managers were warned today by Dormitory Manager Bill Smith to place political posters on the dormitory bulletin boards only during the coming elections.

"It's useless to put them up in unauthorized places, Smith emphasized, "for all student managers have been instructed to tear down any they find that are not posted on the boards."

Smith also requested that the posters be affixed with thumb tacks, and that no scotch tape be used.

Five Amendments To Constitution Proposed

By Pete Gerns

Five amendments to the student constitution will be submitted to you on election day, Tuesday, April 6. These amendments were passed by majority vote of the legislature during the winter term and must be ratified by two-thirds of those voting to become effective.

For the sake of clarity we have included in this discussion of the proposed parts of our constitution which will be affected by them.

Amendment I: "Article II, Section I of the Student Constitution shall be amended to include the Court of the Interfraternity Council.

Section 10 shall be added to Article II and shall read as follows: 'The Court of the Interfraternity Council shall be set up as provided in the IFC Constitution at present and shall have the power to try all cases of fraternity violations of the Co-ed Visiting Agreement, and shall have jurisdiction over all judicial cases involving individual fraternities as organizations, except individuals concerned in violation of the honor and campus code shall be tried by the Men's and Women's councils'."

Explanation: This amendment clarifies the IFC power to try cases of fraternity violations of the Coed Visiting Agreement only; that is, individual fraternities as organizations.

Affected article: (Newly added matter in boldface type): Article II, Section 1: The judicial power shall be vested in a Student Council, a Men's Council, a Women's Council, the Men's Dormitory Councils, the Men's Interdormitory Council, the Women's House Councils,and the Court of the Interfraternity Council. The Student Council shall have final jurisdiction in all cases involving offenses against the Student Body."

Section 10 which is to be added to Article II which describes the powers of the different councils will give powers to the Court of the Interfraternity Council as described above.

Amendment II: "The Student Legislature shall have the power to impeach any officer elected by the Student Body.

Impeachment proceeding shall be as follows: Charges may be brought in the Legislature for non-performance of duty, or mal-administration of student office against any student official, A majority vote of the quorum present shall be necessary to bring the official to trial. The legislator bringing the charges shall prosecute, and the accused official may designate any UNC student to act as counsel for the defense. The regular officers of the Legislature or their regular alternates shall preside at the trial. The trial shall be in closed session. A two-thirds vote of the Legislature shall be necessary to remove the accused from office."

Explanation: This amendment gives the legislature the power to impeach by a two-thirds majority any student government official who is not properly doing his job.

Affected article: Article I, Section 4 of the Student constitution defines the powers of the legislature. The above proposed amendment would add the power of impeachment to these powers.

Amendment III: "Section 1 .All words after "Student Legislature" in Article 1, Section 1, of the Constitution shall be deleted.

Section 2. The second paragraph of Section 8 of Article I of the Constitution shall be amended to read as follows: "to make all rules affecting women only, such rules subject to approval by the Student Legislature when it is deemed necessary by a majority vote of the members of the Student Legislature present at any meeting of that body, except in cases of women's social rules."

Explanation: This amendment gives the power to the Student Legislature to review when deemed necessary any act of the Coed Senate except those concerning women's social rules.

Affected Article: Article 1, Section 1, of the constitution now reads: "Supreme legislative power in the Student Body shall be vested in a Student Legislature (except as provided for in Section 8 of this article). The words in parentheses would be stricken from the Constitution.

Article I, Section 8 now reads: "The Coed Senate shall have power to make all rules affecting women only, this power not to be superseded by that supreme power of the Student Legislature." This section would be replaced by the amendment.

Amendment IV. "To the last sentence of Article 2, Section 1, of the Student Constitution, add the following: "and the Law and Medical Schools shall set up separate judicial council to handle cases exclusively relating to students of these schools, involving honor cases only."

Explanation: This amendment gives the Law and Medical Schools the power to set up separate judicial councils for honor violations by students of these schools only.

ADD—Student Government .....

Affected article: Article II, Section 1, of the Constitution has already been stated in discussion of Amendment I, above. This measure if enacted, would add the provision for separate honor councils for Law and Medical Schools to Article II, Section I.

Amendment V: "There shall be one holdover member chosen after April elections from the junior members elected in December to serve until the following April. If the chairman elected at that time is a junior she shall automatically become the holdover member." This amendment shall be inserted in Article II of the Student Constitution, at the end of the first sentence in Section 5."

Explanation: This amendment provides that there shall be one holdover member elected by the Women's Council from its membership to serve the next year.

Affected Article: (New matter (See AMENDMENTS, page 4)

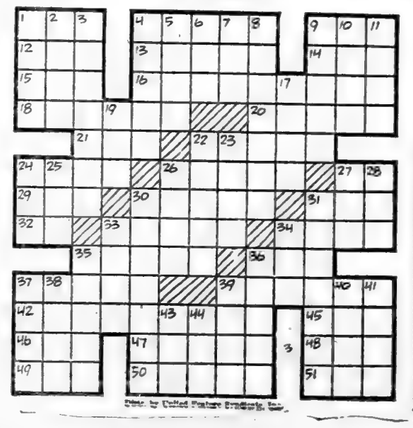
AUTO INSPECTION



State auto inspection teams will be in Chapel Hill from April 6 until April 15. The location of the inspection lane is indefinite, but will be announced later. April 6, 7, and 8 have been set aside for the inspection of public-owned vehicles.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS
1—Sports trophy
4—Foreign
9—Author of "Marie Roget"
12—Collection of savings
13—Spree (slang)
14—Female sheep
15—Sesame
16—Barker
18—Begins
20—To fawn upon
21—Billiard stick
22—Tilled man
24—Stalk
26—Type of auto
27—Pronoun
29—Sloths
30—Wild
31—Body of water
32—Prefix: down
33—Sultan's home
34—Injured
35—Servant
36—Lid
37—Occasion
39—To meddle
42—Nomads
45—Age
46—Conclusion
47—Metal fastener
48—Set of nails
49—Things (law)
50—Ankle covers
51—To observe

DOWN
1—Felines
2—Single thing
3—Kings' homes
4—To calm
5—Lindens
6—Tavern
7—Self
8—On neither side
9—Kind of nut
10—Was in debt
11—Spooky
17—Midday
19—Liquor
22—Kind of hat
23—First man
24—Gloomy
25—Cravat
26—Withered
27—Pronoun
28—To dine
30—Hesitates
31—Meals
33—Applause
34—Poor actor
35—Sells
36—Throws
37—Jug
38—Wind indicator
39—Allowance for waste
40—Great Lake
41—Wrath
43—Kind of tide
44—Chief's mount

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.	Complete Leased Wire of United Press	Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: John Stump — NIGHT SPORTS: Buddy Vaden

Carolina Tennis, Golf Teams Rally to Win; Baseballers Deadlock Yale, 7-7

Netmen Nip Cornell On Wins in Doubles; Yale Foe For Today

By Bob Goldwater

The lilting strains of "Amici" could be heard in both victory and defeat at the varsity tennis courts yesterday when the Carolina racquet defenders of "Hark the Sound" barely managed to eke out a 5-4 decision over Cornell's netters who call the same song "Far Above Cayuga's Waters."

Behind for the first time this season with only two tandem contests remaining, the Tar Heels responded to the heavy pressure and came through with a pair of decisions to provide the home forces with their third successive triumph of the young season.

Coach John Kenfield's charges will attempt to make it four in a row this afternoon starting at 2 o'clock when they meet another dangerous invader from the North ,this time from Yale. Heading the Eli is Rollar Ray, who defeated Vic Seixas in their initial meeting last year.

Chief Heroes

Chief heroes of yesterday's triumph were Heath Alexander and Don Skakle, who copped the deciding doubles skirmishes with a 2-6, 6-1, 6-4 win over Hollis Young and John Penn. The third set was close all the way, being tied at 4-4 before the Carolina duo broke through Penn's service to take the lead. Alexander then maintained his serving advantage for the game, set, match, and team victory.

Prior to the final doubles triumph, Ray Morris and Charlie Rice, both of whom were victorious in their singles duels, easily overcame the Cornell combination of Jim Kennedy and John Riihiluoma to tie up the team score at 4-all. Morris was also an easy victor in singles play, but Rice was forced into a long, three-set struggle before gaining his win.

Big Surprise

The big surprise of the afternoon-maybe not a surprise to the Cornell delegation but certainly one to the Carolina rooters—came on the number one court where Dick Savitt registered an upset victory over Vic Seixas by the unusual scores of 1-6, 6-0, 6-1. As can be seen by the count of the first set, the duel started out as a one-sided match in Seixas' favor. It soon changed!

As steady as he was in the first set, Seixas was just as much off form the rest of the way. And meanwhile Savitt, flashing a steady backhand and powerful strokes from the backcourt, was becoming hotter all the time despite the coolness of the air. The two factors combined to result in Savitt routing Seixas in the last two sets, with the loss of only one game during that time.

Taylor Wins

Besides Morris and Rice, Clark Taylor was the other singles winner, having little trouble in disposing of Len Steiner, 6-0, 6-2. Steiner later gained a measure of revenge by teaming with fraternity-brother Savitt to produce a closely-contested decision over Seixas and Taylor in the number one doubles clash.

The complete results:

Savitt (CU) over Seixas, 1-6, 6-0, 6-1; Taylor (UNC) over Steiner, 6-0, 6-2; Morris (UNC) over Young, 6-3, 6-2; Rice (UNC) over Kennedy, 10-12, 6-1, 8-6; Riihiluoma (CU) over Alexander, 2-6, 6-4, 9-7; Penn (CU) over Gruner, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Doubles: Savitt-Steiner over Seixas-Taylor, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4; Morris-Rice over Kennedy Riihiluoma, 6-0, 6-2; Alexander-Skaklo over Young-Penn, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Four Coeds Gain in Badminton Play

Four coeds have won their first round matches in the coed badminton tournament which started this week and await the outcome of the other matches, to be played by next Tuesday, before moving into the second round of play.

The victors are Emily Baker over Martha Whitner, 11-9, 11-5; Molly Blackburn over Letsy Pearson by forfeit; Faith Adams over Dabney Little, 11-0, 11-1; and Becky Holton over Katie Davis, 11-7, 11-5.

Other players reaching the second round via the bye route are Peppy Lucas, Joyce Adams, Sibyle Mitchell, Helen Bouldin, Sarah Walker, Ella Gray Wilson, Mary Ruth Davis, Jean Stoutinberg, Frances Green, Scotty Dellinger, Ann Bumgardner, and Elizabeth Browning.

Seven Track Teams Seek Honors Iu Carolina Relays Here Today

BOB SELIGMAN
. . . doubles in weights.

By Larry Fox

A total of seven schools have entered teams in the third edition of the Carolina relays to be staged on Fetzer field this afternoon beginning at 2 o'clock.

The relays were first held in 1942(but the war intervened and the cinder classic was not renewed until last spring. This will be the first taste of outdoor competition for many of the participants, so form charts and past performances will not be too valid until later in the campaign when the runners have become adjusted to the open-air courses.

No Team Scores

No team scores are kept in the relays, but last year the Tar Heels captured six first places to lead the field. Duke followed with four and N. C. State placed third with two. Yale and Tennessee wound up the parade with one apiece.

Don Nelson will head the Tar Heel entry in the 100-yard dash. Ted Schultz of Carolina, who won the event last spring, is entered in the 440 relay. Doug Ausbon, Duke cage star, took second place in 1947 is entered in the relay, but it isn't known if he will compete in the century. Sterling Wingo, dash man from VPI. is the favorite in this attraction.

Dick Taylor, Hunter Heggie, and Bob Morrow are the top trio from UNC in the 120-yard high hurdles. The local threesome will face most of their opposition in George Cook of Yale and Carl Rhuback of Maryland.

New Record

Heggie placed third last year behind Chunk Simmons, who was running for the Blue and White at the time, and Sherwood Finley of Yale. Simmons established a new meet record of 0:14.6 as he edged Finley in the feature race of the afternoon.

Lunch will be served for Carolina track men in Lenior hall at 11 o'clock this morning.

With the exception of Jack Milne, Coach Dale Ranson will be entering the same men in the mile that won last year, with Jimmy Miller setting a new meet standard of 4:28.2. Milne and Sam Magill came in right behind Miller. Mark Burnham will fill out the UNC mile entry. Frank Magill, miler from VPI and Sam's brother, will probably be entered.

Weight Events

N. C. State's Jim Byler will be out to retain his shotput title. Bob Seligman of Carolina and Vic Franks and Jim Fuchs of Yale will be his biggest obstacles. Larry Klosterman is also entered. Seligman in turn will be defending his discus crown. Tar Heel gridder Klosterman placed third in that event in 1947.

Dick Dickey, N. C. State, and Jack Moody, UNC, will fight it out in the high jump to see if either can win sole possession of the title for which they tied last Spring. Bill Joyner and Doug Smith round out the local entry.

Ausbon, who set a new record in winning the broad jump last year, will enter the event as the favorite. Moody and Len Briley are Carolina entries.

(See RELAYS, page 4)

Joe Verdeur Sets New Swim Record

New Haven, Conn., April 2—(UP) LaSalle College's crack breaststroke swimmer—Joe Verdeur—has smashed another world's record.

Verdeur set a new mark for the 200-meter breast-stroke at the National AAU swimming championships. His time was 2:31.3. seven-tenths of a second better than his previous best effort and almost five seconds faster than his listed record. Last Saturday, at the National Collegiate championships, Verdeur broke all records for the 200-yard breast stroke.

BASEBALL RESULTS

St. Louis 4	Chicago 3
Cleveland 12	Chicago 4
Pittsburgh 12	New York 7
Philadelphia 6	Boston 1
Cincinnati 11	St. Louis 0
Boston Braves 10	N. Y. Yanks 4
Washington 4	Chattanoga 1

DON NELSON
. . . runs in relays.

Spring Mural Card Features Softball

A jam-packed mural schedule of spring sports has moved onto the scene to take the place of all the winter events that ended with the gigantic sports carnival held last Thursday evening.

Play opens Monday in the softball round robin tournament with an eighteen game card in which 36 of the 46 fraternity teams entered in the tourney will see action.

Each team in the six fraternity leagues and the four dormitory sections will play a total of seven games to determine the top team in each division. After the regular schedule has been completed, games will be played between the divisional winners to determine the dormitory and fraternity champions.

First round matches in the competative rifle shooting tourney will also get under way Monday. All teams have completed orientation firing and the four top men from each team have been determined to represent their team in the tourney firing.

Two of the seven independent teams will fire in the afternoon while two of the 22 fraternity teams entered will meet in the evening match. Final team total will be determined from the three top men on each team.

The Intramural office also announced that plans are being drawn up for tennis. horseshoes, track. water polo and archery.

LEO ADOPTS GIRL

Fort Worth, Texas, April 2—(UP)—Leo Durocher and his wife, film actress Laraine Day, were scheduled to arrive in Forth Worth today to adopt a four-year old girl.

Hobbs' Single In Ninth Scores Two Runs To Tie Game; Weather Hampers Pitchers

By Bill Kellam

Southern Pines, April 2 — There was a horse show scheduled for Southern Pines this afternoon but it must have appeared to several hundred chilled and wind-swept fans who braved the mid-50 degree temperature that most of the horsing around in town took place in the resort's "municipal stadium," for on that sandy diamond Carolina and Yale battled through nine innings to a hectic 7-7 tie that was called at the end of nine innings because of the adverse weather and lighting conditions.

Reserve first baseman Will Hobbs was the man of the hour for the raggedly-performing Hearnmen today. The lanky sophomore pulled a "Cookie Lavagetto" with two out in the last half of the ninth when he delivered a pinch single with the bases loaded that produced two runs and the tie score.

DiLorenzo Shines

This timely blow climaxed the lengthy contest that saw the Elis. last season's runner-ups for the NCAA title, curveballing Vinnie DiLorenzo's five inning no-hitter with a three-run outburst in the sixth. They continued to peck away at the tiring Tar Heel ace, who fanned 11, until the eighth frame when he was lifted in favor of fireball Frank Robinson.

Robinson, badly hampered (as were DiLorenzo and the Yale pitchers) by the cold weather, was able to stop the Connecticut Yankees only after two tallies, charged to DiLorenzo, crossed the plate. The "visitors" also added another run in the ninth to give them a 7-5 lead before Hobbs' epic drive.

The official scorers were beginning to add up the box scores in the Carolina half of the ninth when, with two gone and nobody on, Jim Kelly lofted a high fly to the Yale second sacker. He obliging expertly muffed the catch.

Tar Heels Rally

Otsie Woodward, the lone southpaw to work on the hill for Yale, then blew up. He walked Carolina pinch-hitters Andy Tranavitch and Jack Brasington. Then the mighty Hobbs fearlessly strode to the plate to tie up the game. Two more pitchers and batters later, the game was over.

five inning tour.

In the sixth inning, Ethan Allen's boys began dropping hits over the infielders' heads and put together four safeties, a crucial error, and a fielder's choice, for three runs. They added another in the seventh and then another pair in the eighth on two hits, a walk, and a passed ball.

Kenny Black grabbed the Carolina batting laurels in today's tilt. In the first frame, he strolled. moved to second on Quinn's wild pickoff attempt. and then scored when co-captain Jim Hayworth lined a double to right field.

The fleet middle gardener was the big man in the next inning when he punched a double past the Yale third sacker that scored Jim Hamilton and John Gregory. Black knocked in another tally in the sixth when he singled into right field to score Gregory, who had walked and moved

Yale (7)	AB	R	H	PO	A
Moher ss	5	2	3	3	3
James rf	5	1	1	0	1
Redden 3b	5	1	1	3	1
Mathews 2b	4	0	1	1	2
Smith lf	4	1	1	3	0
Felske c	4	0	1	8	1
Bush 1b	3	0	0	7	0
Tettleback cf	4	1	1	2	0
Rosenweigh cf	1	0	1	0	0
Quinn p	1	0	0	0	2
a Lambert	1	1	0	0	0
Rosener p	0	0	0	0	0
b Russ	1	0	0	0	0
Woodwourd p	1	0	0	0	0
Duffus p	0	0	0	0	0
Goodyear p	0	0	0	0	0
Total	37	7	10	27	11

Carolina (7)	AB	R	H	PO	A
Black cf	5	1	2	3	1
Hayworth 3b	5	0	1	2	2
Jones rf	4	1	1	1	0
Kelly lf	4	1	0	1	0
Varney c	4	0	2	13	1
Robinson p	0	0	0	0	1
DiLorenzo p	4	0	1	0	3
d Brasington	0	0	0	0	0
Gregory 1b	2	2	0	5	0
e Hobbs	1	0	1	0	0
Ryan ss	3	0	0	1	2
Hamilton 2b	4	1	1	1	0
f Cheek	1	0	0	0	0
Totals	37	7	9	27	10

a batted for Quinn in 6th.
b Russ batted for Rosener in 7th.
c Tranavitch batted for Varney in 9th.
d Brasington batted for Robinson in 9th.
e Hobbs batted for Gregory in 9th.
f batted for Hamilton in 9th.

Yale	000	003	121 7
Carolina	120	001	102 7

Summary: Errors: Quinn, Varney 2. Mathews. Runs batted in: Hayworth, Black 3, Varney, Hobbs 2, James, Mathews, Moher, Redden, Rosensweigh.

Redden, Rosensweig. Two base hits: Hamilton, Black, Moher, Hayworth. Stolen bases: Tettlebach, Redden. Sacrifice: Ryan, Kelly. Base on balls—off: DiLorenzo 2, Quinn 3, Rosner 1, Woodward 3. Robinson 1. Struck out—by Quinn 4, Rosner 1, DiLorenzo 11, Woodward 3, Robinson 1. Hitts off DiLorenzo 6, in 7 1-3; Quinn 6 in 5; Rosner 1 in 1; Woodward 1 in 2 2-3; Duffus 1 in 0; Goodyear 0 in 1-3.

In Opener . . .

Jayvees Battle Whirlies Here

Greensboro High's Whirlies will furnish the opposition for Carolina's junior varsity baseball team this afternoon, as Coach Henry House's charges make their initial appearance of the season.

Barring more rainy weather, the game will get under way at 3 o'clock at Emerson field. Coach House stated that if the main diamond on Emerson is not sufficiently dried, the contest will be staged on Southwest Emerson, actually the deep centerfield section of the regular field.

Coach House yesterday appeared satisfed with the way his boys have been developing. He commented that the hitting had not shown up so well thus far, but he attributed the cause to a lack of batting practice, occasioned by the bad weather. He believes the club's fielding is excellent, however, and with a few more practices Carolina should be represented by a strong jayvee outfit.

Pair of Lefthanders

A pair of lefthanders, Les Sharpe and Bill McGinn, were listed by Coach House as his probable starting hurlers today. Ralph Brake, a righthander is also slated for a stint of mound duty. The catching will be handled by Charlie Garganus and Bill Walsh, who will split duties at this post.

Other certain starters are John Senter, a smooth-fielding performer at third who captained last year's Raleigh high nine, and Joe Brookshire, a shortstop whom House rates as one of his best prospects. Don Ward, left field, and Jerry Allen, in center also are certain starters.

Jake Carter seems to have the inside track on first base, but Quinton Quirles is giving him a fight for the job. Stan Goodman, a Norfolk, Va., product, and Waevil, will alternate at second to complete the infield.

There is a wide open scrap for the third outfield post beside Ward and Allen. Three boys—Odum, Gregory, and Watkins—are all possible starters in right field.

Following the Greensboro game the Carolina jayvees will meet High Point high on Tuesday in that city.

Linksmen Win 17-10 As Brantley, Brooks Register Shutouts

By Billy Carmichael, III

Finding themselves faced with the possibility of stunning defeat after nine holes of play, the Carolina golfers rallied on the back nine to come from behind and defeat sharpshooting Davidson college, 17-10 yesterday afternoon at Hope Valley country club.

Tar Heel No 1 man, Harvie Ward just couldn't find the range or the touch on the front side and made the turn one down to opponent Freeman Jones. But on the last nine the Tarboro Terror gave the scattering of a gallery a display of usual Ward talent coupling six pars and a bogey with birdies on the 13th and 15th holes for a one-under-par 34, to outlast the Davidson lad and annex the match.

Field Day Early

Ward's partner, Roy McKenzie has his field day early, carrying the best ball during Holin' Harvie's erratic absence, only to tire on the latter holes and halve with Wildcat Bob Henderson.

In the second foursome, No. 3 man Bob Cox had one of those days and was whitewashed by opponent Monty Hill, who turned in the low card of the day for the visitors — a 75. Cox did shoot several good holes on the last nine to aid Jack Brantley in securing the majority of the best ball points in their combination. Brantley turned in one of the few good local performances of the day, shutting out Ford Little, 3-0.

In the last quartet Frank Brooks, the Carolina No. 6 man, offset an off-day on the part of Harvey Chizer, playing at the

See GOLF, page 4)

CAROLINA TODAY

LATE SHOW TONIGHT
Sunday—Monday

CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

HILLEL FOUNDATION CORDIALLY invites you to attend Max Helfman's delightful program 8:00 p. m. Sunday, Hill Hall. "A memorable experience with an impelling and important message." (1-ch1x1-1)

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive.Priced right with attractive term arrangements Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

28 FOOT LA SALLE HOUSE TRAILer in good condition. Ideal location. Inquire at No. 26 University Trailer Court. (1-1831-1)

18 FOOT ROYCRAFT HOUSE TRAILer. Ready for immediate occupancy. See J. W. Curlee, 315 Aycock. (1-1892-1)

FIVE ROOM HOUSE ON JUSTICE Street. Floor furnace, gas stove and automatic hot water heater. Large lot; immediate occupancy. John Foushee, Real Estate. (1-ch1x1-1)

HOUSE TRAILER COMPLETE WITH bed, table, sink, new stove, ice box, dish cabinets, etc. A sacrifice for $300.00. Inquire at 235 Jackson Circle after 12:00. (1-1897-1)

STEARMAN N2S5. FABRIC 1946. LYcoming engine 296 S. O. H. Hangered University Airport. Fine sports plane. Excilent condition. Reasonably priced at $750.00. Walt Arnold, 218 Stacy. (1-1898-1)

SMALL HOUSE LOCATED ON large lot. Two bedrooms. 33 Oakwood Drive, T. V. Cauble. Telephone F-3217. (1-1883-1)

24 FOOT GLIDER HOUSE TRAILer. Inquire Lot No. 76. University Trailer Court, after 6 p.m. (1-1882-1)

YORK BARBELL, COMPLETE WITH adjustable dumbell. Total weight 125 lbs. Write Box 1081. (1-101-1)

FURNITURE. IDEAL FOR OFFICE OR porch. One red leatherette couch with chrome legs and matching chair. One green leatherette chair, new, value $203.00. Will sell separately or together. Ken Willis. 245 Jackson Circle, Victory Village. (1-1900-2

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1947 FORD CONVERTIBLE. LOW milage, radio, heater. See Joe Clawson at Phi Kappa Sigma house. (1-1893-1)

BUICK 1938 FOURDOOR SEDAN IN good condition. Original owner, paint, excellent, interior clean, engine sound Heater. F-2312. (1-C1888-1)

1942 HUDSON SIX SEDAN IN GOOD shape for $700.00. See Ben L. Rouse, 130 Daniels Rd., Victory Village. (1-1899-1

HELP WANTED 8

PART TIME HELP. MUST BE AVAILable from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. See Whid Powell, Colonial House. (ch 1x1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

LOST 12

WEDNESDAY, SMALL BUNDLE CONtaining mostly childrens' laundry. Call F-2351 or return to Mrs. Routh at Valentine Line. Reward. (1-102-1)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

ALL MAKES OF LAWN MOWERS repaired, machine sharpened. Axes, hatchets, scythes also sharpened Tripps Lawn Mower Repair Shop or see John Tripp, Carrboro Shoe Shop. (ch 1x1

WANTED

SOMEONE TO SHARE ROOM IN town. Call F-3872. (1-1884-1

WANTED TO BUY 24A

BABY PLAY PEN AND STROWLER Good condition. Call F-3581 after 4:30 p.m. (1-C103-1)

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 9816

TWO BLOCKS WEST OF CITY HALL
You'll Find A Solution To All Laundry Problems
HELPY-SELFY
AUTOMATIC LAUNDRY
Bendix Machines
W. Rosemary St.

UPMFC
UNIVERSITY PARTY MEANS
FINER CANDIDATES

Invisable Resoling
Good As New
Practically as good as new, yes! And you'll get miles of wear, hours of comfort from your old shoes after we've repaired them.
CARRBORO Shoe Shop

WHEN THE EAGLE SCREAMS..! JOIN THE U. V. A.

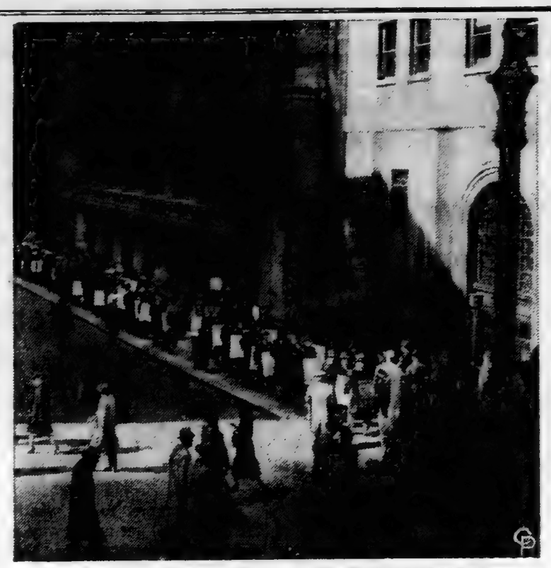
Local Conference On World Peace Opens Wednesday

"The Community's Responsibility for World Peace" is the theme of a conference to be held at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon, in Gerrard hall under the auspices of the North Carolina World Peace forum and other civic and religious organizations in Orange county.

Dr. Harold A. Bosley, dean of the Divinity school of Duke university, will open the session with an address on "Is Peace Still Possible?" After a discussion period by Dr. Bosley the conference participants will divide into interest groups.

Dr. Hendy Brandis, Jr., will lead the discussion group on "Peace Through World Government." Dr. Beverly M. Boyd, executive secretary of the Department of Christian Social Relations of the Federal Council of Churches, New York city, will lead the group on "Peace Through Organized Religion," and Dr. W. Carson Ryan of the University will lead the group on "Peace Through Education."

The conference will assemble in Gerrard Hall at 4:30 to hear the reports of the group findings committee and to consider what the community can do to work toward the achievement of world peace.



The session will close at 8:30 with an address in Gerrard hall by Dr. Erwin P. Hexner, consultant for the International monetary fund, Washington, D. C. Dr. Hexner, formerly of the University of Prague and until recently a professor of political science here will discuss trade and other economic factors influencing world peace.

Zucker Inaugurated Di Senate President

The Dialectic Senate met for the first time this quarter in the Senate Hall at 9 o'clock Wednesday night. The following officers were inaugurated: President, John Zucker; speaker pro tempore. Charlie Long; critic, James Southerland; clerk, Joanne McNutt; sergeant-at-arms, Jerry Pettigrew; treasurer, Bill Jernigan; chaplain, William Harding; and Debate council representative, Merle Stevens.

Dean Mackie, speaker of the evening, was introduced by Charlie Long. In his address, Mackie gave a detailed history of the early years of the society, which was formed on June 4, 1795, and called the Debating society.

PICKETING NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE PLACARD-BEARING PICKETS of the United Financial Employees (AFL) Union are shown as they paraded in front of the New York Stock Exchange. They are striking for higher wages and a union shop. The Exchange officials reported operations as "normal". (International)

-Amendments-

(Continued from page 2)

in boldface) Article II, Section 5, states: "The Women's Council shall be composed of three seniors, three juniors, one graduate student, and two women students at large. There shall be one holdover member chosen after April elections from the junior members elected in December to serve until the following April. If the chairman elected at that time is a junior she shall automatically become the holdover member. The junior members shall be elected on the first Tuesday in December of each year. The Women's Council shall have original jurisdiction in all cases of violation of the Honor Code, the Campus Code, and all lawful rules except those cases properly under the jurisdiction of the House Council and Dance Committee. It shall hear appeals from House Council decisions. The Women's Council shall choose its own chairman and clerk from its membership."

These amendments go before you for ratification or rejection, individually, next Tuesday. The Record requests that you read carefully and understand them before you act on them. This article should be of factual value to you. The Record has stated the amendments impartially. You alone will decide your vote.

-Kerr-

(Continued from page 1)

growing enterprise. I intend never to let Tarnation get in a rut.

"Lastly, I shall not just promise but I shall personally see to it that Tarnation has a properly organized circulation next year.

"On these three points I take my stand ,to shape Tarnation after the students' interests, to edit a flexible, growing Tarnation and to insure satisfactory circulation."

-Melton-

(Continued from page 1)

be done. And if it is done, to them will go the credit.

"And last but not least I will do my utmost to overhaul the circulation department of the Daily Tar Heel and assure each student of receiving the copy that he is paying for."

HONOR OFFENSE

The Men's Honor council and the Buildings department announced yesterday that all surplue building material on campus would be put in a pile labeled "surplus" and that any student removing material not in this pile would be dealt with as an Honor code offender.

-Polgar-

(Continued from page 1)

shown anything unusual in this line when the war broke out in 1914. He was 14 years old at the time and a student in a school at Szekasfehervar.

In 1917, Polgar finished school and enlisted in the army. He was sent to military school, and in 1918, before he had reached his eighteenth birthday, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Hungarian army and sent to the Italian front.

This year marks what he describes as the turning point in his life. A well-aimed Italian shell buired him alive in a trench and blotted out his memory for half a year. He remained under a pile of dirt and rocks for three days before they dug him out and sent him to a field hospital at Udine, Italy.

Having been moved to a base hospital at Graz, Austria, Polgar, who was suffering from amnesia and aphasia, slowly began to regain his senses.

A strange thing, Polgar recounts, now took place. The first words he spoke frightened a nurse. He had anticipated her actions—was actually reading her thoughts. Before long he became the talk of the hospital. At first he didn't comprehend that he was doing anything that should elicit so much attention. But he was becoming famous and there was nothing to do about it. Medical journals in Austria and Hungary wrote up his case.

-Burgess-

(Continued from page 1)

only state that I will do my best, if elected, to present a humor magazine that the entire University will be proud of, and above that, the prime intention, a magazine that will provide several interesting and amusing hours for all students who will read it."

-Golf-

No. 5 slot, and together they gathered a point advantage on the match play.

The summary:

Ward (C) defeated Jones, 2-1. McKenzie (C) halved with Jones, 1 1|2-1 1|2. Best ball- Carolina, 2-1.

Hill (D) defeated Cox, 3-0. Brantley (C) defeated Little. 3-0. Best ball — Carolina, 2 1|2-2 1|2.

Tatem (D) defeated Oliver, 2-1. Brooks (C) defeated Williams ,3-0. Best ball — Carolina, 2-1.

Cashion, Knight Debate Abolition Of Senate At Coed Mass Meeting

By Elaine Patton

Barbara Cashion, at a mass meeting of coeds Thursday in Memorial hall, appealed to the group for the defeat of the Legislative amendment which would place the power of the Senate in hands of the Legislature. Edie Knight defended the amendment.

Cashion pointed out that a similar action had previously been taken and that after a year during which the Senate acted as a subsidiary body to the Legislature the need was seen to restore the former powers of the Coed Senate. The student body in the election last spring, recognizing this, voted to restore its powers, indicating the failure of a plan to deprive the Senate of its ultimate purpose.

"Such a plan," said Miss Cashion, "would definitely lessen the interest in student government, and because of this, the training which is so helpful to college women would not be available. When a measure is introduced into the Legislature to donate an appropriation to CICA or another corresponding women's organization, there would possibly be two coeds in the legislature who would be sufficiently familiar with this organization to know what action should be taken. Members of Legislature are not n these organizations and could not possibly know as much about them as the members of the Senate who actually are in the organizations concerned. This Legislature has its hands too full of campus problems to be concerned with an orientation program, the coed ball which is essential to the program for new coeds, marriage lectures, regulated clocks for the girls dorms, social rules tests, appropriations to various organizations and dormitories, Women's Handbook and the women's Officer's Training Program which has proved much more successful than that of the men."

Edie Knight, in defending the amendment pointed out that our government should be patterned after the United States government, that coeds had sufficient representation in Legislature and that the men have no body corresponding to that of the Senate.

In addition to the discussion of the constitutional amendment all coed candidates for the election were introduced by Venita Saunders as follows:

For Speaker of the Coed Senate: Teenie Royall, Barbara Ann Pope, and Frances Angas. For President of W. A. A.: Randall Hudson, Barbara Ann Covington, and Becky Holton. For Awards Chairman: Margaret Booth, Carolyn Guthrie. Women's Council: Sue Stokes, Hilda Sharkey, Harriett Sipple, Jean Roberts, Joan Lucas, Jean Snyder, Mary Frances Johnston, Gayle Hancock, and Tandy Lacy. Members of Coed Senate: Page Dees, Sibyl Mitchell, Alice Middleton, Catherine Hovis, Mary Dillard, Tandy Lacy, Betty McDonald, Anne Carlton, Patsy McNutt, Emily Ogburn, Carter Taylor, Lucille Olive, Virginia Forward, Betty Houston, Kit Finney, Gloria Peters, Ruth Manning, Ruth Lassiter, Conner Reed, Janie Blalock, Jackie Goodwin, Emily Baker.

-Gibson-

(Continued from page 1)

"3. Consulting others to select the best in humor but not delegating editorial responsibilities to assistants who are not to be given credit for their work.

"4. Organizing a deadline schedule so that issues will appear in the right condition at the right time.

"5. Transacting business sensibly with commercial printers who demand that editors know such technicalities as the fact, for instance, that a pika is a measurement and not just a fraternity member.

"6. Remembering at all times what humor is and why the average reader on a college campus prefers it; then not forgetting to glorify the coed as a pin-up, the joke as entertainment, and sex as an institution.

"Of Tuesday's voters, I request only that you ask friends of yours who work on any publications about the list of candidates, consider all the qualification, and then go to the polls with consideration for a Tarnation-to-be."

-Theater-

(Continued from page 1)

Playmaker staff, and Miss Jones. There will be talks by John W. Parker, director of the University Bureau of Community Drama; Sidney H. Spalde, Dock Street theater, Charleston, S. C.; Sawyer Falk, president, national theater conference, and George Freedley theater historian, who will represent the National Theater and Academy.

IRIS BOST, Student party nominee for the Student council, is secretary of the party, an officer of the glee club, and a member of Alpha Delta Pi.

-Relays-

(Continued from page 3)

Duke will probably cop the pole vault with their powerful array of vaulters. Hank Hickman, Rusty Russell, and Bob House, all from Carolina, will be aiming to stop them.

The 440-yard relay will be next on the agenda with Dave Willis, Schultz, Stan White, and Nelson the Carolina quartet. Buddy Spain, Claude Sutton, Merv Lentz and either Nelson or John Bristow will each run a leg in the mile relay for the Tar Heels.

Freshman teams will compete in a 440-relay and a distance medley.

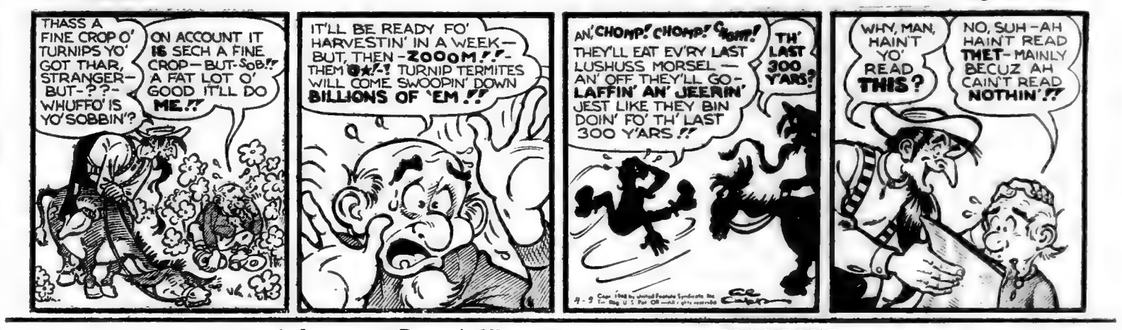
SEC Reorganizes, Plans to Secure Entertainment on Budgeted Basis

The reorganized Student Entertainment committee rolled right along in last Monday's meeting to pave the way for bringing educational and reasonable entertainment to the campus by considering suggestions made by two representatives of the North Carolina Symphony society.

The committee delegated Mr. C. R. Ervin and Mr. A. Pikutis, representatives from the N. C. Symphony, to submit a list of artist's names to make up four programs for next year's series. The committee will choose from these recommendations in a meeting next Saturday the entertainment for the following year.

Mr. Ervin and Mr. Pikutis also will discuss the possibility of sponsoring a North Carolina artist on a fifth program in next seasons series. This native talent will be selected through audition, and will be a young, rising artist.

Tentative plans have been made for the N. C. Symphony to conduct the audition along with members of the entertainment committee. The committee endorsed this plan on the grounds that it will give a North Carolinean a professional opportunity to become recognized. The native artist would be paid a token fee, and may appear as soloist with the N. C. Symphony, which is scheduled on next year's series.



The N. C. Symphony representatives will base their recommendations of possible nationally-known artists to appear on the entertainment series on a budget conservatively estimated at $6,000. Each quarter students pay 25 cents toward entertainment of a classical nature. Prior to this arrangement, student entertainment was on a purely voluntary basis. Under this plan the committee incurred a debt of approximately $1,500 which has not yet been liquidated.

Bill Shuford, Graham Memorial director, has volunteered to devote the proceeds from an entertainment program scheduled linean o professional opportunity off the debt of the old entertainment committee. Dr. Franz Polgar, hypnotist and memory expert, will present his program in Memorial hall April 5 at 8 o'clock.

ROOM RESERVATIONS

Application for room reservations for summer session and for fall quarter are now being made in the office of the Dean of Women, 104 C, South Building. Rooms for students now in residence will be held through April 5. If by that date a student has not made her room reservation for summer or fall, it will be assumed that she does not expect to return and her space in the dormitory will be available for assignment to some new student.

LIL ABNER By Al Capp

A beer — Ben-Ad'hem — serving at HARRY'S

A message to you from the Chief of Staff

"April 6 is Army Day. It is a day which will have a special meaning for college men. More than half of you are veterans of the last war. Many of you are members of the Organized Reserve. Many others belong to the R.O.T.C. or National Guard.

"All of you are making a vital contribution toward World Peace and the security of this nation.

"The U. S. Army is the finest army in the world and the only one of its kind among the major powers. It is 100% volunteer. It is composed entirely of civilian soldiers . . . men like yourselves who realize that a strong America is a peaceful America, and that the responsibility of making America strong rests in the hands of every American citizen.

"The U. S. Army is not a large army, as armies go. It is shouldering tasks far greater than any other army of like size has ever attempted. Our occupation force in Japan is the smallest per capita of any modern occupation army. Our force in Europe is the smallest of the three major powers.

"But behind this Army stand you men of the Organized Reserve and the R.O.T.C. I have known many of you personally. I have been with many of you in action. I know the fine type of men you are and the realism that leads you to equip yourselves with military training.

"Further, I know the valuable service you can render the nation in time of emergency. A great deal of the success of fast mobilization and the actual winning of the war was due to the 106,000 trained Reserve Officers and the top-notch National Guard units which were available for quick action.

"To you, on Army Day, I believe I speak for millions of Americans in offering commendation for the fine job you are doing."

Omar N. Bradley
CHIEF OF STAFF, U. S. ARMY

You can get full details about the opportunities open to you in the Army's complete military training program at any U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station.

UPMFC

UNIVERSITY PARTY MEANS

FINER CANDIDATES

Dr. William T. Kohn

announces the opening of his office for the practice of

OPTOMETRY

Visual Training — Contact Lenses

Call 3686

Office Hours Daily and by Appointment — Monday-Friday 9:00-5:00, Saturday 9:00-1:00

Chapel Hill
over Carolina Coffee Shop

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.

WEATHER

Partly cloudy and warmer.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS

GM Reformation
Dedmond Statement
Head and Shoulders

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, APRIL 4, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 132

PUT UP BY THE RUSSIANS where their zone joins the American sector in Berlin, this street barrier effectively halts all traffic in and out of the area. After two hours, the Russians abandoned the road block which had been set up on the boundaries of their zone in the German capital. Russia, however, cut off all rail traffic from Berlin to the American, British and French zones of Germany. (International Radiophoto)

UP Chooses Slate For Next Election To Fill Legislature

The University party yesterday announced its list of candidates for the Student Legislature.

Dorm men nominated by the party include Miles Smith, Rufus Bynum, Jim Gwynn, Kyle Barnes, Dick Bunting, Marvin Nathan, Bill Thorpe, Wilson Yarborough, Ted Leonard, George Dunlop, Jim Hardison, Larry Fox, Sherman Levine, and Joe Kumpe.

Those nominted to represent the coeds from town districts are Marietta Duke, Mary Ann Tabor, Ann Wells, Mary Lea Thorne, Emily Ogburn, and Marjory Riddick.

The party candidates for men's town positions are Thurman Williams, Charlie Loudermilk, Joe Leary, Andy Corinash, Jim Nance, Herb Mitchell, Bill Benbow, and George Rodman.

Candidate Loudermilk is vice chairman of the UP, a non-partisan board nominee for the men's council, and vice president of the Chi Phi fraternity. Corinash is a member of the IFC and IFC court and is dining room manager of St. Anthony hall. Mitchell is president of the freshman class and a varsity debater.

Smith, an ex-chairman of the party, is speaker pro tem of the legislature at the present time and a former chairman of its Elections committee. Williams is chairman of the party at present. Barnes, formerly president of the senior class at R. J. Reynolds high school in Winston-Salem and now president of the Sigma Chi pledge class, is also a candidate for the presidency of the sophomore class.

Leonard, the secretary-treasurer of the freshman class, has been co-nominated by the Campus party. Fox is a member of the Daily Tar Heel sports staff.

Kump, a member of Kappa Sigma, is a former class president of Charlotte Central high school and made his letter there in football. Also a Kappa Sig, Hardison is a graduate of Sewanee Military academy where he played varsity football, basketball, and baseball and was a member of the honor council, dance committee, and cotillion club. He and Kumpe are freshmen.

Mass Meeting Called Tomorrow

By Chuck Hauser

All students are urged by President Tom Eller to attend the mass meeting at Hill hall tomorrow night to become acquainted with the major candidates for office in Tuesday's election.

Roy Cole's orchestra will be on hand to provide music for the affair, which will feature three-minute talks by the candidates for president, vice president, secretary-treasurer and editor of the Daily Tar Heel, and two-minute talks by candidates for the editorship of Tarnation and Yackety Yack.

The entire meeting is only scheduled to last one hour, in order to permit students to attend the Franz Polgar hypnotism show which is to be presented at 8 o'clock in Memorial hall by the Student Entertainment committee.

"It is the duty of all students to come and acquaint themselves with the people who will asume office for the coming year," President Eller emphasized last night.

The mass meeting was compulsory for coeds last year, but that move was done away with this time because it was felt that the campus would sufficiently realize the importance of the gathering to be present.

MONROE LANDRETH, Campus party candidate for Student council, is chairman of the Student Audit board and president of the Charlotte-Carolina club.

Expense Deadline Is Set Tomorrow

The deadline for filing expense accounts for candidates in Tuesday's elections has been set at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening.

Men should file their accounts with Al Winn, 8 Steele, and coeds with Katie Guion, Spencer dormitory. All candidates not presenting proper statements will be disqualified.

According to the elections laws, "A copy of all literature, and itemized description of any other campaign expense and a complete, itemized signed statement of expenditures shall be turned in to the Elections board on or before 6 p. m. of the day preceding the day of elections, at a place to be set by the Elections board.

"Vendors' bills shall accompany these statements whenever possible. If a candidate has had no expense he shall submit a signed statement to that effect on or before the above mentioned time.

"Failure to submit this statement by the time set forth shall disqualify the candidate concerned."

McGregor Speaks To Commerce Group

C. H. McGregor, head of the Commerce school's marketing department addressed the Delta Sigma Pi fraternity banquet held Thursday evening in the Caroline Inn.

McGregor's talk was concerned primarily with present business trends and an attempt to guage those which may be expected in the immediate future.

During the course of his talk, he reviewed the history of the expected Recession which has not yet materialized. He pointed out that, in spite of the fact that business was still abnormally poor, Northern merchants had cut beginning salaries for college men a total of 25 to 75 dollars per month.

He reminded his audience that this seriously affected the hopes of a Carolina commerce graduate who might now be fortunate to start work at a $175 per month salary.

The speaker explained that, although department store sales have been held up by special sales, an enforced cut of as much as 15 per cent in prices could put their operations in the red.

Recession has been held off, he said, by pent-up demand, but the draining off of family savings by inflated costs has now

(See McGREGOR, page 4)

Mental Magician to Give Another Show Here in Memorial Hall Tomorrow Night

By Sally Woodhull

"He came. We saw. He conqured!" was the comment by Chapel Hillians following the first appearance of Dr. Franz Polgar, telepathist and hypnotist extraordinary, here on the campus. Polgar will again conquer the campus at his third appearance here tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Memorial hall.

Everywhere that "The Amazing Dr. Polgar" has appeared, the reaction has been similar. Audiences are baffled, perplexed, and highly amused by Polgar's demonstrations of mental telepathy, memory feats, and the power of suggestion.

Professors Floored

Entitled, "Miracles of Mind," the program entertains the layman and baffles the scientist. William Engle, science editor of the New York World-Telegram wrote, "Polgar floored the professors of psychology at New York university in their tests. It was, they agreed, an undeniable demonstration of thought transference."

Tomorrow night's performance is being sponsored by the reorganized Student Entertainment committee in an attempt to pay off the $1,500 debt incurred by the group when student entertainment was on a voluntary basis.

To Liquidate Debt

Under the new organization of the committee, each student will pay 25 cents per quarter toward entertainment of a classical nature for the entire student body, and an attempt will be made to secure artists of excellent quality. In order to make the program a success, the previously incurred debt must be liquidated.

"Students are therefore getting more than an evening of grand entertainment when they attend Monday night's performance," said Bill Shuford, Graham Memorial director who is handling ticket sales for the Polgar show. "They are also helping to start student entertainment off on a sound financial basis, a condition essential to its success."

A native Hungarian, Polgar knew not a word of English when he arrived in America, but that did not deter him, he claims. For thoughts, like appearances on the lecture platform, Dr. Polgar rapidly became such a success that he is now one of America's most successful and popular lecture personalities.

The respect in which Dr. Polgar is held is indicated by the fact that he is the only member of his profession to be listed in "Who's Who in America".

DR. FRANZ POLGAR

Campus Party Picks 14 Dorm Candidates For Legislature Race

Making the final announcement concerning its slate for the Spring elections, the Campus party yesterday released the names of the 14 candidates it has nominated as dorm representatives to the Student Legislature.

Three of these men are running for six month's terms, and the remaining 11 will be seeking full terms.

Those running for "short" terms are Durwood Jones, John Rosser, and Bobby Wilmoth. Jones is a rising sophomore from Louisville, Kentucky. Rosser, a rising senior, is president of Graham dormitory and a member of the Interdorm council, while Wilmoth, a rising junior resident of Old West dormitory, is from Winston-Salem.

Those running for full terms are Richard Bowen, Erie Cofield, Tom Cunningham, Anies Daye, Ellis Hall, Ben Kistler, Ted Leonard, Bob Ormand, Banks Talley, Ed Washington, and Jack Worsham.

Bowen is a member of the Di Senate and the debate squad. Cofield is president of Miller dormitory, and Kistler is a member of Sound and Fury.

Ormand, a Grimes resident, has been a member of the Debate squad, speaker pro-tem of the Di, and a Red Cross drive director. He is a former member of the legislature.

Washington is a Dean's list man and a member of the football squad. Cunningham, a resident of Mangum dorm, is a political science major; Daye is an Old East resident of Winston-Salem, and Hall also a Winston-Salemite is a resident of Everett.

Leonard, a Sigma Chi from Greensboro, Talley, an Everette resident, and Worsham from Ruffin complete the slate.

Helfman Will Present Novel Lecture With Piano Accompaniment Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock in Hill hall, Max Helfman, distinguished musician and lecturer, will present an unusual type of lecture-recital, using as his title, "Jewish Music and Jewish Survival."

Helfman illustrates at the piano a running dialogue, comprising early Bible cantillations, old synagogue chants, tunes of Jewish folk life, as well as from modern works of contemporary Jewish composers. Helfman demonstrates the significance of music in Jewish survival.

In addition to being a conductor of the People's Philharmonic Choral society of New York, Helfman is nationally known as music director of the Brandeis Camp institute and music director of Temple B'nai Abraham of Newark, N. J.

As conductor of the Choral society, he has performed programs of contemporary choral music with such soloists as Paul Robeson, at Carnegie hall, Town hall, Metropolitan Opera house and Madison Square garden.

MAX HELFMAN

Tonight's program is under the auspices of the local Hillel Foundation. There will be no admission charge.

Congress Argues UMT and Draft

Washington, April 4 —(UP)— Congress heard more of the pro and con today in the controversy over a draft and universal military training.

Thoroughly against both of them is a famous American historian, 73-year-old Charles Beard. He did not testify in person before the senate armed services committee. Instead Dr. Charles Tansill of George Washington University read Beard's statement.

Beard argued that military training violates the principles on which America was founded. He says it would give the Army too much power.

Says Beard, "If the President and military leaders force conscription upon the American people, they will find that instead of gaining in national security, they will have destroyed the real essence of American strength—the spirit of a free people which has twice brought victories over conscripted armies."

Young Democrats Club Secures Ramsey as Speaker for Tuesday

"The Democratic Party in North Carolina" will be discussed by D. Hiden Ramsey of the Asheville Citizen-Times here Tuesday evening under the sponsorship of the Young Democrats club.

A native of Virginia, Ramsey has been general manager of the Asheville paper since 1930. Prior to that time he was both editor and vice-president of the Times.

Having received his A. B. degree at the University of Virginia, he took his A. M. there in 1913 and the following year was an instructor in the department of economics.

Ramsey approaches the topic of the Democratic party with a wide field of experience behind him. In 1940 he was a Democratic elector at large at the North Democratic convention. He has also been a member of the State Planning board, the State Department of Education, the executive committee of the North Carolina conference for Social Service, and chairman of the Board of Trustees for Western Carolina Teachers college.

A member of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association, Ramsey has held the positions of president of the North Carolina Press association and president of the Asheville Chamber of Commerce.

In referring to Ramsey, J. M. Saunders of the University Alumni office said, "In North Carolina, Hiden Ramsey has achieved a reputation as an articulate spokesman of great causes. He has used his keen mind, his facile pen, and his silver tongue to spell out for North Carolina the trends and aspirations of our people. He has been an ardent advocate in North Carolina for public schools, public service, and—most recently—in the North Carolina Good Health movement."

The public is invited to hear his address.

Red, US Intrigue Stirs In Berlin

MP Blockade Holds 9 Armed Russians In Railroad Depot

By United Press

The nine Russians holed up in Berlin's railroad headquarters apparently decided to bed down for the night yesterday. Every now and then one of the Soviet officials appeared at a window of the ancient red brick building and stared down at the American military police blocking the front door.

General Lucius Clay has announced that he will keep his troops around the building as long as the Russians keep armed guards inside. The railroad headquarters is in the American sector, a spot which Clay maintains should be kept free of armed Russians. It was a spot that observers likened to a scene from a comic opera. Russian majors and even be-medalled generals would drive up to the guarded building, exchange a few words with the American MP's, and then talk away.

Entering the Building

The stiff military atmosphere was altered slightly when a Soviet officer smiled broadly and took the hand of an American lieutenant who refused to allow him to enter the building.

Other Russians were more formal. They carefully placed food and vodka on the sidewalk in front of the doorway. Then German workers carefully picked up the baskets and carried them to the hungry Russians within.

General Clay told newsmen that he had given orders that any American who is nervous because of the current crisis could leave Berlin.

Surplus in Tax Revenues May Bring Special Session of State Legislature

Raleigh, April 4 — (UP) — Speculation over a special session of the State legislature may soon be bubbling anew, despite comments by Governor Cherry apparently designed to remove that pot from the political stove.

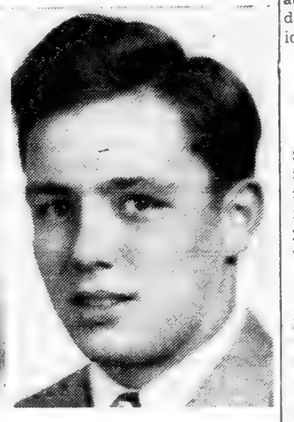
The financial report from the state department of revenue is what touched off the latest special talk. The talk is not unexpected, for last winter Cherry indicated he would consider special session demands after revenue experts had a chance to take a look at income tax returns.

They had a look this week. Their reports says that income tax returns in March passed last year's record total by more than $2,200,000. What's more, the report showed income tax revenue for the first nine months of the current fiscal year to be more than four million dollars above the estimated revenue from income taxes for the entire year.

WILSON YARBOROUGH AND DICK BOREN (left to right) are seeking election as members of the Student Legislature and Men's Honor council respectively. Yarborough, a doubly endorsed UP-SP candidate, is a photographer for all campus publications. Boren was nominated for the council by the non-partisan selection board. He is a member of the Legislature, the Orientation committee, and the Coalition council.

Jewish Aid Asks $3,000 On Campus

The sum of $3,000 will be sought this year in order to assure the fullest participation in the nationwide $250,000,000 United Jewish Appeal for the relief, rehabilitation, and resettlement of displaced and distressed Jews in Europe, for the settlement and economic upholding of Jewish Palestine, and for aid to refugees arriving in the United States, Norm Ripps, chairman of the campus drive, announced today. The drive will open officially Monday, April 5.



The United Jewish Appeal is charged with providing for the more than 180,000 Jewish children of varying ages whose care, education and vocational training is a major factor in the ultimate reconstruction of Jewish life abroad.

Most of the soliciting will be individual, Ripps stated, and "when the committee men approach you, give what you can so that these needy children can live! The welfare of the children of the world should be and is a great concern to Americans, especially those who can appreciate the privileges of a good education." Donations may be sent to the Hillel Office in the Y.M.C.A. building or to Norm Ripps, 107 Fraternity Court.

COEDS' ROOMS

Coeds must apply for room reservations by tomorrow for the summer or fall quarter, or their room will be assigned to a new student. The reservation can be made in the office of the Dean of Women, 104C, South Building.

BILL DUNCAN AND KYLE BARNES (left to right) are running on the UP ticket for editor of the Yackety Yack and sophomore class president respectively. Duncan is now serving as Yack picture co-ordinator and has had five years of experience in publications work. Barnes has also been nominated by the UP for the Student Legislature; he is president of the Sigma Chi pledge class and was president of the National Honor society in high school.

No Platforms Today

The platforms of candidates for head cheerleader, according to the schedule published twice during the past week in the Daily Tar Heel, were supposed to be published in this edition.

Of the three candidates still in the race, none had turned in platforms by the time the DTH went to press last night. It was learned that Jerry Pence, independent candidate, is out of town for the week-end, and neither Norm Sper nor Charlie Stancill could be located last night.

The Daily Tar Heel regrets that it cannot fulfill its intentions of printing the political platforms of all major candidates for office in Tuesday's general campus election.

Larger Student Union Needed For Campus Spirit

Graham Memorial Inadequate After 20 Years of Service

By Barron Mills

In 1915 the meeting place of all students was the campus postoffice; in 1920 it was the Old Well and the benches that were placed under the big, spreading oaks nearby; in 1925 the YMCA was the place to find the buddy you were hunting for; and in 1940 you could find him around the Graham Memorial student union. In 1948 there is no one place where all students wander in on some odd moment of the day to chat with friends or play a couple hands of bridge. Graham Memorial from 1931-44 served that purpose—until the war swelled the enrollment and now its facilities are totally inadequate for more than 2,500 students.

This condition of no central meeting place has had a strange effect on the University which is noticed by pre-war students and transfers alike. Students comment that it has greatly damaged the school spirit and left the campus a checkerboard of isolated segments.

The consensus is that a common denominator besides football is greatly needed and that common denominator is a new and more adequate student building. Just how that student building is to be paid for, where it is to be located and what it will include are factors on which there is no such universal agreement.

Observers point out that the present era is identical to that of 1920 when the movement for a student union was first begun. It was following a great war. The student body had reached the unheard of peak of 2,000 students, and was broken up into many segments because of the increase in enrollment and the fact that the veterans were more mature men than the ante-belium collegians. The cry was "unification."

Before the roaring twenties there had been no student government. The first president of the student body was elected in 1920; prior to this the president of the senior class had served in that capacity. The Tar Heel, the Carolina Mag and the Yackety Yack were written in the staff members' rooms. The literary societies were the only organizations besides the fraternities that had exclusive quarters.

"Unification" was the campaign cry of those who wanted a closer knit campus and it may well be reincarnated as the slogan of those today who feel that the campus does not have the spirit and the unification that is needed. The student body became interested in erecting a student building and it pledged money for erecting one but in 1921-22 the recession came and the pledges were not fulfilled.

The shell of the present Graham Memorial stood for several years—its completion depended on the collection of the pledges. Under these circumstances, Ames Brown, a native of Greenville, N. C. and member of the class of '10, because of his devotion to E. K. Graham, former University president, donated the $80,000 necessary to complete the middle section of Graham Memorial.

Graham Memorial as it now stands is only one-third completed. The other two sections if completed would bring the value of the present $250,000 structure up to $400,000. But observers point out that even if Graham Memorial is completed it would be too small to house all of the facilities which a student union on a campus of the size of the University of North Carolina should contain. Then too, many are of the opinion that the skeleton of a building that stood weathering for several years awaiting more funds for completion received much damage and as a result the building is not structually firm and solid.

GRAHAM MEMORIAL with its white column carries on the best it can for a student body three times larger than it is able to accommodate. A new and larger student union would be the common denominator besides football which the campus needs.

THE ONCE SPACIOUS Graham Memorial lounge for the 2,000 students at the University is now very inadequate for a student body of 7,000. Receptions and meetings in the evenings often monopolize the lounge.

The mention of unification to a student brings in many sidelights and fears. "We don't want to carry this unification too far. At some of the larger schools unification has been carried to such an extreme that the student union has become nothing more than an arcade and is just the roof for the whole college outside the classroom."

Bill Shuford, director of Graham Memorial, has some very definite ideas about the purpose of the student union and the services that a new building should maintain and contain. He believes that the Union should have an office and general manager of student activities who will plan the student concert and lecture series (a substitute for the Student Entertainment Series), and possibily coordinate the freshman orientation program.

As to the building itself and its facilities, Shuford says that it should be the center of all activity for the campus and contain a faculty club, ballroom, theatre, barber shop, beauty shop, grill, bookstore, postoffice, conference rooms with long tables to be used in taking notes, a billiard parlor, the YMCA and a soda shop. These Shuford believes, are the bare necessities for a successful union that will be used by all students.

All agree that a student union containing all of the essentials would cost a cool million and a half. Where this money can be obtained is the number one problem. There would be three alternatives for securing the funds for a building.

One plan would be the outright appropriation from the North Carolina General Assembly. This would be virtually impossible because as J. Maryon Saunders, secretary of the Alumni association and other men familiar with the overall picture of the University will tell you, "The Legislature is sure to consider that there are more important buildings which have priority over a student building." However, there is some hope that at least part of the funds can be appropriated through the Legislature, especially since the YMCA is high on the list of new buildings and many feel that the Y and its allied organizations should be housed in the student union.

Some have already begun the search of a benevolent Santa Clause to erect the building. They reason that only last year a planetarium was added to the University by a gift from John Patterson Morehead, and it is entirely possible that some interested alumni or family friend of the University would donate the funds for a student building because it is the one building that would be used by everyone associated with the University.

Others have suggested that the most feasible plan would be to have the new student union a war memorial. At universities and colleges throughout the nation student buildings have been erected through funds raised in this manner. At the present time there is not even a memorial on campus to those alumni of the University who lost their lives in the first world war. There is not a plaque on the campus containing the names of those killed in the first world war. Iowa State, Oregon State, and Purdue are among the larger colleges which have erected a student building through funds donated as a memorial to former students who died in the service of their country.

Georgia Tech in about the same predicament as the University—short on funds while the need is great—has begun raising funds through parking concessions at football games, dances and other schemes. George Washington and South Dakota have voted to assess each student $5 per quarter to raise funds to begin construction on a student building. The plan has been condemned by many students at the two schools because they will not gain the full benefit from their contributions since they are paying funds before the building is erected and many will graduate before the union is in operation.

The location of the student union is another problem confronting us. Graham Memorial in its present location is isolated from the rest of the campus and is not being used to its fullest extent because it is off the beaten path of many students. Gradually but steadily the campus has shifted southward. The position of the student union in at least one building plan is directly behind the YMCA building and in the court opposite Saunders and Murphy halls. Many believe this to be the ideal location of a union that would benefit the greatest number of students daily. Others would like to see the building erected on Emerson field, which they state must eventually be moved for more valuable buildings.

In any event all agree that the student building must be placed on a site near the center of the campus so that it would be available to the greatest number of students and on property that would allow ample room for expansion for a building that would serve the non-academic needs of 25.000 students which the authorities say will be the 1995 enrollment here.

Meanwhile, staunch Graham Memorial with its white columns and swinging doors is carrying on under the burden. Many student organizations have only the use of a lounge for one hour per week in which to meet and conduct their business. When they finish their designated time the lounge is quickly grabbed by another organization. Student Government and the publications are tolerating cramped quarters and the main lounge is a constant stream of activity. Students will readily admit that for its facilities and floor space the Graham Memorial staff is doing a good job, but there are many more needs.

When talking with a member of the administration or a legislator at the State Capitol about a new student union a student is nearly always confronted with the same answer, "It's merely a question of what you students need most. Is it more room in the commerce school, more classrooms, dormitories or what is it? You know we are only able to get just so much money from the Legislature."

To this the average student will answer, "Yeah, we know. But just remember that we have got to have a heart to keep pumping life blood into the campus and that campus heart is a student union."

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Srow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Charlie Gibson — NIGHT SPORTS: Larry Fox

Knight Clarifies Senate Remarks

After last Thursday's mass meeting of the coeds, I felt at long last that they would be allowed finally to make up their own minds as to the Constitutional amendment affecting the Coed Senate, with no more emotional and foolish talks of mergers and abolition of the Coed Senate. With the full facts presented by the two leading opinions for and against the bill, the coeds could make an intelligent decision. Then, in the "factual" report of the meeting in yesterday's paper, I find only one extremely minor point that was really an afterthought of my argument was given while all of Miss Cashion's spacious points were presented, written and quoted in an emotional, dramatic style.

Therefore, here we go again—in answer to Miss Cashion's points in yesterday's paper.

(1) The Coed Senate was granted autonomous power last year because the legislature did not realize any incurring difficulties, and because the Coeds had always been given what they wanted. Since then, it has been found that there are conflicts in vested authority, in the business of drawing up budgets for coed and general student organizations, and in the administration of expenditures. We do have an amalgamated government according to the Constitution, yet under the present system neither the executive nor the legislative branch of the student government has had the cooperation, nor the right, to ask for cooperation from the Coed Senate. Concerning expenditures, all allotments made by the Coed Senate with bonified reasons to Coed organizations are obviously not going to be criticized by the legislature. (2) All the rights and advantages that Miss Cashion is so avidly defending are already assured under the Constitution, which I read to the coeds the other day, or else are coed affairs alone, which means that the Legislature has no right to revue them.

Finally, let me state that I said the coeds have their "proportionate" not "sufficient" representation in the Legislature. The Coed Senate serves a vital purpose on campus and I am the last to permit its abolition or merger.

Edith Knight
Chairman of the Legislature Coed Affairs Committee.

This 'n That

Head And Shoulders Above

By Bill Buchan

As April 6 draws nearer, the race for coveted positions in student government gets more and more involved. Fortunately, due to the good taste of all candidates running, there has been no noticeable mudslinging or name-calling. However, the race is going into the home stretch and efforts must be made to help the student body realize that they have a momentous task ahead of them in choosing the man who is to lead them as their president during the coming year.

That man must be one ready and willing to shoulder responsibility. He must be a man capable of thinking for himself and one who is known to consider the best move first—over any doubts or restrictions that he might feel.

He must be a man who is willing to work—and fight—for a good, sound redistricting bill that will give the students on the third floor of Stacy and the students on East Rosemary street a chance to elect a man as their representative that they know personally and who they know are representing their particular areas in the Student Legislature.

The next president must be a man who will take a stand on the court situation on campus and fight to see that it is remedied. He must be a man who listens to the dictates of his conscience and to the students and not to the dictates of a few individuals.

One of the most pressing problems on this campus, today, as mentioned above, is the muddled electoral system. The students who do vote in elections vote for legislators that they do not know, most of whom they never heard of. Numerous times efforts have been made to install a complete redistricting of Chapel Hill so that people living in each specified district could know their legislators, discuss the problems with them and give their opinions on vital matters. Time and again, such moves have been buried in the legislature, apart by useless amend and arguing. The most rec cident was in the last meet the assembly last quarter a group of members of that tore the proposed bill apa forced the supporters to it temporarily.

Now, you and I have the chance to elect a man to office who will put his whole-hearted support behind a fair and just redistricting bill. A bill that will insure fair representation for ALL students. Now, we have the opportunity to elect a man to office who is thoroughly experienced, in student government—a man who is not afraid to stand on his own two feet and fight for what he thinks and knows is right.

While all other candidate be able, sincere and po capable, there is one man stands head and shoulder the rest with his wide ex ence in Carolina politics Carolina student government is the man best qualified to our next president.

That man is Charlie Long.

Write Away

Dedmond Makes A Statement

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published

Editor:

In the past I have hesitated to use the Tar Heel for statements of this kind. In view of Mr. Hodson's letter of yesterday, however, it seems desirable that I make this one statement. I do so from the standpoint of maintaining the good name of Student Government and with the view of clarifying for the Student Body those questions which have been raised.

My actions on the districting bill were based on my firm belief that an intelligent solution could be reached only by bringing together in open committee discussions the parties interested in the proposal. My observations and experiences in the legislature had convinced me that only by such action could a workable and acceptable solution be reached. I took the initiative in establishing an advisory committee for the purpose. The original bill by Mr. Charlie Long was used as the basis for our considerations. This bill provided five dormitory districts and nine town districts. As yet I have been unable to explain this obvious disparity in two areas having approximately equal population. After three weeks spent in working up population statistics, to which I gave thirty hours of valuable time, the committee did not reach a unanimous agreement. A partisan battle in the legislature resulted in which I participated along with approximately forty six other legislators.

My desire for a districting bill is unchanged. I shall expect to be working toward a solution either as President of the Student Body or as a member of the legislature. But I must reaffirm my belief that a solution must be reached in open discussions by representatives of the interested groups rather than by a partisan fight in the legislature. I cannot conscientiously work toward any other solution. I consider a solution by any other means an unsatisfactory one regardless of the party supporting the measure.

My political philosophy is unchanged. I have stood and still stand for the belief that in Student Government there is no difference between a fraternity and a non-fraternity man. My nomination in no way changed this stand. My candidacy was fully discussed and agreed upon by the Campus Party in open party meetings. Mr. Hodson, as a member of the party at that time, did not honor it with his presence. Had he done so he might have prevented the unanimous action of the party in its decision in the matter and have made his thoughts known.

As for the remarks of Miss Tate and Mr. Long, as well as those of Mr. Hodson, it is believed that the campus-at-large recognized their intent. No further comment on them seems necessary.

Jess Dedmond

For Helfman

Editor:

No doubt you have noticed all the posters scattered around the campus announcing Max Helfman's talk at 8 o'clock Sunday night in Hill Hall. I would like to add my personal recommendation to those posters and urge that as many people as possible attend.

I first met Mr. Helfman three years ago when he was Music Director at Brandeis Camp Institute in the Pocohonos. He is a short rather insignificant looking man whose wit, personality, knowledge of music, and complete lack of formality not only tend to make him an ideal lecturer but also a unique one.

Rita Loeb

Fantastic Nightmare

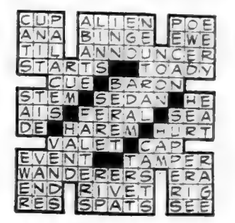
Editor:

"Tuesday night I found myself witnessing a scene which might have come from a fantastic nightmare. One of the earliest rights which was assured to us by the founders of our political democracy—the right to hold assembly peaceably—was flarrantly trampled in the dust. I was attracted to the supposedly scheduled anti UMT meeting first in order to observe—as a psychologist—in a real-life laboratory in mob behavior.

There I found an example of the typical irrational mass mania which can at times infect and inflame a crowd of otherwise humane and controlled individuals. . . ."

Winifred Meldrum

Is There a Nurse in the House?



Many additional Negro graduate nurses are required to supplement the 9,000 now serving in hospitals and public health nursing agencies, the American Nurses' Association states, calling attention to the fact that while Negroes compose ten per cent of the total population, only three per cent of the graduate nurses in the United States are Negro.

* * * * *

You've heard how desperately short-handed the nursing profession is today. Can you remember back to the depression year of 1932, asks the American Nurses' Association when the newspapers were howling about an "oversupply" of nursing service? Which simply meant that due to widespread unemployment, most sick people couldn't afford to employ nurses. Things got so bad that the private duty nurses of Wisconsin not anly slashed their fees in an attempt to encourage employment, but offered to pitch in and help the families of patients "get meals ready, make the beds, help with children, do light housework" and make themselves generally useful.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—German gun in World War I
7—False
11—Noah's landing spot
12—Opera by Verdi
13—Exists
14—Part of "to be"
15—One of a pair
18—Bone
19—Son of Jacob
21—Wanders
23—Ambulance doctors
25—Sheltered side
26—Sea god
27—Cleans, as profit
29—Clergyman's degree
30—God of love
32—Places
34—Hebrew letter
36—Drunkards
38—Prefix: before
39—To call like dove
41—Prim (Scot.)
43—Freezes
45—Lump of earth
48—Old Testament (abbr.)
49—Church calendar
50—In direction of
51—Cooled lava
52—Guide line
54—Creeps about furtively
56—To take out
57—Church congregation

DOWN

1—To take water from boat
2—Irish
3—Sun god
4—Coaches
5—Poor actor (coll.)
6—Toward
7—Grit
8—Greeting
9—Worshiped
10—Grouped
15—Sea bird
16—Grows smaller
17—Parts of feet
20—Evil
21—Pronoun
22—Syrian god
24—Cavalryman
28—More severe
31—Old violin
33—Blind
34—Agreement
35—Baby's shoe
37—Storage place for grain
40—Forward
42—Manuscript (abbr.)
44—Departed
46—Shade trees
47—Short-distance track event
50—Literary collection
52—Prefix: not
54—Spanish (abbr.)
55—Sloth

Maryland Takes Six Firsts In Relays; Netters Down Yale For Fourth In Row

Number Two Doubles Loss Averts Shutout; Two Teams to Clash Here Tomorrow

By Anne Wells

Yale university minus its ace, Roller Ray, who found the oil and cattle of Texas more appealing than the balmy sunshine of the Carolinas, proved little match for the Tar Heels of Coach John Kenfield on the local courts yesterday afternoon, going down to defeat, 8-1.

The visiting Eli caught the Carolina entry on a bad day after the scare the Tar Heels had gotten from Cornell the day before. For yesterday, the winners were all stroked up and raced through eight of the nine matches with comparative ease.

Vic Seixas, who lacked a little of everything in the last two sets of his loss to Dick Savitt of the Big Red, had it all back yesterday when he walked on the court to face Bulldog John Moses. The transplanted Philadelphian raced through his opponent in fine form, giving the crowd of close to a thousand a tip top display of passing volleys and smashing serves and overheads.

Vaunted Vic

Vaunted Vic took the first set in six straight games and then fought off a Moses' comeback in the second to annex a 6-0, 6-4 victory.

The straight set triumph was a sign of the times all the way down the singles line. At the No. 2 spot, Clark Taylor lost only one game in taking the measure of Carl Badger while on the neighboring court Ray Morris subdued Kelly Clark in a 6-0, 6-4 effort. Taylor continued to play the extremely fine winning tennis he has shown in the past few days while Morris gave evidence of returning to the form of the Morris of old.

Rice Wins

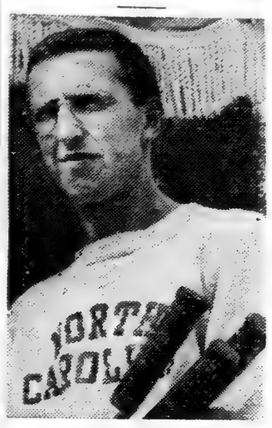
Charlie Rice took the No. 4 match, defeating Dick Hunt, 6-3, 6-1, in another easy win while Don Skakle exhibited polished net play in disposing of Jim Corralt, 6-0, 6-4. Heath Alexander closed out the single's picture with a 6-2, 6-0 tally over Bruce Bayne of the visitors.

Carolina's only loss of the day came in the No. 2 doubles match when the Bulldog team of Badger and Clark proved to be too much for the Tar Heel duo of Stan Gruner and Sam Daniels.

In the other doubles engagements the Carolina No. 1 pair of Alexander and Skakle delighted the fans on the main court by giving the Eli team of Moses-Bayne a few 6-3 lessons in the art of doubles competition.

Last Point

Carolina's last point came through the efforts of Duke Wilder and Burt Ingram who duplicated the other doubles win by stopping Corralt and Hunt by the identical 6-3 scores.



It was the Tar Heels' fourth win of the week and gave them a similar record for the season. Both teams will rest today, but will continue hostilities again tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Though no announcement has been made, both coaches will probably shake up their starting lineups in order to give the players of each squad an opportunity to face a varied array of competition.

The Eli team is at present on its annual Southern training trip and will remain in Chapel Hill to face the local team in a possible rubber match on Tuesday.

The summary:

Singles — Seixas (C) defeated Moses, 6-0, 6-4. Taylor (C) defeated Badger, 6-0, 6-1. Morris (C) defeated Clark, 6-0, 6-4. Rice (C) defeated Hunt, 6-3, 6-1. Skakle (C) defeated del Corralt, 6-0, 6-4. Alexander (C) defeated Bayne, 6-2, 6-0.

Doubles — Alexander-Skakle (C) defeated Moses-Bayne, 6-3, 6-3. Badger-Clark (Y) defeated Gruner-Daniels, 6-3, 6-4. Wilder-Ingram (C) defeated del Corralt-Hunt, 6-3, 6-3.

CLARK TAYLOR
. . . wins again

Baseball Briefs

By United Press

TRIBE BUYS CHRISTOPHER

Orlando, Fla., April 3—(UP)—The Cleveland Indians strengthened their mound staff today and increased their chances of capturing the American league pennant by purchasing Russ Christopher from the Philadelphia Athletics.

Christopher won 10 games last year while losing seven as the ace relief pitcher of the fifth place Athletics. He had an earned run average of 2.89.

The Indians already have a crackerjack fireman in Mel Harder and Christopher may be elevated to starting assignments. The Athletics are well fortified with pitchers, having such stars as Phil Marchildon, Dick Fowler, and Bill McCahan. The latter two have no-hitters to their credit. McCahan's came last season—his first in the major leagues.

REDS SOCKED

Sarasota, Fla., April 3—Mickey Harris and Harry Dorish held Cincinnati to three hits today as the Boston Red Sox blanked the Reds, 5-to-nothing.

Harris—a sore arm question mark last year and this spring—was at his best today. He pitched seven innings and gave up only two hits. Dorish was tagged for the other in the ninth.

The Red Sox clubbed Howie Fox and Harry Gumbert for 12 hits. The Sox tallied once in the first and fourth innings, then put together four more hits to score three runs in the sixth, with Fox taking all that punishment.

WYNN WINS

Orlando, Fla., April 3—Right-handers Early Wynn and Rae Scarborough held the Philadelphia Athletics to three hits today as the Washington Senators beat the A's, 3-to-1.

Rookie Lou Brissie was the loser, giving up two runs to the Senators in the second and another in the third. Bob Savage pitched the last three innings for the Mackmen. The Senators collected six hits, five off Brissie and one off Savage. The Senators scored one of their runs on a double steal, the fourth time they've turned the trick this spring.

LATE SCORES

Kan. City 2	New York (A) 1
Boston (A) 5	Cincinnati 0
Cleveland 5	Pittsburgh 3
St. Louis (A) 9	Chicago (N) 6

Jayvees Capture Opening Game

By Buddy Vaden

Carolina's left-handed jayvee pitcher, Bill McGinn racked up a four-hitter yesterday to defeat Greensboro high school, 8-4. McGinn went the full nine innings to give the locals their initial victory of the young season.

Greensboro took advantage of McGinn's lack of shooting accuracy in the first frame to score a run on four walks and a single. However, they couldn't keep the lead, for in the second half of the first the Tar Heels collected two runs on a pair of Whirlie errors and second sacker Waevil's single.

In the second frame Greensboro collected a run on a single by second baseman Johnson after Leonard was hit on the arm by McGinn. However, the locals tallied once in their half of the inning to maintain a one-run margin when McGinn's single scored Jerry Allen, who reached first by virtue of a walk.

Score Two in Third

The Juniors scored two more markers in the third when Quin Quirles hit a long double deep into right-center and stretched it to three when Crews fumbled the ball. Quirles scored on a grounder to second by Watkins and Garganus, who had walked previously, crossed the plate when shortstop Frazier bobbled McGinn's grounder.

Greensboro attempted to tie the score at five-all in the sixth, but fell one run short. Two singles, a balk, a walk, and an error accounted for the tallies.

Carolina picked up a safe lead in the lucky seventh when they pounded relief pitcher Nelson for three hits, two of which were good for an extra base. Senter started things off with a walk. Ward flied out to centerfield and Quirles singled. Then Garganus slammed a double down the left field line to score Senter. Allen came up next and put another double in the same spot, scoring both Quirles and Garganus. This gave the Tar Heels a four run lead which they held for the remainder of the game.

McGinn Goes Route

McGinn started the ball game with little control, walking five and hitting one of the first nine men to face him. However, after the second inning he found his mark and struck out nine men, three of these coming in the seventh frame. His most crucial test came in the sixth frame when the count reached three and two on Crews with two outs and bases loaded. McGinn came through with a fast curve which Crews swung at and missed, thus getting the local moundsman out of a hole that may have spelled the difference between victory and defeat.

Waevil and Garganus proved to be the big guns of the Tar Heel hitting attack. Waevil collected singles in the first and second frames while Garganus earned a Texas leaguer in the fifth and a double in the big seventh.

Whirlies Reaped!

Greensboro High	AB	R	H	PO	A
Johnson 2b	5	0	1	4	4
Crews lf	5	1	0	0	0
Seay rf	4	0	0	0	0
Frazier ss	4	0	1	3	3
Henry cf	4	1	1	2	0
Brown 1b	4	1	0	10	0
Cates 3b	4	0	1	1	1
Leonard c	4	1	0	4	0
Thomas p	1	0	0	0	2
Durham p	2	0	0	0	1
Nelson p	1	0	0	0	1
Totals	38	4	4	24	12

Carolina Jayvees	AB	R	H	PO	A
Waevil 2b	3	1	2	2	1
Goodman 2b	1	0	0	1	0
Brookshire ss	5	1	1	0	2
Senter 3b	5	1	0	0	2
Ward lf	5	0	0	0	0
Quirls 1b	4	2	2	15	0
Garganus c	4	2	2	15	0
Allen cf	4	1	1	0	1
Watkins rf	4	0	0	0	0
McGinn p	4	0	1	0	4
Totals	39	8	8	27	10

Greensboro	110	002	000	442
UNC Jayvees	212	000	30x	882

Summary: Errors: Senter, Quirls, Johnson, Frazier, Henry, Cates. Runs batted in: Henry, McGinn, Quirles, Allen (2) Two-base hits: Allen, Garganus, Quirles. Stolen bases: Allen. Base on balls—off McGinn, 10; Thomas, 4; Nelson, 1. Struck out—by McGinn, 14; Thomas, 2; Durham, 1. Left on bases Carolina, 6; Greensboro, 2. Balk McGinn (2). Hit by pitcher Leonard (by McGinn) Winning pitcher McGinn; losing pitcher Thomas. Umpires, Murray, Hayworth; time 2:30.

SC Trip Scheduled For Diamond Men

Carolina students won't get their first look at the local baseball squad April 15, when the Tar Heels meet Furman at Emerson field.

In the meantime, the Hearnmen will be off on a three-game swing through South Carolina and will meet the Wake Forest Deacons at Wake Forest on April 13 for their first game in the Old North State after the trek into the hinterlands.

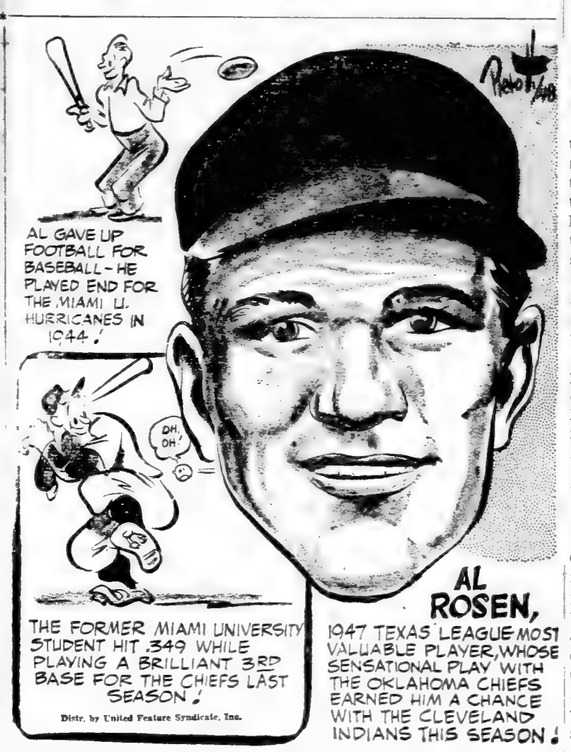
Columbia is the first stop on the journey and the Gamecocks of South Carolina will take the field against the Tar Heels. The next port of call for the wandering baseballers is Clemson where they will face the Tigers, Southern conference title-holders and District 3 representatives to the NCAA tourney.

Furman will be played in Greenville in the first game of a home and home series.

The Tar Heels will be heading south with a record of two wins, one loss, and one tie. One game, with Cornell, which was to be played this week was cancelled because of rain.

The Blue and White are well used to the position of playing foreign fields. Of the four games thus far in the books, one was played in Lynchburg, two in Burlington, and one in Southern Pines. All were originally slated to be played in Chapel Hill.

Co-captain Jim Hayworth moved into the lead in the squad batting race against Yale. Going into the contest, both he and Jim Kelly, defending Big Four batting champ, had gone five for twelve, but Hayworth picked up a double, while Kelly was hitless in four trips to the plate.



Hayworth is now sporting a .353 average and Kelly has a respectable .313. Hayworth knocked in a run against the Elis to catch up to Kelly. Both have four RBI's.

Vinnie DiLorenzo is heading the mound corps with 24 strikeouts in 17 and two thirds innings. Frank Robinson has fanned an average of one an inning in nine frames of work.

Gridders Scrimmage

An informal scrimmage marked the end of the first week of spring football practice for the Tar Heels. However, the drills emphasized that much work has to be done to round off the rough edges of the Carolina attack. Frequent fumbles served to mar the play.

The gridders have four more weeks of spring drills before they close up shop with the second annual Blue-White contest that pits one half of the Snavleymen against the other. September 1 is the date when the footballers return to Chapel Hill to begin preparations for the season's curtain raised against the Texas Longhorns.

Softball Tourney Begins Tomorrow With 18 Games; 78 Teams Entered

Intramural softball starts off in a big way tomorrow afternoon with 36 teams taking over the diamond in an 18 game schedule.

Nine are slated to get underway at 4 o'clock with the others carded for 5 o'clock.

Phi Kappa Sigma, last year's winner in both the fraternity division and the all-campus play, will send two teams out to try and make a repeat performance.

There are 46 teams from the fraternities and 32 dormitory and independent entrants. The teams are divided up into 6 fraternity leagues and 4 dormitory groups. Each team will play a round robbin series of seven games. The top teams at the end of this play will then compete for division championship.

The final game will pit the two champs together for the all-campus winner.

It has not been decided definitely how a team will be selected to play in the Big-Four Intramural Sports Day to be held in Durham early in May. The big show will bring together the top mural athletes of Carolina, State, Duke, and Wake Forest and will undoubtedly be a field day full of action and thrills.

The plans which were taken up last Tuesday night at the meeting of all the intramural managers for the spring quarter call for play in softball, volleyball, badminton, ping pong, horseshoes and one wall handball.

It was decided to let the Phi Gamma Delta squad, undefeated for over two years, play in the volleyball meet. In the handball the Roaches, all-campus winners, will form the nucleus of team. Anyone else interested can try out for the final group selected.

Mural Director Walter Rabb will be in charge of picking the five badminton players. "Red" Gerringer, 110 Stacy, will handle the work in horseshoes. He wants all interested to see him in order that he can select two doubles teams and one single player in time to get some practice done.

A ping pong tourney will probably be held to find the top five table tennis stars. Play will probably be held among the leading squads in the softball play just before the meet to get a top notch team for the Durham event.

Monday's Murals

SOFTBALL

4:00—Field 1: KA 1 vs. Sig Chi 1: Field 2: Lamb Chi 2 vs. Phi Delt 3: Field 3: Chi Phi 1 vs. Zeta 2; Field 4: Phi Kap 2 vs. Lamb Chi 1; Field 5: TEP 1 vs. Phi Gam 2; Field 6: Delt Sig 2 vs. DKE 1: Field 7: Sig Ep vs. Chi Psi 2; Field 8: ATO 2 vs. ZBT: Field 9: SAE 1 vs. Beta 1.

5:00—Field 1: KA 2 vs. Sig Chi 2: Field 2: Phi Kap 1 vs. Kap Psi: Field 3: Sig Nu 2 vs. Zeta 1; Field 4: Delt Sig 1 vs. Phi Gam 1; Field 5: Chi Phi 2 vs. Kap Sig 1; Field 6: TEP 2 vs. Chi Psi 1: Field 7: ATO 1 vs. Phi Gam 3: Field 8: Pi Kap 1 vs. DKE 2; Field 9: Kap Sig 2 vs. Pi Kap Phi.

RIFLE FIRING

4:00—Independent vs. Emerson.
7:00—Lambda Chi vs. Beta.

SOCCER DRILLS

Spring practice for the soccer team will begin tomorrow Coach Marvin Allen announced yesterday. All old men and anyone interested in trying out for the team should be present at the soccer field at 3 o'clock.

Individual Leaders Headed by Matthews, Moody, Bensley, Fuchs; Four Records Set

By Bob Goldwater

If yesterday's Carolina Relays was an indication of things to come in the Southern conference track championships this year, the situation looks dark indeed for North Carolina, the defending titleholder.

For down on Fetzer field yesterday afternoon, a strong Maryland track team ran off with the lion's share of the honors in the third annual Carolina Relays, capturing six first places in the 13-event program. No team score was kept, but had there been one the only battle would have been to see which team finished second. Maryland was way out front all the way.

As it was, with only the first places counting to see who gained most of the laurels, the Tar Heels managed to cop the runner-up spot, with three top positions. Yale's three-man entry grabbed two firsts, and Duke and VPI took one each.

Four New Records

Four meet records tumbled during the afternoon, two being individual marks and the other pair falling in relay events. The top record-breaking performance was turned in by Maryland's crack one-mile relay quartet of George McGowan, Mario Salvanelli, Dave Price, and Ed Matthews, who combined to clip 9.6 seconds off the 3:30.6 mark registered by Duke last year.

Carolina's Jack Moody also came in for a share of the record-breaking honors, reaching 6-4 in the high jump to raise by two inches the standard set last year by himself and Dick Dickey of N. C. State. The Tar Heels monopolized this event, Saunders placing second and Joyner and Smith figuring in a six-way deadlock for third.

Gordon Bensley of Yale soared 13 feet in the pole vault competition to increase the record in that event by six inches. The other record was registered in the 440-yard relay, in which Maryland's speed runners shaved one-tenth of a second off Duke's 43.6 mark of 1947.

Individual Honors

Ed Matthews, who figured in both new relay records, also took part in another winning relay performance, in the distance medley, to take individual honors for the afternoon. The race, closely contested all the way between the Old Liners and Tar Heels, featured a one-mile duel between Bob Palmer, conference cross-country champion, and Jimmy Miller, whose harrier title Palmer lifted.

Miller stayed with the Maryland star for over three laps, finally making his bid on the last curve. But Palmer was too strong and breezed home by seven yards.

The one-mile run itself was another close affair for three laps, but Carolina's Sam Magill opened up on the last quarter to finish 15 yards in front of Yale's Linton Baldwin. Other individual firsts in running events were captured by Karl Ruback of Maryland in the high hurdles and

(See RELAYS, page 4)

Md., My Md. !

120-yard high hurdles: Rubach (Md.), Salvanelli (Md.), McLean (VPI), Taylor (UNC). 15.2.

100-yd dash: Wingo (VPI), McGowan (Md.), Davis (Duke), Goldberg, (NCS). 10.1.

Distance medley relay: Maryland (Matthews, Umbarger, Kehoe, Palmer). UNC, VPI. 10:38.9.

440-yd. relay: Maryland (Gugal, Matthews, Salvanelli, McGowan), Duke, State, VPI. 43.5 (New meet record.)

Sprint medley: Duke (Grisso, Townsend, Davis, Neighborgall), VPI, State, Maryland. 3:39.3.

One-mile run: Magill (UNC), Baldwin (Yale), Kehoe (Md.), Creamer (Md.). 4:29.7.

One-mile relay: Maryland (McGowan, Salvanelli, Price, Matthews), Duke, VPI, UNC. 3:21. (New meet record).

Shot put: Fuchs (Yale), Byler (NCS), O'Leary (Duke), Selgman (UNC). 53 ft. 6 1-2 in.

Javelin: Eichhorn (Md.), Kirk (UNC), Dunham (Duke), Vestal (UNC). 181 ft.

High jump: Moody (UNC), Saunders (UNC), six-way tie for third between Joyner and Smith (UNC), Colvin and Coughlin (Duke), Dickey and Pickett (NCS). 6 ft. 4 in. (new meet record).

Broad jump: Andrews (Md.), Ausbon (Duke), Crandall (Md.), Bubas (NCS). 22 ft. 1 1-4 in.

Discus: Seligman (UNC), Fuchs (Yale), Vann (Dav.), O'Leary (NCS). 139 ft. 6 5-8 in.

Pole vault: Bensley (Yale), Hickman (UNC), Colvin (Duke), tie between Jackson (Duke) and Ewin (Md.) 13 ft. (New meet record).

Freshman Events

Distance medley relay: Durham High (Wolf, Dennis, Veasey, Byrd). UNC. 11:47.3.

440-yd. relay: UNC "A" (Ingram, Montague, Hubbard, Rouse), Durham, UNC "B". 46.0.

Sprint medley relay: Durham "A" (Pate, Stallings, Bain, Byrd), UNC "B", UNC "A", Durham "B". 3:51.3.

What are your plans tonight? For 90 entertaining and interesting minutes, come to Hill Hall at 8:00. Hear Max Helfman's delightful program, "Jewish Music & Jewish Survival".

FOR YOUR FLOWERS CALL
WEST-WILLIAMS FLOWER SHOP
Telephone 9906
P. O. Building, Carrboro

THIS LOVE IS A THING OF EVIL!
PEGGY CUMMINS
VICTOR MATURE
ETHEL BARRYMORE
in
MOSS ROSE
20th CENTURY-FOX
with VINCENT PRICE
MARGO WOODE • GEORGE ZUCCO
PATRICIA MEDINA • RHYS WILLIAMS
—MONDAY—
VILLAGE

CHALLENGE

Confident that the Anti-Anti-UMT group, professed defenders of Democratic processes, are regretful of the emotional tone of last Tuesday's meeting, and —

Inferring from their demands at the meeting that they would like to have an opportunity to present their views to the public jointly with us in an atmosphere more conducive to clear thinking —

We, the Committee against Conscription, hereby challenge Mr. William Corley and Mr. Paul Mullinax, or any other speakers their followers may choose —

....To meet our representatives IN PUBLIC DEBATE on the merits of the proposed Universal Military Training and Selective Service legislation the form, time, place, and moderator of the debate to be decided by a joint committee of arrangements.

Committee against Conscription

John Myers, Chairman

PRESCRIPTIONS
Filled Promptly
ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY
—at—
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

All Occasions
Flowers say it better
REHDERS
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office corner

Quick Service
DURHAM OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 816

WHEN THE EAGLE SCREAMS ! JOIN THE U. V. A.

Daily Tar Heel Society

Society Asides

May Frolics Will See Many Parties

By Weddy Thorp

The big thing on the social agenda for this coming week is, of course, MAY FROLICS. Plans are under way now for parties on Friday and Saturday and both dances promise successful nights. We welcome the Frolics back to the campus, and what with Tony Pastor, etc., it would seem that it's being done whole-heartedly by those in charge.

So it's import time again, and in all probability, Alderman, Spencer and the rest will be buzzing with activity (good ole coed lemon sessions) this weekend. That's all right girls. They can't prove anything to us in these days. . .or can they?

Fever Spreading

Well, Hogan's Lake and other similar spots around Chapel Hill begin to come into their own again. From the looks of things recently picnic-fever is spreading rapidly. It couldn't have happened to a better campus . . . but the question is, how congenial can you get?

One thing we were mighty glad to hear is the news that the Alpha Gams are back in their house again. After a little spring cleaning necessitated by the fire, they have started having their open house again every Sunday night. The first one will begin at six o'clock tonight and the entire student body is invited to attend.

Happy and Ann

Visiting alumnae on the campus this week included "Happy" Clark and Ann Robinson, both '47 coeds.

Reports from the Graham Memorial dance last Saturday night have been especially favorable. A large number of new students on campus, in whose honor the affair was held, were there to get a good start into the Carolina social whirl.

Also the Vets club dance on that same night was an enormous success. The place was packed and informality was the keynote there.

Political Scene

The Y court has seen a wealth of activity in the past week, what with fraternity initiations and elections both in the spotlight at the University now. Campus politicos seem to find they can use the masses there in their business.

Hand-shaking and the traditional "hey-how-you" is definitely the order of the day . . . and with the approach of April 6 will become more and more a necessary part of the daily routine for quite a number of UNC's hopefuls. So for the next couple of days at least, it might be interesting to watch the court. There's some skillful maneuvering going on there.

Yack Yack!

And as if there isn't enough confusion on campus, somebody comes out with just one more project . . . the suggestion of making the Yackety Yack an annual humor book, to be called the "Yack, Yac, Yacyacyac." Campaign slogan? Possibly.

Well, here's to the big weekend. We throw in the thought that last year's lesson may be well-learned, and the hope that the Frolics may continue to be an ANNUAL affair.

GRAIL RINGS

Mr. Lee Blackwell, Balfour representative, will be at the Y all day Tuesday for juniors and seniors desiring to place orders for class rings. Also there will be a Grail representative at the Y each Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock the remainder of the quarter, to take ring orders.

IRC TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the IRC Monday night at 7:30 in Graham Memorial, Roland Parker lounge 1. Topic for discussion will be the reversal of the United States stand on the Palestine partition issue.

Student Union Gives Dances

Graham Memorial, in cooperation with the Student Orientation committee, sponsored a dance for the entire school last Saturday night in the Main lounge.

Johnny Satterfield's orchestra played for the affair from 8:30 until 12 o'clock. The dance was given in special honor of the new students on campus, and a large number were on hand.

The lounge was beautifully decorated by the local florists and the affair turned out to be the biggest Graham Memorial dance this year.

Women's Glee Club Elects Officers

The Women's Glee club has elected officers for the coming year. Ferne Hughes, music major from Rainelle, West Va., was elected to succeed Jo Fishel as president.

Other officers include: Barbara Young, Chapel Hill, vice-president; Doris Griffin, Elizabeth, secretary; Betty Smith, Miami, Fla., business manager; and Iris Lee Bost, Concord, publicity manager. ager.

The club is now working on their annual spring concert which will be presented late this month.

PINNINGS

Betty Anne Cooper, Greensboro, Chi Omega, to Sonny Dunaway, Charlotte, Beta Theta Pi.

Nancy Pendleton, Elizabeth City, Chi Omega, to Edward Owens, Elizabeth, City, Phi Delta Theta.

Cecilia Price, Raleigh, to Jack Wooley, Wagram, Alpha Tau Omega.

-Relays-

(Continued from page 3)

Sterling Wingo of VPI in the 100-yard dash.

Defends Title

Lone 1947 champion to defend his title successfully this year was the Tar Heels' Bob Seligman, the discus victor. Big Bob fell far short in attempting to win the other weight event, Yale's Jim Fuchs heaving the shot 53 feet, 6½ inches to easily gain that event. His winning effort came six inches away from the meet record established by the mighty Al Blozis, when he appeared here with Georgetown in 1942.

The javelin results provided a mild surprise when, Ike Eichhorn of Maryland came through with a toss of 181 feet to win the event. Yesterday's meet was the first time he had thrown in competition.

The remaining field event was won by the Old Liners' Charlie Andrews in the broad jump.

MED, DENTAL ASPIRANTS

All students who are planning to enter Medical or Dental schools are cordially invited to attend a meeting with Dean Berryhill to be held in Gerrard hall tomorrow night at 8:30. Premedical and pre-dental requirements will be discussed and questions about standings will be answered.

SAVE MONEY — CLOTHES — TIME
The "Popular Laundry Service Is Now Available To Students And Towns People Who Carry Their Laundry To The Village Self Service Laundry
402 W. FRANKLIN — PHONE F-3957
HOURS — 8 AM to 6 PM DAILY — OPEN MON. & TUES. UNTIL 9 AM

Pi Phi Picks New Officers For This Year

Pi Beta Phi officers for the coming year were elected Wednesday night and Harriet Sipple, of Orlando, Fla., was elected president of the chapter.

Other officers include: Weddy Thorpe, Rocky Mount, vice-president; Roberta Huffman, Morganton, recording secretary; Charmian Griffin, Washington corresponding secretary; Virginia Nash, Raleigh, treasurer; Ann Anderson, Eustis, Fla., assistant treasurer.

Elizabeth Myatt, Goldsboro, pledge supervisor; Sally Ann Cordon, Louisville, Ky., assistant pledge supervisor; Jean Roberts, Durham, rush captain; Mary Glen Slater, Wilson, assistant rush captain; Ann Wells, Milledgeville, Ga., house manager.

Kit Finney, Eccleston, Md., Pan-Hellenic representative; Sally Woodhull, Bethlehem, Pa., historian; Randall Hudson, Tarboro, program chairman; Jane Pointer, Raleigh, social chairman; and Jean Marie Lester, St. Petersburg, Fla., assistant social chairman.

Katherine Royal, Goldsboro, scholarship chairman; Gladys Cottrell, Red Bank, N. J., activities chairman; Hunter Bell, Norfolk, Va., and Gladys Cottrell, censors.

The slate of new officers will be completed in the near future with the election of a few more committee chairmen.

Welcome-Back Dance Given by Vets Club

The Veterans club gave a dance in their club house last Saturday night from 8:30 — 12:45.

Open to veterans and their guests, the dance was held as a welcome-back gesture and an attempt to advance the membership drive.

The dance was an informal affair, and music was furnished by the juke-box. There was a capacity crowd in the house and a number of memberships were sold.

Dekes to Entertain Chi Omega Tuesday

Delta Kappa Epsilon will entertain for their sister sorority, Chi Omega, at Hogan's lake on Tuesday at 4:30. The supper party will be held in commemoration of the 97th anniversary of the establishment of the Beta chapter of DKE and in honor of the national anniversary of Chi Omega.

ART EXHIBIT

Opening today at 2 o'clock an exhibition of fifty-one paintings, etchings, and serigraphs fills the large gallery at Person hall.

These works are from Contemporary Arts, Inc., of New York, a non-profit organization which fosters the advancement of young but mature American artists. Many of the artists have shown works in important national exhibitions and some of them like Csoka, Gross, and Cuthbert have works in the permanent collections of museums and art institutes.

The exhibition was selected by Alonzo Lansford, Consulting Director of Telfair Academy and Associate Editor of the Art Digest. The exhibit extends through April 25.

Now Playing
CAROLINA

SUNBACK DRESS with matching bolero, shown above as pictured in the April issue of Cosmopolitan magazine was a popular choice with Cosmopolitan's male-tested fashion jury at New York's Stork club because of its versitility. The dress is by Carolyn Schnurer. The jurors also felt that Everfast's navy blue poplin made it both practical and pretty. On the jury were Fred Waring, Coby Whitmore, Tex McCrary, Kent Smith, and Mervyn LeRoy.

Phi Gam Pledges Are Honored With Set of Dances, Parties

Phi Gamma Delta is honoring their pledges this weekend with a series of dances and parties.

Friday night a dance was given in the pledges' honor at the Carolina Inn from nine until twelve o'clock. The affair was formal and Johnny Satterfield and his orchestra played for the occassion.

The 24 pledges and their dates were presented at this dance and they formed a diamond for the for the figure, in the shape of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity pin.

Following this a no-break dance was held for the pledges and their dates.

After the dance, pastries and coffee were served at the fraternity house.

Yesterday afternoon a party was held at Lloyd's barn. Features of this affair included a softball game between the pledges and actives and one between the pledges' dates and the active dates. Supper was served at the barn following the games.

Religious Council Discusses Agenda

The Council for Student Relations met under the chairmanship of Paul Harman to discuss points on the agenda for the spring quarter and next year's work. The purpose of the organization, to find the religious needs on campus, is interlocked with plans for next year's Religion In Life week; the next World Student Service Fund drive; a spring clothing drive; the United Nations Seminar in New York in June; and various other projects.

The representatives to the CSRO, made up of a student member and an adult advisor from each religious group on campus and from the YMCA and YWCA, decided, in connection with next year's WSSF drive, that the first overall plans will be made this year and a WSSF committee chosen by recommendations of the various religious groups.

The CSRO is going ahead on plans for the Religion In Life week scheduled tentatively for next fall. A central planning committee, made up of three CSRO members, three advisors, and fourteen members at random, will be chosen next week from recomendations of the religious groups. Beginning work will be planning emphases for the week and securing speakers.

CLASSIFIED

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Priced right with attractive term arrangements Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

28 FOOT LA SALLE HOUSE TRAILER in good condition. Ideal location. Inquire at No. 26 University Trailer Court. (1-1891-1)

SMALL HOUSE LOCATED ON large lot. Two bedrooms. 33 Oakwood Drive. T. V. Cauble. Telephone F-3217. (1-1883-1)

FIVE ROOM HOUSE ON JUSTICE Street. Floor furnace, gas stove and automatic hot water heater. Large lot; immediate occupancy. John Foushee, Real Estate. (1-ch1x1-1)

24 FOOT GLIDER HOUSE TRAILER. Immediate occupancy. Lot 76 University Married Couples Trailer Court. (1-106-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1942 HUDSON SIX SEDAN IN GOOD shape for $700.00. See Ben L. Rouse, 140 Daniels Rd., Victory Village. (1-1899-1)

HELP WANTED 8

PART TIME HELP. MUST BE AVAILable from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. See Whid Powell, Colonial House. (ch 1x1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

WANTED 24

EXPERIENCED DRIVER. FREE RIDE to California. Man or man and wife. Mrs. T. K. Rice, phone 6821. (1-C105-1)

LOST 12

ONE CHI PHI PIN. LOST ON 3RD floor McIver. Please notify Jack Girard. (1-104-1)

SP to Meet Tonight On Last Minute Plans

Chairman Gran Childress of the Student party has announced a special meeting of the Student party to be held tonight at 9 o'clock in Roland Parker 1 of Graham Memorial.

Childress urged all members to be present, stating that the next meeting was an urgent one. It is expected that final plans for Tuesday's election campaign will be discussed.

Larger Air Force To Be Considered

Washington, April 4 —(UP)— Congress and the administration are heading for a showdown on the future size of the air force, according to House Speaker Martin.

Martin says a decision must be made within the next ten days. He insists that an appropriation bill including funds for Air Force expenses in the next fiscal year will be ready for floor action by that time.

The House speaker thinks that the administration's call for a 55-group air force is, in his words, "uncomfortably low." Martin says the air force should be built up to 70 groups.

Defense Seceretary Forrestal has warned against such a large air force. Forrestal estimates, in a letter to Republican Senator Chan Gurney of South Dakota, that a 70-group air force would cost American taxpayers an additional 18 billion dollars in the next fiscal year. He says that an expanded air force would require a proportionate enlargement of the Army and Navy.

Gurney, the chairman of the Senate Armed Forces committee. says his group will meet in closed session on the President's defense requests on Tuesday. The committee has just completed open hearings on Mr. Truman's call for a temporary draft law and Universal Military Training.

THE WORLD'S TALLEST NEEDS A LONG DRINK MAN, Olaf Johann Petursson, 8 feet 8 inches tall, doesn't worry about a glass for a drink of water, he just reaches for the pitcher which his hotel bellhop, Jerry Conklin, holds on a tray. A native of Iceland, Petursson was brought to New York to appear in the Ringling Bros. & Barnum & Bailey Circus. (International)

TOWN GIRLS ASSOCIATION

There will be a Town Girls association supper meeting tomorrow at 6 o'clock at the Episcopal church. It is very important that all members attend because the officers for next year will be elected.

-McGregor-

(Continued from page 1)

come to the point where it may be on the way.

"A drop in the production of raw materials such as steel," he concluded, could drop us into a bad semi-depression."

Final Pre-Election CP Meet Is Tonight

All members and candidates of the Campus party have been ordered by party chairman Bob [illegible] to be present at a meeting of the party which has been set for 9 o'clock this evening in the party headquarters. Quorum is six.

Final plans for distribution of campaign literature and other forms of canvassing will be made at this meeting. It will be the last party meeting held before the Tuesday general election.

New Checks Will Have Instructions

According to a report released last week from the Veterans Administration office, April 1 subsistence checks would include instructions for applying for the increased subsistence checks to go into effect March 1. However these instructions were not enclosed with the checks.

For single veterans, or for veterans with one dependent whose dependency has already been established, no action is necessary, as the increase is automatic.

However any veteran who claims two dependents must take steps to establish dependency for the additional dependent. If the dependent is the veteran's child the birth certificate should be sent to the Veterans Administration in Winston-Salem.

CORRECTION

A mistake in the caption under Fred Blackwell's picture in yesterday's Daily Tar Heel stated that Mr. Blackwell was nominated for the Men's council by the non-partisan board, whereas he is actually running as an independent.

"I do not wish to be presented to the student body under false pretenses," Blackwell stated yesterday. "I filed independently instead of being nominated by the non-partisan board.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

M-N-X any style — at HARRY'S

OPERATION CROSSROADS

On Monday, April 5 at 11 o'clock in the Medical auditorium, the student association of the School of Public Health and the Department of Sanitary Engineering will sponsor a discussion by Duncan A. Holaday, Division of Industrial Hygiene, U. S. Public Health Service on "Radiation Hazards of Atomic Fission, and Their Measurement"

Mr. Holaday has been in charge of the U. S. P. H. S. experimental work in this field and has been laison representative of the U. S. P. H. S. with the Army, Navy and Atomic Energy Commission.

Mr. Holaday's discussion will be followed by a showing of "Operation Crossroads", the official armed forces motion pictures of the Bikini atomic bomb detonations.

A Dog's Tale

Who says dogs don't like the dog catcher? Maybe canines in most places, along with their fond masters, have an inborn fear of the dog-catcher and his net. Not in Hickory, though.

The dog-catcher at Hickory, Roy Wakefield, says he has a warm spot in his heart for one male Beagle hound who apparently feels the same way about Wakefield. The dog-catcher says he turned the stray Beagle over to a dog lover who came to the dog pound and paid the animal's board bill.

The Beagle has strayed again —right back to Wakefield at the dog pound—and of his own accord.

Sandwiches —
Shakes —
Sodas —
SLOAN
Drug Co.

"COOPER NEVER FINER! STANWYCK JUST RIGHT!" —N. Y. Daily News
"INSPIRING!" —L. A. Herald-Express
"STUPENDOUS!" —Miami Herald
"IMPORTANT!" —N. Y. Post
"ROUSING!" —San Francisco Chronicle
"MAGNIFICENT!" —N. Y. Herald-Tribune
"FUN!" —N. Y. World-Telegram
FRANK CAPRA Production, starring GARY COOPER and BARBARA STANWYCK in the 'Mr. Deeds' of 1941
"Meet John Doe"
with EDWARD ARNOLD WALTER BRENNAN SPRING BYINGTON · JAMES GLEASON GENE LOCKHART Screen Play by Robert Riskin
Directed by FRANK CAPRA
NOW PLAYING
VILLAGE

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-49

WEATHER
Cloudy and warmer with probable rain.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Student Union
Next Year Today
No Investigation

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, APRIL 6, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 133

Hodson Leaves Presidential Race, Backs Charlie Long

Polls Open This Morning For Spring General Elections

RUNNING HER HANDS through her golden tresses is film actress Janet Blair who was selected as "America's Number One Blonde". She came out on top in a poll conducted among thousands of beauticians and hair stylists all over the nation. (International)

Students Required To Show ID Cards Before Balloting

With students wading knee-deep in political posters, another general campus election rolls around today with all its sound and fury signifying what, nobody knows.

Polls will open in Gerrard hall, Aycock dormitory, Ruffin dormitory and Alderman dormitory from 9 o'clock this morning until 6 o'clock this evening. The four polling places last year included Lenoir hall, but the new election laws recently passed by the Student Legislature switched the location to Ruffin.

Students eligible to vote in the four polling districts are as follows:

Voting Districts

GERRARD HALL: Residents of Carr, Smith, Steele, BVP, Old East, Old West, Nash, Miller, fraternity houses, sorority houses, Victory village, Pittsboro road trailer camp, and all other students not residing in dormitories.

AYCOCK DORMITORY: Residents of Aycock, Graham, Stacy, Everett, Lewis, Alexander and quonset huts.

RUFFIN DORMITORY: Residents of Ruffin, Mangum, Manley, Grimes, Emerson and Fetzer field houses.

ALDERMAN DORMITORY: Residents of Alderman, McIver, Kenan and Spencer.

University identification cards will definitely be required before a student may cast his ballot, according to Al Winn, chairman of the Elections board. The ID cards will be stamped and returned when the voter receives his ballot.

Aside from the multitude of campus offices to be filled in the election, five constitutional amendments will be submitted to the voters to ratify. They concern: 1. Establishment of the legality of the court of the Interfraternity council; 2. Power of impeachment of student government officials; 3. Autonomy of the Student Legislature over the Coed Senate; 4. Establishment of separate honor courts for the Law, and Medical schools; 5. Holdover member on the Women's council.

Campus Party Votes For No Endorsement

A routine pre-election Campus party meeting became a sounding board for candidates seeking the CP endorsement for head cheerleader Sunday night, but the final result was no endorsement for any candidate.

Prompted by the withdrawal from the race of CP head cheerleader nominee Dick Wofford, Norman Sper and backers of Charlie Stancell and Jerry Pence were present to ask the party for consideration.

Sper spoke for himself, Charlie Shreve spoke for Stancell, and Chuck Hauser presented the argument for Pence. However, after considerable discussion, the party members present failed to pledge the party support to any of the three.

In a statement made after the meeting, party chairman Bob Haire explained that no action was taken, because the party had not had sufficient time to thoroughly consider the candidate's qualifications and "would not have been able to give a nominee full party support on such short notice."

'The Democratic Party in North Carolina' To Be Topic of Noted Journalist's Talk

D. HIDEN RAMSEY will speak tonight on "The Democratic party in North Carolina." He is general manager of the Asheville Citizen Times.

D. Hiden Ramsey, general manager of the Asheville Citizen Times, will discuss "The Democratic party in North Carolina," at 8 o'clock tonight in Gerrard hall.

A member of the Southern Newspaper Publishers association, Ramsey has been president of the North Carolina Press association. He served as Democratic elector at large at the N. C. Democratic convention in 1940 and has been on various state educational boards.

In speaking of Ramsey, Dr. Graham has written, "An able journalist, the beloved first citizen of the North Carolina mountains whence cometh his strength, a public servant whose courage and clear fiscal analysis saved the city from bankruptcy and despair and whose voice is lifted with eloquent power for humane causes in our State and beyond."

Law Students Will Present Hanft Tonight

Dr. Frank W. Hanft, professor in the Law school here and instructor for the Monday night religion classes held on campus, will speak on world government tonight at 7:30 in Manning hall.

This address, under the sponsorship of the Law school association, is part of a speaker program to be carried out by the association.

Dr. Hanft, a lieutenant colonel in World War II, is widely in demand as a speaker. He is a member of the United World Federalists on campus and a student of world government. His address tonight credits world government as being the most feasible solution in an effort to avoid war.

According to Mike Carr newly-elected president of the Law School association, everyone interested in the topic of the address is invited to attend the meeting. Carr replaced Bill Friday as president of the association in elections held last Friday.

Independent Candidate Pulls Surprise On Audience at Hill Hall Mass Meet

By Chuck Hauser

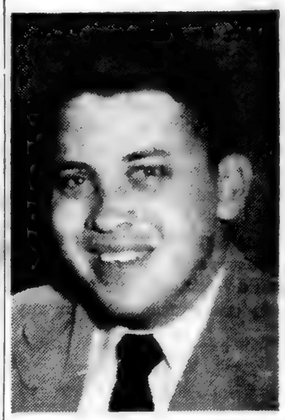
Presidential Candidate Charlie Hodson pulled a surprise on a small Hill hall audience at the political mass meeting last night and dropped out of the race in favor of another Charlie — Charles O. Long.

Roy Cole's music provided the background for the hour and one half of promises, charges and platform planks which were thrown out to the spectators by Jess Dedmond, Hodson, Charlie Long, Dick Manning, Mike Rubish, Johnny Clampitt, Jim Godwin, Gran Childress, Earl Fitzgerald, Bob Kirby, Ed Joyner, Art Melton, Gene Blake, Bill Duncan, Fred Burgess, Charlie Gibson, Tom Kerr, and Tom Wharton, who was representing himself and co-candidate Bob Smith.

Waded Through List

Al Winn, chairman of the Elections board, then proceeded to wade through the long list of other candidates in today's race, introducing all present to the congregation.

But the most exciting event of the night was Charlie Hodson's speech.



Hodson began by stressing the issues facing the student body. On the question of redistricting he declared, "Let us do away, once and for all, with taxation without representation.

"The next issue at stake," he pointed out, "is the right of every student to appeal any decision of the Men's or Women's councils to a higher court under student government, or whether this traditional right of the students shall pass into the hands of the faculty."

"Rights of Students"

Moving into the home stretch of the three minutes allotted each candidate as speaking time, Hodson stated that a man must be elected "who will not owe his election to any party or group . . .

(See HODSON, page 4)

CHARLIE HODSON, independent candidate for the presidency, last night publicly withdrew from the race and threw his support behind Charlie Long, also an independent.

Gerns Is Chosen For Mexican Trip

Pete Gerns, rising senior in political science, has been picked as a member of a small group of students from colleges and universities all over the country to participate in an experiment in international living to take place in Mexico this summer.

Gerns, who has been specializing in Latin American affairs for the past year, was notified of the honor in a letter received Saturday from Donald B. Watt, director of The Experiment in International Living, Inc., Putney, Vermont.

The student will be a member of one group of three who will, according to the Experiment offices, will live in the homes of Mexican families in either Morelia, Jalapa or Puebla, Mexico. After four weeks of getting acquainted with Mexican families and Mexican customs, each group will go to a different part of the country to spend a week in simple village homes to see how the poorer three-quarters of the Mexican population live and work.

By contrast, the next ten days will be spent in Mexico City going to bullfights, symphonies and fiestas, visiting the Shrine of Guadalupe and seeing the pyramids of Teotihuacan. For their final ten days in Mexico, the experimenters will return to their "home towns" and original Mexican families.

Pro-Conscription Group to Present Speakers In Reply to Advertisement

Bill Corley, leader of the campus pro-conscription movement, yesterday released the group's answer to the challenge which was advertised by the anti-draft group in yesterday's DTH.

Corley said the group has refused to enter into open debate as proposed by the anti-conscription's movement's advertisement. Instead a meeting has been called for Monday night at 8 o'clock in Hill hall, at which time the pro-conscription group will present their reply to the ideas expressed in last week's meeting by the committee against conscription.

A partial list of speakers taking part in the program will include Chancellor R. B. House, Dr. S. P. Emory of the geography department, Dr. C. H. Pegg of the history department and Dr. Nathan Rosen of the physics department. Corley said that the remainder of the speakers and other information on the meeting will be released at a later date.

Corley's reply to the challenge

(See CORLEY, page 4)

Veterans Given Leave Regardless

Unless veterans attending colleges and universities under the G-I Bill notify Veterans Administration within 30 days before the end of a term or semester that they do not want to take leave, VA automatically will place them on 15 days leave.

VA explained that veterans in these schools are placed on subsistence rolls from the date of enrollment until 15 days after the close of the term or semester. This automatic 15-day leave policy makes it possible for veterans studying under the accelerated program to recieve unbroken subsistence payments between terms or semesters.

A veteran placed on 15 days' leave will receive subsistence allowances for that period. His training at government expense will be reduced by 15 days.

Veterans who do not want their entitlement so reduced should notify VA to that effect. There will be no forms supplied for this notification. Veterans should write to E. C. Hemingway, Chief of Vocational Rehabilitation and Education Division, Winston-Salem, if they do not want the leave. This notification must be sent by May 7, 30 days before the end of the spring term, and is must include the vets C number.

Sper Announces Details of System For Next Year's Cheering Section

By Herb Nachman

Carolina will have an entirely different type of cheering organization next fall. The system will include new loudspeakers, a section of reserved seats and a new stunt card system.

Details of the plan were announced yesterday by Norm Sper who is a member of the special Rally committee set up to organize the card stunts, and a candidate for head cheerleader.

Sper said the new public address system will extend from the 35-yard line to the 45-yard line with a speaker at each end. The system will be mounted on a platform three feet wide and four feet high.

In order to facilitate the card stunt system, Sper said that a special section will be reserved for 2,185 students. The students making up the section will sit in half of section 16, all of 17 and half of 18. These sections are all located between the 35 and 45 yard line.

Since it is necessary for the card section to be a solid block, aisle 17 will be completely blocked off by the insallation of seats. The section will be 52 seats wide and 42 rows high.

The booths inside all three gates will be marked "Card Section" in order to allow each student his choice whether he desired to sit in the card section. There will be no reserved seats in the section but will be available on the first come first served

(See CARDS, page 4)

Citizens to Vote Bond Issue Today

More than 1,000 Chapel Hill citizens are expected to go to the polls at Town Hall today to vote on the $260,000 bond issue proposed for permanent improvements, including a new sewage disposal plant, streets, and new operating equipment.

As a result of the recent registration, 460 new names were added to the list of eligible voters, making the total more than 1700.

The polls open at 6:30 in the morning and close at 6:30 in the afternoon, and citizens have been urged by town officials to vote early.

Although no organized opposition has developed, a Citizens committee appointed by Mayor R. W. Madry and the Board of Aldermen headed by Judge L. J. Phipps has organized every section of the town with the view of getting out a big vote, and the Community council and the League of Women Voters have sponsored a public hearing and strongly endorsed the bond issue.

Town Manager G. W. Ray has estimated that if the bond issue passes no increase in the tax rate will be necessary for the next two years at least.

Phi Will Discuss New Party System

The Phi Assembly will discuss abolishing the University party, Student party, and Campus party and in their stead establishing a Democratic and a Republican party on campus at the meeting in New East building tonight at 7:30.

The committee appointments for this term are Ways and Means, Bill Duncan, chairman, John Giles, Graham Jones, Charles Cowell, Bryan Griswald, and Emily Baker.

Finance, Pete Gerns, chairman, Herman Seiber, and Robert Coulter.

Constitution, Chet Zum Brunnen, chairman, David Sharpe, and Frank Giraffe.

Membership, Page Harris, chairman, James McNider, Lester Sneed, and Walter Montgomery.

Alumni, George Rodman, chairman, Ruth Bradley, Charles Dixon, Gilbert Woolard, and Lester Sneed.

Social, Winifred Erwin, chairman, Mintie Cantrell, and Maebelle Enmann.

VA Warns Veterans On Policy Payments

Veterans needlessly take the chance of losing their money and their insurance protection when they mail cash to pay premiums on National Service life insurance policies, the Veterans administration has warned.

A number of NSLI policyholders continue to send cash to VA branch offices for premium payments. Early in March, the VA branch office in New York City received an envelope with $1,700 in $100-bills, to be applied to a veteran's insurance account.

VA pointed out that a veteran, making his insurance payments in cash through ordinary mail, has no way to prove he made the payment in the event it fails to reach VA. Failure to receive the money leaves VA no choice but to lapse the policy.

Veterans are urged to use money orders, postal notes (with the reverse side filled out in full), or checks for NSLI premium payments, and also to use the yellow envelopes furnished by VA in mailing the payments to the appropriate VA branch office.

Auditing Board Meets Tomorrow

Monroe Landreth, chairman of the Student Audit board, announced that a meeting of the board will be held in Roland Parker Lounge 1, Graham Memorial, tomorrow night at 7:30, for the purpose of acquainting all student organizations with the functions of the Student Activities fund.

Landreth said that there are numerous organizations on the campus not now availing themselves of the opportunity of handling their finances through this service, and that he believes it is mainly because they are unaware of its existence or that they do not understand its operations. Mr. Harry A. Kear, accountant for the fund, will be present at this meeting to explain how the fund operates and the advantages of handling accounts through this campus agency.

The officers of all organizations not now members of the Student Activities fund are cordially invited to be present.

WVA to Debate Carolina Tonight

The University of West Virginia will meet Carolina in a varsity debate scheduled to be held at 9 o'clock this evening, Debate council president Earl Fitzgerald announced yesterday.

In accordance with tournament custom, debating will be in progress simultaneously in both the Di and Phi halls. Subject for the evening will be "Resolved: That a world federal government should be established."

Merle Stevens and Emily Baker for the local speakers will defend the affirmative side of the question in the Phi hall while Jim Spence and Tom Shelton are supporting the negative for Carolina from the Di rostrum.

Names of the visiting Mountaineer debaters were unavailable yesterday afternoon.

Both of the Carolina teams were finalists in the recently completed Grand National forensic tourney held in Fredericksburg, Virginia, and, according to Fitzgerald, should give a good account of themselves tonight.

Following this tourney, the only debates remaining for Chapel Hill will be with Westminister college and the University of Pittsburgh although Carolina will go on the road to meet Davidson, Wake Forest, and Duke.

Veterans Must File Intention Certificates

The Veterans administration today warned that PL 16 veterans have until Thursday to go by 111 Peabody and fill out a certificate of intention and leave their Spring quarter schedule.

Under PL 16, vets must attend summer school if possible. The certificate of intention states whether the vet intends to do so.

The VA gave special warning that these blanks are important. If they are not filled out the PL 16 vet is subject to have his training interrupted and his subsistence cut off.

Negro Students Apply For Admission Here

Law, Med Schools Have Applications Filed; House Says They Will Be Sent to Trustees

By Roland Giduz

Apparently in line with a current trend of Negro applications to Southern colleges and universities three colored students have recently applied individually for admission to two University graduate schools.

Chancellor Robert B. House stated yesterday two Negro applications are now on file in the Law school and one in the Medical school. These are being specially considered, House said, since "The matter is out of the University's hands."

"We have no alternative in considering these applications," he explained, "Except to make a report of them to the Board of Trustees. If any action is to be taken in this matter it must be taken by the Trustees."

Upon receiving notification from Dean R. H. Wettach of the Law school and Dean Walter Reece Berryhill of the Medical school that Negro entrance applications had been filed with their departments, Chancellor House wrote a report of the situation to the Trustees, which is now on President Graham's desk. This will be presented to the next meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, tentatively scheduled for May 17.

"The University administration does not have jurisdiction in admitting or not admitting Negroes," House further stated. "That matter rests with the State of North Carolina. The Board of Trustees acts for the state as a board of control over the University. We have received the applications and are referring them to the board."

It was explained by the Chancellor that from time to time, whenever these matters arise it is a standing policy to direct them to the Board of Trustees.

In 1932 Raymond Hocutt, Negro student at North Carolina college, sought entrance to the University Pharmacy school, but failed in his plea due to poor grades. Several other applications have been received periodically since then.

Deadline for Law school applications was April 1. By this time Dean Wettach said entrance applications had been received from 200 students, 100 to 120 of which will be selected within a month by the Law School Faculty Committee on Admissions One of the law applicants is James Walker, Negro veteran law student at North Carolina college, from Statesville. The name of the other colored law applicant and the Medical school aspirant were not immediately available.

Walker, according to the Carolina Times, Durham Negro weekly newspaper, has requested permission to transfer to the Carolina law school on the grounds that the Durham Negro law school is not approved by the American Bar association and that upon completion of his course he would not be allowed

(See APPLICATIONS, page 4)

Express Your Ideas About Student Union

Hardly a day passes that we do not hear some verbal comment about the inadequacies of the present student union and someone state in disgust that a new and larger union is necessary. To date, all of these comments have just been versed by individuals and have gone unheard by the Administration. If these comments can be used collectively, then, we can reach our objective.

The student body collectively can demand that a new student union be planned and some action taken on the matter.

The main lounge of the present union should not be used as a meeting place or a dance hall as it is forced to be used on many occasions. The wearage on the furniture and equipment is tremendous and the individuals who wish to use the room as a lounge are out of luck. There should be a small auditorium in the new Union to meet the requests of those who wish to use the student building as a meeting place.

Student organizations that are lucky enough to have office space in Graham Memorial are cramped and suffer from lack of room to expand and take on added responsibilities. Other organizations whose only home is a lounge in Graham Memorial which they have reserved for their use once a week find that they are herded into a room too small and often ushered out of the room before their business is completed. Another organization is waiting to conduct their business.

Music rooms are in demand. There is not a music room in the present building and it would be impossible to find space for more than one music room in any event. Darkrooms for the aspiring photographers are in need. In the words of Director Bill Shuford, "The darkroom now is just a joke — an unused corner of a hall." The new Student Union should have several small but adequate darkrooms for student use.

A section of a student union should be devoted to a game center. Ping-pong, bowling billiards, and possibly a skating rink should be included in order to give students something to do on a date and in off-hours.

A Grill is a very useful part of a student union. There should be a small grill which would have a soda fountain and a grill for preparing hamburgers and light snacks. Additional equipment should be on hand for serving banquets at reasonable prices for campus organizations.

The present office space for the staff of Graham Memorial is totally inadequate. The staff is making an effort to supply such services as a travel bureau, mimeograph service, poster service, and maintain an activity center. There just is not enough room to do a good job of any one of these.

If we expect to accomplish anything we must have the voices of each student behind us. We would like for every student who believes that the campus, in order to have spirit and a common denominator besides football, needs a more adequate student union, write us a letter so that we will have the sentiments of the student body to corroborate our plea. Include in your letters what you would like to see in a student union and any comments that you might wish to make on the subject.

Let's hear from you.

Next Year Today

Next year will depend on the outcome of today's election.

You now have a chance to put in your two-cents worth. You have a say-so in who is to run your publications next year. You are given the opportunity of picking your executive leaders in student government and the men who will represent you in the Student Legislature. You have been presented the task of seeing to it that the best interests of the students are taken into consideration. It is your duty to take the time to consider the candidates in the field and mark your ballot according to the way your conscience directs you.

Next year will be a trying time. The campus has reached a stage when the average veteran, since he will leave in a quarter or so, does not have the interest in student government. The freshman has shied away from the majority of student government activities because he feels that the older men are deeply imbeded in student government and his presence would only be a hindrance.

Cast your ballot today. If for no other reason, it will insure the winner that he has the student body behind him and give him the incentive to carry forth his platform as a true representative of the student.

Merits No Investigation

Despite the recognized dangerous propensities of such meetings as the one on UMT last Tuesday night, I feel that the basic rights of freedom of speech and assembly were not jeopardized or threatened at the one in question and that the conduct of neither group merits an "investigation" by a committee appointed by the president of the student body.

Both as a member of the student body and as an elected representative of it, I can appreciate the wisdom of conducting ourselves as gentlemen at such meetings in the future. It would be an unpardonable violation of our heritage as students at this University if we allowed our feelings on either side to damage the practice of these rights on our campus. We must attend such meetings with this in mind.

Mr. Corley has given his word that the cross-burning was not under the sponsorship of his organization. The president of the student body can empower no committee to do more than accept a bona fide student's word of honor — nor should he. I was in attendance at the meeting, and while the behavior of many of us as individuals is to be apologized for, I choose to think of the behavior of the group as that of a typical, American college group, rather than as that of a militant, totalaristic mob.

The worst thing I associate with the meeting is a tendency for us all to intellectually confuse the issue of UMT with Communism. In addition to keeping ourselves orderly, it seems to me important that we remember to spare these people who have honest, democratic resons for opposing UMT, the embarrassment of being identified with those who disfavor Democracy itself.

Thomas Eller
President Student Body

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

SPORTS STAFF: Morty Schaap, Dick Jenrette, Bill Kellam, Larry Fox, Taylor Vaden, Kyle Cox, Bill Gallagher.

BUSINESS STAFF: James Crews, Jackie Rogers, Betty Huston, J. C. Brown, C. B. Mendenhall, Joe Williams, Randall Hudson, Gladys Cottrell, Al Petteway, Kathryn Colwell, W. S. Peebles, Grover Henson, Neal Howard, Jr., Lena Campbell, Ed Campbell, Al Carpenter.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman — NIGHT SPORTS: Bob Goldwater

Campus Forum

Dedmond, Long Lead Poll

By Pete Gerns

Today is election day. In an effort to fix a trend on how students may vote in campus elections, Campus Forum took another swing at asking people "How would you vote if elections were held today?" Here are the results.

Office and Candidate	Percentages 5 April YMCA	Lenoir	Avge.	1 April Avge.	29 March Avge.
President
Dedmond, CP-UP	42	50	46	35	42
Long, IND	18	16	17	25	25
Rubish, SP	24	10	17	22	20
Manning, IND	8	10	9	9	3
Hodson IND	2	4	3	6	2
Don't Know	6	10	8	3	8
Vice-President
Clampitt, UP	52	52	52	46	50
Godwin, CP-SP	44	36	40	38	33
Don't Know	4	12	8	16	17
Secretary-Treasurer
Childress, SP	34	14	24	25	26
Kirby, UP	28	16	22	42	23
Fitzgerald, CP	12	32	22	18	13
Don't Know	26	38	32	15	38
Yackety Yack Editor
Duncan, UP	46	30	38	44	27
Blake, SP-CP	22	34	28	29	25
Don't Know	32	36	34	27	48
Cheerleader
Sper, SP	26	44	35	19	28
Stancill, UP	44	22	33	29	36
Pence, IND	16	16	16	5	7
Wofford, CP	—	—	—	15	5
Don't Know	14	18	16	32	24

One hundred people were polled for each position.

There will be no run-off for the vice-presidency and editorship of the Yackety Yack since only two candidates have declared themselves for this office.

We want to point out, that the poll is not weighted to the extent that some of the students asked to vote in the Y court will actually cast their ballot today in the upper or lower quad.

The Forum wishes to express its thanks to the many students who have contributed to making the poll a successful project.

The Brassy Taste

Look Out for That Guy

By Bob Sain

Would you kick if you thought someone were trying to make a fool of you?

Funny thing about that. Everybody will. People will kick about that faster than anything else. That's one reason why con men and wife stealers are universally hated. Even the weakest joe will take a punch at Mr. Muscles if he thinks said Mr. M. is trying to make a fool of him.

So what?

So political machines and social cliques that move into politics always try to make fools of you. The machine bosses sometimes make a game of it by putting up for dog catcher an amiable football star who wouldn't know a spitz from a spaniel. Then they like to see the guys flock to the polls to vote for "the best man for dog catcher."

The cliques are somewhat less jovial, a bit more malicious in their method of taking you for a ride. For dog catcher they nominate a man who does know a bit about dogs—but who wouldn't pull in the most rabid hound if it were not politically convenient. If you elect their man they sit in the great hall at the fraternity house and laugh up their sleeves at the peasants. They make a great show of democracy but you don't ever see them out drinking with the boys from the dorm.

Okay, so you don't want anyone to make a fool of you—especially in today's election.

Quite frankly, I intend to vote for a man who's honest, says what he means and never tries to make a fool of you.

You know by now that I'm talking about Charlie Long. This is not log-rolling. I get nothing from Long's election except the satisfaction of knowing that the student body will have the right man as president.

Charlie Long won't try to kid you. He's more capable than any other man running for office, has been more effective in getting things for us. (If it weren't for Long's work in securing seats a lot of us would have been sitting in the end zone for all of last fall's football games.)

And don't think that just because it's so obvious that Long is the man for the office that everybody and his brother will take the time to vote for him. That's the danger in this sort of thing: everybody wants to "let George do it."

George is a pretty conniving joker. You do it. The machine and the clique is well organized. It's the job of the independent voter and even the honest party members to get to the polls today and mark a big X where it says Charlie Long.

And don't wait for George to do it. The proverbial George is about the best worker the machines and the cliques have ever had. Vote now. There's not much time left.

Carolina Carousel

Giduz Endorses Charlie Long For President

By R. Foo Giduz

Well, good buddies, old C. C. never wants it said about him that he is non-partisan, (Let's all be truthful about it!) and thus he goes out on an election-day limb. . . But constructively so. . .

For instance, we think Charlie Long has shown good cause why he should be elected to the student body presidency. . .A completely independent man with years of experience who will take ACTION!. . . And in case it means anything, nearly every man on all campus publications endorses Charlie (where were the "Gibson Girls"?) Gibson, for the humag editorship. . .Saleeb is far and away the top man for the presidency of the Senior class.—With the connections that huckster has now, they'll really remember the class of '49!

For head cheerleader we trust you will remember that Norman Sper (rhymes with Cheer) is the new blood coming into the Carolina cheering squad. . . Norm has gone further than promises; already has a whole raft of new stunts set up for next year. . . and lastly, remember Mellaman-Melton, alias "Mushmouth," "Artless Art," Arthur T.," and "Just Melton.". . . He has already forsaken us as campaign managers . . .(Mello, Mello, wherefore Art thou, Mello?). . .But we'll stick behind him through thick and thin, and some folks seem to think we're pretty thick.

—So Negro applicants have finally gotten around to asking entrance to Carolina the great center of liberalism in the South. . .Gentleman, as Chancellor House has made most clear, the matter rests entirely with the Trustees. . . There seems to be no cause to get up in the air about it in the least. We see no reason for writing racist letters to the DTH, either pro or con; nor for any mass meeting; formal declarations of stands by students; or other equally useless manifestations of our beliefs in this matter.

"It is out of our hands," said the Chancellor. . .And anything students do to show support or disapproval of the matter will have no effect on the Trustees decision. . .So kindly keep your T-shirts on; your letters-to-the-editor unwritten; and your opinions to bull sessions. . .It is our lowly opinion that the main purpose of the applicants anyhow in this instance is merely to try to bring about much-needed greater appropriations for North Carolina College. . . .We may be wrong, but we'll leave it to the Trustees.

One final plea to student resident voters and townspeople: The really big election is downtown today. . .Don't forget to vote FOR the municipal bond election today. . .Or you may not have sewage facilities later.

Write Away

Kan Speaks for Long

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 200 words. All contributions must contain signature, telephone number, and address of the author. (Names will be withheld upon request.) Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published

TO: My friends, associates and acquaintances on the Campus.

As you all know I have consistantly and perhaps stubbornly resisted in the past all connections with political parties and political aspirants. I have always voted for the ones I thought may do the best job. For the first time in my career here on the campus dating back to 1938, I am openly declaring myself in sympathy with a Presidential candidate in student politics. For the first time it has been necessary to express myself as the issue is so confused and mixed-up by the many candidates who have declared.

There is no doubt in my mind, that above all else the main requirement of a candidate for presidency of the student body is sincerety of purpose and belief. Of course qualification and interest in the welfare of the students are requisites that cannot be lightly considered.

There is only one man in my opinion that fills the bill as expressed above.

That man is Charlie Long.

My association with him in extra-curricular activities, social and personal friendship has convinced me of his ability to be the best student body president we as his fellow students can choose.

Whenever Charlie Long saw an opportunity to serve his colleagues in college without impairing or compromising a principle which would be detrimental to the student body as a whole, he has always gone out and fought for us. He reorganized the Di Senate from its post-war sickness. He was a direct influence in the re-vitalization of the legislature. Charlie Long also helped to set up the present CCUN which has rendered good service to the University as a whole here in our community and thru-out the state. He helped get more space for the students on the 50 yard line.

In all the services which he has rendered us he has been unassuming and has received very little credit. Charlie Long can do more if we elect him to office as our student body president.

Please consider seriously what I have said and thank you for your attention.

See you at the polls to vote for Charlie Long.

Lincoln Kan

The Air of Death

April 2, 1948
Editor:

The Carolina Magazine has been murdered an I now lies silent in the gathering dust, victim of treachery. Its silence thunders condemnation on those whose infamous conspiracy plotted its untimely end.

The time to strike is when the victim reels under the toxin of disease or is engaged in bloody combat. That is the time when weaklings become bold, when the faint-hearted rise up and roar like lions; that is the time when cowards rule. And so, the Carolina Mag, with its back against the wall, sank to its knees and breathed the air of death with an ugly dagger protruding from its back.

The scorners gathered . . . in mockery. Its defenders . . . long since fled. Forgotten was its noble birth, its brilliant coition. Forgotten was its honest service, its impeccable trait. Suddenly it had grown old. Its friends had been scattered to the winds of the time to the corners of the earth, and it faced the unsympathetic critic of strangers alone. Having survived the illness of war, it stood pale and weary on shaky feet, waiting for strength to return to its veins.

The villains, strangers to the meaning of gratitude. With more boldness than brains, and without a proper sense of respect for greatness, unsheathed the hidden dagger. Not once did they offer to assist the struggling Mag to its feet. Instead, they made mockery of its plight and hurled insults at its protectors. Their exalted egos fed hungrily at the trough of shame with which they humbled it. And then, with treachery that recalls Italy's betrayal of France in 1940, they thrust the knife between its ribs and gloated over their ignominious deed. And well might it have said, "forgive them, they know not what they do".

The Carolina Mag is dead. It has left a vacum at Carolina that nothing else can fill. Though it had many faults in practice, it nevertheless fulfilled a definite function limited only by the ideal of perfection and the willingness of students to give a part of themselves to it. It can, and MUST be, re-born. Only the student can breathe new life into it.

Russell G. Baldwin

Condemnation

Editor:

Last Tuesday night there was a meeting against Universal Military Training in Gerrard Hall that deserves comment.

First, while I do not feel that our cherished tradition of free speech at Carolina was violated (in that all persons who wished to attend did so freely and said what they would without fear) I do feel that a large part of the audience was ungentlemanly and boisterous and might be reminded that too much noise makes free speech impossible.

A second and equally important point needs emphasis. The issue of Universal Military Training is one on which loyal Americans hold honest differences of opinion. Too evident from the placards at the meeting was the suggestion that only a Communist could oppose Universal Military Training. Such a false approach to such an important issue is doubly to be condemned.

Winston Broadfoot

CORRECTION

According to a letter to the Daily Tar Heel from Eric Canfield, Campus party candidate for the Student Legislature, Canfield is not president of Miller dormitory.

He was incorectly named as the holder of that position in a story appearing in Sunday's DTH

Majority Rules?

Taking Pot Shots At Decoys

By Walt Arnold

There's been a lot of gasping that indicates Carolina's notorious liberals object to the democratic action which slipped in on their little anti-UMT meeting last Tuesday. What they're really gasping for is the air that was knocked out of their balloon by the, to them, horrifying specter of the overwhelming number of average (normal) Carolina students finally coming around to oppose the use of our University as a front to be used by minor groups for lending authority to their "progressive" programs.

If some of us roughed them up a bit it was because we had run into this bunch before, treated them courteously despite their attempted distraction of our representatives, beat them in a vote, and then awoke next morning to find they had pulled a double-cross and misrepresented the whole affair in every newspaper they could reach.

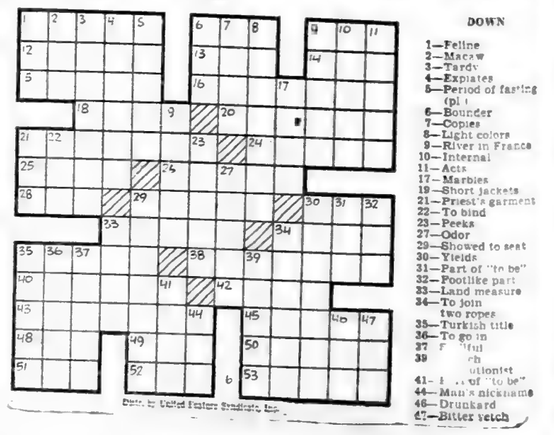
It was on a Negro issue to be discussed in Memorial auditorium. Some of us went, suspecting the pseudo-liberals would try passing resolutions for the sake of their effect on newspaper readers. At the meeting, which the libs. still thought they controlled, sure enough, resolutions were called for. Opposing students, faculty, and administration tried to convince the assembly that such resolutions, represented as emanating from the student body of the University, were unethical unless adequate notice had been given the students that a meeting would be held, place and time, resolutions thus and so would be voted upon. Still, the liberals would have none of that, so, hoping our strength beat theirs, we voted on the question of resolutions. The vote was against issuance of resolutions. Seconds later, those funny-looking people petulantly left the building. The meeting was adjourned and we went home.

What the liberals did was typical of them. After leaving Memorial they went to another building, set up their own private meeting, passed their pet resolutions and sent the resolutions,represented as being University student opinion, to the newspapers of the state.

That experience cured my ideas of fighting with something nicer.

The other night we caught up with them—approximately the same group. This time we surrounded the place. It must have looked as though they would have to sit this one out. They basked under the pleasant illusion that they were the victims of mob action. It gave them an excuse for failure. It gave the exhileration of imagined martyrdom. For the past week, the liberals have nursed their frustrations. They have flooded DTH with letters from characters in the form of self-appointed psychologists. The "psychologists" who labeled that meeting "mob action" need more field trips. The fuss they are making is calculated to discourage the average student from disturbing future projects "of the University of North Carolina." They sense that maybe their show is over. Looking at it from the standpoint of that group's type of threatened liberalism, too many people (who are not interested in extremist intreagues) are beginning to listen to what our social philoso-

(See DECOY, page 4)



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Intrigue
6—Peaked hat
9—Cover
12—Rugged crest
13—Wallaba
14—A number
15—Claw
16—To predetermine
18—Poker bet
20—Gazed
21—Bears witness to
24—Jugs
25—Tells falsehood
26—Semi-precious stones
28—Place to sleep
29—Single things
30—Prison sentence (slang)
33—Item of value
34—Dry
35—Fruit
38—Tastes
40—Man's name
42—To breathe noisily
43—Guided
45—To wash lightly
48—Marching cry
49—Period of time
50—Thespian
51—Skill
52—Hideout
53—Tries

DOWN

1—Feline
2—Macaw
3—Tardy
4—Expiates
5—Period of fasting (pl.)
6—Bounder
7—Copies
8—Light colors
9—River in France
10—Internal
11—Acts
17—Marbles
19—Short jackets
21—Priest's garment
22—To bind
23—Peeks
27—Odor
29—Showed to seat
30—Yields
31—Part of "to be"
32—Footlike part
33—Land measure
34—To join two ropes
35—Turkish title
36—To go in
37—F[illegible]ful
39—[illegible]ch [illegible]ationist
41—[illegible] of "to be"
44—Man's nickname
46—Drunkard
47—Bitter vetch

Bobbing in Sports

—with—

Bob Goldwater

Things to Come

IF EARLY PERFORMANCES are a good indication of things to come, Carolina could easily manage to be among the leaders — if not at the very top — in Southern conference competition in all four spring sports. For at the end of the first complete week of the spring quarter, Tar Heel teams have compiled the record of nine wins, one loss, one tie, and decent showings in two preliminary track outings.

Most of the early interest has focused on Coach John Kenfield's tennis outfit, undefeated in five skirmishes against major opposition. Except for the one track meet here last Saturday, the netters are the lone Tar Heel crew to appear locally, and good-sized crowds have turned out to cheer them on. They haven't been disappointed!

Yesterday's triumph over Yale, incidentally, was the second over that team and the fourth Carolina win over an Ivy league school. 'Tis rumored that should the Tar Heels down the Bulldogs again tomorrow and then defeat Penn while on the Northern swing, they will put in a claim to the Ivy loop tennis crown, especially if W and M successfully defends its SC laurels. After all, if garland crowns were good enough for Olympic winners, an Ivy title ought to do for Carolina.

As for the SC tennis picture, the favored role still belongs to W and M, currently unbeaten in 40-some duels. And though the Carolina netters will be the underdogs come May 1, the chances of victory are definitely high.

Golfers Going Great

ALSO RATING HIGH on the Tar Heel sports scene are Chuck Erickson's golfing aggregation. Sporting a perfect 3-0 slate, the linksmen are the lone Blue and White team to have engaged a conference opponent. Davidson visited the Hope Valley layout last Friday and provided Carolina with its initial SC victory of the current spring session.

Big match for the fair-headed lads of the fairways comes up this weekend—Friday to be exact—when Michigan comes to town. The Midwesterners are highly-rated and gain a further advantage by the fact that Harvie Ward will be down in Augusta performing in the Masters.

But when it comes to the conference scene, Carolina regains the role of favorite, with Duke close behind. The Blue Devils were the only golfers to down the Tar Heels in dual-meet competition in 1947 and they will be tough again this year.

Baseball Nomads

THEY HAVEN'T PLAYED any of their games here on Emerson field yet, but the sports fans hereabouts have shown a good bit of interest in the baseballers, who have a 2-1-1 record. In true nomadic style, Coach John Hearn's charges have been keeping on the move, camping their home grounds in Lynchburg, Va., Burlington, twice, and Southern Pines. They continue to move this week, making three stops in the sandhills of South Carolina. Local baseball rooters will get their look at the Tar Heels next week when they drop back this way for another home game—at least "home" according to the schedule.

We would rather withhold our own judgment on the Tar Heel nine until we see them in action next week. And that should be a major treat, since the opposition will be furnished by Wake Forest, the Big Four cellar-dwellers last season but certainly a power this year. The pitching duel between DiLorenzo and Nicholas rates as something to look forward to.

As for the track outlook, it wasn't too bright at the Carolina Relays last weekend, but considering that it was the first outing for most of the team members, the picture should improve. The Tar Heels will definitely be a threat in the conference championships, though Maryland is likely to usurp the throne that Carolina perenially possesses. Time will tell.

Politics in Sports

WITH ELECTIONS FIGURING so largely in the campus news just about now, it's only natural that politics invade the field of sports along with everything else. Almost a dozen Tar Heel athletes are seeking office in today's voting, and three are among the candidates for top campus positions. Mike Rubish is running for president of the student body, Jim Godwin is a vice-presidential aspirant, and Norm Sper is after the post of head cheerleader.

Four members of Carolina's sports family are seeking strictly athletic positions in the CAA, the nominees being Vic Seixas, Len Szafaryn, Vinnie DiLorenzo, and Bill Pritchard. Sam Magill is a Student Council candidate, and Basil Sherrill is in the legislature balloting. All of these mentioned are lettermen, but the junior varsity players are also represented by Ed Washington and Marv Nathan, both seeking legislative assignments.

Even the DTH sports staff figures in the election balloting, three of the scribes running for office. Billy Carmichael is hoping to repeat in his Publications Board position, Dick Jenrette is on the sophomore class slate, and Larry Fox is looking for legislature votes.

LET'S ALL VISIT the polls today before we go out to watch the Carolina-Yale tennis match.

"Okay, I'll bet you all of Argentina and half of Australia and I'll raise you my last pack of Dentyne Chewing Gum."

"It's no bet, Pal—you gotta have a sure thing to risk your last pack of swell-tasting Dentyne Chewing Gum! For my money, Dentyne wins on flavor and on the way it helps keep teeth white."

Dentyne Gum—Made Only By Adams

Tar Heel Netmen Trim Yale, 6-3, For Fifth Straight Win

Taylor and Morris Continue Undefeated; Tar Heels Play Eli Again This Afternoon

By Dick Jenrette

Carolina's high-powered netters swept to their fifth straight victory of the season yesterday afternoon by taking a 6-3 win over touring Yale University.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Tar Heels will meet Yale for the third time this year. Before yesterday's win, Carolina had defeated the Eli, 8-1 on Saturday.

The news of the match was not all pleasing to Coach John Kenfield, for Bert Ingram dislocated his shoulder in a match with Yale's Kelly Clark and probably will be out for the rest of the season. Ingram sustained his injury in the third set of his match. At that time he was trailing 5-4, after gaining an even break in the first two sets. Clark was awarded the match.

Carolina's team captain, Vic Seixas, was in excellent form in his match today. Seixas disposed of Carl Badger, 6-1 and 6-0, to record his fourth win of the campaign against one setback.

Clark Taylor, Carolina's number two netter, continued along his undefeated trail, scoring a rather easy 6-1, 6-3 over John Moses. Taylor now has a string of five straight triumphs.

Yale's top-ranking doubles team, composed of Badger and Moses, turned in a complete reversal of form over their play in the singles division by upsetting Seixas and Taylor, 3-6, 6-3, and 6-3. The Carolina duo started off as though they would duplicate their wins in singles, but their play became erratic after the first set, enabling Yale to win.

Yale's victory in the first doubles match cut Carolina's lead to 4-3 with two more matches left to play. But Heath Alexander and Don Skakle turned back Yale's Hunter and Clark in straight sets, 6-1, 6-4; and Duke Wilder and Stan Gruner delivered a 6-0, 7-5 win over Baldwin and Bayne to make Carolina's win a bit more impressive.

Other singles matches during the afternoon saw Ray Morris mark up his fifth straight win without a loss at the expense of Dick Hunt in the number three match. Charlie Rice, however, went down to his first defeat, Lint Baldwin stopping him. Baldwin won the first set, 6-1, but Rice rallied for a 6-0 decision before falling, 6-3, in the third set.

Sam Daniels racked up a 6-0, 6-2 decision of Jim DelCorral to apply a successful conclusion to the singles play for the day.

The summary:

Singles—Seixas (C) defeated Badger, 6-1, 6-0. Taylor (C) defeated Moses, 6-1, 6-3. Morris (C) defeated Hunt, 6-3, 6-0. Baldwin (Y) defeated Rice, 6-1, 0-6, 6-3. Clark (Y) defeated Ingram by default with the score at 2-6, 6-3, 5-4. Daniels (C) defeated del Corral, 6-0, 6-2.

Doubles—Moses-Badger (Y) defeated Seixas-Taylor, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3. Alexander-Skakle (C) defeated Kent-Clark, 6-1, 6-4. Wilder-Gruner (C) defeated Baldwin-Bayne, 6-0, 7-5.

Ward Departs For Masters' Tourney Today

Harvie Ward, Carolina's No. 1 varsity golfer, will leave today for Augusta, Ga., to compete for America's most coveted golf award — the Masters' links championship.

The Masters' tourney, a 72-hole affair which begins Thursday and continues through Sunday, will draw the world's 64 best golfers, all obtained on an invitational basis.

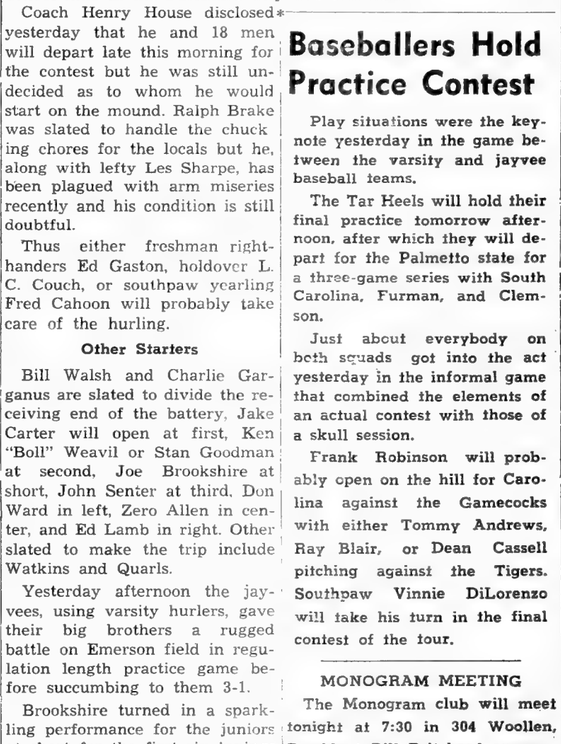
The affair will be played over the 6800-yard Augusta national course which is considered one of the nation's most beautiful links layouts and above all, one of the hardest 18-hole grinds in the game today.

Ward gained the right to play in the big event by advancing to the quarter-finals of the National Amateur last summer at Pebble Beach, California. He will be one of the select group of ten simonpures who will play in the big competition.

The Tar Heel star will drive down to Augusta today and arrive in time to get in a day's practice round tomorrow before play begins on Thursday. Many of the other contestants have been testing out the Augusta course for the past several days and weeks, showing just how seriously the golf boys are taking the tournament.

Ward, according to his coach, Chuck Erickson, should be in near top form for the four-day session. The Tarboro Terror has been playing sub-par golf for the Tar Heels in the majority of the matches thus far this season, his best effort being a 67 he carded at Hope Valley last week in the driving rain.

Holin' Harvie got a taste of what to expect from the big boys in the Greensboro Open tourney played several weeks ago. Ward finished that 72-hole test in a fourth place tie among the amateurs.



Soccer Aspirants Report for Drills

Thirty-five soccer candidates reported to Coach Marvin Allen yesterday afternoon for the start of Spring practice.

Included in the turnout were seven lettermen from the 1947 team. Frank Nelson, Gus Johnston, Mac Hagaman, Tom Williams, Red McCalman, Bill Moore, and Joe Bach made up the returning group that also contained Herb Faught, a non-letterman returnee. Several more monogram-winners are expected to report later this week.

This week's sessions will be taken up with work on fundamentals, Allen indicated. Intrasquad scrimmages will be held starting next week.

The off-season drills will continue for six weeks.

Jayvees Play Bisons In High Point Today

Carolina's undefeated jayvee baseballers, currently riding on the crest of a one game winning streak, will be out to domesticate High Point's rampaging Bisons—tabbed in pre-season prognostications as the class of state schoolboy diamonds—when they face the high school nine in the Furniture City this afternoon.

Coach Henry House disclosed yesterday that he and 18 men will depart late this morning for the contest but he was still undecided as to whom he would start on the mound. Ralph Brake was slated to handle the chucking chores for the locals but he, along with lefty Les Sharpe, has been plagued with arm miseries recently and his condition is still doubtful.

Thus either freshman righthanders Ed Gaston, holdover L. C. Couch, or southpaw yearling Fred Cahoon will probably take care of the hurling.

Other Starters

Bill Walsh and Charlie Garganus are slated to divide the receiving end of the battery, Jake Carter will open at first, Ken "Boll" Weavil or Stan Goodman at second, Joe Brookshire at short, John Senter at third, Don Ward in left, Zero Allen in center, and Ed Lamb in right. Other slated to make the trip include Watkins and Quarls.

Yesterday afternoon the jayvees, using varsity hurlers, gave their big brothers a rugged battle on Emerson field in regulation length practice game before succumbing to them 3-1.

Brookshire turned in a sparkling performance for the juniors at short for the first six innings before switching over to the varsity to finish the game. He also banged out a sharp single. Senter was another freshman who turned in an impressive performance for the Housemen.

The Raleigh newcomer took care of everything that came his way at the hot corner and, in his first trip to the plate, banged one of Frank Robinson's fast balls down the left field line for a double.

Baseballers Hold Practice Contest

Play situations were the keynote yesterday in the game between the varsity and jayvee baseball teams.

The Tar Heels will hold their final practice tomorrow afternoon, after which they will depart for the Palmetto state for a three-game series with South Carolina, Furman, and Clemson.

Just about everybody on both squads got into the act yesterday in the informal game that combined the elements of an actual contest with those of a skull session.

Frank Robinson will probably open on the hill for Carolina against the Gamecocks with either Tommy Andrews, Ray Blair, or Dean Cassell pitching against the Tigers. Southpaw Vinnie DiLorenzo will take his turn in the final contest of the tour.

MONOGRAM MEETING

The Monogram club will meet tonight at 7:30 in 304 Woollen, President Bill Pritchard announced yesterday. Plans for the Blue-White football game next month will be discussed.

High-Scoring Slugfests Highlight Play In Opening Contests of Mural Softball

By Bill Gallagher

Base hits rained all over the diamonds yesterday as the first day of the intramural softball play opened with base runners having a field day.

Only two low-hit pitching performances were turned in during the afternoon.

Sam Mordecai pitched a great game for the Zeta No. 2 team by setting the Chi Phi No. 1 squad down with only one hit while his teammates racked up a 20-1 victory. Taylor Thorne, erstwhile cage star ,struck out 13 batters in pitching Delt Sig No. 1 to a 8-0 win over Phi Gam No. 1

Two Slugfests

None of the other games in any way resembled a real close fight. The best display of hitting power came on field No. 8 where 66 runs were scored in two slugfests.

In the first ATO No. 2 taking advantage of an 11-run rally in the sixth, managed to bang out a decision over ZBT, 24-10. It took almost two hours, but the second contest wasn't much of an improvement as the DKE No. 2 club outlasted the PiKA No. 1 team, 19-13.

Sig Chi romped to two wins on the first field. They edged KA No. 1 by 9-8 in the opener and then walked away with the second game between the second teams of the same two fraternities, this time by 20-3.

High-Scoring Thriller

One of the real thrillers of the afternoon was the tight battle that was finally won by Sig Nu No. 2 over Zeta No. 1 by a 15-14 score.

Chi Phi No. 2 and DKE No. 1 both won easily by scoring all their runs in the first four innings to win by 14-0 and 17-2 respectively.

Mural Results

9	Sigma Chi 1	KA 1	8
20	Sigma Chi 2	KA 2	3
12	Phi Kap 1	Kap Psi	5
20	Zeta 2	Chi Phi 1	1
15	Sigma Nu 2	Zeta 1	14
8	Lamb Chi 1	Phi Kap 2	0
8	Delt Sig 1	Phi Gam 1	0
13	Phi Gam 2	TEP 1	4
4	Chi Psi 2	Kap Sig 1	9
17	DKE 1	Delt Sig 2	2
20	Chi Psi 1	TEP 2	5
27	Sig Ep	Chi Psi 2	11
11	Phi Gam 3	ATO 1	6
24	ATO 2	ZBT	10
19	DKE 2	PiKA 1	13
13	SAE 1	Beta 1	9
8	Kap Sig 2	Pi Kap Phi	7

Lamb Chi forfeit over Phi Delt 3

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

SOFTBALL

4:00—Field 1: SAE 2 vs. Pi Lamb; field 2: Graham 1 vs. Club H; 2-3; field 3: Old West vs. Whitehead; field 4: Stanley Steamers vs. Mangum 2; field 5: Miller vs. Bombers; field 6: Everett vs. Battlers; field 7: Graham 2 vs. Steele; field 8: Lewis 1 vs. Nash; field 9: Beta 2 vs. Phi Delt 2.

5:00—Field 1: PiKA 2 vs. Phi Delt 1; field 2: St. A vs. AEPi; field 3: Misfits vs. Wesley Rockets; field 4: Soler Five vs. Oakwood Drive; field 5: Lewis 2 vs. Aycock; field 6: Emerson vs. Mangum 1; field 7: Geology Dept. vs. Ruffin, field 8: Law School vs. Alexander 1; field 9: Stacy vs. Med School.

RIFLE FIRING

4:00—Delta Sig vs. Sigma Chi.

7:30—Zeta Psi vs. TEP.

Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra
DIMITRI MITROPOULAS, Conductor
PERCY GRAINGER, Pianist
PAGE AUDITORIUM, DUKE UNIVERSITY
Thursday, April 15th, at 8:15 P.M.
Tickets—$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, and $4.00 (inc. tax)
Mr. Grainger will play the Grieg Concerto
On Sale Room 201 Men's Union
Phone Durham 112 Ext. 270; or Write
J. Foster Barnes, Duke University, Durham, N. C.
For Reservations

U P M F C
UNIVERSITY PARTY MEANS FINER CANDIDATES

Maria, trapped by the Lieutenant for her aid to the hunted fugitive

JOHN FORD and MERIAN C. COOPER present ARGOSY PICTURES'
THE FUGITIVE
HUNTED LIKE AN ANIMAL BECAUSE HE DARED BELIEVE IN GOD co-starring
HENRY FONDA
DOLORES DEL RIO
PEDRO ARMENDARIZ
with J. CARROL NAISH • LEO CARRILLO • WARD BOND
ROBERT ARMSTRONG • JOHN QUALEN
Screen Play by DUDLEY NICHOLS
Directed by JOHN FORD
Released by RKO Radio Pictures
Here is a story that transcends the boundaries of any country; of time; of space. It could happen anywhere, and has happened everywhere. Since the beginning of recorded time, nations have risen or fallen because of man's struggle to worship God in his own way. This is such a story; a milestone in man's tireless march toward grace.
Today
CAROLINA

Tip for YOUR CAREER
A job? Get on the "preferred list" with Gibbs secretarial training. Last year 9,611 discriminating employers asked for Gibbs secretaries. Full information from College Course Dean.
KATHARINE GIBBS
NEW YORK 17 . . . 230 Park Ave.
BOSTON 16 . . . 90 Marlborough St.
CHICAGO 11 . . . 51 East Superior St.
PROVIDENCE 6 . . . 155 Angell St.

Corded Seersucke
For your Spring and Summer Wardrobe
SUITS 18.95
TROUSERS 6.75
—Also—
The Corded Seersucker Sport Coat with removable shoulder padding
14.50
—at—
Jack Lipman's

RECORDS
NEW NELLIE LUTCHER RECORD—
• "He Sends Me"
• "Come and Get It, Honey"
Ab's Intimate Bookshop

Program Adopted At UWF Meeting

General planning, and in particular a decision to adopt several programs aimed at publicising the world federation idea here, occupied members of the campus chapter of the United World Federalists at their meeting Thursday evening.

The group announced the creation of a summer world government institute to be held from August 23 to August 28. At that time, various aspects of world federal government will be considered and developed in a series of seminars.

Sometime this spring, the club will sponsor a campus world federal government day and later a week will be dedicated to promotion of the doctrine.

Only the engagement of a speaker is holding up the final completion of plans for the day. During the meeting a number of suitable names were discussed and arrangements were made to contact several of those men.

-Cards-

(Continued from page 1)

basis as before.

As students enter the stadium they will fill up the special section in order, beginning with the middle row and working up. When the upper section is filled, the students will fill in the row below the middle. This will be done in order to enable the rows to have no more or no less than 52 each.

AT A CEREMONY in Washington, William Randolph Hearst, Jr. (left) accepts from Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan the Distinguished Public Service Certificate awarded his father, publisher William Randolph Hearst, Sr. The Navy's highest award to civilians was given to the publisher for his outstanding contribution to the popular understanding of Navy programs and policies. (International Soundphoto)

-Corley-

(Continued from page 1)

includes the statement, "Believing that in an open debate the true picture before us would be even more garbled since there is a tendency in a heated discussion for both factions to take the extreme views of their respective sides, the members of the pro-conscription movement decline to accept the challenge."

"However," Corley's statement continues, "We cordially invite the entire campus to attend our discussion, the time, place and date to be announced as soon as the replies from all of our speakers have been received."

-Applications-

(Continued from page 1)

to take bar examinations in other states. Dean Wettach confirmed the fact that the N. C. C. law school is not accredited by the American Bar association and in addition stated that a report has been filed with the school by examiners of the accrediting group. Findings of this report have not been made public.

President Graham was in Raleigh and Winston-Salem yesterday and so was not available for a statement. Concerning the Medical school application Dean Berryhill merely acknowledged the fact that it has been made.

Students to Form Eisenhower Group

A Students-for-Eisenhower organization will be formed at a meeting this afternoon at 4:30 in Roland Parker Lounge 1 and 2 of Graham Memorial. The meeting will be chaired by Tom Eller, president of the student body and member of the executive committee of the local Young Democrats club.

Emphasizing the need for positive and forward-looking leadership in the national administration at this time, Eller said today, "The near comes nominating time, the more apparent becomes the plight of the voters of the United States for their presidential choice. General Eisenhower has said that he cannot accept a nomination in the absence of some 'overriding' reason. It becomes the duty of the Democratic party, in recognizing our country's need, to supply that overriding reason. If we at Carolina accept our duty with energy and conviction, the party may be influenced. If the Democratic party is influenced, an American like Eisenhower will not decline.

Campus Calendar

8:00 a. m.—Polls open for elections.

4:00 p. m.—Students for Stassen, Horace Williams lounge.

4:30 p. m.—Eisenhower for President. Roland Parker lounge No. 1.

4:30 p. m.—Daily Tar Heel business and advertising staffs, business office.

5:00 p. m.—Pan-Hellenic council, Grail room.

7:00 p. m.—Sigma Kappa Epsilon, Grail room.

7:30 p. m.—Dr. Frank W. Hanft, Manning hall.

7:30 p. m.—Americans Veterans' committee, Presbyterian recreation building.

8:00 p. m.—Delta Tau Delta, Grail room.

9:00 p. m.—Alpha Epsilon Delta, Grail room.

BASEBALL EXHIBITIONS

St. Louis (N) 9	Philadelphia (A) 6
New York (A) 13	Newark (I) 4
Louisville (AA) 6	Boston (N) 5
Washington 5	Minneapolis (AA) 3
Brooklyn 4	Dallas (Tex.) 0

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

For BUTTER or for WURST — it's HARRY'S

-Decoy-

(Continued from page 2)

phers say about America apparently being somewhere "on the road to Rome." People are remembering that what lost the glory of Rome was a tolerance of extremes.

Last Tuesday night the anti-UMTies were not speaking for us, but for national and international consumption. They wanted to use the University again.

The fact that we thwarted them, even if our tactics resembled those of a younger America (before America had been tricked into liberally doubting herself)—the fact that we thwarted the attempt to forge our names to an underhanded minority strategum, is the first real example of democratic action this campus has seen in a long time.

I say to Corley and his boys, "Let's stay in there fighting, and give'em hell from now on."

PARLIAMENTARY PRACTICE

Pete Gerns, parliamentarian of legislature, has announced that there will be a session on parliamentary practic given at 3 p. m. on Thursday in Phi Hall, 4th floor, New East. All legislators who have requested that this session be held are asked to meet there for one hour of instruction.

-Hodson-

(Continued from page 1)

who will not abandon his principles, ideals and promises, regardless of opposition . . . who has shown in the past that he stands under all circumstances for decent and equal representation, and for the rights of students . . .

"That man is Charlie Long."

Ignoring any reaction the audience showed to his remarks, Hodson surged ahead. His next words, directed in Long's behalf, concluded with, "Charlie has fought for the right of every student to retain his privilege of appefforts to take this privilege away . . . For these reasons I am withdrawing from the race and giving Charlie Long my wholehearted endorsement. For the sake of better student government, I urge you all to support the best candidate."

Last night after the meeting Hodson asked that thanks be expressed toward the students who have worked for him for today's balloting. "I'd like to ask all those people to support Charlie Long as they have supported me," he stated.

There will still be five names on the presidential ballot this morning, but five men will be behind those names: four-way presidential race Dedmond, Long, Manning, Rubish in the starting po it will be missing indepen Charlie Hodson.

Bull's Head Bookshop

New French Novels by outstanding authors including Sartre, Camus, and Vercel.

Browse — Rent — Buy

PRESCRIPTIONS

Filled Promptly

ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY

—at—

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

TODAY

VILLAGE

University Florist

"For the Best in Flowers"

Pick Theatre Bldg.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

Telephone 9816

TWO BLOCKS WEST OF CITY HALL

You'll Find A Solution To All Laundry Problems

HELPY-SELFY

AUTOMATIC LAUNDRY

Bendix Machines

W. Rosemary St.

CLOSING OUT

Collapsible

PLAY PENS

For Indoor and Outdoor Use

REDUCED FROM

$13.95 to $5.00

THE BABY SHOP

(Under Ledbetter-Pickard)

FURNITURE . . .

• Upholstered • Refinished
• Repaired • Made to Order

Charles Valentine's Cabinet Shop

PHONE 9367 — PITTSBORO RD

SUMMER FORMAL

CLOTHES

AND

ACCESSORIES

For

The May Frolics

All sizes in stock now

Don't wait until the last minute—

Get Yours NOW at

Jack Lipman's

CLASSIFIED

ANNOUNCEMENT 1

STUDENTS: WE WANT TO KEEP our jobs. Please vote for Ed Joyner. Signed: Bob Goldwater and Bill Carmichael III. (1-2000-1)

FOR RENT 6A

ROOM WITH PRIVATE BATH FOR two students who plan to attend both summer sessions. Vacant starting April 5. Phone 8566. (1-108-1)

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

28 FOOT LA SALLE HOUSE TRAILER in good condition. Ideal location. Inquire at No. 26 University Trailer Court. (1-1891-1)

STEARMAN N2S5. FABRIC 1946. LYcoming engine 296 S. O. H. Hangered University Airport. Fine sports plane. Excellent condition. Reasonably priced at $750.000. Walt Arnold, 218 Stacy. (1-1898-1)

FIVE ROOM HOUSE ON JUSTICE Street. Floor furnace, gas stove and automatic hot water heater. Large lot; immediate occupancy. John Foushee, Real Estate. (1-ch1x1-1)

24 FOOT GLIDER HOUSE TRAILER. Immediate occupancy. Lot 76 University Married Couples Trailer Court. (1-106-1)

FURNITURE, IDEAL FOR OFFICE OR porch. One red leatherette couch with chrome legs and matching chair. One green leatherette chair (new—value $203.00) Will sell separately or together. Ken Willis, 245 Jackson Circle, Victory Village. (1-1900-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1947 FORD CONVERTIBLE. LOW milage, radio, heater. See Joe Clawson at Phi Kappa Sigma house. (1-1893-1)

1940 CHEVROLET 4 DOOR SEDAN—Radio and heater. Motor recently overhauled. Excellent condition throughout. Chet zum Brummen, 4 Vance. (1-109-1)

HELP WANTED 8

PART TIME HELP. MUST BE AVAILable from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. See Whid Powell, Colonial House. (ch 1x1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

LOST 12

WILL THE PERSON WHO FOUND the Ronson ligher initialed W. M. S. in Carolina Theater March 14th please return it? Value is only sentimental. Marshall Smith F-2401. (1-110-1)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 422 W. Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)

24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGBURN Furniture Co., Phone 5841. (ch 1x1)

ALL MAKES OF LAWN MOWERS repaired, machine sharpened. Axes, hatchets, scythes also sharpened. Tripps Lawn Mower Repair Shop or see John Tripp, Carrboro Shoe Shop. (ch 1x1)

LET'S SWAP 46

WILL SWAP OVERSTUFFED CHAIR and platform rocker (excellent condition) for studio counch. Drop a card to P. O. Box 1044 or come by Trailer 246, B-V-P. (1-107-1)

National BOHEMIAN BEER

Bottle 17c

Case 3.75

Also

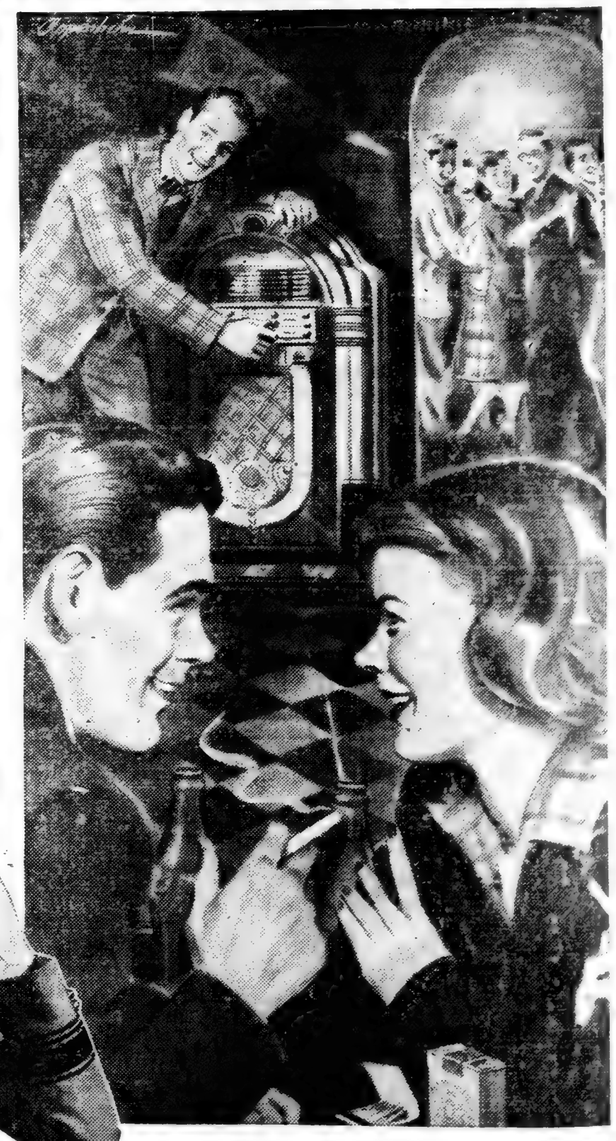
Potato Chips

Cigarettes

Sandwiches

THE SHACK

Just a whisper off Franklin Street



Let's Get together

PHILIP MORRIS is so much better to smoke!

PHILIP MORRIS offers the smoker an extra benefit found in no other cigarette. For PHILIP MORRIS is the ONE, the ONLY cigarette recognized by leading nose and throat specialists as definitely less irritating.

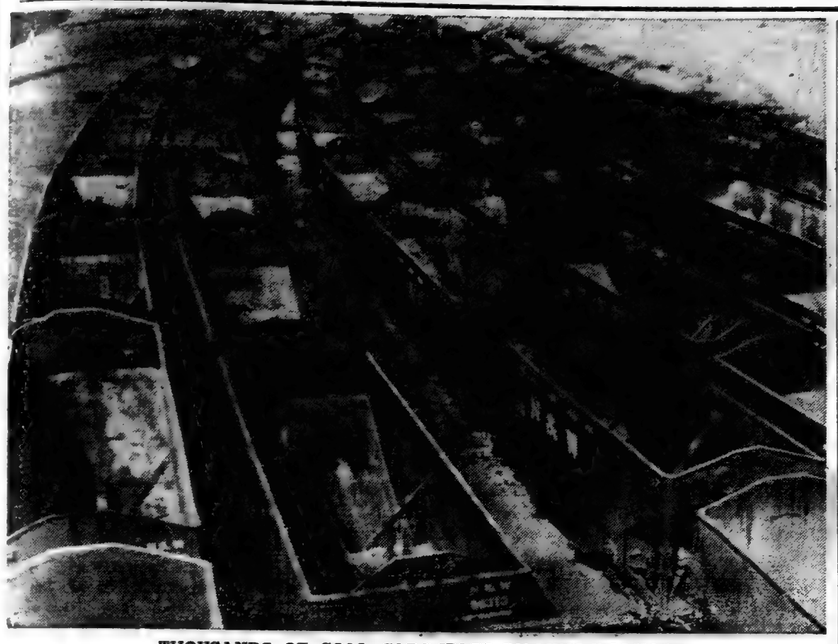
Remember: Less irritation means more smoking enjoyment for you.

Yes! If every smoker knew what PHILIP MORRIS smokers know, they'd all change to PHILIP MORRIS.

CALL FOR PHILIP MORRIS

TRY A PACK... TODAY

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-49



WEATHER
Cloudy and continued warm with scattered showers.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Editor's Farewell
Words on Morning After
No grass on Lawn

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 134

Dedmond Pulls Strong Lead As Trend Points To Run-Off With Long; Town Votes For Bonds

THOUSANDS OF COAL CARS IDLED BY MINE WALKOUT
STANDING EMPTY AND IDLE in the Columbus, Ohio, railroad yards are thousands of coal cars that normally are added to daily hauling their bituminous cargoes. Their numbers are added to daily as some 400,000 soft coal strikers stay away from their jobs following the recent walkout in dispute over pension benefits. (International)

Record 939 Votes Cast by Citizens On Bond Question

By R. W. Madry

Chapel Hill citizens gave the green light for a much-needed program of permanent improvements by an overwhelmingly favorable vote in today's $260,000 bond election.

A record total of 939 votes for a municipal election were cast. Of these 760 voted for all of the four items requested, and only 33 voted against all of them.

Ballot Breakdown

A breakdown of the four items showed that 876 voted for and 48 against enlargement and extension of the sanitary sewer system, including a new plant and improvement of the present plant, at an estimated cost of $425,000, of which the University will pay $225,000.

Favoring the street program, calling for construction of new streets and seal-coasting of others, were 818 against 86. Authorized for these items were $35,000.

A total of 798 voted for and 92 against bonds for equipment for street improvement sand maintenance and for garbage collection and disposal, calling for $23,-6000 in bonds, and 799 voted for and 93 against a $1,400 item for other equipment for the labor force and town manager's office.

To Get Underway

Town officials said the program would get underway as soon as possible. Bonds cannot be issued for 30 days. Construction of the new sewarge plant will require a year to 18 months. The street program should be carried out during the spring and summer.

Mayor R. W. Madry said the success of the election was due in large measure to the effective work of the Citizens Committee headed by Judge L. J. Phipps, the Community Council, headed by Mrs. U. T. Holmes, and the League of Women Voters, headed by Mrs. John Gillin.

Peace Conference Will Hear Concluding Address Tonight

Dr. Ervin P. Hexner, legal advisor to the International Monetary fund and formerly professor of political science at the University, will speak tonight at 8:30 in Gerrard hall on "Peace Through Economic Recovery."

A native of Prague, Czechoslavakia, Dr. Hexner will speak at the conclusion of an all day conference on peace sponsored by the North Carolina World Peace forum. He will also speak to interested students on the more technical aspects of the International Monetary system in Caldwell this afternoon.

High school and university students as well as adults from Orange county and throughout the state will participate in the conference which opens at 2:30 in Gerrard hall.

Dr. Harold A. Bosley, head of the Divinity school at Duke university, will deliver the opening address on "Is Peace Still Possible?" after which the group will divide for discussions on various phases of the problems of peace.

"Peace Through Organized Religion" will be the title of the discussion group lead by Dr. Beverly M. Boyd of the Federal Council of Churches and Dr. Alfonzo Elder, president of North Carolina college. Henry P. Brandeis of the University Law school will lead the discussion on "Peace Through World Government."

"Peace Through Education" will be lead by Dr. W. Carson

(See FORUM, page 4)

Strain, Koehnline Chosen To Attend U N Seminar Meet

Ed Strain and Bill Koehnline have been selected by the YMCA to represent the University at the United Nations seminar to be held in New York and Lake Success today, Friday and Saturday.

Strain, junior commerce student, and Koehnline, special student in English, will visit the Security council and special committees of the UN, and will attend a tea at the headquarters of the National Student YMCA.

The seminar is the first of two which are scheduled for this year under the auspices of the National Intercollegiate Christian council. This group is a representative council authorized by the national board of the YWCA, the national council of Student YM CA's and by Regional Student Christian movement affiliated with the World's Student Christian federation.

To enable students to gain an understanding of world problems that can only be obtained on the scene of action is the purpose of the seminars. This aim will be fostered in discussions of the history and development of the UN and by constructive appraisal of the UN.

Total Vote Unofficially Set at 3,238 While Tabulations Come in Slowly

By Chuck Hauser

Jess Dedmond was pushing a majority for the presidency of the student body last night, with Charlie Long crowding into second place and Mike Rubish and Dick Manning dropping behind at even intervals.

The ballot-counting, taking place on the second floor of Graham Memorial, was going extremely slowly for the major offices, with only Alderman and Ruffin polling places complete, a few returns in from Aycock, and Gerrard hall tabulations looking farther away every minute.

Unofficial sources released the total vote as 3, 238, with Gerrard hall accounting for 1,866, Alderman dormitory for 273, Aycock dorm for 733 and Ruffin dorm for 396.

Latest tabulations shortly after midnight gave Dedmond (CP-UP) 443 votes, Long (Ind.) 248, Mike Rubish (SP) 138 and Dick Manning (Ind.) 93. Dedmond and Long took first and second places, respectively, at each of the polls counted, incomplete returns being in from Ruffin, Aycock, and Alderman. Rubish led Manning in Ruffin and Aycock, but the independent candidate pulled away from him in Alderman.

In the vice-presidential race, Jim Godwin (CP-SP) was ahead of Johnny Clampitt (UP) by a vote of 170 to 121, with no town votes having been tabulated yet.

Bob Kirby (UP) was leading in the secretary-treasurer running with 362 over Gran Childress (SP) 320 and Earl Fitzgerald (CP) 195.

The race between Ed Joyner, the triply endorsed CP-SP-UP candidate, was closer than expected, with the total hitting 439 to 203. Joyner took 209 votes at the Ruffin polls while Melton pulled down 162. In Alderman Joyner triumphed with a trouncing 230 ballots to Melton's 41.

Gene Blake, nominee of the Student and Campus parties, was holding a lead over UP-backed Bill Duncan in the Ruffin balloting, with a vote of 176 to 156.

The editorship of Tarnation pointed to a run-off between Charlie Gibson (CP) and the Tom Wharton-Bob Smith UP combination, if the Ruffin balloting was at all indicative of the final results. Gibson held a strong majority in Alderman. The Ruffin count was 123 for Gibson, 157 for Wharton-Smith, 50 for Tom Kerr (SP) and 33 for Fred Burgess. In Alderman the tabulations said 103 for Gibson, 83 for Wharton-Smith, 59 for Kerr and 14 for Burgess. Totals: Gibson—226, Wharton-Smith—240. Kerr—109, Burgess—47.

With only Ruffin polls ballots being counted, Norm Sper on the Student party ticket led the head cheerleader race with 204 votes to Charlie Stancell's 137 on UP and Jerry Pence's 29 independent votes.

'Planning and Reconstruction In Europe' To Be Subject of Noted Author's Speech

The opportunity to hear the views of the most distinguished Europena critic of socialistic economic planning will be provided in Chapel Hill in mid-April.

Frederich A. Hayek, Tooke professor of Economic Science and Statistics in the University of London ,will deliver a public address on the subject "Planning and Reconstruction in Europe" on the evening of Wednesday, April 14 and hold seminar discussions for graduate students in economics and political science on the subsequent Thursday and Friday afternoons.

He will also be available for discussions with other groups throughout the four days, April 14-17, of his visit to the University.

Widely Known

Professor Hayek is most widely known in America as the author of "The Road to Serfdom", published in the United States by the University of Chicago Press in 1944, which became a best seller.

In reviewing this book for the "American Economic Review", Professor Aaron, director of the University of Chicago Law school, said, "Economists engaged in improving our understanding of the competitive system or in sponsoring arrangements which will assure its demise should be grateful to Professor Hayek for taking the time from his major preoccupation with economic analysis to explore the ultimate political implications of abandoning the competitive system. There is no economist writing in English more qualified to do this job.

In addition to his unique per-

(See HAYECK, page 4)

Training Program Planned For Coeds

Plans are now under way for a Coed officers training program which will be held on April 14, 15, 16, following the announcement of the results of the general campus elections held yesterday.

The program is designed to give practical training to all newly elected coed officers and to impress upon them their responsibility in being a leader.

The program will be made up of a series of mass meetings, formal discussion groups, and a banquet at the Carolina Inn, climaxing the three-day occasion.

Members of the committee planning the program include the following: Ruth Evans, Bootsie McWilliams, Barbara Cashion, Betty Huston, Betty Long, Joyce Jones, Ferne Huges, Betsy Ann Barbee, and Sadie Pearson.

Those officers and social chairmen to be trained will consist of newly elected officers of Chi Delta Phi, CICA, Glee Club, Pan-Hellenic council, Stray Greeks, Theta Psi Epsilon, Town Girls Association, Woman's Athletic Association, Coed Senate, Honor Council, Inter-Dorm Council, and YWCA.

Playmakers Plan French Romance Of 16th Century

Alexander Dumas' "Henri III et Sa Cour," the first great success of the French romantic theatre, will be presented in the original French for the first time in America at the Playmaker Theatre on April 22 by Le Cercle Francais.

The cast for this dramatization of life at the dissolute French court of the late 16th century is composed of members of Le Cercle Francais. The play is being rehearsed daily under the direction of Walter D. Creech of the Romance Language department.

The members of the cast include Genevieve Fauther, Jean Riden, Elizabeth Thomas, Lib Savage, Dr. Urban T. Holmes, Otis Beeson, Joe Hutchinson, Phillip Kennedy, Robert Walker, Robert Ellington, Ed Duke, Bill Baskin, Robert Hooper, and Wesley Collier.

This historical melodrama was first produced in 1829 and had a great influence in popularizing the romantic trend in the theatre.

Polgar Demonstrates Hypnotic Ability; Causes Students to Entertain Audience

By Sally Woodhull

Annie Ben Beale as a charming four year old was the star of the demonstration of hypnotism given Monday night by Dr. Franz Polgar in Memorial hall, under the sponsorship of the Student Entertainment committee.

Amid flying political propoganda, and the rhythmic clapping of a large and eager audience, Polgar began his show with a memory feat which, though not completely successful, seemed to go over well with the audience. He claimed that the trick was done through memory and concentration, and that one of the most difficult parts was forgetting it after each performance.

Finds His Check

For his demonstration of mental telepathy, Polgar found, by the use of mental directions from a student, his check for the performance, hidden in the shoe of coed Janet Crinkley. It was at the suggestion of members of the audience that the object hidden was the check, and if the stunt had proved unsuccessful, he was to have gone without pay for the show.

Polgar was unable to take the mental directions from his first collaborator, who was thinking in a foreign language, but on the second attempt he located the envelope containing the valuable paper fairly easily.

Answers questions

Preceeding his demonstration of hypnotism, Polgar opened the floor to questions from the audience. In answering a question he insisted that there is no mystery about hypnosis, that it is a scientific process used in medicine. He also stated that hypnosis could be used to influence a person to commit a crime, and that he believed it could be employed to re-

(See POLGAR, page 4)

European Eye Doctor Will Lecture Tonight

Dr. Frederick W. Stocker, eminent European specialist in eye diseases now practicing ophthalmology at McPherson's hospital in Durham, will present an illustrated lecture on the "Method and Significance of Transplanting Corneas" tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Medical building auditorium.

The lecture is being sponsored by the Beta Iota chapter of the professional medical fraternity, Alpha Kappa Kappa, and is under the auspices of the Eye Bank for Sight Restoration.

Spokesmen for the medical fraternity said the lecture is being given to show the means by which the nation-wide system of eye banks are being used to restore the sight of those blind who have corneal defects. The lecture is open to all interested.

Norris To Appear In Recital Tonight

Rufus Norris, baritone from Mooresville, will appear in recital in Hill hall tonight at 8:30. His program will include groups of Italian, German, French, and English songs and four operatic selections.

Norris, an undergraduate instructor in the music department, has studied voice with Paul Young since 1944 and has been well-received in recital several times in Chapel Hill.

In 1945 he played in a Gilbert and Sullivan Repertory company originating in New York, which toured major cities in the United States and Canada.

Later he joined the Romberg show "Desert Song" playing at the City Center in New York and then on the west coast.

Norris was heard as bass soloist in Bach's "Magnificat" in 1943. More recently he has appeared here in "Yeoman of the Guard," "The Gondoliers," "The Bartered Bride," and as soloist for Bach's "Christmas Oratorio." He has also done solo work with the Men's Glee club and the local Presbyterian church choir.

Union Of Europe To Be Discussed By Di Meeting

The creation of a Union of Europe will be the Dialectic Senate's first major issue this term for discussion this evening at 9 o'clock in the Di hall, third floor, New West.

Continental federation will be argued in a forum open to the public after an executive meeting of Senate members at 8 o'clock. All Senators are urged to be present for the first meeting to give their consideration to urgent business of the present quarter. John Zucker, newly inaugurated speaker, will preside over both the executive and the public sessions.

The Senate bill of the evening will contend that the Union of Europe would solve one of the worst focal points of current world disorder. This proposal would offer membership in a federation to all European countries, including occupied German zones, upon ratification of a constitution.

The union would be intended to establish a single economic unit in Europe without the present system of overlapping trade barriers. Its primary purpose would be maintaining peace in Europe.

This federation would be vested with powers to grant citizenship, levy taxes, maintain a defense force, and coin money. It would also regulate interstate and foreign trade.

Legislative authority would go to a senate composed of two representatives from each member nation and to an assembly with its membership based upon popualtion. This legislature would set up a court system to enforce its own laws and elect a Premier as chief executive of the union.

Knight Selected To College Forum

Edith Knight, junior coed from New Orleans, La., received an invitation yesterday from the College Board Editor of Mademoiselle to attend the Fifth Annual College Forum in New York City on April 24.

Edie is one of 50 outstanding students throughout the United States to be chosen for this honor. The topic for the forum will be the European Recovery Program, and the convention will be held in the Hotel Commodore.

A major in South American affairs, Edie attended Smith college for two years, and since coming to Carolina has been active in campus affairs here.

She is chairman of the CCUN, member of the Alpha Delta Pi, YWCA junior council, Di Senate, Finance committee of the World Peace forum to be held today, and representative to the Pan-Hellenic council for next year.

She is a member of the Student Legislature, chairman of its Coed affairs committee, and on the elections committee. Edie is also a member of the Canterbury club and on the Student Vestry of the Episcopal church.

Parliamentary Course Will Start Tomorrow

The Political Science department will inaugurate a non-credit course in Parliamentary Procedure on Thursday night at 7 o'clock in Room 105 Caldwell.

The course will be taught by Mr. R. H. Gleicher of the Political Science department and is designed to acquaint students with parliamentary practice and problems.

Students and townspeople are invited to attend the course which will be non-competitive in nature and is directed, primarily, toward acquainting students with enough knowledge of parliamentary procedure to enable them to conduct meetings efficiently.

Efforts will be made to terminate the lectures after approximately one hour of instruction at each meeting.

President Graham Reiterates House's Stand, Says Whole Thing Is Matter of State Policy

By Roland Giduz

President Frank Graham yesterday reiterated the stand of Chancellor R. B. House regarding the application of three Negroes to graduate schools here.

"This involves a matter of state policy to which the state will give the answer," he stated. "The University does not make state policy. The applications will go to the Trustees who are agents of the State Legislature."

Names of the three applicants as released by the administration are: Dewey M. Clayton, Timberlake, applicant for the School of Medicine; and Harold Thomas Epps, Asheville, and James R. Walker, Statesville, both of whom are applying for transfers from the North Carolina College Law school at which they are now students, to the University Law school.

Though many requests for information have been made by Negroes, it is believed these are the first formal applications to be filed since 1932. At that time Raymond Hocutt requested admission to the School of Pharmacy on the grounds he could not secure "separate but equal" training elsewhere in the state. Turned down in his plea for reasons of poor grades, Hocutt took the case to the Orange County Superior court where the verdict again went against him.

As far as could be discovered all three men are applying independently and with the backing of no special group. No stand on the matter is being taken by the students or administration in Chapel Hill, but authorities stated they have no facts to hide. They point to the fact that the State Constitution provides for two separate school systems, and thus they must abide by this until the State rules them to do otherwise.

Action the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees would take in the matter was not foreseen. They will merely receive the applications, at their meeting tentatively set May 17, and any further steps will be completely up to them or higher agents, it was explained.

Dean of the School of Medicine Walter Reece Berryhill said that around 800 applications have been received for the medical school in the class beginning next September and of these, 300 are state residents. The medical school faculty committee on admissions will accept no more than 56 of these. All applications are considered individually.

At present Clayton's medical school application stands incomplete. The only thing he has sent in is the filled-out application blank itself. A number of other papers are called for along with this. Directions on the blank state: "The School places the responsibility of completing an application for admission entirely upon the applicant. . ."

Durham Pilot Spots Wreckage Of Monoplane Near Hillsboro

By United Press

Hillsboro, April 6 — Wreckage of a Cessna monoplane in which two Durham pilots vanished March 23 was reported found from the air today 10 miles southwest of here.

The wreckage was reported found from the air today by a Durham pilot who was flying over Orange county.

Headed for Louisiana

Dan W. Bryan and Phillip Pearson disappeared March 23 after leaving on a flight for Monroe, La. They planned to refuel at Gainsville, Ga., but were not reported at either place.

Bryan, a veteran Durham pilot, was an air service operator. His companion, Pearson, was a GI aviation trainee.

Only Got 30 Miles

The wreckage of their plane was seen barely 30 miles from the start of their ill-fated flight. First reports say there is no sign of life at the wreckage, but ground searching parties haven't reached the site.

The Orange county coroner and sheriff's deputies have gone to the scene, 10 miles south of Hillsboro where the wreckage of a missing plane has been reported.

Army Air Rescue planes and Civil Air Patrol craft searched thousands of square miles along the supposed route of the flight without finding a trace of the missing silver Cessna.

Mills-Stones

Mills Sings His Swan Song To the DTH

By Barron Mills

It's not easy to write a kiss-off. You have to sit down and remember that when you entered the editorial office for the first time. You had big ideas about how much you would accomplish, the improvements which you wished to make and the ideals which you wished to keep foremost. When you see only one final issue before you, you regret that you have not been able to accomplish more than you did through the printed word. You wonder if it is you as an individual or if the next editor will find that there is need of ten hours more to each day and a private secretary to do your investigation and correspondence.

In last spring's election I was elected to edit a school publication to the best of my abilities. You placed me in charge of your editorial page to stimulate thought. I was made guardian of the editorial "we" and was entrusted to use it in the best interests of the student body. That, "we" have tried to do with consideration. Mark Twain once remarked that "nobody is entitled to refer to himself as 'we' except kings, editors and persons with tapeworms."

"We" has been used by this publication during the last year to mean the remarks of the editors, but not always. It has also been used by one man—without tapeworms. But I do not feel that "we" has been used as a misnomer. Each time that "we" was used is was because I felt the thoughts presented in the editorial, and if I had it to do over again I would follow the same policy. I do not mean this as a statement that I am infallable and do not make mistakes. I have made as many mistakes as anyone, but in each case when a decision had to be made (and it seemed that decisions had to be made every hour) "we" took the stand which "we" believed had the interest of the student body at heart. "We" has been criticized as sitting on the fence too often. I assure you that it was only because it was felt that more could be accomplished by that policy.

Your new editor will find many things on which he would like to voice an opinion. You will be going to him from time to time and each of you will believe that your little favor is the most important thing in the world. The new editor will be confronted (as I have been every day) with scores of requests and suggestions each day, but just remember that every visitor who comes into the editorial office believes his problem is the most important thing at the present time.

The new editor will thank you for coming. It will give him a greater insight into what is happening around the campus. It will provide him with an idea of what the student body is thinking. Yes, he will thank you for dropping in and chatting with him even though he must supervise the editorial page, instruct the assistant editor of the plans of the next edition and get material for the editorials which must be written for the next issue. He is never too busy to stop and hear what you have to say. When he gets that busy he should resign.

But just because the editor spends some of his time with you to hear your ideas, don't think that the next edition will be devoted to what you had to say. It won't; oftentimes there are things which the editor believes more important. Maybe what you said is terribly important, but the editor believed that it was not the opportune time to present it to the student body. More than likely you will see your very ideas spread on the page days or even weeks later—at a time when the editor believed more opportune.

It has been a year of working, thinking and enjoyment. I only hope that the sole gain under my editorship has not been purely experience for me. If it has, the year has been spent without proper compensation.

Words on the Morning After

We hope that the successful candidates will not awaken after the election turmoil, stare in bewilderment like a man with a hangover and inquire about the happenings of the previous night. We hope that they will follow through with their proposals and organize student opinion for the things they are striving.

We would like to take this opportunity to urge the newly elected to look around and get an inkling of what they intend to do. There will be a few days grace now before they will become bona fide office holders and it will be the only breather they will have to observe and profit as an onlooker.

This time of the year is when the campus machinery has been adjusted to a degree of perfection. We favored the new method of a short interim between the election and the time the elected take office because it will give them an opportunity to have the advice and assistance of the incumbent officers to organize their work for the year to come.

Besides urging all of the new officers to work together in promoting their planks for a better University we have a few splinters which we would like to add to the many planks.

Number One: Organize the campus sentiment and get behind a drive to promote a new and more adequate student union. Remember that the campus needs some common denominator besides football.

Number Two: Urge students to take a sane attitude in the use of their automobiles. Everyone is familiar with the problem, but a feasible solution is yet to come.

Number Three: Begin beating the drums in order to get a traffic device installed at the postoffice crossing so that pedestrians will be able to cross the street in safety.

They Could Have Known

THEY COULD HAVE KNOWN..

Joe and Sam were sitting quietly in the warm old pews of Gerrard hall yesterday afternoon. All around them sat other students busily marking X's on ballots.

Joe said, "Hell, I don't know any of these people."

Sam shrugged, "What difference does that make?"

"I don't know," Joe said, "but I'd feel better if I knew'em or had heard of them or something."

"Don't feel bad about it, Joe. We ain't alone."

And they weren't. The puzzled frowns on the faces of the other voters scattered about in the hall weren't signs that they were carefully evaluating which of the candidates was best. For many of them the ballots were no more familiar than a page from the Waco, Texas, phonebook.

They could have known, though.

They could have read the DTH where platforms were printed all last week. They could have gone to political party meetings. They could have sat in on Legislature meetings where many of those on the ballot could be seen regularly. And, of course, they could have gone to the mass meeting last night and heard the administrative candidates and publications hopefuls speak.

But let us return to Joe and Sam, innocents. They read the DTH regularly, they say. L'il Abner and the crossword puzzle. But it would be too much trouble to go to party meetings and who in hell wants to sit through a whole Legislature meeting? Night before last they couldn't go to the mass meeting because they had enough money for three or four beers.

So, glancing about them to see who was watching, they began marking X's on the ballot—anywhere, being careful, of course, to get the required number of X's in each section.

Then they arose, walked up front an tucked their folded ballots into the box. They walked out, holding their heads high.

Democracy at work. B. S.

No Grass on the Lawn, Alas

We've been patiently waiting for the Administration to raise enough cain so that the mountain of dirt which is an eye-sore in front of the library will be level and the grass replanted. Perhaps those supervising the installment of the steam lines are waiting to give the tunnel a trial before they level the lawn back to its former state. But it would seem that a six-months period would be sufficient to attend to the matter.

We had an English teacher once who said that the most perfect sentence in the world—the most expressive sentence in the universe was: "The grass was green and good for cows to eat."

Well, to be quite frank there ain't no grass down there in front of the library and we would like to see a little greenery there.

A Reply To Arnold's Charges

In Tuesday's Tar Heel Walt Arnold speaks harshly of a meeting held last year in Memorial hall concerning the now famous Chapel Hill bus incident. As chairman of that meeting I feel called upon to reply to Mr. Arnold's charge that the meeting was unethically conducted.

Town-wide publicity had been given of the meeting and it was attended by several hundred student, faculty, and townspeople. The program consisted of those who knew of the incident telling what they knew. After everyone in the audience who had facts had given them and before anyone to my knowledge had left the hall) I announced that those who wished to remain over would have the opportunity to suggest resolution, if they wished. This I believed to be the fairest way to save from embarrassment those who were not interested in political action, and at the same time give a chance to those who thought something ought to be done about the incident. During this few minute break, about half the people left the hall.

I then opened the floor for resolutions. Immediately Harvey Daniels was recognized and with considerable heat said that he had just witnessed a dirty trick—that of adjourning a meeting which the unsuspecting had left to the hands of the radicals. Mr. Ed Lanier rose to suggest the unfairness of holding any meeting at which resolutions were to be presented without notice of such in advance of the meeting. Mr. Daniel's point was plainly untrue; but Mr. Lainer's point was one which had frankly not occurred to me.

Accordingly, I asked for faculty opinion as I was not willing to proceed without such a question being cleared. Dean Carroll and Dean Weaver gave the opinion that the procedure was ethically correct, but Dean Carroll (and perhaps Dean Weaver, I forget) questioned the desirability of any resolutions. One other faculty member stated that he thought the procedure all right. No further objection was made and the meeting proceeded, ending shortly thereafter when a motion was made and carried that there be no resolutions, followed by motion to adjourn. If there were any further meetings on the subject, I know nothing about them.

Mr. Arnold, I submit that the following quote from your article in yesterday's Tar Heel are grossly incorrect, and I, personally, resent the hell out of it:

"Opposing students, faculty, and administration tried to convince the assembly that such resolutions 'emanating from the student body of the University, were unethical unless adequate notice had been given. . .Still, the liberals would have none of that, so, hoping our strength beat theirs, we voted on the question of resolutions. The vote was against issuance of resolutions. Seconds later, those funny-looking people petulantly left the building. The meeting was adjourned and we went home.

What the liberals did was typical of them. After leaving Memorial they went to another building, set up their own private meeting, passed their pet resolutions and sent the resolutions, represented as being University student opinion, to the newspapers of the state."

Winston Broadfoot

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.	Complete Leased Wire of United Press	Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

BARRON MILLS, Editor — HOWARD BAILEY, Bus. Mgr.

MANAGING EDITOR: Ed Joyner, Jr. — CIRCULATION MANAGER: Owen Lewis

SPORTS EDITORS: Bob Goldwater, Bill Carmichael

NEWS EDITOR: Chuck Hauser — ASST. BUS. MGRS.: Mary W. Sledge, T. E. Holden — SUBSCRIPTION MGR.: Charles Pattison

SOCIETY EDITOR: Jane Mears — ASST. CIRC. MGRS.: Randall Hudson, Don Snow — EDITORIAL ASSTS.: Bob Sain, Bill Buchan

NEWS STAFF: Raney Stanford, Donald MacDonald, Sally Woodhull, John Stump, Herb Nachman, Charlie Gibson, Gordon Huffines, Margaret Gaston, Mark Sumner, Paul Rothman, Elaine Patton, Jean Baskerville, Mary Ann Taber, Weddy Thorp, Emily Baker, Miriam Evans, Doris Weaver, Nancy Black, Helen Beam, Daniel Wallace, Sam Whitehall, Helen Highwater.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Ed Joyner — NIGHT SPORTS: Dick Jenrette

Recruiting Spurt Nearly Upset UMT Project

By Drew Pearson

Washington — A sudden spurt in recruiting after the first of the year almost upset the Pentagon's plan to high pressure Congress into a new draft act and universal training.

It wasn't publicized, but both Air Force and Navy figures shot far above their monthly quotas. Even recruiting for the Army ground forces hit a post-war high, just a little short of its assigned goal.

From less than 8,600 recruits in November and December, Air Force records bounced up to 14,573 recruits in January, sagged down to 11,270 during February, then picked up again during the first weeks of March. But even the February figure was higher than the monthly goal of 10,000 men.

The Navy rose from 14,309 in December to 19,834 in January, then back to 16,598 in February. Both were well above the monthly quota of 15,000.

On the other hand, the Army with a monthly quota of 20,000, only recruited 17,076 in January and 15,934 in February. But this was still a tremendous boost from 8,953 in November and 11,396 in December.

While the Pentagon boys emphasize the importance of the draft, the National Defense Research and Development Board has written a confidential report urging the need of an armada of cargo planes. In this age of blitz warfare, supply lines must be swift and flexible, which means America must build up a vast merchant marine of the air.

The report emphasizes the growing threat of Russian submarines, which could make sitting ducks of our ocean transports. Russia's underwater navy is already five times larger than the German U-boat fleet at its peak, the report states. What's more, Russia possesses the deadly German XXI which is "60 times more difficult to locate and kill" than standard World War II subs.

The present strategy of digging in and stockpiling material at forward bases is also rejected by the Research Board.

"Targets should determine the location of bases, not vice versa," the Board argues. "The need for maintaining the base should cease when the target is destroyed. Advance bases should become as expendable as shell cartridges."

This means construction and supply should be cut to a minimum and air transport must become the backbone of supply.

"Although World War II strategy was determined largely by the availability of shipping, in the next war the availability of air life will be the controlling factor," the report declares.

In closed-door testimony, military chiefs have warned that they must have 4,000 cargo planes with the carrying capacity of C-54's ready to take off at the drop of the first enemy bomb. Against this need, the certificated airlines now have in the air less than 60 freight planes. An additional 125 planes are operated by veterans' air freight lines, still waiting for CAB certificates.

More than 400 small aviation companies have been set up by veterans since V-J day. Several dozen are engaged in air freight and are clamoring for certificates, so they can carry on regular operations. After nearly three years of applying, not a single veterans' air freight line has been awarded a CAB certificate. In fact, the first case hasn't even been heard yet.

One private citizen, Langdon P. Marvin, former Chief counsel for the Congressional Air Policy Committee, has been so concerned about the problem that he has devoted his own time and bank account to promoting a merchant marine of the air.

He has prepared figures to show that certificated lines, which have been consistently in the red, could operate in the black for a change if they had cargo revenue coming in. This would also reduce passenger fares, which were raised twice in 1947 by a vote of the CAB.

The military report, prepared for the Research and Development Board, preaches the same

NOMINATIONS FOR THE PULITZER PRIZE FOR AN OUTSTANDING CONTRIBUTION TO LITERATURE

C. Horace Schmaltz, the man who worked for F. D. R. and didn't write a book.

From Ballots to Books

By Sergei Burgess

As I write this, just outside my window there is a fairly good sized batch of students. They're checking out names—the right ones, I hope—on ballots. I don't know now who will be the next prexy, et cetera, but when my six readers read this they'll know.

The campaign news is interesting. Charlie Hodson bouncing the ball to Long, Mike Rubish taking six minutes for his three-minute speech, more candidates present at the mass meeting than non-candidates, et cetera.

But to turn to more pleasant things. With sports right around the corner, and spring seemingly here, I'm beginning to approach the time of year when I like to take a good book walk a while, and then sit and read. So why not we should talk a bit about books. I've read a few good ones recently: have you?

I'll devote one paragraph to a little volume titled World of A. It's by a Los Angeleno named A. E. van Vogt, and it is science fiction. Some people call it that, others call it speculative fiction. But this book is interesting in its basis of non-Aristotelian logic rather than the normal Aristotelian brand. For just reading it's excellent, for thought it's even better. You can find copies here and there at a very decent price. (I'm so damned non-committal.)

Another good book that unfortunately is required reading for a few is Principles of Animal Biology by a bird named Shull. My advice is don't buy it unless forced or attempting to build a big library.

That's enough good books.

The political scene is still haunting me. I would like to know, if possible, what became of my "Dream Girl" poster which at one time was affixed outside Graham Memorial. If somebody swiped it, please do me the favor of returning it. I wanted to keep it, it looked so good to me. It's probably worthless to anyone else, and nobody but me would want it.

On a note of finale: this is dedicated to Tom Wharton Bobby Smith (age 8 and 9), Charlie Gibson, and Tom Kernnation (rhymes with Tarnation). Which ever of youse guys who's editor now, I'm wanting a chance to work on the mag. I can write wonderful stories, and I can draw even better pictures. Ya can't lose either way.

Tch. 'Twas fun while it lasted.

Of Hitler and Anti UMT

Editor:

The anguished cries of deflated "liberals" in this morning's edition were to be expected as part of what had gone before. But I feel that in all fairness to your readers that for the six months prior to Tuesday night's memorable meeting Hitler Youth Tactics were the exclusive property of the Anti-UMT forces.

Taking a hint from Mein Kampf that "Any lie will be believed, if repeated often enough," they have employed every means in the Goebbles' handbook to smear those who agree with George Washington "The best way to avoid war is to be prepared for it."

Any one favoring a reasonable national defense policy is a "brass hat", a "munitions manufacturer" or some such ogre.

I should like to state that since January 1790 when George Washington first proposed a means of avoiding war, our country has been engaged in six major conflicts over one hundred and fifty minor ones, yet the formula he, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, and others of our founding fathers gave for avoiding such conflicts has never been put into practice. I for one am willing to give a fair trial.

Daymond Turner

Agrees with Berry

Editor:

(To Larry Berry)

Referring to your April 2 mention of the need for tutors within the changed post-war University here, I am in substantial agreement.

Tieing this in with the gist of the recent Board of Trustees' report on instruction at the University, the following recommendation seems pertinent:

That graduate students generally, consider tutoring a logical and expected complementary function of theirs.

Whether tutoring should be institutionalized at UNC—made a formal part of the university structure—or not, does not call forth as immediate a recommendation from this graduate student.

Frederick N. Sager

Write Away

Question: When Is a Mob a Mob?

Sheltered indeed must been the lives of the two of social psychology written letters to the DTH cerning the recent demotion against the anti-UMT Haven't they ever seen a stration before? They look their "long-nosed text and refer to the group "mob." I have seen mobs the race riots in California ing the war, several strikes and even an unsuccessful mob. The demonstration tion had, in my estimation of the characteristics of the above situations. Unmanly, yes; childish, perbut not a mob! There was of identity and no hysteria in Gerrard Hall that night. my psychological friends, judge the group by viewfew irresponsible pranksters remain outside and unburn crosses, blow bugle turn out lights.

J. H.

Scorn for Seixas

Editor:

This is an open letter to Vic Seixas, darling of the lina courts, as a result of his gusting display of bad manship in the tennis match Cornell University last Friday. I daresay the Cornell men back with them a very favorable opinion of this Carolina gentleman and hero; and the majority of the Carolina students in the stands. . .being able to stand just so much. . .were enthusiastically glad when Mr. Seixas had his match. How humiliated can one get?

Look, Viccie boy, you can't win all the time, and I suggest you stop being a grandstand player. . .and childishly displaying your bad temperment when you lose a point. . .that stuff doesn't go around here. Just remember that you play under the good name of the University of North Carolina and NOT Vic Seixas.

Harold McClinton

Paging Sigmund

Editor:

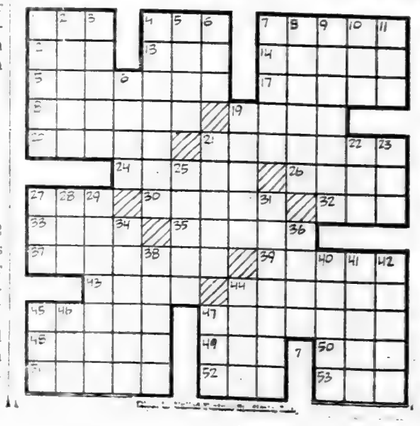
(re: Carolina Carousel, March 31.)

As to your friend's attitude toward "other" girls, you did not mention whether she majors in Physical Education or Dramatics. Before printing stuff like that again, please refer to Sigmund Freud.

Name withheld by request

P. S. What this campus needs is a good 5c Psychiatrist

LAMBDA CHI INITIATES



Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity initiated 17 new men on Friday and Saturday nights, April 2 and 3. These initiated were:

Grey Adams, High Point, Robert Gray, Sid McAden, Steven Roberson, Charlotte; William Aldridge, Steven Cole, Robert Holmes, Leonard Lopez, Burlington; William Davis, Talmage Rose, Raymond Simmons, Winston-Salem; Ray Edwards, Princeton; Zebulon Gibson, Rockingham; Charles Hughston, Spartanburg, S. C.; Randall Proctor, Washington, D. C.; Paul Barbee, Wilmington; and Thomas Abbott, Wynnewood, Pa.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Sheep's cry
4—Chinese tea
7—Arabia (poet.)
12—To cut
13—Youth
14—Wigwam
15—Robbers
17—Strips of cloth
18—Brook
19—Courageous
20—Lucifer
21—Behind
24—Brief
26—To fall in drops
27—Policeman (slang)
30—Part of step
32—Kind of bean
33—God of war
35—Kind of cloth
37—Gods of the household
39—To stop
43—Title (pl.)
44—Stock certificates
45—Roman official
47—Stoves
48—To build a revetment
49—To stray
50—Hail!
51—Requires
52—Crimson
53—Guided

DOWN

1—To consecrate
2—Large artery
3—Separate
4—Less dirty
5—Danger
6—Notices
7—Odor
8—Bored out
9—Comes into view
10—Honey maker
11—Affirmative
16—Chair
19—Untried
21—Beasts of burden
22—River (Sp.)
23—Secret agent
25—Goes by car
27—Cover
28—Native metal
29—Thoughtful
31—Early king of England
34—Glided
36—Flesh
38—Allowance for waste (pl.)
40—Pert. to area
41—To hit tennis ball
42—Ancient chariot
44—Dry
45—Sea bird
46—River in England

Carolina Netters Score Sixth Victory By Blanking Yale

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael III

Election Aftermath

THE AFTERMATH OF ELECTIONS is always the change that occurs in each organization—the defeated left sitting on the doorstep, looking in with noses pressed to the glass at those new elected triumphantly taking over for the coming year.

The point being arrived at is that politics at Carolina affect everything—including sports and individuals commonly referred to as sports editors. These supposed know-all see-all boys appointed by editors and editors in turn are elected by the students, hence politics.

The conclusion is that some sports editors therefore cater to the feelings of their editors and readers not only in college where their reappointment may depend upon it, but in later life where the selling of papers or even their job can depend on what they write.

Question of Ethics

ALL OF WHICH BRINGS up a question of ethics. Can someone write what he doesn't believe or what he hasn't seen? Is a DTH sports writer or editor forced because he works for an understandably partisan school newspaper expected to slant the news to the glory of N.C.U. no matter what the outcome? Or can the sporting picture be reported objectively with the sincere opinions of the writers?

Alibis are tiring, at times hard to find and above all, just a method of kidding oneself into "moral victory". At times, it is better to say that the team lost, but in losing, realize the fact the opponent happened to be slightly superior, and the loss was to them, not to the officials or the weather.

State college, be they agriculturalists or worse, had a very fine basketball team during the winter, which school hatred aside, was to the true sports fan and reporter a pleasure to watch and to write about. Which is a practice of giving the devil his dues, a practice frowned upon by some, but truly the duty of a sincere sports writer.

How to Lose Friends

IT ALL BOILS DOWN to the fact the sports writers, like most columnists here and there, at times can count their friends on the keys of their typewriter because of the nature of their writings. Some one writes in one week that his French poodle can write better copy while candidates to the editorship tempt voters with promises to fire the athletic anogramists if he is elected.

Yet, if the writer still has his convictions and satisfaction in what he has written, or perhaps needs a hearing aid, he can turn again the now-battered cheek if the weight upon his neck is still light enough to permit mobility.

Sports writing can be an interesting profession with a high degree of entertainment value. You get a nice front row seat to all the major athletic attractions—usually protected from the elements, together with the opportunity to enjoy the other courtesies extended the press. On top of this you get a chance to eat your Wheaties side by side with sports champions of all types and sizes.

Still, after the game is over and the cheers have died and the crowd has gone home, the sports writer's work is just begun. It will continue far into the night until the presses roll—many hours of bending over a hot typewriter, hunting and pecking for the words to use and keys to produce them. Pass the Kleenex, Goldwater.

Forgive Them Please

SO, FORGIVE THE POOR SPORTS WRITER the one soul-satisfying practice of writing what he saw the way he saw it. After all, one must learn to live with himself before he can learn to live with others.

Keep the politicians and politics out of sports and off the sports pages. Look what Happy Chandler did to baseball. . . .

Jayvee Trackmen Meet Durham High Here Today; Varsity Preps for Tech

Carolina's jayvee trackmen will open their 1948 dual-meet schedule this afternoon on Fetzer field when they dash it out against Durham high school at 3.30.

According to mentor Ralph Casey, who has switched from the chlorine to the cinders, his charges' are of an unknown quality and quantity to him and how they'll fare is anybody's guess.

The newly appointed coach of the junior thinclads did venture the prediction that "he couldn't see how they could miss getting second place, anyway."

As an added feature to the meet, a group of now-ineligible transfer students ,including former-Phant Bill Miller, will participate in the meet unofficially.

The varsity emerged from the dust of last weekend's Carolina Relays in pretty good shape and they'll return to action on the local oval this Saturday afternoon when they face Georgia Tech. Last year oCach Ranson's boys edger out the Engineers, 66 1|2-64 1|2.

Bob Black, the former campus middle ace who was sidelined earlier this winter by a knee injury, has been occupied with outside interests and has-not yet reported for spring track practice. Thus, even if he should come out later this week, he won't be able to get into good enough shape to run against Tech.

The Blue and White cindermen will continue their daily workouts on the Fetzer track this week and should be in much better condition for the Tech meet than they were for the Relays.

Taylor, Morris Win Again; Williams Is Foe This Afternoon

By Buddy Vaden

Coach John Kenfield's potent tennis crew gained their sixth victory in as many starts yesterday when they blanked Yale, 9-0, for the third straight triumph over the visitors from the North.

This afternoon the local lads will be out for their seventh straight win at the expense of Williams college from Williamstown, Massachusetts. Starting time is slated for two o'clock. Ten singles matches and five doubles matches will be played.

Vic Seixas continued his winning style in the number one spot by stopping Johnny Moses, 8-0 and 6-3. Clark Taylor gained his sixth victory of the season just as easy by downing Yale's number two man, Carl Badger, 6-2, 6-0.

Close Match

Ray Morris had the hardest time of the afternoon in his match with Lint Baldwin. However, Morris finally came out on top of a three set match, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5. It was Baldwin who gave Charlie Rice his first defeat of the year two days ago.

Morris had Baldwin on the defensive for the major part of the final set and he forced Baldwin to use his backhand extensively. Morris' well-placed forehand shots proved to be the margin of victory in the closest match of the day.

Charlie Rice collected the fourth victory by trouncing Eli Clark, 6-4 and 6-2. Don Skakle followed with the fifth victory by a 6-0, 6-2 decision over Dick Hunt.

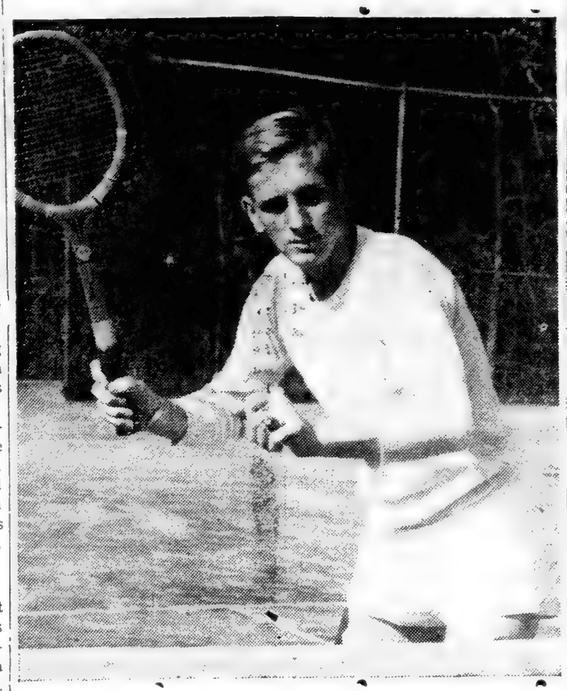
In the final singles match of the day Heath Alexander gained an easy win over Bayne, 6-1, 6-2.

Good Service

In the first doubles contest it was Seixas' service and brilliant net play that proved to be the winning factor over Yale's combination of Moses and Badger. The local duo took the first set, 6-3, but dropped the second, 4-6, and came back to take the final, 6-3. In the final set Carolina took a 2-0 game lead at the outset, but Yale came back to cop the next two games. At this point Taylor and Seixas stopped the Yale attack with good defensive play plus a service that was too hot for the Elis to handle. The locals took the next game, dropped the eighth to Yale, and took the final to come out on top.

In the second doubles match Morris and Rice had little trouble in winning over Hunt and Clark, 6-4, 6-1. The closing match of the day saw Carolina's Alexander and Skakle down Baldwin and Bayne, 6-2, 6-2, to complete the shutout score.

The summary:



Singles: Seixas (C) defeated Moses, 6-0, 6-3; Taylor (C) defeated Badger, 6-2, 6-0; Morris (C) defeated Baldwin, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5; Rice (C) defeated Clark, 6-4, 6-2; Skakle (C) defeated Hunt, 6-0, 6-2; Alexander (C) defeated Bayne, 6-1, 6-2.

Doubles: Seixas-Taylor (C) defeated Moses-Badger, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3; Morris-Rice (C) defeated Hunt-Clark, 6-4, 6-1; Alexander Skakle (C) defeated Baldwin-Bayne, 6-2, 6-2.

COED ARCHERY

A meeting of the coed archery club has been set for this afternoon at 4 o'clock, it was announced yesterday. The get-together will take place at Kenan stadium and all Carolina coeds interested in the sport are invited to attend.

Undefeated in Six Starts

RAY MORRIS, Carolina's number three netter, is now in the midst of his fourth season on Coach John Kenfield's team. The blonde shotmaker is currently unbeaten, with six straight wins this year. He defeated Yale's Lint Baldwin, 6-3, 4-6, and 7-5 yesterday. Morris was co-captain of the 1944 squad.

Triple Play Features Mural Softball Action

The furious batting pace continued into the second day of play of the intramural softball tourney yesterday afternoon. Steady fielding and pitching began to show up more and more, however, indicating that the games are settling down to fast tight playing.

The fielding gem of the play so far came in the seventh inning of the second game on field No. 9 when Stacy pulled a triple play on the Med School. It was too late to save them because the boys from the Med School had rallied for six runs in the sixth to win the tilt 16-9.

Time trials in intramural track will be held next week from Monday through Thursday. All entrants are urged to come down and work out as soon as possible.

Charley Smith, PiKA No. 2 hurler, was on the road to a no-hitter over the Phi Delt No. 1 team when his mates exploded for 15 runs in the top of the third inning to coast to a five frame 21-0 victory.

Quite an Inning

Mangum No. 2 flashed the strongest attack of the day in the fourth inning of their battle with the Stanley Steamers. They started slowly for three runs in the three frames but when they went wild to bat around and around for a grand total of 20 runs to halt the game.

Four of the other games saw the winning team either come from behind or break a tie in the late stages to capture the win.

A two run double in the last of the sixth was the winning margin for Graham No. 1 over Club H-2-3, 8-6. Old West chalked up four in the fifth to edge Whitehead, 6-4.

Emerson, behind 10-7 in the fifth, came through with six big tallies to defeat Mangum 14-12 in a thriller.

Mural Results

SOFTBALL

10 Pi Lamb	SAE 2 6
21 PiKA 2	Phi Delt 1 0
8 Graham 1	Club H-2-3 6
21 St. Anthony	AEPi 6
6 Old West	Whitehead 4
8 Misfits	Wesley Rockets 1
24 Mangum 2	Stanley Steamers 1
18 Oakwood Drive	Seiler Five 1
6 Bombers	Miller 3
23 Aycock	Lewis 2 7
14 Emerson	Mangum 1 12
13 Graham 2	Steele 2
25 Law School	Alexander 1 4
16 Med School	Stacy 9

Phi Delt 2 forfeit over Beta 2

Lewis 1 forfeit over Nash

Battlers forfeit over Everett

Ruffin forfeit over Geology Dept.

RIFLE FIRING (MONDAY)

613 Beta Theta Pi Lambda Chi Alpha 589

669 Emerson Independents 507

Today's Murals

SOFTBALL

4:00—Field 1: Chi Phi 1 vs. Phi Kap 2; field 2: TEP 2 vs. Phi Gam 3; field 3: Sig Ep vs. ZBT; field 4: Chi Psi 1 vs. DKE 2; field 5: Delta Sig 2 vs. Chi Phi 2; field 6: KA 1 vs. Phi Delt 3; field 7: Sig Chi 1 vs. Zeta 1; field 8: Sig Nu 2 vs. Phi Kap 1; field 9: Clippers vs. Alexander 2.

5:00—Field 1: Mud Dobbers vs. Old East; field 2: TEP 1 vs. Kap Sig 1; field 3: Pi Kap A 1 vs. Kap Sig 2; field 4: KA 2 vs. Phi Gam 1; field 5: Sigma Chi 2 vs. Zeta 2; field 6: ATO 1 vs. Pi Kap Phi; field 7: Delta Sig 1 vs. Lamb Chi 1; field 8: Phi Delt Chi vs. DKE 1; field 9: Lamb Chi 2 vs. Kap Psi.

RIFLE FIRING

4:00—Oakwood Drive vs Stacy.

7:30—Old East vs. Mangum.

Jayvee Nine Falls Before High Point In Initial Defeat

High Point, April 6—Carolina's Jayvee baseballers went down to their first defeat of the season here this afternoon as High Point high school stopped them cold to record a 3-0 decision.

Rogers, a righthander, went the full nine innings on the mound for High Point and handcuffed the visiting Tar Babies with seven well-spaced hits. Les Sharpe and Gaston combined in the hurling department for Carolina, but their efforts could not match Rogers. Gaston did pitch shutout ball for the final three innings.

With the exception of a brief ninth inning flurry, High Point had the game under control throughout. The Bison scored a single run in the first inning, on singles by Rickert and Cooper and a smashing double to center by Upton to score Rickert. This outburst ended with two men stranded on base.

Score Two More

The home boys made their lead a bit more comfortable in the third frame by adding a pair of runs. Three singles, a couple of walks, and a fielder's choice provided the tallies.

Coach Henry House's Carolina collegians staged a rally in the ninth, loading the bases on singles by Joe Brookshire and Charlie Garganus and a walk. There were two outs at the time, however. Stan Goodman went in to pinch-hit, and the stocky youngster hit a roller down third base which went foul at first but curved back onto the playing field before passing third-base. Goodman, thinking the ball would remain foul, did not bother to run and was thrown out at first to end the game.

Garganus, with two singles, led Carolina. Other boys getting hits were Don Ward, Zero Allen, Brookshire, Bill Walsh and Pitcher Gaston.

Carolina will meet Presbyterian Junior College at Emerson field on Saturday in its next outing.

Splash Club Meeting

Spring tryouts for membership in the Splash club, the coed swimming group, will be held this afternoon in the Bowman Gray pool, Miss Mary Frances Kellam, sponsor of the club, announced yesterday.

Skilled swimmers interested in participating in the club's annual May pageant are invited to attend. Members are requested to be present.

Baseball Team Leaves For SC Battles Today

Carolina's baseball team will have a chance to get into the Southern Conference race this week when they face their first loop foes on their three-game trip through South Carolina. The Tar Heels will leave at 4:30 this afternoon.

As things now stand, the Washington and Lee's diamond squad is leading the league with a 5-0 record. Wake Forest and VPI are tied for second behind the Generals by virtue of their winning their opening conference games.

W&L took the lead last week with one-sided victories over Furman, Clemson, and Davidson.

Carolina will face the former teams on their journey in addition to meeting the South Carolina Gamecocks. The Hurricanes and the Cats bowed to the potent Generals twice and the Tigers fell before the superior firepower of the Virginians once. A second game between W and L and Clemson was rained out.

Good Record

In their five league games, the Generals have tallied 46 runs against only 16 for their opponents.

In their only SC contest thus far, the runnerup Wake Forest Deacons upset N. C. State, 5-0. Wake Forest can pull within one games of W & L, who faces only only non-conference foes this week, if they can drop the Wolfpack again and defeat South Carolina twice in the two games they have slated against the Gamecocks.

Duke, with a record of 3-1, is ensconsed in fourth spot. The top four teams in the league are the only outfits playing .500 ball. South Carolina in the fifth spot is all even at one and one. Clemson follows with one win in four attempts.

The remaining 16 teams are in an 11-way tie for the celler with identical .000 percentages. However, seven of the teams have yet to play a league game.

Davidson has the least chance to climb out of the basement with four losses in as many starts.

Furman is two notches above with two losses and State is third from the bottom with a loss to Wake Forest in their only game.

Loop Standings

Team	W	L	Pct.
Washington and Lee	5	0	1.000
Wake Forest	1	0	1.000
VPI	1	0	1.000
Duke	3	1	.750
South Carolina	1	1	.500
Clemson	1	3	.250
Richmond	0	0	.000
The Citadel	0	0	.000
Maryland	0	0	.000
George Washington	0	0	.000
VMI	0	0	.000
North Carolina	0	0	.000
William and Mary	0	0	.000
N. C. State	0	1	.000
Furman	0	2	.000
Davidson	0	4	.000

Life-Saving Course Scheduled to Begin

A meeting of all persons interested in taking the Red Cross senior life-saving course will be held tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in 304 Woollen, Coach Dick Jamerson announced yesterday.

Important details concerning the course, including the time at which the classes will be held, will be discussed. hTe complete course requires 17 hours of drill and attendance at all classes is compulsory since there will be no makeup periods.

Coach Dick Jamerson also announced that the instructors' course will get under way early in May. Those expecting to enroll must have completed the senior life-saving course and should attend tomorrow's meeting if they are not already qualified, Jamerson pointed out.

All students, including women, are eligible to take thte training.

Whid Powell's
COLONIAL HOUSE SYSTEM
GRILLED TARHELLIAS
CAROLINAS
WAFFLES
Rosemary St.—Opp. City Hall

REHDERS
CHAPEL HILL FLOWER SHOP
Opposite Post Office Corner

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger Nail Test

IF YOUR friends have been slipping you hunks of cheese, maybe your hair looks mousey. So better take the bait, brother rat, and scurry out for some Wildroot Cream-Oil. It's the popular non-alcoholic hair tonic containing soothing Lanolin. Wildroot Cream-Oil grooms your hair neatly and naturally without that plastered-down look. Relieves annoying dryness and removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger Nail Test! Get a tube or bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil today at any drug or toilet goods counter. And always ask your barber for a professional application. Warning: Your roommate will probably ferret away your Wildroot Cream-Oil. Buy the rodent some of his own!

* of 327 Burroughs Drive, Snyder, N. Y.

Wildroot Company, Inc., Buffalo 11, N. Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil
Get it at
SUTTON'S
DRUG STORE
Your Walgreen Agency

May Frolics . . . Tony Pastor's Orchestra . . . This Weekend

TUXEDOS
for SALE
$55 for RENT
$5

Varsity

May Frolics? . . .

. . . There's always an April shower of lovely corsages for the dance—

at the

University Florist

Pick Theater Bldg. Phone 6816

VICTOR HUGO'S Les MISERABLES
A Supreme Screen Achievement Returns!
Darryl F. Zanuck's Production of VICTOR HUGO'S
LES MISERABLES
FREDRIC MARCH
CHARLES LAUGHTON
Directed by RICHARD BOLESLAWSKI
A 20th CENTURY-FOX Encore Triumph!
TODAY
VILLAGE

National BOHEMIAN
BEER
Bottle 17c
Case 3.75
Also
Potato Chips
Cigarettes
Sandwiches
THE SHACK
Just a whisper off Franklin Street

Colonel Leigh Wade Will Be Main Speaker At Air Reserve Scheduled Meeting Tuesday

By Sam McKeel

Colonel Leigh Wade, public information officer of the 14th Air Force, will be the main speaker at a meeting of the Air Reserve association in 103 Bingham hall Tuesday night, April 13 at 7:30.

The main purpose of the meeting is to disseminate pertinent information about the Air Reserve program and arouse interest and support in the activation of an All Weather Reserve Fighter Squadron at the Raleigh-Durham airport.

The meeting will feature, besides Col. Wade, two other Army Air Force Colonels; Felix M. Hardison, chief of the division of planning of the 14th Air Force, and Thomas K. McGehee, chief of the Air Reserve Training section of the 14th Air Force.

Other guests will include Col. Carlyle Shepard; Col. Paul Montague of Winston-Salem; Mr. W. P. Budd, Jr., president of the Duram chapter of the Air Force association; and E. E. Baugh, Jr., president of the State College chapter of the A. R. A.

The main meeting at Bingham hall will be preceded by a dinner meeting at the Carolina Inn at 6:30, for the guest speakers and the executive committee of the local Air Reserve chapter.

The meeting at Bingham hall will feature a short speech by Col. Wade and then a panel discussion on the problems of the Air Reserve and the opportunities offered by the Air Reserve program. Immediately after the panel discussion there will be an open question period.

The purpose of the A. R. A., as explained by a spokesman, is to assist Air Reserve personel to maintain proficiency in the interest of national security through bi-weekly flights to Marietta Air Base, Ga. for flight training.

Umstead Advocates Anti-Communist Plan

Lexington, April 6 — (UP) — Senator William B. Umstead has declared that the threat of Communism can be met only by firm decisions and the willingness to adopt at once the necessary measures to halt its infiltration.

Umstead spoke to the Civitan and Lions clubs at Lexington tonight in his campaign to succeed himself in the United States Senate.

The Senator points out that the approaching elections in Europe will be a critical test of the future of Democracy in Europe. He says, "The assurance of immediate and further aid by the United States, coupled with the unmistakable intention to assist those in the areas most in danger of agression or Civil war, will be perhaps a determining factor in the outcome of these elections."

Dormitory Rooms Available For 40

Forty more students became eligible for dormitory rooms today, according to an announcement from the housing office. These people must call for their room reservations at the office, 22 New East Annex. Persons whose names appear on this list and who fail to call for their reservations will be dropped from the list.

Robert B. Ausley, Eugene B. Baskett, Frank E. Bunker, Charles S. Burns, Jacob M. Carter, Daniel Campbell, Ralph E. Carter, Jr.

Stuart F. Clayton, Love Armstrong Coman, Andrew G. Cook, James R. Danien, Alfred L. Dyson, James Z. Godwin.

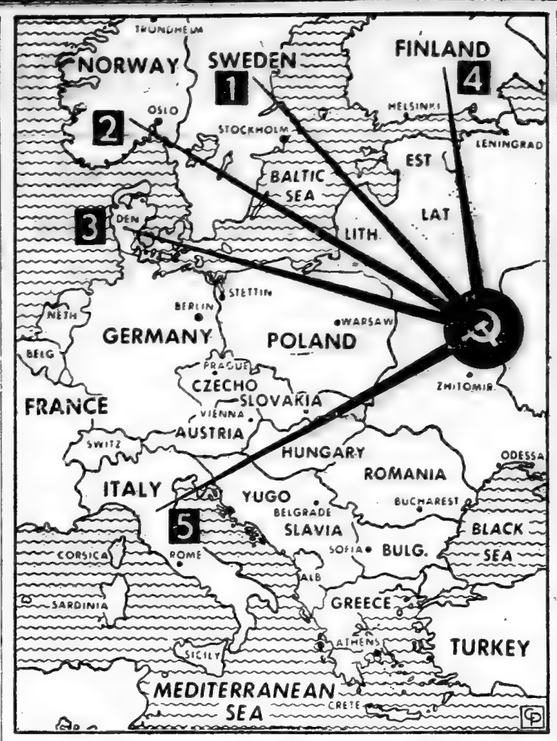
Ernest H. Graham, Dennis M. Harris, Harry S. Howard, Joseph Turner, Thomas J. Hunt, Charles M. White, Donald B. Ipcock, Lyman L. Wilkins.

Wilson E. Jackson, Floyd M. Willis, Delma L. Jessup, Frank E. Young, Edward S. Jones, Julian C. Knott, Edward S. Lamb, Donald M. McFee, Gibson E. McNeely, John D. Medlin.

Gerald M. Murrell, Thomas B. Northington, Burton Q. Perham, Glenn H. Person, George R. Powers, George LeTell Rights, Joseph Salem, Brantly R. Shaw, Dale M. Shepherd, Edwin H. Shuford.

Reginald H. Starr, John B. Stephenson, Nelson W. Taylor, III, Wallace E. Thompson, Eugene H. Turner.

Duke Dean of Women Will Speak Tomorrow



Dr. Florence Brinkley, Dean of Women at Duke University, will speak tomorrow night at 8 in Kenan hall at a meeting of the American Association of University Women.

Miss Brinkley will discuss "The American Teacher in England." She is well versed on the matter, as she spent a year in England, and is familiar with the student exchange program.

Senior women and graduate students are urged to attend this AAUW meeting.

CIVIC PROBLEM NO 1

Artesia, N. M., —(UP)— City fathers are trying to figure a way to stop the mailing of letters by absent-minded citizens in trash cans.

REPORTS TROUBLE SWEDEN-NORWAY

WHEN RUSSIAN ARMY-NAVY papers carried a report that Sweden (1) is planning to build air bases for U. S. planes, a flood of rumors and denials was unloosed. Swedish papers made curt denials, stating that Sweden wanted to be kept out of entanglements. However, one paper said Sweden would be forced to lean to the West if Russian pressure was exerted. At the same time, reports came from Norway (2) that Russians, disguised as miners, were getting into labor groups. These two nations would, naturally, figure in any strategic Soviet pattern if further engulfment of Europe is planned. Denmark (3), which has rarely been mentioned, was said to be watching carefully developments in the other Scandinavian countries. Meanwhile the treaty delegation from Finland (4) continues to discuss the proposed military-friendship pact with Russia. Tension in Italy (5) appeared to be increasing as the April 18 election approached. Two Communists were reported killed during riots in Milan. (International)

-Forum-

(Continued from page 1)

Ryan, head of the University education department, and Dr. Harold A. Trigg, president of St. Augustine's college.

The entire conference has been developed through the use of group dynamics, the democratic process at work, and findings of the conference will be mimeographed and recorded for distribution to other interested groups. Among participants in the discussions today will be about 50 "observers" from throughout North Carolina interested in the problems being discussed and the methods being used to approach them.

-Polgar-

(Continued from page 1)

form a criminal.

In addition to making Miss and successively as a six, 12 and Beale perform as a four year old, 20 year old, Polgar demonstrated how he could control her reactions to the same person by telling her at one time that he was a disreputable looking character and again that he was a charming stranger.

Group Persuasion

He persuaded a whole group of subjects that they were flying in an airplane, and they reacted to the cold he told them of, the heat he suggested a minute later and the jar he said they would receive on landing.

In the ream of post-hypnotic suggestion, he persuaded one coed, who was attractively dressed in the new look, to give a speech condemning long skirts; had one boy shouting "Peanuts! Peanuts!" at successive intervals; persuaded several people that they had gotten intoxicated on water; and convinced the whole group that it was his birthday and they should sing to him. He gave one boy such a "hot seat" that each time Polgar touched his collar, the student jumped from his chair screaming.

At the end of the demonstration, Polgar left several people "stuck" to their chairs or the floor, and pretended to leave the stage. Even though the subjects thought the demonstration over, they could not move until Polgar returned to release them.

About 95 per cent of the population of the United States suffers from tooth decay.

Campus Calendar

2:30 p. m.—North Carolina World Peace forum.

3:00 p. m.—Mathematics Seminar, 320 Phillips hall.

3:00 p. m.—Coalition council, Grail room.

3:00 p. m.—Ways and Means committee, Roland Parker lounge No. 2.

4:30 p. m.—S. P. legislature, Roland Parker No. 2.

5:00 p. m.—Chi Delta Phi, Grail room.

7:30 p. m.—Student Masons, Phi Assembly hall.

7:30 p. m.—Pi Kappa Phi, Roland Parker No. 2.

7:30 p. m.—Open meeting of Student Audit Board, Roland Parker No. 1.

8:00 p. m.—Chemistry Wives, Horace Williams lounge.

8:00 p. m.North Carolina World Peace Forum, Gerrard hall.

8:30 p. m.—North Carolina Viewpoint, WHHT.

8:30 p. m.—Recital by Rufus Norris, Hill hall.

Chemical engineers are said generally to be the best paid members of the engineering profession.

Military Leaders . . . . . Advocate Strong U S

Army Day Theme Is 'Preparedness'

Washington, April 6 —(UP) — Today was Army day, and in the United States, Europe, the Far East, wherever American troops are stationed, the theme was "A strong America is a peaceful America."

Here in Washington, Army secretary Kenneth Royall told an Army Day dinner that the nation must re-arm and resume selective service. Royall did not mention Russia by name, but he warned that we must protect ourselves against the possibility of an attack by a power possessed of what he called "an insatiable desire for conquest and aggression."

By far the strongest talk of the day was the address delivered by Air Force General George Kenney in Cleveland. Kenny called the Communists "a gang of super gangsters" and recommended setting up of "the numer one air force of the world."

Air Secretary Symington urged that the United States increase its military might and place it in plain view of the Russians. David Lilienthal, chairman of the atomic energy commission said we must continue to expand our atom bomb plants.

A House armed services committee has approved a resolution to increase American air power by more than 25 per cent. This will cost an additional $2,500,000,000, but chairman Clason of Massachusetts says it will be worth it. He argues that an air force of 70 groups, we now have 55, would provide the "finest possible insurance against war."

The Senate Armed Forces committee had expected to complete work on President Truman's draft and UMT program this week. However ,the committee postponed final action in a secret meeting today. Chairman Chan Gurney announced that the group has decided to call in the top defense chiefs for further questioning before it acts.

Today in capital plazza a parade was held. Before the troops moved, House Speaker Joe Martin and Senate President Arthur Vandenberg accepted, on behalf of Congress, the flag that flew over the capital on Pearl Harbor day.

Martin said, "This flag is a symbol of victory and freedom, a monument of the service of our Army." Senator Vandenberg said the flag was "Living proof that we hate war, that we cherish peace with justice. This flag of liberation never, never will fly at half mast over dead ideals."

The crowd burst into applause. Then the Army Day parade began. First the WAC's, trim in their khaki uniforms and white gloves. Then the fighting men of the Army, Navy and Marines, while Army jet planes swished overhead. Fnally a column of armored cars rolled slowly across the plaza.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

Cheese Blintzes today — at HARRY'S

-Hayeck-

(Continued from page 1)

sonal experience and his great repute as an economist, Professor Hayek is our most accomplished historian of the development of economic ideas."

"Road to Serfdom"

"The Road to Serfdom", which in the words of another reviewer, "points out clearly the dangers to democracy which are inherent in an over-all centralized planning such as spread over Europe during the interwar period," excited widespread interest both in England and America and not a little controversy.

A number of refutations and rebuttals of Hayek's conclusions appeared, among the most important of which was "Freedom under Planning" by Barbara Wooton who is also a member of the faculty of the School of Economics and Political Science of London University. The book was published by the University of North Carolina Press.

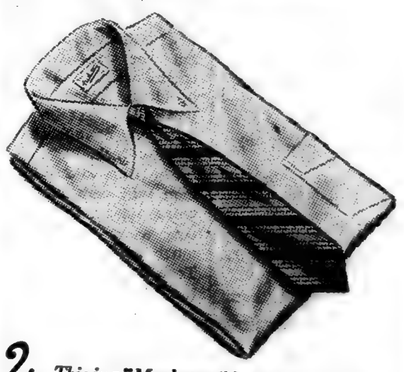
Before coming to the University of London in 1931, Professor Hayek, who was born and educated in Vienna, was Lecturer in Economics at the University of Vienna, Director of the Austrian Institute for Economic Research, and a member of the Austrian Civil Service. He became a naturalized British subject in 1938.

Other Lectures

During his current visit to the United States he will lecture and hold seminars at the University of Chicago and at Princeton University as well as at the University of North Carolina. His visit to Chapel Hill is being made possible by a special gift from an alumnus.

The schedule of Professor Hayek's lectures and seminars in Chapel Hill is as follows:

Wednesday, April 14 at 8 o'clock in Hill hall. Lecture on the subject, "Planning and Reconstruction in Europe."



Thursday and Friday, April 14 and 15 at 4 o'clock in 103 Bingham hall, seminar discussion for faculty and graduate students in Economics and Political Science.

SAVE MONEY — CLOTHES — TIME
The "Popular Laundry Service Is Now Available To Student And Towns People Who Carry Their Laundry To The Village Self Service Laundry
402 W. FRANKLIN — PHONE F-3957
HOURS — 8 AM to 6 PM DAILY — OPEN MON. & TUES. UNTIL 9 AM

Two things every college man should know!

1. This is a college professor. Very smart, but somewhat baffled by the ways of man. Theory-thinker. Popular in Washington until recently. Thinks life is something you look at through a microscope.

2. This is a "Manhattan" button-down oxford shirt. Very smart, too. Its wonderful low-slope collar rolls just right and fits just right. See this most popular of college men's shirts at your "Manhattan" dealer's now.

CAMPUS FAVORITE—
Manhattan
THE MANHATTAN SHIRT COMPANY
Copr. 1948, The Manhattan Shirt Co.

"I FORGOT THAT ONCE I WAS A NOBODY AND THAT TODAY THEY CALL ME 'THAT HAMILTON WOMAN!'"

ALEXANDER KORDA presents
VIVIEN LAURENCE
LEIGH • OLIVIER
in THAT HAMILTON WOMAN!
Today
CAROLINA

Ridgeway's
OPTICIANS
Complete Eyeglass Service
Prompt attention to all mail orders
PROFESSIONAL BUILDING
Raleigh N. C.

DRAFT BEER
Call—3536
for
PRICE quotations
K & M
BEER DELIVERY SERVICE
Call 3536
119½ Columbia Street

Campus Favorites
SEAM-FREE NYLONS
WITH PATENTED HEEL
Smart college girls everywhere are pampering their legs with these sleek, seam-free beauties—the nylons identified by the Seal of the DANCING TWINS. Their exclusive, patented heel* assures perfect fit, their Gussetoe is designed for comfort. No twisting seams! Look for them under leading brand names at your favorite college shop or store.
*U. S. Pat. No. 2388648

CLOSING OUT
Collapsible
PLAY PENS
For Indoor and Outdoor Use
REDUCED FROM
$13.95 to $5.00
THE BABY SHOP
(Under Ledbetter-Pickard)

No Guesswork . .
Our experts don't "guess" about your car troubles . . . They're trained to locate the fault immediately — and to repair it completely.
Poe's Garage
PHONE F-2021
Carrboro, N. C.

CLASSIFIED

FOR RENT 5A

ROOM WITH PRIVATE BATH FOR two students who plan to attend both summer sessions. Vacant starting April 5. Phone 8566. (1-108-1)

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive.Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

28 FOOT LA SALLE HOUSE TRAILER in good condition. Ideal location. Inquire at No. 26 University Trailer Court. (1-1891-1)

FIVE ROOM HOUSE ON JUSTICE Street. Floor furnace, gas stove and automatic hot water heater. Large lot; immediate occupancy. John Foushee, Real Estate. (1-ch1x1-1)

24 FOOT GLIDER HOUSE TRAILER. Immediate occupancy. Lot 76 University Married Couples Trailer Court. (1-106-1)

WHIZZER MOTOR BIKE IN EXCELlent condition. Priced for quick sale. May be inspected at Quonset Hut No. 25. Warren Olsen, Hut 25, Box 127. (1-112-1)

COLLAPSIBLE THAYER BABY CARriage in good condition. Half-price. 1 desk and chest of drawers mahogony stained. No phone. Call by 102 North St. (1-111-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

1940 CHEVROLET 4 DOOR SEDAN—Radio and heater. Motor recently overhauled. Excellent condition throughout. Chet zum Brummen, 4 Vance. (1-109-1)

HELP WANTED: MALE 8B

OUTSTANDING FACULTY MEMBERS with ability to lead and work with boys. Serve ten weeks this summer on administrative staff, Camp Sea Gull, a new coastal camp for boys. Excellent pay, wonderful environment, comfortable living quarters, board. Quarters for wife, if necessary. Apply Wyatt Taylor, General Secretary, Raleigh, Y. M. C. A., Raleigh, N. C. (ch 1 x 2)

TWO OR MORE UMPIRES TO REFeree night games of softball for Carrboro Athletic Club. Wages $1.50 per night. Call Harold Dark, 4167, Carrboro. (ch 1x1)

LOST 12

BROWN WALLET WITH GOLD INItials F.C.H. Contains important papers. Finder may keep money and return wallet to 303 E. Rosemary St. or phone F-3111. (1-114-1)

WANTED TO RENT 24B

APARTMENT FOR TWO YEARS FOR couple. Write 821 Second St., Durham. Phone X-5012. (1-113-1)

SPRING AND SUMMER SLACKS
Cottons — Wools — Rayons
6.75 to 10.50
Make Your Selection While Our Stock Is Complete
JACK LIPMAN'S

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept.)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-49

WEATHER
Cloudy and warmer with scattered thundershowers.

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Senator Talks Back
Perverted Liberalism
Man Who Made Milwaukee

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 135

Dedmond Nears Presidency; 600 Still Uncounted

Legislature To Act On $105,000 Budget

The Student Legislature will take action tonight on a proposed $105,000 general budget for all campus organizations. The budget, which will be reported out by the Finance committee at tonight's session includes all Student Legislature appropriations for the forthcoming fiscal year beginning June 1.

According to Ernest House, chairman of the Finance committee, the largest item on the proposed budget is a $65,000 appropriation for campus publications. The Finance committee has also recommended a $2,000 appropriation for the new Carolina Quarterly.

The budget to be considered by the Legislature approves an appropriate of $21,000 to cover the expenses of Graham Mtmorial and an additional $5,250 for the Student Entertainment committee.

Oher appropriations for campus organizations recommended by the Finance committee are: Debate Council $4,000; Carolina Forum, $600; executive branch of the Student Government, $1,025; Judicial branch, $1,243; and the Student Legislature, $400.

YMCA Will Elect Officers Tonight At General Meet

There will be an important membership meeting of the YMCA at 8 o'clock tonight in Gerrard hall. This meeting is for the purpose of electing officers for next year. It is essential that as many members as possible attend in order to secure competent officials.

The YMCA Cabinet is presenting a list of nominees which it has chosen after careful consideration. Other nominations may be made from the floor if the person nominated is present and willing to be a candidate for the office. The slate presented by the "Y" is as follows: President—Pete Burks and Sam Magill. Secretary—Ed Strain. The runner-up for president will automatically be nominated for the position of vice-president.

Pete Burks, rising senior from Charlotte is a Sociology major and a pre-ministerial student. After attending V. M. I. for two years where he was active in Christian work and serving twenty-six months in the army, he entered Carolina this past fall. While at Carolina he has served on the YMCA Cabinet and was Co-chairman of the YWCA-YMCA winter conference held in March at Natural Bridge, Va. He is a member of the Intercollegiate council of Religion. Burks is a pledge of DKE fraternity.

Sam Magill is a rising junior from Shanghai, China. He is a sociology major and plans to go into YMCA work. He has been very active in the "Y" this year serving as vice-president and co-chairman of the WSSF drive. He is on the Graham Memorial Board of Directors, varsity track and cross-country and a member of Delta Psi fraternity.

Ed Strain, candidate for secretary-treasurer, is a rising senior from Rome, Ga. and a commerce major. He completed two years of work at West Georgia College before serving three years in the army. While at West Georgia, he was a member of the Voluntary Religious association, on the Intercollegiate debate squad, president of the Press forum, and editor of the magazine "Gen-Pen." This year he has been an active YMCA cabinet member.

Tindall Is Elected Chairman Of AVC

George Tindall, graduate student in history from Greeneville, S. C., was elected as chairman of the Chapel Hill and University chapter of the American Veterans committee for the coming six months, at the regular chapter meeting Tuesday evening. The retiring head of the veteran's group, Jehan Van de Velde, was chosen to fill the post of vice-chairman.

Other officers elected in the semi-annual balloting included Henry Adams as corresponding secretary, Bill Evans as recording secretary, and Mike Pochna as treasurer.

Following the elections chapter members approved a request that each should write a letter to the members of the University Board of Trustees and to President Frank Graham urging all the fairness possible in the latter's consideration of the entrance applications recently submitted to the University by three Negro students.

Another feature of last Tuesday's meeting was a talk by Rev. Charles M. Jones of the Presbyterian church on practical measures for publicizing the President's committee report on civil rights and putting its recommendations into effect.

Experimental Student-Written Plays To Be Presented Free By Playmakers

By Mark Sumner

Three new student written one-act plays will be presented admission free on the 122nd bill of experimental plays by the Carolina Playmakers tonight and tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in the Playmaker theater.

The three new plays are "Spanish Moss", by Robert Barr, Kansas City, Mo., "The Atom Cantata", by Sam Hirsch, Trenton, N. J., with music by Harold Schiffman, Greensboro, and "The Binkle Plan", by Robert Rolnik, Brooklyn.

The scene for Barr's "Spanish Moss" is Clearwater, Fla., and it is being directed by graduate student Helen Brown. The cast includes: Violet LaRue, Danny Hughes, Eleanor Woodson, Pete Strader, and Nathaniel White. Ellen Smith is stage manager, and James Byrd is set designer.

Co-authors Hirsch and Schiffman are directing "The Atom Cantata", with Hirsch handling the staging, and Schiffman directing the music. The scene is a universe inhabited entirely by four-legged animals in the year 2048 A. D. William Ayres is handling the setting and lighting, and Louisa Mustin is costume designer. Sam Andrews is pianist.

The cast includes: Edgar Vom Lehn, Burton Hampton, Kermit Albertson, William Collins, Jack Clinard, Milton Bliss, Richard Cox, Barbara Young, John Bridges, David Smith, Frank Echols, Bob Allen, Phyllis Bradshaw, Betsy Green, Colbert Leonard, Effie Westerveldt, and Josephine Fishell.

Graduate student Frederick Johnson is director of "The Binkle Plan".

"In the interests of world peace, prosperity, and plenty, you have been conscripted for the army. Put down that plow."

Ramsey Cites Merits of N. C. Democratic Party in Address

By Jack Brown

'The Democratic party has given to the state honest, intelligent, foward-looking administration of its affairs,' stated D. Hiden Ramsey in his address Tuesday night on campus concerning 'The Democratic party in North Carolina.'

Ramsey, general manager of the Asheville Citizen Times and prominent North Carolina Democrat, was sponsored by the campus Young Democrats club.

'If there has been political achievement in North Carolina since 1901,' said Ramsey, 'the Democratic party must have credit for it.'

No Valid Charge

Ramsey pointed out that in the fifty years that the Democratic party has been in power in North Carolina, there has been no plausible charge of corruption in the party of any high-place official. He went on to say that the party had inflicted upon the people of North Carolina such men as Huey Long, Jim Folsom, and the Talmadges.

"I will not vote for a yellow dog if he is on the ticket," said Ramsey. "I will vote for a Democratic scoundrel."

By the Record

The swelling in the ranks of the Democratic party of this state and the shrinkage of the Republican party, according to Ramsey, is due to "the record that the Democratic party has written that attracted to its support the increasing support of the people."

"North Carolina," he declared, "has done one job better than any other state in the Union, with the exception of Deleware. We have put behind the education of the child in North Carolina the wealth of all the people. That is an achievement of the Democratic party."

No Political Issue

On race relations Ramsey stated that "the Democratic party has steadfastly refused to use the race problem as a political issue." He also pointed out that a reporter from the Wall Street Journal, sent to North Carolina to cover the political scene, wrote back that no state in the Union, not even Northern states, had better race relations than those in North Carolina.

Ramsey declared that North Carolina had made great progress in race relations, and would continue to make progress unless hampered by outside interference.

"Leave race relations in North Carolina," he said, "to the conscience of the people of the state, to their sense of fair play, and

(See RAMSEY, page 4)

Mag Will Feature Section On Wolfe

The May issue of the Carolina Magazine will carry a special section on Thomas Wolfe, and will run a sketch of Wolfe that has never been published.

The sketch was made in 1938, just before Wolfe's death.

The section will include a commerative poem and a special essay on some facet of Wolfe's personality and his writing.

Also included in the section will be the thoughts and reminiscences of many Chapel Hill people who knew Wolfe personally.

Students who have a personal interest in Wolfe, or his work, and would like to submit such poetry or essays are welcomed to come by the mag office.

Willie P. Mangum Medal In Oratory Is Offered Again

The Willie P. Mangum Medal of Oratory will be offered to seniors this spring for the first time in eight years, according to Earl Fitzgerald, chairman of the Debate council.

This year the medal will be awarded to the winner of an oratorical contest to be held sometime during the quarter before commencement.

Coveted Award

Fitzgerald said that at one time this medal was the most coveted award to be offered at the Universiy. The details of the contest will be given at the next meeting of the Senior class. If no more than ten persons show the desire to participate, the contest will not be held, Fitzgerald said.

The award was established in 1878 by the late Misses Mangum, of Orange county in the memory of their father, William Person Mangum of the class of 1915. Originally, the medal was awarded to the member of the Senior class, who during his four years prior to graduation exhibited the best qualities of oratory, debate and scholarship.

Three Generations

Three generations have continued the award: Miss Preston M. Leach of Washington, D. C., Mr. Willie P. Mangum Turner of Winston-Salem and Mr. Willie P. Mangum Weeks of Washington, D. C., class of 1915.

A list of distinguished citizens of North Carolina who have won the medal in the past was released yesterday by Dean Fred Weaver. In commenting on the list, Weaver said, "This is probably the most impressive list of winners of any one award at any university in the country."

First Student After War

The list includes Robert Winston, noted writer and judge, who was the first student to enter the University when it reopened following the Civil War.

Others are: Charles Aycock, North Carolina educator and governor; Dr. E. D. Alderman, former president of UNC, Texas, Tulane and Virgina; Dr. E. K. Graham, cousin of Dr. Frank Graham and former UNC president; and Charles E. Madry, well known minister and missionary who is now studying creative writing here.

Judge John J. Parker, who is a member of the Board of Trustees and was one of the judges

(See MEDAL, page 4)

Long Lacks Only 56 Votes For Runoff; Final Town Legislature Vote Released

UP Nominees Sweep Balloting for Town Legislature Posts

By John Stump

Complete and official returns from Gerrard hall showed yesterday that, as expected, the University party had elected all of its nominees for town men's positions in the Student Legislature.

The eight UP nominees running for full one year terms and Bill Benjamin, UP nominee running unopposed for the short term, polled a vote ranging from 651 for Benjamin to a low of 536 for Andy Corinash whose name was mangled on the ballot and appeared as Kornish.

Tom Kerr, who was also running for editorship of Tarnation, was high man on the Student party ticket with 465 votes. He was elected as the ninth successful candidate. The Campus party did not nominate any candidates for the positions and all other SP candidates were defeated.

UP Chairman Thurman Williams led the ticket for full terms with a total vote of 645 while Bill Benbow was in second position with 642. One write-in vote was recorded for debater Blanton Miller and one for someone identified on the ballot only as "Cracker." Both were in opposition to Benjamin.

Total votes cast for candidates for one year term are Bill Benbow (UP) 642; D. F. Blackwell (SP), 139; Gil Burnett (SP), 323; Joe Byrd (SP), 374; Erwin Danziger (SP), 258; Earl Hartsell (SP) 333.

Tom Kerr (SP) 465; Andy Corinash (UP) 536; Joe Leary (UP) 567; Charlie Loudermilk (UP) 584; Herb Mitchell (UP) 580; Dick Murphy (SP), 303; Jim Nance (UP), 601; George Rodman (UP) 555; Ed Tenney (SP), 319; Thurman Williams (UP), 645; Carter Woolfolk (SP), 285.

For six months term; Benjamin (UP), 651.

JESS DEDMOND was only 56 votes away from the presidency of the student body at midnight last night with 600 votes left to be counted. The results from those 600 may mean the difference between a run-off with Charlie Long and the presidency on the first ballot. Jim Godwin was also leading Johnny Clampitt in the vice-president's race by a margin which could be easily upset with the returns from the last few hundred ballots.

Godwin, Childress Still Hold Leads; Amendments Pass

By Chuck Hauser

With 600 votes from Gerrard hall still uncounted at midnight last night, Charlie Long was still keeping his foot in the run-off door of opponent Jess Dedmond's presidential house.

The finals for the presidential candidates read Dedmond (CP UP) — 1,243, Long (Ind.) — 630, Rubish (SP) — 340 and Manning (Ind.) — 323. Only 56 votes kept Charlie Long in the run-off, and the 600 which were being counted as the Daily Tar Heel went to press will undoubtedly be very important to a great many people.

Godwin in Lead

Jim Godwin, the SP-CP candidate for the vice-presidency was holding a 79-vote lead over UP opponent Johnny Clampitt at presstime. All counts are minus the 600 ballots still out from the Garrard polls, and all counts are still unofficial, according to the Elections board. The V. P. tabulation: Godwin — 1,324 and Clampitt — 1,245.

The hard-working ballot-counters under the direction of Elections Board Chairman Al Winn went to work at 7 o'clock yesterday evening, and looked forward to a rough night of work before all the counting could be completed.

Childress Ahead

In the running for secretary-treasurer, Gran Childress (SP) was leading Bob Kirby (UP) and Earl Fitzgerald (CP) with 767 ballots to Kirby's 715 and Fitzgerald's 610.

For editor of the Daily Tar Heel, Ed Joyner (SP-UP-CP) was sailing into office over Independent Art Melton with a vote of 1,643 to Melton's 748.

For editor of the Yackety Yack Gene Blake (SP-CP) was edging out Bill Duncan (UP) by a tabulation of 636 to 610, while Charlie Gibson (CP) was leading the Tarnation editorship race with 507 votes followed by the UP combination of Tom Wharton and Bob Smith with 480, Tom Kerr (SP) with 302 and Fred Burgess (Ind.) with 108.

Latest results pointed to a run-off between Norm Sper (SP-674) and Charlie Stancell (UP-599) for the head cheerleader's spot, as Jerry Pence pulled 174 independent votes to bring up the rear.

The unofficial word shortly after midnight indicated that all five of the proposed amendments to the constitution had passed the electorate, with the only dissenting voting district being Alderman, which strongly tried to defeat the amendment concerning the autonomy of the Student Legislature over the Coed Senate.

GLEE CLUB

The Women's Glee club will meet at 5 o'clock today in Hill hall.

Students To Give 'Sweep It Clean' As Benefit Show

"Sweep It Clean", musical satire on city politics, will be presented on April 20 and 21 in Memorial hall by students of the dramatic art and music departments for the benefit of the Koch Memorial fund. It will be staged by Marty Jacobs of the Playmakers, with book and lyrics written by Bob Barr and Louise Myers with fourteen new songs by Frank Groseclose.

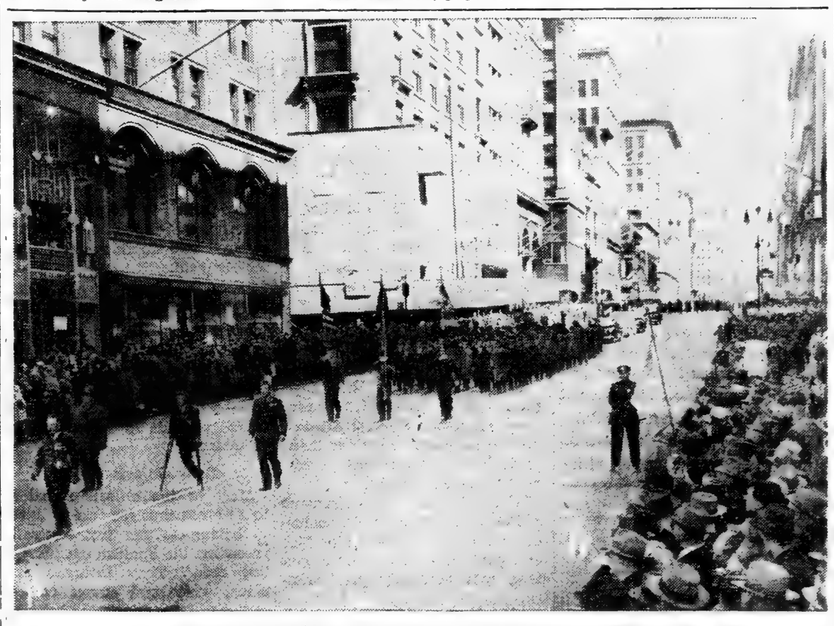
Proceeds of the musical-comedy are earmarked for the improvement of Playmaker facilities and the construction of the Memorial Theater in honor of Prof Koch, Playmaker founder. "Sweep It Clean" has the endorsement of Sam Selden, head of the dramatic art department, and the entire Playmaker staff, Josephina Niggli, famed Chapel Hill author, and the Koch Memorial committee.

The cast includes such top talent as James Geiger in the role of the incapable Senator Dodder. Pat Palmer and Claude (Slate) Rayburn play the comedy leads as the scatterbrained Gee Gee and naive Armbruster. Forrest Covington and Edsel Hughes hold political roles as the crooked Mayor Ross and the honest garbage collector MacNair. Sidney Schertzer, noted for his Playmaker character parts, plays the stooge go-between.

Romantic leads are sung by Sam Greene and Hilda Frances Lawrence with Dick Johnson and Mary Jo Cain doing the dancing leads. Gloria Gunn plays the comedy part of the WCTU chairman. Music is supported by a chorus of twenty-one.

Director Jacobs has danced in Broadway musicals, Lost Colony at Manteo, and directed Army musicals on the West Coast as well as appearing in 20 Playmaker productions. Mary Jo Cain, dancer at the Lost Colony for the past two years, will choreograph the show with the assistance of Frances Johnson. James Riley and Jim Byrd will design scenery and lighting. Costumes will be made by Irene Smart, head of the dramatic art costuming department. Betty Young will stage manage and Walter Johnson is master electrician.

HARTSELL SPEECH



Luther T. Hartsell, grandmaster of the Masons of North Carolina, will speak tonight at 7:30 in the Phi Assembly hall to the

SDA MEETING

The Students for Democratic Action will meet tonight in Horace Williams lounge at 7 o'clock.

Parliamentary Procedure

Legislators and members of the student body who wish to take instruction in parliamentary procedure are requested to meet at the Phi hall, fourth floor, New East, this afternoon at 3 o'clock, according to Pete Gerns, Legislature parliamentarian.

WAR VETERANS PARADE IN PALESTINE PROTEST

SOME OF THE 40,000 VETERANS of the Spanish American War, World War I and II, are shown as they paraded on New York's Fifth Avenue, protesting the U. S. reversal on Palestine partition and pledging victory for the beleagured Holy Land Jews. The marchers included contingents sent from all over the Eastern seaboard by chapters of the Jewish WWar Veterans, American Legion, Catholic War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the American Veterans Committee. The parade was witnessed by an estimated 250,000 sympathizers of all races and creeds.

(International)

The Senator Talks Back

Dr. Frank Graham is a man who needs no defending. His own ideals and personality are too dynamic for that.

Nevertheless, the Tar Heel this morning prints a statement from the Congressional Record which we hope is not so dull as the usual verbiage from that publication. It is a copy of remarks made on the Senate floor by Senator Wayne Morse in rebuke of Senator O'Daniels of Texas, who had spoken none too gently of Dr. Graham in a speech.

The copy was sent to the Tar Heel by Professor Howard K .Beale of the History Department, who said: "I ask you to print this statement because recent events indicate that students on this campus have never learned and some faculty members have forgotten what the best traditions of this University are. The traditions that have made this University great and the ideals that make democracy still the best hope of the world. . .have been more seriously endangered this year on this campus than at any time in the past thirteen years I have been here. These ideals are neither Communist or Fascist, but in the finest sense, American. Mr. Graham stands, as few others do, for these ideals."

Here it is:

I am sure that those who read the speech of the Senator from Texas may at least infer that Dr. Frank Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, was the subject of criticism in that speech. I do not need to say anything in defense of Dr. Graham; and the remarks I now make, Mr President, are not in defense of him, but, rather, are in fairness to him, because I think on the same day when the Congressional Record carries the type of remarks about Dr. Graham that were included in the speech of the Senator from Texas, a statement in support of Dr. Graham's great Americanism should also appear in the Congressional Record.

I served with Dr. Graham for 2 years on the National War Labor Board, during the war. He is the personification, let me say, Mr. President, of the idealism of Americanism. I know of no living man who is more Christlike in character than the great president of the University of North Carolina, Dr. Frank Graham. He is the son of a Confederate officer, one of the great sons of the South, a man who I think must be included in any list of the 25 greatest living Americans, a man who is a great inspiration to the youth of the South—not only to the youth of the South, Mr. President, but to the entire South and to the Nation as a whole. He is a man who recognizes the liberalism of the Constitution of the United States, and who fully appreciates the significance of the freedoms of its Bill of Rights, a man who recognizes that we do not answer opposition by trying to drive it underground, a man who has appeared on the platforms of America before all types of organizations in defense of constitutional government.

Mr. President, I hope we have not reached such a point in America that when one accepts an invitation to speak before any organization, he thereby becomes an endorser of the platforms or policies or principles of that organization. The fact that Dr. Graham, as was pointed out this afternoon by the Senator from Texas, has appeared on the programs of some organizations that we know to be leftist organizations, is no reflection upon his Americanism. Mr. President, as an American liberal I am perfectly willing to appear ,at my convenience, before any leftist organization in America and defend the principles of Americanism for which I stand. I have done so on many occasions. I have done so, making perfectly clear my opposition to the prinicples for which those organizations stand.

Let me say, Mr. President, that in my opinion the way to meet the Communist menace is to keep that menace right out in the open, beard the Communists in their dens, so to speak, go before them and their constituencies and point out to them wherein they stand for principles that cannot be reconciled with the freedoms of our Constitution. Point out to them that the principles for which they stand constitute, in the last analysis, police-state methods, and cannot be reconciled with the individual liberty guaranties of our form of government.

Frank Graham is such a liberal fighter for American principles. I wish to say that the test is not before what audiences a man speaks, but what he says before those audiences. That is the test. I am perfectly willing to let Dr. Graham's record, as set forth in his speeches, speak for itself.

I make these remarks because I think there is a danger from the remarks made this afternoon by the Senator from Texas about Dr. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, some persons might draw an implication reflecting upon the patriotism of Dr. Graham. I make them with this concluding statement, Mr. President ,that it is my honest opinion that a more patriotic American does not live in our country than the distinguished president of the University of North Carolina, Dr. Frank Graham.

The Man Who Made Milwaukee

It probably looked very insignificant in the whirl of campus voting yesterday, but we thought we'd let you know that Harold Stassen won the Wisconsin primary.

If we may quote Rube Goldberg—this complicates things. The Republican presidential race is no longer a two-way sprint.

To many young people (and this is mostly hearsay), Stassen is Young Lochinvar out of the Middlewest. He is able, sensible, and any other adjective you find on a campaign poster. He is liberal enough to make a few Wallacites drop the torch for Henry.

Mr. Stassen's closest competitor in Wisconsin was General Douglas McArthur. To any astute political observer, analysis of this is a cinch. Stassen got twenty of the 27 votes. Most of these were Navy men who were glad to back ex-officer Harold; a few were marines and soldiers, who couldn't see voting for McArthur. The final seven were air raid wardens.

Stassen isn't exactly packaged and ticketed for the White House yet, but he has a surprising percentage of young voters behind him.

Anyway, things were brewing in Wisconsin a couple of days ago. Not that awful amber stuff they make in Milwauke, either.—S.G.

Carousel

Usual Runoffs, Usual Surprises Spark Election

By R. Foo Giduz

Elections ran true to form this year . . . Some 300 candidates . . . Forty-five per cent of student body voted . . . Usual runoffs . . . Usual surprises . . .

And when you get right down to it, men, you just never can predict campus elections . . . (Although smugly we never stop trying!) . . . Though returns at this writing are incomplete, we never would've picked Dedmond so heavily over Long (prayer for a runoff.) . . . Nor "Honest Gran" Childress to play so strongly . . . Likewise the neck-neck Gibson-WhartonSmith Kerrnation race . . . Mellowman and me still have our fingers crossed on the DTH editorship fight; look for interesting developments there. (—Said he mysteriously!)

So sorry to see that the general backing which publications men gave to "Chubby-Cholly" Long in the DTH election-day newspaper backfired. . . Many pollers said they voted against Cholly just because they didn't like the way the editorial page was so "bandwagonly" backing him . . . Men, it didn't turn out that way, and we hope you realize we have an honest sentiment in back of Long . . . And if and when there's a runoff, please consider all candidates on their merits and don't hold Daily Tar Heel backing against them . . .

Though we do not challenge the honesty of the Pro-UMT-Corley-men refusing to enter into open debate with the Committee Against Conscription, we do challenge their wisdom, and further doubt their validity . . . A lot of us (me) are wavering on the conscription cuestion, and feel the best way to settle it would be an open debate with both sides fairly presented at once . . . So C. C. hereby enters an additional personal challenge to the Pro-Umteers to debate with their opposition sometime soon after they've gathered additional Umtee ammo at their next Monday nite rally . . . How about it, men? . . . The Di or Phi should be happy to sponsor your debate.

Neveradullmoment in marriage class (Soc. 62) (Seniors only): —Other day the prof is exposing the problems of pre-marital intercourse . . . The dangers of men seeking the prostitution institution solution . . . So one candid lad stood up for the honesty and sincerity of the women of easy virtue . . . —The class was thrown into an uproar when an equally frank and obviously experienced male in the rear of the room defiantly expostulated, "They are NOT!"

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

"Give'em what they ask for!" is the motto of the campus clip joint, GM's new barbershop on the ground floor, according to W. H. Hough of Siler City, one of two superior barbers employed there. James C. Wilson, who comes in each day from his country home outside of Chapel Hill, is the second clipper employed for the convenience of the male element on campus.

Prices here are the same as those down town, convenience is far better, and time saved is terrif!

Polgar's performance Monday night in Memorial was really super—he had the audience pretty thoroughly convinced that there's more to him than a fake. Rumor has it that he may be able to come back for a second performance in the near future, if there is enough interest on campus to make it worth while.

NOMINATION FOR THE PULITZER PRIZE FOR AN OUTSTANDING CONTRIBUTION TO LITERATURE

Gerald Spavin, the man who spent three days in Russia on a business trip and didn't write a book.

Liberalism Perverted Here

By Randall A. McLeod

The students and faculty in Chapel Hill are not reactionary. We here do not ordinarily "think backwards" or honor dogmatism above a quest for new knowledge. Our school is famous as a center of liberalism because we place freedom of thought and freedom of speech above repression of ideas—even when those ideas are sometimes repugnant to the majority of intelligent thinkers.

But this "liberalism" has been perverted. Insignificantly small groups have claimed the protection of "free speech" while they attack the system of government and economy that makes possible their freedom of speech and even their freedom to be here. They have been energetic and prolific. Though their program is negative and destructive to our way-of-life, we have not refused them publicity or freedom of speech. In fact, we have bent over backward to allow them vastly more news and speaking outlets than they proportionately could deserve. But they have taken advantage of our generosity. By adriot artifices, they have kept state and national "yellow journalism" mills busy. They have not convinced anybody that Chapel Hill has turned "foreign" or "radical". But they have manufactured a false impression. Our friends and relatives—friends of the university—are disturbed. They ask us why do these lurid stories about communism come out of Chapel Hill? Do you at Chapel Hill think it smart to flirt with your own radical destruction?

Ladies and Gentlemen, we are fed up. If there are more than two communists in Chapel Hill, we know they are less than a fragment of one percent of our population. We have promised freedom of speech to everyone. Yet they have slapped us in the face for our generosity. They have given our reputation for true democratic liberalism the stench of perverted license. We are fed up.

The real facts about how strongly we do support genuine American democracy have not been publicized. They have been taken for granted. It is time that we restate our belief in free democracy. Facts are always more powerful than fiction.

I started to organize a poll of the entire student body and faculty. I would have asked these questions: (1) should we allow freedom of speech to everyone; (2) do you think that communism or democratic capitalism should be our form of government? I did not conduct the poll for two reasons: first, I am sure of winning a standing wager that not even one tenth of one percent of all the people here would answer "communism" to the second question. Second, and this is much more important, such a poll is a negative approach. Even though we would declare ourselves wholeheartedly against communism we would not be declaring our true and positive beliefs. We cannot waste time being "against" radical liberalism. We do not have time to corrode ourselves with the anti-social materialsim we despise.

We do have time to practice our free democracy. We do have time to restate our belief that our free democracy can meet the problems of expending technology and make our democracy even stronger. We do have time to speak and write and act out our democratic beliefs. This is a positive approach. This is the way we think in Chapel Hill. It is the way we must act. Democracy is not freedom to be lazy and negative; it is the freedom that demands eternal vigliance to keep that freedom.

Archaeology

Civilization, B. C., in Panama

Washington —(UP)— Archaeologists believe they have found "an extremely early and primitive living site" in Panama.

If advance indications are borne out, the National Geographic Society reported, the site was developed well before the birth of Christ.

It appears to be "the first really early habitation area ever found in Central America." It may even be older than ancient sites discovered in recent years in Mexico.

Efforts to date the Panama habitation have been inconclusive so far. The earliest site thus far found in Mexico, in Chiapas state, was definitely pre-Christian.

Geological evidence indicates that human beings lived in Central American villages anywhere from 2,000 to 7,000 years ago.

A National Geographic-Smithsonian Institution expedition is making explorations in Panama near Parita, about 160 miles southwest of the Canal Zone.

In addition to the pre-Christian era site, the expedition has "uncovered two notable 'firsts'," the society said.

"Its scientists have found the first urn burials ever to be unearthed between Ecuador and the Southeastern United States," the National Geographic said. "They also have discovered the first group of man-made mounds to be located in Panama."

Rare Objects Found

Most of the objects found in those areas thus far "are believed to belong to the two centuries preceding the Spanish conquest of this area." They included red, black, white and purple pottery of "one of the most sophisticated and attractive types made in aborginal America."

It apparently was made in the 14th and 15th centuries.

In one burial urn the archaeologists made what the society call "an unusual find."

It was a "necklace consisting of 748 human teeth, all of them from the front of the mouth."

Write Away

Concerning Italian Communists

Editor:

During the war I was fortunate enough, as a truck-driver, to see a good deal of Italy. Shortly following the invasion I debarked in Taranto. On many of the walls of the city were painted the symbol of the hammer-and-sickle, "Viva il communismo, Stalin, Roosevelt, Churchill." In the subsequent months I traveled through many of the cities and towns of Italy. In dirty, obscure villages of the Apulia, in fishing towns on the Adriatic, in communities dotting the Appennines, in every bombed-out town on the Via Appia clear to Poggibonsi I saw the hammer-and-sickle painted on the walls. Conversely, the only Russians I saw in Italy during the whole of my service there were ones liberated by our troops, and who had been German slave labor.

Talking to people I found out that the Communist Party of Italy, despite twenty-two years of torture, castor-oil treatment, death and exile, had never been destroyed. Indeed, I discovered that it was due to the existence of this party that countless lives of American and Italians were saved; for the work of this party forced Mussolini in no small measure to withdraw from the war. The enormous, and little-known war-effort of the Partigiani in liberating the north is another chapter in the history of this party which has caused it to be respected in that country.

In order to understand the hammer-and-sickles on the walls, the nature of the Italian veneration for the political system espoused by that party, and the tremendous post-war growth of the Communist Party one must know something about Italy. It is one of the most over-populated countries in Europe, and one of the poorest. It has suffered deeply the misery of oppression and war through the last thousand years of its history. Even today a great part of the agricultural set-up of the nation is carried on on the basis of the old latifundia system which dates from Roman days. This system is comparable to our own share-cropper system. The peasants of Italy, particularly in the south, are poor with a poverty that few Americans have seen. The great mass of this peasantry see in the Communist Party a means of reforming the agrarian situation. Thus far that party has been the only one to broach a solution of that problem, namely, the breaking up of the latifundia system.

I should like to mention that the so-called anti-communist policy of the west is nothing new. It was carried on by the AMG in Italy during the war. In the liberated northern areas of Italy, when workers of the Fiat plants in Turin, for example, took over their factories, the first "official" act of the AMG was to force these workers to give back the factories to the employers, many of whom had been facist collaborators.

I should like these facts to be kept in mind during the course of the events of the next few weeks. The election in Italy may well have a more important bearing on our lives than our own elections.

Sidney Shanker

Bad Taste

Editor:

Is there any reason, urgent or otherwise, why candidates for the Spring Elections feel it necessary to plaster their placards over every available inch of space on the campus?

Dorm bulletin boards and other appropriate places, OK. But we begin to view "Vote for Me" entwined carefully about handrail supports on Murphey, and sprouting from convenient branches of otherwise quite handsome trees—that's too much.

Those of us who vote for an given candidate do so ordinarily on grounds of his record and capabilities, not according to the number of posters he has had distributed. Furthermore, f sheets displayed in such high unlikely spots as lowhanging tr limbs is bad taste and looks lik hell.

David H. Whitti

Goody !

Editor:

In a debate during chapel pr gram at Saint Mary's today was proved that a week-end Carolina was more fun to Sa Mary's girls than a week-end State. The quiry was debated on by two Saint Mary's studen and the Carolina side won, det mined by three judges.

Such quips as "The boys at State can walk a straighter line than the boys at Carolina," was returned with. . . "That's because they are gonna have to plow one when they graduate," Frat houses, dance bands, parties, "bigger and longer," and boys in general proved to be better.

Whether this be so or not, tho't I'd pass the judges' decision on to you for safe keeping. Personally, I'd enter Wake Forest in the race.

Congrats. . .
Jane Bell

AGE OF MECHANIZATION

Chicago —(UP)—The machine age has caught up with the Chicago police department. Sixty-four motorcycles have replaced hores in the police mounted division.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lewis Would Have Liked It

By Drew Pearson

Washington.—John L. Lewis would have got a Falstaffian chuckle out of the big Cabinet session to consider what the govment should do about him. Cabinet advisers had a hard time deciding how the mine strike could be solved.

One group of advisers wanted to bargain with Lewis before slapping an injunction on him They were: Press Secretary Charles Ross, Administrative Assistant John R. Steelman, Secretary of the Interior Krug, who tangled with Lewis last year, and Federal Conciliator Cyrus Ching, former head of the U. S. Rubber Company, whom Lewis had bitterly denounced a few days before.

Attorney General Tom Clark then explained the legal aspects of the Taft-Hartley Act, advising that the Government could get an immediate injunction against the strikers. But, he warned, the injunction was sure to be appealed, which would result in a long, drawn-out proceeding.

"What's the country going to use for coal while this is being fought out in the courts?" he asked.

After considerable debate, Secretary Krug finally veered round to using the injunction right away.

"If we're going to crack down, and that seems to be the only solution, let's do it quick and crack down hard," argued Krug.

The Interior Secretary reminded Truman that the country had only 16 days' supply of coal left.

Presidential Adviser Clark Clifford, however, contended that the "dramatic" thing to do would be to let the strike proceed for a time. While others at the secret meeting listened in amazement, the young brain-truster advised Truman that if a real crisis developed from a coal shortage, Lewis would be easier to lick in the courts.

This contribution evoked no favorable response. Clifford then added that, in his opinion, Truman couldn't "lose" in a court fight with Lewis regardless of how quick the Government moved. If an injunction were granted and upheld through appeals, he argued, the President would gain prestige by putting Lewis in his place.

On the other hand, Clifford continued, if the courts ruled for Lewis, the Administration could point to the "inadequacy" of the Taft-Hartley Law.

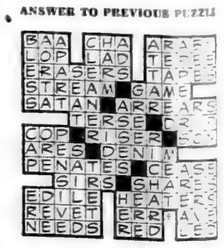
At this point, the President became quite irritated.

"Oh, forget about me," he broke, in "Let's talk about what's good for the country. This is a serious matter. With coal supplies running short, we can't let this strike go on indefinitely. We'll have to do the best we can under the powers Congress has given us. However, before making any decision, I want to give further study to the report of the fact-finding board that has been studying the issues involved here."

With that, Truman abruptly adjourned the meeting.

The American people, if given half a chance, certainly pitch in to work at the democratic principles they believe in.

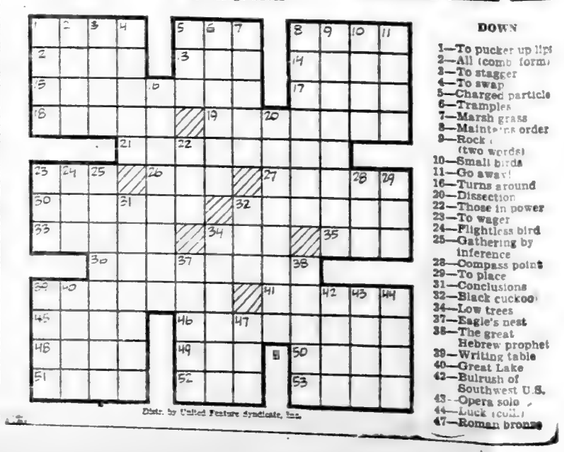
Last week, this column suggested the idea of reaching people behind the iron curtain and on the edge of the iron curtain with radio broadcasts aimed to make the Russian and Italian people think about a democratic peace and friendship with the USA; also that wrist watches plus other things European people covet be offered as prizes for the best letters on how to ensure a democratic peace in Europe.



After all, the Russians upon entering Berlin bought up wrist watches by the bushel. And if we could show them what our western world produces while simultaneously getting them to think about a democratic peace and friendship with the USA then perhaps we could dent the iron curtain.

Biggest reason for the iron curtain, of course, is to prevent the Russian people from knowing how well off the rest of the world is.

Following publication of the column, I was deluged with telegrams from patriotic Americans offering wrist watches and other things coveted in Europe, as prizes for such a radio contest in Italy—where elections are so imminent—and later beamed to Russia.



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Wine
5—Possessive pronoun
8—Calls for silence
12—Hebrew weight
13—Native metal
14—Pert to the ear
15—Undeserved
17—Codlike fish
18—Spanish mark
19—Opposed
21—Indication
23—Bottom of river
26—Printer's measures
27—Geological periods
30—Arabian rulers
32—Chickweed
33—Twists
34—Some
35—To permit
36—Tendency to idealize
39—Contrived
41—Jots
45—Ireland
46—Confirms again
48—To carol
49—Rage
50—Ancient Greek country
51—Small barrels
52—S-shaped worm
53—Large waves

DOWN

1—To pucker up lips
2—All (comb form)
3—To stagger
4—To swap
5—Charged particle
6—Tramples
7—Marsh grass
8—Maintains order
9—Rock (two words)
10—Small birds
11—Go away!
16—Turns around
20—Dissection
22—Those in power
23—To wager
24—Flightless bird
25—Gathering by inference
28—Compass point
29—To place
31—Conclusions
32—Black cuckoo
34—Low trees
37—Eagle's nest
38—The great Hebrew prophet
39—Writing table
40—Great Lake
42—Bullrush of Southwest U.S.
43—Opera solo
44—Luck (coll.)
47—Roman bronze

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods by the Colonial Press, Inc. During the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 8, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year, $3.00 per quarter.

The opinions expressed by the columnists are their own and are not necessarily those of the Daily Tar Heel.

Member of the Associated Collegiate Press Association of the National Collegiate Press Association.

Complete Leased Wire of United Press

Represented for national advertising by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

FOR THIS ISSUE: NIGHT EDITOR: Herb Nachman NIGHT SPORTS: Buddy Vaden

Netmen Drub Williams In First Of Two Duels; Golfers Face Same Team Today

Tar Heel Baseballers Open Road Trip With South Carolina Today

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

Columbia, April 7—The University of North Carolina baseball team arrived here this evening for their scheduled game with the South Carolina Gamecocks tomorrow in the Tar Heels' first Southern Conference title of the campaign and the opener of a three-game slate for the visitors in the Palmetto state.

Righthander Frank Robinson will take the hill for Carolina tomorrow in his second starting assignment of the year. Robinson won his first start against Michigan State, giving up only a brace of hits in his eighth inning stint. His last mound service was against Yale, when he came in to relieve Vinnie DiLorenzo in the eighth inning with two men on base. The two runs eventually scored, but Robbie held the Elis in check the rest of the way.

Hardhitting Club

South Carolina has a hard-hitting club this year and holds decisions over Duke, Michigan State, and Newberry. The Gamecocks are fifth in the Southern conference race with a .500 average in two loop games. In the two games they have counted 16 runs to 15 for their opponents.

The Tar Heels will remain here tomorrow night and will move on to Clemson Friday morning where they will meet the Clemson Tigers, defending conference titleholders. The Tigers were the District 3 representatives to the NCAA tournament last year and were eliminated by Yale, the eventual runner-up.

Saturday morning the travelling nine will journey to Greenville to face Furman. They will return to Chapel Hill Saturday evening.

Furman was the only one of the schools on the Carolina schedule last season, but the game was rained out after the third inning. Unless the Hurricanes have improved considerably since last year, they shouldn't cause the Hearnmen much trobule. However the last place club is generally the one to knock off the league leaders.

Two newcomers will probably get a chance to start one of the three games. Backstop Andy Tranavitch, a highly regarded freshman will probably start one of the contests so that the coaching staff can get an idea how he stacks up in actual competition.

Will Hobbs, the hero of the Yale game, is on the list for a tryout at first base. Hobbs came into the Yale contest with the Tar Heels trailing by two runs and stroked the single that counted two runs to tie the score.

Hearnmen Open Loop Play at Columbia; Robinson Gets Nod For Pitching Duty

DiLorenzo and Blair

DiLorenzo is slated to open the second game for the Blue and White and Ray Blair will be the choice against Furman. Dean Cassell and Tommy Andrews will be standing by in the bullpen should any of the starters need help.

Branch will probably open at second base for the Hearnmen and Frank Jones will guard right field. Otherwise the lineup will be the same as usual with Rip Ryan at short and Jim Hayworth at third rounding out the infield. Jim Kelly, leftfield, and centergardener Kenny Black complete the outer line of defense.

Co-captain Hayworth leads the squad in hitting as they embark for South Carolina, having one more hit to his credit than Kelly, Big Four batting champion. The two are all tied up in the RBI department with four apiece.

CO-CAPTAINS OF THIS YEAR'S Carolina varsity are the two smiling boys shown above, Jim Hayworth, left, and Jim Hamilton. Roommates and baseball buddies, the two infielders are both in their final season with the Tar Heels.

Freshman Tracksters Down Durham; Dave Willis Takes Firsts in 100 and 220

Carolina's freshman thinclads proved to Coach Ralph Casey and the Durham high Bulldogs that they are anything but an unknown quantity as they showed their heels to the visitors to the tune of a 76-46 defeat of the Bull City boys.

Sprinter Dave Willis led the Tar Babies to their first victory of the season by dashing off with blue ribbon honors in the 100 and 220 yard events. Doug Howell came in for runner-up honors in the individual scoring by taking first place in the 120 yard high hurdles and second in the 220 yard low hurdles.

The hotly contested mile relay, which saw the high school boys edge the collegians in the last lap, was the closest race of the afternoon. Guntor of Durham jumped to an early lead in the first quarter but in the second lap Rouse of Carolina made up the 10 yard deficit and moved ahead only to lose it just before he handed off the baton.

Bill Crimmins of Carolina moved into the lead but Wolfe of Duke moved up and the two staged a neck and neck finish at the close of the third quarter. Ewing of Durham iced the decision for the Bulldogs by grabbing the lead in the final lap and winning by a good margin.

Carolina easily took all three places in the 100 yard dash by several yards. The mile marathon was close, but Byrd, who has been the state champion in this event for the past two seasons, took a big lead in the last lap to win.

The 880 was another tight fight that saw Frank Hooper move into the lead in the last ten yards to edge out Poe and Hines of Durham. The two boys had lead the field until the last few yards.

Stan White of Carolina won the 440 in the good time of 52.8. Willis won the 100 and 220 in 10.2 and 23.2, respectively.

Ping Pong Tourney To Be Held Tonight

Graham Memorial will hold another of its one-night table tennis tournaments this evening at 7 30 in the GM game room.

Theater tickets will be awarded to the winner of the tourney. Dave Boak is the defending champion. Clark Taylor and Ray Morris, who have been finishing one-two in the winter quarter contests probably will not see any more action until the completion of the tennis schedule.

Coeds Advance In Badminton

Seven more coeds have moved into the second round of play in the current badminton tournament.

Victors of their matches are Pat Winslow over Emily Von Borries. 11-4, 11-3; Mildred Tilson over Alice Jones. 11-7, 11-7; Marshall Spears over Katie Guion. 11-9,11-5; Helen Crockford over Betsy Tom Laurence, 11-9, 11-4; Jean Sommervel over Betty Ann Cooper. 11-0, 11-0; Bunny Davis over Estelle Lassiter, 11-9, 11-2; and Estelle Jones over Reet Aldrich by forfeit.

SPLASH CLUB TRYOUTS

Tryouts for membership in Splash Club, the coed swimming group, will be held again today at 5 o'clock in the Bowman Gray pool. Those girls interested in participating in the May pageant are invited to attend.

Linksmen Will Seek Fourth Win in Row

By Billy Carmichael, III

Carolina's smooth-stroking golf team, minus Master's-mill Harvie Ward, will seek their fourth straight win of the season this afternoon at Hope Valley country club at the expense of the touring lads of Williams college. The first foursome will tee off at 1:30.

With Ward in Augusta, Coach Chuck Erickson will find himself a little short-handed today in the way of veteran performers, but the master of the linksmen intends to reach into his bag of newcomers in an attempt to come up with a passable replacement.

The shake-up for the day will push Roy McKenzie, the up-and-coming sensation into the No. 1 position with Jack Brantley, who has been playing some bang-up golf of late teaming with him at No. 2.

Cox in Third Spot

Bob Cox, who can net the extra points on the fairways as he does on the gridiron, will remain at the No. 3 spot to carry the best ball proceedings in the second foursome with the Fayetteville sophomore, Harvey Oliver probably slipping into the No. 4 slot, at least for the day.

That will leave Frank Brooks, the first year man from Siler City the only other starter of previous experience on hand on the No. 5 rung. Brooks is one of the brightest spots in the Tar Heel golfing picture. The 17-year old lad resembles Ward at an earlier age, hitting the ball long and true from the tees, showing definite ability on his second shots and a fine, steady putting game.

The No. 6 position is still in doubt, but it is expected that Pete Beaudry, still another new face who showed lots of promise in the qualifying rounds earlier in the year, will break into the lineup.

Visitors Unknown

The visitors of Williams are of unknown strength, but it is expected that they will not probably be in the best of condition because of the limited opportunity for outdoor play in the North at this time of year.

Still, Coach Erickson is not taking the match lightly, especially with the ever-dependable Ward fighting for national honors in Georgia.

Galleries of several hundred have been following the golfers in earlier matches this season, and a large crowd is expected today.

The 6700-yard Hope Valley layout is nearing top shape with the exception of several greens.

SENIOR LIFE-SAVING

All students interested in taking the Red Cross senior life-saving course are asked to meet this afternoon at 5 o'clock in 304 Woollen with swimming Coach Dick Jamerson. The classes will be open to women.

Quick Service

DURHAM
OPTICAL COMPANY
215 W. Main St.
Phone F-2141 Durham

Ward, Nation's Best Begin Masters' Golf

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

Augusta, Ga., April 7—Carolina's fair-haired boy of the fairway, Harvie Ward, will tee off with the nation's best golfers here tomorrow in quest of golfdom's coveted Masters' golf title.

The famed Augusta national course will be the tricky obstacle that the big names of golf will attempt to master in their four-day, 72-hole stay, and the drenching downpour that fell here today made it look as if the test would be all the harder.

Ward arrived by car Tuesday night and got in a couple of practice rounds today. Although the Tarboro Terror posted no cards for the day's play, clubhouse talk made the North Carolina amateur one of the boys to watch among the simonpures.

Today's Murals

SOFTBALL

4:00—Field 1: Old West vs. Battlers; 2: Graham 1 vs. Lewis 2; 3: Stanley Steamers vs. Alexander 1; 4: Clippers vs. Ruffin; 5. Mangum 1 vs. Steele; 6: Stacy vs. Miller; 7: PiKA 2 vs. SAE 1; 8: Graham vs. Everett; 9: SAE vs. Beta 2.

5:00—Field 1: Wesley Rockets vs. Club H-2-3; 2: Sig Nu 1 vs. Phi Lamb; 3: Seiler Five vs. Aycock; 4: Emerson vs. Whitehead; 5: St. A vs. Phi Delt 2; 6: Mangum 2 vs. Med School; 7: Chi Psi 2 vs. Phi Delt 1; 8: Law School vs. Bombers; 9: ATO 2 vs. Beta 1.

RIFLE FIRING

4:00—ATO vs. Kappa Sig.
7:30—SAE vs. DKE.

SWIMMING MOVIES

Movies of the Carolina swimming meets with Florida and VMI will be shown this evening at 7:30 in 304 Woollen, team member Bob Ousley announced yesterday. Members of the squad and all others interested are invited to attend.

BASEBALL RESULTS

Brooklyn (N) 12 Tulsa (Tex) 1
Chicago (A) 10 Pittsburgh (N) 2
Boston (A) 14 New Orleans (Sou) 6
Cleveland (A) 7 New York (N) 5
Chattanooga (Sou.) 4 Wash. (A) 2
Toronto (Int.) 15 Philadelphia (A) 3
St. Louis (N) 8 Columbus (Sou) 2 (A) 3
Cincinnatti (N) 11 Philadelphia

Mural Softball Card Features Heavy Hitting

The mural diamond sluggers continued unchecked into their third straight day of powerhouse hitting yesterday with only one close game on an 18 game slate.

Kap Sig No. 1 trailing, 3-2 in the last of the seventh, came up with a two-run rally to edge TEP No. 1 in the only tight game of the afternoon.

The games that came closest to being any sort of struggle were the two captured by Phi Kap No. 2 and Phi Delt No. 3 by the identical score of 12-11 over Chi Phi No. 1 and KA No. 1 respectively.

The Phi Kap No. 1 ball club took the batting honors for the afternoon by going on a 14 run rampage in the second inning to end their game with Sigma Nu No. 2. 17-2.

Sig Ep jumped off to a big 11 run lead in the early frames to walk away from ZBT, 25-5.

Another free hitting battle found Chi Phi No. 2 dumping Delt Sig No. 2 with an 11 run second-rack, 22-13. Both Sig Chi teams were buried under heavy hitting opponents. Zeta No. 2 tallied nine times in the last inning to clinch an 18-3 win over the No. 2 team. eZat No. 1 also played the big frame with 8 in the fifth to top Sig Chi No. 1, 17-11.

Mural Results

12 Phi Kap 2	Chi Phi 1 11
17 Mud Dobbers	Old East 2
16 Phi Gam 3	TEP 2 5
4 Kap Sig 1	TEP 1 3
25 Sig Ep	ZBT 5
15 Kap Sig 2	PiKa 1 4
8 Chi Psi 1	DKE 2 4
8 Phi Gam 1	KA 2 2
22 Chi Phi 2	Delt Sig 2 13
18 Zeta 2	Sig Chi 2 3
12 Phi Delt 3	KA 1 11
14 Pi Kap Phi	ATO 1 6
17 Zeta 1	Sig Chi 1 11
8 Delt Sig 2	Lamb Chi 1 4
17 Phi Kap 1	Sig Nu 2 2
11 DKE 1	Phi Delt Chi 4
15 Clippers	Alexander 2 9
17 Lamb Chi 2	Kap Psi 12

Tar Heels Triumph in Fourteen Matches; New Englanders Play Here Again Today

Coach John Kenfield's Carolina netters, displaying no fatigue as a result of three matches in as many days, swept to their seventh victory of the season yesterday afternoon on the Varsity courts by defeating Williams College by the weird score of 14-1.

A squad of ten players made the trip from Massachusetts down South, and in order that all these boys might see action, it was decided to play 15 matches instead of the traditional nine. Carolina copped nine of ten singles matches and was victorious in all five of the doubles events.

Williams will face the Tar Heels again this afternoon in hopes of bettering their performance of yesterday. The match will get underway at 2 o'clock.

Newcomer Loses

All of the veteran Tar Heel netters came through in fine style in their matches. Only Jim Gallion, who is not a regular member of the squad, was unable to win in singles. Gallion was recruited for the team so that ten men could be fielded. Jim, however, turned in some good work in the doubles division as he and Stan Gruner defeated Williams' Humphrey and Platt.

In other singles matches, Captain Vic Seixas ran into considerable trouble against Stewart Robinson before coming off with a 6-4, 6-4 win for his sixth success in seven starts. Robinson, of small stature but considerable stroking ability, was even up with Seixas in the first set at 4-4, but the Carolina captain took the next game and grabbed the sixth and decisive game by breaking through Robinson's service. The second set was another close affair, with Seixas holding the upper hand for most of the way.

Taylor Wins Again

Clark Taylor, the Tar Heel number two man, displayed his usual steady brand of play in scoring a 6-4, 6-1 win over the visitors' Schaaf. The win extended Taylor's victory string to seven straight.

Taylor and Seixas, who haven't been too impressive in some of their doubles matches this season, were in top form yesterday. They disposed of Scribner and Schaaf with no trouble, 6-0, 6-0, in an impressive exhibition.

Ray Morris, another undefeated local netter, once again turned in an excellent match, stopping Scribner in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3. Charlie Rice, number four man of the Carolina squad, also was triumphant, taking a 6-2, 6-4 decision over Williams' Palmer.

Besides Seixas and Taylor, other doubles combinations that scored victories for the Blue and White were Morris and Rice, Alexander and Skakle, Daniels and Dameron, and Gruner and Gallion.

The Summary:

Singles—Seixas (C) defeated Robinson, 6-4, 6-4. Taylor (C) defeated Schaaf, 6-4, 6-1. Morris (C) defeated Scribner, 6-3, 6-3. Rice (C) defeated Palmer, 6-2, 6-4. Skakle (C) defeated Platt, 6-1, 6-2. Alexander (C) defeated Thurber, 6-1, 6-1. Gruner (C) defeated Spencer, 6-3, 6-1. Daniels (C) defeated Lincoln, 6-0, 6-1. Mason (W) defeated Gallion, 6-1, 6-4. Dameron (C) defeated Humphreys, 6-1, 6-2.

Doubles—Seixas-Taylor (C) defeated Scribner-Schaaf, 6-0, 6-0. Morris-Rice (C) defeated Palmer-Robinson, 6-4, 6-4. Alexander-Skakle (C) defeated Lincoln-Spencer, 6-3, 6-4. Daniels-Dameron (C) defeated Maston-Thurber, 6-0, 6-2. Gruner-Gallion (C) defeated Platt-Humphrey, 6-4, 6-3.

University Florist
"For the Best in Flowers"
Pick Theatre Bldg.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Telephone 9816

Planning Any Week-Ends at the Beach in April & May
We have 16 Apts. and a ten room house for house parties at Writesville up until June 1st.
For Rates-Reservations Write
ALLEN BARBEE
Box 243
Spring Hope, N. C.

Missouri Waltz
By the man who smashed the Pendergast machine—
MAURICE M. MILLIGAN
Ab's Intimate Bookshop

Dr. William T. Kohn
announces the opening of his office
for the practice of
OPTOMETRY
Visual Training
Contact Lenses
Call 3686
Office Hours Daily and by Appointment
Monday-Friday 9:00-5:00
Saturday 9:00-1:00
Chapel Hill
over Carolina Coffee Shop

CAROLINA

SALE! for limited time only!
TWO FAMOUS ELIZABETH ARDEN CREAMS

ARDENA CLEANSING CREAM
ARDENA VELVA CREAM
REGULARLY $3
NOW $2 EACH
price plus taxes

THE REASON? DISCONTINUED WAR-TIME JARS!
Due to an overstock of discontinued war-time jars we are now offering the famous Ardena Cleansing and Velva Creams, at this special price. The jars are pink and only a perfectionist like Miss Arden herself could tell the difference . . . the cream is fresh as a daisy—in fact, last week's manufacture. Limited supply only.
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

Playmakers' 'Call Back Yesterday' To Be Presented At Theater Meeting

Delegates from 14 Southern states to the Southeastern theater meeting in Chapel Hill, will see the Carolina Playmakers production of Gene A. McLain's new full length play, "Call Back Yesterday", on April 12, the first day of the two-day theater assembly.

McLain's play was produced in March, and the Playmakers are holding it over to show the theater directors and players, because of the play's highly experimental nature. "Call Back Yesterday" was well received by Chapel Hill audiences during the four nights of its premiere run, and it is being presented with the same cast and staging crew as before. Harry E. Davis is director of the play.

Community and university theater leaders from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, and Washington, D. C., are scheduled to attend the assembly.

The Southeastern Theater meeting is being sponsored by the Playmakers in collaboration with the National Theater Conference.

DORM ROOMS

Twenty-seven students now eligible for dormitory rooms must claim them by Thursday or their depositis will be refunded and their applications cancelled.

Robert B. Ausley, Eugene B. Baskett, Charles S. Burns, Daniel G. Campbell, Mason C. Carpenter, James R. Danion, James Z. Godwin, Ernest Graham, Dennis M. Harris, Thomas J. Hunt, Donald B. Ipock, Delma Jessup, Edward S. Jones, Edward Lamb, Donald McFee, John D. Medling, Gerald M. Murrell, George R. Powers, Joseph Salem, Dale M. Shepherd, Reginald H. Starr, John B. Stephenson, Nelson W. Taylor, III, Wallace E. Thompson, Eugene H. Turner, Charles M. White, Lyman L. Wilkins.

RADIO CLUB

There will be an important meeting of the Radio club tonight at 7:15 in Swain Hall. All members and interested persons are urged to attend.

Accident Involves Two Local Students

Lincoln Kan, student in the political science department, was driving the car which was involved in a collision Tuesday night in which one Durham man was killed and another injured.

The accident occurred at the intersection of the Durham-Chapel Hill road and the Hope Valley road about 11:30 at night.

The two men were riding a motorcycle, while Kan was in the car with another student, Bill Cromwell. Both are in the CCUN organization with offices in Graham Memorial on campus.

No Exam Necessary To Renew Insurance

According to a Veterans Administration bulletin all veterans who wish to have their service insurance re-instated without taking a physical examination must do so before the 31st of July, 1948.

The present regulations require that after July 31, a physical exam must be taken and a report, along with the VA form 353a, Application of re-instatement, must be sent to the proper VA Regional Office. If the exam shows that the vet is still insurable then his policy will be re-instated.

Forms for the re-instatement of the insurance may be obtained at the VA office at 111 Peabody building.

GRADES READY

Student's grades will be available in Registration hall, Venable X, today and tomorrow, from 9 in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon and on Saturday morning from 9 until 1 o'clock, Central Records Director Edwin Lanier announced yesterday.

DIVING CHAMPION AT DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Vickey Draves of the Los Angeles Athletic Club is shown after she won the one meter diving contest at the Women's National Amateur Athletic Union Indoor Swimming Championships. (International Soundphoto)

TOWN GIRLS ELECTION

The Town Girls association elected officers Monday night for the coming year. Installation will be held at the Episcopal church on Monday, April 19 at 5:30.

Those elected were: Carolyn Guthrie, president; Letsy Pearson, vice-president; Betsy Emory, secretary; Marie Sparrow, treasurer; Patty Winslow and Mary M. Kear, co-social chairmen.

-Ramsey-

(Continued from page 1)

to the gratefulness of another race."

Favors System

Ramsey spoke highly in favor of the two-party system.

"It will be an ill day for this country," said Ramsey, "if we ever adopt 'splinter parties' such as those which have cursed many European countries. We do not want, we cannot stand the doubtful luxury of multiple parties in the United States."

Preceeding the address a banquet was given at the Carolina Inn by the YDC in honor of Ramsey. Approximately 25 people attended, among whom were Dr. and Mrs. Frank Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey, and Chancellor R. B. House.

UVA Announces Elections Date

The University Veterans association will hold its elections the first Monday in May, it was disclosed yesterday.

The elections, held every six months, will be for all offices except the Board of Governors, who are appointed.

Johnny Clampitt, president of the UVA, said that plans are being furthered for the coming square dance. He said that A. B. Coleman, social chairman, is working on the plans now. The dance is scheduled for April 16. The square dance will be followed by a masquerade ball around the middle of May.

These dances are being held to provide entertainment for the members of the UVA and to try and get other veterans interested in the club.

-Medal-

(Continued from page 1)

at the Nurenberg trials; William B. Umstead, U. S. Senator and chairman of the North Carolina Democratic party; Dr. Albert Coates, professor of law and founder of the Institute of Government; and Fred H. Weaver, University dean of men.

CO-OP DINNER

Monday through Thursday of each week a group of students pool their money and time in a co-operative plan aimed toward saving students money along the food line. This "supper co-op" meets at 6 o'clock in the Presbyterian church.

Any student who is interested in joining this group are requested to meet with the group for supper, and to become acquainted with the individual members.

Campus Calendar

4:00 p. m.—Campus Party, Roland Parker No. 2.
7:00 p. m.—World Federalists, 109 Caldwell.
5:00 p. m.—Women's Glee club, Hill hall.
7:00 p. m.—Course in Parliamentary Procedure, Caldwell 105.
7:00 p. m.—Bridge Tournament, Main lounge.
7:30 p. m.—S. D. A., Horace Williams lounge.
7:30 p. m.—Young Republicans, Roland Parker No. 1.
8:00 p. m.—Catholic Roundtable. Grail room.
8:00 p. m.—Philosophy club, Roland Parker No. 3.

CLASSIFIED

FOR RENT 6A

ROOM AVAILABLE NOW FOR SUMmer school to male student. One block from campus. Phone 3341 between 1 and 2 p.m. (1-117-1)

ROOM AND BOARD FOR MEN ONLY. Inquire at Rock House. Poplar Ave., Carrboro. (1-C118-1)

FOR SALE 6B

WE ARE NOW OFFERING SEVERAL more new Cape Cod bungalows just completed and being completed. Located in new development just off Raleigh Road on Rogerson Drive. Priced right with attractive term arrangements. Preference given to veterans. For full particulars contact Hill Homes, Inc., 27 Rogerson Drive. Telephone F-2906. (1-ch1x2-1)

WHIZZER MOTOR BIKE IN EXCELlent condition. Priced for quick sale. May be inspected at Quonset Hut No. 25, Warren Olsen, Hut 25, Box 127. (1-112-1)

24 FOOT GLIDER HOUSE TRAILER. Immediate occupancy. Lot 76 University Married Couples Trailer Court. (1-106-1)

FIVE ROOM HOUSE ON JUSTICE Street. Floor furnace, gas stove and automatic hot water heater. Large lot; immediate occupancy. John Foushee, Real Estate. (1-ch1x1-1)

27 FT. HOUSE TRAILER, SLEEPS four. 82 Pittsboro Road Trailer Court. Inquire between 5 and 6 p.m. (1-115-1)

LADIES ENGLISH BIKE FOR SALE. Good condition. $20.00 Call F-2162. (1-116-1)

FOR SALE AUTOMOTIVE 6BB

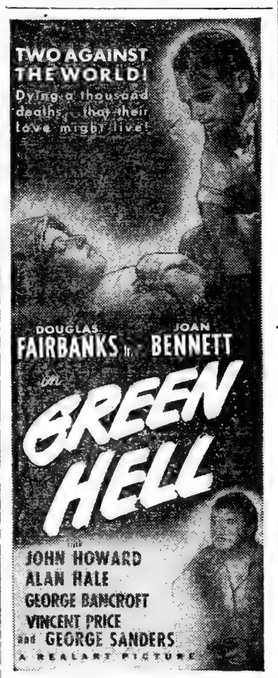
1941 PACKARD CONVERTIBLE. Excellent motor, good body, and fair tires. Radio and heater. Call 4881. (1-120-1)

LOST 12

SHELL CORDOVAN WALLET WITH valuable papers. $45-$55 inside. Liberal reward for recovery. Fred Page, 111 Pickard Lane. Phone 7381. (1-119-1)

SERVICES OFFERED 19

COMPLETE MODERN RADIO APpliance service shop now open and ready to serve you. We call for, deliver. Johnson-Strowd-Ward Furniture, 422 W. Franklin. Telephone F-3491. (ch 1x1)



24 HOUR RADIO REPAIRS. OGBURN Furniture Co., Phone 5841. (ch 1x1)

WANTED TO RENT 24B

APARTMENT FOR TWO YEARS FOR couple. Write 821 Second St., Durham. Phone X-5012. (1-113-1)

PRESCRIPTIONS
Filled Promptly
ACCURACY AND DEPENDABILITY
—at—
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

DRAFT BEER
Call 3536
for
PRICE quotations
K & M
BEER DELIVERY
SERVICE
Call 3536
119½ Columbia Street

—TODAY—
VILLAGE

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

The customer is always — RIGHT AT HARRY'S

LANG'S Sweet Mixed PICKLES Qt. Bot. 23c
A&P
shower's of savings
GULF'S BEST Sweet Potato YAMS 2 No. 2½ Cans 25c
FRANK TOO BRAND FREESTONE SLICED PEACHES IN HEAVY SYRUP 11-Oz. Loaf 10c
3 New— at your friendly A&P
Enriched Daily Dated MARVEL WHITE BREADS
REGULAR PAN, 16-oz. Loaf 13c
SANDWICH, 1½ Lb. Loaf 18c
REGULAR PAN, 1½ Lb. Loaf 18c
HOME STYLE, 1½-Lb. Loaf 18c
Jane Parker Cinnamon or Sugared BREAKFAST ROLLS, Pkg. 25c
Marvel Sandwich or FRANKFURTER ROLLS, Pkg. 15c
Jane Parker Cinnamon DOUGHNUTS, 1-Doz. Pkg. 19c

For Every Cleaning Need!
BRIGHT SAIL
SAIL THROUGH YOUR Spring Cleaning
Make a clean sweep of your house-cleaning problems with Bright Sail cleaning aids, Soap Powder, Polish or Wax—each is a real wonder-worker and is sold exclusively by A&P and attractively priced to fit your budget.
AMMONIA Bright Sail Qt. Bot. 12c
LIQUID WAX Bright Sail Pt. Can 25c
SOAP POWDER Bright Sail Pkg. 21c
SAL SODA Bright Sail 2½ Lb. Pkg. 9c
SOAP GRAINS Bright Sail Lge. Pkg. 34c
WINDEX Window Cleaner 6-oz. Bot. 14c
WINDEX SPRAYER each 11c
SPICK & SPAN 2 Pkgs. 43c
DREFT OR VEL Pkg. 31c
RINSO OR DUZ Lge. 36c
FURNITURE POLISH Apenm 20-oz. Bot. 19c
SWIFT'S CLEANSER Pkg. 11c
PASTE WAX Old English 1-Lb Can 55c
HAND SOAP Bright Sail 1-Lb. Can 9c
WOODBURY SOAP 3. Bars 31c
Shortening Swift Jewel 4-Lb. Ctn. $1.30
Flour Sunnyfield Self-Rising 10-Lb. Bag 80c
Apple Sauce A&P Fancy 2 No. 2 Cans 25c
Iona Peas Fine Flavor 3 No. 2 Cans 29c
Apple Butter Sultana 28-Oz. Jar 19c
Cocktail Libby's Fruit No. 1 Can 24c
Cheese Mild American Lb. 49c
Dressing Ann Page Salad Pt. Jar 33c
Spaghetti Ann Page Prepared 2 15¾-Oz. Cans 23c
NECTAR TEA ¼-Lb. Pkg. 27c ½-Lb. Pkg. 51c

Fresh Fruits & Vegetables
Fresh and Tender GREEN BEANS, 2 lbs. 27c
Florida ORANGES, 2 doz. 29c
Large GRAPEFRUIT, 5 for 27c
Cooking APPLES, 4 lbs. 29c
Green PEPPER, 2 lbs. 25c
Yellow SQUASH, 2 lbs. 25c
White SQUASH, lb. 10c
Dried Fruits
Large A&P PRUNES, lb. 19c
Sun Dried PEACHES, lbs. 25c
A&P Seedless RAISINS 16c
A&P Seeded RAISINS 16c
Dromedary DATES 23c
Fresh California DATES, 2 lbs. 35c
A&P COFFEE
MILD and MELLOW
8 O'CLOCK 1-Lb. Bag 40c • 3 Lb. Bag $1.15
Rich and Full Bodied RED CIRCLE 1-Lb. Bag 43c
Vigorous and Winey BOKAR COFFEE 1-Lb. Bag 45c, 3 Lb. Bag $1.29
FINE QUALITY MEATS
Swift Premium—Kingan's Reliable—Monell Pride
SLICED BACON, lb. 69c
SWIFT PREMIUM FRANKS, lb. 49c
ROLL SAUSAGE, Swift Premium, lb 47c
CHUCK ROAST BEEF, lb. 57c
GROUND HAMBURGER BEEF, lb 45c
LEG O LAMB, Half or Whole, lb 69c
Square Cut SHOULDER OF LAMB, lb. 49c
SHOULDER ROAST VEAL, lb. 59c
SHOULDER VEAL CHOPS, lb. 65c
PORK CHOPS, Center Cut, lb. 69c
SMOKED PICNICS, lb. 49c
FAT BACK, Thick, lb. 25c
RIB SIDE, lb. 39c
FRYERS, Table Dressed, lb. 68c
HENS, Table Dressed, lb. 56c
FRESH SEAFOODS
NO OTHER FOOD STORE OFFERS YOU MORE LOW PRICES MORE DAYS A WEEK THAN A&P
Ann Page Gelatin Desserts SPARKLE 3 Pkgs. 19c
SUPER MARKETS
WHITE HOUSE EVAP. MILK 3 Tall Cans 39c

LIBRARY (Periodical Dept)
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.
1-31-48

WEATHER
Partly cloudy and cooler

The Daily Tar Heel

EDITORIALS
Competition for Quarterly
All Day Sucker
War Weapons

VOLUME LVI | United Press | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1948 | Phone F-3371—F-3361 | NO. 136

Dedmond Faces Long In Runoff Tuesday; Four Other Major Posts To Be Decided

Jim Godwin, Ed Joyner Are Elected; Childress, Kirby On Tuesday's Slate

Five battles for major campus posts will be featured in next Tuesday's runoff election, with presidential candidates Jess Dedmond and Charlie Long scheduled for the title bout.

CP-UP-backed Dedmond almost made the local White House on the first ballot with a total of 1,510 votes, but Independent Long spoiled his fun by polling 817 votes. This, added to Dick Manning's 443 (Ind.) and Mike Rubish's 399 (SP), was enough to give the boys a gentle hint that the top office would still be open for another week of campaigning and planning.

Jim Godwin (CP-SP) sneaked in behind Johnny Clampitt (UP) to steal the vice-presidency with a margin of only 48 votes. the count standing at 1596 to 1548.

Gran Childress (SP—894) and Bob Kirby (UP—1,477) will hit the runoffs leaving Earl Fitzgerald (CP) behind with 592 votes.

Ed Joyner swamped Art Melton with his triply-endorsed 2,-163 ballots to Melton's 892 for the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel, while Bill Duncan (UP—1,653) passed Gene Blake (CP-SP) for the Yackety Yack editorial position.

The humor mag runoff will see UP men Tom Smith and Bob Wharton fight it out with CP Charlie Gibson for the Tarnation top spot. The count: Wharton-Smith — 1,308, Gibson — 1,-021, Tom Kerr (SP) — 435 and Fred Burgess (Ind.) — 232.

Norm Sper (SP — 1,355) will

(See ELECTIONS, page 4)

Smith, Bryson Poll Majority In Council Vote

With a total of 3,719 votes cast for senior members of the Men's council, Stan Smith and Herman "Bud" Bryson, both selection board candidates, polled slightly more than 50 per cent of the votes necessary for election.

A runoff has been called for the two junior members of the council between Dick Boren (Sel. bd.-779), Charlie Smith (Ind.-615), Charlie Loudermilk (Sel. Bd-569), and Pfohla Wilmoth (Sel. Bd.-483).

Sophomores elected to the council were Bruce Sanborn and Chuck Northend, both selection board candidates.

Dorm men elected for a 12 months term in the Student Legislature are: Herb Alexander and Al Lowenstein, SP; Kyle Barnes, UP; Richard Bowen, Tom Cunningham, Ben Kistler, and Jack Worsham, CP; Banks Talley and Ed Washington, CP-SP; Ted Leonard, CP-UP; and Wilson Yarborough, SP-UP.

For the three six months term in the Student Legislature there will be a runoff between Bob Allen (SP-570), Bob Payne (SP-458), John Rosser (CP-401), Durwood Jones (CP-383), and Bob Baxter (SP-376).

Four Divisions Due for Runoff In Coed Voting

Final and official returns on coed balloting calls for a runoff in four divisions, Student council, speaker of the Coed Senate, WAA council president, and Student Legislature.

In the runoff for the three coed members of the Student council are Fern Hughes (UP-190), Liddy Bett Myatt (UP-166), Iris Bost (SP-156), Marty Davis (SP-145), and Emily Baker (SP-139).

For speaker of the Coed Senate, a runoff will be held between Frances Angas with 194 votes and Teenie Royall with 132.

WAA Runoff

Randy Hudson, 173, and Becky Holton, 130, will be in the runoff for WAA council president. For the five dorm members Student Legislature six candidates will be in the runoff: Barbara Cashion (SP-165), Patsy McNutt (CP-SP-159), Kate Conner (SP-125), Mary Ann Daniel (SP-123), Ann Wells (UP-120), and Lindsay Tate (SP-115).

Marietta Duke and Hilda Sharkey, both UP candidates for Student Legislature from town, went in unopposed.

Carr Candidates Missing

Elected to the Coed Senate are Alice Middleton Smith; Tandy Lacy, Archer; Betty McDonald and Emily Ogburn, Alderman; Kit Finney and Carter Taylor, McIver; Ruth Lassiter, Kenan; Janie Blalock and Willie Marjorie Riddick, Spencer; Emily Baker, Phyllis Bradshaw, Barbara Ann Covington, Sally Jackson, Jean McKeithan, Jane Pointer and Elinor Woltz, town. There were no candidates from Carr.

Hilda Sharkey and Sue Stokes were elected members-at-large of the Women's council and Gail Hancock, Joan Lucas and Jean Roberts won the junior member positions.

Other officers elected to the WAA are, Barbara Ann Pope, vice-president; Lucile Arnot, secretary; Doris Beasley, treasurer; and Carolyn Guthrie, awards chairman.

One Little Word

The little word "not" can cause an enormous amount of trouble.

In the latest such case, sincerest apologies are due to D. Hiden Ramsey and to the Young Democrats club on campus for two omissions of "not" in the write-up of Ramsey's speech which appeared in the DTH yesterday.

Accurately, Ramsey said that the Democratic party had not inflicted upon the people of North Carolina such men as Huey Long, Jim Folsom, and the Talmadges; and that he (Ramsey) would not vote for a Democratic scoundrel.

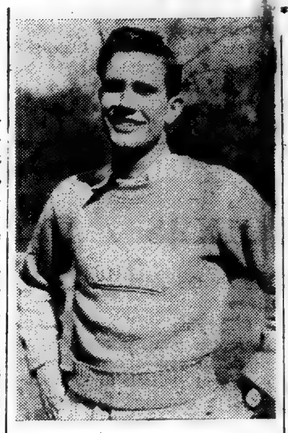
DEAN TO NEW ORLEANS

Dr. E. G. McGavran, dean of the School of Public Health, will attend the Southern Branch A. P. H. A. in New Orleans, La., on April 12. Dr. McGavran will present a paper on "The Recruitment and Training of Health Officers" at the Health Officers section meeting.

On April 16, Dr. McGavran will attend a meeting of the association of Deans of Schools of Public Health, in Toronto, Canada.

Jerry Pence Announces He Will Back Sper in Cheerleader Runoff; Says Sper's Ability Lies in His Unity of Cheering Squad and Section

Points Out Work On Card Stunts; Sper Is Leading



In the second outstanding political move of the spring elections, Jerry Pence, independent candidate for head cheerleader, announced yesterday afternoon that he would back Student party candidate Norm Sper in the runoff.

In a statement to the Daily Tar Heel, Pence gave his reasons for withdrawing from the race in favor of Sper.

"Having talked to both candidates I feel that Norm Sper is the man for the job because his main attribute is unity of the cheering squad and sections.

"He will introduce new blood and new cheers into the Carolina stands. Norm has ideas that are good and I feel sure that he can put them across. The work that he has done on the map as having an outstanding, novel and spirited cheering squad."

Sper's opponent in next Tuesday's runoff will be Charlie Stancill, University party candidate. In the general election, Sper obtained 1,355 votes to Stancill's 1,295. in the final ballot, Pence totalled 467 votes.

JERRY PENCE, who was defeated as an independent candidate for head cheerleader, yesterday announced that he would back the SP candidate Norm Sper in the runoff.

ELECTIONS MEETING

Chairman of the three political parties and all independents in the run-off will meet in Gerrard hall at 3 o'clock today.

Information pertinent to the final elections will be dispensed to both groups and they will be held inexcusably responsible for its observence; party chairmen will be responsible for the dissimation of the information to all their candidates.

'Ike-for-President' Club Is Formed Here

The reluctant General Ike Eisenhower gained some more support last Tuesday night when an Eisenhower - For - President Club was formed here on the campus.

The club was formed by the suggestion of Tom Eller who calltogether all Eisenhower supporters. Eller presided over the meeting until new officers were elected.

Arrangements were made at the meeting to circulate a petition asking General Ike to run for president.

Officers elected were: Miles Smith, president; Charles Sellers, vice-president; and Annie Ben Beale, secretary-treasurer.

Next meeting of the club will be Tuesday night at 7 o'clock. All students interested in the Eisenhower-For-President Club are urged to be present at the meeting.

Pearl Will Discuss Family Life Tonight

"Family Life in 1948" will be the topic of discussion tonight at the weekly Friday evening services of the Hillel foundation to be held in Roland Parker lounge No. 1 at 7:30.

Lester Pearl of the Sociology department will be the guest speaker. Pearl, who has been at the University since last summer is now teaching Sociology 62, a course in marriage.

After the services an informal discussion will be held on the topic of the evening.

SP-CP Steering Committees Meet In Joint Session

Student and Campus party steering committee members met together yesterday from 4:25 to 6:40 in Graham Memorial, but when their two and a quarter hour discussion was completed no definite decisions, endorsements, or committments had been made.

In an amicable beginning to a meeting that was to remain that way throughout, the group chose SP chairman Gran Childress to preside and CP legislator-elect Ellis Hall to serve as secretay.

First business to come before the conclave was discussion of the pending run-offs for the presidency and secretary-treasurership of the Student body. After lengthy consideration, the men present decided to take no action on either of the two positions.

After like decisions had been made concering the races for head cheerleader and at-large member of the publications board, the group moved to a discussion of candidates involved in the runoff for the Student legislature.

After a few minutes discussion of the run-off for men's short term positions, the group decided in view of the fact that all candidates concerned were nominees of one of the two parties represented, to move on to women's position.

At this point, Bill Mackie stated his belief that in a situation where legislature seats are at stake that the two parties should

(See SP-CP, page 4)

Plans For Quarterly Take Shape; Faculty Advisory Group Selected

Plans for the Carolina Quarterly are beginning to take definite shape. At an open meeting last week several new members were added to the excutive committee and a program for the next few weeks was drawn up.

Quarterly chairman Jonathan Marshall announced yesterday that the faculty advisory committee has been selected. The five man group consists of Dr. Phillips Russell and Walter Spearman of the Journalism department, Harry Russell, Lyman Cotton, and Charles Eaton of the English department.

James Rathburn was selected by the Executive Committee of the magazine to act as Treasurer for the remainder of this quarter. Bill Buchan was selected to succeed John Stump as the Carolina Quarterly's publicity director.

The Faculty Advisory committee will meet with the Executive committee on Friday afternoon at 4:00 P.M. in the Grail Room to discuss the progress of the Quarterly up to date and to lay plans for selecting a permanent staff at the earliest possible date.

Election Box Score

	GERRARD	RUFFIN	AYCOCK	ALDERMAN	TOTAL
PRESIDENT
Jess Dedmond (CP-UP)	827	152	397	130	1,510
Charlie Long (Ind.)	453	113	164	87	817
Dick Manning (Ind.)	327	47	37	32	443
Mike Rubish (SP)	196	66	118	19	399
VICE-PRESIDENT
Johnny Clampitt (UP)	966	169	290	123	1,548
Jim Godwin (CP-SP)	818	208	421	149	1,596
SECRETARY-TREASURER
Gran Childress (SP)	454	129	201	110	894
Earl Fitzgerald (CP)	276	96	195	25	592
Bob Kirby (UP)	961	126	270	120	1,477
DTH EDITOR
Ed Joyner (CP-SP-UP)	1,288	209	436	230	2,163
Art Melton (Ind.)	446	162	243	41	892
TARNATION EDITOR
Fred Burgess (Ind.)	124	33	61	14	232
Charlie Gibson (CP)	514	123	281	103	1,021
Tom Kerr (SP)	233	50	93	59	435
Bob Smith-Tom Wharton (UP)	828	157	240	83	1,308
YACK EDITOR
Gene Blake (CP-SP)	597	176	360	100	1,233
Bill Duncan (UP)	1,043	156	302	152	1,653
HEAD CHEERLEADER
Jerry Pence (Ind.)	293	29	76	69	467
Norm Sper (SP)	685	204	356	110	1,355
Charlie Stancell (UP)	796	137	279	83	1,295
CAA PRESIDENT
Vic Seixas (CP-SP)	639	140	260	104	1,143
Lyn Szafaryn (UP)	1,077	211	432	142	1,862
CAA VICE-PRESIDENT
Vinnie DiLorenzo (CP)	595	160	330	69	1,154
Bill Pritchard (UP)	1,020	167	303	160	1,656
PUBLICATIONS BD. (SENIORS)
Pete Gerns (CP-SP)	680	229	408	107	1,424
Dick Gordon (UP)	716	100	179	70	1,065
Ed Joyner (CP)	814	181	368	110	1,473
Sally Woodhull (SP-UP)	822	136	250	199	1,407
PUBLICATIONS BD. (JUNIORS)
Chuck Hauser (SP)	804	188	331	157	1,480
John Stump (CP-UP)	777	120	277	80	1,254
PUBLICATIONS BD. (AT-LARGE)
Billy Carmichael (UP)	843	127	247	126	1,343
Bill Buchan (SP)	461	114	221	82	878
Harold Bursley (CP)	329	90	175	32	626

Legislature Sustains Quarterly; $105,000 Campus Budget Passed

TONY PASTOR and his orchestra will provide music for the May Frolics series which starts tonight in Woollen gym at 9 o'clock. Included in the series will be a concert tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in Memorial hall and another dance tomorrow night in Wollen starting at 8:30.

Publications Get Large Increase Along With GM

By Gordon Huffines

A $105,000 general campus budget for the fiscal year beginning June 1 was passed last night by the Student Legislature by an almost unanimous vote. With the exception of an $87.50 cut in the appropriations for the Elections board the budget was passed intact as presented by the Finance committee.

An attempt to kill the new Carolina Quarterly by cutting the proposed $2,000 appropriation was defeated by members of the Legislature. On the recommendation of Ernest House, chairman of the Finance committee that a cut be made in the budget to increase reserve funds. Tag Montague introduced an amendment to cut the amount of money to be appropriated for establishing the quarterly to $1,000. Tom Kerr and Charlie Gibson appeared before the Legislature to defend the quarterly.

Largest item on the new budget is a $65,717 appropriation for campus publications. Of this amount the Daily Tar Heel will receive $24,670, the Yackety Yack, $33,818, and the Tarnation $5,775.

By a decree of the Board of Trustees Graham Memorial is to receive $21,000 to cover operating expenses for the next year. An additional fund of $5,250 was appropriated for student entertainment. (to be administered by Graham Memorial.)

With the exception of the opposal to the Carolina Quarterly the only other dissent evident in the routine passing of the budget items was over the transportation expenses for the Debate council. Ernest House explained to the legislators that the council's budget is being increased to $4,125 this year to aid in expanding the activities of the University's debating teams. Earl Fitzgerald, president of the Debate council, was extended the privileges of the floor to answer questions on the council's expenses.

Other appropriations provided for in the general budget are: executive branch of the Student government, $937.50; legislative branch, $400; judicial branch, $1,243.50.; Carolina Forum, $600; and the Men's Interdormitory council, $80. An unappropriated balance of $1,472 remains in the budget for the forthcoming fiscal year.

TARNATION STAFF

There will be an important meeting of the entire Tarnation business and editorial staffs, Monday night at 7 o'clock. Editor Tookie Hodgson urged all members of the staff to be present as important matters will be discussed.

Dr. Franz Polgar Will Return Monday Night for Second Show

By Sally Woodhull

In a return engagement by student request, Dr. Franz Polgar, hypnotist and mental telepathist extraordinary, will appear again in Memorial hall Monday night at 8 o'clock under the sponsorship of the Student Entertainment committee.

Appearing last Monday in Memorial, Polgar produced a show that proved so popular with the audience that he was asked to return. Monday's date was open on his current tour, so the genial master of the mind will appear again on campus.

Proceeds from this show, as well as last week's, will go toward liquidating the debt of the Student Entertainment committee, incurred when the group operated under a voluntary system.

Polgar says that he erases all thoughts from his mind, leaving it a complete blank when he conducts an experiment.

Kyser Scholarships Are Now Available

Applications for the Kay Kyser Scholarships in music and dramatic art, offered annually at the University, are now being received, according to announcement from the University's Scholarship committee, headed by Dean D. D. Carroll of the Commerce School.

The awards in both music and drama will be made in July for the coming year, and applications will be received until June 15.

Established here in 1941 by Kay Kyser, 1927 graduate, the scholarships have been awarded thus far to 14 students. Present holder of the dramatic art scholarship is William Rufus Ayers of Roanoke, Va., and of the music scholarship, Harold Lee Andrews, Durham.

Each scholarship is a cash award which provides tution, required fees, books, supplies, room and board for one year. The awards are made on a basis of talent, achievement and promise of future distinction in the fields of music or dramatic art. Any boy or girl eligible for admission at the University or is already enrolled in the University is qualified to apply.

House, Emory, Pegg, Robson, Rosen To Speak At Pro-Draft Reply Meeting

The pro-conscription group on campus announced today that their reply to arguments advanced by the Committee against Conscription will take the form of an open discussion on the present world situation.

In the meeting announced for Monday night they will present a panel of the most qualified speakers available to discuss the present situation from geographical, historical, political, scientific, and military points of view, Bill Corley announced. "We want to presen to the campus a complete analysis of the problem confronting the United States today, as we believe the best argument for any cause is the examination of the facts." he said. "If the students have the facts presented to them in a non-partisan discussion by the men best qualified to discuss the problem they will be able to make up their own minds as to whether or not they favor the proposed conscription legislation."

Chancellor Robert B. House will serve as moderator of the meeting and the speakers will be Dr. S. T. Emory of the geography department, Dr. C. H. Pegg of the history department, Dr. C. B. Robson of the department of political science, Dr. Nathan Rosen of the physics department, and Brig. Gen. Madison Pearson. The meeting will be held in Hill hall Monday at 8 o'clock.

An All-Day Sucker for You

After you scream, yell and holler about people getting out and voting, you are inclined to get a little weary of the subject. Yet, after you finish your yelling, you discover that out of a student body of nearly 7,000 students only a few over half have marked their ballots.

Why? First of all, it is a marked sign that the average student doesn't give a tinkers dam about his student government. Then, it is a sign that the leaders in student government have failed in their task of impressing the importance of voting on the student public.

Tuesday, the runoffs from the spring elections will be held. As a rule, the turnout for runoffs does not compare with the interest shown in major elections. This is unfortunate, for in the runoffs, the final decisions are made as to who will officially take the reins in leading campus affairs next year.

It is not important who the individual student votes for. Any candidate who has ever run for office will willingly agree that they will bow to the majority of the voters—if it is a majority. There is no such effect obtained, however, when barely half of the student body votes.

It seems ridiculous to have to beg your fellow students to vote in elections. It is also definitely discouraging. From all obvious indications, it wouldn't do much good to beg anyway. Maybe, if the elections board offered an all-day-sucker to each man or woman who turns out at the polling place, the response would be more gratifying. Until the legislature appropriates enough money for them, however we will still have to depend on the individual student to obtain—by one means or another—the interest or initiative to find his way to the polls and express his choice for his student leaders.

When three-fourths of the student body turns out for elections, then the leaders—and editorial writers—will change their favorite song for another tune. Until they do, however, we will continue screaming and yelling and hollering about more interest among the students.—B.B.

Got a communication from publicity-minded Crosley Motors the other day. One-track minds who sent it, wrote: Daily Car Heel.

With so much jockeying for the 1948 Republican nomination, and so many dark horses around, people must be really concerned about the possibility of a stable government.
—ACP Business Review

"I do hope MacArthur wins. The inside of that old White House would look so lovely lined with mirrors."

WHAT'S UP in Graham Memorial

Recorded dinner music programs seem to be getting better and better. Why not drop by the main lounge tonight about 6:30 and hear Grieg's Piano Concerto in A Minor, Briten's Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra, and Temptation and The Very Thought of You, from Morton Gould's album.

This Changing World

A Museum For War Weapons

By Bill Robertson

The feeling of cynicism and despair-of war hysteria and fear—which fills our press appears in striking contrast to the "propaganda" seeping out from behind the "Iron Curtain" these days. Recently, Premier Dimitroff of Bulgaria, returning from a trip to the Soviet Union, stated that he saw no signs of a war spirit in the Soviet press or among the Soviet people. Premier Gottwald of Czechoslovikia stated in a speech a few days ago that there would be "no Third World War."

In the Soviet Union itself, an article has appeared on the "transition from socialism to communism" as a practical task facing the Soviet people. This article predicts a tremendous expansion in the production of consumers' goods in the Soviet Union in the next few years.

It is obvious from these examples that people's ideas are not the same everywhere. As the well-known Communist, Josef Stalin, put it—"whateves is one's manner of life such is one's manner of thought." Take the idea of heaven:

The Wall Street bankers' idea of heaven is a magnificent and beautiful country like Brazil, rich in undeveloped natural resources and cheap labor-power. In such a country the rich "Yanquis" may freely invest their surplus capital and play the game of "Monopoly" with loaded dice.

But the best idea of heaven we have come across was described by a little Russian schoolboy. He writes of a society a hundred years from now which will have more than enough food, clothing, and shelter for all people all over the world. It will have museums exhibiting such curious "antiques" as tanks and machine-guns. It will be a society without stock-markets and grain exchanges—and, strangest of all, without money!

But we Americans have our faith, too. Like the faith of the Soviet people it has yet to be realized. Even so, the hysterical war-mongering stories in the newspapers can not destroy it! It has a long history and was given expression many years ago by our greatest poet, Walt Whitman: Come, we shall make the continent indissoluble!. . .We shall plant companionship thick as trees along all the rivers of America. . .and along the shores of the great lakes, and all over the prairies!

This dream can and will be realized by the efforts of millions of ordinary people—and in days to come our Army mess-kit shall find its proper place in "The Museum of Primeval Antiquities".

MED DEGREE CANDIDATES

All candidates for the A. B.-L. L. B. degree or the B. S. in Medicine degree who will have successfully completed their first year of Law School or Medical School by this June, should file an application-for-degree card this week in 203 South Building, College of Arts and Sciences.

Mudville

To Investigate Rent Increase

By Dan Sapp

The village mayor, Perry Pa[yne] resigned Monday night. He said that he would not have the time to do the job properly and doesn't feel that it would be fair for him to stay on under those conditions. With the approval of the members of the council who were present he turned the position over to [Hugh] Goulding who was runner up in the recent mayorial election.

The hue and cry about the so called rent hike in the village is still going strong. As his last official act before resigning Monday night Mayor Perry Payne appointed a committee headed by Hugh Welles to investigate the situation and see what can be done. Hugh has been doing some unofficial investigation on the rent question already and it appears that it all boils down to Washington.

The question, as it has been pointed out is not a matter of what has been done but what has not been done. The rent dates have not been changed as they should have been, therefore the low bracket renter finds himself in a new bracket which in many cases will absorb about half of his subsistance increase. The rent rates will have to be changed by the FPHA in Washington so if you know any congressmen put the bee on them. In any event don't take it out on Sue Hunt who collects the rent. Sue says that after last week she is ready to retire from public life.

New singns are due to be posted soon near the entrance to the village, warning drivers to drive carefully to protect the children.

With the appearance of spring the battle royal is raging between inquisitive pooches and zealous gardeners. One unhappy soul said this week that there ain't no justice. He spent much valuable time planting a flower garden which the dogs dug up. More valuable time replanting was spent the garden and putting up a fence to keep out the animals. Now he says the fence is so high he can't reach in to get the grass and weeds. So goes life in the wild wood.

LAW SCHOOL ELECTS

Officers for the coming year were elected by the Law association on Monday, April 5.

The new officers are Mike Carr, president, who served this year as Law School representative to the Men's council; Jack Alexander, vice-president, president of the Law School second year class; Charlie Fulton, secretary, member of the Grail; Sterling Gilliam, treasurer. Ralph Strayhorn, Honor council representative, former varsity football player and president of the first year class.

The Brassy Taste

Competition For The Quarterly

By Bob Sain

The proposed literary quarterly to be begun here next fall (we hope) will have competition. Three men on campus—O. B. Hardison, Harvey Hoeing and Paul Ramsey—are planning to publish a "little" mag. They'll call it "Aprille". Contributions—literary and monetary—may be addressed to Hardison, General Delivery in Chapel Hill. Format will be in the traditional vein—six by nine. Ramsey is an English instructor here. . .

Speaking of matters literary. . . The Thomas Wolfe award for the best story to appear in the Carolina Mag this year will be made soon. A committee is being formed to hand out that honor. What do you think? . . .The Mag should make some sort of arrangement for honoring illustrators. The best I've seen this year is Dick Preyer's drawing for a story to appear next month. . .

Congratulations are in order for Johnny Satterfield and his fine band. They played an unheralded concert in GM last week. Guest of honor was George Simon, editor of Metronome magazine. Reports are that The Big Man was impressed. There's a story due on the outfit in the June issue of Metronome. . .Credit will go as well to Beverly Joslin who sat in with the band for vocals.

. . .Lamar Stringfield, who copped a Pulitzer prize for music some years ago, was in town last week. Stringfield did the music for the Lost Colony production and is continuing in the same vein with music for an historical pageant, "Shout Freedom," which chronicles the singning of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. The show is scheduled to be presented at the Southern States fairground in Charlotte beginning May 20. . .

. . .Marty Jacobs is happy about rehearsels for the joint DA and Music department show, "Sweep It Clean." Jacobs, who's directing the musical, says his chorus is working hard to shake the show into shape for April 20 staging.

A juke box service man told me the other day that the revival craze which has in the past year put such unpleasant arias as "Four Leaf Clover" and "Heartaches" into the big money is wearing off. It's his business, but I'm not so sure. As Elmo might say, "In actual practice it always seems to me to be the other way around." Two tunes in that genre: "Baby Face" and "Heartbreaker" are, unfortunately, getting quite popular.

To the voters: you've made your bed, now see who lies in it.

. .The Di Senate has turned down a request by the Wallace club. . .the group wanted to rent the Di hall for a meeting tonight. Said the majority of the members by vote: no dice. (Just for the record—the Young Republican club has been allowed use of the hall.)

BLEE ON TRIP

Miss Margaret Blee, associate professor in the Department of Public Health Nursing, is making a field visit to the City-County Health department, Columbus, Ga., where two public health nursing students are doing field work. Before her return on April 17 she will attend the Southern branch A. P. H. A. in New Orleans, Louisiana. She will make a visit to the demonstration center, New Orleans Health department and will participate in the Joint Meeting of the Collegiate council and State Directors of Public Health Nursing in the Southern area.

Write Away

Defends Seixas And His Sportsmanship

To Critic McClinton:

This letter is in retaliation to your letter to the editor on Vic Seixas's sportsmanship and grand-stand conduct on the tennis courts. Obviously, you have never played tennis, and I doubt whether you have gone farther in sports than criticizing, according to your own infinite conceptions of a sport—but this could go on forever.

From what I have seen of tennis and I play in my small way and follow it enthusiastically, Vic Seixas is one of the finest, if not the finest sportsman on the courts today. This statement will be backed up by Coach Kenfield or any other tennis authority.

Specifically, during last Friday's match with Cornell, his display of control was amazing considering how far his game was off that day. Of course, you wouldn't understand that and naturally you do not wish to remember when one of Mr. Savitt's shots was out and Seixas called it out but not very loudly. When the line judge called it good, Seixas never uttered a protest. All good tennis players probably do the same and very often, but it takes a good sportsman to do it. You would not have noticed Mr. Savitt's eccentricities of conduct during the first set, naturally. His die-hard manner appears much worse to me since his game was normal, whereas Seixas did not lose playing his best game, but was having one of those days, probably the worst one he'll have this season.

I imagine that the type of champion you would like to represent you—since you have delegated yourself as the leader of a supposed majority in the grandstand—would be one who would apologize to you personally everytime he committed an error. Fortunately, champions are not of that calibre.

I think that this letter represents the feelings of the majority the gallery last Friday. We want Vic to know we're still 100 per cent behind him and his interpretation of sportsmanship.

William Marlow

Excellent

Editor:

I have never intended to indicate the least criticism of Mr. Broadfoot's acts as chairman of the Memorial Hall Meeting on April 17, 1947. To the contrary I sincerely believe that he did an excellent job as an impartial chairman for that meeting. I have heard many others who attended the meeting express the same opinion.

Yesterday I carefully checked two North Carolina Daily Newspapers for April 18, & 19, 1947. I was unable to find in either of the papers any reference to resolutions passed in an adjourned meeting of the April 17 Memorial Hall Meeting.

This experience emphasizes the value of preparedness. Counter action is necessary against groups intent upon the destruction of institutions we cherish. However, to adequately fight this minority attempt at bludgeoning our way of life, we must go after them with clear facts when we're accusing them and with good hard reasoning when we are rebuffing them. With those weapons and the courage to use them we can keep any extremist intrigue confined to the extremists.

Aside from the allowance of probable specific error, there is no reason to apologize the main idea. The validity of the characterization I gave the group of extremists who are begging a free ride on this campus stands.

Walt Arnold

For Dedmond

Editor:

Upon being eliminated from the recent election as a candidate for the Presidency of the Student Body, I wish to earnestly thank my many friends for their help and consideration.

I have considered the remaining two candidates in the Presidential race—Mr. Dedmond and Mr. Long—and I believe, in the interest of good government, that Mr. Dedmond should be our next Student Body President. It is with this thought that I heartily urge your support at the polls for Mr. Jess Dedmond.

Dick Manning

Apologies

It has come to the attention of CAROLINA MAGAZINE editors that several errors were incurred due to an oversight in the March issue.

We apologize to Dick Fullen for having his illustration for the Suburban Interlude story labeled incorrectly.

We apologize to Catie Holt for having omitted her name from the list of models on the fashion layout.

We owe two apologies to Bill Harrison for failing to acknowledge his tree illustration on the poetry page and his cartoons for the How to Treat a Roommate article.

The Carolina Magazine

Familiar?

Bartlesville, Okla. —(UP)— A Bartlesville man awoke, walked into his front room en route to the doorstep for his morning paper and found a stranger on the floor in front of the fireplace, sound asleep.

The man obligingly took a blanket from his bed, laid it over the stranger, and read his paper.

When the man awoke, he rubbed his eyes and said:

"Ow-w-w! I feel awful! Where am I?"

"You're not at home," his host replied.

The dazed intruder found he lived two doors away.

"I'll never touch it again," he told his neighbor.

Campus Forum

Dedmond Takes Lead in Poll

By Pete Gerns

Run-off elections will be held next Tuesday at the same polling places where the student body voted last Tuesday.

Still in the presidency race are Jess Dedmond, CP-UP, and Charles Long, Ind; Childress, SP, and Kirby, UP, will be fighting it out for the secretary-treasurer, while Sper, SP and Stancell, UP are fighting for head cheerleader.

Campus forum again took a poll to find out how the vote will most likely go for these positions. The poll was taken at the Y and at Lenoir. One hundred students were asked "How will you cast your vote on Tuesday?". Sixty-five per cent of the hundred students were questioned in the Y, the remaining 35 per cent were asked in Lenoir.

President	YMCA (65o|o)	Lenoir (35o|o)	Average
Dedmond, CP-UP	49o|o	19o|o	68o|o
Long, Ind.	15	15	30
Don't Know	1	1	2
Secretary-Treasurer
Childress, SP	20	21	41
Kirby, UP	29	8	37
Don't Know	16	6	22
Cheerleader
Sper, SP	33	25	58
Stancill, UP	28	10	38
Don't Know	4	....	4

Take it for what it's worth. Again we want to caution the reader that the poll is not weighed. Students interviewed at the Y may well go and vote at Lenoir and vice versa.

Just Here

Busy Not Thyself In Matters...

By Larry Berry

Congratulations to you who have been elected, a prayer of Thanksgiving in memory of those who tried, and sweet dreams to those consigned to the run-off.

Last week I stressed the need of a tutorial system for the University and was gratified at the responses received. A letter to the Tar Heel gave the plan of a much better system than I had indicated. So far I have not been able to get any action going on a tutorial plan, but I am starting this week. I sincerely hope that all of you will help toward the goal of a college education for every Carolina graduate. This need not be as painful as it sounds to many degree seekers.

When Carolina returned to its peace-time function as a University, many problems began to manifest themselves for students and faculty alike; long lines, increased prices, and crowded classrooms were among them. Gradually they gained precedence over most of the other bits of matter in this state of flux roving in the brain, so that now many of us have become problems. I do not mean in the educational sense, but in a psychological one. Examples of this student for psychology's sake are as numerous as comments on the New Look.

There is much talk throughout the civilized world of the malformed minds of college graduates. Of necessity the student in college comes into contact with personalities that can throw him far off the lead of a normal life. These are not the communists who come out and put on a nice show for the benefit of all. I do not think that the campus pays very much attention to these outside of their amusement value. We do seem to have among us though a number of persons whose common object seems to be degradation of the remaining representatives of the homo sapien.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

ACROSS

1—Furs
4—Ten times
9—Auto
12—Fabulous bird
13—Vows
14—Mr. Baca
15—Edible plant
17—With hands on hips
19—Worthless scrap
20—To expend
21—Rate of speed
23—Geometrical ratio
24—Tall grasses
27—Sea bird
28—To gasp
30—Breathe (comb. form)
31—Agency for peace (abbr.)
32—Touching
34—Musical note
35—Top actor
37—Biological factor
38—Delaware (abbr.)
39—Chemical compound
41—Right (abbr.)
42—Spoils
43—Summons
45—Period of time
46—Becoming
48—Breaks
51—Charged particle
52—Mistake
54—Long fish
55—Bevy of pace
56—Europeans
57—Beam

DOWN

1—Curve
2—Female deer
3—By the clock
4—Legal wrong
5—Method
